Snow blanket covers Deaf Smith County

From Staff and Wire Reports

A picturesque snow blanket covered Deaf Smith County by dawn today for the first major snowfall of the season.

Spot checks found the snow to be 3 to 4 inches in most of the county. Generally, one inch of snow melts for one-tenth of an inch of moisture.

The snow was brought by an upper level storm system which moved eastward into Texas early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a winter storm warning for the South Plains today and travelers advisories for the Panhandle and South Plains through Friday.

Forecasters said heavy snow was falling at times at dawn over West Texas from the the Guadalupe Mountains northward into the Panhandle.

As much as 1 to 2 inches of snow was on the ground over the South Plains and snow was continuing to fall. Forecasters said as much as 2 to 4 inches of snow would fall by the time the snow deteriorated into flurries late in the day.

Hazardous driving conditions because of icy roads and snow-packed roads were reported across the Panhandle southward into the Trans-Pecos Mountains.

Forecasts called for cloudy skies over most of the state through tonight with some sun possible across most of the state Friday.

Lows tonight will be in the 20s and 30s over West Texas, the 30s and 40s over North Texas and in the 50s and 60s over South Texas.

Highs Friday will be in the 40s and 50s over most of the state with readings in South Texas expected to reach into the lower 60s.

It was cold and wet over the entire state early today. A cold front was located in South Texas and moving slowly southward out of the state.

The soggy weather was being triggered by moist air rising over the cooler surface air and an upper level low pressure system.

Fog was reported over the lower half of the coastal plains and in the Lower Rio Grande Valley early today.

Early morning temperatures were mainly in the 40s and 50s, ranging from the 30s in West Texas to the 60s in extreme South Texas. Ex-temperatures ranged from 29 at Guadalupe Pass to 67 at McAllen.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 31 at Amarillo, 39 at Wichita Falls, 43 at Fort Worth, 53 at Austin, 63 at Corpus Christi, 57 at Houston, 63 at Brownsville, 43 at San Angelo, 32 at Lubbock, 36 at Midland and 40 at El Paso.

Blanket of Snow

Residents of Deaf Smith County awoke Thursday morning to find a winter wonderland. KPAN reported 3 inches of snow and spot checks in the county found depths up to 4 inches. Forecasters are calling for warmer temperatures throughout the weekend.

Brock presented Bull Chip Award

Gene Brock was awarded the Bull Chip Award Thursday morning at the Christmas edition of the Chamber Fun Breakfast, as emcee Charlie Bell cited Brock for his work with the Key Club, Hereford Satellite Center, Camp Wigwam and other community programs.

While the weather may have cut down on the attendance slightly, the breakfast goers were treated to a "winter wonderland" this morning on their way to the "Eat Your Heart Out, Neiman-Marcus" breakfast, sponsored by local merchants.

Bell and John Stagner, co-emcee, held a number of prize drawings for those present—including Hereford Bucks awards of $100 to Mike Bowles and $25 to Debra Hix, and a $20 gift certificate from Pants Cage to Bonnie Hamilton. The names of Coach Stan Carter and Lavon Nieman were drawn as two of the finalists in the "Live for Free in December" giveaway being sponsored by local merchants. Cans of popcorn from Troy's Sweet Shop were handed out to a number of lucky winners.

Community announcements, games and several skits also highlighted the popular breakfast events. Stagner was joined by Wayne Winget and Steve Nieman in presenting a musical skit to the tune of "The Reindeer Rock", and Fred Fox made an appearance as one of the wise men from the East.

Amy and John Gilliland and Bobby Boyd presented a short skit to promote the Chamber Singers' production of "The Scrooge", a one-act musical to be performed at Hereford High School Auditorium Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 2 p.m. All tickets are $2 each.

Another highlight of the breakfast was special recognition of Coach Don Cumpston and his staff for their efforts in guiding the Hereford Whitefaces to the state semifinal football playoffs.

The Toys for Tots program is continuing this week, and Mike Carr urged citizens to take toys to Stevens Chevrolet to be used in the program to provide Christmas gifts for needy children. Nita Hampton announced that the Christmas Lighting Contest, sponsored by the Women's Division of the chamber, had a deadline of today for entries.

Speedy Nieman announced that the Christmas Stocking Fund, sponsored by a group of anonymous citizens, will continue to receive donations this week. Contributions had past the $5,000-mark early this week.

Bull Chipper

Gene Brock, left, received the Bull Chip Award at Thursday's Chamber Fun Breakfast from emcee Charlie Bell. Brock was cited for his work with the Key Club, Hereford Satellite Center, Camp Wigwam and other community programs.

CSF may help answer prayers

In a final week of seeking donations for the Christmas Stocking Fund, the following story seems particularly fitting. This poignant piece appeared in the Dec. 12th pastor's column of the Rev. Steve McElroy in the First United Methodist Church's publication, "The Chimes":

"From faraway in my childhood I remember a story that I was once told...

"Street lamps flickered in the dusk on Main Street. A ragged little girl stood on tiptoe at a store window. It was full of Christmas magic—a red tricycle, a doll with golden curls, a fuzzy panda bear. Her eyes were wide with wonder.

"Just then a friend happened by. Too bad you won't be getting anything for Christmas," she said.

"Oh, but I will!" said the ragged child.

"But your parents are broke, and you said yourself there would be no presents," her friend insisted.

"The little girl pressed her eager face against the window pane. That's true. But I asked God to send me something."

"The friend shook her head and skipped away.

"After Christmas, the two girls met again. Did you get a present? asked the cynical friend.

"The little girl dropped her head. No," she said.

"See, just as I thought. God didn't answer that prayer of yours."

"The ragged child lifted her chin and said, I'm quite sure God told someone to bring me a gift, but I guess they forgot."

"The ragged child and her Christmas prayer. It's a story that reminds me of an extraordinary truth: God sometimes uses you and me to answer the prayers of others. Even now, at this very moment, He is working on someone's eager prayer. And who knows, you could be the answer—if you don't forget.

"Father, often I plead for an answer to my own prayer. Today use me to answer the prayer of someone else."

Donations to the Stocking Fund to benefit the needy at Christmastime can be made at The Brand office, 313 N. Lee St. or by mail to: Christmas Stocking Fund, c/o The Hereford Brand, P.O. Box 673, Hereford.

The total of contributions climbed above the $5,000-mark on Wednesday.

Meese sees North as prime subject

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III says he now has more details on the diversion to Nicaraguan rebels of profits from Iran arms sales and Lt. Col. Oliver North still stands alone as the scheme's prime mover.

But Meese admits he still can't trace the money trail of the arms profits, and can't be sure the Contra rebels really received the money.

Members of the Senate Intelligence Committee continue to debate whether North, a mid-level aide on President Reagan's National Security Council, acted alone or was spurred by higher authority when he sought to bolster the Contra rebels with arms sale profits.

Former national security adviser Robert C. McFarlane was to make a return visit today to the Senate committee to respond to questions that have arisen since his original appearance Dec. 1.

And the House Intelligence Committee scheduled testimony from Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, White House Chief of State Donald T. Regan and New York businessman Roy Furmark, who says he tipped CIA Director William Casey in October to the possible diversion of funds.

