Iran ready for attack on U.S. ships

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iranian combatants will soon be reinforced with 20,000 zealots prepared to carry out suicide attacks on U.S. ships in the Persian Gulf, according to an official of Iran's Revolutionary Guards.

Guards spokesman Ali Reza Afshar said on Tehran Radio on Friday that his forces have turned Iranian gulf islands into "huge battleships that can easily hunt all of the enemy's ships and naval apparatus."

Fifty battalions of the Iranian zealots, known as the "Defenders of the Persian Gulf," paraded Friday through Tehran, said Radio Tehran. The broadcast was monitored in Nicosia.

According to the radio, the parade "demonstrated Islam's power to defend the Persian Gulf ... and demonstrated (the battalions') readiness to carry out any kind of martyrdom-seeking operation."

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported that the Supreme Defense Council met in Tehran on Thursday night to discuss "the defensive plan for naval forces and the Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps in the Persian Gulf" following superpower intervention to protect Kuwaiti ships.

The council, which maps Iran's strategy in the 6½-year-old war with Iraq, made some decisions, IRNA reported, but it did not elaborate.

The news agency report also was monitored in Nicosia.

IRNA quoted Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's representative on the council, as saying: "We must be ready. The people, the armed forces and the government must all be prepared, although the possibility (of a confrontation with the United States) is small."

Tehran Radio quoted Afshar as saying during a religious service at Tehran University that 50 400-man battalions of "martyrdom-seekers" will be deployed June 28 "to defend the Persian Gulf and repulse the aggression of world arrogance," Iranian parlance for the United States.

He did not say how these forces would fight the Americans and where they would be deployed.

To date, the concern of U.S. defense officials has centered on Iran's deployment of Chinese-made Silkworm anti-ship missiles in the Strait of Hormuz, gateway to the gulf. Defense officials believe the missiles might threaten shipping and freedom of navigation in the waterway.

Gulf shipping officials also have reported that Revolutionary Guards naval units have been mining the approaches to Kuwait's al-Ahmedi oil terminal.

Afshar's warning was the latest in a daily series of threats made by Iranian leaders following U.S. and Soviet moves to help Kuwait protect its shipping from Iranian attack. Tehran charges Kuwait aids Iraq.

The United States is registering 11 of Kuwait's 21 tankers under the American flag and plans to escort them with U.S. warships when the reflagging process is completed next month.

County meeting set Mon.

Bids on two precinct pickups and cars for the sheriff's department are on the agenda for Deaf Smith County Commissioners. They meet at 10 a.m. Monday in the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

Other items include sealcoating Precinct 2 and 3 roads, paving of road a Merrick Pet Foods, approval of a subdivision plat, discussion with Bud Paetzold on the airport railroad crossing and a request for a new road, discussion of a library custodian, accepting resignation of Dianne Pearson as librarian, funding for the domestic violence center, office remodeling part time help for the Extension office, the bond fee proposal, and handling of commodities.

Purchasing agent plans also will be discussed and a gas line right of way considered.

Computers and the purchase by bid will be considered, too.

Good Ole Dad

Five-year-old Marty Wilson knew he could depend on Dad to get that prize belt buckle on. Allen Wilson took time out from judging duties at the Hereford Young Riders Rodeo on Friday night to help his son show off the buckle won in the stick horse race. All the extras that dads do throughout the year will be recognized in homes Sunday, Father's Day.

Lawmakers start again Monday to resolve budget by end of August

AUSTIN (AP) — While introducing a Mexican official to reporters last week, Gov. Bill Clements let slip an indication of the continuing frustration over Texas' long-running money troubles.

As cameras flashed and tape recorders whirred, Clements directed questioners toward Tamaulipas Gov. Americo Villarreal and warned: "Don't ask him about our budget, now."

No one did. But Villarreal was about the only visitor to Clements' office in recent weeks who hasn't been asked about the projected state government deficit, the need for higher taxes and the Legislature's failure to pass a budget during its 140-day regular session.

It was the first time since 1961 that lawmakers couldn't write a budget. In a special session that summer, they created the state sales tax.

Legislators return to Austin Monday to try again, and pressure is mounting because the state's fiscal year ends Aug. 31.

Treasurer Ann Richards says $1 billion to $1.5 billion in short-term notes must be sold to guarantee an adequate cash flow. A budget should be passed by Aug. 1 for the sale to proceed, she says.

The state's 1,100 public school districts, trying to figure out their own spending plans, are waiting on the Legislature to decide how much state money will go into public education.

Despite news at week's end of another idea for balancing the budget — diverting highway money to other uses and selling bonds for road-building — legislative leaders said a final answer to the budget dilemma hasn't been found.

"What we're looking at is proposals," House Speaker Gib Lewis said after his most recent meeting with Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who presides over the Senate.

Lewis, frequently the most optimistic-sounding of the three, nonetheless refused to say lawmakers were near agreement.

"You're always a little closer. We've been working here in the last few days trying to get what we think is a realistic budget and trying to get together some type of proposal to pay for it," he said.

Clements, insisting that a "tax-and-spend mentality" threatened to take over Texas government, vowed throughout the regular session to veto a tax increase larger than $2.9 billion, and that helped deadlock the Legislature.

He said last week that $2.9 billion still is enough in new taxes.

Hearing set on leasing Monday

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District Board of Directors have posted a public meeting for Monday at 7 p.m. in the Community Center to seek public comment on the concept of leasing hospital land for the purpose of building a physician office complex.

Board member Frank Zinser states, "The pros I see would be the increased out-patient revenue for the hospital and the better arrangement for physicians to be more accessible to their patients in the hospital. We would hope that it would be convenient for their patients. As for cons, we don't know about possible parking problems."

The possibility of attracting specialists is another pro in the consideration of the project.

"I think it will be a good idea because it will make it easier for physicians to reach the hospital for emergencies and to deliver babies," says Dr. Mary Birdsong. "It will be of value in attracting new doctors to the area because such an arrangement can attract people with specialties without forcing them to affiliate with one group."

The proposed office building would be owned and operated by the physicians or some other third party. Zinser stressed, "When we lease the land we are going to put restrictions on the lease to prohibit the use of the building for activities other than physicians' offices and the hospital district and taxpayers will be in no position whereby they will have to pick up the tab."

Dr. Tim Revell disagrees. He states, "If they lease the land to the doctors it is my belief that the hospital will be the loser in the long run and it will become a taxpayer burden."

The public is encouraged to attend the public meeting to gain insight and give input before the board makes its final decision.

Following the public hearing, the board members will enter a closed door session to discuss legal matters facing the hospital.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says the only time you can start at the top is when you're digging a hole.

People are strange creatures. A sign in a gas station along I-20 captures this thought: "You spend your health to gain your wealth. Then you spend your wealth to gain your health."

Every man is a damn fool for at least five minutes every day; wisdom consists in not exceeding the limit.—Elbert Hubbard

A thought for dads on Father's Day:

A man is young as long as he is a doer. When he is willing to sit back in the easy life of a spectator, it is a sure sign of approaching old age—regardless of the years spent on earth.

Years wrinkle the skin; but to give up activity wrinkles the soul. You are as young as your faith, confidence, enthusiasm and energy. You are as old as your doubt, fear, despair and love for the easy chair.

Roy McQueen, publisher of The Snyder Daily News, writes that he noticed where the Party-Of-The-Month Club asked for a brief word with wives about Father's Day. We don't know how Roy came to be reading about the Party Club, but he notes the June offering is "designer briefs, handsomely gift-wrapped, scented with cologne and enclosed with a personal letter on gold-embossed stationery."

The firm's Father's Day feature is a jungle brief by Pierre Cardin. Thanks, but we'd prefer golf balls.

James Roberts, writing in his personal column in The Andrews County News, recently paid tribute to a longtime resident of that community. Despite the man's persistent heart problems with a pacemaker, Roberts said the man had an infectious humor, positive attitude and humbling outlook.

One day before he died, he asked a friend for a favor, reports Roberts. "When I pass on, Jake, you reach in there and make sure they've turned off my pacemaker—I don't want to get jump-started after I'm planted!"

Suspect freed from patrol car at dance

While Hereford policemen were arresting a second subject involved in a Friday night fight at the Latin Ballroom, one of the dance hall patrons released the first subject from the patrol car.

In a separate incident at the ballroom, a woman assaulted another female. Charges are to be filed in the incident.

Hereford policemen arrested four men on various charges. An 18-year-old was arrested on warrants for speeding and no seat belt, a 41-year-old for second offense of no liability insurance and no driver's license, a 35-year-old for public intoxication and trespassing, and a 27-year-old for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Nine citations were issued and six accidents, one with minor injuries, were investigated. Firemen responded to two of the accidents and were called out to investigate high water in a basement.

Offenses reported included an attempted burglary on the 400 block of Ave. G, burglary of a business located at Kingwood and West Park, checks taken from a vehicle parked at Save 'n Gain, a purse taken from the 200 block of Northwest Drive, reckless driving on the 300 block of West Sixth, domestic fight on North Street, disorderly conduct on the 100 block of Beach, contributing to the delinquency of a minor on the 100 block of Fir and harrasing phone calls on the 100 block of Ave. E.

Theft of a watch valued at $100 was reported by a business. A suspect was apprehended and the watch was recovered. A pit building, taken earlier, was recovered.

SUMMER READING
CLUB—"ANIMAL ANTICS"

Over 750 children are involved in the Deaf Smith County Library's Summer Reading Club, "ANIMAL ANTICS." To date, we have celebrated "Donald Duck's" birthday and created "Wild Kingdom" animals.

This Tuesday, June 23, we will be having two exciting programs. Children preschool ages through the 1st grade will be preparing paper "animal lions"; children 2nd grade and above will be preparing animal antics keychains.

If you are not taking advantage of the library's summer reading club, make a visit to your local library and sign up. The program will continue until July 18th. If you need any additional information, please call the library at 364-1206.

BOOKS

Two bestsellers will be available for check-out this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. They are SPHERE by Michael Crichton and MISERY by Stephen King. SPHERE is Michael Crichton at the top of his form. It is the most exciting, most suspenseful, and most ingenious novel since THE ANDROMEDA STRAIN.

In the middle of the South Pacific, a thousand feet below the surface of the water, a huge spaceship is discovered resting on the ocean floor. A group of American scientists are rushed to the scene to investigate this astonishing discovery.

What they find defies their imaginations and mocks their attempts at logical explanation. It is a spaceship of phenomenal dimensions, apparently undamaged by its fall from the sky. Where has the ship come from?

SPHERE is the exciting story of an extraordinary, terrifying power that threatens not only the undersea habitat, but the lives of the scientists as well! Michael Crichton is also the author of CONGO.

Also available this week is MISERY by the most popular novelist in the history of American horror fiction, Stephen King. Paul Sheldon, author of the bestselling historical romances, wakes up one winter day in a strange place in Colorado. He wakes up to unspeakable pain and to a bizarre greeting from the woman who has saved his life, "I'm your number one fan!"

Annie Wilkes is a huge ex-nurse, handy with controlled substances and other instruments of abuse, including an axe and a blowtorch. Annie Wilkes is Stephen King's most terrifying creation. Paul Sheldon becomes an entertainer held captive by his audience. MISERY is a nightmare only Stephen King could create, and one only King could render in such gruesome detail.

LIBRARY EVENTS:

Library Fun Continues

"Animal Antics," theme of this summer's reading program, continues at the Deaf Smith County Library as several children of all ages created cardboard animals during this week's special summer event.

Condom inspections lead to recalls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Manufacturers are recalling 100,000 condoms as a result of increased federal inspection since the devices have been promoted as a way to prevent AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases, says the Food and Drug Administration.

The agency announced Friday that three American condom makers have issued recalls of several lots of their contraceptive, anti-disease rubber products because they failed to meet industry quality standards.

Because of recently increased testing, most of the suspected lots that failed leak tests were intercepted before they reached the market, said FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young.

The recalls result from increased inspection and testing of condoms since the agency urged manufacturers to beef up quality control on April 7, Young said.

At that time, the FDA asked condom producers to inform consumers that the devices offer protection against sexually transmitted diseases, including acquired immune deficiency syndrome, and to improve instructions on their use.

Bill Grigg, an FDA spokesman, said about 100,000 condoms are involved in the domestic recall and that most of them have been recovered in transit or at distributors before they reached the public.

In addition, the agency has detained 19 shipments of foreign-made condoms at the border since April because they failed inspections, he said. Fifteen of these shipments came from Korea and 4 from Malaysia.

The FDA spot-tests condoms by putting 10 ounces of water into samples and checking for leaks. The standard says no more than 4 out of 1,000 in a lot can leak to pass inspection, Grigg said.

