School board hears program on studying

Three counselors showed Hereford school board members Tuesday night how parents can help children develop good study habits.

Sharon Holmes, counselor at Stanton Jr. High; June Owens, counselor at La Plata Jr. High; and Carolyn Ray, an elementary counselor, gave the presentation as part of the board's routine review of curriculum.

Home and school standards should complement each other, according to the counselors.

"We can't emphasize enough how parents' support helps kids." said Mrs. Ray, whose presentation focused on language arts.

Some key points for parents included giving the child an appropriate

Members of the Hereford High School chapter of the Future Farmers of America unload a truck load of fruit that they sold to area residents. The fruit is going to be delivered this week. FFA members sold over 2,500 boxes of apples, oranges, and pears, with the proceeds going to the chapter's activities.

Sawmill closes, 800 out of work

SILSBEE, Texas (AP) - More than 800 employees of the Kirby Forest Industries plant will be without jobs next month when the Silsbee operation will be shut down.

Louisiana-Pacific Corp. officials announced the shutdown Tuesday after finalizing a deal to buy Kirby.

Officials with Louisiana-Pacific and Santa Fe Southern Pacific, Kirby's holding company, signed agreements Tuesday morning to sell Kirby's Silsbee, Cleveland and Bon Weir plants to the Oregonbased timber company for $315 million.

Louisiana-Pacific officials said they plan to leave the Cleveland and Bon Weir plants open, but will close the plywood plant, sawmill and power plant at Kirby's Silsbee location Jan. 1.

Louisiana-Pacific did not purchase Kirby's particle board plant in Silsbee, which Santa Fe still is working to sell.

The number of hourly employees in Silsbee will be reduced from 1,240 to 560 and the 340 salaried positions will be cut to 180, according to Susan Metcalf, a spokeswoman with Santa Fe in Chicago. Some of the workers will be eligible for early retirement, she said.

Ronald Paul, general manager of Louisiana-Pacific's southern division, said the company has not determined how long the Silsbee operation will remain closed.

"Hopefully, it's only temporary. But I just don't know at this point," he told the Beaumont Enterprise. "The plant is old and we just can't be running something that's losing money."

Much of the shutdown stemmed from replacing the plant's current source of electricity, an on-sight generator, with electricity from Gulf States Utilities Co., Paul said.

Dog survives experimental surgery

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Two dogs are alive after receiving an auxiliary heart pump made from the animals' back muscles, and doctors say the same type of operation may one day keep human heart-attack victims alive.

"We could do one tonight on a human and I'm sure it would work," said Dr. Larry Stephenson, an associate professor of heart surgery at the University of Pennsylvania. "It's very simple to do this type of surgery once you learn the principle," Stephenson said Tuesday.

Because "you don't need a heart-lung machine" and other sophisticated tools, he said, the procedure could be done in hospitals not normally equipped for complex heart surgery.

However, it would take several years of tests and government approval before the procedure could be applied to humans, he said.

As of Tuesday, the mixed-breed dogs, Bruno and Bosco, have lived 28 and six days, respectively, with the pumping chamber supplementing the efforts of their healthy natural hearts. The heart and pump alternate beats with a pacemaker controlling the beats of the

The CBS News-The New York Times poll was conducted Sunday and Monday in the wake of Reagan's admission that mistakes were made in carrying out his policies and testimony by Secretary of State George P. Shultz and former national security adviser Robert McFarlane to the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The survey found that 61 percent of those polled disapprove of the president's handling of the arms sales controversy, while 20 percent approve of his efforts.

The poll also found that the president's overall approval rating was 47 percent, with 42 percent disapproving of Reagan.

Parents incensed over message

WOODBRIDGE, N.J. (AP) -Angry parents lashed out at a priest some said "tried to kill Santa" by telling youngsters the jolly old elf was dead, the North Pole didn't exist and that Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer was a fake.

