Leaders sounding serious war cries

Economic development graduates

Nine persons were on hand Tuesday to receive their framed diplomas from an intensive economic development course taught by Southwestern Public Service Company. The graduates included, from left, Rodney Ruthart, Dick Montgomery, David Hernandez, Jo Beth Shackelford, Ken Rogers, Marn Tyler, Larry Malamen, Joe Soliz Jr. and Darwin McGill. The students learned more about the entire economic development process, from helping local business grow and prosper to recruiting companies big and small.

The United States has readied a U.N. resolution that would authorize an attack on Iraq, diplomats report, and a Pentagon source says the Bush administration is sending more armored divisions to the Saudi desert.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III is sounding out allies this week about support for a military drive to oust Saddam Hussein's forces from Kuwait. He was to meet with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev today.

The Soviet foreign minister, Eduard A. Shevardnadze, said as daylong talks began in Moscow that it would be undesirable to use force to liberate Kuwait.

But he refused to commit the Soviet government.

"We'll be discussing all questions now and all options," he said. "I will not answer you now."

The U.N.-ordered embargo on trade with Iraq has failed to pressure Saddam into relinquishing the emirate he seized 14 weeks ago, and U.S. and British officials appear to be running short on patience.

On Wednesday, in her strongest statement yet, Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said "time is running out" for a peaceful solution.

But Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said in an interview that the U.S.-led multinational forces that have massed in Saudi Arabia to counter Iraq should give the U.N. sanctions "at least two to three more months." The New York Times reported today. Baker met with Mubarak in Cairo on Tuesday.

Amid new talk of war in the Persian Gulf's oil fields, crude prices shot up nearly $3 a barrel on Wednesday to about $35.

A barrel cost about $20 before Iraq invaded oil-rich Kuwait on Aug. 2, giving it control of 20 percent of world oil reserves.

In other developments, 74 Japanese freed by Iraq arrived today in Tokyo.

Iraq on Wednesday promised to free 120 more hostages, including a few Americans, and U.S. officials denounced Saddam for his "cynical" use of the captives and the foreign envoys who have visited Baghdad seeking their freedom.

Saddam has been releasing Westerners on a piecemeal basis, sometimes in blocks of a single nationality, in what many governments consider a bid to divide the anti-Iraq alliance.

At the United Nations, diplomats said Wednesday that the United States is testing the waters on a Security Council resolution that would authorize the use of military force to drive Iraq from Kuwait.

If such a measure were adopted, it would be an unprecedented step in the history of the United Nations.

The text of the resolution has not yet been circulated because Baker is abroad trying to line up support for it, said the diplomats, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"We know they've got it on paper, but it would be absurd for them to pass it around until they've got all the crucial support lined up," said one.

Baker, on a week-long trip that began in Saudi Arabia on Sunday, won a pledge of support from China on Tuesday during a Cairo meeting with that country's foreign minister, U.S. officials said.

The Soviet Union and China, as permanent Security Council members, have veto power over resolutions. The United States, France and Britain round out the five permanent members, and Baker travels to Paris and London next.

In Washington, a Pentagon source said late Wednesday that the Bush administration has decided to send additional armored divisions to Saudi Arabia soon to strengthen the U.S. military force in the region.

The source said most of the troops and tanks would come from Europe. A single U.S. armored division includes about 40,000 troops.

The United States currently has 230,000 troops in the region - facing some 430,000 Iraqi troops in Kuwait and southern Iraq - as part of a multinational force that numbers more than 300,000.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says few things are guaranteed to last a lifetime--except perhaps taxes.

Charlie Bell tells us that a good doctor can add 10 years to your life. But, he adds, "eight of those years are spent in the waiting room."

It's a bit unsettling, but we've noticed we're more interested lately in reading articles about Social Security. The good news is that S.S. reserves are in excess of $170 billion. The bad news: The money is invested in government securities.

A fellow in the coffee shop observed another contradiction about our system of government. Noting the proposal for increases in "sin" taxes, the guy said, "The government gets you coming and going. First they drive you to drinking, then they raise the tax on booze."

Not only does television have an influence on today's youth, so does its accessories--like a VCR.

The folks in the driver's license office tell about a young lady who came in for her driving test. It was a typical kind of situation as the young lady was nervous and eager about getting her permit to drive.

The young gal did just fine until the DPS officer asked her to back up. She looked puzzled and began moving the gear shift around.

"What's wrong?" asked the patrolman.

"I can't find rewind," she said.

The trouble with average juvenile delinquent is not always apparent--sometimes it's two parents.

Teachers and coaches know that motivation is the key. Often, telling someone they did a good job is the best motivator. A friend passed along a clipping on 50 ways to say "very good!"

--You're on the right track now. You're doing a good job. That's right. Now you've got it figured out. That's the way! Nice going! That's great! Fantastic. Terrific. Good for you! That's the best you've ever done. Good thinking. Super. You make it look easy. Way to go.

--I've never seen anyone do it better. I knew you could do it. Nothing can stop you now. You've got it made. I'm very proud of you. That's better than ever. Marvelous. Perfect. You remembered. You're really improving. I think you've got it now. Well, look at you go! You've got the down pat. Tremendous. Outstanding.

--I like that. Couldn't be done better. Now, that's what I call fine. You did that very well. Congratulations. That was first-class work. Right on! Sensational. That's the best ever. Good remembering. You haven't missed a thing. It's a pleasure to teach you. You really make my job fun. I can't believe my eyes. You've just about mastered that. One more time and you will have it. You must have been practicing. Wow! That's it.

That's a lot of ways to say "very good," but it's not a complete list. We thought of a couple right away. How about Coach Don Cumpston's high praise when he says, "Heck of a job!" or the current buzz word of the younger set: Awesome!

Richards plans quick start

AUSTIN (AP) - Democrat Ann Richards credited women voters with helping her beat Republican Clayton Williams to seize the Texas governor's office. And a political expert said future candidates would be wise to remember that.

"What we have seen with Ann Richards' election is a very small beginning to what will ultimately be a very great change in the way political campaigns are waged in Texas," said Anne Norton, a government professor at the University of Texas at Austin.

"The women's vote will become much more conspicuous in future years," she said.

Richards got 61 percent of women's votes, compared to 39 percent for Williams, according to exit polls cited in a University of Texas news release. Among men, Williams led 55 percent to 45 percent, it said.

Richards - who beat Williams 50 percent to 47 percent, with 99 percent of the precincts reporting - said Wednesday she worked to "galvanize the women of Texas to understand that this was a crucial election for them."

She cited her pro-choice stand on abortion as important: "I believe the people of Texas agree with me that the government has no right to interfere in your personal life."

At a news conference in the Texas Senate Chamber, Richards described her victory, and those of black and Hispanic statewide candidates, as paving the way for future generations of women and minorities.

"It means that the doors are open to everyone, and they're not going to be closed again," she said.

Besides Richards, voters on Tuesday elected Dan Morales as the state's first Hispanic attorney general, and the second Hispanic to win a statewide office in Texas. Morris Overstreet was elected to the Court of Criminal Appeals, making him the first black to be voted into statewide office in Texas in modern times.

Richards promised to "hit the ground running" as the state's next governor, with education her top priority. And she said she'll work with Republican president George Bush for the good of Texas.

"People of good will who care about their state are going to work well together," said Richards, a Democrat who lampooned Bush in her keynote speech to the 1988 Democratic National Convention.