On June 8, the FDA informed Schmid Laboratories of Little Falls, N.J., that a lot of its Sheik Fetherlite lubricated condoms with reservoir tips had to be recalled.

The company said this lot, No. 040687, was shipped to 22 accounts around the country.

The Circle Rubber Corp., of Newark, N.J., was informed by the FDA on June 11 that a lot of its condoms distributed under two labels also had to be recalled.

These condoms still are under recall and it is not known if any have reached the public, Grigg said. The devices were sent to North Carolina to Adam & Eve Distributors, Carrboro, N.C., and the Johnston County Health Department. Some also went to L'Appel Inc., of Northbrook, Ill., a vending machine operator.

The Circle products are Saxon brand lubricated ultrathin condoms and the L'Appel brand, a private label with instructions in English and Spanish. Condoms from this lot bear the code No. 7485 on the outer package and No. 487 on cellophane envelopes inside containing individual samples.

National Sanitary Labs., of Lincolnwood, Ill., also recalled several shipments following FDA notifications on May 8 and June 11. Most of these condoms, which the company estimated did not reach the market, went to a wholesaler in California, but some reached distributors in Indiana and Michigan.

The recalled lots from National Sanitary included the Protex Contracept Plus brand, lot No. 1661966-S with expiration date 4-14-92 on the package. Also recalled were Protex Arouse brand Coral Tint ribbed and lubricated condoms, in boxes of 12, bearing the code MFG 4-28-87.

In addition, the company withdrew Protex Sunrise condoms labeled Blue Erotic, Emerald Haze and Golden Touch in boxes of 3 coded MFG 4-28-87, and boxes of 12 coded MFG 5-9-87.

THE CRAVING FOR SWEETS

NEW YORK (AP) — Sweet foods can have powerful psychological overtones that are closely connected to feeling happy, secure and loved, says Dr. Johanna Dwyer, director of Boston's Frances Stern Nutrition Center.

It also is true, she explains in Family Circle magazine, that adults who grew up in homes where sweets were dangled as rewards (no ice cream until you eat your vegetables) may revert to their childhood when they are feeling upset or deprived.

CRIMESTOPPERS

On June 15, 1987, a burglary occurred during the daytime at a residence in the 700 block of Stanton. Taken in the burglary were the following items:

- Emerson VCR, grey
- Seiko silver and gold men's watch
- 2 gold diamond men's rings
- 8" gold bracelet
- Spiegel ladies watch with red band

Anyone giving information leading to the arrest and indictment of persons responsible for the Crime of the Week will receive a $500.00 reward. Anyone having information may contact the Deaf Smith County Crime Stoppers at 364-2693 or 364-CLUE.

Any information regarding a crime may be given on the Clue Line. Anyone giving information leading to an arrest and indictment in a felony case may be eligible for a reward up to $500. The caller may remain anonymous.

presented by Tom and Argen Draper.

Commander Miles Caudle conducted the ceremony, opening with Bill Shelly posting the colors. Veterans serving in the 8th Air Force in Europe during World War II were recognized as special guests.

Tom Draper gave dedication remarks about the picture. He noted that he was stationed two-and-a-half years at the B-17 Air Base in Diss, England.

The 456 Sub Depot attached to the 100th Bomb Group was recognized as performing 306 air raids over Germany. The picture illustrated such a B-17 Flying Fortress which completed bombing missions over Germany. The picture came from Pearson Molding and Supply located in Erie, Pa. It was first a photograph, then reproduced as a painting, then re-created into the photo dedicated by the Drapers.

Following the dedication ceremony, veterans in attendance shared unforgettable war experiences, both traumatic and entertaining.

Veterans serving in the 8th Air Force present for the dedication ceremony included Caudle, Draper, Lewis Larrimore, Guy Weddel, and Ken Jeter. Those who were not in attendance are asked to call Caudle at 276-5322.

It was announced by Caudle that video documentaries of other branches of the service will be shown at a later date.

Refreshments were served to the 40 persons in attendance by Legion Auxiliary President Beverly Jesko.

World War II Memories

Tom and Argen Draper proudly presented a picture to the American Legion recently depicting a circa WWII B-17 Flying Fortress. A dedication ceremony was held and local veterans of the 8th Air Force in Europe were honored at that time.

WDIC's goal

How would you rate the work of the Waste Deposit Impact Committee in Deaf Smith County? First, let's look at the stated function of the committee. At a formative session, chairman Troy Don Moore issued this statement: "The simple truth is that this committee is a cross-section of local entities operating under the assumption that DOE will go forward with its activities of site characterization; therefore, this committee is charged with identifying, evaluating, and seeking compensation for any costs imposed on the community because of the DOE study." He added that WDIC is "limiting its efforts to the site characterization phase and is not addressing the issue of whether or not a repository should be placed in this county."

Some citizens are critical of the committee for not doing enough to stop the site characterization. Others are unhappy because they perceive the committee to be expressing the will of the POWER and Nuclear Waste Task Force groups. Some believe the WDIC is on track with its stated goals.

We are inclined to agree with the latter position. Although the committee may appear to challenge the entire repository issue at times, its actions have all been directed at protecting taxpayers from any negative impacts caused by site characterization.

To the layman, it is difficult to understand what difference it will make if DOE moves in 50 people a month or if the number is "moderated" as requested by WDIC. It is also difficult to see much of an impact from nine families buying homes here and four clerks being lured away from courthouse jobs.

But Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner, WDIC director, points out that the WDIC doesn't want to risk "losing leverage down the road." He is very concerned about gathering baseline data on the socioeconomic factors in order to determine future impacts. Since he has dealt with government agencies, who's to say he's not right on target?

Some individual members of the WDIC may forget, from time to time, the extent of their responsibilities but it does not alter the fact that the group is staying to the main course of making sure that no burdens are imposed on local taxpayers during site characterization.

Citizen input has been invited and urged by the WDIC director and by committee members. The opportunity for hands-on involvement has been offered through the Site Characterization Issues Council. Response has not been overwhelming. In fact, only a small percentage of citizens have expressed their opinion and even fewer have offered alternative actions.

The lack of criticism or controversy leaves us to conclude that the WDIC must be doing something right.

Lewis holds key

House Speaker Gib Lewis, perhaps more than anyone else, holds the key to success in the forthcoming special session of the Legislature, which convenes on June 22.

Traditionally, measures favored by the House speaker ... enjoy far more chance of success than measures not so favored.

So when Lewis says he now looks with favor upon an expanded sales tax and a state lottery as the least-objectionable ways to raise revenue and balance the budget, the signal is clear: Those measures have an excellent chance of being approved by the House during the special session.

... Because some form of reasonable budgetary agreement in the forthcoming session is absolutely necessary, Lewis' endorsement of the most realistic methods of achieving one is indeed encouraging.

Gonzalez, in using the Constitution's protective umbrella to conduct his petty vendetta on the floor of Congress with the TV cameras grinding away, is doing far more than any Republican could do to embarrass himself ...

Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek has wound up his hospital stay but produced the following before he got out.

Dear editor: When you're in the hospital and think you've got what you came for—a degree of health you've reached faster than the doctors think you do—and you have some spare time to kill, you read anything you can get your hands on.

I came to attention when I read an item in Time on the latest disposable fad.

Now I knew there were such things as disposable razors and, later, disposable cameras. And of course I knew that in Hollywood where an actor can get paid $10 million for appearing in one movie, he can get an unstable notion of the worth of things and it's easy to see why he might consider his current wife who got the $10 million movie, how the husband could be considered disposable.

And of course everybody has encountered a car he might have concluded was disposable. Moreover, there has been a war or two this country would have been better off if it had been disposable.

Anyway, according to Time, they're now making disposable telephones.

Now, I thought, there's an idea. If you get tied up in a long telephone conversation and aren't the kind to just hang up, something you shouldn't do to the First Lady if you want to keep your job at the White House, you can just exclaim, "Oh, I'm sorry, I've got one of these new fangled disposable phones and its time just expired."

Actually you don't throw the phone away. Hospitals needed a cheap phone because patients, I guess confusing them with towels in a hotel, were taking the phones home with them. Regular phones were costing the hospitals about $75 apiece, the disposal ones only about $15. This doesn't decrease stealing but it does reduce the cost.

Yours faithfully,
MRST THORN J.A.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor: I recently purchased a mobile home. After I purchased this home, I discovered a new city ordinance would prevent me from parking on the lot I had chosen. I was forced to park it in a mobile home park.

I feel this is unfair and unjust. Many people like myself can only afford a mobile home, and there aren't many places left to park one. There are a lot of abandoned mobile homes in Hereford and they are an eyesore, but there are a lot of empty houses that are falling down from lack of care. There are a lot of occupied houses that are an eyesore to the city.

Many landowners have not rented their vacant lots because they wanted to choose a mobile home owner that would care for their property. This was the reason Mrs. Williams did not rent her lot. (Brand article, June 16, 1987). Now she can't rent the lot and it has been used for several years as parking place for a mobile home.

Her neighbors have no objections to having our mobile home on the lot, so I don't really see any problem. I can understand a zoning law that prevents new plumbing but not one that forbids the use of a piece of property that has been used for a mobile home for years.

More and more of our rights in our free country are being taken from us and I protest loudly.

Troy Jobe

Dear editor: This past weekend I had the pleasure of playing in the golf tournament at John Pitman. While I didn't play very well, it was certainly not the fault of the golf course.

It was in absolutely beautiful shape and the credit obviously goes to the people who take care of the course. I would like to say thanks to Mike Horton, David Kreig and everyone else associated with running our golf course.

For those of you who play and don't appreciate what we have here, I suggest you visit some of the other courses around and see for yourself just how fortunate we are.

Sincerely,
Tom Simons

The Penultimate Word

Of all the friends I have, Tom Ward has the most unusual occupation. Tom designs caskets. In his spare time he is an artist, a cartoonist, a humorist, and a motivational speaker, but when he works he designs caskets. I don't know why but that seems strange to me. I somehow can't get a handle on his job.

Before I met Tom it had never dawned on me that anyone designed caskets. What is there to design? I have not examined one up close and personal but they all seem to be about alike.

The funeral directors usually point out the type of wood or metal used to make the thing, but I never remember one of them saying anything about the design. "The handles on this model are made to look like lightning bolts." "The top is streamlined to reduce wind drag;" or "This model has a hidden lining of asbestos just in case." Maybe another model has hidden compartments for those who want to take it with them when they go.

Since I met Tom I have started noticing caskets. I speak for a lot of funeral homes around the country, and try to notice how the styles differ in various areas. I saw one model with a denim lining. It must be for those who want to be in blue jeans for eternity. The strange thing about this model is I did not see it in Texas where one would expect it to be. I saw it in Canada.

I found a lightweight model in New England. It is designed for families who traditionally carry the casket in on their shoulders. I did not ask if it was called a Batesville Lite.

When Tom is not designing caskets he is blowing people away as a speaker. He blew my mind in Missouri. As he was talking he said, "You know one of the nicest things anyone could say to us is, 'don't worry about it, I will take care of the details'. If you think about it, if someone really means it, there is not a better thing to say or hear."

While Tom was talking, he began to take off his coat, shirt and tie. He was wearing a T-shirt that said "Don't worry about it; I will take care of the details." Then it said, "John 3:16". This is the first time I ever knew what John 3:16 really said. And I heard it from a casket designer.

Warm Fuzzies

Spending God's money

"We need not do great things. It is how much love we put in the doing that makes our offering something beautiful for God." — Mother Teresa, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize and minister to the world's oppressed.

By JOE MURRAY
The Lufkin Daily News

The mission that Mother Teresa is opening in Dallas won't have carpet or air conditioning. She urges that the staff of nuns have a more simple lifestyle to identify with the poor people whom they serve.

Tammy Faye and Jim Bakker no doubt would disagree, having spent some $4,000 of PTL funds for an air-conditioned doghouse. (You may or may not find fault with that kind of extravagance, but the dog evidently did. The Bakkers were of the opinion that he refused to sleep there because the hum of the air conditioners kept him awake. More likely, it was his conscience, something that probably wouldn't have occurred to them.)

But I don't suppose it's reasonable to suggest, or hope, that Mother Teresa's example of practicing what you preach should become the standard of conduct for our various clergy — those who not only do good but do well.

Perhaps it's not such a problem in the small, community churches. But money is a temptation. A big bunch of money is a big bunch of temptation.

Moreover, those good Christians who give their money with the intention of helping the needy aren't always getting their money's worth.

I recently received a letter from a professor in a theological seminary who provided an insight into how funds are used in some of the large religious organizations. I'll not mention his name or the seminary. But I was most impressed by his objectivity, in that he was evaluating his own particular denomination.

