U.S., Soviets hope for progress at summit

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Soviet Leader Mikhail Gorbachev, promising to search for solutions "to the burning problems" of the world, arrived today for a summit with President Reagan hailed by both sides as a chance to make progress on arms control and other issues.

Gorbachev held on to his hat to keep it from being blown away by blustery winds as he stepped off his Aeroflot jet with his wife, Raisa, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and other officials.

In brief comments at Keflavik Airport, Gorbachev said, "We have arrived here to start this meeting imbued with a sense of responsibility" owed to people around the world.

"We of course hope that the same sense of responsibility for the destiny of the world is the feeling brought here in the capital of Iceland by the president of the United States," he added. He said Reagan's call on Thursday for a successful summit was a good foundation for the meeting.

The Soviet leader said the ultimate hope should be "the final elimination of nuclear weapons by the year 2000."

From the airport, Gorbachev traveled in a motorcade to his summit headquarters: a cruise ship docked in a Reykjavik bay for use by Soviet officials. They were hampered by a hotel room shortage in this country of 250,000 people.

Before Gorbachev reached Reykjavik, Andre Grachov, a Soviet spokesman, said, "I believe that the success of the Reykjavik meeting, which we all wish, will set a date" for a follow-up meeting in the United States.

Reagan and Gorbachev are to confer at three two-hour meetings Saturday and Sunday.

Reagan arrived here during a windy storm Thursday and spent the night at the U.S. ambassador's modest home, which will be the U.S. headquarters during the president's three-day stay.

Reagan's pre-summit day called for several hours of final strategy sessions with Secretary of State George P. Shultz, White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan, National Security Adviser Vice Adm. John Poindexter and other aides.

The only public meetings on his agenda were courtesy calls on Icelandic leaders.

"I think the president is well prepared," White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters on the flight from Washington. "He is confident that he is taking the right approach that can lead to a resolution of the problems that divide the two countries."

Preparations for the summit, Speakes said, "form a basis for face-to-face discussions that hopefully will lead to some progress."

That hope was echoed by Nikolai Shishlin, deputy head of the Kremlin's propaganda department, who said the summit "is a moment of truth, a meeting which will demonstrate the readiness of both sides for wide-ranging and productive discussions."

"We're interested in results and no more so than the United States," Shishlin said.

He and other Soviet officials said

Gorbachev was prepared to discuss all the issues that were raised when the leaders first met last November in Geneva.

Shishlin said, as the Americans have, that progress in Iceland could lead to the more formal summit Reagan wants to hold in the United States — perhaps as early as December.

On his arrival Thursday, the president's motorcade swept past the treeless and sparsely populated landscape between the airport and the capital.

Small groups of people — some holding candles and signs endorsing peace — clustered at various points as the motorcade reached the city and the people who watched his arrival at the residence of Ambassador Nicholas Ruwe were undemonstrative.

The government of this island nation of 250,000 people has called on peace groups and anti-Soviet demonstrators to limit their activities, and their plea has been aided by a scarcity of hotel rooms for anyone trying to come to the city.

Cocaine conviction nets 17 years

Martin Richard Pesina, 26, was sentenced to serve 17 years in the Texas Department of Corrections Thursday afternoon after he was found guilty of delivery of cocaine by a jury in the 222 State District Court.

Pesina was one of over 80 people arrested in a county wide narcotics raid in January.

Pesina must also pay a $1,500 fine.

Two other individuals who were arrested in connection with the January drug raid pleaded guilty to charges.

Ovel Juan "Blacky" Mendoza pleaded guilty to three charges of delivery of drugs and received a 10 year sentence for each to be served concurrently.

Crecenco Barajas Jr. also pleaded guilty to two counts of delivery of LSD. Barajas as sentenced to serve seven years in The Texas Department of Corrections.

UW drive closes today

The United Way of Deaf Smith County closes out its scheduled one-month campaign drive today and when the totals are announced at Monday's final report meeting, volunteer leaders are hoping to announce that the goal of $110,000 has been reached.