Bush, who responded to that speech with humor, campaigned this year for Williams.

Despite the expensive and frequently negative gubernatorial campaign, Richards had praise for Williams.

"I was pleased to hear from him last night. He was very gracious in his willingness to offer his help in any way to move Texas forward," she said. Richards said GOP incumbent Gov. Bill Clements' staff also offered help in the transition.

She acknowledged that her victory came in part because of Williams' errors, which highlighted her argument that Texas needs an experienced leader. Richards served two terms as state treasurer.

Last week, Williams showed ignorance about the only proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot, which affects gubernatorial appointments. And he revealed he paid no federal income taxes in 1986.

Earlier Williams gaffes included a joke about rape, about which he apologized, and a crack about whether Richards was drinking. A recovering alcoholic, Richards recently touted her tenth year of sobriety.

In the next legislative session, Richards said the state must focus on education. A state judge has ruled that the Texas school finance system still is unconstitutional.

Urbanczyk delegate to convention

Greg Urbanczyk of Hereford is in Kansas City today serving as an official delegate to the 63rd National FFA Convention.

Urbanczyk, 17, is a senior at Hereford High School and is the son of Tony and Loretta Urbanczyk of Hereford. He is the Area I first vice president and is one of 276 members of the Texas delegation at the convention, which will continue through Saturday.

More than 23,000 FFA members and guests are expected to attend. They will hear U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yentler, Amway President Rich DeVos, former high school principal Joe Clark (subject of the film Lean On Me), and motivational speakers Zig Ziglar and W. Mitchell.

Hightower mum on future

DALLAS (AP) - Democrat Jim Hightower, the chatty Texas agriculture commissioner, is suddenly quiet about his next career move.

Asked if he was interested in filling the Railroad Commission slot vacated by comptroller-elect John Sharp, Hightower said he had "given no thought at all" to his plans when he leaves office in January.

HIGHTOWER

When governor-elect Ann Richards was asked whether she would appoint Hightower to the Railroad Commission, she replied:

"Jim Hightower's loss, I feel a personal sadness about. And I'm sure I'll be talking to Jim about various things. I've made no commitments to anyone for anything in this election."

For eight years the razor-tongued populist took pleasure during his two terms in slamming first the Reagan and then the Bush administration, the Texas Farm Bureau and chemical lobbyists, calling them "right-wing extremists" and "a danger to our future" among other things.

But when the tables turned, and Republican opponent Rick Perry unleashed a series of television attacks on Hightower in the final days of the campaign, it proved the commissioner's undoing.

"I am conceding the election here today," a despondent Hightower said at a news conference Wednesday, less than 24 hours after predicting a victory that would be his "sweetest ever."

Perry's well-placed television ads attacking Hightower as a liberal and the target of an FBI investigation paralyzed the former journalist and pushed Perry to a stirring upset.

"Our TV probably had as much to do with our victory as anything," a jubilant Perry said during a victory speech early Wednesday morning. "Our ads were vivid, showed real people and showed that Hightower is not suited for this job. The people were receptive."

"I did not get the money that allowed us to be on TV as desperately as we wanted to be on there," Hightower said.

Perry had "money that was used to put flat-out lies on TV that I was a flag burner, that I was guilty of all sorts of scandals involving the crop inspection program," Hightower said.

"Unfortunately, I was defenseless against that attack," he said. "That's my fault. I was unable to persuade contributors of the seriousness of the race that I knew and the staff knew that we faced."

Space station back at drawing board

WASHINGTON (AP) - NASA is literally going back to the drawing board to live within its budget and still find a way to build a space station to put Americans into space permanently.

"We have $6 billion more program planned than we have money for," William B. Lenoir, the head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's space flight program, said Wednesday. Congress gave the agency three months to revamp a space station design that was six years in the making.

"It is our intention to come back in 90 days with the answers to what can we do, what makes sense ... and still have a useful, affordable program," Lenoir told reporters. "If we cannot come up with what we consider a reasonable program then we would have to readress whether we should even go forward with the space station."

The Bush administration had asked Congress to spend $2.51 billion in 1991 to propel the $37 billion space station into the hardware-building stage. The lawmakers allotted $1.9 billion instead and told NASA to build the station in smaller steps, each independent of the other.

They also squashed NASA plans to increase yearly spending for the station to $4 billion in 1996, telling the agency it could count on no more than $2.5 billion to $2.6 billion in any one year.

NASA had long planned to hold a comprehensive design review during the last two months of this year, and Lenoir said that process will go forward, even though the final design will have to be reduced in scope.

"We are not going to start over," he said. "We are going to use as much of the existing system as possible." Some of the modules may be built half-size to save money, but the whole station will be designed to accommodate additions later.

Congress told NASA it should be able to build a "man-tended" station with three or four shuttle flights, instead of six. Man-tended is the term used for periodic visits to the station by astronauts who fly there on the space shuttle for stays of 16 days.

Lenoir said plans remain to start construction in the spring of 1995, meaning the station would be ready for work early in 1996. The revised plan, however, won't permit NASA to have crews aboard permanently by the end of the decade as had been envisioned.

A frequent criticism of NASA is that it is building a Cadillac of a space station with all possible options, when it should be building a Chevrolet instead.

Asked about this, Lenoir recalled that Johnny Cash once had a song called "One Piece at a Time," and said, "Maybe we are going to build a Cadillac one piece at a time."

State government takes on new look

AUSTIN (AP) - When the new state government takes over in January, some of the names will be the same, some will be new and more of the top officeholders will be Republicans.

Only one Democrat was returned to the same statewide office he held before Tuesday's elections.

That was Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, easily re-elected to a third term. He credited his environmentalist platform and record, saying, "The people of Texas responded to it."

Democrats held control of both houses of the Legislature, and House Speaker Gib Lewis won re-election to his seat. That means Democrats are well-positioned when it comes to one of the 1991 Legislature's biggest jobs, reapportionment.

Here's a who's who in the new government:

Governor

Ann Richards, 57, will take over from retiring Gov. Bill Clements, the only Republican governor this century.

Richards, the two-term Democratic state treasurer, got her start in politics working in campaigns for others and first won office as a Travis County commissioner in 1976.

After winning treasurer's races in 1982 and 1986, she rose to national prominence as keynote speaker to the 1988 Democratic National Convention. There she gained instant fame for saying George Bush had been "born with a silver foot in his mouth."

After defeating Republican oilman Clayton Williams, she becomes the first woman governor since Miriam "Ma" Ferguson left the office in 1935. Richards is considered the only woman in Texas history to win governor on her own since Mrs. Ferguson followed her husband Jim "Pa" Ferguson, who was elected governor in 1914 and 1916.

Lieutenant Governor

For the first time since 1973, Democrat Bill Hobby won't be on the podium presiding over the Texas Senate.

That job will belong to Democrat Bob Bullock, moving up after serving four terms as state comptroller.

Bullock, 61, is a Hillsboro native who's spent much of his life in Texas politics. He served in the Texas House from 1957-60, was an assistant attorney general in 1967, worked on the staff of Gov. Preston Smith in 1969, was secretary of state in 1971-72 and won election as comptroller in 1975.

He defeated Houston businessman Robb Mosbacher on Tuesday.