To keep it in round figures, let's say the church has budgeted $100,000 under the heading of good works — missions, ministries and benevolence of all kinds, including housing for the elderly.

How much of that amount would you expect to go to administrative costs? I don't mean salaries and benefits for local staff, but those in the hierarchy? Maybe 50 percent doesn't surprise you, but it did me. Included are pensions, supplementary salary, insurance and hospitalization, $30,000, and other general administration funds, $20,000.

Further, when you add up all other mandated commitments, the total grows to $87,000, most all of which is going somewhere else other than where you live. (It was noted in the theologian's letter that payment or non-payment to these funds is often viewed as a reflection on the pastor by his peers and his highers-up.)

Let me stress that many of those commitments are obviously worthwhile projects — housing for the elderly, for instance. But of the $100,000, that worthwhile project would receive less than $800.

As for local and other charities, about one-eighth of the original budget, $13,000, is left over for good works at home.

I won't say there's anything particularly wrong with splitting up the money that way. It all depends on where you want to place the emphasis.

But it's important that you know where your money is going, and if it's going to be used in a way that agrees with your concept of Christian charity — whether to expand your own church facilities, to provide food, clothing and shelter for the needy, to spread the gospel at home and abroad or, indeed, for pensions, insurance and administration.

These scandals may well serve a good purpose in making all of us, congregation and clergy alike, more sensitive and more concerned about spending God's money in a way to achieve the greatest blessing for the greatest number.

In doing so, that's not to ignore consideration for the preachers. But neither should they fail to give consideration to the lilies of the field.

LITTLE JOYS — THROUGH SIMPLE ACTS OF SERVICE

"He who is too busy to enter into the little joys of others gives the world no great joys."

—Henry F. Cope, Chicago Tribune, April 18, 1960.

TODAY'S INSIGHT: He who is unwilling to do little things for others to bless their lives, will not experience great joy in his own life. Simple acts of service day by day will multiply the happiness of he who gives unselfishly and also the happiness of he who receives the gifts of service with gratitude.

There is no true happiness in a life lived solely for oneself, because one cannot do that which results in little joys for others if he only thinks of himself.

Christ often said, "O ye of little faith." It takes great faith to do the little things that matter most in life. Many people try to do big things with little faith, and the result is often either nothing done, or something done only to be "seen of men."

JOAN KALKA, WILLIAM PAUL GUYER

Kalka, Guyer to wed

Joan Bernadette Kalka of Hereford will become the bride of William Paul Guyer of Amarillo on August 15 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Hereford.

Parents of the bride-elect are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Kalka Sr., of Hereford. The prospective bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William H. Guyer of Amarillo.

The bride-elect, a 1982 Hereford High School graduate, attended Texas Tech University. In 1987 she received her bachelor of science degree in nursing from West Texas State University and is presently employed at High Plains Baptist Hospital in the Resource Department.

A 1977 graduate of Amarillo High School, Guyer attended Western Oklahoma State College and graduated from WTSU with a bachelor of business administration degree, majoring in accounting. He is presently employed at Cleaver, Hogue, and Co. of Amarillo as an accountant.

Turrubiates graduates

Sea Airman Rodney Turrubiates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Moreno of 211 Blevins, recently graduated from the Broadened Opportunity for Officer Selection and Training (BOOST) program in San Diego, Calif.

Turrubiates will attend the University of Oklahoma beginning this fall. A 1985 graduate of Hereford High School, he has been enrolled in the Navy since June, 1986.

After completing the BOOST academic program, students selected for officer programs such as the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC), the Marine Corps Enlisted Commissioning Education Program (MECEP), and the United States Naval Academy, leave Service School Command, San Diego, to attend colleges and universities throughout the country.

Sixty-five universities host NROTC and MECEP units. Students are enrolled in a college program leading to a baccalaureate degree and a commission as an officer in the United States Navy or the United States Marine Corps.

MILDEW PREVENTION

Warm temperatures and increasing humidity not only signify the arrival of summer, they also supply ideal conditions for the growth of a mold called mildew.

Mildew is a mold which decomposes organic matter and uses it to reproduce and grow. It thrives on such things as paper, unprotected fabrics, wood, leather, paint and glue. It is unsightly, smelly, and can cause an allergic reaction.

Seedlike forms of mildew are everywhere, but will not thrive unless the conditions are right. Any organically covered surface can support mildew if the relative humidity is in the range of 70 to 93 percent, the temperature is between 77 and 86, and there is a supply of oxygen. It does not require light to grow and slightly acidic conditions will enhance the mildew's growth.

Mildew can be recognized by its musty odor and the discoloration it causes on the matter it is decomposing. It often looks like dirt. A drop of chlorine bleach on a questionable spot is a good indicator. Mildew will be bleached within a few seconds, and most dirt won't bleach.

Cleanliness is important in mildew prevention. If there is no dirt for the mildew to feed on, it will not prosper. Air conditioning may also thwart the growth of mildew by keeping the air temperature too cool. Humidity may be the most difficult thing to control, and it is a leading factor in mold growth.

Common sense in cooking and bathing, proper use of air conditioners and dehumidifiers, and ventilation should help keep humidity down. There are fungicidal products on the market which provide some mildew protection, but keeping the home clean and dry is the best prevention.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion handicap or national origin.

Sidekicks franchise prospers in Dallas

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A year ago the Dallas Sidekicks were losing millions of dollars and on the verge of closing their doors.

Today, led by a Brazilian whose stage name roughly translates to "The Fantastic Armadillo," they have captured the imagination of a town deflated by the failure of its professional basketball club.

In the recent championship series, their fast-paced game in Reunion Arena had a more positive result than the Dallas Mavericks-Seattle SuperSonics clash there a month ago.

When the Mavericks folded, the Sidekicks prospered.

The 'Kicks beat out Baltimore and Cleveland in the MISL playoffs and surprised themselves and their fans by being crowned Eastern Conference champions.

Suddenly, crowds of 16,000 jammed Reunion to see Tatu perform his magic act of scoring goals while three guys tried to chop his legs off.

When Tatu scored the hat trick, three goals, in a 6-5 victory to even the championship series against the Tacoma Stars, it was something like Mark Aguirre hitting a mid-court shot to beat the Los Angeles Lakers.

Trying to retrieve one of Tatu's shirts became a death-defying feat. He traditionally throws his No. 9 shirt into the crowd after every goal in the ultimate showmanship celebration.

Why didn't Babe Ruth think of that after he hit a homer? Or Roger Staubach after a touchdown pass? Or Aguirre after a 30-point night?

As irony would have it, the former owner of the Sidekicks is Donald Carter, the owner of the Mavericks.

In fact, his wife Linda, a soccer fanatic, gave the Sidekicks their nickname.

Carter founded the franchise in the spring of 1984 but lost $5 million in two years and sold out to a 40-member group headed by President Jim Graham.

The Carters were in the 'Kicks owner's box last Saturday night. They have time on their hands now that a new coach, John MacLeod, has been hired to replace Dick Motta, who resigned for a still undisclosed reason.

"I'm happy to see the Sidekicks catching on with the fans," Carter said. "This franchise has always had potential and now maybe it is ready to take off. I'm happy for them. I'm not here looking over the shoulders of the new owners."

The Sidekicks have trimmed another potentially huge loss into a deficit of about $300,000 with their amazing late charge in the playoffs. Tatu has been worth every penny of his $100,000-a-year salary.

The 'Kicks' front office headed by Kent Russell had mapped strategy for a big promotional drive at the end of the season.

"We never dreamed this would happen," he said. "Now we really have something to promote for next year."

The scrappy Sidekicks have weathered their season of survival. They got three big playoff crowds that pumped an estimated $250,000 cash flow into the franchise.

And they have a foundation of adoring fans.

The Sidekicks have a heavy metal approach to firing up their crowds. There is loud rock music. When the team is introduced, the players charge through a cloud of smoke and flashing lights into a darkened arena under a big spotlight.

Even some of the Dallas press corps were enchanted by the Sidekicks. There were three broadcast personalities in the owner's booth on Sunday night, and one gave an owner a high-five when Tatu scored.

Perhaps the Sidekicks can have that kind of effect after the giant fizzle created by the Mavericks.

It only mattered that the Sidekicks got into the MISL championship series.

Whether they ultimately triumphed over Tacoma made little difference in the way they were perceived by their new fans.

Dallas has found a winner even if its main hero is from Brazil.

YMCA softball tourney title game set Sunday

Church softball league being organized

The Hereford Church Co-ed Softball League is being organized and will start its season on Monday, July 6.

Any church co-ed softball team interested in playing in the league is asked to sign up by Thursday, July 2.

To register for the league, contact Billy Joe Wall at 364-0635 or Ted Goldsmith at 364-1277.

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA men's class "D" softball tournament began on Saturday with seven round-robin game and will conclude Sunday.

There will be three round-robin games on Sunday — Blue Jays versus Hereford Merchants at 1 p.m., Bacwapt Wolverines versus Hereford Merchants at 2:10 p.m., and Kenneth Cheek Paint versus Excel at 3:20 p.m.

The four teams with the best records in round-robin play will qualify for the semifinal matches, scheduled for 4:30 p.m. and 5:40 p.m. on Sunday.

The tournament championship game is set for 6:50 p.m.

Girls' Major League Champions

Signup deadline nears for tennis tourney

The 1987 Hereford Tennis Tournament is scheduled from Thursday, June 25 through Sunday, June 28 at the Hereford High School tennis courts.

There will be 12 adult divisions in the tournament, and 17 junior divisions.

Junior division competition begins on Thursday, June 25, at 8 a.m., and adult division competition starts on Saturday, June 27, at 8 a.m.

Tournament director Ruben Vargas said no entries will be accepted without entry fees. The entry fees are $7 for each singles event and $13 for each doubles event.

The entry limit for each individual will be three events in two age groups. To enter the tournament, send name, events entered, and entry fees to: Ruben Vargas, 910 E. Third St., Hereford, TX 79045.

The tournament is sponsored by the sports committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. James Self is chairman of that committee.

Here are the divisions in the adult competition: men's "A" singles; men's "A" doubles; men's "B" singles; men's "B" doubles; men's 35 singles; men's 35 doubles; women's "A" singles; women's "A" doubles; women's "B" singles; women's "B" doubles; "A" mixed doubles; and "B" mixed doubles.

Here are the divisions in the junior competition: 18 boys' singles; 18 boys' doubles; 18 girls' singles; 18 girls' doubles; 16 boys' singles; 16 boys' doubles; 16 girls' singles; 16 girls' doubles; 14 and under boys' singles; 14 and under boys' doubles; 14 and under girls' singles; 14 and under girls' doubles; 12 and under boys' singles; 12 and under boys' doubles; 12 and under girls' singles; 12 and under girls' doubles; and mixed doubles.

The junior mixed doubles division is open to all ages 18 and under.

Matches in the tournament will be two or three sets with a 12-point tiebreaker at six all. The no-add scoring system will be used.

The National Football League set a record for attendance in 1986 with 17,304,463 tickets sold. That included pre-season, regular-season and post-season games.

The first PGA Tournament winner was Jim Barnes in 1916. He won again in 1919, the next time it was played.

Texas-Oklahoma event is challenging to win

Pros usually visit junior golf tourney

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Hogan, Nelson, Palmer, Trevino, January, Crenshaw, Kite and Coody. Stewart, Vossler, Barber, Hiskey, Hayes, Moody, Marr and Massengale.
Golf's hall of fame, you say? A list of Masters' champions? Vardon Trophy winners? Maybe a dream team for a mythical Ryder Cup match?
Nope. None of the above.
Those golfing immortals and semi-immortals have one thing in common besides an abundance of golfing skills and success. All have either won, played in or conducted clinics at the Texas-Oklahoma Junior Golf Tournament in this windy West Texas city just below the Red River.

"It's a great tournament," says Texan Ben Crenshaw, who won the championship in 1970 and returned nine years later to serve as a celebrity instructor at the annual golf clinic.
"It's a tough tournament to win because there's always a strong field and the wind's blowing all the time. It's a good experience for young golfers."
Former Masters champion Charles Coody conducted the clinic in 1980 and called it a great experience.
"It's a well-supervised tournament and the people are genuinely interested in the kids," he said. His son Kyle played in it three or four years, he said.

Tom Kite, Crenshaw's teammate at the University of Texas, was runner-up to two-time champion Mark Hayes in 1967, then came back to win the title a year later. Kite, fresh from a victory at the Kemper Open, will be the guest instructor for this year.
He will fly in from the U.S. Open in San Francisco and play a 9-hole exhibition Monday before speaking to the youngsters at a banquet that night. Play begins Tuesday at Weeks Park but will spill over onto four other courses during its week-long run.

