North passes buck to higher authorities

By JIM DRINKARD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver North has "kicked the ball upstairs" with his testimony that he wrote not one but five memos intended for President Reagan about diverting money from Iran arms sales to aid Nicaraguan rebels.

"The question of who authorized Colonel North to do what still remains, I think, largely unanswered," said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House Iran-Contra investigating committee.

Hamilton said that question, and others raised by North during his first six hours of testimony, may have to wait for next week's scheduled appearance of former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and the testimony of cabinet members still to be called to the witness stand.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said North's testimony had "kicked the ball upstairs" and raised questions for higher administration officials.

Nunn said he was impressed by the intensity of North's belief that he was acting only on higher authority. In North's view, "he was not a loose cannon. He was a cannon that was pointed in certain directions by his superiors."

North told congressional investigating panels Tuesday that he doesn't know what became of the extraordinary memos, intended for the president's eyes and written on orders from Poindexter. The Iran-Contra committees previously had known of only one such memo.

The nationally televised hearings quickly became a fixation in Washington, where many of North's Pentagon colleagues were glued to TV sets. But at the White House, officials made a determined show of indifference to the hearings and tried to maintain a business-as-usual atmosphere.

North, the long-awaited witness who has been at the center of the Iran-Contra storm, faced further questioning today by House committee counsel John Nields.

Among questions yet to be posed are those dealing with whether he stood to profit from his dealings and how the resupply operation for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels evolved during the time of a congressional ban on such aid.

In free-wheeling opening-day testimony that, unlike that of previous witnesses, had been largely unreviewed by the committee, North dropped several new revelations. They included:

—While the committees and other government investigators had discovered only one memorandum in National Security Council files outlining the plans to divert money from the Iran arms sales to aid the Contras, North disclosed that he had written five.

North said he composed the memos each time a potential arms-for-hostages deal neared fruition, beginning in January or February of last year, and at Poindexter's direction designed them so that Reagan could check or initial an "approved" or "disapproved" line at the bottom.

Carbajal trial is underway here

By DEBE GRAVES Staff Writer

Incompetency to stand trial due to severe depression and hallucinations is the basis of arguments defense attorney Jerry Smith is presenting on the behalf of Florentino Carbajal, accused in the late December 1986 shooting death of his teenage wife, Marina.

Testimony in Carbajal's competency hearing began Tuesday afternoon before a six-woman, six-man jury in 222nd District Court.

Jurors were advised that their job is to determine if Carbajal is mentally competent to stand trial for the murder. Initial witnesses included a psychiatrist and three of Carbajal's fellow inmates in Deaf Smith County Jail.

Dr. Preston Shaw, of Lubbock, testified that he performed a psychiatric evaluation on Carbajal in late March and found him to be suicidally depressed and hallucinating. "I thought at the time that he was suffering from a state of mental illness which I would term psychotic," Shaw stated.

He said Carbajal told him he was depressed and would prefer a lethal injection rather than facing a trial. Shaw said he bases his opinion that Carbajal is not capable of standing trial on his indication that he does not care to defend himself.

"I felt if he was that depressed he wouldn't aid anyone in his defense because he wanted to be convicted," Shaw said.

Shaw testified that Carbajal, an eighth-grade dropout, was "difficult to talk to and I had to drag answers out of him. My opinion is that he is not competent to stand trial."

Carbajal also told the psychiatrist that he heard the voice of his dead wife telling him to kill himself and that a witch's spell had been cast on him.

The doctor testified that with counseling and drug treatment of up to 90 days Carbajal could be mentally fit to stand trial.

Under cross-examination by District Attorney Roland Saul, the doctor admitted that 100 days had passed since he examined Carbajal and that there is a possibility he has recovered sufficiently from the depression to take an interest in defending himself from the murder charge.

The doctor also admitted that at the time of the examination Carbajal knew he was charged with a serious crime, that a judge would be present and that a district attorney would try to prove his guilt. However, he said the defendant did not know his attorney was court appointed and could not tell, in his own words, about the legal proceedings against him.

Carbajal had previously been incarcerated for theft over $200 and was on parole at the time of his January 1, 1987, arrest for murder. His parole officer, Lawrence Ertner, testified that he had previously had a good level of communication with Carbajal but that after the arrest he found that while Carbajal could verbalize answers to questions related to the crime, he would respond with unintelligible mutterings to mundane questions such as the quality of food he is served in jail.

