Saudis reportedly played key role in arms sale to Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia, playing a key role in a shadowy arms sales network with Israel, paid for most of the American weapons shipped to Iran, according to congressional and other sources.

"They've got the money and they are very deeply into it," a well-placed congressional aide said Wednesday. The aide, speaking on condition he not be identified, estimated the Saudi financial contribution at "in the hundreds of millions of dollars."

The Saudi connection added a curious twist to a complex affair. For several years, the oil-rich kingdom had been depicted as vulnerable to any spillover from Iran's war with Iraq.

The Saudis had lined up with most of the Arab world in backing Iraq against non-Arab Iran, paying for most of Iraq's weapons.

According to the congressional source, the Saudis also provided aid to anti-communist forces in Afghanistan, Nicaragua and Angola as a way of maintaining "good relations" with the United States.

Another source who also refused to be identified estimated the Saudis contributed a minimum of $60 million to $70 million, or about 70 percent of the cost of the packages of anti-tank and anti-aircraft missiles, and other military supplies. Iran paid $10 million to $12 million.

"We did not know about the whole thing, the negotiation between Washington and Iran concerning the arms deal until it has become public," said Habib Shaheen, spokesman at the Saudi Embassy.

And the State Department said Wednesday, "We have no evidence that would suggest the Saudi government was involved in selling arms to Iran."

But other sources tell a story of strange alliances that first took form with an unpublicized understanding between the United States and Riyadh in 1981 in which the Saudis promised to help anti-communist Moslem forces in Afghanistan.

The agreement was reached while the Reagan administration was pushing a controversial Saudi purchase of modern U.S. AWACS radar planes through a skeptical Congress. It was broadened in 1984 to include Central America, where U.S.-backed Contra rebels were waging a guerrilla war against the leftist Sandinista government.

As a result, when the Reagan administration decided a year later to provide American weapons to Iran through Israel, the U.S.-Saudi connection came into play.

According to the sources, who insisted on anonymity, a Saudi businessman and arms trader, Adnan Khashoggi, lined up Israeli dealers in the fall of 1985 with Manuchur Ghorbanifar, an Iranian weapons merchant with close ties to the Khomeini government.

Acting on a U.S. request for signs of moderation in Tehran, speeches marking the anniversary of the fundamentalist revolution took on a strident anti-Soviet tone but the usual anti-American rhetoric was absent.

The National Security Council accepted this as an indication of good will, then proceeded with the first shipment of American weapons and waited expectantly for the release of Americans held captive by the Islamic Jihad, an Iranian-backed group in Lebanon. One hostage, the Rev. Benjamin Weir, was set free.

While the U.S. arms flowed from the Pentagon to the CIA and then to Israel for shipment to Iran, the Saudis made payments to banks in Switzerland.

The Pentagon was reimbursed, shipping costs were covered, the dealers reaped an undetermined profit and funds estimated by Attorney General Edwin Meese III at $10 million to $30 million were deposited in an account for the Contras. It is not clear whether they ever got the money.

Khashoggi said in a statement issued from New York, "I have no official status with the government of Saudi Arabia nor have I acted in its behalf, directly or indirectly, in any matter relating to the sale or other transfer of arms to Iran, between the governments of Saudi Arabia and Iran, nor between the government of Saudi Arabia and the opposition forces in Nicaragua."

First donations made to CSF

Hereford's Christmas Stocking Fund got underway last week as the first contributions were made to the project to aid less-fortunate families in the community during the Christmas season.

Hereford Brand readers demonstrated the caring and sharing spirit of the community last year by donating more than $8,000 to the program. The CSF committee made the Christmas period happier for 105 families last year.

Contributions can be made at The Hereford Brand office or mailed to CSF, The Brand, Box 673. Applications from needy families are being accepted at the Red Cross office, 224 S. Main St. The office will take the requests and turn them over to the non-profit CSF group for consideration.

Letters have already started coming in to describe the plight of local families. For example, a neighbor tells about one couple with four children who badly need food and clothing. The mother and father are not employed at this time and they have four children, ranging in age from 8 to 16.

The family is surviving on Social Security. The children need shoes, coats and blankets most of all, and additional food during the holiday season would make Christmas brighter for them, explains the writer.

All contributions to the fund will be used to aid the needy families. There are no expenses charged and no paid workers in the project.

At 53rd annual meeting

True re-elected as TFB president

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Plain-view farmer S.M. True says he's "suffering right along with everybody else" in agriculture.

But the five-term president of the state's largest farm organization also says actions by the Texas Farm Bureau this week leave him optimistic about the future of agriculture.

True, re-elected president of the TFB at the close of its 53rd annual convention Wednesday, called the delegates' decision to establish a political action committee a turning point for the group.

"I feel like we can use a PAC to the benefit of the Farm Bureau and the candidates who will support agriculture," True said.

"People have indicated they want us to move forward," True said.

Delegates affirmed their support for the 1985 farm bill and approved a 10-year plan of goals for the 323,799-member Texas Farm Bureau during their convention in the heart of the Texas citrus industry.

Delegates turned down a resolution calling for the governor to appoint the Texas agriculture commissioner and approved a series of resolutions that they will present to the Texas Legislature and Congress. Both convene in January.

Many of the delegates speaking for a PAC said it would give their resolutions more weight with lawmakers.

One supporter said having a PAC would make the TFB's policy manual "a fountain of legislative reform."

