Nunley, Chavez, Latham win election

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor
Lupe Chavez was elected as the first Hispanic county commissioner in Deaf Smith County history in Tuesday's general election.

Chavez is the lone new face in the courthouse as Precinct 4 Commissioner Johnny Latham and Treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley upended their challengers.

Over half of the county's registered voters (4,305 of 8,502) voted in the election.

"That is an excellent turnout for an off-year election," said County clerk David Ruland. "I think last time we had around a 30 percent turnout, and to have 50 percent is fantastic."

Many persons cast no-excuse election ballots

Over 37 percent of the persons whose ballots were counted Tuesday in Deaf Smith County cast early ballots during the "no excuses" early voting period.

In the county 1,633 early ballots were cast, 37.8 percent of the total vote. There were 4,305 votes cast in the general election.

Many voters in both parties cast straight party ballots. There were 192 straight Republican-ticket ballots and 468 straight-Democratic ballots. There were also four persons who voted a straight Libertarian ticket.

The 50.7 percent turnout pleased election officials, who had a smooth day at the polls and no trouble with vote tabulation equipment. The counting was done by shortly after 9 p.m. In the past two elections problems with the ballots have caused workers to have to stay past midnight and count many of the ballots by hand.

COUNTY RACES

Chavez wins commission seat

Chavez was elated with his 514-421 win over Republican Larry Malamen to earn the Precinct 2 commission post. Chavez had defeated four-term incumbent Austin Rose in the March primary to earn the berth against Malamen, who was unopposed in the primary.

"I feel great," Chavez said Tuesday night. "It makes me feel good that the people turned out to vote and made it clear who they wanted as county commissioner. I feel good about it, and I am looking forward to working in the community and with the county commissioners."

Chavez was just as elated to be the first Hispanic to serve on the commissioners court.

"It is an honor, a great honor," said Chavez. "It makes me feel good and I appreciate the people and all of Deaf Smith County for letting me have this honor. This is a really big positive step leading into the second 100 years in Deaf Smith County."

Chavez said he had no other plans than to "work with the other commissioners, County Judge Tom Simons, and intend to serve in the best capacity to work for the betterment of Precinct 2 and Deaf Smith County."

Nunley earned her sixth term as county treasurer as she defeated Republican challenger Kyla McDowell, 2,728 to 1,383.

"I feel very proud that Deaf Smith County voters have shown they have confidence in me and my abilities to perform the duties and responsibilities of Deaf Smith County treasurer," Nunley said. "I appreciate the hard work Kyla McDowell did and the clear race she ran."

Nunley said she felt she had a big inroad with older voters that carried her to the election, and felt that the name visibility of McDowell, who had yard signs and more campaign material, didn't affect older voters as much as younger voters.

"I'm sure the name visibility is taken into consideration more strongly by some voters," Nunley said. "I could have done more. I could have brought out more about the money I have made for the county with investments, and the general public probably doesn't realize we have modernized and computerized. We have had good reports from our auditors that have been very helpful."

"I think the voters realized I had been doing a good job, and I really do appreciate their confidence in me."

Latham said he was "relieved," and that he expected his race with challenger Ken Rogers to be closer.

Gulley 'wins' contest among local officials

State District Judge David Wesley Gulley was the winner Tuesday among local elected officials who were unopposed in their bid for a new four-year term.

Many of the officials were gathered at the courthouse as the election results were reported Tuesday night and laughed as they challenged each other to see who would get the most votes. Gulley "won" with 3,515 votes.

In a close race that resulted in the exchange of two pictures of George Washington, District Clerk Lola Faye Veazey edged County Clerk David Ruland, 3,388 to 3,380.

Tax Assessor-Collector Margaret Perez was second to Gulley with 3,433 votes, followed by Veazey and Ruland. Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine had 3,350 votes, and County Judge Tom Simons had 3,304 votes. County Surveyor Kenny Hagar edged Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, 3,274 to 3,262, to stay out of the basement.

—John Brooks

Latham won easily, 580-307.

"I appreciate the support from all of the voters in Deaf Smith County," Latham said. "I picked up a lot of support and help from other precincts, and that helped me so much. I appreciate the opportunity to serve the county for four more years."

STATE RACES

County backs Williams, Mosbacher

County voters bucked statewide results in the governor's race, supporting Clayton Williams over Ann Richards, 2,491 to 1,435. Richards, in one of the biggest comebacks in state history, upset the political newcomer to become the state's new governor.

She made her acceptance speech at 10:45 p.m. Wednesday, quoting Barbara Jordan when she said "The people of the state of Texas are back."

"They want a governor who gets up and goes to work every morning," Richards told a cheering crowd. "They want a governor that isn't gonna be distracted by other business. They want their children educated and they want the educators, the teachers, to have a role in that (See LOCAL, Page 10)

Richards overcomes deficit to take post

AUSTIN (AP) - Ann Richards had many things going her way in the governor's race. But none was more important than her opponent's hoof-in-mouth disease.

Republican Clayton Williams, she said with understatement, "made a number of errors."

Attorney General Jim Mattox was more blunt: "I've never seen a candidate shoot himself and inflict so many wounds on himself."

Even the Republican candidate agreed. "I think that Jim Mattox said it pretty well," Williams admitted. "I just would shoot myself in the foot and then I'd load up and try it again. I hold no blame against anyone."

Williams' campaign, which spent more than $20.4 million, had (See RICHARDS, Page 10)

ANN RICHARDS

Campaign tough one for Ann

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - After a grueling 18-month gubernatorial campaign in which she was dogged by personal attacks, Democrat Ann Richards says she wouldn't be surprised if her own children don't recognize her.

But Ms. Richards, who on Tuesday defeated millionaire Republican oilman Clayton Williams, knew what was coming when she ran for governor of a state where she describes politics as "a very tough contact sport."

"I think it's an awful thing for anybody to have to go through," Ms. Richards said during the campaign's final week. "I had to tell the kids when we made the decision, 'You're not going to recognize your mother by the time they get through with me.'"

Ms. Richards, 57, entered the race after soaring to national fame as the keynote speaker at the 1988 Democratic National Convention and a friend of Hollywood celebrities.

But a bitter, mudslinging Democratic primary and an equally tough general election campaign took a toll.

Ms. Richards found herself recalling her divorce, talking about her history as a recovering alcoholic, disputing accusations of drug use, and facing attacks that she was a "liberal" and defender of gay rights.

A poll in the fall of 1988 showed more than half of Texas voters could identify her and only 14 percent didn't like her. A week before the election, a Gallup Poll put her unfavorable rating at 53 percent.

Bemoaning the negative tone, she called her race a "no-win situation" and said candidates are afraid to even make a joke for fear of it becoming front-page news.

Born and raised near Waco, Texas, Ms. Richards received a bachelor's degree from Baylor University. She was married for 30 years to civil rights lawyer David Richards. The two were divorced in 1984. They have four children.

Her politicking began in the late 1950s, when she volunteered in the gubernatorial campaign of Henry B. Gonzalez. In the 1970s, she helped direct the successful legislative campaign of Sarah Weddington, the Austin lawyer who won the precedent-setting Roe vs. Wade abortion case.

Ms. Richards first ran for public office in 1976, winning a seat as a county commissioner. She won terms as state treasurer in 1982 and 1986.

Humor has always been an essential ingredient in her politics, and that was a key reason then-Democratic Party boss Paul Kirk tapped Ms. Richards to keynote the Atlanta convention.

There, she charmed the crowd by saying, "After listening to George Bush all these years I figured you needed to know what a real Texas accent sounds like."

Perry ends Hightower reign

DALLAS (AP) - The end was near. But Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower didn't know it.