Last year's tournament, the 30th, drew more than 600 entries, and liaison officer Jack Carnes says at least as many will be on hand this year.
"This is a family affair," he said. "We stress that. We want mother, father, brother, sister or whoever. We opened it up to girls three years ago."
For many years, there was no entry fee and players were provided free golf, meals and lodging. Economics have changed that a bit, but the $20 entry fee still covers golf and meals and many of the youngsters stay in the homes of Wichita Falls residents.
And despite the name, it's not just a Texas-Oklahoma affair.
"We've had entries from 24 different states and six foreign countries — Mexico, Norway, New Zealand, France, Canada and Spain," said Carnes, who has been involved with all 31 tournaments, dating back to the 1957 event won by Babe Hiskey of Houston.

Hiskey, the guest instructor in 1985, was but one of a dozen champions or runners-up who later competed on the PGA circuit. The most recent was Scott Verplank of Dallas, the ex-Oklahoma State ace who won here in 1981.
The inaugural junior tournament was held along with the Texas-Oklahoma Seniors and was the first of its kind in the two-state area. It drew 118 entries.
Three years later, in 1960, Ben Hogan appeared as a speaker and instructor, at no charge, and a staggering 422 junior golfers and their parents crowded onto the Weeks Park municipal course for the occasion.

Crenshaw won the title that year with what he recently described as "the most incredible shot I've ever hit in my life."
Nursing a two-stroke lead coming to the final hole, Crenshaw over-hit a booming 3-wood that headed straight for the creek guarding the 18th green.
"But the ball, as if it had eyes, rolled across the bridge and wound up ... in perfect position," wrote historian Tom Seltzer. "A grateful Crenshaw hit a wedge on the green and easily two-putted for the two-shot win."
Tournament officials later erected a sign designating the structure "Crenshaw's Bridge."
Carnes says it now costs more than $16,000 a year to stage the tournament but it has never been under-financed.
"If we run out of money, we've got ways to get it," smiled Carnes.

Girls' Minor League Champions

Pro baseball tryouts set

Several baseball tryout camps have been scheduled in Texas by the Cincinnati Reds major league team of the National League, including some camps in West Texas.
The tryout camps in West Texas include: Wednesday, June 24 at Amarillo High School in Amarillo; Thursday, June 25, at Texas Tech University in Lubbock; and Friday, June 26 at Midland Lee High School in Midland.

Other scheduled tryout camps are at Hardin Simmons University in Abilene on Monday, June 22; at Harkins Field in Wichita Falls on Tuesday, June 23; and at Sul Ross University in Alpine on Saturday, June 27.
All of the Reds tryout camps will begin at 9 a.m. The scouting supervisor for the Reds in Texas and Oklahoma, Chuck LaMar, will direct the camps.

LaMar said athletes between the ages of 15 and 23 may attend the camps, and that each athlete must supply his own glove, shoes and uniform.
Also, the Reds will pay no expenses unless a player is signed to a professional baseball contract, LaMar added. The player will be reimbursed for his expenses if a contract is signed.

But she's not pushing panic button at 30

Age is creeping up on Navratilova

By MARJORIE LEWIS

Fort Worth Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — She has won 125 tournaments, but none since November.

Age is creeping up on 30-year-old Martina Navratilova, but she hasn't pushed the panic button yet.

"I know everybody's worried and wondering what's wrong," Navratilova said from her vacation spot in Venice, Italy. "But there's nothing wrong with me."

"It's amazing how quick people are to jump the gun. They are always excited at the prospect of the champion being dethroned."

But her coaches and friends say there is something wrong.

They say Navratilova's problem is not her age, her stamina or her game. They say her problem is her mind.

Forget the age factor; Chris Evert is going strong at 32.

Physically, Navratilova is in the best shape of her life, conditioning coach Joe Breedlove said.

"She can play four hours if she had to. That's what kind of shape she's in."

But she is struggling to maintain her concentration.

After losing only three times last year, Navratilova lost the first four tournaments she entered this year, including the Italian Open. The young Navratilova seldom lost four consecutive tournaments. The last time she lost as many in a row was in 1981, when she was winless in six consecutive events.

And, certainly, she never would have come within two points of a title and suddenly gotten bored.

But that's just what she said happened earlier this year when she lost to Evert in the final of the Virginia Slims of Houston.

"I just started to lose interest," Navratilova said in her post-match interview. "I didn't feel like fighting for every point. It was pretty disappointing."

Said Evert: "Maybe she is a little nervous, which is rare for her. Physically, she's the same dominant athlete." One possible reason for the nervousness is a 17-year-old West German named Steffi Graf, who in her bid to become top dog may have taken a bite out of Navratilova's confidence.

"I think the pressure that Steffi Graf is putting upon her is weighing pretty heavy," said Judy Nelson, Navratilova's friend and travel companion. "I think anybody would be scared if they were being challenged, but, at the same time, she accepts that challenge. She is eager to see if she can rise to the occasion. I guess we'll all just wait and see if she can."

Graf has ascended to No. 2 in the women's rankings on the strength of six tournament titles this year.

Though Graf is closing fast, Navratilova is No. 1, and she intends to protect her ranking. "I want to give it absolutely everything, and I haven't done that," she said. "It might be difficult to live with should Steffi be better than me when I give it everything I've got. But at least I will know whether she is better than me or not."

Graf's victories include a semifinal triumph against Navratilova at the Lipton International Players Championships last March, which she followed with a victory over Evert in the final.

Recently, Graf defeated Gabriela Sabatini in the Italian Open. Sabatini had eliminated Navratilova with a straight-set victory in a semifinal.

"Against Sabatini, (Martina) played better than I've ever seen her play," said Navratilova's coach, Randy Crawford. "Martina had Sabatini under her thumb the first set until she missed a fairly easy overhead. Then the crowd got involved and Sabatini started playing better. Instead of raising (her level of play) and fighting the challenge, she (Navratilova) kind of collapsed. It looked like (she was thinking), 'I don't know if it's worth it to go through three more hours of catching up.'"

Instead, Navratilova lost, 7-6, 6-1. Previously she had lost to Hana Mandlikova in the final of the Australian Open, to Graf and to Evert.

"She's lost (four) tournaments now, but there's only a little difference," said Navratilova's former coach of 3 1/2 years, Mike Estep. "It's not like she's all washed up. She might not be winning two or three points a match that she was before. That's the whole difference."

"The last couple of years, with her natural ability, she's gotten by," Crawford said. "Now, what we're going through is the mental part because she can't get away with that anymore."

"Chris has done well against Martina, but now there's a threat around just about every corner. And it's not just Steffi. Sabatini is another good example. And there's Hana on grass."

"She's concerned (about her losses). I wouldn't say she's worried." If she is concerned, Navratilova isn't making excuses. But friends say she was suffering from the flu for two weeks before the Australian Open, barely practiced and didn't play a warm-up tournament.

They also say she had the flu at the Lipton and toyed with the idea of withdrawing but thought perhaps she could win — "natural ability" — while not at her best.

Houston and the Italian Open are played on clay surfaces, on which Navratilova is her weakest. And throughout it all, she has been bothered by an ankle injury that has her and her doctors baffled.

"She did a bone scan when she was in Fort Worth (two weeks ago)," Nelson said. "There's a lot of activity going on in the ankle, but there's no way to know what it is unless they scope it (perform an arthroscopy). But you don't want to do that unless it's absolutely necessary."

Said Crawford: "In Rome, there were certain times when she has to get in a certain position on the court that it bothers her a little bit. But it's just for that one moment. It doesn't bother her throughout the whole match."

At the suggestion of her doctor, Navratilova will finish out her career wearing high-top sneakers. Navratilova also has reduced her playing schedule this year, drawing speculation that 13 tournaments (as opposed to 17 in 1986) are not enough. Nelson said Navratilova's scheduling objectives were aimed at the Grand Slam events.

"Martina tried to look at the overall picture of the year and see what kind of preparation she'd want to be best prepared for a Grand Slam," Nelson said.

After having lost in the semifinals of the Italian Open, Navratilova tried to arrange to play in the Geneva Swiss Open, but could not get out of exhibition commitments.

Still, motivation, or lack thereof, is the biggest question.

"It's very difficult to keep up that intensity and that level for as many years as she has," Nelson said. "It's a shame someone can win as much as she has and then lose four matches in a row and people say she's falling apart. She's just as human as anyone else, and she certainly has the right to have some moments where she's not going to be as mentally threatening as always."

Those "moments" passed by fleetingly in 1986. "A year ago, I felt I was closer to the end than I do now," Navratilova said. "I don't know why. Maybe it's because I'm being challenged. But whatever. I can't quit now. I want to go out when I'm ready and not because I'm being forced out."

Home mortgages: The long and short of it

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people don't like to commit themselves to any project for 30 years ahead, the big exceptions being marriages and home mortgages, both of which seem to have eager acceptance.

But in the case of mortgages, at least, there is a shorter alternative, that being the 15-year mortgage. It is a real alternative: With it, a homeowner can obtain a lower interest rate and pay for the house in half the time.

Nevertheless, many homeowners prefer the longer term and higher rate for several good reasons, one of them being that home-mortgage interest constitutes one of the biggest deductions on federal income tax returns.

In so doing, however, some homeowners might penalize themselves.

For one thing, the average home mortgage isn't held for 30 years. It varies widely; at one time the average was only 7 years. It is much higher today, but still only a fraction of 30 years.

That presents the question: If the 30-year mortgage isn't going to be held for that entire time, why pay the higher rates that prevail on such mortgages? Why not take a lower-rate, 15-year mortgage instead?

Typically, two solid reasons are given in answer:

1. The 15-year mortgage, though offered at a lower interest rate, still requires bigger monthly payments in order to more quickly amortize the loan.

2. With a 30-year loan you have the option of making advance or extra payments to repay faster. You pay extra interest for this option, but you are not compelled to make advance payments; it is your choice.

According to the National Association of Realtors, the monthly principal and interest payment on a $65,900 mortgage for 30 years at 9 percent would be about $530. On a 15-year loan at 8.75 percent the payments would be $659.

What happens after that should affect any borrower's decision.

After five years, the principal owed on the 30-year, 9 percent loan is reduced by 4.1 percent. In the same period, the principal on a 15-year mortgage at 8.75 percent is cut 20.3 percent.

After 10 years, the principal owed on the 30-year loan is reduced by 10.6 percent. But on the 15-year loan it is lowered by more than half; specifically, by 51.6 percent.

And after 15 years, when 79.3 percent of the principal is still owed on the 30-year mortgage, the 15-year loan is paid off.

The key questions for a would-be borrower are these:

1. How much money can I afford to put into housing?

2. How long do I intend to keep the property?

3. Do I have other outlets for the extra funds required by a 15-year mortgage? That is, could the money be more profitably invested in securities or in other properties?

4. What are my tax savings likely to be?

Whatever they are, there's a good chance the tax savings won't be as great as before the most recent change in tax law. Because the Tax Act of 1986 lowered income tax rates generally, such deductions may not be as beneficial.

This is especially true for high-income individuals, who in the past might deduct as much as 50 percent of the interest paid on mortgages. Top tax rates — and therefore the value of tax deductions — are much lower now.

VAMA helps clients get equal housing

WASHINGTON — The National Association of Realtors and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development have signed a new Voluntary Affirmative Marketing Agreement (VAMA), which prescribes marketing procedures to make certain all clients and customers of Realtors enjoy equal professional services and have equal access to the housing of their choice.

William D. North, NAR executive vice president, and Judith Y. Brachman, HUD assistant secretary for fair housing and equal opportunity, signed the five-year agreement, at a Washington, D.C., news conference and reception. Brachman signed the agreement on behalf of HUD Secretary Samuel R. Pierce, Jr. A number of industry groups and housing-related organizations also signed a Statement of Fair Housing Intent at the ceremony.

Nestor R. Weigand, Jr., president-elect of the association, who was instrumental in negotiating the agreement, said, "This effort has been most important to the National Association of Realtors, HUD and the American public for some 12 years. This new VAMA reflects the fact that there is concern and a very real interest in adherence to the policy and principles of the Fair Housing Act of 1968."

The first NAR/HUD VAMA was approved and officially executed in 1975.

Signing Contracts

Pat Newton
Asst. Vice President & Mortgage Loan Officer
Hereford State Bank

If you are at the stage in your house purchase to sign a sales contract with a seller, here are some important points to consider regarding that contract:

The sales agreement you and the seller sign should state which settlement costs you will pay and which will be paid by the seller. Buyers can and do negotiate with sellers as to which party is to pay for specific settlement costs. The contract should contain a clause that provides for the seller to deliver title to the property, free and clear of all liens. A refund of your earnest money and cancellation of the sale should be provided for in the event you are unable to secure from a lending institution a first mortgage in the amount, interest rate, and length of term as set forth in the contract. You may also want included in the contract requirement for a termite inspection, a certificate that the plumbing, heating, electrical systems and appliances are in working order, and that the house is structurally sound. Negotiate who pays for any necessary inspections.