Paul Hopper of Howard County, in arguing for a PAC, said TFB policies would mean little without the power of a political action committee speaking for the depressed farm industry.

"Now we can be dynamic and influential," Hopper said.

Less than two dozen of the 1,150 delegates voted Wednesday against the PAC's formation.

"Let's go out with a unified front," Kay Chandler of Falls County said.

"Let's get behind it 100 percent and show the rest of the people we can get together and look after our own interests and not ask someone else to do it for us."

"Why are we going to be on the field if we're not going to play the game," said Dean Schmidt of Lavaca County.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says the pessimist may be proved right in the long run, but the optimist has a better time on the trip.

Husband to wife after a family argument: "Would you please tell me the difference between you saying, 'I told you so,' and 'I'm not going to say I told you so.'?"

Amid the celebration of a fine football season for Hereford High School and at a time when another playoff victory sent spirits soaring, a tragedy brought us back to the realization that the game is not a life-and-death situation.

The Hereford Whiteface football team didn't practice Monday. They prayed that Casey Smith would survive an auto accident and walk again.

"This is life; football doesn't mean a thing compared to life," Coach Don Cumpston said.

Casey didn't make it, but life goes on for those he loved. That thought has been well expressed by Lance Lahmert, Amarillo Globe-News writer, in a column reprinted in Wednesday's Brand, and by a letter printed in today's issue from John David Bryant. We hope you read both-We can only add an "Amen."

Marshall Day of the Seminole Sentinel passed along a letter written by a college coed to her parents back home.

"Dear Mom and Dad: 'I'm sorry to be so long in writing, but all my writing paper was lost the night the dormitory burned. I'm out of the hospital now, and the doctor says my eyesight should be back to normal sooner or later."

"The wonderful boy who rescued me from the fire, kindly offered to share his little apartment with me until the dorm is rebuilt. He comes from a good family, so you won't be surprised when I tell you we are going to be married. In fact, you always wanted a grandchild, and you'll be glad to know you will be grandparents by the end of the year."

Then she added this postscript: "Please disregard the above. There was no fire. I haven't been in the hospital. I am not expecting. I don't even have a steady boyfriend."

"But I did get a D in French and an F in chemistry, and I wanted to be sure you received this news in its proper perspective."

"Love, your daughter."

Cities affected by arms controversy

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The nation's cities will suffer from even greater federal neglect if President Reagan's Iranian arms-deal controversy becomes a long-running national crisis, Democratic Sen. Joseph Biden warned urban leaders.

"The Congress finds itself preoccupied with this crisis," Biden said Wednesday at the conclusion of the National League of Cities annual meeting.

"We don't need that. Our constituents that we represent don't need that. The issues that bring you together today will in fact be more unattended than they have been in the recent past," he said.

Biden, D-Del., and another potential 1988 presidential aspirant, former Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, turned to the president's controversy as they addressed the more than 7,000 mayors, council members and city managers.

Baker, who gained national prominence as vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, said this crisis is no Watergate because there is no evidence of a cover-up.

"I think the president recognizes there were mistakes," he said. "That's a painful thing for anyone to do, to say that I made a mistake, but that's effectively what he's said."

"I think those mistakes were made pursuant to humane considerations — I do not think they were venal mistakes of personal greed," Baker added.

Biden urged the resignation of CIA director William Casey and White House chief of staff Donald Regan. And he called for Reagan to quickly "tell us ... what happened, why it happened and all of what he knows."

The league concluded its annual Congress of Cities by elevating Denver council member Cathy Reynolds to president, following San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros.

The officials also voted for a package of resolutions and urban policy statements that listed more than $20 billion in federal domestic spending, plus many other requests for which no pricetag was affixed.

They ask for more than $3 billion over five years to increase the war on drugs, nearly $2 billion for food and shelter for the homeless, $8.5 billion for sewer and water treatment projects, and $7 billion to continue big urban aid programs for community development, mass transit, housing and other purposes.

Still more money was sought from Congress for AIDS research, youth unemployment, illiteracy, low-income housing and other programs.

Although not listed as a top urban priority, the league adopted a policy statement urging renewal of the $4 billion revenue sharing program of direct aid to cities, which expired this year.

Baker, one of the original sponsors of revenue sharing in the late 1960s, said he still backs the program.

"I'm not making any political announcements today, but ... if I were president of the United States, I would revive revenue sharing from the dead," Baker said.

Biden told reporters later, however, that cities are not going to get revenue sharing.

The city officials also approved a statement calling for welfare reform but opposing proposals to swap fuller federal funding of welfare programs for the elimination of many other domestic programs of direct aid to cities.

Biden told reporters later, however, that a proposal along those lines is "on the right track."

Soot layer warms north pole

WASHINGTON (AP) — A layer of warm soot in concentrations sometimes heavier than that found near U.S. industrial areas may be raising temperatures around the North Pole, government scientists report.

A multi-national study of the haze which forms over the arctic in winter reported Wednesday that pollution around the North Pole sometimes exceeds that in the air off the heavily industrialized East Coast.

The arctic soot absorbs newly arriving sunlight, as well as light reflected from the icecap below, acting like a blanket that can increase air temperatures, reported Dr. Russell Schnell of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"One pollution plume we encountered on a flight over the icecap off Barrow, Alaska, last March was the equivalent of five or six large power plants putting all their effluents in a single plume," Schnell said.