As the polls opened Tuesday, Hightower spoke in anticipation of his third term as Texas agriculture commissioner. He talked about returning to Austin to continue promoting his populist views and bashing Republican leadership.

Seemingly overlooked in Hightower's future was Republican state representative Rick Perry, who brought the Democratic incumbent's reign to a crashing end Tuesday in a razor-thin upset victory.

With 99 percent of the precincts reporting, Perry led Hightower 49.1 to 47.9 percent, or 1,839,653 votes to 1,795,685. Libertarian Karen Tegtmeyer had 3 percent.

Hightower already had laid out plans to continue fighting pesticides and diversify crops.

And, he reflected with spite on two years of attacks by the Texas Farm Bureau, which recruited six candidates to try and unseat him in the Democratic primary.

The farm bureau even sought Texas Rangers pitcher-cattlemen Nolan Ryan to challenge the Democratic incumbent.

"This indeed will be the sweetest electoral victory I have ever had," Hightower said Tuesday afternoon.

Hightower, shocked and discouraged after the upset, would not talk to reporters. He promised a statement today.

"I would call it probably the biggest upset in the last 10 years of Texas politics," said Perry, the first farmer to be elected agriculture commissioner in 40 years.

Perry, who trailed Hightower by as many as 14 points during the campaign, attributed his success to well-placed television ads attacking Hightower and a relentless effort by rural supporters.

A third-generation cotton and wheat farmer and cattlemen from Haskell, Perry went to the sprawling fields of Texas and set up phone banks and countless signs in what campaign officials call "the middle of nowhere."

Perry accused Hightower of bringing scandal to the agriculture commissioner's office after reports of an FBI investigation into Hightower's 1988 campaign finances surfaced.

"Hightower is like the Wizard of Oz," a jubilant Perry said. "He got exposed as the little man with a big voice, and Rick Perry pulled the screen back and saw him for what he was."

"Our TV probably had as much to do with our victory as anything. Our ads were vivid, showed real people and showed that Hightower is not suited for this job. The people were receptive."

S.M. True, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, said Perry's victory was grounds for celebration.

"Texas agriculture has won a major victory," said True, one of Hightower's greatest adversaries. "Two years ago, I said it is my number one priority to change the leadership of the TDA and we have attained that goal. I am very pleased."

PERRY

"Rick Perry is qualified to serve us in Austin and Washington. I'm not going to run Hightower down. He did the best job he could do. He just didn't understand how to run the Texas Department of Agriculture. He didn't understand mainstream agriculture."

Founder's Dinner planned Thursday

News Digest

World, National

UNDATED - Democrats decimated the ranks of Republican governors in midterm elections and left President Bush confronting stronger opposition in Congress, legislatures and across the nation.

WASHINGTON - It's getting lonelier at the top - President Bush's veto margin is in jeopardy, and voters said no to Republicans in two of the states he campaigned hardest to hold, including his Texas home base.

WASHINGTON - Voters left no doubt about their irritation over higher taxes. But they sent conflicting messages on abortion and ignored the Persian Gulf conflict.

UNDATED - The tax revolt suffers setbacks in Massachusetts and Montana and trails in early returns in Nebraska. Handgun control gets strong support in Florida. Environmentalists lose a fight in Missouri to impose controls on Ozark streams and watch West Coast votes on attempts to impose an unprecedented array of rules on conservation, pollution, recycling and land use planning.

WASHINGTON - William J. Bennett has decided to resign as the Bush administration's drug czar because, according to one source, he believes that his strategy for the war against drugs is working.

UNDATED - China's foreign minister indicates his country would not veto a U.N. resolution endorsing the use of force to drive Iraq from Kuwait, and the Pentagon calls up more reservists. Baghdad promises to free more hostages.

MOSCOW - Soviet leaders celebrate today's anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution as a landmark of "humanism and justice," but protesters appear in Moscow and Kiev even before the first ceremonial tank rolls.

Texas

AUSTIN - Democrat Ann Richards grabbed the Texas governorship away from the Republicans, defeating gaffe-prone millionaire oilman Clayton Williams after a contest that set records for spending and mudslinging.

AUSTIN - Ann Richards had several things going her way in the final days of the governor's race - her government experience, the women's vote and her opponent's hoof-in-mouth problems.

UNDATED - Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison's victory in the state treasurer's race gave the GOP one of its most visible victories in the dash for state offices that was dominated by the Democrats.

DALLAS - Mercifully, it's over. If Hollywood's big cigars had gotten hold of the Texas political mess, they'd have called it mud and money. It was a campaign like no other. It drew national attention like flies to fertilizer, and for much the same reason.

DALLAS - Leaders of a secession movement in the south Dallas community of Oak Cliff say they don't want to pull out of Dallas, but they're tired of being treated as second-class citizens.

EL PASO - U.S. Customs Service has a bigger than expected budget this year and that means 400 more inspectors for the Southwest border, the head of the agency said.

HOUSTON - The first woman sentenced to a military-style boot camp in Texas may also have to spend her three-month sentence in solitary confinement. State officials may have to set up a personalized camp for Patricia Manuel because there are no prison boot camps here for women.

The art of quilting, still popular today, has been practiced for thousands of years. Soldiers of the Middle Ages wore quilted coats and hoods under their armor.

Protester's bullets miss Gorbachev

MOSCOW (AP) - A marcher fired shots on Red Square not far from Soviet leaders during today's Revolution Day parade, and thousands of angry citizens held the first protests ever sanctioned in Moscow on the major Soviet holiday.

During the traditional parade, a man fired two shots from a sawed-off shotgun about 80 yards from Lenin Mausoleum, where President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and other leaders were watching, a Tass correspondent said.

No one appeared to have been hit and police quickly grabbed the unidentified man, said correspondent Sergei Voizanov, who witnessed the incident. Voizanov said it was not clear if he was aiming at anyone.

The incident occurred on what was already the most unruly Revolution Day ever, with alternative demonstrations bemoaning the legacy of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution given official sanction in Moscow.

In the independence-minded Baltic republics, authorities told residents to boycott the holiday by going to work.

Even official media questioned the wisdom of holding a celebration amid mounting political, economic and ethnic turmoil.

Moscow's streets became forums for celebration by Communist Party supporters and denunciation by radicals who contend the 1917 revolution served only to throw Russian civilization into decline.

Revolution Day has been the biggest holiday on the Soviet calendar, focusing until Gorbachev came to power on the Red Square parade during which the military always showed off its latest hardware.

Gorbachev took the traditional Soviet leader's position atop the Lenin Mausoleum in flag-draped Red Square today and opened the official celebration with a sober assessment of the state of the nation.

Ruby's gun returned to family

DALLAS (AP) - A lawyer said he plans to appeal a jury's decision that effectively removed him as executor of Jack Ruby's estate.

The major asset of the estate is the .38-caliber Colt Cobra revolver the Dallas nightclub owner used to kill presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

A six-person jury on Tuesday ruled that Ruby's former attorney, Jules Mayer, grossly mismanaged the estate after Ruby died in 1967. Mayer continues to practice law at age 82.

Dallas County Probate Judge Robert E. Price must now decide how to distribute Ruby's assets. State law mandates that if he upholds the jury's decision, he must appoint a new executor. No hearing date was set.

Ruby's brother, Earl, filed the lawsuit, asking to be named executor of the estate. Ruby's heirs and Mayer have wrangled over the estate for 23 years.

And the fight may continue. "He's got a long way to go, because I'm going to appeal it," Mayer told The Dallas Morning News as he left court.

