Bentsen expects nuke waste funds to fall

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Energy Department will likely lose funds for its nuclear waste disposal program, halting plans to drill exploratory shafts at a potential dump site in Deaf Smith County, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said.

Bentsen, who has fought the disposal site, said Wednesday that funding should be almost $200 million below the $719 million the administration originally proposed for the disposal program.

"Final congressional approval of this legislation could come at any time," Bentsen said. "I'm pleased by this outcome, though we didn't get everything I had wanted.

"I felt that we should have completely stopped the search for a first nuclear waste repository until the Energy Department agreed to resume its search for a second repository site n the Eastern U.S."

Bentsen has been at odds with the Department of Energy after it selected three sites for dump site consideration. Deaf Smith County in the Texas Panhandle, if selected, would become one of the country's first high level nuclear waste repositorys. The other sites are in Washington and Nevada.

The final dump site will house 70,000 tons of high level waste that will have to remain buried for at least 10,000 years before it is safe.

Bentsen felt the administration reneged on the deal when it cancelled proposals for a second site. The administration said a second site was no longer needed.

Other Congressmen accused the administration of playing politics by eliminating site selection in the East.

They complained that it was unfair for the region of the country where the largest amount of waste was produced was not in the running for a dump site.

"We need two nuclear waste repositories in this country - one in the East and one in the West. That's what Congress called for," Bentsen said. "I will continue to hold the department's feet to the fire until they change course and agree to comply with the mandate of Congress.'

Funding for the disposal program is included in the Continuing Resolution Bill which must be passed before Congress adjourns or the federal bank balance will drop to zero.

"That reduced level will certainly slow the search, and the restrictions we placed on those funds will insure that no irrevocable steps are taken toward choosing a dump site," Bent-

In addition to funding cuts, Congress is expected to require the Energy Department to cooperate more closely with Texas and other states involved in the search for a dump, the senator said.

"One complaint I've heard over and over again is that the Department of Energy refuses to listen to the concerns and worries of officials in Texas and this legislation tells them they're going to have to pay closer attention or they won't get all their money," Bentsen said.

Senate gears up for immigration bill following House passage swiftly to maintain momentum on a House-passed immigration bill, the chief Senate sponsor is working furiously to head off a filibuster and discourage a presidential veto.

Taking no chances after the landmark bill cleared the House on Wednesday by a 238-173 vote, Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., scheduled a White House meeting today to try to convince President Reagan the measure is "a damn good bill of goods."

And he began "a spirited education effort" with senators, including those he said are "intent upon killing the bill" when it reaches the Senate floor - probably today.

Several Senate conservatives have traditionally opposed immigration bills as being too expensive, and have criticized them as being too lenient because they would grant amnesty to millions of illegal aliens.

Written by a House-Senate conference, the immigration bill offers legalization to aliens who came to the United States illegally before 1982 but have established roots here since

To balance that program, the bill provides for fines and prison terms for employers who knowingly hire undocumented workers.

"The possibility still clearly exists for a delay, and even filibuster," said a worried Simpson.

But despite administration concerns about some portions of the bill, Simpson said he was optimistic about Reagan's support, because, "every time I go to that remarkable WASHINGTON (AP) - Moving man, I've been able to move it (the bill) along."

> Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, branded the bill "very expensive" and said it could violate budget ceiling limita-

The House delegation from Texas, which has a long border with Mexico, was a strong force against the bill, voting "no" by a 20-6 margin.

"Granting amnesty to 4 million illegal aliens to solve the immigration problem is like trying to solve the problem of illegal drugs in this country by legalizing cocaine," said Rep. Dick Armey, R-Texas.

None of the supporters who spoke in the House debate Wednesday expressed approval of the entire compromise bill, but most agreed with the comment of a prime author, Rep. Dan Lungren, R-Calif.: "It isn't the Sistine Chapel, but it's not a bad paint job."

Democrats and 77 Republicans. Opposed were 80 Democrats and 93 Republicans.

The Hispanic caucus was split, with five members voting yes and six

The bill includes a new protection for Hispanics who could face job discrimination because of the employer sanctions. Employment bias based on national origin or citizenship status would be prohibited, and a special counsel would be created in the Justice Department to enforce the protections. Employers of three or fewer people would be exempted from antidiscrimination language.

In one of the many balancing acts of the bill, the civil rights language could be wiped out by Congress after three years if a General Accounting Office report found the provisions were unfair to employers. Likewise, employer sanctions could end at the same time, if found to cause widespread discrimination.

The bill would provide $4 billion over four years to reimburse state and local governments for providing benefits to newly legalized aliens, who would be barred from receiving federal assistance for five years.

That's the amount offered by President Reagan, but disliked by many lawmakers from states with large numbers of illegal aliens who favor a full reimbursement.

Foreign agricultural workers harvesting non-perishable crops would be provided free legal services, on the condition that these services would be limited to wages. transportation, housing or other working conditions.

Hundreds of thousands of foreigners who harvest perishable fruits and vegetables, mostly in separate provisions from the general amnesty program.

Barrera said during his appearence at the Hereford Community Center that the AG's office has increased its employees from 480 to 1,186 during Mattox's admininstration.

Barrera also stated that Mattox has requested a further extension to as many as 1,500 employees.

Barrera said, if elected, he would look for ways to eliminate the unnecessary spending being done in the office.

"I will reform the budget in the office to comply with the restraints the taxpayers are faced with," Barrera said. "Rather than asking more and more, Mattox should be doing more with less."