Attorney General

Dan Morales, a Democratic state representative from San Antonio, won his first bid for statewide office and becomes the second Hispanic to hold one behind Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez, first elected in 1986.

Morales, 34, is a Harvard Law School graduate and former prosecutor who rose quickly during his short tenure in the Texas House. He chaired the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee and played a key role two years ago on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee.

Morales defeated GOP state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson.

Treasurer

This is a big win for Texas Republicans. GOP candidate Kay Bailey Hutchison defeated Democrat Nikki Van Hightower, the Harris County treasurer, to succeed Richards.

Mrs. Hutchison, 47, is a lawyer and businesswoman from Dallas.

A former television reporter and one-time state legislator, she returned to politics this year after an eight-year absence. In 1982, she lost the GOP nomination in the 3rd Congressional District.

Comptroller

The state's next tax collector is John Sharp, a Democrat who currently regulates the oil and gas industry as one of three members of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Sharp, a Texas A&M graduate, has spent more than a decade in politics. He first was elected to the Texas House from Victoria in 1979, won election to the Senate in 1982 and has been a railroad commissioner since winning the job in 1986.

To succeed Bullock as comptroller, he defeated Republican Warren G. Harding Jr. of Dallas.

Agriculture Commissioner

A shock for Democrats, Republican state Rep. Rick Perry defeated two-term incumbent Jim Hightower.

Perry, 40, is a farmer and rancher from Haskell who changed parties last year. A Texas A&M graduate, he is a three-term veteran of the Texas House where he served on the appropriations, calendars and energy committees.

Perry campaigned against what he said was Hightower's politicization of the office.

Land Commissioner

Mauro, 43, first was elected in 1982. The Texas A&M graduate has made environmental issues, such as beach cleanup, a cornerstone of his efforts. Mauro played a leading role in advocating the use of oil-eating microbes to clean up oil spills along the Gulf Coast.

He defeated Republican Wes Gilbreath of Houston.

Railroad Commissioner

Democrat Bob Krueger captured this seat, which is being vacated by Republican Kent Hance, who lost his party's bid for governor.

Krueger, 55, of New Braunfels, is a former congressman and defeated former GOP Congressman Beau Boulter of Amarillo for the job.

In addition to his time in the U.S. House, Krueger has been U.S. ambassador-at-large to Mexico.

The Courts

Republican Tom Phillips held onto his seat as chief justice, first won in 1988 after his appointment by Gov. Clements in 1987. The Harvard-educated lawyer had emphasized campaign finance reform. He defeated Democratic Justice Oscar Mauzy, who remains on the bench.

Another Republican also joins the court, John Cornyn of San Antonio.

Five Democrats were elected to the Court of Criminal Appeals, including Morris Overstreet of Amarillo, who becomes the first black elected statewide in modern Texas history.

Clements says he'll miss the media 'like a hole in the head'

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements, who retires in January, says he's anxious to get out of town and won't miss a few of the things he'll be leaving behind. Like the news media.

"I can hardly wait," Clements said of his plans to return home to Dallas, adding: "One of the things I'm not going to do is hold press conferences when I leave office."

"Are you going miss us, governor?" one reporter asked.

"Oh, like a hole in the head," Clements replied, laughing.

Clements, the only Republican governor of Texas since Reconstruction, is wrapping up his second term in office. He was elected in 1978, lost to Democrat Mark White in 1982, then recaptured the Governor's Mansion in 1986.

Although some of White's aides reportedly were less than helpful during that transition, Clements said he has ordered his staff to do everything they can to assist Democrat Ann Richards as she prepares to take over.

"I've already called her, and she understands that whatever I can do to assist her in making this transition that I am happy to do it," Clements said.

"My staff and I are committed to working with Ann Richards to further the best interests of all Texans. It is imperative that we as a state put this campaign behind us and continue our efforts to move Texas forward," he said.

Clements declined to speculate on what happened to GOP candidate Clayton Williams, although he said he was surprised by the Republican's defeat.

He noted that U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm won with more than 60 percent of the vote, Republican Tom Phillips was re-elected Supreme Court chief justice, and Republicans captured two offices they haven't held this century - treasurer and agriculture commissioner.

"I don't think there is any question that Texas is now a two-party state," Clements said.

"The people of Texas have spoken," he said. "I'm not going to get into all that, who shot John and so forth and so on ... If you expect me to comment about where there was a turning point or what he said or when he said it, I'm not going to get into all that."

Despite the Republican loss, Clements said he was optimistic about the GOP.

Overcome trauma of child abuse

"The world breaks everyone and afterward some are strong at the broken places." -Ernest Hemingway

If some of your unhappiness today is a result of child abuse that you may or may not remember, a fascinating new book offers insights on how to deal with your problems and transcend them.

Psychotherapist and social worker Linda T. Sanford has counseled many adult victims of childhood trauma and abuse over the past 20 years. In her new book Strong at the Broken Places: Overcoming The Trauma of Childhood Abuse, Sanford eloquently addresses the question asked by many researchers: Why do some abused children emerge as productive, even happy, adults, while others are consigned to continue their lives in misery?

Those survivors who are able to break free of the patterns of the past and go on to lead healthy and fulfilling lives-and that includes most of the victims of child abuse, says Sanford-derive their greatest strengths in the very areas where they've been hurt the most, becoming not only strong, but "strong at the broken places."

Drawing on her experience as a therapist and on extensive interviews with 20 healthy adults who suffered extreme physical, sexual and/or emotional trauma in childhood, Strong at the Broken Places provides vivid and moving proof that total recovery is possible. Sanford shows how survivors learn to:

-Make use of "positive triggers" to recover and integrate memories of

- trauma.
- Unlearn the "lies of the mind" dysfunctional families teach.
- Overcome "frozen feelings" and shame, and the self-destructive behaviors they lead to.
- Listen to, accept and care for the body.
- Reunite the "parent within" and the "child within."
- Achieve intimacy with friends, siblings, children and lovers.
- Channel the empathy and dedication that are characteristic of survivors in meaningful, satisfying work-and play.
- Identify the "gifts"-skills, interests, creativity, heightened talents-that develop in the shadow of abuse.

Henry, Ginn present program

Lajeane Henry, owner of the Pants Cage, and Marcie Ginn gave a two-part program when members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Mary Stubblefield.

Carol Odom opened the meeting and introduced Henry who spoke on "Choosing Your Colors." Club members were asked to wear their favored colored garments. Henry discussed what colors were best for each considering their individual skin and hair colors. Ginn talked on colors, styles and accessories for each woman. She also demonstrated how to wear various belts and jewelry.

During the business session, a nominating committee was elected: Louise Axe, Coreen Odom and Stubblefield.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 15 in the home of Beverly Brooke.

Attending the meeting were Argen Draper, Virgie Duncan, Carol Odom, Coreen Odom, Clara Trowbridge, Camelia Jones, Axe, Pet Ott, Louise Packard, Ginn and Stubblefield.

Supper planned by lodge

Plans for a Thanksgiving supper were finalized when members of the Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met Tuesday in regular session with Noble Grand Rosalie Northcutt presiding.

The holiday dinner will be served at 7 p.m. Nov. 13 with a short business meeting scheduled at 6:30 p.m.

Reports were made on sick members. Eight visits to the sick, 19 cheer cards, four dishes of food delivered and four flowers were listed.