The gun Ruby used to kill Oswald in the Dallas County Jail two days after President Kennedy's assassination on Nov. 22, 1963, is stowed in a bank safe deposit box. Mayer has said it could bring $125,000 on the collectors' market. Ruby bought the revolver for $62.50 in a Dallas gun shop.

Mayer wanted proceeds from the gun's sale to pay off Ruby's debts. He said they include the $65,000 it has cost him to handle the estate, including the expense of fighting Earl Ruby's lawsuits.

Earl Ruby, of Boca Raton, Fla., who is also acting on behalf of his sister and a nephew, charges that Mayer is trying to profit from the estate. He wants the estate liquidated to pay off his brother's debts and "wipe the slate clean."

"I've got to talk to the heirs ... to see what they want to do," Earl Ruby said after the ruling. "It looks like we've got ourselves a gun 'cause we've got so many bills."

Ruby was convicted of murder in 1964 and sentenced to die in the electric chair. A Texas appeals court overturned the conviction in 1966, citing reasons that included failure to move the trial from Dallas. Ruby died at age 55 before a new trial could be held.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest the recent letter from the woman who complained that her father had remarried and moved into a one-bedroom apartment with his new wife because she didn't want company. The woman also complained that when she called to speak to her father the new wife did all the talking.

I had a similar problem a few years ago so perhaps I can offer some helpful advice. First, find out when the wife's weekly social club, bridge club or hair dresser appointment is and call your father when she's not around.

Second, go see your father even if it means staying in a motel. Another suggestion -- and less expensive -- is to bring a sleeping bag and tell them you will sleep on the living room floor.

I am now able to spend lots of time with my father, but only because he is terminally ill. His wife calls me often to come "help out" because she is exhausted. I was tired of sleeping on a lumpy couch and told her I'd be glad to help with Dad's care, but only if they moved to an apartment with a second bedroom. She agreed to it, and they moved.

I don't regret the weariness that comes from helping care for my father, but I would have preferred to enjoy his company when he was well. There's a moral to this story somewhere. I hope all stepmothers see it. -- No Name, No Place together. I hope it turns out that way for you and your stepmother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girlfriend is terrific, but I think we have a problem. It's her son's sleeping habits.

"Jason" is 5 years old and will not go to bed unless his mother lies down with him until he falls asleep. He ends up sleeping in her bed every night. He has his own bedroom with a nice bed in it, but he never sleeps there.

I resent the fact that when mother and I feel romantic, we have to make love on the sofa because the kid is in his mother's bed.

Jason is an adorable child and I do love him, but this really irritates me. It also raises questions about our marriage. How will Jason feel about me sleeping with his mother while he's in his own bed? -- Unsure in Kansas

DEAR KANSAS: That mother needs to stop allowing her 5-year-old to sleep in her bed, and it's sure to be a problem after all this time. She should talk to her pediatrician about how to change her son's sleeping habits. The woman may need professional guidance.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you warned about borderline "charities." They know just how far they can go without getting arrested. Meanwhile, their mailings look wonderful and they really clean up.

Elaine McNutt recently presented a program on calligraphy in the home of Pat Fisher at the Bay View Study Club.

Each member received a calligraphy felt-tip pen and McNutt explained the necessary strokes to achieve the exquisite lines of beauty. She also gave a showing of her framed artwork done for Inkahoots. Program Chairman Fisher explained that McNutt had studied for one year at Amarillo College and achieved her artistic achievements by practice.

Following the program, Ruth McBride, vice president, conducted the business session.

Refreshments of lemon cheesecake, toasted pecans and chocolate fudge were served to Virginia Bayne, Helen Eades, Virginia Garner, Pat Graham, Helen Langley, McBride, Helen Rose, Ruth Allison, and Edna Gault.

Spikers win, earn Dumas rematch

VERNON - The Hereford Lady Whiteface showed their emotional and physical power here Tuesday night at D.O. Fulton Gym when they defeated the Boswell Lady Pioneers 15-13, 15-1, in the area playoff game.

Hereford will now face its district archrival Dumas in the regional playoff game. The game has been set for Saturday at the Amarillo Caprock high School Gym. The time has not yet been determined. The Demonettes defeated the Azle Lady Hornets 15-11, 15-6, in their area playoff.

The first game of the Lady Whitefaces' match against the Lady Pioneers was nip-and-tuck. Hereford fell behind 3-0 in the first game before Teresa Baker served to get the first point. Shantel Cornelius had her first kill of the game to make the score 3-1.

With the score tied 3-2, the two teams traded sides - out six times before Lori Sanders served and Brek Binder made the kill to tie the game at 3-3.

That's when the lady Whitefaces took control of the game. They reeled off six unanswered points to take a 9-3 lead. Five of those six points were served by Robin White, who was the leading server for the match with 11 points.

Hereford had built a 12-5 lead, but Boswell decided to pull it together.

The lady pioneers closed the gap to 12-9 before losing the serve.

White served two points to make it 14-9, but couldn't set the final game point.

The Lady Pioneers hung tough in the game and after holding off game point twice, then got back in the game by serving four straight points for a 14-13 game.

Binder served the final point of the game as the Lady Whitefaces took the first game.

Hereford won the final point of the game on a referee's call after it appeared Boswell had kept the rally going. The referee called that a Boswell player had hit the ball outside the plane of the out-of-bounds pole on the net, and the game was over.

"This is the first time that we've ever been this far in the playoffs, and after we worked through our jitters we played like we have all year," said Lady Whiteface Coach Brenda Reeh. "We missed more serves than we usually do. The ball was sailing on us and then we got overly cautious on our serves. But we did a pretty good job of moving the ball around the net."

The leading hitter for the Hereford team was Cornelius who had nine kills. She also had two solo blocks and five assist blocks.

"At the start of the match we thought we would have to use some soft spikes and tips more than usual," Reeh said. "But we started the same with our hard spikes and they weren't blocking them so we stayed with that."

The second game of the match was no contest.

The Herd blew the Lady Pioneers right off the court. Hereford took a 12-0 lead before Boswell was even able to score a point.

Jayne Moore and Sanders had four-point runs that save the Lady Whitefaces their big lead. Sanders was the second-leading scorer in the match for the Hereford team with seven points.

The Lady Whitefaces won the area championship when Baker served the ball and Cornelius and Sanders went up to stuff a Boswell kill.

Coach Reeh said how the first game ended may have affected the Boswell team in the second game. "It breaks your heart when you fight back like they did in the first game and then lose by a couple of points there at the end," the coach said. "But, a good team will capitalize on that and keep the momentum on their side, and we were able to do that."

Defensive standouts for the Lady Whitefaces were Kyanne Lindley, Brooke Seiver, and Baker.

Hereford now owns a record of 22-6 as the team prepares for its fourth meeting of the year with Dumas.

McKinney struggling to make playoffs

By The Associated Press

The McKinney Lions two weeks ago were 7-0 and ranked third among Class 4A teams in the Associated Press Schoolboy Poll.

This week they'll be fighting just to qualify for the playoffs.

Paul Oatts ran for 96 yards and a 13-yard touchdown Friday, leading Gainesville to a 14-9 victory over McKinney. The Leopards held James Thornton, the top rusher in 4A, to 72 yards and the McKinney offense managed only 153.

The Lions, who lost to Denison the previous week, tumbled from the poll and suddenly are third in District 9-4A.

In order to make the playoffs, McKinney must beat Coppell in its season finale this week and both Gainesville and Denison must lose. That scenario could create a four-way tie for first place.

McKinney coach Ron Poe has seen this situation before. His team finished as tri-champion last season, only to miss the playoffs on a coin flip.