The Rev. Romano Ferraro was "horribly misquoted" by the parents, said Paul Fenmore, a lawyer who represents the parish. But a statement issued by the Diocese of Metuchen apologized for "any lack of sensitivity ... that may have caused disappointment or disillusionment" among the children.

"He told the children that there was no such thing as a living Santa Claus who delivered gifts, that it was just a fairy tale," said Nick Andrusko, whose 7- and 10-year-old children were in the audience Satur-

"I am appalled by the church going far beyond jurisdiction in regards to these young, impressionable children," said Andrusko, adding that until the sermon, his younger child believed in Santa Claus. "He tried to kill Santa," said Joanne Apolonia, the mother of a first-grade girl and one of the parents who attended the Mass at St. John Vianney Roman Catholic Church. "That's how the kids took Saturday was the Feast of St. Nicholas, and Ferraro was discussing the spiritual nature of the Christmas holiday and how the folklore of the 4th century bishop who bestowed gifts on the poor has developed.

The Mass, part of a weekly religious instruction class designed for Catholic youngsters who attend public school, began "very nicely," said Mrs. Apolonia. But then Ferraro said that just as St. Nicholas is dead, so is Santa Claus. The priest also told the scores of children that there is no North Pole and no Rudolph, she said.

During a later question-andanswer session, a fifth-grader asked whether the sermon meant parents were liars, Mrs. Apolonia said. Ferraro said, "Yes," and told the youngsters, "If you pretend to be sleeping (on Christmas Eve), you'll catch your parents putting presents under the tree," she said.

Repeated attempts to reach Ferraro on Tuesday were unsuccessful; his secretary said he was unavailable.

The parish has scheduled a meeting Monday to allow parents to discuss the matter with the priests.

Robert Madison, whose 7-year-old son attended the Mass, said Tuesday the boy seemed to have lost his enthusiasm for Santa Claus. Madison also said the incident may have damaged his credibility in his son's

"We spend a lot of time trying to get our children to feel comfortable talking to us, and this guy is telling them, 'Your parents are lying to you," he said.

officials interviewed agreed the problem is spreading.

"It's a nightmare. They're now starting drugs younger and younger, such as with glue-sniffing in elementary schools," said Annette Cootes, information officer for the Texas State Teachers Association.

Alcohol is still the most-abused drug in Texas schools, marijuana is No. 2 and cocaine and crack are on the rise, said Jim Bradley, prevention department director of the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

"We don't have any hard statistics to pin it all down," he said. "But the fastest growing problem is inhalant abuse - liquid paper, aerosols, glue,

While experts agree on the problem's scope, the question of how to fight it prompts a much more varied response. And the anti-drug arsenal is as diverse as the substances that students are injecting, sniffing and swallowing. At least five school districts - including those in Hawkins, Texarkana, Longview and Hallsville - have resorted to drug-sniffing dogs to root illegal substances out of students' lockers and cars. Some use peer counseling groups, others bring in police officers for lectures and still others call in undercover narcotics agents.

In the little Panhandle town of Hereford where a 9-year-old boy died in August from a reaction to cocaine two weeks before school started, teachers have been given a program showing how to stop drug use among students.

And the school board is considering getting a drug-sniffing dog.

Voluntary drug testing is increasingly vogue in locker rooms across the state because of publicized drug deaths among the nation's professional and college athletes. But none of those interviewed favored that kind of testing on a school-wide

"Drugs like crack are easy to get and are cheap - as little as $5 a shot but mandatory drug tests won't solve the problem," Ms. Cootes said. "They're simply unconstitutional."

Jim Harrington, legal director for the Texas Civil Liberties Union, agreed.

'The most effective tactics are education and counseling - they work much better than government tactics such as drug testing and sniffer dogs," he said. "No school system in Texas has actually implemented drug testing, but I almost wish they would. We very much want to file a suit against one." Beaumont and Lubbock came close to becoming a TCLU target, but keep working."

officials pushing drug testing there backed down in both cases, he said.