The UW campaign had topped the $70,000 mark last Monday and UW President M.D. Gentry and drive chairman Helen Langley had urged volunteer workers to make a big push this week. A number of businesses had not turned in their prospect cards, awaiting decisions from employees.

The local UW budget helps to fund 10 community organizations, and Gentry had urged citizens to consider that a contribution to the United Way was "really ten gifts in one." Agencies in the UW budget include Senior Citizens, Big Brothers-Big Sisters, Boy Scouts, YMCA, Campfire, Inc., Family Services, Red Cross, Salvation Army, High Plains Epilepsy Foundation, and the Children's Rehabilitation Center.

Volunteers attempted to contact each business in the community and solicit contributions from the business and all its employees. Citizens can contribute cash or make pledges to be paid by payroll deductions, bank draft or quarterly or monthly billings.

Mrs. Langley reminded citizens today that "it's not too late to help make this a successful campaign." She asked citizens who might not have been contacted to call the UW office or any volunteer worker. The UW office phone is 364-5220. The formal campaign ends today, but contributions can be made any time.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says Monday is a terrible way to spend one-seventh of your life.

One day instead of serving the usual hot meal, the school cafeteria handed out peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

After lunch, a satisfied first grader marched out the door and complimented the cafeteria manager. "Finally, you gave us a home-cooked meal!"

Some people get elected to office because they are well known. Others are defeated for the same reason.

Have you been surveyed by telephone lately? An irate lady called us this week to see if we knew anything about a survey, supposedly being done from Austin to get opinions on the nuclear waste repository. The reason the lady was mad was they had interviewed her for more than an hour, and she counted 32 questions which she felt were not at all related to the repository issue.

She felt the survey was a "ploy", using the nuclear repository issue as a "come-on" in order to get people to cooperate. Some of the questions were "too personal, too intimate", reported the caller. We haven't had any other calls about the survey, nor has the chamber office been notified. We'd suggest that anyone contacted for such a survey be sure to insist on a name and telephone number.

James Roberts, publisher of The Andrews County News, wrote recently that the federal government never seems to learn from history, especially about giving money away. He said some rich dads have the same problem.

He tells the story about the daughter of a wealthy businessman who fell in love with a young man who could be classified as a free soul—that is, he was allergic to work and had no visible means of support. He was worried about meeting the wealthy father, but his girl friend assured him that her father would understand his situation.

One evening she brought her boy friend home and introduced him to her father. "Dad, this is the young man I want to marry." The older man looked over the young one for a moment. "Well, I'm pleased to meet you. If my daughter loves you, you must have something on the ball. What do you do?"

"Nothing," replied the young man. "I'm unemployed. I haven't discovered my niche in life."

"Well, I'm sure we can work something out," said the father. "As you know, I'm a wealthy man and my business is worth about $20 million. What say I make you a full partner and you'll be worth $10 million the day you marry my daughter. How does that sound?"

The young man's mouth dropped open. "Sir, I'm overwhelmed. I just don't know what to say." The father put his arm around the future son-in-law's shoulder. "Nothing to go for my daughter and the young man she marries," he said paternally.

The daughter kissed her father and the two young people started to leave. "If there is anything you want, you just ask me," added the father.

The young man paused at the door, then turned. "Well, there is one thing, sir."

"What's that, son?"

"I was just wondering—now that we're partners—would you consider buying me out?"

Immigration bill entering Senate-House conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Immigration legislation is entering a House-Senate conference, with sponsors confident of success but mindful that they came tantalizingly close to agreement two years ago — and failed.

The stage for another session-ending cliff-hanger was set Thursday night, when the House voted 230-166 for a bill designed to slow massive illegal immigration to the United States.

Banks report deposits

Hereford's two banks had deposits totalling more than $140 million at the close of business Sept. 30, according to figures from federal bank call statements this week.

Deposits of $84,063,000 were reported at First National Bank, which also recorded loans of $58,480,000. Hereford State Bank had deposits of $56,334,000 and loans totalling $33,212,000.

Total deposits at the two banks were $140,397,000, an increase of $6 million over the same reporting period one year ago. First National's deposits were up almost $4.2 million and HSB's deposits were up about $1.8 million over a year ago.