Five other ranked teams lost last week, while all five No. 1 schools survived Week Nine undefeated.

Plano, previously No. 10 in 5A, dropped a 25-14 thriller to No. 7 Lake Highlands.

Lake Highlands, which trailed 14-0 at halftime, beat the Wildcats in Plano for the first time in its 25-year history.

In 4A, Lubbock Estacado fell from fifth to eighth after a 9-7 loss to Levelland, while No. 5 Austin Reagan slapped Austin Westlake

HJH gridgers close year

The Hereford Junior High football teams closed out their seasons Tuesday with three eighth-grade games against Plainview teams.

In the only home contest of the day, the eighth-grade Maroon A team fell to the bulldogs 20-12. The eighth-grade White teams swept both games at Plainview with the A squad winning 14-6 while the B team came up with a 6-0 victory.

All three games were played in sub-par conditions as a cold front moved through the area.

Plainview 20, 8th Maroon A 12

Hereford scored the first touchdown on a 23-yard run by Juan Bocanegra to take a 6-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

The Herd moved back in front after Plainview tied the game with the touchdown coming on a 24-yard halfback pass from Jacob Lopez to Pepe Dela Cruz. The score gave Hereford a 12-6 advantage at halftime.

Plainview scored twice in the second half for the win.

8th White A 14, Plainview 6

Isaac Moreno put the Herd on the board with a 40-yard touchdown run in the first quarter.

Hereford scored the winning touchdown when quarterback Ashley Noland broke loose on a sneak for 30 yards and the score. Noland passed to Michael Brown for the two-point conversion.

8th White B 6, Plainview 0

Tony Rios scored the game's only points for Hereford in the second quarter with a 4-yard run while the Herd defense held Plainview scoreless.

'Pokes looking to end 49ers' winning streak

IRVING (AP) - The San Francisco 49ers have won games 13-12, 19-13, 24-21, 20-17, and 24-20 this year. Are these guys just lucky besides being good?

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said on Tuesday the close scores are a tribute to the defending world champions.

"Teams look forward to playing the 49ers and giving them their best and that's why the 49ers have been in so many close games," Johnson said.

"The 49ers are the best and playing the best brings outstanding performances from their opponents," he said.

"San Francisco does what it takes to win in the fourth quarter."

Johnson said the Cowboys will be just like everybody else who plays San Francisco - "pumped."

"Our players know that sometimes strange things happen," Johnson said of a possible upset. "Granted, it would be a strange thing if we beat the 49ers."

The 3-6 Cowboys and the 8-0 49ers meet on Sunday night at 7 p.m. CST in a rare primetime television (ESPN) appearance for Dallas. San Francisco was a 10-point favorite.

Johnson called San Francisco the best NFL team of all-time.

"Our guys are upbeat and looking forward to playing the 49ers who just might be the best team to ever play the game," Johnson said. "I know we'll give a maximum effort."

The game will mark the Texas Stadium debut of Montana. San Francisco and Dallas have played in Texas Stadium just once since 1980 (last year) and Montana didn't play. Sun Devil Stadium in Phoenix is the only other NFL stadium where Montana has never played.

"He's the best quarterback I've ever seen," Johnson said.

Johnson said defensive players can read most quarterback's eyes but not Montana's.

"He's the most difficult quarterback I've ever seen trying to read his eyes," Johnson said. "If you try to read Montana you're going to be wrong."

Johnson said he hopes that someday Troy Aikman can become another Montana.

"A quarterback has to know where his people are going to be and that's one of the problems with our offense," Johnson said. "We're just too inconsistent and it hurts Troy. He has to learn to scan the field like Montana does and keep the defense from reading his eyes."

Johnson said the Cowboys are just about over Sunday's 24-9 loss to the New York Jets.

"The team is excited about being on national TV and I think we will play well against the 49ers," Johnson said.

The 49ers have won an NFL-record 14 consecutive road games and have conquered 16 consecutive opponents, including playoff games.

Orlando, New Jersey continue losing ways in new NBA season

The Associated Press
The season is young but the losing streaks of the Orlando Magic and New Jersey Nets are old.

The 2-year-old Magic suffered an NBA-record 16th consecutive home setback Tuesday night, losing to Cleveland 102-95 as Larry Nance led the Cavaliers with 23 points and 12 rebounds.

"Nothing comes easy," said Nick Anderson, who scored 20 for Orlando. "The losing streak is for (the media). We don't pay attention to it. We just have to go out and try and get a win."

The Nets have been trying for a win on the road since Dec. 17 in Miami. Their latest setback - their 31st straight on the road, one shy of the record - was a 113-105 loss in Charlotte as Muggsy Bogues paced a 12-4 fourth-quarter surge with eight of his 11 points.

Coach Bill Fitch said the Nets "were thinking about winning," but Bogues was the difference.

"He's very good at what he does," Fitch said. "He may be the smallest player in the league (5-foot-3), but he may have the biggest heart. That's where he makes it up. He's a 'get in your hair' type player."

Elsewhere, it was Seattle 100, Detroit 92; Portland 125, the Los Angeles Lakers 123 in overtime; Boston 110, Chicago 108; Dallas 96, New York 91; Houston 145, Denver 135; Golden State 130, the Los Angeles Clippers 109; Atlanta 102, Sacramento 85; Milwaukee 106, Miami 94; and Indiana 98, Minnesota 96.

Hornets 113, Nets 105
Charlotte led 93-92 when Bogues began a 12-4 spurt with two free throws. He followed that with two layups, including a 3-point play that made it 105-96 with 3:30 to play. SuperSonics 100, Pistons 92

Xavier McDaniel scored 12 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter as Seattle handed Detroit its first loss of the season.

The two-time NBA champions led 80-77 with 6:41 to play. But the Sonics' defense and poor Detroit shooting limited the Pistons to only a basket by Bill Laimbeer with 3:39 remaining before William Bedford hit three 3-pointers in the final minute. Trail Blazers 125, Lakers 123

Terry Porter tied the game with a free throw with 29 seconds left in overtime, then hit a jumper from the top of the key with 11 seconds remaining.

Celtics 110, Bulls 108

Brian Shaw's layup at the buzzer capped Boston's comeback from an 11-point fourth-quarter deficit. Trailing 90-79 after three quarters, Shaw, who had 20 points, and Kevin McHale with 19, led the rally. Mavericks 96, Knicks 91

Rolando Blackman scored 20 points, including a go-ahead layup with 37 seconds remaining, as Dallas rallied from a 16-point deficit. Rockets 145, Nuggets 135

Kenny Smith had 35 points, including seven foul shots in the final 1:09. Denver, in its first season under run-and-gun coach Paul Westhead, is 0-3 and giving up 149 points a game.

Warriors 130, Clippers 109

Chris Mullin scored 26 points and Mitch Richmond and reserve Sarunas Marciulionis added 21 apiece as Golden State won its home opener for only the third time in seven years. Hawks 102, Kings 85

Dominique Wilkins scored 24 points for Atlanta, which ran off 19 consecutive points in the first quarter. Moses Malone added 16 points and Glenn Rivers 15 for the Hawks (3-0).

Bucks 106, Heat 94

Frank Brickowski and Jack Sikma combined for 15 points during two third-period runs. Leading 54-52, the Bucks scored the next 12 points, four each by Brickowski and Sikma, and led 66-52.

Pacers 98, Timberwolves 96

Indiana won on Vern Fleming's tip-in with three seconds remaining. Indiana, which trailed by 15 points in the first period, tied the score 84-84 with 5:45 remaining on a 3-point shot by Reggie Miller, who had 29 points.