Besides being unconstitutional search-and-seizure operations, the tests are statistically unreliable and are nothing but "political hype," Harrington said.

Drug-sniffing dogs are another approach to the problem. While philosophically troubling for people like Harrington and Ms. Cootes, it has not been deemed illegal.

"The dog has worked well for us." said Ann Walston, spokeswoman for the Hallsville school district in East Texas. "We're careful to avoid Gestapo-like tactics - we don't search students themselves, only their lockers and cars, and we encourage rapport with the dog."

Ms. Walston said the dog program began this year and has not resulted in any arrests. She, like Max Harris, superintendent at Liberty Eylau, says the animal is meant more as a deterrent than a prosecuting tool.

Dallas is one district that experimented with the dogs in a 1980-81 pilot program, but abandoned them.

"The dog was ill-trained and the kids laughed the whole thing off," said David Sugg, who directs Dallas schools' drug prevention programs.

"It was a disaster. "We don't just use scare tactics like that any more," he added. "Education is the thing. You have to aim your resources at specific age groups and speak to them as people." The Texas Legislature agreed, and as part of sweeping educational reforms enacted two years ago, it required schools to include courses in their curriculum that show how drugs and alcohol can ruin a life. And as with Sugg, it is on education that most school officials are pinning their hopes of combatting drug use. "We're focusing at grade levels where students are most susceptible - 6, 7 and 8," said Socorro school district spokesman Mitchell Ferguson. "With our school-wide program in drug education, we have new programs directed specifically at skills for resisting negative peer pressure."

"We feel if we can get the kids to help themselves it would be more successful than adults trying to tell them what to do," said Dr. Pablo Perez, superintendent of the McAllen Independent School District.

But officials trying to attack the drug problem say they are handicapped by a lack of statistics.

EYES ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Taking their cue from the compound eyes of houseflies, scientists at the University of Rochester have developed a novel method of obtaining distortion-free, wide-angle views.

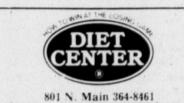

In the device, 13 or more speciallytreated glass rods are arranged in a semicircle and aligned so that each transmits light from a small section of the scene — just like many insect eyes. Light travels down the rods and is

Letter is grisly

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I speak for a great many citizens of Montreal. Please print this letter. It is

The number of suicides up here by people who throw themselves in front of the Metro is reaching alarming proportions. I say if you want to knock yourself off, it's your own business, but please do it on your own time in a way that will not inconvenience others. Pills are much neater - or you could put your head in the oven and turn on the gas.

I am a motorman on a Metro. Our schedules have been loused up three times in the last few months by loonies who knocked themselves off by jumping in front of our trains. When this happens, everything stops and it is one huge mess. The police must be notified and nothing can move until the tracks are cleaned up.

I've been reading your column for several years and have never seen a letter like mine before.-ANGRY IN

DEAR QUEBEC: I've never seen a letter like yours before either, and I hope I don't see one again. It's grisly. I doubt that anyone considering suicide by running in front of a train would be deterred by your remarks, but on the outside chance that someone might, I'm printing it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I simply must speak out regarding the wife of an Arizona lawyer who knows nothing of their financial situation. Youa dvised her to find a lawyer elsewhere immediately and discuss her situation. Bravo!

My husband (also a lawyer) did the same number on me. Every time I pressed for information, his explanations were more complex, more convoluted and more confusing. I finally went to another lawyer who discovered that the rat was embezzling from me and the children. I was able, with the help of the lawyer, to put a stop to it. (Needless to say, I am no longer married to the man.)

I was reluctant to go to a local lawyer for the same reasons as the lady in Arizona. I drove 100 miles to another city and engaged a lawyer with a firm that did not have offices in my town. (I did not want to appear on a computer here.)

