Prosecution clears bug issue for now

AUSTIN (AP) - Former Gov. Bill Clements says "somebody misbehaved," but a U.S. Attorney says it apparently wasn't anybody with either Clements' or Gov. Mark White's campaign staff.

'Right at this time we have no reason to believe that one of Mark White's or Bill Clements' campaign staff was involved in the bugging of former Gov. Clements' campaign headquarters," Helen Eversburg, U.S. attorney in San Antonio, said

"But the investigation is continuing," she added. "That is all I can say right now."

Clements, meanwhile, said that, 'Somebody has misbehaved. I haven't the slightest idea who it was and I know nothing about the details."

Asked if he would seek prosecution, he said, "I don't think it makes any difference what I suggest. They have violated federal laws and a federal grand jury will take whatever action they deem appropriate. I don't have anything to do with it one way or another." And White would say only that "I know our campaign wasn't involved

FBI officials have said they are concentrating their investigation on the private security company hired to sweep the offices of Clements chief consultant Karl Rove.

The FBI has subpoenaed the company records of Knight Diversified Services Co., which found the device behind an embroidered wall hanging in Rove's Austin office.

On Monday, Byron Sage, FBI agent in charge of the Austin office, said investigators were no longer questioning those in Republican Clements' campaign office or those in the campaign office of White, the Democratic candidate. "At this time, the focus is not in either camp," Sage said. "The bulk of the remaining interviews are outside the political realm. We're finished with the campaigns, pretty

"We added a new section to the act, authorizing each state to adopt a program to protect areas around the wellheads of drinking water wells," Bentsen said at a press briefing in his

Washington office. "Federal agencies can claim an exemption from these state programs only if it is in 'the paramount interest of the United States," the Democrat said. "Any program established by the state of Texas, for example, might well bar the Department of Energy from contaminating water wells in Deaf Smith County."

Deaf Smith is one of three sites across the country being considered by the government as repositories of high level nuclear wastes generated by the country's nuclear power plants and other nuclear reactors. The other two sites are in Washington state and Nevada.

"Protection of the Ogallala aquifer from contamination is clearly a major issue in the nuclear wates repository controversy," Bentsen said. "The new provisions in the Safe Drinking Water Act enable Texas, if it so wishes, to aggressively protect the Ogallala from potential contamination, by the Department of Energy or any one else."

Wage earners ahead of inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wage increases received by U.S. private industry workers in the past year are filling their wallets faster than inflation is eating away at their earnings, government figures show.

American workers have pocketed average raises in the past 12 months of 3.5 percent, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said Tuesday.

That figure represented a drop from the average 5 percent increases of a year earlier.

But it still left wage-earners ahead of inflation. Since June 1981, five months after President Reagan took office, workers in private industry have seen their pay checks rise 28.8 percent, BLS economists said. During that same time, consumer prices have risen only 21.7 percent.

White-collar workers fared better than their blue-collar colleagues when it came to winning improved salaries, the government said. White-collar employees received average 4.1 percent salary increases during the past year, while bluecollar workers saw average raises of

Both figures were not as high as they were a year earlier, when whitecollar workers had received annual wage increases averaging 5.4 percent and blue-collar workers average raises of 4.3 percent, BLS

According to a survey of 4,200 businesses released earlier this month by the National Association of Manufacturers, times may be getting better for wage earners. The association found that employers anticipate wage increases averaging 5 percent over the next year.

Board hears about drug dog

Developing a detailed policy on the use of a drug sniffing dog and for disciplinary procedures if controlled substances are found on campuses is the next step the Hereford Schools board of trustees will take in fighting drugs in local schools.

Following a presentation of how the dog program works, the board advised the Policy and Personnel Committee to begin work on a policy for such a program before the program is instigated.

Carl F. Rickert Jr., who presented the program, said the method works because it first educates students about drugs and the use of the dog, the dog makes school visits unannounced, and it causes a reversal of peer pressure concerning drugs.

No vote was taken on hiring Rickert. Also in the meeting, the board a request for cafeteria plan deductions form payroll and voted to use American Free Enterprise Health Care for group health insurance.

Old diversification theory may beat the modern specialization trend

WASHINGTON (AP) - One of the most respected bastions of modern agriculture, the specialized farm operation, is being questioned by a government economist who says that maybe the old ways weren't so bad after all.

Michael Salassi of the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service says it may be time for some farmers to "turn back the clock and reconsider the advantages of diversification" in their production.

"Producing three or four commodities in place of one or two will not guarantee a profit, but it is one method of reducing price risk in an uncertain economic environment," Salassi said in the agency's Farmline magazine.

For many years, particularly dur-ing the expansion boom of the 1950s and 1960s, farmers were advised to

"get bigger or get out" and to consider specialized production larger hog farrowing operation, for example, instead of a few sows, cows and chickens.

But today, following the financial crunch of the early '80s, many farmers are turning to varied means of survival. A recent study by the Council of State Policy and Planning Agencies says there is a new entrepreneurial spirit entering

American agriculture. The study cited examples of farmers turning to direct selling of farm produce at roadside markets. pick-your-own operations and other ways of earning money. At least 20 states have initiated some sort of program involving direct marketing. agricultural promotion or market evelopment, the study found.

Mixed-enterprise agriculture once was the norm for the traditional American family farm. But since World War II, the typical unit has been gradually transformed into specialized production, with most farm families buying eggs, milk and other groceries at supermarkets.

Salassi said the relative security of rising government price supports helped turn the diversified Midwestern farms of the 1940s and '50s into the highly specialized cornsoybean operations of the 1970s and

Although many of these operations continue to thrive, others have found that specialized agriculture and today's economic uncertainties don't mix, he said. The increased variability in domestic and world prices, along with current policies to gradually reduce federal price supports, can expose producers to great

"If properly planned, diversification can help stabilize farm income and reduce the danger that a period of low prices for one commodity will threaten the survival of the entire farm business," Salassi said.