Cougars looking for chance at national title against Longhorns

HOUSTON (AP) - Show-and-tell time comes down to show time for No. 3 Houston Saturday against No. 14 Texas and Cougars coach John Jenkins wouldn't have it any other way.

Jenkins has been telling any listener that his run-and-shoot Cougars should be the national champions if they go unbeaten this season.

So, Jenkins welcomes showtime with three games left in the season.

"We take it as a challenge that all of the voters (in The AP poll) are out there saying, 'not so fast, we'll see if you're the No. 1 team on Saturday, show us,'" Jenkins said. "That's the message I'll relay to the squad so let's tee it up and let it happen."

Houston (8-0) is 7-0 in Southwest Conference games and the Longhorns are 4-0 and will be testing the Cougars' 12-game winning streak that is the longest in the nation.

Houston is in the final year of a three-year NCAA probation sentence that will prevent them from playing in a bowl game but Jenkins thinks it would be good for the SWC for the Cougars to win the national title.

"The greatest thing that could happen to this league would be for Houston to win the national title and for the Cotton Bowl representative to have a good showing," Jenkins said.

The Cougars moved up from No. 6 to No. 3 behind Notre Dame and Washington Monday and Jenkins didn't complain about the positioning.

"We're within a rock's throw of winning the national championship with three games remaining and the greatest opportunity for us comes Saturday," Jenkins said. "It's not the lineup that counts, it's where you wind up."

Houston has beaten Texas 60-40, 66-15 and 47-9 the past three years and Jenkins has special memories of the Cougars' 60-40 victory in 1987.

"This offense (run-and-shoot) finally took its place against Texas in 1987," Jenkins said. "That was the beginning of this era. Since that time we've had a 29-5-1 record. I guess we have a sentimental attachment to this game, like a reunion."

Jenkins said he has a job to do in getting his team ready to play the Longhorns.

"These players have never lost to Texas and they've won convincingly every time," Jenkins said. "My job is to make sure every step they take is directed to doing the same thing."

The Cougars' No. 3 ranking is their highest since they reached a No. 2 ranking in The AP poll in 1967.

They beat Michigan State 37-7, achieving a No. 3 rank that year, and rose to No. 2 the following week with a 50-6 victory over Wake Forest. Houston lost to North Carolina State the following week and finished the season with a 7-3 record and No. 16 ranking.

"We're not worried about it," wide receiver Manny Hazard said. "The only thing we're worrying about is winning these last three games and going 11-0."

Houston will close out the season with non-conference games against Eastern Washington and Arizona State.

The Cougars were placed on probation in 1988 for violations that occurred during the tenure of former Coach Bill Yeoman. The Cougars were unable to appear on live television last year under terms of the probation.

HIGH SCHOOL

from the 10th spot in the poll with its 14-3 victory.

No. 9 Wilmer-Hutchins (8-1) and No. 10 Athens (7-1-1) debuted in the 4A rankings.

In 2A, Post lost to Crosbyton 18-17 and fell from the poll, while Era was beaten 31-0 by Muenster and fell from fourth to ninth in Class A.

Aldine, No. 1 in 5A, smashed Eisenhower 48-7. The Mustangs received 27 of 29 first-place votes and 288 overall.

Class 4A's top-ranked team, A&M Consolidated, escaped with a 7-2 victory over Tomball, thanks mostly to a pair of interceptions late in the game by Mark Anderson.

Tomball had marched to the Tigers' 9 with 6:11 remaining when Anderson stole his first pass in the end zone. The second came less than a minute later at the Consolidated 14.

The Tigers garnered 26 first-place votes and 287 overall, leading No. 2 Bay City.

Vernon, which thrashed Bridgeport 57-6, received 19 first-place votes and 276 overall to retain the No. 1 ranking in 3A.

Groveton battered Lovelady 56-7 and kept its stronghold on 2A's top ranking, while Munday did the same in Class A with its 68-0 crunching of Crowell.

Possible winning record not a distraction for 4-5 Rice Owls

HOUSTON (AP) - The Rice Owls football team has no past or future beyond Saturday's game in Rice Stadium against Southern Methodist, by order of coach Fred Goldsmith.

The Owls (4-5) have a chance for their first winning season since 1963 if they can beat SMU and Baylor in their final two games and Goldsmith doesn't want any distractions.

Forget last week's 19-11 victory over two-time defending Southwest Conference champion Arkansas - the Owls' first over the Hogs since 1980 - and forget the possibilities over the next two weeks.

"We'll enjoy the Arkansas ballgame 12 days from today when our football season will be over,"

Goldsmith said. "We've been very impressed with what we've seen on television this year of SMU. They're a tremendous threat to our football team."

Not since the Jess Neely era has a Rice team finished with a winning record. Neely's 1963 Owls finished the season 6-4, and the Owls' 27-year non-winning streak started the next season.

With such streak-breaking possibilities, Goldsmith is guarding against overconfidence.

"We're not good enough to let down," Goldsmith said. "It's been 11 years since we won five football games. If we don't get No. 5 we won't have a chance at a winning record."

Goldsmith wishes his team didn't even see the early line showing Rice was a 22-point favorite over the Mustangs (1-7).

"I see it as an even game," Goldsmith said. "Last year, it was their first game in two years and they played us head-to-head in the second half."

Rice broke an 18-game losing streak with a 35-6 victory last season. It was SMU's first game coming off the NCAA death penalty for rules violations.

"I sense that they think if they are going to get a victory in the Southwest Conference, it is going to be against Rice," Goldsmith said.

Still, the thought of a winning season is tantalizing to the Rice players.

Reporting waterfowl die-offs helps officials

With the arrival of cooler weather and the shorter days of fall comes the migration of thousands of ducks, geese, sandhill cranes and other migratory wildfowl to the Panhandle and Southern High Plains of Texas. The area is dotted with at least 19,000 playa basins, a few reservoirs, and hundreds of man-made stock watering impoundments. The large number of playas, their natural aquatic plants and waste grain in surrounding fields, make this region very attractive to migrating and wintering waterfowl and shorebirds.

But due to very widely sporadic rainfall amounts and drought conditions as well as varying land use practices across the region, water is in short supply in most years and waterfowl are often dangerously concentrated where water is available. According to Jim Ray, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Waterfowl biologist for the Panhandle and Southern High Plains, warm, shallow playa lakes and adverse weather conditions can spell trouble for large concentrations of waterfowl in the High Plains.

"The very nature of a playa lake and the hot, dry climate of the Southern High Plains is very conducive to outbreaks of several waterfowl diseases," said Ray. "Playa lakes are generally very shallow and water sits warm and stagnant. Add to this large concentrations of migrating and wintering birds and a climate famous for temperature extremes and you've got potential for problems."

Avian cholera and fowl cholera are, by far, the two most commonly reported waterfowl diseases in the High Plains. Both are bacterial diseases and can affect bird species other than waterfowl and possibly even mammalian wildlife. Botulism normally occurs from July through September. At this time, water levels are dropping and our climate is characterized by hot day and relatively cool nights. All are favorable to outbreaks of avian botulism. At the tail-end of this period, waterfowl begin to concentrate in shallow, stagnant playas. If the botulism toxin is present, large concentrations of waterfowl and other birds can die rather suddenly. "It is imperative that people report such a die-off so cleanup of carcasses can begin and other waterfowl be discouraged from using the site," said Ray. "Fly maggots scavenge on infected carcasses and build up concentrations of bacterial botulism toxins. Waterfowl readily consume them and receive concentrated doses of toxin. Botulism occurs almost yearly in the High Plains with extensive losses. This year is no exception, as we already have one die-off attributed to botulism."