The lawyer was wonderful. He assured me that he was not afraid of my husband (I was). His advice was excellent and his fee was most reasonable

That man restored my belief that there are some lawyers out there who are decent human beings. Please, lady in Arizona, see a lawyer! A husband who doesn't want to tell his wife anything about his finances probably has something to receives hide.-GRATEFUL IN VERMONT

DEAR VERMONT: Thank you for the testimony. A great many women needed that.

Abundant Life

KEEPING THE BALANCE By Bob Wear

WE ARE INCLINED, in a variety of ways, to swing from one extreme to another. We often create problems for ourselves by over compensating. When we realize that we may have gone too far in one direction, and begin the process of making correction, it is not unusual to go too far in the other direction. This movement from extreme to extreme causes enormous wear and tear in our living experience, and we usually suffer

IN OUR INDIVIDUAL lives, the right, the workable, and the wise position is usually somewhere between the extremes. We call this a balanced position, which is usually reasonably well identified by visible and legitimate limits. Of course, success requires that we be eternally vigilant to recognize and respect these legitimate limits. There may be, and will be some trial and error involved, but these can help us in finding and 'keeping the balance.'

KEEPING THE BALANCE is essential to quality living. There is ment.

nothing but trouble for us if we permit ouselves to be always moving from extreme to extreme in our feelings, in our activity, or in our personal behavior. We have the capability to learn to manage our thinking and our actions so that we can establish a desirable constancy which becomes the source of the well-balanced personal life. "We hsould not be thrown off balance the moment something does not go quite the way we think it should. Balance, poise, and breadth of vision are essential to success in every independent line of endeavor. And patience, much patience."-Counsellor.

THE SWING from extreme to extreme is one of the sources of discouragement to well-meaning persons, and often brings personal failure. It can cause dillillusionment, burn-out, disgust and a feeling of hopelessness.

IT IS THE BALANCE produced by wholeosme moderation that will bring into our living the equanimity of spirit which enables us to live with a sense of victory and accomplish-

Holidays a 'sugar high'

During the holidays sugary desserts and candy abound, to the delight of those who crave sweets and the concern of those who believe they're "bad for you."

"People seem to have many misconceptions about refined sugar which influence their attitudes, if not their actions, when it comes to what they eat over the holidays," says Dr. Alice Hunt, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

She says a common misconception is that natural sugar, such as that found in orange juice, is a better source of energy than the refined sugar you get from soft drinks, candy or desserts.

'The fact is that sugar is sugar in whatever form," says the nutritionist. "Each form contains 4 calories per gram and is used by the body similarly."

The difference is that foods with natural sugars typically have other nutrients, like the vitamin C, potassium and folic acid in orange juice. Foods containing refined sugar, such as soft drinks, frequently have no vitamins and minerals. Many desserts may have small amounts of vitamins and minerals, but are also high in fat and sodium, she explains.

Another myth, says Hunt, is that you are more likely to experience a "sugar high" from refined sugar than from the natural sugar in foods. But the extension nutritionist points out that raisins and other foods containing natural sugars elevate blood sugar and create a "sugar high" just like refined sugar. It's not necessary to avoid foods with refined sugar to maintain a nutritious diet throughout the holidays, she maintains. But you should make sure that most of the foods you eat have a variety of nutrients and that you're getting enough exercise to burn off extra calories from sugar-rich foods.

deadbolt lock; peephole for door; dehumidfier; humidifier; burglar alarm; sturdy ladder or steol; fire-escape ladder; lock for sliding doors. -Gifts for the car: first aid kit; car emergency kit; window scraper and brush; fire extinguisher; child safety

-- Gifts for the elderly: bathtub strips and bars; digital thermometer; electric blanket; luggage cart; bathtub safety bench; warm clothing and boots.

-Gifts for the sports enthusiast: reflective jogging suit; thermal underwear; stop watch with pulse meter; racquet sports eye protector with shallterproof lenses and frame; heavy protective outdoor gear.

-Stocking stuffers: bike reflectors; jumper cables; flashlights; nightlight; thermal socks; warm gloves, scarf, and mittens; ear muffs; wall socket covers.