When questioned about his personal opinion concerning Carbajal's ability to stand trial Ertner responded: "Yes, I believe he is competent."

Three fellow prisoners testified that Carbajal's behaviour in jail indicates he is not competent to stand trial. All agreed that Carbajal can carry on conversations but that, at times, his mind wanders and he doesn't make sense or he changes the topic of conversation.

The prisoners admitted that Carbajal has discussed his case with them and has sought their advice about matters pertaining to the case. One even admitted that Carbajal asked him if he was going to testify

For local suppliers, contractors

DOE plans July 16 workshop

By DEBE GRAVES Staff Writer

Reservations are now being accepted for a contracting workshop for local suppliers and contractors to be presented by Department of Energy employees and Salt Repository Project personnel, according to Robert Wunderlich, of the local project office.

In his weekly briefing this morning, Wunderlich announced invitations have been sent out for the workshop, scheduled July 16, from 7-9 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

The purpose of the program is to help local vendors gain an understanding of how to compete successfully for procurement contracts under the DOE project being conducted to perform studies related to site selection of the nation's first nuclear waste repository.

Speakers on the program agenda include small business specialists, procurement specialists and contracting officers of various entities involved in the project. The public is invited to attend. Reservations may be made by contacting the DOE information office at 364-0101.

Wunderlich reported that there are now 102 project persons in Texas, almost one-third of the total staff expected to be working out of the Hereford offices. Transfers from the Ohio offices of DOE and its contractors now total 62.

Hereford now has 15 transferred families in residence, up one from last week, including two families in the process of building new homes. These families have 16 children who will attend school in Hereford. Ten of the children are elementary level age.

Annual payroll for the project staff residing in Hereford is estimated at $975,000. Amarillo's number of transfer families remains unchanged at 21.

Wunderlich stated that most of the 42 expected DOE office personnel will be in the Hereford office by the end of July. There are currently 21 staffers in the local office.

Total staff additions expected in July are 26; other expectations are 46 in August, 53 in September, 55 in October and 35 in November.

In other areas of interest, Wunderlich announced that Project Manager Jeff Neff is packing his household and heading for Texas. Neff is expected to report to the Hereford office Monday, July 13. He has not identified a residence choice at this time.

Project staff will be making a presentation at the Waste Deposit Impact Committee's Issues Council on Thursday evening, Wunderlich stated. He advised that Linda McClain is in charge of a speaker's bureau and interested groups should contact her at the DOE office to schedule a speaker for their organization.

Wunderlich advised that six college-age students have been employed as temporary summer help in the project offices and that a student internship program is in the planning stages for next year.

He stated that a Corps of Engineers representative has been in the area this week to gather information of mineral values. When questioned about the possible value of salt deposits removed from the site of the potential repository center he said "my expectation is that mineral value of the salt is very minimal."

When questioned about the possi-

Woman sent to jail for not wearing her seat belt

MIDLOTHIAN, Texas (AP) — A 46-year-old woman went to jail rather than pay a $1 fine for not wearing the seat belt in her pickup truck because she "outgrew being told what to do since she was a kid."

Sonia Brumeloe, a farmer's wife, mother of six and grandmother of four, did not stay in jail long, though. "They just took my fingerprints and some pictures and let me go," she said Tuesday.

After failing to pay a fine for a seat belt violation, Ms. Brumeloe pleaded guilty to the charge and then stung the justice of the peace by declaring she would not pay any fine.

Justice of the Peace Glen Ayers reduced the fine to $1 plus $13.50 court costs, but when she still refused to pay, he sentenced her to two days in jail. When she went to jail, they created a criminal file and let her go.

Ayers said she "shocked everyone" with her refusal.

"I told her I agreed with her that you shouldn't have to wear seat belts, but as long as that law was on the books, I was going to have to enforce it," Ayres said.

"I feel strongly about my rights," Mrs. Brumeloe said. "If they can get by with this, what will they tell me to do next?"

Mrs. Brumeloe said she has heard seat belt laws have been repealed in two states and would like to see that happen in Texas.

"At least, the voters should decide," she said. "The seat belt law wasn't ever on any ballot."

The woman was driving from her farm in Midlothian, a community 28 miles southwest of Dallas, in April when a state trooper stopped her for not wearing a seat belt.

Showers are forecast across most of Texas

By The Associated Press

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast across most of Texas through Thursday.