Avian cholera is a highly infectious disease and the Texas Panhandle is one of the four major focal point areas for the disease in the United States. This disease occurs most often in late winter and die-offs seem to be triggered by stresses such as overcrowding, harassment from predators, and the severe cold fronts that the Panhandle is famous for. According to Ray, "Under stressful circumstances 'explosive' die-offs can occur and have involved more than 1,000 birds per day in some cases."

Wildlife officials could go on and on about other diseases and each of their symptoms. But, according to Ray, what is important to the general public is that when someone finds sick or dying birds around a playa, in any concentration, they should immediately leave the area and phone the proper officials.

"The more delay in reporting the die-off the more birds can be exposed to the bacterium or whatever harmed them," said Ray. "In addition, carcasses are rapidly scavenged by predators, eliminating any evidence that a die-off has occurred." If such a die-off is witnessed, people should immediately phone Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge, Umberger, at 499-3382.

The High Plains of Texas is a very important wintering area for the Central Flyway. One step in the right direction for High Plains' migratory waterfowl management is the Playa Lakes Joint Venture of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan. One of the foremost goals of the Playa Lakes Joint venture is to provide ample water areas across the High Plains of Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas and Oklahoma so that when migrating or wintering birds arrive they'll have plenty of habitat to disperse themselves in, thus avoiding high concentrations and minimizing the impact of diseases and other mortality factors.

"We don't want more than 2.5 percent of the migratory birds to be in any one concentration or to overlap another concentration's feeding area," Ray said. For more information on the Playa Lakes Joint Venture, contact your local Texas Parks and Wildlife Department office or James D. Ray, Wildlife Biologist, Texas Parks & Wildlife, 4815 6th, Lubbock, 79416, 791-3040.

Local roper wins at El Paso

EL PASO-- Billy Stephens of Hereford and Twister Cain of Ivanhoe repeated as nightly winners Monday in the 14th annual Coors World Finals Rodeo.

Stephens and Cain were crowned the winners in the team roping Monday after also taking the title on Sunday night. Winners in eight events are hoping the points attained will make the difference to advance to the championship round Saturday.

Almost 700 contestants from the U.S., Canada, Mexico and Australia are competing for more than $250,000 in awards and prizes. The contestants are survivors of 25 regional rodeos in eight categories--bareback bronc riding, saddle broncs, calf roping, steer wrestling, bull riding, team roping, women's barrel racing and women's breakaway roping.

HUSTLE HEREFORD

Industrial electrical firm here is breaking records Brandon & Clark in Hereford for 20 years

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

While economic experts on Capitol Hill talk of recession for the 1990s, a Hereford service company is starting the new decade with a record-breaking year in business.

Brandon & Clark, Inc., located about one minute from downtown Hereford on East U.S. 60 will top 1989 by about 6 percent this year, setting new business levels for the industrial electrical company that opened in Hereford 20 years ago.

"We broke all business records last year (1989) in our 20 years here in Hereford and if the present trends continue, we'll beat that by about 6 percent in 1990," said Doug Crouch, branch manager for Brandon & Clark of Hereford. "I realize that about all we've heard from the national economists has been recession, but we've never had it so good."

Headquartered in Lubbock, the regional company also has a service and sales center in Odessa which is following a similar trend as in Hereford -- up 28 percent over the record-breaking 1989 marketing year.

"Our move to Hereford has worked out very well," said Crouch. "But through the years we've attempted to develop new trade territories and new marketing niches when an old one faded out."

Initially, Brandon & Clark was an industrial electrical service company but through the years, the company has branched out into the wholesale and retail divisions of the electrical business. Its gigantic inventories of service parts, materials and new equipment will easily run into the millions, but catering mostly to the commercial and industrial side of the electrical energy business.

"Actually, we don't even solicit the commercial business -- there's plenty of mighty good electricians around town to handle it -- but if someone comes to us for installation or service repairs, we'll certainly handle it," said Crouch. "Our main business has always been the industrial end and we plan to keep it that way."

Commercial business to Brandon & Clark includes servicing the electrical needs of such firms as retail outlets, whereas industrial reaches the big energy loads of the giant feedmills, grain elevators, food manufacturing companies and steel fabricators of the millwrights.

As a matter of fact, the giant electrical generators of Southwestern Public Service Company's plants near Amarillo are repaired and if necessary, rewound, by Brandon & Clark's Hereford service crews. They also service the small weekend units.

"We've expanded into Kansas and Oklahoma, and we get a lot of service business out of the Stratford/Gruver areas," said Crouch. "When we saw the irrigation business dropping off around here, we just moved out a little farther to such areas as Dalhart, Stratford and Gruver. We also get a lot of business from the Oklahoma Panhandle around Guymon."

Other than an industrial service shop in Amarillo, Brandon & Clark is the only electrical service company specializing in industrial electrical needs between Garden City, Ks., and Odessa. The company was launched originally to service the agricultural industry but as the need arose, the company moved heavily into other areas, such as the oilpatch and recycling fields.

"We're handling all of the electrical needs for a big recycling plant in Amarillo, and right now we believe this type of business will be on the increase," said Crouch. "We had never heard of recycling when we opened this business in Hereford 20 years ago, and 20 years from now Brandon & Clark will be servicing companies that don't even exist today...we're in a period of great change and a business must move with the change."

Crouch emphasized that though the company has moved into wholesale and retail of electrical supplies and equipment, customer service has priority -- "We have a service crew on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. It doesn't matter whether the job is small or large, we treat all work with the same dedication."

As an example of their wide range of electrical servicing, on one afternoon last week at Brandon & Clark's service center a master electrician was debugging a 2,500-pound motor at one table while a rewinding expert was putting new copper in a housing about the size of an air-conditioning unit. If it's electrical, Brandon & Clark can repair it or rebuild it, no matter what the size.

"We'll service anything from say a 1/6th horsepower office fan to the 6000 horsepower generator, at Southwestern Public Service," crouch added. "A lot of times we'll have customers who want us to do a complete turnkey job on their electrical needs, from installation of the wiring and control panels to the motors -- and we can do all of that."

Versatility goes hand-in-hand with customer service at Brandon & Clark which has an engineering department that designs, manufactures and installs custom electrical controls to fit any energy need. For example, their patented Loadmaster load controllers are used throughout the cotton industry while their Laboratory Test Panels are used by many pump manufacturers.

The company's vast inventory

Composite logs cleaner, safer than fire wood

When the temperature drops, homeowners look for ways to take the chill off the old homestead. Nothing warms the body and soul more than a soothing, glowing fire.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, there are more than 20 million fireplaces. That can mean a lot of mess and harmful smoke in the environment. For homeowners that find building a fire with wood inconvenient and hazardous to the environment, there's a ready solution-composite firelogs, manufactured from recycled sawdust and wax.

Unlike firewood, recycled sawdust and wax firelogs are simple to light and burn easily. They're cleaner to burn, generate little smoke and leave minimal ash for easy clean-up. Firelogs can also be conveniently and cleanly stacked near the fireplace-great for apartment and condo dwellers.

Recent tests of such premium brand firelogs show that they are environmentally safer and cleaner to burn than real wood and do not cause creosote buildup in the fireplace.

includes such industrial supplies as all sizes of electrical motors, controls, pilot devices, relays, V-belts, sheaves, chains, sprockets, gear reducers, hoists, all types of conduit, fuses of every known make and description and about a jillion items of high-tech stuff found only in the master electrician's vocabulary.