Barrera, who is seeking to become the first Hispanic to win a major state-wide election, was in Hereford with his wife Sally Ann.

"We are counting on a wide cross section of votes in the Nov. 4 election," Barrera said.

Absentee balloting for the Nov. 4 general election began Wednesday at the county clerk's office and will continue through Oct. 31.

County Clerk David Ruland said applications for mail ballots must be received no later than Oct. 28, and applications are available through his office. Applicants must sign the form, give their mailing address and the precinct number in which they reside in Deaf Smith County.

Ruland said voters may cast absentee ballots in his office in the courthouse if they are over 65 years of age, disabled, or expect to be out of the county on Nov. 4.

The ballot includes candidates for three political parties-Democrat, Republican and Libertarian-in a number of statewide races. Voters will also select a U.S. Representative for the 19th District, where Republican incumbent Larry Combest faces the challenge of Democrat Gerald McCathern.

On the statewide level, the governor's race and the attorney general's race seem to be attracting the most attention. On the county level, only one precinct race is contested. In Commissioner Precinct 4, Democratic primry winner Johnny Latham faces Republican challenger

The light snowfall here Sunday came as a shock. For an old boy whe grew up in cotton country, our first thought was that cotton lint was floating around in the air. Temperatures below freezing are not all that rare in September, but the average freeze date is a little later

Survey about Deaf Smith General well worth money, Bullard says

By JERI CURTIS Managing Editor

Jim Bullard believes that Deaf Smith General Hospital will get its money's worth -$6,500- for what it paid for the market analysis by InterMedical Marketing Group.

"It will pay for itself," the administrator said Bullard said. "The information that we've retrieved will pay for itself just in telling us what we need to do to develop the hospital."

Hospital board president Fr.

Charles Threewitt agrees.
"I was real pleased with the survey," he told The Brand. "I think we got some good ideas from it.

Those are some of the reasons television viewers see more commercials for hospitals, emergency care centers and drug treatment units - facilities are advertising their wares like any other industry.

And, DSGH may have its own media blitz as a result of the survey. Bullard said the hospital district board will be developing a public relations and advertising campaign for the hospital. The InterMedical consultants advised DSGH to focus on the 25 percent of those polled in the Hereford, Dimmitt, and Friona area who had no opinion about

We want to establish in the minds of our community that although we are a good basic general hospital, we to have to ability to do some things which folks do go off to have done." The appeal will include adjacent counties for two reasons, Bullard says. First, DSGH needs the patient draw from the service area in order to completely support the specialty doctors. Second, the hospital views the patient draw as having a peripheral economic impact on the community with patients and visitors spending time and money in Hereford.

Threewit said that for certain the hospital will have more community education programs. He indicated expansion of services on a clinical basis, such as the recent health fair held in Hereford.

In addition to developing a better public relations program, the survey by InterMedical gave information on what current and potential clients want. Primarily, cardiology and obstetrics-gynecology specialist were suggested by those polled. Bullard said those requests will be pursued by the long range planning committee.

Scientists isolate anti-cancer gene

BOSTON (AP) - Scientists have isolated the first anti-cancer gene, one that causes rare forms of eye and bone cancer when it is absent and could hold clues to other such genes that are the key to more common forms of cancer.

In recent years, researchers have identified several different genes that can cause cancer. But the newly discovered gene is the first that results in cancer only when it is missing or incomplete.

When babies are born without this gene, they face a high risk of rare forms of childhood cancer called retinoblastoma and oestosar-

"These are not major diseases, but we think that the other major cancers, like some colon and breast and lung cancers, are caused because genes like this are lost," said Dr. Thaddeus P. Dryja of Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Cancer genes are the subject of intense research in the quest to understand and control the disease. Experts believe there are two kinds of genes: those that cause cancer by their presence and those that cause it by their absence. Both types are mutant or incomplete versions of ordinary genes that normally regulate cell growth.

One kind is called a dominant oncogene. Because of a mutation, this gene instructs a cell to grow too much and become cancerous. About two dozen dominant oncogenes have been isolated so far.

The other variety, called recessive oncogenes, until now have eluded isolation. Normally they limit or stop the growth of cells. When they work correctly, they prevent cancer. But when they are lost, cells proliferate wildly.

"If you keep those normal copies, you don't get the tumor," said Dryja. "It's only if you lose the normal copies that you get the tumor. So this gene somehow prevents cancer. We've never had a gene

American wins Nobel prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - An American, James McGill Buchanan, won the 1986 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science today for his development of bases for the theory of economic and political decision-making.

Buchanan, 67, a professor at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va., was cited for his contributions in a field called new political economy, or "public choice," an area on the boundary of economic and political science studies.

The Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences, in announcing the award, said Buchanan's work filled a gap in traditional economics, which had lacked an independent theory of political decision-

"Buchanan's contribution is that he has transferred the concept of gain derived from mutual exchange between individuals to the realm of political decision-making," the academy said in a state-

"The political process thus becomes a means of cooperation aimed at achieving reciprocal advantages. But the result of this process depends on 'rules of the game,' i.e., the constitution in a broad sense," the statement said.

"According to Buchanan, it is often futile to advise politicians or influence the outcome of specific issues," the statement said. "In a given system of rules, the outcome is to a large extent determined by established political constellations."

The Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science is not one of the original five Nobel Prizes, which were first awarded in 1901 as a legacy of Swedish industrialist Alfred Nobel, the inventor of

Wailing Wall attacked by grenades

JERUSALEM (AP) - The PLO today claimed responsibility for the grenade attack near the Wailing Wall that killed at least one person and wounded 69 others, and indicated more acts of "armed struggle" may follow.

Israeli police arrested 17 suspects after the attack Wednesday near the wall, Judaism's holiest site.

It was the worst terrorist violence in Jerusalem since early 1984, and came during the three weeks of Jewish observances begun by the High Holy Days of Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur.

White smoke billowed as the bloodied bodies of the injured, some with their clothes shredded by the blasts, were lifted onto stretchers and carried by soldiers and passers-by to ambulances. The vall of emergency sirens mixed with the screams of the wounded, and dozens of injured lay on blood-spattered sidewalks. Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility for the attack in a statement distributed by the Cairo, Egypt office of the organization's WAFA news agency.

The statement called the attack a "heroic operation," and said it serves to underline a decision by the Palestinian leadership at a re-cent meeting to escalate the armed struggle ..." It did not say when or where the decision was made.

The grenades went off near the Dung Gate, one of eight entrances into the predominantly-Palestinian walled Old City that Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war.

The officer and two other sources familiar with activities involving the Contra rebels said in recent interviews that the Salvadoran government gave its tacit approval to store supplies and send flights

The two other sources said the supply flights have been going on at

"Everyone has known this has been going on," one said. The Salvadoran connection in delivering war materiel to the Contras has been discussed — and denied — for the past three years.

The issue surfaced again when an American was captured in Nicaragua after soldiers of the leftist Sandinista government shot down his plane Oct. 5.

Session in Geneva requested to nail down Euromissile cuts

By BARRY SCHWEID AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration, saying it has a strong diplomatic signal from Moscow, is about to call for a special meeting of U.S. and Soviet negotiators to try to nail down an agreement to reduce nuclear missile warheads in Europe to 100 on each

The Geneva session, which an administration official said may be held as early as Friday, will test customarily granted. whether Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's attempt to sidetrack the U.S. "Star Wars" program in Iceland will carry over to the negotiating table.

Both superpowers indicated Wednesday they were ready to build on the Reykjavik summit and move toward an agreement sharply reducing U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons in Europe.

While President Reagan declared in a Baltimore speech, "Let's not look back and place blame," U.S. arms specialists worked on a package of proposals for Max Kampelman, the chief U.S. negotiator, to present to Viktor Karpov, head of the Soviet delegation in Geneva.

Either side can request a special session in the Swiss city and it is

The main U.S. objective will be to formalize Gorbachev's apparent acceptance in Iceland of Reagan's proposal that Soviet intermediate-range warheads in Asia by reduced to 100 from the current level of 513.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) -The Appalachian region is suffering an economic crisis of such proportions that the spirit of its people is being crushed under the weight of poverty, hunger and hopelessness, a new study concludes.

"People are being pushed to the very margins."

The task force spent a year tracking the economic health of Appalachia. CORA, based in Knoxville, Tenn., was founded in 1964 by representatives of 18 religious denominations "to build community and combat poverty."

Holmquist said the study documents what should be a national

"It's not a matter of subjective impressions," he said. "The facts are there. What we have in Appalachia are the makings of an underclass that is mostly white. The middle class is disappearing."

The study of the 13-state region reports massive job losses as steel factories, textile mills and coal mines close. More than 350,000 manufacturing jobs were lost from 1982 to 1983, with incomes for the who did find replacement work falling as much as 60 percent.

Partly to blame, the report said, was the flight of industry to Third World countries as well as technological improvements enabling smaller workforces.

Coal mining employment, for instance, has decreased 30 percent, to the lowest levels ever recorded in some sectors, while production has

"What we see is a tremendous increase in service sector jobs," Holmquist said. "What we see are people holding down even two of these jobs working in fast food restaurants and still not earning what they did before." The report says unemployment rates in 21 percent of Appalachian counties were more than double the national average in 1985, while another 61 percent of the counties had higher than normal rates.

Holmquist said 123,000 residents of eastern Ohio, West Virginia, and western Pennsylvania had been unemployed so long they are no longer counted in the rolls.

The CORA study combines data from several government sources, including the Appalachian Regional Commission, and the findings of a series of public hearings in West Virginia. North Carolina, Pennsylvania and Tennessee.

POLLY'S Filling really makes an omelet before you frost it.

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - Can you give me some ideas for filling omelets? SANDRA

DEAR SANDRA - My favorite omelet is filled with a mixture of garden-fresh vegetables lightly sauteed in olive oil or butter. A little grated cheese makes a nice topping. Comb your refrigerator for likely leftovers to make tasty fillings. How about a little chili or crumbled meat loaf in gravy? Use approximately 1/3 to 1/2 cup filling for each omelet. Here are a few suggestions, to be used alone or in Shredded or sliced Cheddar, Swiss, Mozzarella, Gouda, Provolone, Muenster or other firm cheese.

Sauteed, chopped onions or green pepper. Cooked vegetables, chopped, diced or sliced. Sliced fresh fruit or canned (drained) fruit.

Cottage cheese, ricotta cheese or cream cheese.

Cooked, drained and crumbled sausage, bacon or ground beef. Chopped nuts.

Jelly, jam or preserves. Canned or cooked fish. Sauteed, sliced mushrooms. Some possible combinations: Sauteed apples and blue cheese.