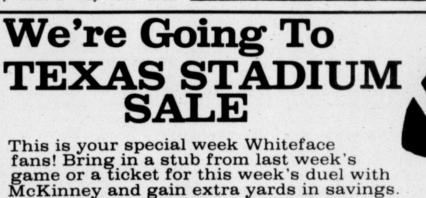

Don't forget that a promise between friends or among family members to never drink and drive is always a great gift. Add a promise always to wear seat belts in vehicles and helmets on motorbikes. An offer to assist elderly friends or relatives with chores or transportation throughout the year will be especially appreciated.

sane to turn war into a Christmas present," said Bob Staake, a St. In this season of peace, war toys Louis free-lance cartoonist who Eight Pulitzer Prize winners are among those participating.

The manufacturers say their toys or hurt children in any way. Besides, they say, it is natural for little boys to play war and these are the toys that people want, We make action toys, not war toys," said Barry Alperin, a senior vice president of Hasbro, maker of G.I. Joe. "Our action toys involve fantasy play, adventure play and they help stimulate the imagination of children." The debate is especially important this year because sales of war toys are booming. Several hundred educators examined the issue during a recent conference at New York's Hunter College titled "Toys & Us: Examining The Controversy Over

War Toys.' We still think of children in terms of pastels, not blood," said Elizabeth Crow, editor-in-chief of Parents Magazine. "Phrases like 'playing peacefully' and 'getting along well together' may no longer be appropriate." The conference raised more questions than it answered, but that was

"Our hope for this conference is that it will be a catalyst for giving toys in general, and war toys in particular, the kind of serious attention they deserve," said Tom Roderick of Educators for Social Responsibility, a sponsor of the meeting.

G.I. Joe, with his $130 aircraft carrier and other hardware, is the nation's biggest selling toy. Lazer Tag, a futuristic gun play toy, is the hottest item of the season. It, as well as Transformers and M.A.S.K. action figures, are among the top 10 toys, based on a survey of 3,000 retailers by Toy and Hobby World magazine.

Douglas Thomson, president of the Toy Manufacturers of America, said action figures and guns make up about 10 percent of toy sales.

A walk through toy stores finds an array of realistic-looking weaponry, as well as monstrous, heavily armed superhero dolls and vehicles.

At the Jordan Marsh department store in Boston, shopper Margaret Silva motioned to the war figures and said, "to be honest, I'm glad I don't have a boy to shop for."

But at the Toys "R" Us in Lansing, Mich., shopper Donna Apostol said: "They see it on TV, they hear about it. It's life. If you're going to let them watch it on TV, you have to let them play with it."

Some stores refuse to stock war toys. But most toy stores are doing big business with Rambo, G.I. Joe and Ninja Warriors.

Thomson of the Toy Manufacturers Association said parents would refuse to buy such toys if they thought they were harmful.

Quick weight loss seldom long-lasting

Despite all the gimmicks for calorie foods "quick" and "easy" weight loss, the only safe and effective way to lose pounds is to cut back on high-calorie foods and exercise regularly, says the Texas Medical Association.

Each year more "new, revolutionary" diets are promoted. And every year thousands of people begin these diets and are disappointed when they fail to lose weight permanently.

Advocates of quick and easy reduction programs may suggest practices ranging from sweating off weight to starving it away. They may recommend pills, hormonal therapy, or diets emphasizing a single food such as grapefruit, bananas, or rice.

The real problem with many of these methods is that they are seriously lacking in essential nutrients. Not only will people on these diets be malnourished, but they often become bored with a diet's monotony and give it up. The pounds they managed to shed will come back as they revert to overeating high-

Fasting and very low-calorie diets like liquid-protein ones can be dangerous. Most people ultimately find fasting disappointing because weight regained after a fast is put on first as fat. Since fat tissue requires fewer calories to sustain itself than muscle tissue, it is harder for an individual to lose weight the next time.