Meese, speaking to reporters Wednesday after 4½ hours of closed door testimony before the Senate panel, said he didn't know when he publicly disclosed the diversion plan Nov. 25 whether the Contras actually had received money from the Iranian sales.

Texas prison director resigns

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Department of Corrections Director O.L. "Lane" McCotter will yield to Bill Clements' demands and quit the day the governor-elect takes office, the prison board chairman says.

In a letter of resignation submitted to board chairman Alfred Hughes Wednesday, the 46-year-old McCotter said he would leave his job Jan. 20, the day Clements is sworn in.

Clements, a Republican, has criticized an early release program designed to cope with the system's crowding problem and McCotter's hiring of ex-military personnel for key corrections department positions.

Before taking the TDC job in June 1985, McCotter commanded the Army prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., the armed forces' only maximum-security prison.

"He just felt like for the director for the Texas Department of Corrections to be 100 percent effective, he had to have the support of the governor. He obviously didn't have that support," Hughes said.

Hughes said McCotter gave the clear impression that his decision was solely the result of Clements' criticism. The governor-elect also said repeatedly during his campaign that McCotter should resign and that he would seek an ouster if elected.

"We approve of his action. It gives the board an opportunity for a new beginning and to change direction," said Clements spokesman Reggie Bashur, who called some of McCotter's policies "extremely liberal and permissive."

McCotter met briefly with his staff in Huntsville Wednesday to tell of his plans to quit, and he plans no public comment, TDC spokesman David Nunnelee said.

Rescue maneuver can be harmful

BOSTON (AP) — The Heimlich maneuver saves lives, but a report today warns that if administered too vigorously, the anti-choking technique can be fatal — to the rescuer as well as to the victim.

There have been several instances of people dying after receiving overly powerful Heimlich maneuvers, in which a victim is squeezed from behind to expel a windpipe obstruction.

A letter in the New England Journal of Medicine describes the unusual case of a 61-year-old man who fatally injured his heart in saving an acquaintance who was choking on food.

The man applied the maneuver unsuccessfully twice. On his third try, he gave it "everything he had," the letter said. It worked, but the man felt a sharp pain in his chest.

Doctors discovered the man had ripped his aorta, the main artery carrying blood from the heart. He died following surgery to repair the tear.

"The Heimlich maneuver is a generally safe and simple life-saving technique in response to acute upper-airway obstruction," wrote Dr. Theodore Feldman and colleagues from the University of Miami. "But incorrect or overzealous administration can pose a risk of potentially life-threatening consequences in both the choking victim and the good Samaritan."

Horned dinosaur unveiled

NEW YORK (AP) — A new type of dinosaur may have been just a runt among its saurian brethren 75 million years ago, but it might have evolved into one of the biggest horned dinosaurs, a scientist says.

The bones of the Avaceratops lammersi, a plant-eating animal, were found five years ago in Montana, the first unknown horned dinosaur to be discovered in North America in 35 years. They were to go on display today at the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia.

"It's a lot smaller than many people think of as dinosaur size," said Peter Dodson, research associate at the academy and associate anatomy professor at the University of Pennsylvania's veterinary medical school.

The specimen on display came from a juvenile, some 7½ feet long and about three feet high at the rear hips, said Dodson. In life, it may have weighed about 400 pounds.

As an adult, it might have grown to 12 feet long and a bit over 1,000 pounds, he said.

But the bony frill at the back of its head suggests it may be an ancestor of a triceratops, which stretched 25 feet long, weighed maybe five tons and lived an estimated 10 million years later, Dodson said.

Reagan's surgery is safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prostate operation President Reagan will undergo next month is a relatively common and safe procedure that should not keep him off the job for more than a few days, experts say.

The operation, similar to one Reagan underwent 20 years ago, is not very risky and he should be able to leave Bethesda Naval Hospital four or five days after the Jan. 5 surgery, specialists said in interviews Wednesday.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes announced Wednesday that Reagan, 75, suffered from a "mild, recurring discomfort" and will undergo surgery for an enlarged prostate.

The prostate is a male sex gland surrounding the urethra at the base of the bladder. It often becomes enlarged as men grow older and sometimes can become cancerous.

Speakes said there is no evidence the president has cancer of the prostate. However, he said, tissues would be examined after the surgery to be sure.

The risk of prostate cancer increases with age and one-third of men over age 80 can expect to have cancer surgery on the gland, said Dr. Patrick C. Walsh, director of urology at Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore.

Vietnamese leader named

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — The Communist Party today named Nguyen Van Linh, a 73-year-old economic reformer, as Vietnam's leader and moved other proponents of change into top positions.

They replace aging revolutionaries who helped found the party in 1930 and unified the country in 1975 at the end of the Vietnam war. The outgoing leaders have been criticized in the past few months for failing to revive Vietnam's economy.

The Sixth Party Congress also chose a new 13-member Politburo, the day-to-day ruling body. The Voice of Vietnam radio said six Politburo members were dropped, including Defense Minister Van Dung.

The broadcast also said the congress named 124 full members and 49 alternate members to the policymaking Central Committee.

The announcements came a day after the resignation of the country's three top leaders — party Secretary General Truong Chinh, Premier Pham Van Dong and key Politburo member Le Duc Tho.

Linh was a key party figure in South Vietnam during the Vietnam War and gained national prominence after the Communist victory in 1975 as party chief in Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon.

Interior Minister Pham Hung, a veteran who began his revolutionary career fighting the French colonialists, emerged in the congress as the second-ranking Politburo member behind Linh.

Vo Chi Con and Vo Van Kiet were also advanced in rank. Both have been associated with efforts to add free market style incentives to the economy, especially the agricultural sector.

Tax reform will have effect on agriculture, report says

COLLEGE STATION — The Tax Reform Act of 1986 or the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 has far-reaching implications for businesses, including agriculture. A major change concerns depreciable business property.

Effective Jan. 1, 1986, the new tax law repeals the 6 to 10 percent investment credit rate on many depreciable assets used in business, points out Dr. Ashley Lovell, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Unused investment tax credit from previous years can be carried over and applied 100 percent in 1986 against income tax liability. Any remaining investment tax credit carryovers are reduced by 17.5 percent after 1986 and by 35 percent after 1987.

Lovell recommends that a business have its accountant do the calculations to determine whether it is advantageous to increase income in 1986 to take advantage of 100 percent of the investment tax credit carryover available. Or it could be best on an after-tax basis to use the reduced amount of investment tax carryover in 1987 or 1988, when individual and corporate tax rates will be lower.

Another change in the tax law is that it eliminates the Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS) at the prior rate (150 percent) and replaces it with a new ACRS (200 percent of the declining balance rate). Although the new ACRS provides for a faster acceleration rate, the lives of many depreciable assets are increased, Lovell points out. For instance, the depreciable life of automobiles and light trucks is increased from three to five years and the depreciable period for most other farm property, except for breeding and dairy cattle and computers, increases from five to seven years.

What is the cost of lengthening the depreciable life of assets for tax purposes? A present value analysis (with an 8 percent discount rate) would indicate that an increase in the three-year class assets to a five-year life would cost nearly 5 percent, whereas increasing the life of five-year assets to seven years as a cost of slightly more than 3 percent.