In developing a diversification strategy, some common sense guidelines were recommended:

-Commodities having different price patterns should be selected. Two crops may be no better than one if prices of both plunge together.

-To the extent possible, new enterprises should complement ex-isting farm enterprises. For exam-

Alert button used during stabbing

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - A 74-year-old wheelchair-bound woman frantically pressed her medical alert beeper not because she was sick but because an intruder was stabbing her to death, police

Trudy E. Smith had a Lifeline button strapped to her wrist, an electronic system that links seriously ill people to a hospital. Nurses sent a neighbor to Mrs. Smith's home when the button was pressed Tuesday morning, police say.

The neighbor found Mrs. Smith, who had lived alone since her husband died a year earlier, at about 4 a.m. in bed and bleeding from several stab wounds in her chest and upper body.

She was dead when paramedics arrived a short time later, Arlington Police Sgt. Tom Hayden said. Autopsy results are pending.

Mrs. Smith subscribed to the Lifeline system operating from South Arlington Medical Center. The button activates a home unit attached to the subscriber's telephone and automatically dials an emergency

When hospital officials called Mrs. Smith's home after she pressed the button at 3:58 a.m., nurses resorted to a back-up plan and summoned the neighbor, said hospital spokeswoman Sally Bradford.

Clements outspends White

AUSTIN (AP) - Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements reported Tuesday he had raised more money and outspent his Democratic opponent Gov. Mark White during the past month.

Tuesday was the deadline for candidates to file campaign finance reports for the period Sept. 26 through Oct. 25.

White's reports, from five different funds, showed a total of $2.83 million in contributions for the period, with expenditures of $3.48 million for the same period.

Prior to Sept. 26, White reported raising $8.2 million for his reelection campaign.

John Weaver, deputy campaign manager for Clements, said Clements' contributions for the reporting period totaled $3.54 million, including $2.64 million in loans.

Clements' expenditures for the period totaled $3.55 million, Weaver said.

Prior to Sept. 26, Clements reported raising $6.2 million and spending about $6.1 million.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby reported raising $165,358 during the month with net expenditures of $733,686. David Davidson, the GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, had not filed his report as of Tuesday

The deadline for the campaign reports was Tuesday but candidates could meet the deadline by getting the reports in the mail by Tuesday.

Route 66 signs to be sold

AUSTIN (AP) - Next month the state will auction 277 signs that once marked U.S 66, a highway made famous 20-odd years ago by the television show "Route 66," starring George Maharis, Martin Milner and a Corvette convertible.

Last year, the last Route 66 sign in Texas came down as the conversion of the old highway to Interstate 40 was completed. At one time, 177 miles of Route 66 crossed seven counties in the Texas Panhandle, as well as other states.

The signs, which have been in storage, are being cleaned for the sale. A label will be placed on each sign to certify it as genuine. The signs will be sold Nov. 22 as part of a general auction of surplus state goods. Mail-in bids will be accepted if they are received

The highway department said in Oklahoma last year a similar sale netted between $40 and $80 a sign.

Seized drugs worth a fortune

WACO, Texas (AP) - Authorities investigating one of the largest cocaine busts in Texas history have increased the estimated worth of the seized drug from $26.5 to $67.7 million.

The Drug Enforcement Administration in Dallas reweighed the cocaine originally estimated at 663 pounds and said it was actually 706 pounds, said Sgt. Gerald Bradford of the Midland Department of Public Safety office.

Bradford said the cocaine was pure and "straight from Colombia," which accounted for the increased value.

Officials also said Tuesday that about 10 campaign yard signs for McLennan County District Attorney Vic Feazell were found inside the cab of the cocaine-laden pickup truck when it was stopped in West Texas last weekend.

Feazell said he did not know the signs were in the pickup truck driven by S.E. Chastain of Waco. He said Chastain provided scrap lumber for yards signs to various political candidates.

"I really don't think it's fair because it makes it look like I'm involved in drugs. If they'd tell the truth, I'd bet there were other political signs in there as well," Feazell said.

"They're trying to throw everything they can at me to make it look bad right before the election. By innuendo they are trying to tie me to drug trafficking. I had no idea any of my signs were in his truck and I didn't know he was hauling any 700 pounds of dope," he said.

Bradford said he saw only Feazell signs in the truck. Chastain's daughter, Marcee Chastain, said her father was the retired owner of Anco Lumber and Salvage. She said the business is now operated by other family members.

Govt. says agricultural counties rely on exports

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Agriculture Department analyst has identified hundreds of counties where farmers grow "exportoriented" commodities that in 1982 added up to at least half of their total sales of crops and livestock.

Judith Sommer of the department's Economic Research Service said the 1982 census showed 420 counties as "regions most vulnerable to the decreasing demand for U.S. farm exports." The counties are located in 31 states but are concentrated in the Corn Belt and Mississippi Delta.

The 420 represent one of every six non-metropolitan counties in the nation, she said. In each of the counties, sales of five "export-oriented" crops - corn, wheat, soybeans, cotton and rice - accounted for at least 50 percent of agricultural sales.

"Therefore," she said, "such counties can usually be considered export-dependent."

Mrs. Sommer's analysis was included in a draft of a report scheduled for publication soon in the agency's Farmline magazine. Advance copies were released Friday.

The impact of reduced exports on the farm economy has been a sore point among Reagan administration officials and on Capitol Hill for years. After rising to a record value of $43.8 billion in 1980-81, sales tumbled to a nine-year low of $26.5 billion in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30.

Although administration officials see an upturn in the quantity of farm shipments in 1986-87, lower prices triggered in part by reduced government price supports for farmers are expected to keep downward pressure on total export value.