The showers and thunderstorms are being triggered by passing upper level disturbances and spawned at least three tornadoes across Northwest Texas late Tuesday.

A tornado damaged a mobile home and the roofs of several other homes at Stratford. Other tornadoes touched down west of Amherst and west of Littlefield. Winds gusted to 70 mph during the storm at Stratford and golf ball size hail pelted Lubbock.

Forecasts are calling for a chance of thunderstorms across most of the state through Thursday. The thunderstorms will be more numerous in Southeast Texas and some will be accompanied by occasional heavy rain.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 70s, ranging from the lower 60s in the higher elevations of Southwest Texas to the lower 80s in South Texas.

Highs Thursday will be mostly in the 90s with readings in southern portions of the state expected to reach or climb slightly above the 100-degree mark.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms, including some strong storms, were reported early today over the High Plains and offshore in the Gulf of Mexico off the upper Texas coast.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s, ranging from the lower 60s in higher elevations of Southwest Texas to the lower 80s along the coast. Extremes ranged from 61 at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 83 at Corpus Christi.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 65 at Amarillo, 76 at Wichita Falls, 74 at Fort Worth and Waco, 73 at Austin, 75 at San Antonio, 74 at Houston, 77 at Brownsville, 72 at San Angelo, 69 at Lubbock, 73 at Midland and 65 at El Paso.

City files against Wuerflein

The City of Hereford has filed suit against Ed and Bonnie Wuerflein, claiming violation of the zoning ordinance. The suit, filed Tuesday in 222nd District Court by City Atty. Earnest Langley, seeks declaratory and injunctive relief against the Wuerfleins due to a building project at their residence, 136 Oak.

The building in question is a two-story project which contains a large hot tub and a second-story sunning deck.

The document cites the size of Wuerflein's building project as too large in terms of required backyard space and takes issue with the building's attachment to the Wuerflein residence.

In the suit, Langley claims the Wuerfleins: "Willfully misrepresented their intentions," and "have not and do not intend to comply with zoning ordinance."

The suit seeks injunction to prohibit completion of the Wuerflein project as it now stands and a fine of $100 per day for each day the project remains in violation, as well as seeking court costs and a return of fees the city expends pursuing the case.

Local Roundup

Sheriff answers civil calls

Two cases of domestic disturbance problems involving trespassing were investigated on Tuesday by deputies of the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department. The cases are considered civil matters.

Weather report

Yesterday's high was 100 degrees and the low was 66 according to KPAN radio station, which recorded a trace of moisture.

Today's outlook is for fair skies with a 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms. The low is expected to be in the mid 60s with 10 to 20 mph winds from the south.

Thursday's forecast is for sunshine with a high in the 90s and isolated late afternoon thunderstorms.

37-year-old man charged with indecency with child

A 37-year-old Hereford man, Jimmy Madrigal, has been arrested and charged with indecency with a child. Madrigal voluntarily turned himself in Tuesday afternoon when Hereford Police Department officers advised him they had a warrant for his arrest.

Madrigal is in Deaf Smith County Jail and is to be arraigned today on charges of sexual contact with a child under the age of 14 and for exposing himself to a child under the age of 14. The incidents allegedly occurred in 1985.

Other offenses reported include two V.H.S. tapes stolen out of a vehicle on the 300 block of Main. These were rented movie tapes valued at $169.

A woman in the 700 block of Grand reported that she let two juveniles enter her home to use the phone. After they left she noticed that $19 was missing from her purse. She pursued the juveniles and recovered her money. No charges were filed in the incident.

Two bikes left in front of a business on Park Avenue have been turned in. It is believed that the bikes may have been stolen and officers are requesting anyone missing a bike call the police department to report a description so that the bikes may be returned to their owners.

Several items of clothing were taken in a burglary of The Kloset Korner, on Main Street, which is under investigation. Entry was gained through a broken glass door on the north side of the building.

The store was later burglarized again and entry gained in the same manner. It is unknown what was taken in the second burglary.

Other offenses investigated included a loud party on the 600 block of McKinley, a suspicious vehicle in the 100 block of East 15th and juveniles fighting in the 500 block of Knight.

Officers assisted in an ambulance call in the 600 block of Blavine where a man was the victim of a heart attack. Two minor accidents were investigated and 20 citations were issued.

Hereford project manager tells senate committee

DOE says payments could be retroactive

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a three-part series concerning testimony on the nuclear waste repository project which was presented to a Senate committee by DOE last week.)