Present at the meeting were Susie Curtsinger, Northcutt, Leona Sowell, Irene Merritt, Jo Irlbeck, Tony Irlbeck, Anna Conklin, Ben Conklin and Ursalee Jacobsen.

Minority teens more concerned about AIDS

Black and Hispanic students are more worried about AIDS than white students, according to a recent survey of West Texas teenagers. The survey results were published in a recent issue of Texas Medicine.

The survey of 289 ninth-grade students from three urban and five rural schools in West Texas showed 77 percent of Blacks and 70 percent of Hispanics are worried about contracting AIDS. That compares to only 55 percent of white students who said they worry about AIDS. Black students also were more likely to say they would change their behavior or be more careful. Whites most often said they had no need to change.

The survey was conducted by Joe W. Kraft, Jeff Q. Bostic and Mary Tallent. Kraft and Bostic are third-year medical students at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center School of Medicine. Tallent is an assistant professor of educational psychology in the College of Education at Texas Tech. Texas Medicine is the official journal of the Texas Medical Association.

AIDS among teenagers is a major problem because of the high number of teens who are sexually active or have experimented with illicit drugs. By 1993, it is estimated that AIDS will be the leading cause of death among people 20-29 years of age, with many of these cases contracted during adolescence, the authors state.

"Certainly, a significant number of adolescents exhibit behaviors which put them at risk for acquiring or transmitting the HIV virus," Kraft, Bostic and Tallent write.

The researchers report that AIDS knowledge among West Texas teenagers is high compared to survey results from other states. However, they say minority students appear less knowledgeable than whites about some AIDS facts, including that people can be infected with AIDS without having symptoms, there is no vaccine against AIDS, AIDS cannot be spread by donating blood, and AIDS can be transmitted from a pregnant AIDS-infected mother to her child.

"While all ethnic groups deserve complete, repeated AIDS prevention instruction, AIDS cases are increasing disproportionately among black and Hispanics," Kraft, Bostic and Tallent write. "Since these groups, at least as teenagers, appear to be less knowledgeable than whites about AIDS efforts to insure that Blacks and Hispanics are well informed of the basic pathology, carrier state, progression and lack of a vaccine seem in order."

A majority of teens who participated in the survey answered seven of eight general knowledge items correctly. However, less than half knew that AIDS is caused by a virus.

When asked about changes in their behavior because of AIDS, 44 percent said they had made no changes, 29 percent said they were more careful and 10 percent said they now used protection, such as condoms.

TMA is a professional organization of more than 29,000 physician and medical student members. It is based in Austin and has 1,129 component county medical societies around the state. The association represents 82 percent of the doctors of medicine licensed and residing in Texas.

WTSU musicians tune up for faculty recital

"The finest music department in the Texas A&M University system"-that's how Dr. Sue Park, dean of the Sybil B. Harrington College of Fine Arts and Humanities at West Texas State University, introduced the Faculty Grand Recital a year ago. And after a 90-minute concert, everyone in the 750-plus audience knew she was right.

Members of the music department faculty will reinforce that fact at the Seventh Annual Faculty Grand Recital at 8 p.m. Friday in the Mary Moody Northern Recital Hall on the WTSU campus.

Program selections and performers include "Final" by Cesar Frank-James Gardner, organ; "Reverie" by Claude Debussy and arranged by W. Ford-Sally Turk, flute, Sherri Scales, violin, and Wallace Ford, harp; "Scherzo" by Daniel van Goens-David Murray, double bass, and Mary Helen Demus, piano; "Siciliana" by Michael Head-Robert Krause, oboe, and Ranell McDonough, piano; "Polkovadetz" by Modest Mussorgsky-Stephen Morschek, bass-baritone, and James Gardner, piano; "Piece Concertante" by Carlos Salzedo-Joseph Cox, trombone, and James Gardner, piano; "The Graceful Ghost" by William Bolcom-Stanley Potter, piano; "Terzetto" by Antonion Dvorak-Dawn Harms, violin, James Lyon, violin, and Amy Brandfonbrener, viola; "Six Short Renaissance Lute Pieces" (anonymous) and "Introduction and Allegro" by Fernando Sor-Fred Johnson, guitar; "Concertpiece No. 2" by Felix Mendelssohn-Douglas Storey, clarinet, Tina Carpenter, bassoon, and Mary Helen Demus, piano; "Song for My Father" by Horace Silver and "Straight, No Chaser" by Theonius Monk-David Ritter, trumpet, James Gardner piano, Nick Scales, bass, and Garner Fielding, drums.

An open-to-the-public reception will follow the concert in the Northern Hall Atrium.

Admission is $5 per person or $1 for students with WTSU identification. Tickets may be purchased in advance in Room 102 of the Fine Arts Building or on a first-come, first-served basis at the door the night of the performance.

Faculty Grand Recital tickets may be purchased individually or as a part of a series. The four-concert series, which includes the Friday recital, the Dec. 2 Christmas concert, a Feb. 10 guest artist recital and the April 2 concert contest winners/orchestra recital, costs $15 per person.

Know the facts about cholesterol

Most of us know that heart disease is America's number one killer. Over 55 percent of adult Americans have a cholesterol level over 200 which the American Heart Association says is dangerous and can contribute to heart disease. But because there has been so much confusion over cholesterol and heart disease, it's hard to know what to do. The following are a few common myths and facts about cholesterol and what you eat.

Myth: Cutting out dietary cholesterol will always lower your blood cholesterol.

Fact: Cutting out dietary cholesterol can help, but over two-thirds of your cholesterol is manufactured in your own body. So if you have a high cholesterol level, it is important to take additional steps to lower it. Cut back on saturated fats in the diet and eat a diet rich in soluble fiber which scientists believe can bind with cholesterol compounds in the digestive track and prevent them from being absorbed into the body thus ultimately lowering blood cholesterol levels.

Myth: Just eating fiber, any fiber will lower your blood cholesterol.

Fact: Scientist believe that certain soluble fibers are primarily responsible for lowering serum cholesterol levels. These include fibers such as guar gum, psyllium, locust bean gum and pectin. With insoluble fiber, like bran, the primary action is to create bulk and help maintain regularity, not lower cholesterol.

Myth: Your normal diet provides plenty of soluble fiber.

Fact: In fact, the average American consumes only 7-14g of fiber with most of that insoluble. experts recommend 20-35 grams of fiber daily. Shaklee Heart Plan is a fruit-flavored drink that contains 5g of soluble fiber per serving. It provides the amount of soluble fiber in six apples or 3 1/2 bowls of oatmeal.

Myth: Women don't have to worry about heart disease and cholesterol.

Fact: Heart disease is the number one cause of death among American women not just for men. And twice as many women died of heart disease last year then from all cancers combined.

For a free booklet on diet and cholesterol lowering, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Shaklee Corporation, 6100 West 73 St., Bedford Park, IL 60638.

Red Man Regional worth braving cold

The biggest and most important regional fishing event of 1990 was held this past weekend on Ute Lake in New Mexico. The fine folks in Quay County went all out to provide great facilities and friendly assistance for the Red Man Regional, featuring the top 150 anglers from the western United States. Special recognition goes to the Chambers of Commerce in Tucumcari and Logan. Shirley Hancock, the manager of the Pow Wow Inn in Tucumcari, provided great working conditions for officials and the media. On a personal note, our live Wednesday evening radio show was made possible by Shirley. Thanks.