Taxpayers may elect to use the new depreciation system for property placed in service after July 31, 1986, says Lovell. Assets that would remain three-year assets under the new ACRS may generate a greater depreciation deduction in 1986 if the new three-year ACRS is elected. This election to use the new depreciation system can be made on an asset-by-asset basis.

Under the new tax law residential rental property is to be depreciated over 27½ years, while non-residential real business property will be depreciated over 31½ years.

The 1986 tax reform also features a "last minute shopping provision." If acquisitions in the last quarter of the year exceed 40 percent of the purchases of depreciable assets, then the mid-quarter convention would apply to all personal property placed in service during the year. This means that rather than treating depreciable personal property as if it were placed in service at the middle of the year, all depreciation calculations relate to middle of the quarter in which each asset is placed in service, Lovell explains. Thus, there is a smaller total depreciation deduction in the year purchased.

Expensing the cost of depreciable business property also has changed. The new law increases the maximum amount that may be expensed each year up to $10,000 if the taxpayer has less than $200,000 of such property placed in service during the taxable year.

Lovell encourages businessmen to visit with their tax adviser as soon as possible to discuss points which might have a bearing upon both their personal and business situation.

MEESE

Investigation said Meese still gave them no hard facts that would indicate money from Iran went to Central America. One source who asked not to be identified said Meese apparently revealed the diversion scheme in November based solely on conversations he and his aides had with North and Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, then national security adviser.

Meese acknowledged to reporters he isn't sure the Contras benefited.

"I don't know because our fact-finding review stopped short of that," Meese said, adding that the question ultimately will be answered by the investigation of an independent counsel.

Since Nov. 25, Meese said he has received "more information, more details about the diversion..." He did not elaborate.

But he insisted that he has "no personal information" and has been told nothing to show "that there was anyone higher in the administration" who authorized North to act.

Earlier, Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, emerged from the hearing to say the arms destined for Iran were sold to middlemen for "at least wholesale" prices. The exact value of the weapons shipments, which were made indirectly and through middlemen, remained unclear.

In other developments: —Jailed American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus flew out of Nicaragua with Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., after the Nicaraguan National Assembly approved a pardon request by President Daniel Ortega. Hasenfus was arrested Oct. 6, after his aircraft carrying weapons was shot down over southern Nicaragua, bringing to light a shadowy Contra arms network.

—The New York Times and The Washington Post reported in today's editions that the Justice Department had asked the Swiss government to freeze nine more bank accounts. Two accounts linked to North were frozen earlier.

The Post said the additional accounts belonged to three companies and six individuals. The newspaper quoted Swiss authorities as saying two of the accounts apparently belong to Saudi Arabian arms dealer Adnan Khashoggi and Iranian exile Manucher Ghorbanifar, who have acknowledged brokering the secret

U.S. arms sales to Iran.

The Times identified another account as that of a company called Hyde Park Holdings. Corporate records in Panama show that a company named Hyde Park Holdings was chartered in March and is headed by Mohammed Said Ayas, a Saudi Arabian described by Saudi sources as the manager of business affairs for a son of King Fahd, the Times said.

—Special House and Senate committees that will investigate the Iran-Contra affair next year pledged bipartisanship and cooperation. Rep. Lee H. Hamilton, D-Ind., departing chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, was named incoming chairman of the special 15-member House committee. The Senate committee, named earlier, will be chaired by Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii.

—Nancy Reagan told The Associated Press her husband would recover from the current "valley" in his presidency if Poindexter and North would publicly reveal their roles in the secret Iran-Contra arms deals.

—The Washington Post, citing Republican sources, also reported today that White House political director Mitchell Daniels Jr. had suggested that Regan resign to give the president "a fresh start."

Ann Landers Too little too late

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print this letter so that others who find themselves in a similar situation might be better prepared to handle a sorrow that will burden our family members as long as we live.

My father passed away a few months ago. He was a fairly religious Jewish man who married a Catholic woman late in life, after Mama died. When he married this woman he stopped practicing his religion but he did not convert to Catholicism. They were married for ten years.

Unfortunately, father never told us where he wished to be buried. We just assumed that he would be next to Mama in the Jewish cemetery. We were wrong. His wife had him buried in a Catholic cemetery. We feel she showed no respect for us, his children. We tried to talk her out of it but it was impossible. Legally, we had no recourse.

We find it very difficult to visit our father's gravesite. We also find it hard to believe that this is the way he wanted it. We will still never know the answer. It is buried with him.

Too late we realized we should have had a meeting with our father and his wife and discussed the situation. We are certain he would have made it clear that he wanted to be buried in the Jewish cemetery and we would not now be so miserable. —ANGRY IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR NEW JERSEY: Another example of "too little too late." I feel sad for all concerned. I hope your letter serves as a catalyst for some discussions that will spare others from suffering the same fate.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Private businesses and government offices around the country have apparently been conned into having piped-in music for the "enjoyment" of the caller on hold.

Here's one caller who resents being forced to listen to music that is not my style. Worse yet, some phones are tapped into radio stations that can trap the holder into listening to commercials. Many times I thought someone was talking to me and I have answered, "What was that again?" I feel pretty foolish when I discover I am talking to myself.

The quality of music over the phone leaves a lot to be desired. But my real objection is that the government is spending my tax dollars on tasteless, frivolous telephone music and commercials.

I am not a chronic complainer nor a malcontent. I'm just an average citizen with a legitimate beef. If enough people feel as I do they should say so. In the face of a horrendous uproar something will have to be done to get rid of this pesty practice. Are you willing to say how YOU feel about it, Ann? —BILL H., ROCHESTER, WASH.

DEAR BILL: Yup, I'm willing to say. I don't care for the music or the commercials. I've got nothing against silence. In fact I think we could use a lot more of it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our neighbor's child is having trouble in school. He was labeled a "slow learner." I believe the problem started when he was a toddler.

The boy was left-handed and his father insisted that he be forced to switch over. Could this have interfered with his learning ability? —JOHNSTOWN, PA.

DEAR JOHN: The experts say it is not a good idea to try to make a righthander out of a southpaw. The forced switch may have interfered with the child's learning process.

Christmas gift shop held for local nursing home residents

Churches who collected new gifts, baked goods and homemade items included First Baptist, Avenue Baptist, Frio Baptist, Westway Baptist, Summerfield Baptist, Temple Baptist and Primera Iglesia Bautista.

Each resident was allowed to choose three gifts which were tagged and wrapped by W.M.U. ladies, Acteens, R.A.'s, and G.A.s. Residents were also invited to have their pictures taken and placed on holiday greeting cards to be mailed.

Entertainment was provided by Eddie and Pam Tingle, G.A.'s and Paula Eubanks. Christmas favorites were sung by the residents.

Wilma Bryan of the Amarillo Baptist W.M.U. Association served as special project director of Mission Action. The goal of the association is to have a gift shop in every nursing home in the Panhandle.

There was a total of 316 gifts wrapped and tagged for both local nursing homes; 240 bananas distributed; eight pictures taken; and four packages mailed.