Exports have become a political issue in parts of the farmbelt, where the administration has been accused of dragging its feet on programs to boost exports, including subsidies to make U.S. commodities more competitive in the world market.

Although Mrs. Sommer's report did not discuss the overall export situation nor its policy implications, she made clear the importance of export declines in areas where the major crops are dominant.

'When farmers are in trouble, there's not much else to fall back on in many of these areas," she said. "The community's entire economy may be based on farm commodities with erratic or depressed sales, and farmers don't really have other nonfarm alternatives. In these places, the non-farm businesses count the troubled farmers as their largest and most important customers."

For example, Mrs. Sommer said that in Quitman County, Miss., nearly all of the 1982 sales of farm commodities were from export-oriented crops, primarily cotton and soybeans. But for other exportdependent counties, especially those near larger towns and cities, a drop in farm income can be cushioned by off-farm jobs.

In Grundy County, Ill., sales of corn and soybeans accounted for 90 percent of 1982 farm marketings of crops and livestock. But Grundy County is "located on the fringe of the Chicago metropolitan area, and roughly a third of its workers are employed in manufacturing jobs,"

Weak demand and low prices hurt all farmers, not just those in remote rural areas or in counties cited as dependent on exports, Mrs. Sommer said.

"When so many farmers in one area are producing export-oriented crops, a lot of them will be hurt, and that will have a negative, multiplier effect on their community," she said.

The Delta states of Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi are the most dependent on sales of the five crops, Mrs. Sommer said. In all, nearly 52 percent, or $2.9 billion, of the farm sales in non-metro counties in 1982 was derived mostly from soybeans, cotton and rice. And there were lesser sales of corn and wheat.

In the Corn Belt, including Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri and Ohio, nearly 48 percent of farm marketings in 1982, or $10.8 billion, came from the five crops, primarily corn and soybeans.

Overall, she said, the 420 counties sold $20.4 billion worth of farm products in 1982. Of that amount, $13.8 billion came from the five exportoriented crops.

Dallas market," Barton aide Cathy Hay said Tuesday. Geren spent $72,555 during the same period in his challenge in the 6th District, which includes 14 counties and stretches from Fort Worth to Houston.

Records at the Federal Election Commission for the first two weeks of October — which is the final reporting period before the election show campaign contributions for Geren equaled $61,241 while Barton took in $60,890. Overall contribution totals were $278,564 for Geren and $498,928 for Barton.

Also hearing the footsteps of a contender is Mac Sweeney, R-Wharton, who received some adverse attention when congressional staffers alleged he insisted they work on his reelection campaign. Sweeney faces Greg Laughlin in the Nov. 4 election.

During the early October reporting period, Sweeney took in $43,530 in campaign contributions to up his overall total to $313,516. Laughlin received $22,570 for a total of $156,859 for the race.

A source of major contributions to Sweeney's campaign fund has been political action committees, known as PACs, each espousing its own views for a particular special interest.

Sweeney took in $13,518 in PAC money during early October for a total of $133,769 compared with Laughlin's $7,500 in October PAC money for a total of $49,800.

Among Democrats facing serious contenders are John Bryant of Dallas, who confronts Mesquite attorney Tom Carter in east Dallas' 5th congressional district.

The two contenders raised about the same amount of money in early October, with Bryant taking in $27,898 to Carter's $27,149. Overall, Bryant has collected nearly twice as much with $562,944 compared with $283,507. Much of Bryant's campaign chest comes from PACs.

Bryant outspent his opponent in October by an enormous margin, paying out $123,933 to Carter's $18,363.

Rep. Jake Pickle of Austin, first elected in 1963, is being challenged by former three-term Austin mayor Carole Keeton Rylander, who switched to the GOP to run against him.

Ms. Rylander's early October filing with the FEC had not arrived in Washington by Tuesday, but earlier records show her campaign collected $68,593 during the period from the Texas primary elections through September, compared to Pickle's effort of $308,613.

The veteran outspent his opponent during the same period by $528,031 to $75,904. Pickle, who did get his October filing in by the Oct. 23 deadline. showed an additional $115,300 collected in the first two weeks of the month and expenditures of $104,289.

Of Pickle's $957,465 in total campaign contributions, $362,668 came from PACs.

The final hotly contested race pits incumbent Ron Coleman of El Paso against accountant Roy Gillia. Coleman's early October filing didn't reach the House by Oct. 23. Gillia's showed he had garnered $30,605 during the first two weeks of the month and spent $30,267.

The filing also showed that Gillia took out $15,850 in personal loans to contribute to his exction campaign.

Coleman's filing for the post primary collections through the end of September show he took in $84,460 and spent $116,661.

Ann Landers

Discuss it with his father

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am deeply concerned about a 10-year-old boy who lives near us. "Lenny" is very mean to the neighborhood pets (cats and dogs), especially when he thinks no one is around. When he is caught he suddenly becomes all sweetness and light. My husband and I have witnessed his cruel and frightening behavior on several occasions.

Recently he was playing in the pool with his younger sister. He thought no one was watching and tried to hold her head under water. She fought like a tiger, got out of his clutches and came up for air. When we walked toward him and told him never to do that again, he laughed and said, "Oh, were were just having fun."

The child's mother and I are friends. I have mentioned to her several times that Lenny plays awfully rough and I've seen him swinging his cat by the tail. She giggled and said, "Oh, really? Once he threw her out of the second-story window." The woman brushes aside all critical comments and claims Lenny is simply a "mischievous child." I have a strange feeling that this child is not altogether normal and one day he will do something terrible. I fear for his sister and other children in the neighborhood. Also the pets.