The fishing at Ute was super tough. While the fish were moving to their winter homes in deep water, the fishermen were trying to find them on shallow patterns. Dreabon Joiner of Winnsboro, Texas won a new pickup and fully-rigged boat at this prestigious event by catching more than 23 pounds of bass. Dreabon, who helped conduct our regional fishing seminar last winter, recognized the new winter pattern and fished submerged trees in 24 feet of water. You won't want to miss our February 1991 fishing seminar that will again feature Dreabon.

Local fishing expert Butch Colantonio from Randall County was the only Texas entry from west of Dallas and finished just 14 ounces out of 10th place and a free trip to the $100,000 Red Man All-American Tournament. Butch had found some quality shallow-water fish that simply moved to deep water on opening day.

The blizzard that hit the lake Saturday morning made conditions unbearable for many fishermen. Freezing rain and sleet sure gets to those guys from California. They were off the water before noon. Only 21 anglers out of 150 qualifiers caught any fish on the second and final day.

The weather aside, I really enjoyed this trip to Ute Lake. The chance to learn from Butch and to fish with professional bass angler Ted Miller of Arizona made for an unforgettable week of fishing.

Notice all the happy hunters wandering around town with those silly grins? That's right, quail season has opened and both the hunters and bird dogs are in a trance. This trance is induced by the adrenalin shock after that first covey of quail surprises both man and dog. These opening day symptoms can usually be cured by quickly returning to the field and having a trusty bird dog find more coveys.

What is going on with B.A.S.S.? Their MegaBucks Tournament couldn't field a full slate of 250 entries and payback was reduced by some $200,000. I wonder when B.A.S.S. is going to start sharing the television money with anglers. Only in fishing are the working professionals locked out of television revenues.

Herd looking to wrap up District 1-4A top playoff seed Friday against Borger

By SAM WALLER
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces will still have one little piece of business left to take care of when they visit Borger at 7:30 p.m. Friday for the 1990 regular season finale.

The Herd (4-4-1 overall, 3-0-1 in District 1-4A) clinched a playoff berth last week with a 36-7 win over Amarillo Caprock, but the question of who will go in as 1-4A's first seed remains up in the air.

Herd coach Don Cumpton said having something the playoff picture still not completely decided makes the contest as important as any other district game.

"What makes this game so important is momentum (for the playoffs)," Cumpton said, "and the fact that we have the chance to represent this district as the first-place team."

"I feel good about this team. I think they're peaking out at the right time. We're playing our best ball of the year right now and that's what you want to have happen as you go into the playoffs."

Cumpton added that having already wrapped up a third consecutive trip to the playoffs does make the 10th week of the season a little easier to get through.

"The pressures involved are not quite as harsh, I'd say, because regardless of what happens in the game we're going to be a playoff team. I think you can relax a little."

"You still have to get ready to play. You have to play with a great amount of intensity, but that other pressure where 'we've got to win this game' (to make the playoffs) isn't there."

Cumpton said the situation is one he enjoys being in.

"I've seen teams before - and we've had teams before - that relaxed and played with great effort and great intensity," he said, "just had a big time and played their best game of the year in a similar situation. That's what we'd like to do. We'd like to play well and keep improving."

"We've been improving and we need to continue that. We don't want to digress because we're kinda tryin' to climb a mountain here. We're part of the way up and we want to keep going up."

The Bulldogs (4-5, 2-2) will be looking to knock the Herd back down

Bring it on, bud

Rover Stephen Banner (32) of the Hereford Whitefaces blocks the outside path of Amarillo Caprock quarterback Richard Williams (15) during last week's 26-7 win over the Longhorns while Herd defensive end Mark Kriegshauser (84) comes up from the inside. The Herd will travel to Borger for Friday's regular season finale before entering the Class 4A playoffs for the third year in a row. Kickoff for the game is set for 7:30 p.m.

the mountain a ways as they try to finish the year at .500.

Borger picked up its second 1-4A win last week by outscoring Canyon Randall 60-35. Quarterback Leroy Jones led the 'Dogs with 149 rushing yards on only nine carries and scored on runs of 63, 53 and 12 yards. Jones also completed five of six passes for 187 yards with touchdowns of 52 and 72 yards.

Cumpton said Borger's speed will be a key to the game.

"They've probably got the most speed of anybody in the district," he said. "Their quarterback was the district sprint champ last year. The Knighton boy (halfback Ronald) is fast. That is why you have to be alert. You have to understand that they can run. They're a little different from the other teams in the district."

While Jones (5-7 1/2, 138) and Knighton (5-4 1/2, 138) are not as big as some players, Cumpton said the Herd can't allow the game to turn into a track meet.

"That's what happened last week against Randall," he said. "They just ran up and down the field. They returned a kickoff for a touchdown (Knighton 82 yards), broke some long runs and turned short passes into big gainers."

Cumpton added that the 'Dogs will show Hereford nothing new offensively out of their Wing-T set.

"They are very similar to Caprock offensively," he said. "They run a lot of misdirection, a lot of bootleg stuff and sweeps. Then they have the big fullback (200-pounder Jason McLemore) who they bang inside at you with."

Brown works way to top of AP Honor Roll

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Jody Brown became Cross Plains' workhorse last weekend and finally tilted under determined Tolar with a performance that included 370 rushing yards and four touchdowns and 14 tackles and two interceptions, one an 86-yard touchdown return.

Cross Plains coach Kyle Coker kept trying to give his two-way star a rest but Tolar kept rallying, resulting in the performance that earned Brown mention in the Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

"We couldn't get him out of the game because Tolar kept coming back," Coker said. "This wasn't a game where a guy ran up yards against a bad team."

Brown rushed 41 times for his biggest performance of the year in the 36-21 victory, getting touchdown runs of 62, 23, 36 and 73 yards.

Brown finally got the game under control late in the fourth quarter when he killed a Tolar drive with an 86-yard interception return for the final score.

"We've built our offense around Jody and he's a good defensive player too," Coker said. "But this is by far the biggest game he's had."

Brown, 6-1, 185, was an honorable mention all-state running back in 1989 as a sophomore, when he rushed for 1,600 yards. He was a district champion in the 110- and 300-meter hurdles last season and narrowly missed a trip to the state track meet in the 300 hurdles.

Midlothian's Labron Cornell got quick results from his team's move four weeks ago to the run-and-shoot offense.

Cornell caught a state Class 4A record 19 passes in a 55-35 loss to Waxahachie, giving him a total of 41 receptions since moving from running back to wide receiver in the run-and-shoot.

Before going to the new offense, Cornell had caught two passes.

Cornell broke the 4A record of 15 catches in a game set in 1988 by Erik Houda of Tuloso-Midway. Dublin's Sammy Taylor set the state record of 22 catches in 1980.

Amarillo Tascosa's Stephon McQueen returned a kickoff 107 yards for the winning touchdown with 4:32 left to play in a 14-9 victory over Lubbock Monterey. McQueen also rushed 122 yards on 21 carries.

San Benito's Henry Cavazos completed 19 of 27 passes for 364 yards and touchdowns of 18, 88, 30, 26 and 10 yards leading his team to a district title-clinching 52-8 victory over Weslaco.

Laredo Cigarroa's Robert Rodriguez completed 19 of 37 passes for 308 yards and touchdowns of 15 and 32 yards in a 23-6 victory over Eagle Pass. He also kicked two extra points and punted for 68 yards.