Grant funds for impact mitigation during site characterization are not provided for by the Nuclear Waste Policy Act, a Department of Energy official told the Senate committee on Energy and Natural Resources in a hearing last week, but he added that DOE is required to provide payments-equal-to-taxes (PET) during the characterization study.

Jeff Neff, manager of the Salt

Repository Program office in Hereford, told senators that local leaders in Deaf Smith County are concerned that the project is already causing significant impacts.

"They believe that DOE should be prepared to mitigate impacts as they occur. DOE believes, as stated in the environmental assessment, that site characterization will not have significant adverse impacts," said Neff.

"We have been in regular communication with local leaders, exchanging information about the project's effects on the schools, services, and so forth as part of that monitoring process," he said. "In addition, we have investigated and provided to them information on other federal funding sources, worked through the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs office to approve grand funds to help communities study the program and prepare to assess impacts."

Neff pointed out that the Nuclear Waste Policy Act does require DOE to provide PET payments during site characterization. "These payments can be used by an eligible state, unit of general local government, or affected Indian tribes for various purposes—including mitigating impacts that may occur as a result of site characterization. DOE's policy is that such payments will be retroactive to May 28, 1986, when sites were designated for characterization."

The DOE statement continued: "The act provides that payments can be made only to units of general local government, defined as a general purpose political subdivision of a state. The Vega Independent School District is a special district and thus the department reluctantly concluded that it is not an eligible jurisdiction."

"This issue pertains to all special taxation districts in Texas. DOE does not believe this to be the intent of the NWPA, but we are constrained by the law. On the PET issue as well as the grant issues, we need legislative authority to resolve them successfully."

Neff told the committee that Deaf Smith County officials believe they have already been impacted by transition of project staff to the Panhandle. "The Salt Repository Project office is following a phased relocation plan to gradually relocate project staff to the Panhandle. The process began with 11 people moving in March and is designed to move people concurrent with when their work can better be accomplished in the area than from Columbus, Ohio. Currently, about 80 DOE and contractor staff are located in the Panhandle. Approximately 70 additional staff members will relocate this summer."

Neff said local officials have stressed that, wherever possible, the Salt Repository Project should benefit local communities. "DOE demonstrated its intent to bring positive benefits to affected communities by choosing to locate our offices in Hereford, as well as the offices of the project's integrating contractor (Battelle Memorial Institute) and exploratory shaft construction management contractor (Parsons-Redpath)."

He added that DOE was also attempting to make as many purchases as possible in Hereford, subject to technical requirements and general procurement regulations. "Since the beginning of relocation in March, the SRP has spent more than $1 million in the Panhandle for supplies, office equipment, and materials. Nearly 40 area people have been hired in professional and secretarial categories."

Neff added that DOE was working with business leaders in Hereford to develop a workshop for local suppliers and contractors to explain federal procurement procedures and assist them in learning how to expand business opportunities and bid for contracts.

"Throughout nine years as manager of DOE's salt repository studies, I have worked frequently and closely with state officials and agencies in Texas," stated Neff. "So I can attest personally to the high quality and productivity of interactions with Governors Clements and White, their representatives and committees, and other officials and offices... In short, be assured that the official voice of Texas in this program has been heard—loud, and clear—and in a variety of settings and channels of communication."

Neff outlined a number of areas of interactive activities which had taken place since the designation of a Texas site for characterization 13 months ago. These included preliminary steps to negotiate a consultation and cooperative agreement, state participation in planning and policy development, and the sharing of information.

Neff said he invited the state, in July, 1986, to meet with DOE and representatives of Nevada and

Washington to initiate the process of developing consultation and cooperation agreements as provided by the NWPA. Since Texas indicated an interest in individual negotiations, Neff said he renewed DOE's offer to negotiate a C&C agreement in November, 1986. "In several informal discussions since then, the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs director has indicated that Texas is not yet prepared to undertake negotiations to attain formal agreement."

He added that Texas representatives are fully involved in 14 program working groups—including DOE's Environmental, Transportation, Quality Assurance and Institutional-Socioeconomic Coordinating Groups, as well as in development of the highly technical Deaf Smith County Site Characterization Plan and a local public participation plan.