What do you suggest I do, Ann? I don't want to wait until I read some horror story in the newspaper and hate myself for having done nothing about following hunch .-- CONCERNED IN THE SOUTHWEST

I also was born with a receding chin that I hated. I had it corrected last year and am also thrilled with the results. I did not, however, have an osteotomy. I had a chin build-up done by a plastic surgeon, in his office. The bandages came off in four days and I was back at work in a week. It was painless, simple and has made a big difference in my self-

DEAR TAL: I checked with Dr. Wafik Hanna, a competent and respected plastic surgeon in Hinsdale, Ill. He told me he does this procedure frequently. Dr. Hanna said the chin build-up is, indeed, simple and uncomplicated. A small incision is made under the chin. A silicone implant is positioned and stitched in. Tape is applied to the incision and then a bandage. Within a week the stitches are removed, the tape and bandages come off and the person with the lovely new provile can go back to work feeling gorgeous.

Herd prepares for battle with Estacado

By GARY CHRISTENSEN Sports Editor

The biggest game of the District 1-4A season is about to take place, a game that will bring together two of top 10 class 4A teams in the state.

Hereford High School's Whitefaces, undefeated in eight games and ranked fifth in the Associated Press poll, travel to Lubbock Thursday to battle it out with the Lubbock Estacado Matadors, 6-0-1 for the season and ranked fifth in the Associated Press poll.

Thursday's game is set for 7:30 p.m. at Lowrey Field in Lubbock.

Borger plays at Canyon Friday night. Canyon, 3-2, in the district, has a slim hope of a playoff berth, but can play the spoiler role with a win over Borger. (See related story on this page about the mathematical possibilities for the final district standings.)

About the game against Estacado, Hereford Coach Don Cumpton said, "I think our players have looked forward to this game for a long time.

Now that it's here, we're excited to play Lubbock Estacado."

The Whiteface defense will be faced with the challenge of stopping an I-formation Estacado offense which runs many power sweeps and other power plays. The Herd offense will go against a 4-3 Matador defense.

Coach Cumpton said turnovers and other mistakes will be major factors in the outcome of Thursday's game. "I would have to say their strength for us is to not turn the ball over and give them any cheap touchdowns," he said.

"If we stay away from those critical mistakes, we'll do all right. That's the key, as last week was, to make fewer mistakes than our opponents. If we are mentally alert and play with a lot of intensity, we can win the ball game," Cumpton adds.

of how the next games will turn out. Hereford beat Canyon 14-10 last week, and Estacado beat Canvon 17-3 on Oct. 17 in a game that was 10-3 until an interception return for a Hereford defeated Levelland 8-3, while Estacado was tied by Levelland 14-14. Estacado and Hereford both beat Frenship by large margins, but Estacado scored blowout victories over Dumas and Lubbock Dunbar, whereas Hereford's victories were closer ones over those teams.

But score comparisons mean little, since they do not measure what the preparation, desire and motivation of the teams are in any given week. And the Hereford Whitefaces certainly have a great deal of motivation going into Thursday's game, having met the challenge of the Canyon Eagles last week.

Comparing offensive statistics, Estacado is averaging 405.7 yards per game and Hereford is averaging 310.0 yards. The Estacado defense has limited its opposing offenses to 142.1 yards per game, while opposing offensive units have managed 216.0 yards per game against the Herd

o far today, everybody I asked who they thought would win Thursday night's game against Estacado, have all said the same thing. "Estacado."

Now if that is not an intelligent answer, I don't know what is.

Tell that to Villanova and North Carolina State. And the Kansas City Royals or the Minnesota Vikings. Or the University of Colorado. Or

In case you may not remember, Villanova beat a Patrick Ewing led Georgetown team in the NCAA basketball finals in 1985.

And this is Hereford's year to win.

So before you go counting up chickens before the first shell cracks remember, it ain't over, 'til it's over.

The quote of the week comes form offensive lineman Keith Anderson.

During the fourth quarter of the Hereford-Canyon game last Friday night, Canyon began to drive the ball into Whiteface territory for what would have been a go-ahead touchdown.

Just before defensive back Robbie Collier picked off a Canyon pass, Anderson was heard to plead, "Come on defense, I buy you anything in the world if you hold them."

Lanier is 'Manager of the Year'

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

AP Sports Writer HOUSTON (AP) — Hal Lanier, who led a Houston team picked as a preseason also-ran and turned it into National League Western Division champions, was named today as Manager of the Year by The Associated Press.

Lanier, who was named Astros manager in the off-season after serving as a coach on St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog's staff for five years, received 53 votes in easily outdistancing Boston's John McNamara in the nationwide voting by sportswriters and broadcasters.

McNamara, whose Red Sox lost to the New York Mets in the seventh game of the World Series Monday night, received 14 votes.

Texas Manager Bobby Valentine. a rookie like Lanier, was third with 12 votes followed by Davey Johnson of the Mets with 10 votes.

Lanier pulled the right strings with a pitching staff composed of Mike Scott, the major-league leader in strikeouts and earned run average, Nolan Ryan, baseball's all-time strikeout king, and left-hander Bob Knepper.

Lanier also transformed-the Astros from a one-base-at-a-time attack to an aggressive running team in 1986. The Astros almost doubled their stolen bases from from 1985 stealing 163 compared to 96 the year before.

That was a key to the Astros' charge to their first divisional crown since 1980, when former Astros Manager Bill Virdon was named manager of the year.

"I knew we had more speed on the team than had been used," Lanier said. "And I feel that the players were ready for a change to the brand of baseball we wanted them to play."

Lanier drew skeptical looks in preseason when he forecast five Astros could steal 25 to 35 bases. He named Kevin Bass, Bill Doran, Billy Hatcher, Jose Cruz and Terry Puhl.

Doran led the team with 42 stolen bases followed by Hatcher with 38 and Bass with 22. Cruz and Puhl were slowed by injuries and did not figure in the new-style attack.