Coffee lighteners can elevate blood cholesterol levels

Although powdered non-dairy coffee lighteners can boast that they contain no cholesterol, they may still help elevate blood cholesterol levels, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

"The coconut oil commonly used in these products is even more saturated than the fat in cream," says Dr. Alice Hunt. "The more saturated the fat, the more it works to raise blood cholesterol."

She says that even the small amounts used in coffee can make a difference. For example, a person who eats 2000 calories a day should be getting ten percent or less of those calories from saturated fat. That amounts to about 22 grams a day.

Four cups of coffee, each with a level tablespoon of lightener, will contain nearly eight grams of saturated fat, or more than a third of the day's allotment.

Hunt notes that powdered non-dairy coffee creamers are often used in the workplace because they require no refrigeration. As an alternative, the nutritionist suggests bringing a box of nonfat dry milk powder to lighten coffee at the office.

It contains very little fat, virtually no cholesterol, and does not require refrigeration.

At home or when eating out, low-fat evaporated milk, low-fat or skim milk are also alternatives to the non-dairy creamers.

People who don't like the taste produced with low-fat milks, can use whole milk, she remarks. It contains more fat and cholesterol than low-fat or skim milk, but is better for people on cholesterol-lowering diets than the highly saturated powdered coffee lighteners.

Hunt says liquid non-dairy creamers made from soybean oil contain less saturated fat than the powdered coffee lighteners, but they have as much total fat. They are also substantially higher in fat than whole milk.

When you shop for liquid non-dairy creamers the Extension nutritionist advises checking the ingredient label to make sure the product doesn't contain coconut oil.

She emphasizes that persons who have been told by their doctors to reduce their cholesterol intake should be particularly cautious in their selection of coffee creamers.

Spurs beat Suns, break 4-game losing streak

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs finally broke their four-game losing streak, but coach Bob Weiss didn't feel like congratulations were in order because of the overall sloppiness of the game.

The Spurs defeated the Phoenix Suns, 94-81, Wednesday night before only 4,754 fans, the smallest crowd ever to watch a home game since the NBA franchise began operations here. The victory snapped a four-game losing streak and gives the Spurs a 7-16 record while it evened the Suns at 12-12.

"Congratulating me for winning this game is like congratulating me for not getting hit by a truck," Weiss said.

The game began with a series of rim bangers, air balls, turnovers, dives for loose balls that resembled battles for football fumbles.

The score was tied 20-20 at the end of the first quarter and the Spurs took a 49-45 halftime lead in a game marked by poor shooting and turnovers.

"We needed this one," Weiss said. The Spurs had 22 turnovers and connected on only 39 of 84 shots for a 46.4 percent average, the 15th time in 23 games that the Spurs have shot below 50 percent.

But the Suns had an even worse night, they hit 34 of 80 for a 42.5 percent average and had 27 turnovers.

Jon Sundvold hit a season high 22 points to lead the Spurs and teammate Artis Gilmore had 20.

Walter Davis scored 21 for Phoenix.

Sundvold credited his teammate for his performance, which included 14 points in the fourth quarter.

"Tonight, it was really a case of the team helping me," Sundvold said. "We got a lot of fast breaks and they spotted me and got me the ball."

The third quarter was a bad one for both teams as the Spurs scored only 17 points while the Suns scored only 14.

Phoenix coach John MacLeod credited Sundvold and Gilmore for the victory.

Marino is AFC player-of-week

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Marino of the Miami Dolphins, who threw for 403 yards and five touchdowns in a 37-31 overtime upset of the Los Angeles Rams last week, has been named the AFC Offensive Player of the Week.

Kansas City's Deron Cherry, who intercepted two passes in the Chiefs' 20-17 NFL win over the Los Angeles Raiders, earned defensive honors.

Running back Roger Craig of the San Francisco 49ers and defensive end Reggie White of the Philadelphia Eagles were named the NFC's offensive and defensive players of the week.

Craig rushed for 86 yards in 16 carries and caught six passes for 89 more yards as the 49ers clinched a playoff spot with a 29-24 victory in New England.

White had four sacks and forced a fumble as the Eagles beat the Dallas Cowboys 23-21.

There was an impersonator

A school teacher that a religious leader of today had during his youth said that the teacher each morning had the students recite these words: "A lie is any communication given to another with the intent to deceive."

Last Saturday, Hereford High School football players, coaches, and their fans were deceived by somebody. That was the man who went into the Herd dressing room at halftime and also walked through the Hereford crowd saying he was Mike Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys football team.

I declare to Hereford football players and fans — that was not Mike Renfro. A spokesperson at the Dallas Cowboys security office said, "Mike Renfro was not at any high school game Saturday night. He was with the rest of the team at the Lincoln Hotel."

On nights before home games, all the Dallas Cowboys players go to the Lincoln Hotel.

That impersonator went to Texas Stadium Saturday with the intent to deceive. An impersonator is a liar through and through.

Also, the man who impersonated that Dallas Cowboys player also assassinated Mike Renfro's character, because many people from Hereford left the stadium that night with a negative impression of Mike Renfro — for they were deceived by the impostor.

I use a couple of quotations on integrity in analyzing the motives of the impersonator:

"Nothing is so fatal to integrity as pretense."

—Elbert Hubbard, The Philistine, East Aurora, N.Y., June 1903.

"Let us define integrity as self unity — that is, our whole personality system is united in its purpose and desire. A lack of integrity would, therefore, essentially involve a disunity of self, a splitting, an internal conflict between one part of our nature and another."

—Stephen R. Covey, Irish Challenge, Redhill House, Finaghy, Ireland, July 23, 1962.

The impersonator was a person on an ego trip — a man of low self-esteem thinking this was one way he could build up his ego. If he had self unity and integrity, then he would not have done what he did Saturday at Texas Stadium.

The fact that the impersonator deceived Texas Stadium security, or if Texas Stadium security played along with the impersonator, it all points up the need for better security at high school playoff games.

What if the impersonator, who was allowed to go into the Hereford dressing room, had other motives? There's a time and place for humor in our lives, but NOT in that situation! The stadium security should never have allowed that man to go into the dressing room.

Would Texas Stadium security play along with an impersonator who wanted to get into the Dallas Cowboys dressing room at halftime of a game, someone who identified himself as a famous movie star?

Also, we may never know if the impersonator relayed what he heard in the Hereford dressing room, to the McKinney High School coaching staff. We may never know if the impersonator was a graduate of McKinney High School.

On Wednesday night, Channel 10 sportscaster Kevin Long did a piece on the impostor, showing him signing autographs and posing for photographs. Long ended his piece by saying that Renfro was with the rest of the Cowboys team at the Lincoln Hotel Saturday night.

Apparently, Long knew on Saturday night that the man was an impostor, based on the fact that Channel 10 shot pictures of the impostor — and he did not tell anybody that it was an impersonator.

No Dallas Cowboys to be in Pro Bowl

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — When the all-star players for the NFC and AFC take the field in Honolulu for the Feb. 1 Pro Bowl, no Dallas Cowboy will be among them for the first time in 27 years.