Cooked Italian sausage with sauteed onions and peppers. Sliced, cooked potatoes and pesto

Chopped tomatoes, minced fresh basil and cubed mozzarella cheese.

Cottage cheese mixed with chopped raw vegetables, such as carrots, cucumbers, green peppers or scallions. Crumbled bacon and Swiss cheese.

Sauteed mushrooms, onions and grated Parmesan cheese.

ing. I bought a large turkey on sale, and it's been in my freezer ever since. I'd like to serve it for the holiday this year, but is it safe to eat such an old turkey? It's been solidly frozen in its original plastic wrapping with an overwrap of aluminum foil. - LIZ

DEAR LIZ - Your turkey should still be tasty and perfectly safe to eat. Actually, you could store it much longer and it would still be safe. However, everything stored in the freezer loses some quality in flavor and texture eventually. Frozen turkey should maintain its top quality for up to 12 months, according to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service. So serve your turkey

By the way, leftover turkey meat may be stored in your refrigerator for three to four days, or in the freezer for two to three months after the holiday. Happy eating! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Here's how keep basil fresh through the winter. I clean the leaves thoroughly, then place them in zip-style plastic bags and freeze. After the leaves are frozen, I squeeze the package, breaking the leaves into little pieces. I use this basil all year. It's great in spaghetti sauces. - GAIL

DEAR POLLY - I like to make little egg or liver dumplings for homemade soup. I used to use a teaspoon to dip up the dough to drop them into the broth, but the dumplings were always uneven, no matter how hard I tried to keep them equal in size. Now I'use a melon baller to scoop out the batter, and I get the nicest little round dumplings. Just scoop up the dough and dip the baller into the hot broth; the dumpling will slip right off. The soup might not taste any different, but it really looks much nicer. - A.H.

Unitarians provide alternative to worship ideas

Universalists toss out an anecdote about why their membership is small.

"The world is full of Unitarians," they say. "They just don't know they're Unitarians.'

It seems one can believe - or not believe - almost anything as a Unitarian Universalist. The membership includes agnostics, Christians, atheists, humanists, Jews and some who won't be classified.

"You are required to believe according to the dictates of your conscience," said the Rev. Dr. Frank Shulman, minister of Emerson Untitarian Church in Houston. "There is really no such thing as heresy in Unitarian Universalism. I consider the word 'heretic' as an honorable label, as I do the word 'agnostic.' "

The Unitarian Universalist Association has only 178,000 members nationally. It offers an alternative for some seeking a worship family and experience that are more liberal than mainstream Christianity. Some members call themselves Christians; many adamantly stress they are not Chris-

"Unitarianism was clearly a Christian religion until the last half of the 19th century," Schulman explained. "Then it broadened to include the validity of all world religions. We don't fuss much about labels. We cherish the mixture."

Schulman, whose church is the most traditional-oriented of Houston's Unitarian Universalist congregations, is a Christian Unitarian.

"Christian Unitarians are not Christian in the sense of the orthodox Christians," Schulman said. "I think Jesus conceived himself as human entirely. Divinity was claimed for him by others. The Unitarian Christian is completely faithful to the teachings of Jesus. But the Trinity (The doctrine that God exists in three forms - the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit) is not in the Bi-

Contrasting with Schulman are the Rev. Robert Schaibly, minister at First Unitarian Church, and the Rev. Dr. Doug Reisner, minister of Unitarian Fellowship of Houston. Reisner is also minister at the Unitarian Fellowship of College Station. They do not consider themselves Christians but rather as religious humanists, believing in Judeo-Christian concepts, par- sickness, death. We think we need to ticularly in the Golden Rule of doing unto others as you would have others do unto you.

"Unitarians don't share theological views," Reisner said. "What we do share are many values, such as religious freedom and the importance of working out your own ideas: About 90 percent of our members are from Christian backgrounds. Their argument was with the dogmatism of their religion. They like the freedom as Unitarians.'

The Unitarian Universalist Association formed in 1961 when the American Unitarian Association and the Universalist Church of America merged. The American Unitarians developed out of Unitarianism (the refuting of the doctrine of the Trinity) begun in 16th-century Europe. The Universalists grew from an 18thcentury movement professing universal salvation.

"The Universalists believed that God is too good to damn people to eternal hell," Schaibly said.

Schulman copleted the familiar

HOUSTON (AP) - Unitarian phrase: "The other side is that Unitarians believed man was too good to be damned."

> Some Unitarians believe in salvation and immortality, others do not.

"It is something I have chosen to believe out of a real yearning to be reunited with people I have loved," Schaibly said. "Immortality or not, it's this world that deserves our concentration, not living in hope of somehow being admitted to heaven:"

Even Christian Unitarians do not believe Jesus is the path to salvation.

"The entrance requirement to heaven would have to be based on deeds, not faith," Schulman said. "The 25th chapter of (the Gospel According to) Matthew is explicit on that. Jesus also said, 'Not everyone who says Lord, Lord will enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of my Father in heaven.' Unitarians have expressed the importance of doing the will of God as more important than any creed."

any one thing distinctive about us, it's that we are a creedless religion." In contrast to most religions, Unitarians are proud that their faith constantly changes.

The early Unitarians would have said 'Truth is found in the Bible,' Schulman said. "Now we say truth is found in the arts, sciences, other religions, the humanities, within the mind . . . The early Unitarians thought Jesus was divine but inferior to God. Now we consider Jesus a great exemplar, a great teacher, but not God."