"My philosophy is to give credit to the players who did the job," Lanier said. "A manager is only as good as his players and I'm glad I had this team for my first year as a manager.

"They gave me 100 percent from start to finish."

The players gave credit back. "There were times early in the season where he would move a player over a little bit, and he'd be in the right spot to make the play on the next pitch," third baseman Phil Garner said.

"Right away, we knew he knew what he was doing. That goes a long way toward building confidence in someone."

The Astros battled the Mets before falling in Game 6 which lasted 16 inn-

Landry's eyesight not getting worse

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Tom Landry's eyesight isn't getting worse. He's just trying to cram more plays on his game plan card and the type is getting smaller.

The Dallas Cowboys' coach has resorted to reading glasses on occasion this year, particularly at night and during late evening NFL

"I've used reading glasses but now I take them with me to the games," Landry said. "Marge (his secretary) has been trying to cram more plays onto my card."

Landry said the new and expanded Cowboys' offense, which includes Herschel Walker playing at six different positions, is the reason for the smaller type. "I guess I have 25 percent more plays on my card than I've had before," Landry said. Landry has plays for each and every situation the Cowboys may encounter on the field.

"My eyesight isn't 20-20 but I still see pretty good," said Landry, who was a bomber pilot during World War II.

Game 7 TV audience sets all-time record

By KATHRYN BAKER AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - More households tuned in to Game 7 of the World Series between the New York Mets and the Boston Red Sox than any other baseball game ever, according to NBC.

The previous most-viewed game was the sixth and deciding game in the 1980 World Series between Philadelphia and Kansas City, NBC said Tuesday.

The baseball championship eclipsed Monday Night Football, giving the competing ABC offering its lowest rating ever, said Gerald Jaffe, NBC vice president for research projects.

New York sports viewers had to choose between the Mets and the Sox or the football Giants and the Washington Redskins.

Jaffe said the football game got a national rating of only 8.8 with a 14

NBC research estimated that Game 7, won by the Mets 8-5, was seen in 34 million homes, while the sixth and deciding game of the 1980 series was seen in an estimated 32 million homes.

"It's the biggest game of all time," said Jaffe.

Game 7 received a national rating of 38.9 and a 55 share, compared to a 40 rating and a 60 share for the 1980 program and even prouder of the student athletes.

After making a simple, short statement, Driesell turned and walked away from the podium.

Driesell's action didn't surprise Jim Kehoe, the retired athletic director who hired the coach in 1969.

"Why would he want to share the platform with the man who sacked him?" he asked.

University Chancellor John B. Slaughter was scheduled to hold a news conference later in the morn-

The coach met with his team late Tuesday at his home. According to players who attended the somber, 1 hour and 15 minute session, he bid a teary farewell.

Driesell was expected to be named an assistant athletic director while giving up the old contract which called for him to coach four more seasons and then work five years in another university capacity.

Ron Bradley, a Driesell assistant . for three years, was expected to be named interim head coach for the coming season.

With the start of their season pushed back a month by Slaughter, the Terrapins don't open practice until Saturday, 17 days after the date allowed by the NCAA.

Despite a highly successful wonlost record, Driesell came under fire after the cocaine-induced death of Bias. Subsequent investigations disclosed drug use and academic shortcomings by other members of

Mets' World Series title means 'trash'

NEW YORK (AP) - New York's Mets are No. 1 in baseball, but it will be later this week before the rankings are in on trash.

Hundreds of sanitation workers swept through the night to clean up after the estimated 2.2 million people who lined the streets of lower Manhattan for a ticker-tape parade Tuesday celebrating the Mets' World Series victory.

Just how the parade ranks as a trash-generating event won't be known until later this week, when all the paper that wafted down on the parade has been weighed, the city nitation department said

But it's not expected to come anywhere near the city's biggest trash-bash. That was the Victory in Japan Day parade on Aug. 14 and 15, 1945, when jubilant Americans tossed 5,438 tons of paper into the streets, the department said.

The cleanup from Tuesday's parade proceeded more slowly than anticipated because winds kicked up the debris and blew more off roofs, said Cynthia Hallex, a department spokeswoman.

Four hundred people using 250 pieces of equipment were on the job, which was expected to be completed this morning, she added.

The other top trash events include: -Astronaut John Glenn's parade on March 1, 1962: 3,474 tons.

-Gen. Douglas MacArthur's parade on April 20, 1951: 3,249 tons. -Astronaut Gordon Cooper's parade on May 22, 1963: 2,900 tons

-Statue of Liberty Centennial on July 3-6, 1986: 2,079 tons.

Other messy baseball-related events were the 1978 Yankees World Series parade, which generated 135 tons of ticker tape, and the 1969 Mets World Series parade, which left 578 tons of debris.

TEAMWORK noun a joint action by a group of people in which each person subordinates his individual interests and opinions for the unity of the group.

When the word "teamwork" is mentioned, the most obvious thought is that of football or another sport. While it is true that a football team must have unity, teamwork also applies to business.

How to test your holiday turkey

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - What is the correct meat thermometer reading for a roasted turkey? - ALAINA
DEAR ALAINA - Most authorities recommend a temperature of 180 to 185 degrees when the thermometer is placed in the thickest part of the thigh, and a temperature of 170 to 175 degrees when placed in the breast. If the turkey is stuffed, you may place the thermometer in the center of the stuffing, which should register 160 to 165 degrees. Other tests for doneness

Protecting fingers with paper or cloth, press the thigh and drumstick. The meat should feel soft.