The Cowboys have had as many as nine players at the bowl in one year, and since 1975 have not had fewer than three. Dallas has had at least one representative for the post-season game going back to 1960.

But the Cowboys' disastrous 1986 season that saw them lose six of their last seven games cut them out of the players' balloting. Gil Brandt, the Cowboys' player personnel director, said Wednesday.

"This is just another in the chain of disappointments," said Cowboys President Tex Schramm. "That's the price you pay when you don't win. But maybe the reason we don't have any players in the Pro Bowl is the reason we didn't win this year."

"When you get down, you get kicked," Brandt added. "It will be a challenge for us to come back."

Brandt said the no-Cowboy balloting means "we didn't play well or draft well. It's disappointing to the players and it's disappointing to myself."

Dallas had five players in the Pro Bowl last year, including tight end Doug Cosbie, wide receiver Tony Hill, cornerback Everson Walls and defensive tackle Randy White.

White had made the team nine straight years. Even during the Cowboys' winless expansion season in 1960, wide receiver Jim Doran was named to the Pro Bowl.

"I'd like for it to be different. Given the circumstances of the year, it's about what everybody expected. It gives us something else to shoot for next year," Tex Schramm said.

"In a lot of cases, the Pro Bowl reflects the record of the team," he added. "I'm sure there are a lot of people happy to see no Cowboys on the team."

Eight New York Giants players selected

NFL Pro Bowl rosters are announced

By The Associated Press

Rosters for the NFL's all-star game, the Pro Bowl, reflect the changing order in the league.

The rosters for the NFC and AFC teams which will meet in Honolulu on Feb. 1 were released Wednesday with the New York Giants, who at 13-2 share the NFL's best record with the Chicago Bears, leading the way with eight players on the NFC team. The Bears and Los Angeles Rams each have seven.

But the proud Dallas Cowboys, suffering through their first non-winning season in 21 years, had no representatives — for the first time in their 27-year history. Even defensive tackle Randy White, who had been to the Pro Bowl nine straight years, was ignored in the voting by the players and coaches who pick the Hank Luisetti of Stanford is generally credited with having introduced the one-handed jump shot to college basketball. Luisetti was the star of the 1936 Stanford team.

A 1936 bridge tournament in Madison Square Garden drew only 522 spectators. They followed the matches by watching 6-foot cards that indicated how things were going.

team.

"When you get down, you get kicked," said Gil Brandt, player personnel director of the Cowboys. "It will be a challenge for us to come back."

The AFC team has four separate clubs with five players each — the Miami Dolphins, Denver Broncos, New England Patriots and Seattle Seahawks, although the Dolphins, just 8-7, are in danger of missing the playoffs for the first time since 1980.

The Giants' contingent of eight included three starters — linebackers Lawrence Taylor and Harry Carson and tight end Mark Bavaro, although punter Sean Landeta could also be considered in that category. It is Carson's eighth Pro Bowl selection and Taylor's sixth selection in his six years in the NFL.

New York running back Joe Morris, the league's second-leading rusher, will be a backup to the man who leads him, Eric Dickerson of the Rams and to Walter Payton of the Bears, who will be appearing in his ninth Pro Bowl. Mike Haynes of the Raiders, who will be starting at cornerback for the AFC is also in his ninth Pro Bowl.

The Miami contingent includes quarterback Dan Marino, making his third Pro Bowl start in four NFL seasons, and rookie John Offerdahl, who will start at inside linebacker.

Offerdahl is one of four rookies on the two squads. The others are running back Rueben Mayes of New Orleans, a reserve for the NFC and the two kick returners — Vai Sikahema of St. Louis for the NFC and Bobbie Joe Edmonds of Seattle for the AFC.

"I really didn't expect it," Offerdahl said. "I'm as surprised as anybody. I don't know how much I deserve it, but I'm proud."

Marino's backup at quarterback is John Elway of Denver. Tommy Kramer of Minnesota is the NFC's starting quarterback with Jay Schroeder of Washington the backup.

Pittsburgh linebacker Mike Merriweather, the only Steeler selected, was named to the AFC team for the third straight year. Merriweather's selection continues the Steelers' streak of having at least one linebacker chosen for the Pro Bowl every year since 1971.

Actor plays dual role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Mulligan plays a dual role in the NBC Christmas movie "Babes in Toyland," which makes him twice as bad.

"I play Barney, who's the owner of the toy shop," said Mulligan, "and he's a mean guy. He's avaricious and unkind and dishonest. In the Toyland sequence I'm Barnaby Barnacle, who's really awful and mean and power-driven. He has brown teeth and spiked hair. I look like a dead dandelion."

Mulligan has made a career of playing characters who are off center. "I enjoy playing the nasty guy," he said. "It's fun being mean and rotten. Besides, this is a fantasy, and goodness always wins."

"Babes in Toyland," a three-hour movie to be broadcast by NBC on Friday, is from an original screenplay by Paul Zindel ("The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds") and was directed by Clive Donner ("A Christmas Carol"). Leslie Bricusse composed the original music, although two songs are taken from Victor Herbert's operetta of the same name, "Toyland" and "March of the Toys."

Drew Barrymore stars as a young girl who has an accident and hits her head in a snowstorm and wakes up in Toyland. All the people from her real life become Toyland characters.

"Barnaby wants to take over Toyland, marry Drew Barrymore's sister and manage the cookie factory," said Mulligan. Pat Morita also stars as the Toymaster who musters the kids and others to save Toyland. Eileen Brennan stars as Widow Hubbard.

"We filmed it on this wonderful Munich street at the Bavaria Film Platz," Mulligan said. "They transformed it into this wonderful street in Toyland. In Toyland, Barnaby lives in a bowling ball house. I have two henchmen, Zack and Mack. They're played by two Swiss actors, Rolf Knie and Gaston Hanie, who are members of a trio. The other member, Pippo Sossman, plays Jack-in-the-Box. They don't talk, and we worked out many pieces of silent business."

Mulligan sings a song called "Monster Piece," about what he wants to do with Toyland. He sings it to his pet, a one-eyed bird named Trollog.

Mulligan is probably best known for his role as loony Burt Campbell in "Soap." He was also memorable for his demented interpretation of Col. George A. Custer in the movie "Little Big Man." He had a short-lived series, "Reggie," in 1983 and recently appeared in the Blake Edwards movie, "A Fine Mess."

DR. GOTT

This phrase needs a cure

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Help! People have forgotten how to say "goodbye." In the mania of cordial insincerity that is sweeping the country, people have adopted the insipid phrase "Have a nice day!" in place of saying "So long," "God bless" or "See you later." Salespersons who have no interest whatsoever in your health and welfare seem eager to give the impression that they are concerned about you. It is patently obvious that, like everyone else, these people exhibit this affliction because they have no more entertaining remark to make, so they lock-step in regimented insincerity. Such slapdash familiarity is sometimes forgivable; after all, if a clerk appears insensitive, the customer will go elsewhere to shop. However, I find myself becoming increasingly vexed by this custom.

Sometime ago, when someone concluded a sentence with "Have a nice day," I thought the figure of speech so odd that I let it fall at my feet. I lay there, a curiosity, nudging it with the toe of my shoe. It didn't move, so I picked it up, turned it over and examined it. I didn't know what to do with it. It was a thing. It had materialized from nowhere and told me nothing.