"Agnosticism," Schulman said, "is a profession of ignorance, and this is my position. I do not know whether there is a God, in the sense I know Austin is the capital of Texas. It is an item of faith. But I recognize that new insight may change my Schaibly said God's existance is not the main issue. "We've abandoned the question of asking if there is a God. It seems exhausted. The real question is: How are you going to live your life, and what's going to be the character of your relationships?"

Unitarians often are asked why they attend church at all if they don't believe in the divinity of Christ or the need for salvation.

"We think religion is broader than something through which you deal with the divine," Reisner said. "For many people there is the need to be a part of a religious community for the passages of life, birth, marriage, do something to mark these events. These are just as important for many atheists as for people who are theistic."

In the United States, there are 1.013 Unitarian Universalist societies, churches and fellowships. Boston, location of the national headquarters, has the greatest concentration. More than 4,000 members are in 35 Texas groups. First Unitarian has 533 adult members; Emerson has 480 members; and Unitarian Fellowship has 135 members. There are also local fellowships in Pasadena, the Woodlands, Galveston and College Station.

The denomination claims a slow growth of about 1,000 a year. The Unitarian Universalist Association's new president, the Rev. William F. Schultz, reportedly plans to promote the church more aggressively, partly to counter confusion with the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church - due to its name - and as a defense against the increasing political influence of fundamentalist religions. However, self-promotion

"Unitarians fiercely shy away from proselytizing," Reisner said. "That's a major reason there aren't many Unitarians. We don't like to impose our ideas on another. We want people who are drawn to us."

He readily admits the church had limited appeal.

"I think only certain people are satisfied with this kind of free religion," Reisner said. "A great many people are more secure with a more dogmatic religion. Also, the pageantry that's in the Catholic Mass, or maybe the glorious music in a Baptist service, really makes people feel like they've been to church. Our services are usually cooler, and frankly, that's not satisfying to some Houston Unitarians who savor more traditional church customs are likely to choose Emerson, where Schulman's services seem familiar, with seven prayers, a choir, respon-As Reisner pointed out: "If there is sive readings, hymns and perhaps even lessons from the Bible.

At a fellowship, services tend to be less traditional in structure: the minister may open the service to group discussions or to a guest speaker on social issues, science or a personal adventure.

'Most of our people don't like the trappings that remind them of their former church," said Reisner. "I may have a prayer on occasion, but the closest I usually come is a meditation."

First.Church, founded in 1914, has a choir and robes, but does not have formal prayers or group discussions during services. Schaibly said his inner-city church has a history of aggressive social action, and in 1954 became the first 'Houston church to

"This has been a place where people come for covenant ceremonies (for homosexuals)," Schiably said. 'The national council, in an effort to recognize the dignity of gays and lesbians, asked our ministers if they would consider doing this a couple of years ago. We live in a time when relationships need to be strengthen-

At suburban Emerson, Schulman said, the approach to such issues is more passive.

"For the most part, our church has been active in the non-controversial areas, such as collecting food for the food pantry program," he said. "Politics occupies less of the total energy of our church. We probably have more Republicans than Democrats."

But he is proud of the denomination's progressive attitudes, pointing out, for example, Unitarian Universalists have a long history of ordaining women as ministers. About half

Whitefaces play at Dumas Friday

By GARY CHRISTENSEN Sports Editor

For the third week in a row, the Hereford Whiteface varsity football team will have to defense against the wishbone offense when the Herd plays at Dumas Friday night.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. at Demon Stadium in Dumas. Hereford enters the game undefeated and ranked sixth in the state by the Associated Press, and Dumas is winless.

Hereford is 6-0 for the season and 4-0 in District 1-4A games, while Dumas is 0-5, including three district

Last week, Hereford defeated the wishbone, but it helps in your Levelland 8-3 in the rain and mud, preparation." and Dumas fell to Lubbock Estacado

Dumas' other district losses have been 7-0 to Levelland and 34-14 to Ca-

"Dumas has a good solid team." They just haven't been able to put four good quarters together," said Hereford Coach Don Cumpton. "They had a chance to beat Levelland. They should have beat Levelland but they self-destructed.

"This will be the third week in a row that we'll be defending against Cumpton emphasized the importance of not looking past any team, including Dumas. "We're sitting here 4-0 in the district. Halfway through district, this game is still important. This will be the case the next four games," he said.

"Three other teams have not lost yet, and we've got to continue to do well, to keep pace with them," he ad-

Although a game played in rain and mud may not be a good one to completely just the strength's and weaknesses of the teams involved, Coach Cumpton did see something good coming out of the game against Levelland.

We felt like out kids really kept their poise and did what they had to do late in the game. Usually that's a pretty good sign about your team," Cumpton said.

Rhodes has had problems with an injury this season, and the Demons have had to go with Kecey Cain at that position much of the time.

Dumas' No. 1 quarterback Mark

The Demons have four senior offensive linemen who started as juniors last year-split end Mike DePaul, center Eric Luette, guard Ronnie Skinner, and tackle Joel Brooks. Running backs for Dumas include Leo Bernal, Chris Farris, and Mat Podwick, all seniors. The Hereford Whiteface offense had a tough first half against Levelland, averaging just 0.9 yards in each first down play, but by the end of the game, that average improved to 4.2 yards per first down

For the season, Hereford is averaging 6.1 yards in first down plays, compared to 3.7 yards by its opponents.