He said in a statement that the Alaska pollution "was about 100 miles wide and 1,000 feet deep, and when we first flew into it we thought we had flown into the plume of a volcanic eruption. We didn't believe the instruments on the aircraft."

The layer of arctic haze has been reported as much as 18,000 feet thick, and scientists have expressed concern about its warming the arctic climate, although they remain unsure of the exact effects.

The haze was first noticed in the 1950s, but scientific studies have begun to look at it closely only in recent years following reports of a reduction in the amount of pack ice in the arctic.

Direct evidence has not yet linked the melting ice to the haze, however, although scientists consider such a relationship a possibility.

In recent years the average surface temperature of the Earth has risen slightly, probably a result of the so-called greenhouse effect in which the increasingly polluted atmosphere traps more heat from the sun.

The arctic pollution probably moves north from industrial and chemical complexes in eastern Europe and Asia, said a statement issued by NOAA, the parent agency of the National Weather Service.

Generally, global air circulation patterns help carry the pollutants into the arctic during the winter, sometimes moving them over Alaska or the Gulf of Alaska where storms can wash some of the soot from the air.

Moslems seeking to free hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two American Moslems said today they have scheduled a visit to Syria as part of their crusade to win the release of U.S. and other foreigners missing in Lebanon, but have yet to arrange a hoped for meeting with any of the groups claiming to hold hostages.

Mbhammad Mehdi, secretary-general of the New York-based National Council for Islamic Affairs, and his deputy, Dale Shaheen, said they planned to travel to Damascus on Friday.

"We will meet with Vice President Abdul-Halim Khaddam and possibly President Hafez Assad. We will also see a number of Arab ambassadors and religious leaders there," Mehdi said.

The two Americans, who arrived in Beirut on Sunday, have been consulting with Lebanese government and religious leaders on ways to help free the 17 foreign hostages held in Lebanon.

Mehdi and Shaheen had said upon their arrival that they expected to get in touch with the kidnapers within a week, hoping to return home with at least one freed hostage before Christmas.

But no contact has been made with the kidnapers, both Americans said today.

Improving world economy providing modest boost for U.S. farm exports

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An improved global economy is helping restore some of the bounce lost by U.S. farm exports in recent years and may show some modest gains in the next few years, according to a senior Agriculture Department official.

Robert L. Thompson, assistant secretary for economics, said foreign economic growth has "moved into the 2.5-to-3-percent range where it is likely to remain for several years. This is about half the rate of the 1970s but well above the early 1980s."

Consequently, he said, the volume of U.S. farm exports could rise 4 percent to 5 percent a year during the late 1980s, compared to the declines of recent years.

But Thompson said in a paper to be presented today at USDA's 63rd annual outlook conference that moves in Congress to boost the incomes of farmers by using mandatory production controls to shrink supplies could mean trouble.

"The resulting price increases would reverse the progress made in the 1985 farm bill and set in motion a permanent down-sizing of our farm sector as we forfeited the export market to less efficient competitors and likely sent our livestock and poultry sectors overseas, too," he said in prepared remarks.

Under Reagan administration policies and new authority granted by Congress in the Food Security Act of 1985, the USDA has lowered the price support levels of many crops in an effort to make wheat, corn and other commodities more attractive to foreign buyers.

Critics say farmers should be given the chance to approve tough, mandatory production controls so harvest would be reduced, thereby driving up commodity prices. The administration is opposed to that concept.

Thompson said a sharp drop in the net grain imports of centrally planned countries, including the Soviet Union and China, were a major factor in the decline of world agricultural trade during the last two years.

"Although weather could cause the U.S.S.R. to import large volumes of grain in selected years, the underlying trends suggest the centrally planned countries as a group will not be a source of growth in world trade in the late 1980s," he said.

Thompson added, "The Soviet Union has greatly reduced wheat feed use and is promoting more intensive production practices. It seems likely to move toward greater self-sufficiency in wheat as have China and Eastern Europe."

Soviet production of coarse grains, including corn and barley, has expanded slightly faster than consumption, he said. But "aggressive meat production goals" suggest a modest increase in imports of coarse grains.

In China, however, rising production has turned that country into a net exporter of grain. Greater livestock production could eventually change China back to being an importer but that may be a few years away, Thompson said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Speedy:

I want to thank you for printing the article on Casey Smith in your Brand on Wednesday. I have never read a better article than that written by Lance Lahnert, Globe-News sports writer. If there are those who have not read it, I strongly urge them to do so. Everywhere I went Wednesday, people were talking about Casey, his family, and the article.

Brooke and Brack, my 8 and 9-year-old children, each cut the article out and read it aloud to their 5-year-old sister Brynne. They did not read it just once, but over and over.

All of the people of Hereford, individual prayer groups, prayer warriors, churches and other areas so wanted a miracle for Casey. Hundreds of individuals poured in and out of Northwest Texas praying for that young man and his family and we know God could have spared him for us. But, as Lance said in his article, God had other plans for Casey, and he was "honored" to be with the Lord. We are only passing through this earth for such a short time and we'll spend eternity in peace with the Lord.

Looking back at my visits to the hospital with Dorman and Eloise, part of the miracle that everyone was praying for was answered through their witness. Over and over they took their stand for the Lord and gave him praise for the strength that he was providing them and for the strength in days to come that they would need. It was as if Casey already was with the Lord and saying to them, "Mom and Dad, stand tall; I'm with my Lord and He will take care of you also."