Prick the thigh with a fork or sharp knife and press slightly to cause some of the juices to run out. If the juices run clear, the turkey is done. —

DEAR POLLY - I often use frozen meat-and-gravy products. But instead of putting the frozen package in the oven for the long suggested cooking time, I put it in the refrigerator in the morning. By supper time, it is partly thawed. I then empty the contents into a deep frying pan, cover with a lid and heat the meat and gravy quickly on the stove.

Also, every few weeks, I go on a baking spree. I mix up two cake mixes; one white or yellow and one chocolate. Using the small aluminum pans from the frozen meat-and-gravy products, I pour half of the white batter into one pan, and half of the chocolate batter into a second pan. With the remaining batter, I fill two more pans each with half white and half chocolate, swirled together to make a marble effect. This way, I end up with four small cakes of different flavors.

One can of frosting mix frosts all four. I cover the extra cakes after baking with waxed paper, then wrap them again with foil for freezer stor-age. — MRS. M.E.

Author Roger Simon prefers detectives who are real he's writing a pilot, mystery writer Roger Simon doesn't have much use for television detectives.

"I don't like any of them," he said of the current crop. "They're too plastic, like 'Mannix.' They're not real.'

Simon is best known for his Moses Wine detective book series and the movie made from the first book, The Big Fix." Richard Dreyfuss started as the hippie private eye.

The latest book in the series, "The Straight Man," has just been published by the Villard Books division of Random House.

"I've always been a total snob about television," he admitted. "I don't like TV, but I may change my mind because they're talking about a Moses Wine series."

It might be the first TV detective series he would like.

"Spenser; For Hire' could have been good if they'd done Robert Parker's books," Simon said. "The LOS ANGELES (AP) - Although unfortunate problem with TV private eyes is that they're supermen rather than people.

"I did like 'The Rockford Files.' I liked some of 'Columbo.' One I liked a lot was the British series on Lord Peter Wimsey. And the best ever was 'Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy."'

He's also writing a pilot called "The Rocker and the Roller," about two brothers, a cop and a disc jockey, who live together in Seattle.

"It's sort of a political 'Odd Couple," he said. "The cop is a conservative and the DJ's a liberal. And cases come up that they both become involved in."

Simon recently finished writing the screenplay for "Enemies, A Love Story" with Paul Mazursky. It's a black comedy that will star Dreyfuss and Anjelica Houston.

He also wrote the screenplay for "Busting Loose" and co-wrote "My Man Adam" with his wife, producer Renee Missell. He also directed "My

In scriptwriting program

Students encouraged to participate

Citizenship" is the theme of the 40th annual Voice of Democracy scriptwriting program being sponsored locally by Roy Wederbrook of VFW Post 4818 and Auxiliary.

The Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program, open to 10th, 11th and 12th grade students, offers local, district and national recognition and awards with the top national award being a $14,000 scholarship. Mel Charest and Marie Goheen urge students interested in participating to contact the Hereford High School principal or speech teacher.

Participating students are encouraged to tape their scripts using professional equipment available at cooperating radio stations. The recorded script must be at least

"The Challenge of American three minutes and not over five minutes in length. It can be recorded on reel type magnetic tape at a speed of 71/2 inches per second or cassette.

> Deadline for entries in the local competition is Nov. 15 said three young people from Hereford participated in last year's Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program. They were among 250,000 young people from over 8,000 public, private and parochial schools participating in the national program.

> Tapes will be judged for content, originality and delivery.

> The winner from the State of Texas will receive a five day all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., next March together with winners from Germany, the District of Columbia, Overseas and the 50 states. They will visit national monuments and meet high government officials. National awards in addition to the $14,000 first place scholarship include $7,000, $4,500, $3,500, $2,500 and $1,000 scholarships for second through sixth place winners.

The program now in its 40th year, is sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States and its Ladies Auxiliary. The National Association of Secondary School Principals has placed the Voice of Democracy Program on the Advisory List of National Contests and Activities for 1986/87.

"Participation in the Voice of Democracy Program gives students experience in writing and speaking" said Marie Goheen.

New treatment DR. GOTT for dysplasia

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I had a Class III Pap smear and a colposcopy, and was diagnosed as having severe dysplasia. My gynecologist recommend-ed a cone biopsy. I sought a second opinion and found a gynecological on-cologist. He "zapped" my cervix with a laser. It was not painful, I walked out of his office less than an hour after walking in, and the portion that was burned off grew back.

I understand that the success rate for this is 90 percent, and all of my subsequent Pap smears have been normal. Please inform your readers of this latest application of laser technology DEAR READER - Thank you for writing. Laser treatment of cervical dysplasia (abnormal-looking cells) is gaining wide acceptance and, for many women, is an appropriate alternative to cone biopsy.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a gay female and want to have a sex-change operation. No editorials, please; just tell me how to find a doctor who will do this kind of surgery.

DEAR READER — OK, no editorializing. Ask a plastic surgeon to recommend a colleague who does this sort of operation. It's a tricky procedure and usually will require the additional assets. tional services of a urologist or gynecologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What medical books or sources of information can tell me more about acute

DEAR READER - Acute costochondritis is inflammation of the cartilage that connects the ribs to the breastbone. Your own doctor should be a valuable source of information. If you want detailed information, go to your local library and look in any standard medical textbook.

DEAR DR. GOTT - Three people in our family wear eyeglasses or contact lenses. Is it possible to make up a sterile eyewash solution for home

DEAR READER - Making sterile solutions at home can be a real nuisance, because home sterilization is difficult. Nonetheless, under the guidance of your ophthalmologist, you could do it. Ask him or her for advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 21 and have very badly decayed upper teeth. What would be the best and least ex-

What would be the best and least expensive way to have them fixed?

DEAR READER — Check with a dentist. Ordinarily, the cheapest way to take care of badly decayed teeth is to have them removed and substitute china choppers. However, if you want to save your uppers, the dentist may be able to repair and cap them; that's a more expensive procedure. You might look into the possibility of being treated at a dental school. Dentists-in-training often do superb (and supervised) jobs for a fraction of the usual cost. It's part of their training and they enjoy challenges.