Racks of large motors -- in the 100 to 300 horsepower range -- fill one end of the company's Hereford warehouse, while spools of electrical wiring hanging some 12 feet high to form a copper barrier between the big iron and the little iron...half a dozen aisles of parts bins backstop Brandon & Clark's in-house service shop. And every teeny-weeny part is cataloged into a company computer system that birdog's all of the company warehouses from Hereford to Odessa.

Though electrical motors are frequently billed as the most dependable workhorse of the American workforce, in every unit there comes a time for repairs -- and sometimes rebuilding. But a computerized tattle-tale at Brandon & Clark takes the guess-work out of guessimates. They call it Low Voltage Motor Repair Procedure, a high-tech computer capable of detecting even the microscopic flaws in an electrical motor -- form a hair-line crack in lamination to quality of the back iron.

"This machine allows us to effectively check out a used motor to not only find its flaws but also to see if it is worthwhile to rebuild it," said Crouch. "Many times motors come in such a condition that they can no longer be rebuilt and must be discarded. This frequently becomes a big service to our customers because many times the iron (housing framework) flaws cannot be seen with the naked eye."

In addition to stocking perhaps the largest industrial electrical inventory in the Southwest, Brandon & Clark has an engineering department capable of determining various energy needs, whether it be for air-conditioning of an office complex or turning the shafts of a giant feed mill mixer.

At the present time, agriculture and agricultural-related industries are making up the big end of Brandon & Clark business at Hereford. Irrigation well servicing and grain elevators once stood at the top, then came the commercial cattle feeding boom of the 1960s and 1970s which brought more than 200 giant feeding units to the area...and with them came the big electrical motors.

The servicing of Hereford-area food factory equipment is another top division for Brandon & Clark. Ramirez & Sons, Arrowhead Mills, Panhandle Mills, M-W Carrott, Frito-Lay Holly Sugar and American Frutose area all a part of the industrial servicing business for the Hereford electrical company. The vegetable packing and processing industry is another phase of their service business, backstopped of the Hereford area. And then there's the steel fabricating companies who use electrical energy to put steel to work for the food factories, feed factories beef factories and recycling factories.

Though recycling is generally billed as big-city stuff, Hereford has substantial investments in the recycling of by-products -- Hereford Bi-Products, Inc., which turns feedyard waste into high quality consumer products, and Shur-Gro Liquid Feed, Inc., another Hereford-based company which recycles many waste products into livestock feeds. All of these Hereford-based companies use enormous amounts of electrical energy to keep industrial production on line with demand -- and the heartbeat of this industrial force is the mystic motor which runs on a current that can't be seen, heard or tested -- but it can be felt.

"We keep a number of stand-by motors on hand at all times so that we can put a loaned unit on line while a damaged or worn motor is being repaired," said Crouch. "A lot of the companies have their own stand-by units on hand at their factories or mills, but if they don't, we have units ready to go in case of an emergency."

Brandon & Clark can also determine the necessary transmission voltage and line size needed to span great distances, such as reaching isolated irrigation wells or oilpatches.

Crouch said that one of the biggest changes he has noted in the past 20 years in the industrial electrical field has been the improved quality of both, materials and factory equipment. For example, a motor rebuilt today with current materials and know-how would out-last a new one built 20 years ago.

"We're actually working ourselves out of business," said Crouch, in sort of a jokingly manner. "The old motors we rebuild today are much better than the same motor built 20 years ago."

Brandon & Clark, Inc., opened for business on April 1, 1950, at Lubbock, primarily as an agricultural servicing company, by Basil Brandon and Bob and Bill Clark. Brandon was the step-father of the Clark brothers, thus making the new venture a family operation.

On Jan. 20, 1970, the Lubbock-based firm opened its Hereford branch, with Doug Crouch coming in as branch manager, a position he has held for the past 20 years. But those first months as branch manager was more like a one-man workforce than an executive position...chief, cook and bottle-washer. But Crouch found an empty space at the rear of a Texaco service station and opened for business.

"I leased the rear of the service station just a few feet over there to the west and went to work," recalled Crouch. "We found a real need here for servicing the various industries and in just a short time, I found myself out in the field on service calls almost round the clock, so I asked my wife to come in and answer the phone."

That move was the beginning of an office career for Ann Crouch who still answers the phone at Brandon & Clark in Hereford. But now, the stately businesswoman runs the offices instead of being a part-time answering service for her husband.

Brandon & Clark later bought the entire service station, along with some adjacent properties in the block and in 1978, the present Hereford headquarters were built, fronting on U.S. 60. Through the years, a retail and wholesale departments were added to the service center which now has a 20-person workforce and an annual payroll that will reach nearly $500,000 this year.

Crouch pointed out that this company has never considered itself as being in competition with any other company in the Hereford area -- "We actually found a servicing void here in Hereford and all we did was come in and fill it."

Due to the very nature of their work, Brandon & Clark is very aware of the various state and federal regulatory agencies, such as EPA and OSHA. But Crouch noted that in most cases, their service work has much higher standards than those set at national levels.

"We were using high safety measures long before many of the regulatory agencies were even created," said Crouch, as he reflected on a long career in the electrical field. "Safety and quality service have been priority at Brandon & Clark."

Though Crouch related to his trade territory as being the High Plains of the Southwest, a number of company-made products reach to the far points of the Midwest and Rocky Mountain regions, particularly in the meat packing business. The industrial manager pointed out that a 65-horsepower motor was considered a big unit 20 years ago here on the high plains, whereas today, 200 to 300 horsepower units are commonplace throughout the High Plains due to the advanced production of agriculture.

"When the needs of the people change, then we in the servicing field must change...or go out of business," said Crouch. "An example, back in the 1960s the grain elevator servicing was probably our biggest business but now it is the commercial cattle feeder that stands at the top."

As branch manager for Brandon & Clark, Crouch is also a master electrician. In addition to his wife, other departmental staff employees include Ed Sanders, outside service manager and shop supervisor; Dale Mullins, head purchasing agent; Eddie Ambold, shop foreman, and Jesse Martinez, lead mechanic.

A native of Haskell, Crouch was a son of Nelson and Doris Crouch, long-time Haskell County farmers. Mr. Crouch died in 1985 and his mother is now retired in Lorenzo. After graduating from high school at Quinlan, Tx., in 1951, Crouch worked at various jobs in the North Texas area for a short time before joining Brandon & Clark as a career electrician and company executive. Mrs. Crouch (Ann Mitchell) is a native of Idalou where her parents, Wilmer and Johnnie Mitchell, were also farmers for many years.

The Crouches have three children - Tammie of Amarillo, Mary Ann of Hereford and Barry of Houston. The three children all graduated from Hereford High School. As part of his social activities, Crouch was a charter member of the American Business Club when a chapter was formed in Hereford about five years ago.

While business is good at Brandon & Clark, Crouch also sees a productive decade ahead for the Greater Hereford region if the local business community continues to reach out for new industry.

"We must continuously watch for new developments in fields related to agriculture. It has been the new trends, not the old, that have kept us in business...when something begins to slip a little, that's the time to start looking for something new."

Why do bommerangs come back?

Boomerangs are V-shaped devices, which open at an angle anywhere from 90 to 160 degrees, depending on their use.

There are two types of boomerangs, returning and nonreturning. A returning type, thrown correctly, will come back to the thrower. The nonreturning type has been used as a weapon for centuries, especially by Australian Aborigines.

The returning boomerang comes back because of its shape and size, the air pressure and how it is thrown. The bend in the middle gives it the shape of an airplane's wings. The top side is curved and the underside is flat, with one thick edge and one thin edge.

The thrower grips one wing tip and throws. As the boomerang flies through the air, it spins wing over wing. The air pressure below the boomerang is greater than the air pressure above it and that keeps it travelling. First it flies forward, then rises and then curves to one side to return to the thrower.

everything money could buy and enjoyed a 15-point lead in the polls with just six weeks to go.