In other outstanding performances: -Matt Bromlow gained 245 yards on 32 carries and scored on a 2-yard run, leading Hereford to a 26-7 victory over Amarillo Caprock. It is the second time this season Bromlow has been on the honor roll.

Herd soph contest canceled

Today's game between the Hereford Whiteface sophomore football team and the Borger junior varsity has been canceled, according to Hereford Athletic Director Don Cumpton.

Cumpton said Borger requested cancellation of the game, which was scheduled for 7 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium, because several Borger players were ill, leaving the Bulldog JV without enough players to field a team.

The move leaves only one game on today's schedule as the Herd freshmen visit Plainview for a 5 p.m. contest.

Herd rated as 13-point favorite to collar 'Dogs

The Hereford Whitefaces enter Friday's regular season finale at Borger as a 13-point favorite, according to the Harris Rating System.

The Herd (4-4-1 overall, 3-0-1 in District 1-4A) will be coming off last week's playoff-clinching 26-7 win over Amarillo Caprock. The Bulldogs (4-5, 2-2) exploded for a 60-35 win against Canyon Randall last Friday.

Hereford used its victory to move up three places to No. 51 in the Harris rankings for Class 4A and added one rating point for a power rating of 177.

Borger climbed nine spots to No. 102 after its win and boosted its rating two points to 164.

DISTRICT 1-4A GAMES

The District 1-4A race finally has been narrowed to only a few possibilities as the Herd wrapped up one of two playoff berths last week.

Hereford and Pampa sit atop the league standings at 3-0-1 with Caprock third at 3-1, Borger fourth at 2-2 and Dumas and Randall still at the bottom with 0-4 marks.

Pampa visits Caprock tonight with the winner going to the playoffs. A tie favors Pampa as the Harvesters are undefeated in district play.

The only question left would be how the teams are seeded, which will be determined by the Hereford-Borger game. If the Herd wins, it is No. 1 regardless of the outcome of Pampa-Caprock.

In this week's other game, Randall visits Dumas on Friday to see who remains in the cellar.

Pampa (5-2-1, 3-0-1) at Caprock (3-6, 3-1): To put things simply, this is a playoff game. The winner goes on while the loser goes to basketball.

The Harvesters are 1-4A's highest rated team for the sixth week in a row, coming in at No. 45 with a 175 rating after last week's 52-21 route of Dumas. The win left Pampa down two places in the rankings and left the Harvesters' rating unchanged.

Caprock had its three-game winning streak, which was the longest of the year by a 1-4A team at the time, snapped by Hereford. (The Herd and Harvesters both extended their winning streaks to three last week.)

The loss dropped the 'Horns five places to No. 111 and trimmed a point off their rating, leaving it at 162.

Harris rates the Harvesters a 17-point favorite to play another week.

Randall (0-9, 0-4) at Dumas (0-9, 0-4): The battle for the bottom should fittingly end in a 0-0 tie, but with both teams possessing pass-oriented attacks and apparently no defense the game could be the highest-scoring in the state. And it could take all night.

The Demons come off the loss to Pampa with absolutely no change in rank or rating, staying at No. 147 with a 151 power rating.

Randall managed to slip two places to No. 158 and lost one rating point to 142.

Harris favors Dumas by 6.

DISTRICT 2-4A

With the playoffs just a week away and four teams still alive, the possibilities for Hereford's Bi-District opponent are even more confusing than the 1-4A race was last week.

Snyder and Levelland are both 3-1 in league play with Snyder owning a win over the Lobos. Lubbock Estacado is third at 2-1-1 and Wolfforth Frenship is still in the picture at 2-2. None of the four has clinched a spot.

This week has Snyder at Lamesa, Frenship at Levelland and Estacado meeting Lubbock Dunbar. If Snyder and Levelland win, they are first and second, respectively. Estacado, once ranked second in the state, must win and have either Snyder or Levelland lose while Frenship must win and have either Snyder or Estacado lose.

"That thing is really a mess down there as far as our opponent in the first round," said Hereford head coach Don Cumpton. "It could be any one of four teams. That puts us in the position of having to scout all four."

-Steve Melton scored six touchdowns and gained 247 yards on 37 carries in leading Kerens to a 38-26 victory over Scurry-Rosser.

-Groesback's Brandon Bennett completed 15 of 20 passes for 223 yards and four touchdowns in a 70-6 victory over Teague.

-Italy's Bobby Wilson rushed 258 yards on 19 carries and scored one touchdown in a 47-0 victory over Frost.

-Hart tailback Danny Reyna rushed 245 yards on 29 carries and scored on runs of 33, 61, 1 and 7 yards in a 39-21 victory over Hale Center.

-Del Rio running back Brian Hopkins gained 180 yards on 16 carries and had touchdown runs of 62, 37 and 22 yards in a 40-19 victory over Laredo Nixon.

But stopping Jones will be the number one priority, he said. "Jones has great speed. He's not a great passer, but he can hurt you passing if you go to sleep."

Cumpton added that the 'Dogs use Jones more as a fourth running back who just happens to take the snap.

"Definitely," he said. "In fact, he's probably higher than fourth on their list, he's probably their number one guy. They would rather him have the ball than anybody. They just took their best running back and made a quarterback out of him."

Keeping Borger's speedy backs under wraps will be the big challenge for the Herd defense.

"We've got to keep them inside of us," Cumpton said. "And we've been doing a pretty good job of that. When you get down to this point of the season your defense needs to control the game. And I really think we have been playing awfully well on defense the last three or four weeks. We think we can keep them bottled up."

Keeping opponents bottled up has not been a problem for the unit over the last four games. In district play the defense has allowed an average of 165.75 yards per game and a total of 37 points. Of those points, 21 came in the first half against Pampa, meaning the Herd has given up 16 points in its last 14 quarters.

"We're improving," Cumpton said, "and of course we've been playing different teams."

"It really started with the Levelland game. We played great defense that night (nine points, 158 total yards) and have continued to since then. We didn't play bad defense against Pampa. We gave up 24 points, but some of those were after turnovers."

As well as the defense has been playing, the offense has also picked up since the beginning of league play. The Herd is averaging 366.5 yards and 30.5 points per game.

"I attribute that (improvement) mainly to confidence and improved execution," Cumpton said. "We've cut down on the turnovers and our offensive line has gotten a little better every week. Those are things you hope you're doing the very best you can do at the end of the season. And it's kinda worked out that way for us."

Cumpton said the 'Dogs will pack the line of scrimmage against the Herd.

"They run a goal-line defense nearly all over the field," he said. "They line up there and pressure you and go straight man-to-man in the secondary. They'll have all 11 players within about five yards of the ball."

Cumpton added that while the defensive scheme has worked against the run, it is also susceptible to big plays.

"The thing about it is it presents some problems for you sometimes up front," he said. "But, if you block them and get five or six yards past the line of scrimmage, you have a chance to go the distance."

"Caprock did that (two weeks ago in a 20-12 win). Their fullback broke two times on just a little trap play up the middle. And when he broke the line of scrimmage there wasn't anybody there."

Herd fans will give the team a sendoff at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the intersection of 15th Street and Ave. K. Boosters are encouraged to bring signs and posters supporting the team to the gathering on the Aikman School playground.