Did it mean that I had been given the awesome power to make my day pleasant? Could I, by sheer will, follow the order to change my attitude and become more accepting of adversity? Was the speaker suggesting that I had control over today's weather? No, "Have a nice day" is just another insincere way of declaring "Transaction over. Go about your business." Therefore, when someone says it, I simply let it lie there and I walk away.

Nonetheless, the phrase comes up again and again. It usually appears when I am least expecting it, at the time when I am moving away from one problem in order to pay attention to more urgent matters.

For example, the thingamajig on the gas pump didn't shut off promptly as I was filling my tank and I dumped gasoline down the fender of my car. Naturally, I was charged for the waste, and as I retrieved my credit card from the attendant, he grinned and said "Have a nice day." Any darned fool could see that the day was off to a lousy start.

Another example: My checkbook doesn't balance. I think that the bank made an error. In reviewing my figures with the teller at the window, I finally understand that it is I who have made the arithmetic miscalculation. "Have a nice day," she murmurs as she passes back my checkbook. A nice day? How can I have a nice day when I've just discovered that I'm $200 poorer than I thought I was?

I believed that "Have a nice day" was a peculiar abomination endorsed only by banks and shops. I was wrong. Last week, I had a telephone chat with a specialist to whom I had referred a woman with a tumor of the reproductive tract. "It's cancer," he said. "We'll operate, but I don't think she has long to live. Thanks for the referral. Have a nice day."

Well! I certainly wasn't going to have a nice day after that news, nor was my patient, whose day — indeed, whose whole future — was about to be shattered. I hope that "Have a nice day" is not something doctors are learning to say to patients who have problems. It doesn't help the healing process and seems calculated to increase the distance between physician and patient. I can't see myself looking down at an ill person in a hospital bed and proclaiming "You've had a heart attack. Have a nice day."

The phrase has become institutionalized. Like "Thank you muchly," it's devoid of any real meaning — if it had any meaning in the first place. It is a set of words that don't say anything, a form of insincerity that we don't need to hear. I wish it would go away.

Use calcium supplements in moderation, says physician

If you take calcium supplements, don't use excessive amounts," advises Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

U.S. Department of Agriculture studies have established that many women and children are not getting enough calcium in their diets, she says. A lack of calcium has also been associated with osteoporosis, a condition that results in bone loss and the tendency to break bones, especially in women over 50.

"While medical authorities have been urging people to eat more dairy products and other calcium-containing foods, many have responded by taking calcium supplements instead," remarks Cooksey.

For those taking calcium supplements, the Extension nutritionist suggests avoiding calcium from bone meal and dolomite which might contain lead or other toxic material.

As you shop for a calcium supplement, remember that the body makes equal use of calcium carbonate, lactate, citrate, gluconate, phosphate and orotate. No one of the forms of calcium is necessarily better than the others, despite the advertising claims.

Antacids and other supplements are also adequate calcium supplements, she says. You can select the ones that are the best bargains.

When it comes to taking the supplement, Cooksey says research shows no advantage to taking calcium supplements with other minerals or taking them at night. However, if you're concerned about gastric acidity, take the supplement with meals.

Sunlight may destroy natural defense against skin cancer

Excessive exposure to sunlight can not only cause skin cancer, but it may actually decrease the body's ability to defend itself against skin cancers, according to the December issue of Texas Medicine.

Margaret L. Kripke, chairman of the Department of Immunology at M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Houston writes that animal studies indicate that normal skin has immune cells that may help eliminate cancer cells that form in the skin. These studies also have shown that these immune cells are damaged by ultraviolet light, according to Kripke.

Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer in humans, according to the article in the official journal of the Texas Medical Association. Most of the 400,000 new skin cancers diagnosed each year are thought to result from excessive exposure to ultraviolet rays in sunlight, writes the author. Kripke notes that "non-melanoma skin cancer is becoming an increasing problem, particularly in states like Texas, where there is a large, light-skinned population living in a region of high sunlight exposure." She adds that the incidence of skin cancer is on the rise because of "increased longevity increased leisure time, the current emphasis on outdoor sports, the southward shift in our population as a whole, clothing styles, and the fashionability of suntans."

There may be new ways to use the immune system to prevent or treat skin cancers in light of the relationship between skin, the immune system, and ultraviolet light, according to Kripke. These studies "also suggest that sunlight might be more damaging than we thought, due to its potential ability to affect host defense mechanisms," she adds.

SERVING BRANDIES
Aside from their well established medicinal uses, all brandies, particularly those obtained from wine, find their primary use as after-dinner drinks. Although brandy and soda is a pleasant drink after dinner or at any time when a refreshing and relaxing long drink is desired, brandies are most attractive when served alone. Since brandy was considered a sort of a wine concentrate, it has traditionally been drunk with water also, either mixed into the brandy or on the side. Brandy is also excellent in coffee. When a palate cleanser is called for around the middle of a formal dinner, a small glass of apple brandy may be served.

Voyager nears halfway

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The crew of the experimental aircraft Voyager today neared the halfway point of its historic effort to fly around the world on one tank of fuel, and ground personnel kept a close watch on its fuel consumption.

Burt Rutan, designer of the plane and brother of co-pilot Dick Rutan, said Wednesday the rest of the 25,000 mile flight would be "nip and tuck" because of the amount of fuel used to dodge major storms in the Indian Ocean.

Voyager passed over Sri Lanka at 8:30 p.m. PST Wednesday, more than 11,000 miles into the trip, and was heading toward the southern tip of India, said spokesman Larry Cansler. The craft left Edwards Air Force Base on Sunday.

Cansler said there was no longer much concern about whether Voyager would have enough fuel in its 17 tanks to complete the flight. Its front engine was stopped after running a day longer than planned to circumvent the storms.

"Voyager is running efficiently on one engine at 11,000 feet, and we expect fuel consumption to be much better on the second half of the flight," he said, adding that an instrument aboard the plane that indicates hourly fuel consumption apparently was giving a slightly high false reading.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Coffee stays fresh in the freezer

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — Where is the best place to store coffee? Room temperature, refrigerator or freezer? — ALAN

DEAR ALAN — Freezer is best, although I store small quantities (a pound or less) in the refrigerator if they will be used up fairly quickly. Roasted coffee beans go stale at room temperature very quickly.

For the freshest coffee, you should buy whole roasted coffee beans from a store that turns over a great deal of coffee quickly and, preferably, roasts its own beans as needed. Then store the whole beans in your freezer (in moisture- and vapor-proof wrapping, of course), grinding only as many as needed for each pot of coffee. (You can buy small coffee grinders in any kitchenware department for $15 to $20.)

If you don't want to grind your own coffee, I'd advise buying it from a store with a good turnover that grinds the beans just when you buy them. Again, store the ground coffee in the freezer or, for short periods, well wrapped in the refrigerator. (There is more moisture in the refrigerator than the freezer, as well as other odors that can contaminate coffee, so air-tight, moisture-tight wrapping is especially important in the refrigerator.) Then again, if you're not so particular, find a good brand of supermarket coffee you like, and sir ity store that in the freezer.