"To facilitate effective state involvement in site characterization, SRP has met or talked with Texas officials several dozen times in the past year on a wide range of subjects. They include site transition planning, land access and the DOE-U.S. Army Corps of Engineers agreement, plans for public information and briefings, plans for early site studies, annotated table of contents and draft chapters of the Site Characterization Plan, site study plans, the Environmental-Regulatory Compliance Plan, environmental and socioeconomic monitoring and mitigation plans, and applications of the payments-equal-to-taxes provisions of the NWPA."

Neff reported the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs office applied for a grant of $6.7 million for the 1987 fiscal year. "In December, 1986, we approved an initial amount of $2.5 million following an analysis of the state's request. We asked for additional information to explain the need for the remaining amount. We have now received this additional information and expect to release additional grant funds soon."

Neff told the committee that his office has attempted to increase interactions with affected parties since beginning relocation of staff to the Texas Panhandle. These included: Bi-weekly reports to local offices of area Congressional representatives; weekly meetings at the Community Center in Hereford, where a deputy manager provides status reports; weekly discussions with the executive director of the Deaf Smith County Waste Deposit Impact Committee;

Regular access to news media for program updates and in-depth articles about transition and study plans; providing a speaker's bureau for requests from community groups, schools, and technical organizations in the Panhandle; and plans to open a public information office in Amarillo, similar to those in Hereford, Vega and Tulia.

Neff concluded by reporting on a public participation plan. "The SRP office has taken first steps on the road to developing a public participation plan, which is designed to assure that the project's technical work scope is fulfilled while the concerns of local citizens are addressed."

Neff told the senators: "As you know, the need to involve the public is order to build confidence in the disposal process is one of the seven findings of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act. In the SRP office, we have contracted with a private consultant to follow a three-step process to develop a public participation plan. The process shows people how to develop a schedule of activities on which they want to provide input and establishes methods for them to affect study planning, data evaluation and decision making."

Neff said his office would be talking again with local groups in July and August about community needs and interests, "so we can begin developing the draft plan."

For 1977 slaying Convicted killer put to death this morning

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Convicted killer John Russell Thompson, with his father and a brother watching only a few feet away, was put to death early today for fatally shooting a 70-year-old San Antonio woman during a robbery 10 years ago.

Thompson, 32, had no final statement and died quietly at 12:20 a.m., nine minutes after the lethal drugs began flowing through his veins.

"He did not want anyone to think he was discourteous, but he wanted his last words to be with God and not with anybody here," said Attorney General Jim Mattox, who spoke with Thompson as the convict was being strapped to the death chamber gurney.

He never acknowledged the presence of his father, brother or other friends and relatives who quietly watched as he was put to death.

The former laborer from Cibolo contended the May 21, 1977, shooting death of Mary Kneupper was an accident. Mrs. Kneupper was killed during a daylight robbery of the San Antonio mini-storage warehouse business she operated with her husband.

The execution came after state and federal courts Tuesday rejected legal motions for a stay and Gov. Bill Clements refused to grant a reprieve.

In an unusual move earlier Tuesday, the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles met for a second time this week to consider whether Thompson was entitled to a reprieve or commutation.

The board, in an unprecedented action for an inmate so close to execution, had voted 3-2 Monday in favor of the request, but reconvened Tuesday because the sixth member of the panel, Wendell Odom, was not at the earlier meeting. Odom, however, voted against the requests.

Thompson chose freshly squeezed orange juice as his final meal and spent Tuesday afternoon visiting with family members and his fiancée.

Thompson said he and three companions were robbing Mrs. Kneupper when he hit the woman in the head with his .45-caliber pistol. The gun went off, fatally wounding her, he contended.

He had been out on parole just three months after serving two years of a six-year burglary sentence. He also had arrests for auto theft, robbery, weapons possession and theft.

"I never had a job that I liked," Thompson said in an interview. "I came from a good family. It was middle class and all of that. It's just that I always followed ones who got into trouble."

Thompson became the fifth Texas inmate to be put to death this year. His first murder conviction in 1978 was thrown out on appeal, but a second trial in 1982 also resulted in a death sentence.

"It's frustrating. After 10 years it's a long time," Dorothy McCannon, Mrs. Kneupper's daughter, said. "You can't understand when so many have been dealt with in shorter time."

His death brought to 25 the number of executions in Texas since the state resumed carrying out the death penalty in 1982. That total is the highest in the nation.