Bank deposits normally reach a peak at the end of the year. Deposits at the two banks on Dec. 31, 1985 were $152.5 million.

The bill has new wrinkles — a temporary amnesty for refugees from El Salvador and Nicaragua and provisions for foreign farm workers — but its foundation has not changed from past legislation.

The cornerstones remain a program of penalties for employers who hire undocumented workers; and amnesty for illegal immigrants who have held jobs, paid taxes and raised families here for many years.

As the 98th Congress drew to a close two years ago, immigration conferees reached agreement on many important issues that had divided them, but were unable to finish their work before the session ended.

Sponsors from both houses expressed varying degrees of optimism after Thursday's vote.

"I've said all along, get the bill to conference and we will be able to cabbage something together and send it on to the president," said Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., the chief Senate sponsor. "There are some tough issues to be resolved, but they are resolvable."

"It's a better than an even bet," said Rep. Romano L. Mazzoli, D-Ky.

Rep. Dan Lungren, R-Calif., said he expects agreement, "but it's not a slam-dunk."

Despite the wide margin in the House, the bill nearly was sunk when Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla., attempted to eliminate the amnesty program for illegal aliens.

McCollum lost 199-192 after Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., and others warned him was a "killer amendment." While McCollum argued amnesty was akin to "slapping in the face" those who wait years to immigrate legally, opponents said the delicately balanced bill would come unglued if the amendment passed.

Also surviving was the provision to suspend deportation of aliens from El Salvador and Nicaragua, who, according to supporters of the language, would face political persecution if they returned home.

White denies involvement in bugging

AUSTIN (AP) — It's a race to the lie detectors now as the Clements and White camps deny any knowledge about who put the electronic bug in the office of a Clements campaign consultant.

Gov. Mark White said Thursday he and his staffers would take the polygraph exams if it would further the investigation.

Reggie Bashur, spokesman for Bill Clements, said two top officials in the GOP campaign are ready to pay for privately administered lie detector tests to prove they did not plant the bug.

An electronic sweep detected the eavesdropping device Sunday in the Austin office of Karl Rove, Clements' top strategist. Clements campaign officials said the sweep was conducted because information they thought was secret had been leaked.

A matchbook-sized radio transmitter was found behind a picture on a wall near Rove's desk telephone. The FBI and the Texas Department of Public Safety are investigating.

The bug was the topic of the first questions at White's Thursday news conference. "Absolutely not," he said, when asked if anyone in his campaign had anything to do with it.

White said he told his staff to ask DPS Col. Jim Adams "to take whatever action is necessary to get to the bottom of it as quickly as he could."

Asked by reporters if his staff would submit to polygraph exams, White said, "They're available to do that if it would be helpful or informative."

Hormone testing called for

CHICAGO (AP) — The use of male hormones by female athletes is a big problem, and a test should be developed to keep those who have used the substances from competing in the Olympics, a U.S. Olympic team official says.

"The abuse is worldwide," said Dr. Robert O. Voy, director of sports medicine and science for the United States Olympic Committee.

"There is a total ban (on use of the hormones), but there ought to be total testing," he said in a telephone interview from Dallas.

The hormones, in the form of anabolic steroids, are used to increase muscle mass.

Voy said the problem with steroids is worse than cases of genetic males trying to sneak into women's events in world athletic competition.

A Finnish researcher reported in today's Journal of the American Medical Association that genes alone do not determine who is a woman, and he recommended that the test used to ensure that female Olympic competitors are really women be altered if it is continued.

"The procedure is not only inaccurate but also discriminatory, in that it excludes women who should be allowed to participate," writes Dr. Albert de la Chapelle of the University of Helsinki.

The test, he added, does not screen for women strengthened by male hormones.

Claiborne removed from office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry E. Claiborne was back in prison today, stripped of his judicial robes and his $78,700 salary by a Senate conviction that left some senators troubled over claims that he was the victim of a government vendetta.

After a 10-day impeachment trial, the first in more than half a century, the Senate overwhelmingly pronounced Claiborne guilty Thursday of three of the four articles of impeachment the House unanimously approved July 22.