The Whitefaces are averaging 19.1 first downs per game, and the opponents are averaging 11.3 per game. And the total offense per game is 318.3 yards for Hereford and 198.5 vards bythe opponents.

Last week Herd running back Mark Artho reached the 500-yard mark for the season. This week quarterback Todd Shire should go past the 700-yard mark and even the 800-yard mark in passing, and receiver Bobby Baker should reach the 500-yard mark in receptions.

Artho has 525 yards rushing in 79 attempts, Shire has 671 yards in 48 of 83 passes, and Baker has caught 30 passes for 469 yards.

The leading defensive players for Hereford last week, according to the number of tackles, were: Trent Bowling, 12 tackles; Michael Phibbs. 10 tackles; Derrell Page, nine tackles; Brent Berry, eight tackles; Bobby Medina, seven tackles; Robby Collier, Ricky Ruiz, Fidencio Cantu, and Lee Young, six tackles each; and Bill Ruckman, five tackles.

This week marks the beginning of the matchups between undefeated teams in the district. Hereford leads the district with its 4-0 record, Borger and Canyon are both 3-0, and Estacado is 3-0-1.

Estacado plays at Canyon Friday, and Levelland should give Borger a good game at Levelland, also on Fri-

Hereford hosts Canyon on Oct. 24, Hereford plays at Lubbock Estacado on Oct. 30, Borger at Canyon on Oct. 31, Estacado at Borger on Nov. 7, and Borger at Hereford on Nov. 14. These last week's of district games could certainly be called the District 1-4A playoffs.

MADE IN AMERICA American wines are certainly holding their own at international tastings. In some instances, they score higher than European contenders. The American wine industry is not bound by tradition as are European winemakers. This frees American winemakers to experiment with ways to make their wines better. There is more experimentation taking place in America, in fact, than anywhere else in the world. Why not experiment yourself? If you are traditionally a drinker of white Burgandy, try a California Chardonnay. It is made of the same grapes. Likewise, a red Burgandy is comparable to a Pinot Noir. Instead of a red Bordeux, try a Cabernet Sauvignon. Then, try some of the wines of other states in the union.

Domestic and imported wines in various price ranges are available at THE STORE. Whether you prefer a California Chardonnay or fine wines from European winemakers chances are we have your favorite. If you need assistance in your selection don't hesitate to ask. That's what we are here for. Come by and see us at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun, only beer and wine is available from 12.12

Foreign wines are often named for their region. American wines are named for the grapes used.

WTSU to play at Howard Payne

The West Texas State University Buffaloes aim for their second straight Lone Star Conference victory when they play at Howard Payne University in Brownwood Saturday.

Kickoff is set for 2 p.m. at Gordon Wood Stadium. West Texas State is 2-4 for the season, and Howard Payne is 0-5.

Howard Payne University lost to Texas A&I 52-0 in a Lone Star Conference opener, while West Texas State defeated Angelo State 38-15.

This will be only the second time ever that West Texas State and Howard Payne have meet in football. The Yellowjackets lead the series 1-0 with a 6-0 victory in 1923.

Last Saturday, WTSU scored 21 points in the fourth quarter in defeating Angelo State 38-15. J.R. Compton led the Buffs with 108 yards rushing in 23 attempts.

Todd Mayfield completed 27 of 37 passes for 246 yards and two touchdowns, including seven completion to Stan Carraway for 108 yards and one touchdown.

WTSU defensive players Robert

Williams, Todd Littlejohn, and Tracy Mayfield each intercepted one Angelo State pass.

West Texas State and Howard Payne have had just one common opponent this season-Central State of Oklahoma. West Texas State lost to Central State 35-28 on Sept. 13, and Howard Payne lost to Central State 31-7 on Sept. 27.

Mayfield leads the Lone Star Conference in passing with 325.8 yards per game, and also in total offense with 305.7 yards per game. Carraway is first in receiving with 8.7 yards per

Howard Payne Coacy Jerry Millsapps said, "West Texas State is probably as good as A&I. We'll be going from a running team to a throwing team, and we've got to prepare a little differently, but the results will be the same if you can't stop them."

The Yellowjackets are led in rushing by quarterback Danny Rogers with 164 yards in 49 carries and halfback Todd Smith with 123 yards in 37 carries.

Rogers has completed 27 of 66 passes for 308 yards and one

Hostile Herd Sideline Notes By Shawn Cockrum

r. Harris, exactly where do you get these rating from? The best I can figure, you place the names of the state's high school football teams on a dart board, and then proceed to toss darts at them to determine who should go where. Stop me if I'm getting

You probably place the names of your previous week's top ten on larger pieces of paper so you don't accidently pick Midlothian as your No. 1 team.

Yes sir, I can see how Lubbock Estacado should be in the top notch. They are a good, tough, fast and physical team who may have had one bad night. Ok, we'll give you the benefit of the doubt.

But what about the four teams you have in your top 10 that have lost a game?

And why is Hereford, an undefeated team who has beaten the team that tied your No.1 team, dropped out of your top 10?

And what about Canyon, another undefeated team that beat a team that tied your No. 1? Why are they located in the back row in seat 42, when Levelland is No. 31?

I think you are beginning to see the validity of your poll. 000

Some of the older Herd fans will be reliving an old rivalry Friday night as the Whitefaces take on Dumas.

Back in the 60s, Dumas was a state powerhouse that captured two state championships along with numerous district titles.