Only a few of my friends like Rick McCracken, Herschel Black and others, plus the Lord, know what Dorman and Eloise are going through. But with their prayers and ours, they make it.

Casey touched many lives in all areas of life just by his presence and actions. You may be Bryan Wagoner in the 9th grade or Roger Ramirez in the 7th grade scoring touchdowns, or a member of the varsity squad preparing to play for the quarter-finals in state, or a member of the Lone Star Conference champion Bufaloes, but you are setting examples that many will want to follow because you are their hero. None of this really counts unless you have done it in the Lord's name.

Todd Shire not only asked for a prayer meeting of the football team on Monday, but he and Lee Young and a number of youth were on their knees Sunday night at their church praying for Casey. It is no secret why "those Whitefaces" have done so well this season. They have been led by these players and coaches who daily put the Lord first.

It is easy for us to turn to the Lord when times are tough and to forget about Him when things are smooth, but He is always there when we need Him.

The good Lord blessed me with the desire, more than ability, to be a part of the Whitefaces and Bufaloes in years past. Those are great memories, but now He is asking me to have that same desire to be a part of the team that Casey Smith now plays for.

As Lance said in his article, there will be doubt that Casey and the good Lord's presence will be very strongly felt in Buffalo Bowl Saturday afternoon.

God bless the Dorman Smiths and Brian Lady. We give the praise and glory for all things.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You undoubtedly received a great many letters for the man who was diagnosed as having terminal cancer of the liver and wanted to disappear and spare his wife and family the agony of seeing him suffer. Please print one more.

I was a wife who was left behind. Although the circumstances were somewhat different I feel qualified to speak. That man may have noble intentions but the mess he would leave behind would make life hell on earth for his family. Let me describe it.

Every phone call, every letter and every newspaper item will be viewed as a possible clue that might lead to his whereabouts.

Every morning that poor woman will say to herself, "Maybe today we will hear something." Every time she leaves her home she will search the faces of strangers in the crowd, hoping that by some miracle she will see her husband.

The lives of all members of that man's family will be in a state of uncertainty. They will meet with lawyers and judges trying to unwind miles of red tape before he can be declared legally dead.

That wife will have to look at dozens of bodies fished out of rivers or horribly mangled in car accidents, if there is even a remote chance that one of them might be her husband.

This nightmare goes on for years and years. Meanwhile her children will be asked a thousand questions about their father. How do they explain that he "just left"?

Love and laughter are wonderful healers. They bring peace and contentment to those who are fighting the worst battles. Where there is death there will be grief. But at least all the questions will have been answered and there will have been time to hug and hold each other. Children will learn how to be brave and supportive and caring. And instead of being remembered as a man who ran away, he will be revered as a hero who played the hand he was dealt with dignity and courage. I LIVED IT IN PADUCAH

DEAR FRIEND: Your letter has permitted us all to walk a few steps of the way with you. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have enjoyed your column for many years and learned from it. Recently I read a little gem that I'd like to share. No sign of origin but I hope you'll print it.

Tomorrow is a promissory note. Today is cash. Use it—A FAN IN BALTIMORE

DEAR FAN: That "little gem" appeared in my column a long time ago. It is said if you wait long enough you'll see everything again. I believe it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married eight years. I still owe 10 thank-you notes for wedding gifts. I was so busy with parties that I never got around to acknowledge those gifts.

As time passed I became more and more ashamed. My husband says, "Skip it, they probably forgot that you didn't write." Please advise—GUILTY IN N.C.

DEAR N.C.: I can tell you that no matter how lousy the memory, people always remember who didn't write a thank-you note for a wedding gift. Apologize for being derelict and get those notes out today.

Demonstration given by Jean Lyles

Jean Lyles of Texas Gallery gave a demonstration in decorative art using oil paints when members of Xi Epsilon Alpha of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met Tuesday evening in the home of Susan Shaw. Serving as co-hostess was Melinda White.

President Charla Edwards presided at the business session and announced that the Texas State Convention will be held June 19-21, 1987 in Lubbock with the theme being "Windmill Heaven."

Thank yous were extended to secret sisters by Shaw, Connie Matthews, Debe Graves and Jimmie Middleton. Also, a note was read from Billie Brown thanking the chapter for the birthday gift and dinner held in November.

Shaw, service chairman, asked for each member to bring a new or used toy to the next meeting.

Social chairman Debe Graves collected money for the couples Christmas party which will be catered by Mary Herring in her home at 7 p.m. Dec. 12. Each person is asked to bring a Christmas ornament.

The next regular meeting will be a secret sister Christmas gift exchange at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 16 in the home of Charla Edwards. Members will bring their favorite Christmas food and the recipe.

Roll call was answered by giving secret sisters ideas for the gift exchange. Those present were Mary Brinkman, Edwards, Donna Grady, Graves, Peggy Hyer, Matthews, Middleton, Shaw, White and Kay Williams.

Auxiliary members discuss plans for Christmas party

The Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 4818 met in regular session Monday night with Marie Goheen presiding. The meeting was preceded by a supper for VFW and Auxiliary members.

During the informal business session, plans were made for the Auxiliary Christmas party. The party will be held Dec. 19 at 8 p.m. The ladies will bring ladies gifts and the men will bring men's gifts. Gifts will be exchanged and refreshments will be served. There will be meetings to decorate the Post Home. All members are urged to attend.