The above list is not complete, but it does illustrate the importance of the sales contract. Before you sign it, make sure that it correctly expresses your agreement with the seller.

Schemes have hazards that can cause big losses

COLLEGE STATION — Real estate investment schemes promising a rapid rise to riches ignore the hazards involved and leave naive investors open to potentially large financial losses.

"While real estate can be a lucrative investment, promoters of get-rich-quick strategies too often dismiss the somewhat formidable risks inherent in the field," reports Dr. Jack Harris, associate research economist for the Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University.

The underlying secrets of creative real estate investing are based on leverage—using other people's money to control an asset. Promoters who sell their strategies through cable television, seminars, audio tapes and books advocate total elimination of cash outlays using leverage financing for no-money-down investments. Although leverage is an important part of most real estate investment, traditional investors recognize that it increases the riskiness of a venture.

Harris reports that creative financing methods ignore several important factors.

Promoters assume that inflation will cause the value of any property to increase significantly in a single year. While this was true in the 1970s, current inflation rates are much lower.

Another problem with innovative financing techniques is that investors need to buy property in a buyers' market, then sell in a sellers' market. The promoters fail to explain how the investor will find a buyer when the original seller could not.

Promoters also ignore the costs of writing complex contracts, maintaining the property and dealing with government restrictions.

"In many ways, it is surprising that creative real estate investment seminars are generating such interest," Harris reports.

For a point-by-point analysis that compares philosophy and techniques of traditional and innovative real estate investment, order publication 544 from the Real Estate Center; Texas A&M University; College Station, Texas 77843-2115. Or telephone (409)845-2031. The 20-page report costs $1.75.

Kits available to build sunspaces

By The Associated Press

Some people call it a sun garden room. Others call it a Florida room (though not in California). It's been called a sunroom add-on, or a living-room greenhouse. Urban Americans call it a solarium.

Whatever it is called, this update of the old sunporch has become a popular alternative for expanding home space through room addition while bringing the outdoors in.

More than 60 companies now produce do-it-yourself sunspace kits.

"Most of our customers are interested in changing their existing home, office or restaurant rather than building a new one," says Christopher Esposito, whose Four Seasons Greenhouses, of Farmingdale, N.Y., offers prefabricated kits for do-it-yourself installation and partial or complete dealer installation of greenhouses.

Sunspaces that come as kits can be assembled in half to one-third the time of building a glass room on site.

Three basic kits are available: all glass with aluminum framing and curved eaves, all glass with wood framing, and wood framing with a standard insulated roof and sidewalls (only the outermost wall is glass).

Sunspace kits cost from $3,000 to $12,000, depending on size and options, according to Better Homes and Gardens Remodeling Ideas magazine. Finish material and labor can boost the total cost to nearly double the kit price, Remodeling Ideas says.

Modern sunspaces, its builders say, evolved out of the old greenhouse, which was set aside for plants. In the early 1970s, many people started looking to greenhouses for energy conservation with solar heat. The next step was to use these add-on solar rooms as living spaces.

"The sunspace often becomes the new focal point for living," says Lee Stanley, director of design at Solar Additions, Inc., of Cambridge, N.Y., a producer of preassembled and do-it-yourself sunspaces.

Stanley says he got into the business in 1974 when doctors told him his 5-year-old son couldn't eat processed foods because of allergies. Stanley built a sunspace addition to his Waterford, N.Y., home to grow natural food all year around.

He found that the home addition collected solar heat and added living space. And he started building them for others; 125,000 Americans own sunspaces today, he says.

A sunspace attaches directly to a home on its own foundation, he says. To capture the sun's heat and light, the sunspace should be no more than 30 degrees off true south to the southeast or southwest. The outside wall of the house becomes the back wall of the new room. An existing door can provide access or a window can be expanded into a door.

The front glass slants to let in solar energy during the winter and a roof overhang or external sunshades block out the sun's rays during the hot summer months.

Law changes on passive real estate loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Mike Andrews of Houston led the fight in the Ways and Means Committee to overturn an Internal Revenue Service ruling barring real estate losses incurred before 1987 from being applied against real estate income.

The measure is part of identical technical corrections bills introduced in the House and Senate last week designed to refine the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

Andrews said the new tax law specified that passive losses, such as those from real estate investments, could only be written off against "passive income" derived from similar sources.

While the tax law stated that income from real estate transactions would be considered passive, the December 1986 IRS ruling stated that income from real estate installment sales before Jan. 1, 1987 would not.

Despite interest in ultra modern

Most buyers lean toward traditional homes

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

When it's house-buying time, no matter how much interest is expressed in contemporary or modern homes, prospective owners nearly always wind up buying traditional designs, according to an informal survey of real estate brokers, architects and builders.

And, say these experts, it is going to stay that way for some time, at least until the year 2000.

A typical comment comes from architect Herman York:

"Most Americans prefer the elegance of well-proportioned, traditional residential architecture. This deep-rooted preference means that most of our houses, particularly for

He says: "Move-up buyers will be the best equipped to handle the escalating sales prices of larger new homes, since they will have the equity of their older homes to trade in.

There will be a focus on quality design, quality construction and fine finishes, all in larger, more expensive homes."

York sees the house of 2000 as having fewer rooms, "because of the trend toward smaller families, with fewer children, also because of the growing number of singles living together as well as career couples without children." He thinks it quite probable, too, that "houses will be designed in cluster configuration, in which units are attached, with attractive walled-in gardens and patios."

Home media equipment is seen as an important factor in the room layouts of the future. Paul says a separate room will house a large TV screen, VCRs, record players, stereos, records or whatever else might come along, but the room also will be a place for family get-togethers and relaxation.

York says most families in the next 10 or 15 years not only will have personal computers, but there will be several of them in each home. He believes the bedroom may become the resting place of at least one of them and adds: "It is conceivable that the name 'bedroom' will be replaced by one such as 'culture hideaway' with additional space for a hobby alcove or art gallery."

Axelrod says the master bedroom will increase in importance as a retreat and thus will be larger, and include a lounging area.

A trend toward having the main bedroom separated from the others will be accentuated by the year 2000. Older people need their bedroom on the first floor, whether the house be a one-story, two-story or bilevel. Because of the increasing number of elderly, there will be more and more inconspicuously located railings in hallways and bathrooms. For the same reason, there will be a widespread use of low-maintenance materials, both inside and outside the house.

There will be more acceptance of solar houses and prefabricated homes, but Paul does not think these trends will be as significant as the fight to cut costs to make housing of the future more affordable.

Paul says: "Since 1977, the cost of new houses has skyrocketed over three times. Although we don't expect a rise at this rate in the years ahead, cost is a problem that must be faced. Therefore, I predict that affordable houses will be reduced in size.

"Room sizes will be made smaller, so that the total square footage will be less than what we are accustomed to today. This doesn't have to reduce the quality of living. Designers will have to use their ingenuity to utilize space efficiently and effectively, with good taste. Even though kitchens will be smaller, they will have all the equipment, including the microwave oven, and will have sufficient counter space."

A big problem in developed suburbs in the years ahead, says Axelrod, is that available building land will diminish. "Whatever land there is," he says, "will be legislated out of 'buildability' by environmental lobbyists, creating pressure on older communities to tear down otherwise stable buildings to satisfy those who desire new housing."

As for exteriors, York says that "most differences will be in the floor plan layout and livability rather than anything startling."

Q. — We get a very restricted flow of water from our faucets and all the other plumbing fixtures in our old house. A neighbor says it is caused by the pipes having narrow passageways because of a buildup of scales on the inside. He says there is no cure except to have new pipes installed. Is he right or can the pipes be cleaned in some way?

A. — If the cause is what he says it is, then only new piping will correct the condition. The other possibility is low water pressure from the outside into the house. You need a plumber to test for the actual cause. If it were low water pressure, chances are your neighbors would have similar trouble. But don't try to guess. Have a licensed plumber make the analysis.

Q. — I will be making a picket fence. How far apart should the pickets be, or does it make a difference? Should I cut the angled top parts of the pickets myself, or can they be purchased that way?

A. — While it really doesn't make too much difference how far apart the pickets are, the standard distance usually is the width of a picket. In fact, it makes it easier to use one of the pickets as a spacer. As for cutting the pickets to shape, you can do it yourself from standard stock or buy them already cut. It depends on how much money you want to spend. Those already shaped obviously cost more.

Q. — I read that, when using a file, you should move your hands and arms and not your body. I have considerable filing to do, and I wonder about that no-body warning. Can you tell me what it means?

A. — It is a wise instruction if you are doing any kind of precision filing. First of all, as you undoubtedly know, pressure is exerted on the file only on the forward stroke. You release the pressure on the return stroke, except in certain specialized cases that only professionals are likely to encounter. Why should you use only your arms and hands on the forward stroke and keep your body perfectly still? Because when you move your body, the file is inclined to rock, resulting in a rounded surface rather than a flat one. In many filing jobs, this doesn't mean very much, but in some, it produces a poor result. To avoid trouble at any time, get into the habit of keeping your body still while filing.

Q. — Can a wood patching material be stained after it has hardened?

A. — There are many different kinds of wood patching compounds. Some can be stained, some can't. Check the directions before you buy. If it says it can be stained, fine. But if it doesn't mention the subject, chances are it cannot.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, remover, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Media equipment, computers to play role in future designs

middle-income buyers, will continue to carry a traditional exterior well into the 21st century."

The attachment to traditional exterior design will not be reflected inside the house, however. There, technological advances and the needs of a changing society will result in gradual, but inevitable changes. Architect Samuel Paul calls them "evolutionary" changes.

Architect Jerold L. Axelrod, for one, thinks larger houses may be in the offing, because "demographic figures suggest a shift away from first-time buyers to move-up buyers."

1987 Rhinestone Roundup

Hosts and Hostesses prepare for annual event

RICHARD and BERTA OTTESEN
...chair couple

Hosts and hostesses are gearing up for a weekend full of activities as the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center prepares to honor its 1987 inductees. A reunion supper will kick off the festivities on Friday, June 26, followed by induction ceremonies at noon on Saturday, but the action goes into high gear on Saturday evening with the annual Rhinestone Roundup.

Traditional barbeque fare will be served following a style show presented by 1976 Cowgirl Honoree Fern Sawyer and 1987 Miss Rodeo Texas. Hereford's Mary Thomas will narrate the presentation.

At 8 p.m. 1987 honoree Patsy Montana will present a mini concert. Montana is best known for her hit single, 'I Wanna Be a Cowboy's Sweetheart.'

Following Montana's concert, The Sundowners from Vega, Texas, will provide dance music until midnight. Mixed in with all the knee slappin', heel kickin' country music will be two silent auctions and a live auction followed by drawings for giveaways.

Silent auction items range from hot air balloon rides to get-away weekend to telephones. The live auction, conducted by Jim Tucker, will feature items such as a Resistol hat, paintings, a wine tasting party and stained glass designed by Bub Sparks.

Hosts and hostesses for the event are Richard and Berta Ottesen, chair couple, Gilbert and Janice Arellano, Earl and Dodie Brookhart, Wes and Pat Fisher, Ike and Debe Graves, Scott and Lori Hall, Jim and Sandy Herbertson, Scott and Karen Keeling, Pat and Patsy McGinty, Garth and Susie Merrick, Allen and Estella Parson, Fred and Josie Rivera, Don and Alene Tindal and Jay and Donna West.

Tickets for the induction luncheon, to be held at the Hereford Country Club, are $15 each. Tickets for the Roundup are $25 each. Reservations may be made by contacting the CHOF at 364-5252.

Two Texas Majorettes

Gina Alley, age 14, and her sister, Aimee, age nine, were both selected Miss Majorette of Texas for their age divisions, as proclaimed on the largest trophies. Other trophies, won by each girl, were for their twirling expertise in individual events. Both girls will be going to national twirling finals set for July.

Local sisters qualify for national twirling competition

Qualifying for national-level twirling competition to be held during American Youth On Parade (AYOP) are Gina and Aimee Alley of Hereford.

The youths, age 14 and 9, respectively, are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Allen of 545 Westhaven Drive. They will be competing in the national finals set for July 21-25 at Notre Dame University.

AYOP features several competitions for youth, including ballet, singing, and twirling. Several talent scouts and modeling agents will be in attendance, as will various celebrities.