Of course, the really freshest coffee is made from beans you buy green and roast yourself, the newest fad on the gourmet coffee scene. Green coffee beans can be stored at room temperature for many, many months without deteriorating; it's only after they are roasted that they go stale quickly. However, the new home roasters on the market are rather expensive propositions. Might be next year's special Christmas present if there's a real gourmet-coffee fanatic in your family!

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a recipe for a basic sourdough starter to use when recipes simply call for prepared starter? — MARILYN

DEAR MARILYN — I have a good all-purpose starter recipe. It's not the most authentic starter in the world because my favorite recipe is a yeast-based starter, whereas real sourdough starter relies on catching wild yeasts in the air. You can buy authentic dried sourdough starter in many gourmet food markets and by mail-order from specialty food catalogs.

However, for most sourdough recipes calling for prepared starter, I've found that my yeast-based formula does an excellent job. It's very reliable, just because it does use commercial yeast to get things going, but it produces delicious, sourdough products with a lovely tangy flavor. Here's the recipe:

Mix 1 package active dry yeast, 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour, 1 tablespoon salt and 1 tablespoon sugar. Stir in 2 1/2 cups lukewarm water, blending well with a wire whisk or wooden spoon. Cover loosely with plastic wrap and let stand at room temperature for five days, stirring at least once a day. After five days, the starter may be refrigerated in a covered container for an additional one to two weeks. Be sure to open the container occasionally to allow built-up gases to escape. (The gases could cause a glass jar to explode. It's happened to me! My family still refers to it as the great dough bomb!)

Use the starter in any sourdough recipe. After using, it may be replenished if desired by adding 1/4 cup flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons sugar and 1 1/2 cups warm water. Let stand at room temperature at least two to three days before using the replenished starter. Replenished every couple of weeks and stored in the refrigerator, the starter lasts almost indefinitely.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Baking with Sourdoughs and Starters," which includes this recipe as well as bread recipes using it. The issue also offers recipes for a potato (non-yeast) starter and bread and chocolate cake recipes using it, the "Hermit" sweet yeast starter popular a few years ago and a lovely, slightly fermented recipe for buckwheat pancakes. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

Bogus abortion clinics spring up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ann Gillespie thought she was smart enough to spot a fake abortion clinic. She was 31, and through her work in the Fort Worth, Texas, media, she knew that bogus abortion clinics existed. When she found she was pregnant in July 1985, she went to the telephone yellow pages to find help. Listed under abortion information was the "Problem Pregnancy Center," and Ms. Gillespie set up an appointment to seek an abortion.

But after she filled out a questionnaire asking intensely personal questions such as her religion and the father of the child, the "counselor" began rolling a graphic anti-abortion film.

"I realized I'd been had and this must be one of the pro-life clinics," she said. "I knew about these clinics. You can be informed and still end up in one of these clinics."

Ms. Gillespie and three other women told the House Judiciary subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights Wednesday that they were pressured by anti-abortion "counselors" to not go through with the abortion.

All four women subsequently consulted licensed clinics and got the abortions they sought.

Some states are beginning to press charges against the fake clinics.

"The issue is not abortion, the issue is not right-to-life, the issue is whether these clinics have a right to lie," said Texas Assistant Attorney General Stephen Gardner, who won a jury verdict this fall against a fake clinic for violating the state's deceptive trade practices law.

Gardner said he knew of similar cases in North Dakota and Massachusetts, and expected more litigation on the basis of false advertising and deception. He said he put the bogus abortion clinics in the same category as other consumer scams.

Phantom strikes again

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill. (AP) — The Christmas-time "Phantom of Crystal Lake" has struck again, leaving five shiny gold coins in a Salvation Army collection kettle in this northern Chicago suburb.

The phantom "drifts in like the smoke and as quietly drifts away," said David Schneider, McHenry County director of volunteer services for the Salvation Army, after the coins, worth about $2,000, or $400 each at current gold prices, were left over the weekend.

"I have no desire to know his or her identity, but I think it must be a very colorful person — an incurable romantic to drop in gold," he said.

The first two years, the donated coins were South African Kruggerands. But the past three years, they have been gold Canadian Maple Leaf coins.

Big cities say demand for emergency shelter grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of poor people increased this year in two out of three major U.S. cities surveyed, and most communities reported striking increases in families with children needing emergency food and shelter, the U.S. Conference of Mayors said today.

Its survey of 25 cities found the number of homeless people needing shelter increased in all but one, and that demand for emergency food assistance increased in all but three.

"By far the most significant change in the cities' homeless population has been in the number of families with children, with four out of five of the survey cities reporting that the number of families with children seeking emergency shelter has grown," the report said.

part of a report on increased poverty and hunger in urban America being released today at a news conference by Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn and Charleston, S.C., Mayor Joseph Riley, president of the conference.

Flynn, head of the conference's task force on hunger and the homeless, and Riley were expected to point to the findings as evidence that urban poverty is a national problem and one that demands an increased national response.

The need for emergency shelter was up an average 20 percent in the cities during 1986, compared to the previous year, and nearly three-quarters of the cities said they turn away people in need because there isn't enough room in their shelters. The conference said 24 percent of the demand for emergency shelter is unmet.

Unemployment and the lack of services needed by mentally ill people also were cited. The report attempts to dispel the notion that the problems of the homeless are confined to single men. It said that, on average, 28 percent of the cities' homeless population is composed of families with children; 15 percent are single women.

Nearly one in five homeless people are employed, either in full-time or part-time jobs, and 29 percent of the homeless in those cities are chronically mentally ill, it said.

The conference did not attempt to measure the numbers of homeless people. Estimates of such people vary widely. Only Kansas City among the 25 cities included in the survey reported no change in demand for emergency shelter. Los Angeles reported the highest rate of increase, 50 percent.

The Newspaper BIBLE

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO LIVE FOREVER?

And the Father leaves all judgment of sin to His son, so that everyone will honor the Son, just as they honor the Father. But if you refuse to honor God's Son, who He sent to you, then you are certainly not honoring the Father.

I say emphatically that anyone who listens to My message and believes in God who sent Me has eternal life, and will never be damned for his sins, but has already passed out of death into life. And I solemnly declare that the time is coming, in fact, it is here, when the dead shall hear My voice—the voice of the Son of God—and those who listen shall live.

The Father has life in Himself, and has granted His Son to have life in Himself, and to judge the sins of all mankind because He is the Son of Man.

Don't be surprised! Indeed the time is coming when all the dead in their graves shall hear the voice of God's Son, and shall rise again—those who have done good, to eternal life; and those who have continued in evil, to judgment. But I pass no judgment without consulting the Father. I judge as I am told. And My judgment is absolutely fair and just, for it is according to the will of God who sent Me and is not merely My own. (John 5:22-30)

New pill produces safe abortion

BOSTON (AP) — A new medicine that allows women to have abortions simply by taking a pill could have an enormous impact on society and raises troubling questions about potential abuses, medical experts say.