It was decided to postpone the auction sale until Dec. 13 at 3 p.m.

Members present were Betty Boggs, Paula Breeding, Leone Buckley, Ada Hollabaugh, Ruth Morris, Erma Murphey, and Marie Gheen.

The next regular meeting will be Jan. 5, 1987 at 7:30 p.m. preceded by a supper at 6:30 p.m.

THE CHAMPAGNE PARTY

If you are planning to serve champagne at a party, do not fret about getting the proper "champagne glass." Although beautiful flutes and tulips look pretty, a goblet is fine. In fact, the worst kind of glass in which to serve champagne is the "champagne glass," a saucer on a stem. It neither holds a bouquet nor very much wine. As for how much champagne to have on hand, half a bottle per head is a minimum allowance for a party where only champagne is to be served. It is always worth getting champagne for a party in magnums which hold two bottles. There are half as many corks to pull, and the sight of a magnum is a generous and cheering one.

Herd prepares for battle against Hirschi Huskies

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
 Sports Editor

Saturday's class 4A state quarterfinal game between the Hereford Whitefaces and Wichita Falls Hirschi Huskies shapes up as a defensive battle, according to some key season defensive statistics.

Kickoff for Saturday's game is 2 p.m. at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium in Canyon.

Both teams have had good seasons defending against the passing game. The Whitefaces have intercepted 16 passes and have allowed only six touchdown passes to be scored against them.

The Hirschi defense has intercepted 24 passes and has allowed just four touchdown passes.

Both teams are led in interceptions by cornerbacks — Robby Collier of Hereford with nine interceptions, and Ronnie Herron of Hirschi with eight interceptions.

The Whiteface defense has limited its opponents to 100 or fewer yards in nine of the 12 games this season, including just six yards by Andrews in the season opener in September.

Also, the Herd defense has kept the opposing offensive units under 100 yards three times, and under 130 yards three other times.

Hereford Coach Don Cumpton said ball control on offense and intensity on defense are keys for the Herd in Saturday's game.

"The key for us is to control the ball with our offense, because Hirschi's strength is their defense. Our defense has improved tremendously over the last three weeks. If we play with great intensity on defense, we have a chance to win the ball game," Cumpton said.

"Obviously, the kicking game will be critical, as it always is at this point in the season. There will probably be a play or two involving the kicking game that will affect the outcome," Cumpton continues.

"The fact that we're playing very close to home, after traveling so far the last two weeks, should definitely be an advantage for us. I know we'll have a great crowd from Hereford for the game and that will be a big advantage for us," Cumpton said about playing just 30 miles from home.

Saturday's game will be the third straight playoff game in which the Whitefaces will be designated as the home team. The Hereford team and its fans were on the home side of the field in both Jones Stadium in Lubbock on Nov. 22, when Hereford beat Big Spring 26-17, and in Shotwell Stadium in Abilene last Saturday, when Hereford edged Cleburne 9-7.

Cumpton sees much motivation in the hearts and minds of the Herd football players: "I think our kids have a goal. Their ultimate goal is to have a chance to play for the state championship.

"This game this week is one you have to win to be able to do that. And their attitude about it is great.

"I think this game will be just like our other two playoff games. It will be a hard-fought, outstanding high school football game."

The Whitefaces have gone through the playoff games without injury problems. Nobody was injured in the Big Spring game, and about last week's game, the Herd head coach states, "We came out of the Cleburne game in pretty good shape. Marcus Brown has a sprained ankle, but by Saturday he should be close to 100 percent. Other than that, we had no injuries."

That cannot be said about the Hirschi team. The Huskies' leading running back, tailback Elbert Cooper, suffered a knee injury in the 14-7 win over Sweetwater last Saturday and will be out of the lineup this Saturday.

Cooper had 1,154 yards rushing before suffering the injury. He has scored 11 touchdowns.

Hirschi will have to rely on fullback Anthony Wilson, with 482 yards and four touchdowns, for much of its rushing attack. Second string tailback Dwayne Bowman has 114 yards rushing and one touchdown.

Herron, who also starts at wingback and is Hirschi's leading receiver, has rushed for 265 yards and four touchdowns. Herron has caught 12 passes for 220 yards and two touchdowns.

Quarterbacking the Huskies is Keith Stevenson, who has completed 40 of 99 passes for 697 yards and nine touchdowns, with six passes intercepted. He has rushed for 221 yards and seven touchdowns.

Hereford counters on offense with quarterback Todd Shire, who has completed 108 of 212 passes for 1,420 yards and 15 touchdowns, with nine passes intercepted.

Four Herd receivers have as many or more pass receptions as Hirschi's leading receiver. Bobby Baker is up to 57 catches for 753 yards, and Chris Johnson has 16 catches for 257 yards.

Marcus Brown has caught 14 passes for 179 yards, and Kyle Streun has pulled in 12 passes for 103 yards.

Hereford's three leading ball carriers have combined for nearly 2,000 yards. Mark Artho leads the team with 1,067 yards, Vincent Brown has 552 yards, and Marcus Brown has 347 yards.

On defense, three Whiteface players each had 11 tackles in the win over Cleburne — linebacker Michael Phibbs, defensive end Derrell Page, and free safety Rodney McCracken.

Players who were in double figures in tackles against Big Spring were Page with 11, and McCracken and linebacker Lee Young each with 10.