The Hereford girls qualified for the national competition by winning state and regional twirling events. State was held last weekend in Greenville, Texas, with both girls capturing three trophies each. Regional finals, held in Amarillo, had contestants from five states entered.

Gina, who competes in the 13-15 year old age division, had collected 20 trophies and 26 medals before last weekend's victories. Aimee, who competes in the seven-to-nine age bracket, had garnered six trophies and 24 medals prior to state competition.

Under the tutelage of Rhena Cooper of Canyon, Gina has twirled for four years while Aimee has twirled for three years. In addition to their entry in solo events, both girls are members of a seven-member team coached by Cooper.

During last weekend's state competition, each girl claimed a four-foot-high trophy upon being selected Miss Majorette of Texas in their respective age divisions. Criteria for their selection was based on performance in two twirling events plus a modeling event.

Gina claimed a medium-sized trophy for winning the X-Strut competition, which is a difficult solo twirling event, for the entire 13-15 age group. She won a smaller trophy for the same event, age 13 division, which was her age by the September, 1986, deadline.

Aimee also received a medium-sized trophy for winning her solo twirling event in the overall age group of seven-to-nine years.

A smaller trophy was presented to her for her victory in the eight-year-old division, with the same age restrictions applying.

Both girls will continue preparation for July's national competition.

Local homes sought for exchange student

Hereford's Rotary Club is looking for four homes to host an exchange student during the next school term in three-month stints.

Charlotte Lund of Vaerloose, Denmark, is a 17-year-old Dane wishing to spend a year in the United States, according to M.D. Gentry, chairman of the local group's Exchange Student Committee.

Vaerloose is a rural suburb of Copenhagen.

Miss Lund has studied English for six years and can read and speak it well. She also has studied German for three years and has one year of Spanish.

Her travels have taken her to London, the Canary Islands, and Germany.

Her hobbies include working in scouting programs and sewing.

Her father is an accountant with a large firm and her mother is a secretary for a physician. She has one younger brother.

Persons interested in hosting Miss Lund for a three-month period should contact Gentry at 364-7350 or 364-6436.

Rotary club members and friends this past year hosted Ulf Schoppa of Germany and Mila Niemela of Finland.

The highest point in the state of Ohio is Campbell Hill in Logan County. The hill is 1,550 feet high.

BRANDED Women

by Gaye Reily

An Evil Editor Exposed

BRANDED Women consists of only one woman this week as Sandy fiendishly left for vacation and won't return until Monday. Thus, this column is dedicated to her as I tell of some of the exploits in which she has involved me.

Sandy is my editor. (Oh, she hates that term, preferring instead to be known as my co-worker; yet after struggling through this week while she is out sunbathing, her best interests are not uppermost in my mind.)

My affiliation with Sandy began in late February when I became employed as a feature writer at the Brand. She has been a delight to work with, but she does tend to get me into weird situations.

One such event occurred when she cajoled me into calling an award headquarters which promised her untold fortune and prizes, having dealt with such people in the past, I was reluctant; yet that sweet smile and pleasant manner talked me into it. I called the toll-free number (after working hours of course!) and identified myself as "Sandy Pankey-what do I get?" After what seemed like eons, the salesman said, "You will appear in our August catalog proclaiming the perfection of our products, some of which we will send you for only $395. Then you will win lots of stuff."

Using Sandy's name, I declined and hastily hung up the phone, dashing her hopes of newfound wealth.

Then there was that time I participated in one of her mystery phone calls. (Enough said, huh, Sandy?)

Yet one of the worst events that occurred to date was when Sandy took a Friday off in March, leaving me to paste up Friday--and Sunday's--newspapers. "It's SO easy, Gaye, you'll have no problems," she assured me. Since I had been at the Brand only two weeks, I believed her. Was I wrong!

It was noon that Friday when I began putting Sunday's paper together. By 2 p.m., I had one page completed. The bad news was that I had 11 to go!

When the Big Boss, (Mr. Nieman), became aware of my dilemma, he graciously pitched it in and helped complete the pages by 5 p.m. As I took my exhausted body home, a mere shell of my former self, I knew I would never forgive Sandy for leaving me in the lurch!

But time heals all wounds, so I got over the experience only to have her desert me this past week.

Another interesting aspect about my editor is her innate cruelty. Upon learning of my phobia of storms, she often tells me of past storms and tornados that seemed to only occur on my street. She drags me out of the Brand frequently to show me storm clouds and inform me of our upcoming horrible demise, just as she forced me to accompany her during the restaurant venture exposed in last Sunday's column.

But I guess she does possess some worthwhile traits. She is a great chauffeur when my car is in the shop, and she does make terrific potato salad. She is extremely patient, teaching me several details about our work in the Lifestyle Department.

Well, I guess these reflections have talked me out of getting revenge on Sandy when she returns to her Brand desk. (But not before I erased the margins and tabs on her typewriter!!!)

Rettman, Warren united in ceremony

Duann Rettman of Hereford became the bride of Doug Warren, also of Hereford, during an afternoon wedding ceremony held Saturday in St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Hereford. Officiant was Fr. Joe Egan, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Rettman of 706 Irving and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren of 801 Baltimore.

The church was decorated with two seven-branch candelabra bedecked with greenery. Two bouquets of blue irises, sonia roses, yellow alstermeria, and greenery flanked the back alter while greenery surrounded by blue votive candles enhanced the side alters. Alternating pews were garnished with peach satin pew bows.

Wendy Roe was maid of honor and Trent Layman served as best man.

Bridesmaids included Kristin Walterscheid and the groom's sisters, Leona Watson and Monica Pemberton.

Groomsmen were Steve Warren, nephew of the groom, and the groom's brothers, Ralph Warren and Jerry Warren.

Ushering in guests were Toby Turpen and Mark Bowers of Houston. Serving as lector was Charlene Sanders.

The groom's niece, Whitney Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Bowers of Houston, served as flower girl. Ring bearer was Jonathan Warren, the groom's nephew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Warren.

Altar boys were Stacey Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sanders, and Rick Alley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Alley.

Sharon Cramer was featured as organist. Vocalists were Judy Cloud, soloist, and Ralph Detten, song leader. Selected songs included "The Wedding Song," "On Eagle's Wings", and "Only a Shadow."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of white organza and Chantilly lace. The bodice was overlaid with Chantilly lace which was enhanced by a scalloped cameo neckline. The Bishop sleeves, fashioned out of Chantilly lace, were accented with tiny seed pearls. The fitted bodice flowed into a gathered organza skirt enhanced by appliques of Chantilly lace. The skirt, accented by a ruffled flounce adorned with Chantilly lace and tiny seed pearls, flowed into a chapel-length train.

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a two-tiered scalloped fingertip-length veil attached to a tiara of Venice lace, crystals, and pearls.

She carried a cascading bouquet composed of blue irises, japet orchids, yellow alstermeria, baby's breath, and grape ivy enhanced by royal blue satin and white lace ribbon streamers.

Her jewelry included pearl earrings given to her by the groom, and a pearl necklace worn by the groom's mother when she married 46 years ago.

Bridal attendants were attired in teal-length dresses of royal blue forenza featuring a fitted bodice and low V-cut back with a bow accenting the dropped waist. Each carried nosegay bouquets of blue irises, sonia roses, yellow alstermeria, baby's breath, and grape ivy tied off with royal blue and white lace ribbon streamers.

A reception, catered by Lois Lemons and Mary Herring, followed in the Knights of Columbus Hall, which featured decorations by Sue Urbanczyk of Balloon Express. Nieces of the groom, Kelly Koozer, Nikki Bowers, and Rainey Warren, invited guests to register.

The bride's cake, made by Nan Gauthreaux, was served by Donyel Vuicich of Ruidoso, N.M., and Joyce Koozer of Dallas. White pillars separated the three round tiered cakes which contained silk flowers on each tier. Three heart-shaped satellite cakes were attached at the base. The names of the bride and groom appeared on the center heart-shaped cake while a blue fountain sat at the base of the tiered-cakes.

MRS. DOUG WARREN
...nee Duann Rettman

The groom's cake, created by Beckie Fry, was served by Debbie Warren. This chocolate rectangular-shaped cake, topped with chocolate icing, sported a yellow Corvette. Punch and coffee was served by Jill Koozer, the groom's niece.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo., the bride wore a traveling costume consisting of a two-piece pink satin-embossed dress.

The couple will be at home after June 27 at 409 Ave. G. The bride is a 1984 graduate of Hereford High School. She attended Amarillo College, T.S.T.I., and West Texas State University, and is employed by Hereford State Bank.

The bridegroom, a 1983 graduate of HHS, is employed by Kustom Koach Kraft.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the parents of the groom, was held Thursday at Sirlain Stockade.

Out-of-town guests included those from Dothan, Ala.; Dallas; Houston; Amarillo; Dimmitt; and Nazareth. Special guests included those from Ruidoso, Grants, and Farmington, all in New Mexico; and Woodward, Okla.

Red Cross Update

Special thanks to everyone that helped with the Garage sale which raised funds for disaster relief.

Ruth King, chairman of the garage sale, presented Paula Martin with a check for $899.47. Paula Martin is the Field Representative for our area and was here attending the membership meeting held Tuesday.

New board of director members were elected. Those new members are Ronald Sanders, safety services chairman; Tommy Rosson, school representative; Barbara Emerson serving a second term as attorney for the chapter; Pauline Howard, a one year term as treasurer; Gerald Banner-Energas representative. Other board members are Tommie Savage, Lupe Chavez, Mary Jane Burrus, Pat Michells.

Extra Special thanks to all of the Water Safety Volunteers working during our Water Safety class. We have over 135 students taking classes and 15 W.S.I.S. and aides working with the classes.

The next session of classes will begin July 13 at the City Pool.

A Water Safety Instructors class scheduled to begin Monday, June 22 at the City Pool has been postponed one week. Dates and schedule will be announced later. Anyone interested in taking this class is asked to call the Red Cross office 364-3761 as soon as possible.

A Basic Water Safety and Rescue class will begin soon. This is the Junior Lifesaving class for anyone 11 years old or older. Call to register for this class.

Church's grill has flock of patrons

By LORI MONTGOMERY Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS (AP) — On Sundays, Shannon Murphy receives the word of God at the Park Cities Baptist Church. On a weekday afternoon, she journeys to her house of worship for nourishment of a different sort. "I come here for the grilled cheese sandwich," said Miss Murphy, 17. "I'm not kidding."

Hidden beneath the soaring steeple of the red-brick church on Northwest Highway, a little-known Baptist burger joint called The Pickwick has fed the hungry for nearly 25 years. Though the airy, nine-booth grill barely breaks even, church administrators said they'd rather lose money than forsake their corn-dog ministry.

"From a cost-effective standpoint, that place should be closed," said church business administrator Jack Shelton. "But from a ministry point of view, boy, that place must stay open. It's a huge attraction for our young people."

Open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on weekdays, except Wednesday when the grill stays open until 6 to accommodate church activities, The Pickwick serves as a gathering place for mothers collecting little ones from church day care, older church members organizing visits to the homebound and the church's 65 full-time staffers, Shelton said.

People "in the business world" also dine at The Pickwick, said Don Duren, minister of activities, referring to workers in the myriad small shops across the street. And when school ends, Duren said, The Pickwick becomes a summer hangout for teenagers who grab a burger after basketball in the church's full-size gymnasium or foosball in the recreation room just beyond the lime- and lemon-colored booths.

"In early American life, the church was really one of the central modes of life," Shelton said. "And it's coming back to that place."

With an inexpensive diner like The Pickwick, Park Cities Baptist Church is nudging that trend along. Most of the items are sold at cost, Shelton said, and, of course, there's no sales tax charged. The 5,900-member church, being a non-profit entity, pays no taxes on the approximately $400 The Pickwick collects daily, he said.

A "Pickwick Hamburger (Buns and Meat Only)" costs a dollar. Large milk shakes (vanilla, strawberry and chocolate) are 90 cents; coffee costs a quarter. The most popular Pickwick luncheon, "cheeseburger, fries," according to counter clerk Lorenza Razo, costs less than $2.

Its reasonable prices are just one reason for The Pickwick's popularity, however.

The life expectancy of a white-tailed deer is eight years.

Couple to be feted at anniversary reception

Ted and Sharon Caro of Hereford will be honored today (Sunday) for the event of their 30th wedding anniversary during a reception held from 2-5 p.m. in the Hereford State Bank Friendship Room.

The couple was married June 21, 1957, in Tatum, N.M. with her father, Rev. Gaston Green, officiating.

Having lived in the Hereford area for eight years, the Caros farmed near the Easter community for four years and are members of Frio Baptist Church. He is presently working for Misco of Amarillo.

The reception will be hosted by their children: Denie Caro of Amarillo, Cindy Caro of Hereford, and Dennis and Sonie Beasley also of Hereford.