DEAR DR. GOTT - Three days after my annual physical, my doctor called me and told me to get to the hospital right away. The lab report showed that more than half my blood supply was missing. During the next week I had two units of blood, a G.I. series, a barium enema, a proctosco-py, a gastroscopy and a bone-marrow test. At the end of all this, my doctor said, "It must have been the few aspirin you took before your physical the reports show nothing," and sent me home. In one million words or less, please comment. DEAR READER - I'll try to do it in less than a million. You were anemic. This could have resulted from improper blood-cell formation, destruction of blood cells within your body or loss of blood. The bone-marrow exam would have shown an abnormality if you weren't producing enough blood. First cause explained. Blood tests would have indicated whether your blood cells were deformed or being destroyed. No. 2

You probably had some bleeding and became anemic because your blood-forming organs couldn't keep up with the rate of loss. Commonly, painless bleeding can come from the intestinal tract; the blood often is not evident in the stool. The doctor investigated your intestine with several tests. Evidently, you did not have a tu-mor, ulcer or diverticulitis — the three most common causes of intestinal bleeding.

Aspirin can cause bleeding from the stomach because the drug causes gastritis, a raw inflammation of the stomach lining, which can ooze.

If I were you, I would lay off aspirin and get your stool periodically checked for blood, perhaps as often as once a week for awhile. If the bleedng doesn't return, you can blame the aspirin and rest easy. If it starts again, you will have to go through more testing, which may include a mesenteric arteriogram — a fancy X-ray study to identify a source of bleeding within the large bowel.

DEAR DR. GOTT - How are doctors selected to participate in the Medicaid program?

DEAR READER — The doctors are asked. Any licensed physician is a candidate and can become a Medicaid candidate and can become a Medicaid doctor if he or she chooses. The doctor simply agrees to accept state fee schedules for any Medicaid patient. To my knowledge, there is no selection process. The bureaucrats are glad to accept any doctor who is willing to enter the system.

Great American Smoke-Out working

The Great American Smoke-Out is with a tendency toward asthma. entering its 10th year, and the experts say the yearly campaign to reduce smoking is working. Evidence shows that smokers are cutting back and fewer young people are starting, according to Dr. Betty Benison, professor of physical education at Texas Christian University.

"The smoke-out has been one of the most effective campaigns, sometimes involving whole groups of smokers," Benison said. "The program also has caught on in such other countries as Great Britain, Australia, France and Ireland."

The smoke-out campaign also brought public awareness to the problem of passive smoking. There is a new concern for the non-smoker who lives or works with a smoker.

"Several studies has been done. each producing contradicting evidence," Benison noted. "Adults respiratory problems or allergies will be more affected by passive smoking."

The evidence for children with smoking parents is much more alarming. Studies show that children who live in smoking households during their first year of life have double the amount of bronchitis and pneumonia than do children from non-smoking households, Benison said.

The final question when it comes to the smoking campaign is what is the best way to kick the habit. Research continues to show that stopping "cold turkey" produces the best long-term

"If you quit 'cold turkey', you're generally not playing games with yourself. You're serious about no longer wanting smoking to be a part of your life," said Benison.

Housemother has more than 100'sons'

AUSTIN (AP) - Her second daughter was born 17 years after the first. Then she waited 17 more years. This time she got boys. More than 100 boys, all of them young and all of them hungry.

"I cook for about 150," says Mrs. Camillus "Shelly" Angel, housemother at the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity near the University of Texas cam-

"Only about 120 come, but there is never much food left over. Some boys eat for three," says Mrs. Angel, one of 10 women who serve as housemothers for the 31 UT fraternities.

Angel, which is what her boys call her, moved into the ZBT house about four years ago. Since then she has learned a few things about boys that she might have missed while raising her own two daughters.

First, there's the tuna salad conundrum. "Everybody's mother makes it different." says Mrs. Angel, who has been a widow for almost 10 has about 130 members and more than 50 pledges this fall, you'll find at least four different kinds of tuna salad involving two different kinds of tuna. "Let's see, there's tuna with pickle relish and tuna without, tuna with eggs and tuna without, tuna with onion and tuna without," says Mrs. Angel. "And we use both albacore and chunk light tuna."

Then there's the matter of ketchup. Lots o' ketchup needed over on fraternity row, Mrs. Angel has discovered. "Oh God, they live in ketchup," she says.

But then there are the sweeter lessons, those lessons known by heart by all mothers of young boys everywhere.

"There is something special about boys. I must say that," Mrs. Angel says. "Girls wouldn't come up and give you a hug or a kiss and say, 'Oh, that supper was awesome. Oh, that grilled chicken, that deli today, it was awesome.' I thought awesome finished at 16, but

Gin owner recalls cotton's bygone glory

GOBER. Texas (AP) -Anse Babers remembers the years of long ago, when great green wagons hauled their cotton cargo over the dusty roads of the Texas plains to the cotton gins that shot upward from the earth like castles.

Babers, 69, clings to his memories of the past by holding on to the last cotton gin in his small hometown.

"Why, this whole county was bought and paid for with cotton," he said. "Everything we got, we got from cotton. It fed our families, paid our debts. bought our land. Cotton was our survival." In 1979, when Jimmy Smith retired and put Gober's last cotton gin up for sale, Babers bought it. "I didn't want to see the gin that have been sold, leave this county," Babers said, remembering other gins disassembled and shipped to Mexico.

"And I always wanted a cotton gin, ever since I was a little bitty kid. They fascinated me, I guess.'

Babers' is one of the last cotton gins in north Texas. certainly the only one left in Fannin and Grayson coun-

Once, the gin operated around the clock during cotton season.