Flanked by his lawyers, Claiborne sat with arms folded across his chest as the Senate convicted him of "high crimes and misdemeanors" by willfully cheating on his 1979 and 1980 income tax returns.

The roll call votes on those two counts were 87-10 and 90-7, with Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, voting "present."

The Senate also concluded on an 89-8 vote, with Stevens again voting "present," that Claiborne had "betrayed the trust of the people of the United States ... and thereby brought disrepute on the federal courts and the administration of justice."

But senators acquitted him of Article III, which said his 1984 criminal conviction on two counts of tax evasion was "an independent and sufficient basis for his removal from office." The vote was 46-17, with 35 senators voting "present."

Claiborne's battle to clear his name was lost, however, on the very first roll call because a guilty verdict on a single article of impeachment is sufficient for conviction.

Officials close summit on drugs

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP) — Law enforcement officials from 13 nations, including many of the world's leading producers of cocaine, marijuana and heroin, exchanged ideas in an unprecedented summit called to create a common front against drug traffickers.

No formal accords or agreements were expected to come from the two-day meeting which closes today and was billed as a chance for a free exchange of ideas.

The participants spent most of Thursday meeting behind closed doors in a session opened by President Miguel de la Madrid, who urged the participants to unite against the drug traffickers.

"Let us avoid the danger of problems dividing us," de la Madrid said. "We must look for a solution that unites us. No country is safe from drug dependence. We must be on the alert."

De la Madrid, who suggested the summit, made no direct reference to recent U.S.-Mexico rifts stemming from the drug problem.

Peres resigns post

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres resigned today, beginning an unprecedented transfer of power to his rival, Yitzhak Shamir. Hours before the resignation, both men underscored the fragility of the next government.

Peres, leader of the left-leaning Labor Party, will head a caretaker administration until Shamir, currently foreign minister and head of the rightist Likud bloc, is sworn in by Parliament, probably on Tuesday or Wednesday.

"Mr. President, I respectfully hand in my letter of resignation as prime minister according to the existing coalition agreement," Peres said in a brief statement outside the office of President Chaim Herzog, to whom the resignation was submitted.

Herzog replied: "I wish you well and congratulate you on all you have done."

Peres and Shamir trade jobs under an arrangement made in September 1984 after an election stalemate made it impossible for either party to govern alone.

Peres, speaking on Israel Radio hours before handing in his resignation, said a Shamir-led government would not last if it failed to pursue his Middle East peace initiatives.

FHA members join in balloon launch

Members of the Future Homemakers of America and H.E.R.O. chapters of LaPlata and Stanton Junior High Schools participated in a balloon lift during lunch recently to promote membership in the chapters and to create community awareness of the purposes and activities of the two types of FHA chapters.

Local FHA and HERO members joined 11,500 other FHA-HERO chapters across the United States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands in spreading the word about FHA, a national student organization for teens whose programs focus on leadership development, family communication, peer education and community service. FHA chapters emphasize consumer homemaking education; HERO chapters emphasize preparation for jobs and careers in home economics occupations.

Each FHA and HERO member inserted into the balloon the national objective of the organization, along with the student's name and school telephone number. Sara Rose, member of LaPlata's FHA chapter, Ann Landers What is a customer?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a person who has been in the retail business for many years I was delighted to see the letter in your column about the indifference and just plain rudeness of some salespeople. That would have been the ideal time to rerun a column of several years ago explaining what a customer is.

I clipped it, had blow-ups made and placed them in strategic spots in all my stores. It's not too late, Ann. Please run it again.—H. IN ARKANSAS

DEAR H.: Thanks for asking. I had so many angry letters from salespeople telling me how rotten the public is that I feel a real need to rerun that column. Thank you for asking.

WHAT IS A CUSTOMER?

A customer is the most important person in any business.

A customer is not dependent on us. We are dependent on him.

A customer is not an interruption of our work. He is the purpose of it.

A customer does us a favor when he comes in. We aren't doing him a favor by waiting on him.

A customer is part of our business—not an outsider.