By majority vote

Kiwanis accepts women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The overwhelming vote by Kiwanis International to accept women as members marks the end of an era for the nation's major service organizations, but don't look for an overnight influx of Kiwanis club females.

"I think it'll be gradual," incoming Kiwanis International president Tony Kaiser said Tuesday after the group, in its third try in three years, voted to end a 72-year tradition of limiting members to business and professional men.

"Many of our clubs and members are just so ... comfortable with the male membership that it will take them a little while to adjust their thinking," Kaiser explained.

The membership gave every indication of enthusiasm for the new rule, with well over two-thirds of the 5,636 delegates to the Kiwanis' annual convention rising noisily to their feet when asked who supported the amendment. Cheers filled the Washington Convention Center when the result was announced and a paper balloting procedure was declared unnecessary.

"I was surprised," acknowledged outgoing Kiwanis president Frank DiNoto, who presided over the session. "It was overwhelming."

Only 47 percent of the delegates to last year's convention in Houston supported the change, and that was twice as much backing as the proposal had received the year before in Toronto.

The Supreme Court ruled May 4 in a California case that states may force service organizations such as Rotary International to accept women as members. The Jaycees started admitting women three years ago after the court made a similar ruling against them in a Minnesota case. Lions International, another major service organization, voted last week to allow women to join.

Before Tuesday's vote, 40 clubs in 16 states already had admitted women as members, in violation of the Kiwanis constitution and by-laws. The revised rules permit qualified people of either sex to be invited to join the 8,200 Kiwanis clubs around the world. No club is required to invite women, but no woman invited to join a U.S. club can be barred on the basis of her sex.

Rex Derr, an Olympia, Wash., club member who offered the amendment, said it would "open doors for clubs who choose different membership initiatives and guarantees continuity to clubs proud of where they now stand."

DOE — The effect of a two-year Congressional moratorium would have on the program, Wunderlich stated: "My expectation is that we would still staff the office. We just wouldn't be able to perform field work."

He said there are currently 25 bills related to the controversial program before Congress and that at least 40 lawsuits were pending. "If Congress or the courts give us a directive we will follow it," he stated.

Parsons-Redpath Manager Glen Stafford and Wunderlich closed the meeting with responses to detailed questions regarding the mining and sinking of a shaft proposed during the project and downplayed the importance of an upcoming visit from representatives of a similar project in Germany as, "a public relations move on their part."

White House names Contra aid lobbyist

AUSTIN (AP) — The new White House lobbyist for Central American programs, including aid to the Contras, says the United States must not let Nicaragua become another Vietnam.

Former Texas congressman Tom Loeffler, 40, was named by President Reagan as a special lobbyist on Tuesday, and called a press conference to talk about his new job.

"I believe what we have cut out for us is going to be a good, tough challenge but also one that will be a very fruitful debate and ultimately a resolution on behalf of the people of Central America who need our help," Loeffler said.

He said he would work free of charge or for $1 a year, and would set aside any work as co-chairman of Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign in Texas while working for the president.

"Over the last several years we have seen a very pleasant and favorable trend in Central America ... such that we have four countries that experience and live within the framework of democracy," Loeffler said. "It is mighty important that we see the fifth country — Nicaragua — achieve that status."

He was asked about comments that there is a danger that Nicaragua will turn into another Vietnam, and he responded, "I think that we learned from the Vietnam situation that as a nation we should never be involved again in a war of gradualism."

Loeffler was a special assistant for legislative affairs to former President Ford before his election to the House in 1978. He left Congress in 1986 to make an unsuccessful run for the Republican nomination for governor of Texas.

He said he did not know whether Reagan had seen the papers.

"On the three where I had approval to proceed, I thought I had approval from the president," North said, adding that much of his authority was not explicitly stated, but assumed.

—North said he saw in Poindexter's office a copy of the earliest intelligence "finding" from November 1985 that had been signed by Reagan, a document which apparently has disappeared.

The document had been drafted hastily to cover a clandestine HAWK anti-aircraft missile shipment to Iran which already had taken place, possibly in violation of the law. It was a blatant statement of the arms-for-hostages nature of the deal, containing no rationale of an opening to "moderate elements" in Iran, which Reagan initially said was the purpose of the arms sales to Iran.

Throughout Tuesday's testimony, North sought to justify the covert actions and the deceit that goes with them as necessary to promote democracy in "a dangerous world." He sought repeatedly to make the point that the covert operations' goals — survival of the Contras and the freeing of the hostages held in Lebanon — fully justified his activity.