In addition, the body responds to a drastic cutback in calories by lowering the rate at which it burns them. For many dieters, this means that even if they do not cheat on ther diet, weight loss may halt. Exercise, however, can change all of this. It conditions the muscles, helps to burn calories, lowers blood pressure, and allows a person to eat enough food to obtain required nutrients without gaining weight.

Recent research also suggests that exercise significantly increases the body's metabolism. Some studies suggest that after vigorous exercise the body continues to burn calories at a higher rate than it would have

These benefits can best be achieved through a half-hour of vigorous activity like fast walking, jogging, fast bicycling, swimming, rollerskating, jumping rope, or aerobic dancing three times a week.

All Tournament Selections Two St. Anthony's School basketh tournament selections in the Wald

Two St. Anthony's School basketball players were all-tournament selections in the Walcott Tournament last week. Richard Sanderson, left, was named to the boys' all-tournament team, and Claudia Ramirez, right, was named to the girls' all-tournament team.

Sampson to be offered contract like Olajuwon's

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets soon will be offering Twin Tower Ralph Sampson basically the same multi-million-dollar contract which was recently signed by the other Tower, Akeem Olajuwon, the team's general manager said.

Earlier this season, Olajuwon received an eight-year extension of a contract that already has two years to run and pays him about $2 million annually.

Sampson has been promised he'll get the same deal, Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson told the Houston Chronicle in a story published Tuesday.

Sampson is in the final year of a four-year, $5 million pact.

ed Tuesday.
"And we're going to do that," Patterson said.

Both players have been hobbled by injuries this year after taking the Rockets to the NBA finals last season. Without them, the team is off to a 7-10 start, including a 56-point loss to Seattle Saturday that was the worst defeat in the club's 20-year

Olajuwon, who has missed the last five games, said Monday he probably would return to action on Thursday. He leads the Rockets in scoring, rebounds and blocked shots.

Sampson, whose ankle injuries have held him to a 15-point-a-game average, underwent a physical examination Monday. Patterson said contract talks would resume in earnest once results of the exam were known.

Hostile Herd poem is written

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Brand received this poem from the workers at Deaf Smith REC and several Hereford Whiteface football fans asked that it appear in the Brand.

WHAT'S THE WORD? AGILE, MOBILE, HOSTILE HERD!

WE'RE THE TEAM FROM WAY OUT WEST, WE AIN'T THE BIGGEST, BUT WE THE BEST.

MARK ARTHO, VINCENT AND HIS LITTLE BRO, THIS IS OUR DRIVE TRAIN, DON'T YOU KNOW.

CENTER, GUARDS, AND TACKLES TOO, MAKE THE HOLES THE TRAIN GOES THROUGH.

IF WE HAVE A DRIVE TRAIN STALL, SHIRE DROPS BACK AND THROWS THE BALL.

TO JOHNSON, STREUN, OR BOBBY BAKER, ON THE BIG TOUCHDOWN MAKER.

ON THE GROUND OR THROUGH THE AIR, WE CAN SCORE FROM ANYWHERE

DEFENSE, DEFENSE, LOOKING GOOD, THEY PLAY LIKE A DEFENSE SHOULD.

DO THE WORK ALONG THE LINE. LINEBACKERS PHIBBS, YOUNG, AND MEDINA.

COLLIER, McCRACKEN, RUIZ, AND BROWN, INTERCEPT PASSES OR KNOCK 'EM DOWN.

EVEN BUTKUS COULDN'T BE MEAN'A.

COACH CUMPTON AND THE REST, CALL THE PLAYS AND THEY'RE THE BEST.

MAKES NO DIFFERENCE WHERE WE PLAY.

THE FANS ARE LOYAL ALL THE WAY. YES, WE'RE THE BEST, AS YOU HAVE HEARD, HOSTILE HERD THE FINAL WORD.