A customer is not just money in the cash register. He is a human being with feelings and deserves to be treated with respect.

A customer is a person who comes to us with his needs and his wants. It is our job to fill them.

A customer deserves the most courteous attention we can give him. He is the lifeblood of this and every business. He pays your salary. Without him we would have to close our doors. Don't ever forget it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I read in a recent column the description of a woman whose life was a living hell because of depression I knew I had to write.

I experienced all the pain she suffered; in fact, I could have written that letter myself. There were days when I stayed in bed with the draperies drawn because I couldn't face the world. I was so ashamed because I didn't know anyone who was as weak as I.

In 1975, I took a complete physical (my first) and learned that I was allergic to tuna fish. This was something I craved and ate twice a day for several years. When I stopped eating tuna fish my life changed completely. I no longer am depressed. I look forward to each day. I am off all medication and feel like a new person. Please tell your readers about this, or better yet, print my letter.—DAISY IN DAYTON

DEAR DAISY: Thanks for sharing the good news. We've known for quite a while that allergies to certain foods can cause emotional problems. Hyperactive children are prime examples.

I urge anyone who reads this and suspects that food could be the culprit to check it out with a physician who is a clinical ecologist or one who does food additive allergy testing. This single act could change your life.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two months ago on my 14th birthday my Dad told me he had to stop hugging and kissing me. I feel unloved and awful. Please help.—AMY IN K.C.

DEAR K.C.: So much has been written about incest your Dad probably has been frightened off. Too bad. Children never outgrow their need for affection. Your Dad needs to be told the difference between good touching and bad touching so he can hug you again.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You—For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Ninth grade ties 6-6

8th grade Mavericks score 14-6 victory

La Plata Junior High School won one football game Thursday and tied in the other, playing in Plainview against Plainview Red teams.

La Plata scored a 14-6 victory in the eighth grade game, and the ninth grade contest ended in a 6-6 tie.

Season records for La Plata's teams are 1-3-1 for the ninth grade and 2-2 for the eighth grade. Both teams play at Plainview next Thursday against Plainview Blue. Game times are 4 p.m. for the ninth grade and 5:30 p.m. for the eighth grade.

Plainview Red held a 6-0 lead in the first quarter of the ninth grade game. La Plata tied up the contest at 6-6 in the second quarter when Keith Kelso caught a 15-yard pass from Jim Andrews.

Both teams then failed to score the rest of the way, and the game ended with the 6-6 tie.

La Plata Coach Ed Coplen said his outstanding offensive players of the game were running back Tate Smith and receiver Dee Nall, and that his outstanding players on defense were Burt Noland, Jared White, and Bret Coner.

La Plata won the eighth grade game with a touchdown pass with 28 seconds left in the game. The score was tied 6-6 before that touchdown.

Zack Farr caught a 35-yard touchdown pass from Cody Page. Page threw the pass after receiving a backward lateral from quarterback T.J. Head.

Page scored a two-point conversion after the touchdown, giving La Plata what would be its final margin of 14-6.

"Neither team scored in the first half. La Plata gained a 6-0 lead in the third quarter when Chris Tardy rushed 45 yards for a touchdown.

Turnovers then hurt the Mavericks, and Plainview Red capitalized on one of them to move in for a game-tying touchdown in the fourth quarter.

La Plata Coach Tommy Bowling said, "We had several good opportunities to score in the first half, but could not get it in.

"We had our best game of the year on offense. The offensive line of Mark Daniel, Trey Patterson, Chris Matthews, Patrick Newton, and Ralph Martinez blocked real good. T.J. Head, our quarterback, had his best ball game.

"The defense created seven turnovers. We had three interceptions, by Noe Cantu, Roy Cantu, and Cody Page. Oscar Garcia, linebacker, and Chris Blair, cornerback, had real good games."

About the game this week against Abilene Christian, Carthel said, "Abilene Christian is much better this year than last. They beat Southwest Texas who beat Rice who just lost to Texas by three points. This is one of the best teams they've ever had.

"They're a tremendous threat to put points on the board. We'll have to score a lot of points to beat them."