Speaking with characteristic intensity, North said "Thank God" there were people, including foreign governments, willing to help the Contras with money at a time when Congress had cut off the flow of U.S. funds. But he emphatically denied that he ever had solicited any of the money.

North also disclosed Tuesday that he began shredding key documents in the affair in October 1986, a month and a half before the public disclosures that led to a criminal investigation of his activities. The shredding began, he testified, when he saw the covert operations unraveling after a Contra resupply plane crashed in Nicaragua and American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus was captured.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some highlights of Lt. Col. Oliver North's testimony Tuesday before the congressional Iran-Contra committees:

"I will tell you right now, I'd have offered the Iranians a free trip to Disneyland if we could have gotten Americans home for it."

"I never personally discussed the use of the residuals or profits from the sale of U.S. weapons to Iran for the purpose of supporting the Nicaraguan resistance with the president. I never raised it with him and he never raised it with me during my entire tenure at the National Security Council staff."

"You said that you wanted to hear the truth. I came here to tell you the truth: the good, the bad, and the ugly. I am here to tell it all, pleasant and unpleasant, and I am here to accept responsibility for that which I did. I will not accept responsibility for that which I did not do."

"The only thing we did was divert money out of Mr. Ghorbanifar's pocket and put it to a better use."

Ann Landers Infidelity wreaks havoc

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading another letter about husbands and their affairs I realized how many of us live with wounded hearts.

There are organizations for people who need to talk about the death of a spouse, or a child, or for those who live with alcoholics, but I know of no group that will help a woman put her life back together after she learns that her husband has betrayed her.

I almost died of shock (and pain) two years ago when my husband received a letter addressed in childish-looking handwriting. I'll never forget the look on his face as I handed it to him.

since and believes she has moved out of town.

I saw nothing to be gained by kicking him out, but these two years since I learned he deceived me have been hell. Any suggestions on how I can get over this?—Pain Without End

DEAR PAIN: You need to unburden yourself to a professional. (Family or friends won't do). A trusted clergyman or a therapist would be ideal.

I urge you to get going at once. The tone of your letter suggests that you are still agonizing. Two years is much too long to carry this load. Good luck and God bless.

After reading the letter he said, "It's from the kid of a man I used to work with." He then put it in his jacket pocket.

Yes, I did the unforgivable thing. When he left the room I read the letter. "Dear Dad," it started out.

After two days of talk and tears I learned that he had had an affair with a girl half his age. It lasted nine years and she had two children by him. She threatened to tell me everything if he stopped seeing her, so he continued.

Four years ago he decided to cut her out of his life and take the consequences. He hasn't heard from her

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You really came down hard on drivers who ignore ambulance sirens. Please lighten up.

In our town we have a few fire chiefs who use their sirens to get to meetings and police officers who use their sirens to go to lunch. There are so many ambulance sirens and flashing lights in this city one would think that half the population has had a heart attack.

We also have the new two-for-one computer traffic control system. This means two minutes on red and one minute on green. This makes motorists mad and encourages those with sirens to use them.

My letter proves there are two sides to every story.—No Location; We Don't Want More Trouble

DEAR NO LOCATION: Thanks for the fill-in. My advice is the same. All motorists must give sirens the right of way. For every fire chief who is going to lunch there are 50 who are going to a fire. (Wake up and smell the smoke!)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you won't take this lightly because it's one heck of a nuisance to a lot of people in our age group.

Please use your influence to get the bakeries, fast-food stores and restaurants to stop putting sesame seeds on all their products. The darned things get under our dentures and make life miserable.—Ouching in the East

DEAR OUCH: Consider it done. Hear ye! All you folks who sprinkle sesame seeds with reckless abandon, have a heart and leave 'em off a few things for the denture wearers of America!

They will bless you and your sales are sure to increase.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Bridal shower fetes Miss Mary Ann Hund

Miss Mary Ann Hund, bride-elect of Phillip Birkenfeld, was honored with a bridal shower recently in the E.B. Black House.

Greeting guests were the honoree and her mother, Alice Hund and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mildred Birkenfeld. Registering guests was Phyllis Duncan from a table decorated with a silk floral arrangement of dusty rose and white.

Refreshments were served from crystal and silver serving pieces by Angela and Patricia Hund, sisters of the bride-elect. Punch, cookies, and fruit were served from a table covered with a cloth of dusty rose linen topped with white lace. The table was centered by a pink silk floral arrangement surrounded by crystal cups holding dusty rose candles.