Filmmaker became target in making of film on Afghan war

NEW YORK (AP) - The documentary "Jihad" opens quietly - a turbaned Afghan sleeps in the dusty sunlight, a voice on an old radio chattering softly in the background. "This is Radio Moscow matter-of-factly.

Cut to eery, long shots of Soviet helicopter gunships swooping in across the low, rolling hills, while a narrator cites the facts of the 1979 Soviet invasion of Afghanistan that there are 120,000 Soviet soldiers occupying the country, that most of the middle class who opposed the communists have fled, that only the peasants are left to fight.

These are the rebel soldiers, the mujahedeen. They are waging what they call a holy war - or "Jihad" against the Soviet invaders.

"I was originally going to go to Lebanon, but I really got hooked on this idea of 19th-century Islamic holy warriors fighting with archaic weapons against a modern superpower, fighting against seemingly impossible odds. This really intrigued me," he said in an interview.

Harmon said he was particularly intrigued by the charismatic mujahedeen leader, Haji Abdul Latif, the 76-year-old "Lion of Kandahar" "somebody Anthony Quinn would play in the feature film.

DALLAS (AP) Documents recently made public show for the first time that the wealthy Hunt brothers of Dallas may have lost more than $4.95 billion in sugar, silver and oil.

The three heirs of H.L. Hunt, Nelson, Herbert and Lamar Hunt still have enough wealth to be called multimillionaires if not billionaires, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

The money the three brothers have lost would be enough to make nearly 5,000 people millionaires, the newspaper reported.

A spokesman for the family declined to comment on the estimate and said the Hunt brothers will not talk about the size of their wealth.

The brothers have always operated their financial empire behind a cloak of secrecy so there is no concise record of their fortune but the recently released documents from civil and bankruptcy courts along with filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission show a picture of how three men engineered what historians say may be the largest personal loss

"(Their is) likely to be the winner in dollar amounts." says Tom Barton, a Colorado College historian who follows other real estate subsidiaries. The losses have been attributed to ill-timed investments, legal and financial problems and risky investments and the oil price

$1 billion. One example of how the Hunt family lost money in staggering amounts was in the sugar industry. The Hunts purchased Great Western United Corp. in 1974 and later changed the name to Hunt International Resources Corp. The largest company in Hunt International is Great Western Sugar, which was founded in 1904 and at one time was the fourth-largest Bunker and Herbert's plunge into the silver market may have cost them a total of sugar beet processor in the United States. Great Western and two related sugar companies did not last long under the new ownership and racked up some mammoth losses. Industry observers pass blame for the losses between the company and the federal government, which has an elaborate system of price controls over the sugar in-

Other industry officials say Great Western had management problems before the Hunts entered the scene and the problems became worse. The companies problems were part of the industry's overall problems, according to Glen Adams, president of Great Western. During the 1970, major soft drink manufacturers switched from a sugar-based sweetener to a corn-based sweetener, wiping out more than 40 percent of the sugar company's market.

When the Hunt brothers didn't like the way sugar contracts were negotiated, they filed suits against 75 of Great Western's largest clients. The clients then refused to do business with the company, Adams said.

"Great Western Sugar took it on themselves to change the industry," Adams said. "Then Great Western couldn't market sugar."

The company was losing $1 million a day by early 1985, according to SEC filings.

Great Western and two other Hunt sugar companies filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in March,

The most recent bankruptcy records show the company now has a negative worth of $49.14 million.

METAL FUTURES

Can plan succeed?

NEW YORK (AP) - John H. Perry Jr. remains convinced the country will have a National Dividend Act within a few years.

"It is inevitable," he says. Already, he has spent $7 million from his own deep pockets for 20 years of research and development, during which time he has won endorsements economists, labor, management and congressmen. A National Dividend Act would contain these basic provisions:

1. A trust fund into which all federal corporate income tax receipts would be placed, instead of being spent as part of the government budget.

2. A cap, to be determined by Congress, on federal corporate tax levels. And an end to the double taxation of corporate dividends, on which taxes are levied at both the corporate and individual level.