The rivalry may not be as strong as it used to be for tothen, the rivalry is alive and well, thank you. Hereford will have only two players who may not be see-day's generation, but for those who were around back ing any action Friday night because of injuries. Tim Long is still nursing a seperated shoulder, and Edward Martinez is recovering from a broken ankle. Martinez has began practicing with the team after having his cast removed last week.

Good news. This six weeks, the varsity football program did not lose any players to the no pass-no play rule passed by the state legislature last year.

Head football coach Don Cumpton said Thursday morning that everybody on the varsity squad passed the requirements, but he did lose five junior varsity players and 10 sophomores.

So far, the football program is the only program that has received any word on who will be eligible. Lists for other activites will be released Friday afternoon.

A spirit convoy to Dumas ' has been planned by the HHS Student Council.

The convoy will leave from the east side of the football stadium at 5 p.m.

Those who do not have a ride to the game are urged to show up at the stadium. Somebody will surely have a little extra room.

Be careful, and we'll see you on the sidelines.

Texas Tech battles Rice on Saturday

The Texas Tech Red Raiders, upset winners over previously undefeated Arkansas last week, travel to Houston this week for a Saturday afternoon battle against Rice University.

Texas Tech beat Arkansas 17-7 last week, and Rice defeated TCU 37-31. Both Texas Tech and Rice are 1-2 in the Southwest Conference. Overall, the Red Raiders are 3-3 and the Owls are 2-3.

Last year, Rice defeated Texas Tech in Lubbock 29-27. The lead changed hands four times, and Texas Tech led 27-20 with six minutes left.

The Owls scored a touchdown with three minutes left, and then won the game with a 57-yard field goal by James Hamrick.

Last week's win over Arkansas was the first road win ever for the Red Raiders over a top 10 ranked team. "We seemed to have a different attitude in the dressing room before the game," said Texas Tech

Coach David McWilliams.

"There was a lot of rah-rah with a lot of promises. There was an honest commitment to go out and play the type of football game we knew we could," McWilliams continues.

"You have to hand it to the players. They kept their intensity and hard work habits after two straight big defeats. Our captains and seniors got together and decided there would be no giving up."

About playing Rice, McWilliams said, "They have played two good games in a row and I'm sure they will be ready to play another one. They are an example of why we need to improve each week. They certainly have done it and are showing the results of it."

Red Raider quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver has completed 98 of 225 passes this season for 1.016 yards. two touchdowns, and eight intercepthan quality care by ignoring the cultural belief systems of patients, according to the October issue of Texas Medicine.

Even in Texas where there is a large percentage of Hispanic patients, many physicians are unaware of or choose to ignore folk medicine, or curanderismo. These practices may include material, mental, and spiritual approaches to healing.

According to the article in the official journal of the Texas Medical Association, these and other alternative systems may be seen as forms of quackery. The authors from Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center write "folk medicine can provide the physician with crucial information about the patient. (It) is a clinical reality, and it is important to make a cultural accomodation," add Kae Hentges, and Drs. Charles E. Shields and Cesar Cantu.

According to the article, folk medicine is widespread and many traditions are found throughout the United States. Mexican-American folk healing is the most widely used formal system. It is based on a mixture of American Indian and medieval Spanish medicine. It is derived in part from the Christian belief system that God can and does healers. The authors dispute the notion that folk medicine is merely a set of localized customs. They state that it is used by all socioeconomic groups and by persons outside Mexican-American border communities.

"Dangerous medical situations can occur when patients use folk remedies that are hazardous to their health," according to the authors. Such remedies may include lead oxide powder that can cause lead poisoning.

The authors call for physicians to better understand the terms and uses of folk medicine so the "compassionate physician can effectively combine the best of both scientific and folk traditions. Modern medicine also values the "art of medicine"-the power of the will to live, the power of the placebo, the intangible effect of the healer."

Plans made for holiday parties by members of Cultural Club Cultural Extension Club met recently in the home of Carrie Mae Doak. Nell Pope, president, called the meeting to order and Doak led the group in prayer.

Opening exercise was a discussion on the book "How to Know Your Environment" read by Doak.

Edith Hunter conducted a game of making words out of the word Halloween. Roll call was answered by members naming things they forget to be thankful for.

Plans were made for the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner parties. Virginia Sumner, Jewell Hargrave, and Pope reported on the Fall Adventure luncheon sponsored by Amarillo Council and Women's Division Chamber of Commerce.

Pope gave a reading on "How to Bag Slob Hunters". Doak served pumpkin pie, crackers and cheese and iced tea to the 13 members pre-

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - For $3 million, you can live in Frank Sinatra's mountaintop mansion.

The singer is selling the house he built 30 years-ago and he will make Rancho Mirage his permanent residence, according to publicist Susan Reynolds.

"It's totally secured on a little more than an acre." realtor Ed Kelly said Wednesday. "It's got a fantastic 360-degree view and looks down on Beverly Hills, if you want to look down on Beverly Hills."

The home has the requisite swimming pool and 30-seat movie theater, as well as two bedroom suites in the main house, a two-bedroom guest apartment and maid quarters.

The Newspaper BIBLE

As the darkness gave way to the early morning light, Paul begged everyone to eat. "You haven't touched food for two weeks," he said. "Please eat something now for your own good! For not a hair of your heads shall perish!"

Then he took some hardtack and gave thanks to God before them all, and broke off a piece and ate it. Suddenly everyone felt better and began eating, all two hundred seventy-six of us--for that is the number we had aboard. After eating, the crew lightened the ship further by throwing all the wheat overboard.