Now, Babers only gins cotton that he and his son grow and cotton for "five or six fellers around here and three or four from Hunt County."

The first year Babers owned the gin, he ginned "one thousand, six hundred something" bales of cotton. "It's been going down ever

Tuna salad and buckets of ketchup aside, there is a more serious aspect to this housemother business. Mrs. Angel thinks her young men are better behaved simply because she's around.

"Those fraternities that have housemothers don't get into trouble, because as wild as they (fraternity members) might get or horsing around, you walk through, and that dampens it," Mrs. Angel

"I say, 'Would you do that in front of your mother?' They at least get practice saying, 'I'm sorry,' " Mrs. Angel says.

Eric Webber, director of the UT Interfraternity Council, agrees that housemothers generally have a positive effect on fraternity members. 'Most of the time, they are a little better behaved. If there is a housemother, it kind of keeps down too much outrageous or boisterous behavior, especially at mealtime," he says.

"I would like to see more of them. I think it's a good influence on the guys," he says. "I'm not saying they're illbehaved . . . but anyway they are a little better behaved. I'm for it." While the housemother duties focus on food preparation and service, the job also involves a wide range of complex chores ranging from hiring and firing housekeeping help to listening to the woes of lovesick college freshmen. The variety of tasks involved prompted the University of Missouri to establish a school for housemothers 10 years ago, a school that Angel and Delta Upsilon housemother Frances Bishop have attend-

The weeklong seminar has attracted about 1.000 housemothers over the past decade, according to Cathy Scroggs, assistant director of residential life at the University of Missouri.

The house director seminar includes courses on management techniques, human sexuality, alcohol and drug abuse, crime prevention, personal safety and a number of other topics that relate to the job: Over the years the content of the courses has shifted to keep up with the changing interests of college students, Ms. Scroggs says.

"Ten years ago when you were talking about drugs, you talked about marijuana. Now we're talking about hallucinogens, cocaine, a little marijuana and a lot of alcohol," Ms. Scroggs says.

Sometimes the discussions are eye-openers. "It was the first time I ever smelled marijuana," Mrs. Bishop says of the discussion on drug abuse. "If I had smelled it before, I didn't know."

Although she enjoyed attending the Missouri school for house directors, Mrs. Bishop thinks good housemothering basically is born of good mothering. "I really feel that anyone who has been a homemaker and a mother could be a housemother," she

You just need to think in terms of feeding 40 instead of four, Mrs. Bishop says. You need to be able to put up with the domestic, scholastic and emotional ruckus of 18-yearold males. And you need to be broad-minded.

"They're very open with me. Sometimes I think it's for shock purposes to see just how far they can go," says Mrs. Bishop, who, like Mrs. Angel, has two grown daughters.

But it's not all bliss, she'll point-out. "When I came here, the boys used to have food fights on Fridays. I went out and got in my car, and one of the boys ran out and said, 'Now, Mom, don't get upset. Boys will be

Mrs. Bishop, however, putan end to that particular brand of boyishness: "I had a cook who went in and said. 'If you have a food fight, I won't cook any more.'

'We can't live without her," says Adam Pulaski, president of the ZBT chapter

'Yeah," adds senior member Jeff Kramer, "she's awesome."

The Newspaper BIBLE

"I SEE TROUBLE AHEAD!"

Arrangements were finally made to start us on our way to Rome by ship; so Paul and several other prisoners were placed in the custody of an officer named Julius, a member of the imperial guard. We left on a boat bound for Greece, which was scheduled to make several stops along the Turkish coast. I should add that Aristarchus, a Greek from Thessalonica, was with us.

The next day when we docked at Sidon, Julius was very kind to Paul and let him go ashore to visit with friends and receive their hospitality.

Putting to sea from there, we encour headwinds that made it difficult to keep the ship on course, so we sailed north of Cyprus between the island and the mainland, and passed along the coast of the provinces of Cilicia and Pamphylia, landing at Myra, in the province of Lycia. There an officer found an Egyptian ship from Alexandria, bound for Italy, and put us aboard. We had several days of rough sailing, and finally neared Cnidus; but the winds became too strong, so we ran across to Crete, passing the port of Salome. Beating into the wind with great difficulty and moving slowly along the southern coast, we arrived at Fair Havens, near the city of Lasea. There we stayed for several days. The weather was becoming dangerous for long voyages by then, because it was late in the year, and Paul spoke to the ship's officers about it. "Sirs," he said, "I believe there is trouble ahead if we go on-perhaps shipwreck, loss of cargo, injuries, and death Acts 27:1-10

LIFESAVING BYSTANDERS

DETROIT (AP) - Bystanders using cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) can improve the survival chances of patients undergoing cardiac arrest at a rate equal to that of patients whoseheart attack occurs in the presence of emergency medical service personnel notes Internal Medicine News.

According to the medical journal, nearly 23 percent of 472 patients who suffered cardiac arrest outside Detroit's Henry Ford Hospital and received CPR by bystanders survived until they were admitted to the hospital, and 11.9 percent were discharged alive.

However, only 14.6 percent of those who were not given CPR by bystanders survived until hospital admission, with 4.7 percent discharged alive, the publication reports.

The university's admissions office is*sponsoring "College 101," a program to introduce prospective students and their parents to university life.

Topics such as paying for college, student organizations, academic advising and career placement will be addressed throughout the morning program. A College Life Panel featuring students, faculty and staff will answer the questions concerning all aspects of university life.

Following a luncheon hosted by Dr. Ed Roach, university president, participants are invited to cheer on the WTSU Buffaloes as they meet Eastern New Mexico University at 1:30 p.m.

Cost for College 101 is $7 per person, including lunch and the football game. Deadline for registration is Monday, Nov. 3.