Bowls getting even quicker at handing out post-season invitations

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The college football bowls, which traditionally fill their holiday stockings well in advance of the official NCAA deadline, have done their 1990 Christmas shopping earlier than usual.

More than two weeks before the Nov. 24 invitation date, most of the bowls apparently have their teams signed, sealed and all but delivered—pending the outcome of some key remaining games.

"It's the earliest it's ever been done," said Jim Brock, executive vice president of the Cotton Bowl. "I'm a little disappointed that people are panicking and I'm really disappointed that people are calling press conferences."

Brock apparently was referring to the John Hancock Bowl's disclosure earlier this week that it had lined up Southern California and Michigan State.

"You snooze, you lose," was the retort from a Hancock Bowl official, who laid some of the blame for early invitations on the conferences.

"The conferences have gotten to where they determine the bowls they want to go to, get the bowls together and close a three-way deal," he said. "It makes it tough when you're fighting a league that wants this bowl, this bowl and this bowl. Before, you used to deal with the school and do your own deal."

The earliest permissible invitation date for years has been the Saturday after the third Tuesday in November, this year Nov. 24. An NCAA subcommittee has recommended doing away with the invitation date altogether next year.

"Open warfare," one bowl

official called that idea.

The current scenario has No. 1 Notre Dame bound for the Orange Bowl if it beats No. 9 Tennessee on Saturday, even with games left against Penn State and Southern Cal. Fourth-ranked Colorado, the Big Eight leader, is the likely Orange Bowl host team with only Oklahoma State and Kansas State left on the regular-season schedule.

If Notre Dame wins on Saturday, No. 5 Miami seems headed for the Cotton Bowl. If the Irish lose to Tennessee, the order could be reversed, with Miami in the Orange and Notre Dame in the Cotton.

Second-ranked Washington has clinched a spot in the Rose Bowl, probably against No. 6 Iowa, the Big Ten leader. The Hawkeyes still must play Ohio State, Purdue and Minnesota.

Third-ranked Houston, the nation's only unbeaten-untied team, is on probation and ineligible for the Cotton Bowl. Texas is the Cotton Bowl front-runner with a 4-0 Southwest Conference mark, but still must face Houston, Texas Christian, Baylor and Texas A&M. The last three are bowl possibilities.

The Citrus Bowl's dream of a national championship game died when Virginia, last week's No. 1 team, lost to Georgia Tech. Instead, the Cavaliers will head for the Fiesta Bowl—provided they beat North Carolina on Saturday—with Penn State, Michigan and Florida State as possible opponents. The Citrus will match Georgia Tech and Nebraska.

The Southeastern Conference, which sends its champion to the Sugar Bowl, likely will cut a deal with the Gator, Peach and either the All American or Liberty Bowls.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Cleveland 100, Charlotte 89; Dallas 104, Philadelphia 101; San Antonio 161, Denver 153; Phoenix 126, Golden State 119; and Detroit 110, the Los Angeles Clippers 83.

The Bulls, who got 17 points and 10 rebounds from Horace Grant, also took care of the boards, outrebounding Minnesota 41-29.

Tony Campbell led the Timberwolves with 26 points.

Flu grounds high-flying Jordan, but Bulls manage 96-91 victory

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

With Michael Jordan flu-ridden, the Chicago Bulls didn't figure to get over an early-season illness of their own. Then along came B.J. Armstrong, and they got well in a hurry.

Armstrong came off the bench to score 10 of his 14 points during a decisive 18-8 second-half surge Wednesday night, enabling the Bulls to avoid their first 0-4 start in 23 years with a 96-91 victory over the Minnesota Timberwolves.

"I get a lot of flak from the guys," said Armstrong, whose slight build and boyish face belie his status as a second-year pro. "They're always teasing me."

"When I go out to a bar, I always get carded. I guess that when I'm 40 I'll appreciate looking young."

The Bulls appreciated his performance, badly needed on a night when Jordan scored just 17 points—about half his career average.

"He came through," Jordan said. "We needed that. We needed to win just to stop the bleeding."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Cleveland 100, Charlotte 89; Dallas 104, Philadelphia 101; San Antonio 161, Denver 153; Phoenix 126, Golden State 119; and Detroit 110, the Los Angeles Clippers 83.

The Bulls, who got 17 points and 10 rebounds from Horace Grant, also took care of the boards, outrebounding Minnesota 41-29.

Tony Campbell led the Timberwolves with 26 points.

Mavericks 104, 76ers 101

Roy Tarpley scored 26 points and reserve forwards Herb Williams and Alex English combined for 18 in the fourth period for Dallas.

Two free throws by Derek Harper gave the Mavericks a 104-99 lead with 12 seconds left, but Johnny Dawkins made a layup with three seconds remaining.

Charles Barkley intercepted the inbound pass deep in the corner, but his 3-point shot at the buzzer bounced off the rim as the 76ers lost for the first time in three games this season.

Cavaliers 100, Hornets 89

Larry Nance scored eight of his 21 points in the fourth quarter and Cleveland held off a late rally by Charlotte.

The Hornets shot 71 percent from the floor in the first quarter and led by as many as 12 points early in the second before missing 13 straight shots, letting Cleveland back in it. The Cavaliers ran off 15 consecutive points, capped by Craig Ehlo's 3-pointer, for a 42-39 advantage, and they led 46-45 at the half.

Cleveland took control with a 10-point run in the third period.

Spurs 161, Nuggets 153

David Robinson scored a career-high 43 points and Terry Cummings added 31 as hot-shooting San Antonio beat defenseless Denver.

Sean Elliott also had a career-best 29 points and Reggie Williams 22 for the Spurs (2-0), who shot 63 percent from the field. Denver shot 57 percent.

Denver (0-4), which set an NBA record with 90 first-half points, was led by Orlando Woolridge with 37 points. Walter Davis added 32 points and Todd Lichti 29.

Suns 126, Warriors 119

Eddie Johnson scored 17 of his 35 points in the fourth quarter as Phoenix rallied to beat Golden State.

Kevin Johnson added 22 points and Tom Chambers 15 for the Suns.

Golden State, which got 30 points apiece from Chris Mullin and Mitch Richmond, and 27 from Tim Hardaway, led 63-57 at halftime and 95-92 after the third period.

A slam by Phoenix's Dan Majerle forged the game's 14th and final tie at 99-99 with 9:15 remaining. Then rookie Cedric Ceballos put the Suns ahead to stay on a free throw with 8:08 left.

Pistons 110, Clippers 83

Joe Dumars scored 25 points to lead six Pistons in double figures as Detroit routed Los Angeles.

Benoit Benjamin, who missed the first three games of the season with a separated shoulder, returned to center and led Los Angeles with 18 points. James Edwards and Vinnie Johnson supported Dumars with 14 points apiece.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The primitive nature of man never ceases to baffle me. After 20 years of a solid marriage, I sensed that another woman was making a big play for my husband. My confidence in his fidelity devoted to be well-placed when, six months later, her phone calls and open flirting at social events stopped.

I was curious as to what caused him to resist the temptation to stray, since the would-be interloper was much younger than I and certainly much more beautiful. So I asked him, hoping he would say it was my steadfast devotion, my charm, my wit and my excellence as a mother and homemaker. I was stumped to hear him say, "Our sex life was so good I just couldn't see giving it up."

He was not the least bit concerned about his children, his religion, what our parents and families might think, nor did he worry that a divorce might ruin him financially. It was the sex that made the difference.