3. A distribution of the fund's assets each year to all registered voters so long as the federal deficit did not exceed the amount of the trust. Funds available for distribution would be reduced by any federal deficit.

4. An initial five-year moratorium on federal budget increases, during which time corporate tax revenues would be paid into the trust fund in increments of 20 percent a year.

The consequences conceivably could be even more interesting. According to Perry, former publisher of a chain of Florida newspapers and now chairman of Perry Oceangraphics Inc. in Riviera Beach, Fla., the act could have this impact:

-Force government to balance the budget. voter -Encourage registration. -Provide ordinary Americans with a vested interest in balancing the budget rather than in overspending.

-Help redistribute income -Stimulate the economy

-Simplify income tax regulations. With endorsement from 24 congressmen, Republican and Democratic, the idea has been considered by the House

Ways and Means Committee, and it is scheduled to be introduced again by 28 supporters in the current session of Congress. Support has built gradually over the past 20 years, or ever since Perry, 69, began building on his original notion of using corporate taxes to affect the private sector directly rather than through government. Studies commissioned over the years helped develop the notion, and also added documentation for some of the claims. A study in the 1970s by economic consultant Lionel Edie & Co., for example, said that more than half of New York state welfare funds were consumed by the state's own administrative costs. Under Perry's plan, funddistributions would be through banks at no administrative cost. Instead. the banks' reward would come from being depository of funds prior to distribution.

the Lord Jesus Christ to stop arguing among yourselves. Let there be real harmony so that there won't be splits in the church. I plead with you to be of one mind united in thought and purpose. For some of those who live in Chloe's house have told me of your arguments and Christ into many pieces.

But did I, Paul, die for your sins? Were any of you baptized in my name? I am so thankful "And so I am giving a new commandment to you now--love each other just as much as I love you. Your strong love for each other will prove to the world that you are my disciples."

quarrels, dear brothers. Some of you are saying, "I am a follower of Paul", and others say that they are for Apollos or for Peter; and some that they alone are the true followers of Christ. And so, in effect, you have broken now that I didn't baptize any of you except Crispus and Gaius. For now no one can think that I have been trying to start something new, beginning a "Church of Paul." Oh, yes, and I baptized the family of Stephanas. I don't remember ever baptizing anyone else. For Christ didn't send me to baptize, but to preach the Gospel; and even my preaching sounds poor, for I do not fill my sermons with profound words and high sounding ideas, for fear of diluting the mighty power there is in the simple message of the cross of Christ. SOME THINGS ARE PRICELESS; FRIENDS ARE EVEN MORE SO.

THANK YOU Lance Lahnert for a beautifully written tribute to Casey. It meant so much to us. What a witness to God, and on the sports page, too.

THANK YOU Mack McCarter for being with us constantly during those tragic hours. Your strength and support was tremendous. I know at times it was very difficult for you, but you never seemed to weaken. Thank you Ron Cook--your timing was perfect. Thanks to all of the churches of Hereford for the prayer services you held for Casey.

A SPECIAL THANKS to all of the kids. We drew so much strength from you. You are "super" and we love each one of you so much. If state championships were based on character of youth, Hereford would be state champion many times over.

THANK YOU God for friends. How can we ever tell you what your support and prayers have meant to us. It simply cannot be measured nor can it be put on paper what you mean to us. Thank you very much for everything.

THANK YOU 1986 football players and coaches for dedicating the football game to Casey. Thanks for wearing the No. "74" and thanks so much for the autographed ball you gave us. We will treasure it forever.

WE FEEL that the best way we can express to you how much we appreciate everything is to do as the verse below says:

It only takes a spark to get a fire going, and soon all those around can warm up to its glowing;

That's how it is with God's love, once you've experience it: You spread his love to everyone, you want to pass it on.

Without God's strength and the prayers and support of each one of you, we would never have made it. We love each one of you, and may God bless you.