When it was day, they didn't recognize the coastline, but noticed a bay with a beach and wondered whether they could get between the rocks and be driven up onto the beach. Finally they decided to try. Cutting off the anchors and leaving them in the sea, they lowered the rudders, raised the foresails and headed ashore. But the ship hit a sandbar and ran aground. The bow of the ship stuck fast, while the stern was exposed to the violence of the waves and began to break apart.

The soldiers advised their commanding officer to let them kill the prisoners lest any of them swim ashore and escape. But Julius wanted to spare Paul, so he told them no. Then he ordered all who could swim to jump overboard and make for land. And the rest to try for it on planks and debris from the broken ship. So everyone escaped safely to shore! Acts 27:33-44

From economy

Corporate leaders expect little pep

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) - A blue-ribbon panel of business executives forecast today that the U.S. economy will continue to muddle through the next two years without a recession but without much pickup in growth either.

In its semi-annual economic outlook, the Business Council expressed a general uneasiness and said 'concerns about the economy abound."

"A disappointing performance in trade and lingering weakness for U.S. industries have prevented the economy from growing up to expectations," the council's report said.

The Business Council, made up of executives from 65 of the country's largest corporations, forecast economic growth, as measured by the gross national product, of 2.6 percent this year, weaker than last year's 2.7 percent performance.

The group predicted GNP growth would climb modestly to 2.9 percent in 1987 and 3.1 percent in 1988. These forecasts are far below the expectations of the Reagan administration, which is looking for growth to top 4 percent next year. James D. Robinson III, chairman of the American Express Co., said even the modest upturn predicted by the Business Council will not occur unless the trade deficit improves.

The United States is expected to suffer a record $170 billion trade imbalance this year, which the Business Council said was the prime reason economic growth has been depressed.

"Our technical consultants do see trade picking up at the end of this year because of the lower dollar and faster growth abroad," Robinson said Thursday night at a news briefing on the report.

"Basically, we are back where we were a year ago when we spoke of an economy that will continue to muddle through," he said. "There still is no indication of a recession, just slow growth."

AUSTIN (AP) - The State Board of Insurance either must do a better job of seeing that insurance firms teach accident prevention to their customers or have that task taken away, a legislator says.

Attorney General Jim Mattox told a news conference Wednesday that a 1973 law change requires the board to revoke the license of any insurance company that does not provide adequate accident-prevention services.

Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-LaMarque, said if the board does not improve its supervision of job accidentprevention in Texas, he will recommend that the 1987 Legislature give the task to the attorney general.

Both Mattox and Criss, chairman of the House Committee on Labor and Employment Relations, said the board has done little to enforce the 1973 law. Criss has asked Mattox for the legal opinion.

Catherine Fryer, a board member, said the board agreed with the opinion that it had the power to revoke licenses if necessary.

But "we think it is an invalid conclusion that we have not been doing our job," she said. "We have required companies to certify they have provided the services required by the legislation, and we have not received any complaints from consumers that they were not provided

Ms. Fryer said neither Mattox nor Criss had pointed out any instance when accident prevention services were not provided.

the services."

COMBEST COMMENTS

by Congressman Larry Combest

The United States Congress recently voted to overhaul the nation's federal tax code. This so-called "tax reform" legislation will ultimately impact each and every taxpaying citizen.

I voted against the bill and I would like to tell you why:

Tax reform was born with three basic goals in mind - fairness. simplicity and economic growth. These are goals I share and have worked for since I was elected to Congress. Unfortunately in the 22 months that followed, this tax bill became the focus of too much political rhetoric and too little careful review. Let me say from the beginning that there are portions of this legislation that I like. There is obvious good in tax law changes that reduce marginal tax rates and eliminate tax loopholes and special preferences. For us in West Texas, however, the good just doesn't outweigh bad.

I visited with and heard from thousands of people in the 19th District in an attempt to have their input and thoughts about this tax bill. It became evident that Washington, D.C. was caught up in "tax reform euphoria" -- West Texas was not. From Dimmitt to Denver City, main-street merchants, farmers, oil producers and people from all walks of life expressed their fears and opposition to the bill.

I share this concern and believe the tax bill will unfairly penalize us in West Texas. We will lose our state and local sales tax deduction. Farmers lose their income averaging deduction, investment tax credits, and much of their farm equipment depreciation. Those planning for the future lose a sizable portion of their IRA deduction. And as consumers, we ultimately lose by paying higher prices when our shop keepers and store owners are forced to pass along their higher taxes.

Another frightening aspect of this tax reform legislation is that there are predictions and rumblings in Congress of raising the individual rates again in an effort to meet deficit reduction targets. Just one week before the House voted on the tax bill. House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski (D-III) said, We all know that we're going to raise taxes." Mr Rostenkowski did stop there, saying, "I have long been a strong proponent of tax increases to shrink the deficit" and 'everyone knows we will eventually need a tax increase...the increase in revenue should come through higher, progressive rates on income.'

Increasing individual tax rates on the heels of repealing individual deductions would result in individuals paying more taxes than ever before. I fear that this tax bill will make it easier to force even higher taxes on the American people. It echoes the old Democrat philosophy of tax and spend, tax and spend. I do not believe that this tax legislation is the best that Congress can do. If we are ever going to truly reform our tax code we should do the job right. The American people expect more and we in West Texas deserve more from the United States Congress.