All friends of the couple are cordially invited to attend the reception.

July 3 is entry deadline

Entries are still being accepted for the 1987 Texas Mother/Daughter Pageant until July 3. This will be the first time a statewide competition has been held in Texas for the Mother/Daughter Pageant, now in its fourth year.

Winners of the Texas competition will compete at the National Finals in Florida this November.

The Texas Pageant will be held August 14-16 at the El Tropicano Hotel on the Riverwalk in San Antonio. In addition to the winners and runners-up, awards will be presented for community service, personal achievement, congeniality, preliminary swimsuit competition and most similar resemblance between a mother and a daughter.

To qualify, both contestants must be U.S. citizens with at least one of the mother/daughter team residing in Texas. Daughters must be at least 16 years old by November 1 and must be the natural or adopted child of the mother. Mothers may be of any age. Contestants may be of any marital status.

The Pageant emphasizes traditional family values in modern mother/daughter relationships. Each mother and daughter compete as a team in all phases of competition providing them the opportunities to share some very unique experiences. Personal interviews comprise 50 percent of the judging while the Swimsuit and Formal Gown competitions count for 25 percent apiece.

For applications and further information contact Thomas Daniel Productions Ltd., 8480 Fredericksburg Road, Suite 288, San Antonio, Texas 78229, telephone 512-647-3448.

4-H Firsthand

Kristi Powell of the Deaf Smith County 4-H was awarded a $4000 Texas 4-H Foundation Scholarship last week at the Texas 4-H Round Up on the Texas A&M University Campus. The scholarship was funded by Texas Feed & Grain Association in Ft. Worth. Powell received her honors for outstanding 4-H work and her ability to achieve excellence in the classroom. Congratulations Kristi!

The Citizens 4-H Club will meet on Thursday at 7:00 p.m. in the Community Center. The club will have a hamburger cook, ice cream eat, and hold a short business meeting. All members are encouraged to come.

The County 4-H Horse Show will be held this Saturday, June 20 beginning at 9:00 a.m. at the Circle A Arena near Westway. Around 100 area 4-H'ers are expected to participate. Everyone is invited out to watch the show.

Congratulations to Shamayne Blasingame on the County 4-H Club for exhibition of grand champion mare at the Parmer County Horse Show. Complete county results will be featured in a later article.

There will be 4-H Record Book workshops on Tuesday, June 23 at 1:30 p.m. and Monday, June 29 at 9:00 a.m. Both workshops will be held in the Heritage Room of the library.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Lauper develops own style

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Behind the orange hair, the crazy clothes, the Queens accent, the clanking jewelry and the winking send-ups, Cyndi Lauper knows a danger lurks.

Her fears are not about her talents, which are formidable, but the image that has shared the spotlight with Miss Lauper since 1983 when she burst forth with the multi-hit "She's So Unusual" album.

"I was afraid of becoming a personality above my talent, above my singing, which is what I really feel I was born to do," she said in an interview.

Fans and doubters can watch Miss Lauper's knockout singing upstage her image in a Home Box Office special, "Cyndi Lauper in Paris," filmed March 12 at Le Zenith theater, the last concert of a world tour that took her to Australia, Italy and Japan.

"This tour was about being a musician," Miss Lauper said. "It was ... about trying to sing something as accurately as you can."

The one-hour show premieres at 10 p.m. EDT June 20, which also happens to be Miss Lauper's 34th birthday. The TV concert will be repeated June 23, 25 and 28.

"France was so terrific because I always loved (Edith) Piaf, and I've always loved Jacques Tati, and I've always loved Cocteau, and so to actually play there and achieve something in France was something very important to me," she said, with an odd way of phrasing that mWant To Have Fun," plus the recent "True Colors," and her newest single, "Boy Blue," which she has, without fanfare, dedicated to a friend who died of complications of AIDS.

The concert show is being touted by HBO as Miss Lauper's first "full-length solo TV concert," but she has been regarded as a trendsetter in music videos since "Girls Just Want to Have Fun." She will make her feature-film acting debut later this year in "Vibes," a romantic comedy-adventure starring Jeff Goldblum.

Miss Lauper, whose widely imitated, eclectic clothing style stemmed from the days of shopping in thrift stores when she could afford little else, said it's a habit fame can't chase.

"Even now that I can afford to go in a store and buy what I like, I don't find dressing with things off the shelf appealing," she said. "I like to mix and match. A fashion maven, that's what I am."

Tuberculosis is on the rise

DENVER (AP) — Tuberculosis, which once killed tens of thousands of Americans each year, is now considered by the general public to be a disease of the past.

But, according to medical authorities at the National Jewish Center for Immunology and Respiratory Medicine here, TB is on the rise again in the United States and still remains the leading killer among infectious diseases in the world.

TB is a communicable disease, it can attack people of all ages and it can strike anywhere in the body, most often affecting the lungs.

Patients in advanced stages of TB eventually experience such symptoms as coughing, weight loss and fever. The center recommends that those with these symptoms see their doctor. In many cases, drug treatment can cure the disease.

Summer Seamstresses

10th graders at Hereford High School made the accessories during Beryl Burelsmith's summer home economics class held at La Plata Junior High School.

Summer homemaking classes teach skills

Ten students and ten adults have enrolled in the summer homemaking classes at La Plata Junior High School with Beryl Burelsmith, homemaking teacher, instructing the group.

The class, an extension of homemaking beyond the regular school term, provides for the further development of skills in all areas of homemaking. Six students are incoming ninth graders and four students have just completed the ninth grade year and will be sophomores at Hereford High School in the fall.

Students must have been enrolled in a homemaking course during the 1986-87 school year to be eligible for the classes. Eligible students receive a grade and earn one-half credit which counts toward graduation from high school.

The group has been involved in making fabric-covered photo albums. The students gained additional skills in combining textures and colors in choosing fabrics and sewing notions while creating the albums. They also became more aware of grain in the fabric and the importance of measuring and cutting fabric accurately.

The past week featured techniques on creating denim and bandanna collars and belts. Such construction experiences emphasized the use of the machine and students learned to do stenciling, with each stenciling designs on a sweat or T-shirt.

This next week, June 22-26, will be the final week of summer homemaking classes. Baking and decorating cakes and making frozen desserts will be featured.

In addition to class work, students must complete an extended learning experience project in two of the following areas: child development, clothing and textiles, consumer education, family and individual health, family living, food and nutrition, home management, or housing.

Fashion Show open to public

"Fashion: Deep In The Heart of Texas" will be presented by the Deaf Smith County 4-Hers on Thursday, at 7:00 p.m. at King's Manor Lamar Memorial Garden Room.

Refreshments will be served following the program by the Deaf Smith County 4-H clothing project group.

The fashion show culminates the end of the 1987 clothing project and will feature 4-Hers modeling the garments made in this year's project. The public is invited to attend the program.

Roundups same, using horses or 'copters

By HECTOR F. GARZA-TREJO The Brownsville Herald
BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Modern-day technology is changing the way people do things — even cowboys.
 While rounding up cattle is probably the most cowboyish thing cowboys do, the horse-riding, yeehaw-screaming, rope-swinging activity may be starting to vanish from the list of tests the macho, country boys must pass in order to get their real-cowboy status.
 Like the horse-pulled fire carriages of yesteryear or the legendary tree-chopping character Paul Bunyan, cowboys and horses seem to be partially — and gradually — losing ground to modern technology.

 Fire carriages lost their ground to faster fire engines. Paul Bunyan was eventually replaced by more wood-cutting devices. And cowboys and horses are beginning to be replaced by helicopters.
 That's right, helicopters.
 "But the things (helicopters) make so much noise and blow so much wind that cows get scared and run away from them ... wherever they are," said Frank Pozas, the 29-year-old cowboy foreman who runs the Yturria Ranch, a vast piece of land located north of Raymondville on U.S. 77, which is owned by Frank Yturria of Brownsville.

 But the tasks involved in rounding up the cattle are basically the same whether it's done in the traditional cowboy fashion or by helicopter, Pozas said.
 In both cases, the men doing the roundup have to find the cows, get them out of wherever they are, and herd them on to clear, open spaces where they can be led in masses somewhere else, he said.

 It's the method that varies. And that's where helicopters seem to have the advantage.
 Spotting cattle at a horse's eye level may be difficult in thick brush areas. And it is just about as difficult to ride a horse into the bushes to get the calves out, Pozas said.
 In helicopters, however, spotting the animals is easy from the air. And "the helicopters usually scare them so much that they (cows) come out of the bushes trying to get away," he said.

 Once the cattle are out in open spaces, the roundup practically continues by itself. The cows usually follow a leader and then they move all in the same direction most of the time, he said.
 "Helicopters make rounding up cattle easier, more efficient and cheaper," said Jim Tiller, who runs Tiller Helicopter Service in Alice, Texas, and does the roundups at Yturria Ranch.
 "It may take days for a group of cowboys to round up cattle on large ranches, but it only takes a few hours to do it by helicopter," he said.
 Two, three or more helicopters can join in the operation, making it possible to cover large extensions in a fraction of the time it takes cowboys on horseback to do, he said.
 "Helicopters can cover areas of up to 1,000 acres in one hour," he said.

"And that makes a difference when you are talking about 5,000 or more acres — like the Yturria ranch."
 Pozas said that the time cowboys spend in the roundup may increase depending on the area.
 "If there are a lot of brush areas it is going to take longer," he said.
 But the nature of the area does not seem to make much difference for the helicopters, he said.
 The increased use of helicopters to round up cattle is taking part of the cowboys' duties away, Pozas said.
 "But it all comes down to money ... and the good operation of a ranch depends on that," he said.
 Pozas says that for one born and brought up a country boy, "it's sad that the helicopters are taking part of the (ranching) fun away from us."
 "But there are many things no darn machine can do," he said with a smile.
 "I don't know of a machine that can rope or brand. And that's still pure, good ol' cowboy fun."

Group to promote American meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private trade group says it will use $6.5 million in government financing to promote American beef, pork and lamb in Japan, a closely regulated market that has withstood previous U.S. liberalization efforts.
 The U.S. Meat Export Federation, a non-profit trade association having the support of agriculture and industry, said the promotion will be financed by the Agriculture Department's Targeted Export Assistance program, or TEA.
 Congress authorized the program to help private groups carry out trade promotions abroad on behalf of U.S. producers, particularly in countries that have high tariffs, quotas or non-tariff trade barriers.
 "The promising Japanese beef market could be one of the bright spots for U.S. agricultural exports," the federation said recently.

 "Japanese beef quotas expire in March 1988, and meat industry officials hope for increased access to growing consumer demand."
 As it is, sales of U.S. beef to Japan are limited to 58,400 metric tons of high-quality beef, the kind of meat sold in the better hotels and restaurants.
 "Current sales of U.S. beef to Japan are nearly $480 million annually, but sales could top $2 billion by 2000 if Japanese quotas are eased and consumers are educated on the attributes of American beef," the federation said.
 Beef consumption in Japan averages less than 10 pounds per year, retail weight, compared with about 78 pounds for the average American. The federation said Japanese beef consumption is expected to nearly double by the turn of the century, however.

 "The Japanese import quotas, imposed to protect domestic farmers and beef production, are costly to Japanese consumers," the federation said.
 It is not a new assertion. The USDA for years has been noting the disparity in food prices around the world, figures that have shown that American consumers usually have the edge over shoppers in other major world capitals.
 Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng and U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter recently were rebuffed in Tokyo when they once again sought open-door treatment for U.S. commodities, including beef, citrus and rice. Lyng included pictures and charts shown how much cheaper food is in the United States.
 In response, the Japanese minister of agriculture, Mutsuki Kato, said Japan's "food self-sufficiency rate is low and that it is essential to maintain the present level of domestic agricultural production," according to the Japan International Agricultural Council's newsletter.
 But food price comparisons continued with another report this week by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service. It showed that boneless sirloin steak in Tokyo cost $24.30 per pound last month, compared with $4.80 per pound in Washington, D.C.

 A boneless pork roast in Tokyo was listed at $6.11 per pound against $2.60 in the U.S. capital. Broilers, at $2.62 per pound for whole birds, compared with 67 cents per pound in Washington, D.C.
 Rice, the traditional Japanese staple, sold for $1.28 per pound in Tokyo, compared with 43 cents per pound here. Oranges, at $1.76 per pound in Tokyo, were 53 cents per pound in Washington, D.C.
Late-bearing strawberry developed
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Good news for strawberry gourmets in areas where the annual spring season winds down by late May or early June: the Agriculture Department says a new strawberry plant has been developed that bears fruit well into July.
 The new variety, called Lateglow, has been released to nurseries by USDA and the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station. Plant geneticist Gene J. Galletta of the department's Agricultural Research Service, Beltsville, Md., said plants are expected to be available to strawberry growers this fall.