I had imagined that an open discussion would give me confidence. Instead it has been a constant grind in my craw. I'm crushed that all the things I've worked so hard on mean nothing to him. Maybe I can find relief from the pain by taking about it. Thanks for listening. -- Baffled in Tulsa

DEAR TULSA: The answer he gave you may be partially true but rest assured that the factors you hoped would make the difference certainly did, whether he was willing to admit it or not. Maybe the lesson to be learned is, "Let sleeping dogs lie."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently, I had the opportunity to travel from our home in New York, through Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee. Along the way, I struck up some friendly conversation with the locals. To my dismay, all too often the conversation went something like this:

"Where are you from?"
"I'm from New York."
"I hate New York. New Yorkers are so rude! I'd never live in New York."

Ann, I am not from New York City. It amazes me how no one ever asks what part of New York I am from. I'd like to respond to these people as follows:

If you look at a map of New York, you will realize that only a small portion of it is New York City. New York is a beautiful state. It has the Adirondack Mountains, rolling hills, vineyards, miles of farmland, maple sugar and some of the best apples you will ever eat. We also have Niagra Falls. Lake Ontario is one of the best fishing spots in the country. We are centrally located next door to Vermont, Pennsylvania and Canada. New York has it all.

Have a barbeque Korean style

Bulgogi, the queen of the Korean barbeque, is a taste experience awaiting discovery by foreign travelers and their friends back home.

The culinary adventure of Bulgogi begins with the presentation. The table is covered with a myriad of small bowls, each filled with seasoned vegetables; serving is family style.

Thinly sliced beef, marinated in sesame seed oil and garlic, is grilled at the table. Although the meat is delicious on its own, the secret to Bulgogi is the combination of lettuce leaves, sauces, kimchi, seasoned vegetables and rice.

"After grilling, dip the meat in soy sauce laced with white wine vinegar. The beef is then placed in the center of the lettuce leaf with vegetables and kimchi, bean paste and steamed rice," Duk-Soo Hur, director of Korea National Tourism Corporation in Los Angeles, explained.

A basic definition for kimchi is "seasoned, preserved vegetables," but kimchi is much, much more! Kimchi has a long history in Korea.

Prior to the era of refrigeration, vegetables were seasoned with chili paste and garlic and stored in earthen jars to last through the winter.

Korean cuisine is characterized by a healthy interplay of vegetables, seasonings, rice and meat. Vegetables are found in nearly every entrée for a meal high in vitamins, protein and fiber, low in fat, cholesterol and refined sugar.

A few alternate choices for non barbecue fans are Mandu Kuk, a hearty beef broth with dumplings; Bibim Bab, rice mixed with vegetables, bean paste and a fried egg; Kochu Chang Kuk, a spicy stew with bean curd and vegetables; and Sengsun Gui, broiled fish.

A Korean meal begins with "Mahnee-duo-ship-shio" (Bon Appetit) or "Dupshida" (Cheers) and finishes with a dessert of fresh fruit.

Detailed food and travel information is available from Korea National Tourism Corp., 3435 Wilshire Blvd., Ste. 350, Los Angeles, CA 90010.

Tips on keeping clothes in shape for sweater weather

"Sweater weather" is here and the special joys unique to cold weather have arrived. There's football games, open fires and steaming mugs of hot chocolate to enjoy.

There's also the comfort of wearing Dad's "hand-me-down" cardigan and the pleasure of bundling up in today's vibrantly colored and textured knits to shield ourselves against the brisk days of winter. As temperature drops, we can finally wear our newly purchased winter fashions or cherished winter wools.

Unfortunately, however, sweaters can shrink or stretch during improper washing, as can other woven items that are a winter requirement. To protect prized cold weather fashions, consider handwashing with Palmolive dishwashing liquid. Palmolive cost much less than some others designed for washing by hand; is convenient to use; and can help reduce fading caused by bleaches or harsh detergents.

Just two teaspoons of Palmolive dissolved in a sink or basin of water thoroughly cleans any item that can be washed by machine. But before washing, always check labels for the manufacturer's instructions for proper washing procedures, washability and water temperature (use cool water if in doubt).

For great results, follow these helpful hints:

1. Lace or Open Weave Sweater: To avoid stretching or shrinking, trace the garment's outline on tissue paper before washing. Place the outline on a flat surface, cover with a transparent sheet of plastic (i.e., a dry cleaning bag). Then quickly wash the item with care. When rinsed, put it on the plastic and gently pat it to its original shape using the outline as a guide. Cover with a towel to absorb moisture. Replace towel with a dry one, flip over so the sweater is on top. Dry thoroughly.

2. Bulky sweater: Wash with cool to warm water. Gently squeeze water out of the sweater after rinsing. Place between two towels, roll to remove excess water. Dry flat on top of another dry towel.

3. Dark fabrics: Before washing for the first time, add a tablespoon of table salt to cool water. Soak items for five minutes to help set dyes and prevent fading during washing. After soaking in salt water, remove the garment and empty basin. Dissolve Palmolive in clean water, then submerge the garment and handwash as usual.

4. Medium weight knits: Turn inside out before washing to help reduce fading, and prevent snags and other damage. Avoid wringing fabric. Dry flat.

You'll find handwashing with Palmolive hassle-free way to keep your wardrobe looking its best while you enjoy the winter season and its festivities.

For a free brochure with handwashing tips, call Colgate-Palmolive, Consumer Affairs (1-800-338-8388) or write to Colgate-Palmolive, 300 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022.

Eat a good breakfast on the run

If you talk a good game (but don't always deliver) when it comes to a nutritious, energy packed morning meal, join the club!

Most of us know we should eat something sensible before dashing out the door to work, school, whatever-but all too often the reality is "not enough time"...particularly if you're the one responsible for keeping the family more or less-on schedule.

How to cope? Here's a tip from Scandinavia where they're just as busy as we are but, in general a lot healthier.

Try opening a package of Norwegian crispbreads-Kavli's classic Rye Bran and newer, extra nutty/crunchy Muesli are especially delicious at breakfast. Both are loaded with beneficial fiber, to bring you up to speed fast, yet super low in calories, sodium and fat with absolutely no cholesterol.

Top with honey, low-fat cottage or semi-soft cheese, fruit-even peanut butter-there's no single "right" choice, after all. But if you're watching you diet and want a quick, fast mini-meal, these crispbreads are a terrific place to start.

It's bad enough that we have to carry the tax burden of New York City, but must we bear its poor reputation as well? Please print this letter, Ann, and set the record straight. -- Definitely NOT from New York City

DEAR DEF: OK. So you are definitely NOT from New York City. So, where ARE you from? Albany?

Buffalo? Corning? Melville? Oneida? Rochester? Ithaca? Schenectady? Syracuse? White Plains? If you would name the city instead of saying, "I'm from New York," the problem that you find so galling would cease to exist. Try it.

Gem of the Day: Listening to the top 10 tunes makes you wonder what the bottom 10 are like.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." The Hot Dog Vendor

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs. He sold very good hot dogs. He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were. He stood on the side of the road and cried: "Buy a hot dog, Mister?" And people bought. He increased his meat and bun orders. He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade. He finally got his son home from college to help him out. But then something happened. His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression. The foreign situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse." Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know." So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight. "You're right, son" the father said to the boy. "We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."