But he couldn't stop making the gaffes that dated back to March, when he likened bad weather to rape and said if it were inevitable, "just relax and enjoy it."

More followed. And in the campaign's final week, he made two major missteps.

First, he admitted on a statewide TV broadcast that he didn't understand the proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot concerned with gubernatorial appointments. Then Friday, with the polls opening in only 84 hours, he acknowledged that he had paid no income taxes in 1986.

A CBS-TV exit poll said 25 percent of Tuesday's voters made their choice in those last seven days.

"He made so many mistakes, it's hard to pick out one," said Mattox, a Democrat who had wanted to run against Williams.

While kinder to himself, Williams said he didn't see defeat as rejection of his values but conceded, "Maybe I'm a little too open, maybe straightforward. If there's anything that we've proven, it's that I'm not a politician."

For her part, Richards did many things well.

First, she raised more money than skeptics had thought she could. While being outspent nearly 2-to-1, she still raised more than $11 million, putting her on a par with the 1986 candidates, Mark White and Bill Clements.

She mobilized women. The CBS poll showed Richards capturing 61 percent of the women's vote, including 21 percent of Republican women.

She found issues that struck a nerve - improving education, getting control of soaring health insurance rates and her experience in government.

And she rallied the Democrats she needed. She carried East and South Texas, and the CBS poll found her winning 67 percent of the Hispanic vote and 89 percent of the black vote.

Down the ballot, Texas voters sent some mixed messages.

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, who reportedly may be readying for a 1996 presidential bid, breezed to re-election with more than 60 percent of the voter over Democratic state Sen. Hugh Parmer of Fort Worth.

But neither Gramm nor President Bush, who calls Texas home and campaigned alongside Williams, could help their party hold onto the Governor's Mansion now occupied by retiring Republican Bill Clements.

Democrats again won many of the statewide offices - lieutenant governor, attorney general and comptroller - that they've held for more than 100 years.

But Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison won the treasurer's race and the GOP's

Rick Perry stunned Democratic Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower. Republican candidates also scored some successes in the Supreme Court contests, with Chief Justice Tom Phillips being re-elected and John Cornyn winning the Place 1 election.

State Republican Chairman Fred Meyer said the governor's race "got off the issues and basically onto personalities. And that doesn't work for us."

So in the end, it all came back to Williams' mistakes.

"Clayton Williams has apologized for that rape joke more than any remark in the history of American politics," said Williams consultant Bill Kenyon. "And yet it still comes up every week."

Mud-and-money slinging over

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Mercifully, it's over.

If Hollywood's big cigars had gotten hold of this mess, they'd have called it "Mud and Money."

It was a Texas political campaign like no other. It drew national attention like flies to fertilizer, and for much the same reason.

When the mud, blood and tears subsided Tuesday night, Democrat Ann Richards had won the most expensive and probably the nastiest governor's race in Texas history.

But not without help from Clayton Williams, her Republican opponent.

And you can say farewell also to Warren G. Harding, Gene Kelly and Bart Simpson. All lost, despite name recognition.

If you can believe the polls, Williams squandered a $20-million campaign, a double-digit lead, the influence of President Bush and the support of U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm.

"Only Clayton Williams could have beaten Clayton Williams," a disgruntled, unidentified GOP supporter told reporters before leaving a victory party that wasn't.

It was an unusual election.

While Democrats were clearly the big winners, it was Republican Rick Perry, a Haskell farmer and rancher, who pulled off a major surprise in the Texas agriculture commissioner's race by beating incumbent Jim Hightower.

"I would call it probably the biggest upset in the last 10 years of Texas politics," gushed Perry.

The populist, wisecracking Hightower will be remembered always for his comment when told that his longtime adversary, GOP

Gov. Bill Clements, was studying Spanish.

"Oh, good," replied Hightower. "Now he'll be bi-ignorant."

Democrat Bob Bullock won the lieutenant governor's race after a hard-hitting, big bucks campaign against Republican rival Rob Mosbacher, son and namesake of the U.S. Commerce Secretary.

Bullock may have turned that political asset into a liability, referring to Mosbacher derisively as "Junior" throughout the campaign.

It was not a good year for familiar names. Democrat John Sharp was elected Texas comptroller over Republican Warren G. Harding, who is not related to the former U.S. president. And Democrat Gene Kelly, who is unrelated to the dancer, was defeated in his bid for a Texas supreme court seat.

Even Bart Simpson lost.

But this Bart Simpson was a 24-year-old Republican state legislative candidate from Bexar County and not the bratty, under-achieving star of the hit TV show.

He lost to Democrat Leticia Van de Putte, a pharmacist and mother of six.

But nothing, of course, rivaled the governor's race, where Richards, the state treasurer and a recovered alcoholic, faced the feisty Williams, who she accused of attempting to buy the governor's mansion.

But it was his mouth, not his money, that became the decisive issue.

The Midland millionaire rancher-oilman misspoke himself mightily when he jokingly compared rape to lousy weather. If inevitable, he chuckled, best we "relax and enjoy it."

No one laughed, although some Democrats surely snickered a bit.

Likewise, not everyone was amused by Claytie's disclosure that he frolicked with Mexican prostitutes as a youngster, a rite of passage, he explained, into West Texas manhood.

If possible, he made even more serious gaffes in the closing days of the campaign, permitting Richards to overcome a deficit of 12 percentage points in the opinion polls.

In an orchestrated snub, Williams refused to shake hands with Richards when the two crossed paths in Dallas.

He then dismissed her as a "liar."

Later, off guard but on TV, he admitted he didn't understand the only proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot. And he said he paid no income taxes in 1986 because of the slumping oil economy.

If in fact George Bush was born with a silver foot in his mouth, as Richards once suggested, then poor Claytie was born with silver boots, a silver saddle and maybe a silver steer stuck in there somewhere.

He didn't need money. He needed a muzzle.

education. They want something done about their insurance rates and they want a governor that's going to do that." She also pledged to work on the environment, health care and senior issues.

Richards took a big majority in south Texas, edged out Williams in east Texas, and won the majority in Dallas, Houston, Austin and San Antonio.

Williams was obviously subdued when he made his appearance at about 11:10 p.m. Tuesday. He thanked "the thousands of Texans who shared our dream of making Texas great again...and to all those Texans who voted for us, President Bush, Sen. Gramm, and my friend Bill Clements, and to the thousands of volunteers, team players and contributors who worked so long and so hard. I'm deeply grateful to all of you...I am grateful even more for all you have meant to us."

"To Ann Richards and all who voted for her I say congratulations."

At the top of the ballot, the county went strong to Phil Gramm for a second term as U.S. senator, giving him a 2,896 to 1,158 win over challenger Hugh Parmer.

Local voters also favored: --Rob Mosbacher narrowly over Bob Bullock for lieutenant governor, 2,013 to 1,998.

--Buster Brown over Dan Morales for attorney general, 2,082 to 2,884

--Kay Bailey Hutchison over Nikki Van Hightower for state treasurer, 2,436 to 1,470.

--Rick Perry by 1,083 votes over incumbent Jim Hightower for commissioner of agriculture, 2,583 to 1,505.

In other state races:

--John Sharp as comptroller, Garry Mauro as land commissioner, Beau Boulter as railroad commissioner, Tom Phillips as Supreme Court chief justice, John Cornyn and Bob Gammage as high court associate justices, and Frank Maloney, Oliver Kitzman, Bill White, David Berchelman and Morris Overstreet as court of criminal appeals justices.