Grain fed production up this spring, but less total beef

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher market prices spurred farmers and feedlot operators to boost grain-fed cattle production this spring, but Agriculture Department analysts say consumers will have less total beef than they did last year.
 "Beef production in 1987 is expected to decline 5 percent to 7 percent from a year earlier, because continued large fed-cattle slaughter will be more than offset by sharp drops in non-fed slaughter this spring and summer," the department's Economic Research Service says.

winding down of the Dairy Termination Program will continue to reduce the supply of non-fed beef as fewer milk cows go to slaughter in the coming months.
 The larger feedlot placements last winter and this spring will mean a seasonal rise in marketings of fed cattle this summer.

Further, bad weather in late winter and reduced inventories in feedlots resulted in fewer animals sent to market, pushing up prices of grain-fed cattle. On the Omaha, Neb., market, for example, choice-grade steers are selling for more than $70 per 100 pounds, up from the low 50s a year ago.
 Encouraged by these returns and low grain prices, producers are putting more cattle into feedlots.
 On Monday, the USDA reported that the number of cattle being fed for the slaughter market as of June 1 in the seven major beef states totaled 7.52 million head, up 6 percent from a year ago and 1 percent more than inventories of two years ago. The states produce about three-fourths of the nation's beef.
 The placement of new cattle and calves in fattening pens last month was reported at 1.95 million head, up 11 percent from a year ago and 17 percent from two years ago. Officials said the May placements were the most for the month since 1978.
 Marketings of fed cattle in May totaled 1.52 million head, down 7 percent from a year ago and 5 percent below two years ago.
 As of June 1, feedlot inventories were larger than a year earlier in Colorado, Iowa, Nebraska and Texas, but were less in Arizona, California and Kansas.
 Department economists say the Diet guidelines emphasize the good of eat-thens. The revised Dietary Guidelines, a joint effort of the USDA and the Department of Health and Human Services reflect moderation in making food choices. They urge eating a variety of foods and maintaining a desirable weight. And, red meats are included in the recommended variety. The variety is necessary to provide the nutrients needed for good health. Red meats along with fish, poultry and eggs supply a complete protein, iron, fat, minerals and vitamin B. Meats are the most easily available source of iron. Iron found in corn, dry beans, rice and green, leafy vegetables can nearly be doubled when eaten with meat. To reduce fat in meats, select lean cuts and broils, broil or roast instead of frying. It is noted that even though the total fat intake has increased over the years, the percentage of fat consumed from meat has decreased. To give your meals the variety required for a healthy diet, sometimes combine meat with starch and fiber such as spaghetti, lasagna, and chili with beans.

Bootman marks anniversary with gift for pope

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The West Texas craftsman gazed at the pair of western boots and smiled.
"This isn't the hardest pair of boots I've ever made," said Jesus Briano, 48-year-old master bootmaker for Tony Lama. "But I'm a religious man, and this makes me feel pretty good."

Briano's handiwork — a $3,000 pair of black Tony Lama cowboy boots that boasts jewel-encrusted papal seals — will be presented to Pope John Paul II in San Antonio during his fall visit to the United States.

Briano, a native of bordering Juarez, Mexico, will mark 33 years with the famed El Paso boot company on Sept. 13, the day the pope is scheduled to receive his Western footwear.

"I've made boots for Prince Charles, Lady Diana and little ones for their little kid," Briano said. His list of special orders also includes President Reagan, Mexican President De La Madrid, and retired Gen. William Westmoreland, for whom he currently is crafting boots emblazoned with eagles and the nickname, "Westy."

Although it took Briano 40 hours to hand make the pope's boots, he said a pair for California Gov. George Deukmejian presented the greatest challenge.

"He had this intricate California state seal — a bear, and all these little stars," he said, shaking his head. "But making the pope's boots, that's the maximum for me."

Outfitting the pontiff in cowboy boots was the vision of Jimmy and Eddie Villarreal, two brothers who own Economy Boot and Shoe Repair in San Antonio. They bounced the notion off the city's archbishop, Patrick Flores, who provided the brothers with His Holiness' shoe size, 44 European and 10½ U.S. The duo then flew to El Paso to consult with Tony Lama boot designer Dan Ponder.

"The three of us sat down and decided to make the boots out of black alligator," Ponder said. "It's a classy dress boot, and the color provides an outlet for different occasions. The black won't clash with his red, purple and white robes."

"We feel he'll wear the boots — he gets gifts all the time, but if they don't fit, they're kind of useless."

The front of each boot is highlighted by an elaborate papal seal, which is anchored by a sky-blue shield inset with a calfskin cross dipped in 24-carat gold. The shield is flanked by two keys, one gold, one white, and topped by a multi-tiered mitre. Soon they will be shipped to San Antonio, where $1,000 in diamonds and rubies will add the finishing touch to this masterpiece in hide.

Briano has worked on more expensive boots, namely a pair called El Rey III. The bejeweled boots were produced by Tony Lama for promotional purposes and are worth $32,000. Ponder said El Rey III — insured by Lloyds of London — never travel without an armed escort.

Despite the relative modesty of the pope's boots, Briano has a special place for them in his sentimental closet of famous footwear. He beamed when recalling his 10-year-old son recently led a session of show-and-tell with photographs of his father's boot magic.

Briano said his mother, also a devout Catholic, is especially thrilled by her son's recent project.

Most of Briano's relatives know he is the artist executing this cowhide coup. The pope will not. The alligator boots bear only the Tony Lama tag. And Briano will not be making the trip to San Antonio.

Briano was asked if he was disappointed that the Vatican leader likely would never know who crafted his gift.

The bootmaker answered with a gesture of faith — thick hands clasped in prayer and smiling eyes rolled gently heavenward.

Groundbreaking Ceremony

Hereford Hustlers and friends of Dr. Stan Fry Jr. broke ground on Thursday for a new 3,000 square foot medical office building in the 1300 block of West Park Avenue, just across from Campbell Street. The local dentist, fourth from right, plans to have an office in addition to his for another dentist or a physician. Rick

Business picks up at amnesty centers

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Empty seats in the waiting area of what once was a furniture store had Charles Perez a little nervous the first week it opened as an alien legalization center.
Six weeks later, the rows of chairs usually are occupied by illegal aliens waiting to be interviewed, immigration attorneys and workers from volunteer agencies.
Perez, chief legalization officer for the Immigration and Naturalization Service's special center for the Rio Grande Valley, enjoys the crowds.

"It just keeps climbing," he said of the number of amnesty applicants, totaling about 150 a day. That is far fewer than the expected daily average of 300, but better than the early turnout when the government's new amnesty plan was first offered May 5.

In fact, amnesty center officials across the South say there has been a steady rise in business.

"We were wondering," said a relieved William Zimmer of the INS' southern region, which stretches from New Mexico to North Carolina. "It was like when you have a party and nobody comes."

The first week the southern region's 22 centers were open, they processed 1,147 applications. By the first week of June, however, the region was taking more than 2,000 applications a day, said Zimmer, adding he expects an average of 3,000 daily in the region by the end of the month.

On June 1, a second amnesty period, lasting for 18 months, began for farm workers.

This month, some of the legalization centers, particularly in Texas, have had to turn people away.

The Arlington center serving North Texas is the busiest in the nation, say INS officials, who last week started a second shift there. It now stays open until 11 p.m. Sometimes the center, located between Dallas and Fort Worth, has almost double its original capacity of 300 applicants.

And in Lubbock, Zimmer said, employees worked until 1 a.m. processing applicants one night. Since then, the Lubbock staff has almost doubled, the recommended capacity raised from 50 to 100, and an additional shift likely will be added.

Nationwide, he predicted that with the growth trend, the INS will overcome its financial woes caused by a sluggish flow of application fees that were supposed to make the program pay for itself. The southern region, he added, already is paying its own way.

It costs $185 per adult application and $90 for each child, up to a total of $420 per family.

The El Paso legalization office, which serves 16 West Texas counties and southern New Mexico, processed a total of 1,064 from May 5-31, but now averages more than 1,000 per week, said Jim Glasgow, chief officer for the center.

INS officials attribute the initial slow period to the time it takes aliens to assemble the documents they need to prove continuous residency since Jan. 1, 1982.

Traditional mistrust of the immigration service also has contributed to the slow response to the one-time amnesty offer.

"It's the very organization they've been trying to avoid for years," said Bertrand Bosmans, an attorney with the Harlingen-based South Texas Immigration Council.

Many worry about the requirement that amnesty candidates list all family members, some of whom may not be eligible for legal status, he said. But as time passes and people see others returning from the centers without being deported, potential applicants become a little more at ease with "La Migra," the nickname for the INS.

"They get much more nervous as they get ready to be sent in," said the Rev. Ted Hervey of Grace Episcopal Church in Weslaco, one of the organizations authorized to aid aliens seeking amnesty. "A lot of them ask what happens if they're not going to be eligible, but when they come back, they're very happy."

Ramon Reyes, 23, from the border city of Nuevo Progreso, said he held back a while to see if it was a trap. "I thought they were going to catch me and send me back right away," Reyes said while waiting in mid-June in the Harlingen center with his wife and 2-month-old son.

"But it's not a trap," Reyes added. "If it was a trap, all these people wouldn't be here."

Some applicants also are delayed because their employers resist providing documentation, fearing they will be liable for taxes, Bosmans said.

But INS officials are upbeat about the busy centers and point out that mobile vans sent to more remote areas are finding a better than expected response. When two vans went to Tyler, officials had anticipated 100 people, but ended up processing 100 families.

By the close of the week ending June 12, the INS nationwide had taken 114,085 applications and a total of $18,059,080 in fees at 107 centers.

Texas' nine centers had taken 26,503 applications and $3,853,670.

Some weak spots, however, disappoint the INS. Laredo had taken only 209 applications as of June 12, despite its border location.

And immigration attorneys are advising aliens that the temporary residency status, work authorization and recommendation for amnesty they receive from the local centers are subject to final approval by the INS' regional office in Dallas.

"I think that perhaps when denials start coming out of Dallas," Bosmans said, "there will be a chill."

AIDS virus discussed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Ever since I learned that the AIDS virus can be found in saliva I have been afraid to go to the dentist. It's been a year and a half since I've had my teeth cleaned and checked. I know I should have this done, but I am terrified that I might get that fatal disease.

Please look into this, Ann. I need some facts. My friends say I am nuts, but they can't give me any convincing backup. Thanks for your help.—Needing Peace of Mind in New Haven

DEAR NEW HAVEN: As of this writing, only one case of AIDS can be traced to the dental chair. I spoke with Dr. Enid Neidle, assistant executive director for scientific affairs at the American Dental Association. Dr. Neidle said that two major independent studies concluded there is almost no risk of transmission in this way.

The most recent study, published in April, 1987, in the Western Journal of Medicine, involved 255 dentists, hygienists and assistants who treated 189 or more patients known to have AIDS. The dental professionals were all exposed to the saliva and blood of these patients. Despite this exposure tests showed that not one of the dental professionals had been infected.

A study published last year in the New England Journal of Medicine involved 100 persons who lived with a family member who had AIDS. The family members had contact with the AIDS patient that included kissing and sharing of toothbrushes and razors. None of those family members tested positive. Almost all AIDS cases result from sexual contacts, from use of shared needles by intravenous drug users or from transfusions of tainted blood. The virus is so unstable that it breaks down almost immediately when exposed to the air. Feel better? I hope so.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two and a half million Americans are trapped in a recurring nightmare. The humiliation and anxiety are beyond my ability to describe. I am talking about stuttering.

Stutterers avoid social situations, reject jobs that require conversation, dread ordering in restaurants, are reluctant to ask directions and often write notes rather than talk on the phone.

When listeners become impatient, the stutterer becomes ashamed and breathless. Throat muscles tighten and the agony is pathetic.

You can help these people by telling them about a national organization composed of members who have self-help groups in every state. As a member, I have seen their newsletters and they are superb.

The organization is operated for and by stutterers. Those interested should write to National Stuttering Project, 1289 Seventh Ave., San Francisco, Ca. 94122. (Please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope—39 cents)—J.M.B., Chicago

DEAR J.M.B.: I have sent for their material and agree that it is first-rate. I urge all stutterers or parents whose children stutter to write at once.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few weeks ago you and Ted Koppel received honorary degrees at Duke University. I'm sure you got a very good look at him. I have $20 that says he wears a hairpiece. How about it?—J.H.E. in N.Y.

DEAR J.H.E.: You lose. Ted's hair looks too good to be true on TV, but I can tell you that it is unmistakably his.