According to their statistics, the Hirschi Huskies are more of a running team. "They run a lot of misdirection offense, in the I-formation. They also run from other formations. They run the ball a lot, to try to make big plays," Coach Cumpton said.

About the Hirschi defense, Cumpton said, "The way they've been scoring is their defense. They are a good sound defensive team."

The Huskies returned two interceptions for touchdowns in their first two playoff games, and also returned a punt for a touchdown. A field goal in Hirschi's first playoff game, a 17-14 win over Fort Worth Brewer, was the result of a turnover.

"Their best defensive player is probably Joe Simpson, a 5-11, 240-pound noseguard. I think he's their leader on defense," Cumpton said.

"They're not near as big in overall team size, as Big Spring or Cleburne. Other than their noseguard, we're more equal to them in size than we've been to other teams in recent weeks," Cumpton adds.

In addition to Simpson and Herron, other leading defensive players for the Huskies are defensive end Dean Holt, linebacker Keith Scruggs, and safety Daryle Gould.

Hirschi's touchdowns in the 14-7 win over Sweetwater were a 16-yard pass interception for a touchdown by Reggie Flenoy, and a 40-yard pass caught by Holt from Stevenson. Herron set up the touchdown pass by intercepting a Sweetwater pass.

Hirschi had just 151 yards total offense and eight first downs in defeating Sweetwater, which had 259 yards offense and 11 first downs.

Here is an offensive and defensive statistical comparison between the two teams:

Team rushing: Hereford, 175.8 yards per game; Hirschi, 212.1 yards per game.

Team passing: Hereford, 126.2 yards per game; Hirschi, 59.2 yards per game.

Team total offense: Hereford, 302.0 yards per game; Hirschi, 271.3 yards per game.

Team defense against rushing: Hereford, 141.4 yards per game; Hirschi, 138.6 yards per game.

Team defense against passing: Hereford, 94.7 yards per game; Hirschi, 63.5 yards per game.

Team total defense: Hereford, 236.1 yards per game; Hirschi, 202.1 yards per game.

Hostile Herd Sideline Notes

By Shawn Cockrum

It's true coach, good things really do come to good people.

And the Hostile Herd must be one bunch of really good people.

Offensive coordinator Danny Haney said after the Hereford-Cleburne game that good things really do happen to those who work the hardest and never give up.

"Now we have got Hirschi to look forward too. They are a lot like Estacado. They have got good size, not as much as Cleburne, but they have a lot more speed," said Haney. "But they don't have as much speed as Estacado did. I think it will be a pretty close ballgame."

In Hirschi's win over Sweetwater last Saturday afternoon in Sweetwater, the Huskies could only manage a little over 150 yards of total offense.

Last week, Hirschi's first score came after a Sweetwater fumble and the game winning touchdown came through an interception.

With the recent resurgence of the Herd's defensive unit, led by linebackers Bobby Medina and Michael Phibbs, Hirschi will be lucky to match last week's yardage. Don't be surprised when Hirschi has to go to the air.

In the Sweetwater game, the Huskies only completed two passes and threw three interceptions.

Things do look good for the Herd. With a little luck, and the hard work from some good people, the 1986 Hostile Herd is "Headed for the Big House."

The Hereford High School cheerleaders will be holding a pep rally send-off Thursday at 10 a.m. at the high school field house.

The cheerleaders are urging as many people as possible to show up to support the Herd.

ooo

Chuck High, former star griddler and track man at HHS, is now an assistant football coach at Pilot Point.

After graduation from Hereford High, Chuck was an all-conference football player and track man at Tarleton State. He was named to that college's Athletic Hall of Fame in 1983.

ooo

One impressive statistic that Hirschi is bringing into Saturday's game is its 27 interceptions on the year.

The Huskies had 25 going into the Sweetwater, but added two more, one of those for the game winning touchdown.

ooo

A tip of the hat should go to Amarillo Globe-News Sports Writer Lance Lahnert.

In yesterday's Globe-News, Lahnert wrote a very moving and inspirational column about Hereford's Casey Smith.

ABC offers new comedies Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — The good news for the stars of two new situation comedies premiering this week is that they've got their own TV series. The bad news is they're on ABC.

Despite the odds of going up against "Dallas" on CBS and "Miami Vice" on NBC, Barry Bostwick and Gedde Watanabe have high hopes for their respective half-hour shows, which begin Friday.

Forget Dr. Spock. Bostwick says the way to learn how to be a father is to play one on TV, which he does in "Dads."

Watanabe, meanwhile, is the one looking to do the educating on "Gung Ho," which he hopes will bring understanding of Japanese culture to a mass audience.

The two shows will fill the time slots vacated by "Sledge Hammer!" and "Sidekicks," which ABC moved to Saturdays after canceling "Life with Lucy" and "The Ellen Burstyn Show."

ABC has trailed the two other networks in ratings all season but still hopes to recover some lost ground.

In "Gung Ho," derived from the movie of the same name directed by Ron Howard, who is executive producer of the sitcom, U.S. autoworkers suffer culture shock when a Japanese company buys their factory.

"Dads" is about two single fathers sharing a home as well as parental travails.

Bostwick, who played George Washington in a television miniseries, said he is marrying in December and thought TV work would keep him close to home for a while. He also thought it would prepare him for the future, real-life role of father.

"I'm not a father, and I've never been married and knew my life was going in that direction," Bostwick said in a telephone interview from Los Angeles. "I want to learn from it," he said of the show, which also stars Carl Weintraub. "I want to learn through the scripts and relationships in the show how to deal with kids."