A study published today shows that the drug, developed and tested in France, can safely terminate 85 percent of early pregnancies. The researchers said it "offers a reasonable alternative" to the risks of surgical abortions.

The medicine is not available in the United States. However, experts predict it will be approved next spring in France and Sweden for terminating pregnancies.

"It's a potentially enormous impact on society to have a medically induced abortion that is safe and effective," said Dr. William F. Crowley of Massachusetts General Hospital. He described the medicine as one of the few drugs or discoveries that "can change the way society operates."

Dr. Allan Rosenfield of Columbia University called the drug "potentially a very exciting breakthrough." "Throughout almost all countries, women have looked for some drug that will bring on a period when a period is late," he said. "This drug will do that. The woman doesn't need to know if she is pregnant."

Added Dr. Lynette Nieman of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development: "This is the first medical abortive agent that has become available. There are a lot of complications with surgical abortions. This is an advance for people who want to have the option of an abortion."

The drug, Mifepristone or RU 486, blocks the body's use of progesterone, a hormone essential for maintaining the lining of the uterus. Deprived of progesterone, the uterus sheds its lining, including any fertilized egg attached to it.

A report on experimental use of the drug by 100 pregnant women was published in the New England Journal of Medicine by Dr. Beatrice Couzinet and colleagues from Hopital de Bicetre in Bicetre, France.

Nieman said that as an abortion medicine, the drug has potential for abuse if women don't use it under a doctor's supervision. She said no one knows what, if any, ill effects the pills would have on a fetus if it fails to produce an abortion and the woman goes through with her pregnancy.

In the French study, the pill didn't work for 15 of the women who took it. They had surgical abortions later.

Crowley said he was troubled by the possibility that women might use it repeatedly to induce abortions rather than practicing regular birth control. "If this became a primary method of contraception for large numbers of people, it's a distressing thing," he said.

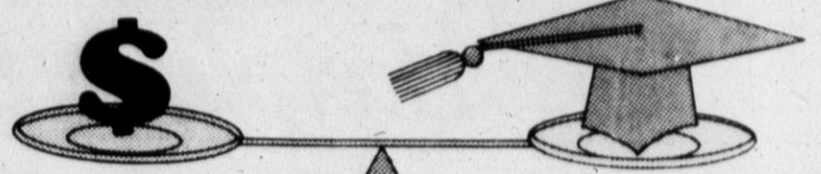

Research shows that the pill works best if it's used during the first half of the first trimester. In the French study, doctors gave it to pregnant women within 10 days of missing a menstrual period.

They cautioned that because it sometimes fails to work and occasionally causes prolonged uterine bleeding, it should be given only under close medical supervision.

"Even with these reservations, however, RU 486 offers a reasonable alternative to surgical abortion, which carries the risks of anesthesia, surgical complications, infertility and psychological sequelae (consequences)," the French team wrote.

Among the U.S. states, both annual teacher pay and per-pupil spending are highest in Alaska. However, most states rank differently in each of the categories. For example, teacher salaries are lowest in Mississippi, but Utah spends the least per pupil.

Seven people die

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — Sealed inside by a padlock they meant for security, seven people sleeping in a dilapidated wooden shed burned to death when a space heater sparked an explosion and fire, officials say.

Dorothy Anderson and her friend, Marian Green, were sleeping in the tiny two-room shed with their five children early Wednesday while the house out front was being remodeled, officials say.

After the 5 a.m. explosion, one of the mothers frantically scrambled to find the keys but was overcome by flames apparently sparked by an electric heater that set plastic and kerosene ablaze, city Fire Marshal Bill Elliott said.

"We found keys near one of the women's bodies," Elliott said. "Apparently she was trying to get to the door."

The victims were found huddled around a sofa in the 17-by-20-foot windowless shed, Fire Chief Jimmy Holmes said. The building also contained a television and a videotape recorder.

Elliott identified the victims as Ms. Anderson, 32; her daughter, Deanna, 12; and son, Willie, 10. Also killed were Ms. Green, 29; and her daughters, Connie Mae, 15, Tiakawi, 12, and Iantha, 9.

A neighbor heard an explosion about 5 a.m. and notified police, said police spokeswoman Holly Dillard. The fire was extinguished about half an hour later.

"I've been here 25 years and I don't remember this many casualties ever in a fire," Holmes said.

Holmes said Ms. Green was to move into a new apartment Wednesday, and a nearby home in the low-income neighborhood that the two families were remodeling was in good condition and habitable.

Ron Carson, who said he was Ms.

Anderson's fiance, said "we couldn't afford gas in the house. It's warmer out in the garage."

Ms. Anderson's rented home did not have utilities. The gas service was disconnected in 1982, and Ms. Anderson had not applied for service, said Ike LaRue, a spokesman for Entex Gas Company.

Holmes said investigators were told that the victims had spent the night in the garage before. Relatives said Ms. Green was staying there temporarily because Ms. Anderson wanted a companion.

A couple who lived next door, Glen and D.J. Hale, attempted unsuccessfully to rescue the victims.

"We woke up and heard screaming and pounding and then a boom," Mrs. Hale said. "It was so horrible."

Hale, who notified police about the explosion, said he tried to enter the dwelling while his wife attempted to douse the flames with a hose.

"I kicked in the door, but whatever happened to them had already happened," said Hale. "There was a flaming partition. I couldn't get in."

The deaths stunned Marshall, a closely knit community of 25,000 in East Texas.

"Everybody's kind of numb," said Jimmy Wall, principal of the middle school that two of the children attended.

The electric heater apparently ignited plastic garbage bags that Ms. Anderson had tacked to the walls and ceiling as insulation against the cold, Elliott said.

Flames then reached clothes soaked with kerosene that had been poured into a kerosene heater.

"I just heard the screaming and the beating on the wood," said Mrs. Hale. "Then a big ball of fire went by the window, and then there wasn't any more screaming."

Fidgeting important way to burn up excess calories

BOSTON (AP) — If you can't sit still through this story, it's probably a good thing. Research shows you're burning excess calories.

Finger-drumming and toe-tapping may not seem like great exercise, and "when most people think about physical activity burning calories, they think about running three or four miles a day," said Dr. Clifton Bogardus.

"In fact, there is a lot of caloric expenditure that goes along with being someone who doesn't just plop in the chair all day."

There are great differences in how much people fidget, researchers found, and the trait seems to run in families, just as obesity does.

The research found that slim women fidget more than overweight ones, but this difference between fat and lean hasn't shown up among men. The experts are still uncertain whether fat women fidget less because they are overweight, or whether they are overweight because they fidget less.

However, the finding, along with discoveries about differences in people's metabolisms, bolsters the theory that some folks are obese because their energy needs are less and not entirely because they eat a lot more.

"Gluttony and sloth have been blamed for the increasing obesity in our affluent society, and I don't think anybody can quibble with that," said Dr. Elliot Danforth of the University of Vermont.

Turkey is an ideal food because it's relatively low in cholesterol and fat. When a turkey is roasted, much of the fat drains off. Frozen, plain turkey is usually the most economical and nutritious. In contrast, frozen, self-basting turkeys contain injections of a solution of broth and butter or cooking oil. The basting oil adds calories, and the broth is often high in salt.