"Dads" will air at 9 p.m. EST, followed by "Gung Ho."

Watanabe, who reprises his movie role as the Japanese supervisor, said in a telephone interview he was hesitant about doing the series at first, but decided it presented an opportunity for Asians.

"There's a real strong reason in that for me right now. Our mugs need to be out there. I think that's very important," he said.

Watanabe's big break came when he played the exchange student Long Duck Dong in the movie "Sixteen Candles." He was raised in Ogden, Utah. His Japanese-American parents had to live in a relocation camp in Idaho during World War II.

Watanabe said he worries the series will poke too much fun at his heritage.

"You're dealing with a culture that you have to be very careful," he said. "Sometimes I feel the jokes can be on the Japanese. Why we do what we do is, there is a tradition behind it. Sometimes I felt they should substantiate those reasons."

This holiday purchase Texas Christmas tree

Why not top off the state's Sesquicentennial with a genuine Texas-grown Christmas tree.

"Displaying a Texas Christmas tree would be an excellent way to commemorate our Sesquicentennial," says Dr. Mike Walterscheid, forester with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"In addition to being genuinely Texan, Christmas trees grown in our state offer a number of advantages," he points out. "They are fresher, more fragrant and usually less expensive than those shipped in from other states. Most are cut around Thanksgiving while those shipped in from northern states are cut in October."

Most Texas Christmas trees are grown in eastern counties, but consumers should find them in retail lots over most of the state, notes Walterscheid.

More than four million Christmas trees are sold in Texas each year, imported mainly from northern and western states, the forester points out. Nearly 500,000 Texas-grown trees should be harvested this year, representing sales of about $7 million by producers.

Texas boasts more than 3,000 acres of Christmas trees, with some 1,000 trees per acre. Most of these are Virginia pines native to the Appalachian areas of the southeastern U.S. Another species, the Afghan or Eiderica pine, is now being grown in central, eastern and southern areas of Texas. The trees are generally ready to harvest in about four years, says Walterscheid.

"Choose-and-cut" operations are popular in a number of locations, says the forester. Such operations allow the shopper to select the tree, cut it and take it home. "This restores the old-fashioned idea of making the selection of a Christmas tree an outing the entire family can enjoy," Walterscheid points out.

Most county Extension offices have listings of Christmas tree farms and "choose-and-cut" operations.

The first women's labor organization was established by maidservants in 1734, in New York City to protect abuses they suffered from their mistresses' husbands.

No cages or bars in natural 'zoo'

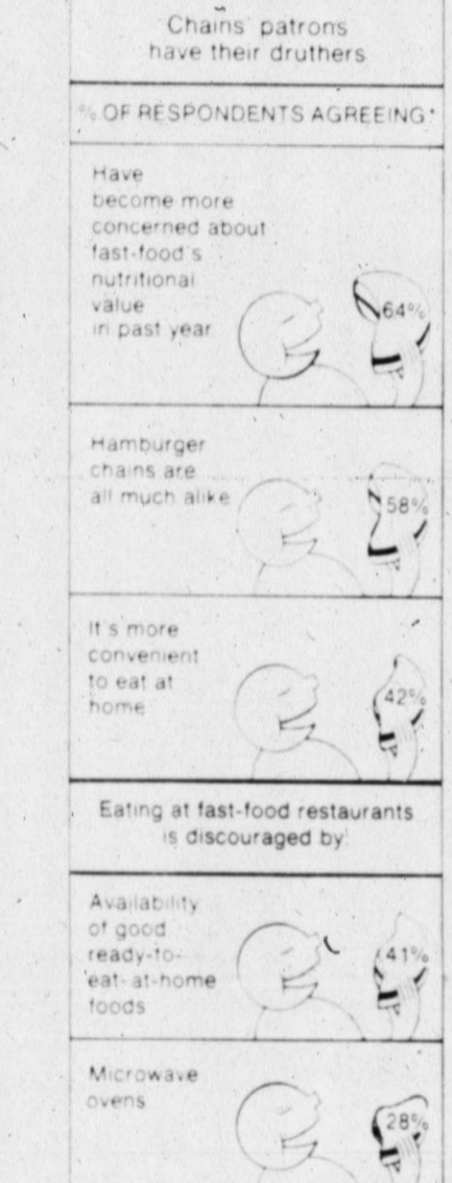

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Welcome to a Coastal Bend-style zoo. Animals are observed in their natural surroundings. No cages or bars. Mammals, reptiles and exotic birds inhabit this vast expanse of bays, marshes and islands near the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge. The 85-passenger Lucky Day enters through the intracoastal waterway, rumbling quietly across Aransas Bay.

The remaining 43 passengers cram the side of boat nearest the dolphin. The 65-foot vessel continues slowly up the intracoastal. "Snake. Water moccasin at 12 o'clock," Capt. Harry Sloat informs over Lucky Day's public address system. Again passengers shuffle with the precision of a Mardi Gras crowd. This time to the bow for a look at the large, poisonous snake slithering atop the murky-green water. A stone's throw away stand a pair of endangered whooping cranes — North America's tallest birds, members of the Canada-Texas wild flock that in 1941 numbered only 15. Camera shutters whirl above the initial burst of oohs and aaahs.

The binocular-carrying visitors revel at each sighting of wildlife because in this "zoo," which starts at the Rockport Harbor about 40 miles from Corpus Christi, animals are not confined to a small area for the viewing pleasure of people. This autumn afternoon is a lucky day, as the name of the vessel attests. David and Carol Chesser traveled hours by car from Little Rock, Ark., to see the whooping cranes for their 10th wedding anniversary. Poised with his camera and long lens, Chesser clicks away when a pair of whooping cranes spring upward to distance themselves from the boat about 50 yards near. "All right!" he rejoices, "I got them taking off." He cradles his camera with one hand, the other is held thumb up.

When I start to get tired on the long drive home, I'll remember the sun spread on their backs as they flew by," remarks the computer programmer, hoping his camera captured what he saw. Shortly after 1 p.m., when the Lucky Day launched from Rockport harbor, the sky was gray with dark clouds and fog obscured vision. The sun now shines bright and clouds are few. Acting on the advice of a physician, Lorraine and Larry Blostein of Fort Worth took the wildlife cruise. No, they are not ill. "My doctor is a big whooping crane fan," Blostein explains. Although pleased that he followed his doctor's advice, Blostein complains that he and his wife almost postponed the trip because red tide was reported about in a way which made them feel it was dangerous.

Many fast-food patrons say the fare is much the same from chain to chain; it provides dubious nutrition — and they'd prefer to eat at home.

AP All-America team is announced

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Quarterback Vinny Testaverde, the nation's most effective passer, and two defensive teammates from No. 1-ranked Miami of Florida — tackle Jerome Brown and free safety Bennie Blades, the nation's leading interceptor — were named today to the Associated Press All-America team for 1986.

Testaverde, who is expected to win the Heisman Trophy on Saturday, led Miami to the head of the college football rankings by completing 175 of 276 passes for 2,557 yards and a nation-leading 26 touchdowns in 10 games before missing the Hurricanes' final regular-season contest with bruises suffered when he fell off his motor scooter. His completion percentage was 63.4 and he led the country in passing efficiency.

Blades intercepted 10 passes in 11 games and returned them for 128 yards while the 285-pound Brown was the top lineman on a unit that finished sixth nationally in total defense.

"I had never before coached a game where we had to find out where a defensive lineman was before the snap," Pitt Coach Mike Gottfried said of Brown's dominance.

Oklahoma, the team Miami displaced as No. 1 after beating the Sooners 28-16 on Sept. 27, also put three players on the All-America team — inside linebacker Brian Bosworth, tight end Keith Jackson and offensive guard Mark Hutson, all juniors.

Bosworth is one of five repeaters and nine juniors on the first team. The other repeaters are offensive guard Jeff Bregel of Southern California, defensive backs Thomas Everett of Baylor and Mark Moore of Oklahoma State and punter Barry Helton of Colorado.

Besides Blades, Helton and the Oklahoma trio, the other juniors are wide receivers Tim Brown of Notre Dame and Cris Carter of Ohio State, defensive tackle Al Noga of Hawaii and inside linebacker Chris Spielman of Ohio State.

The rest of the elite squad consists of offensive tackles Harris Barton of North Carolina and Danny Villa of Arizona State, center Ben Tamburello and running back Brent Fullwood of Auburn, running back Paul Palmer of Temple, placekicker Jeff Jaeger of Washington, outside linebackers Cornelius Bennett of Alabama and Shane Conlan of Penn State, nose guard Danny Noonan of Nebraska and defensive back Rod Woodson of Purdue.

The AP All-America team will be featured on Bob Hope's Bagful of Christmas Cheer (Dec. 21, NBC-TV, 9-10 p.m., EST). It will be Hope's 48th annual Christmas special on radio or television.

The All-America team was selected by the AP's regional sports editors, along with the college football editor and the sports editor, from all-conference and all-sectional lists.

McWilliams of Tech says 'no announcement'

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Tech football Coach David McWilliams says there will be no announcement today concerning a possible move to the University of Texas, "because there is nothing to announce."

But when asked if that meant he would not move to Texas, McWilliams answered, "I didn't say that. I just said there's nothing to announce."

Speculation has centered on the longtime UT assistant, who became head coach at Texas Tech a year ago, since Fred Akers was fired Saturday.

McWilliams, in Pasadena to speak at a high school football banquet, confirmed he met for three hours Wednesday with Texas Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds in Dallas.

McWilliams said he would return to Lubbock today to talk with his family, Texas Tech Athletic Director T. Jones and the Red Raider team.

"I'm a loyal person," McWilliams said. "Maybe that's my problem."

"I would be disappointed in myself if I didn't have loyalty to Texas Tech ... and of course, there are all my ties to Texas. I spent 26 years there and it means a lot to me."

McWilliams moved to Texas Tech this season and led the Red Raiders to a 7-4 record and Independence Bowl bid.

"First, I want to go home and see my family — we make all decisions together, and that's the way it's going to be with this one."

"We'll make the decision, then I'll talk to Mr. Jones, and then make an announcement. Probably, it will be no later than Sunday — that's when we (Tech) start practicing for the Independence Bowl."

The Austin American-Statesman reported Wednesday that sources indicated Arizona State Coach John Cooper also was interviewed for the job.

Several other names besides McWilliams and Cooper have been mentioned as possibilities for the Longhorn job, including Larry Smith of Arizona, Fisher De Berry of Air Force, Mike Shanahan, an assistant with the Denver Broncos and Allen Lowry, a Dallas Cowboys assistant.