Hostesses included Carolyn Evers, Velma Warren, Judy Dettman, Pat Sinnacher, Cheryl Betzen, Patsy Hoffmann, Oleta Diller, Lorine Schwertner, Francie Farr, Theresa Artho, Faye Dirks, Jo Ann Jesko, Regina Warren, Nancy Paetzold, Charla Schlabs, Nadine Berend, Vera Berryman, Clara Reinart, June Koelzer, and Romilda Friemel.

Kropff family reunion held

The children of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Kropff held a family reunion recently in the home of Carl and Pauline Kropff, north of Hereford.

Those attending from Hereford included Wayne and Dorothy Phillips; Steve, Elizabeth, Aaron, and Karla Landers; Gerald and Monica Banner; Greg and Stephen Banner; Mark, Janie, Angelia, Renee, Melani, and Marcus Banner; Philip, Rhonda, Bryce and Aundrea Banner; Jay, Debbie, T.J. and Chris Sample; Nancy, Ryan, Camille, Abby, and Carla Caperton; and Dianne, Michael, Amanda, and Chelsea Clevenger.

Out-of-town guests included C.C. Kropff, and Bill and Nancy Martin, all of Carthage, Texas; Stan and Kay Kropff of Canyon; Fred and Betty Batterman of Dimmitt; Doug, Sue, Brendon, and Bryan Banner and Bob, Kimberly, Nathan, Angela, and Clay Banner, all of Amarillo.

Several games were played including pitching horse shoes.

Turtles give their young no care at all. The mother sea turtle digs a hole on a beach and lays her eggs, covers them with sand and then returns to the sea. The sun hatches the eggs.

Ruth Lueb was welcomed as a new member when the Hospital Auxiliary met Monday in the Deaf Smith General Hospital board room.

Roll call was answered by "what you did on July 4th" and Grace Covington led the prayer with Helen Brown reading the minutes.

During the business session, Sadie Latham reported that auxiliary members had worked 233 hours in June. Also, it was announced that the group had distributed 35 baby books and three Care Bears.

Before the close of the meeting, a reminder was given to members to pay dues.

Andy Spinhirne was welcomed as a guest by Bertha Dettman, Baxter London, Alice Koenig, Nell Culpepper, Bonnie Sublett, Mary Lou Spinhirne, Irene Reinart, Covington, Brown, Lueb, and Latham.

Hereford project manager tells senate committee

DOE says payments could be retroactive

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a three-part series concerning testimony on the nuclear waste repository project which was presented to a Senate committee by DOE last week.)

Grant funds for impact mitigation during site characterization are not provided for by the Nuclear Waste Policy Act, a Department of Energy official told the Senate committee on Energy and Natural Resources in a hearing last week, but he added that DOE is required to provide payments-equal-to-taxes (PET) during the characterization study.

Jeff Neff, manager of the Salt Repository Program office in Hereford, told senators that local leaders in Deaf Smith County are concerned that the project is already causing significant impacts.

"They believe that DOE should be prepared to mitigate impacts as they occur. DOE believes, as stated in the environmental assessment, that site characterization will not have significant adverse impacts," said Neff.

"We have been in regular communication with local leaders, exchanging information about the project's effects on the schools, services, and so forth as part of that monitoring process," he said. "In addition, we have investigated and provided to them information on other federal funding sources, worked through the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs office to approve grand funds to help communities study the program and prepare to assess impacts."

Neff pointed out that the Nuclear Waste Policy Act does require DOE to provide PET payments during site characterization. "These payments can be used by an eligible state, unit of general local government, or affected Indian tribes for various purposes—including mitigating impacts that may occur as a result of site characterization. DOE's policy is that such payments will be retroactive to May 28, 1986, when sites were designated for characterization."

The DOE statement continued: "The act provides that payments can be made only to units of general local government, defined as a general purpose political subdivision of a state. The Vega Independent School District is a special district and thus the department reluctantly concluded that it is not an eligible jurisdiction."

"This issue pertains to all special taxation districts in Texas. DOE does not believe this to be the intent of the NWSA, but we are constrained by the law. On the PET issue as well as the grant issues, we need legislative authority to resolve them successfully."

Neff told the committee that Deaf Smith County officials believe they have already been impacted by transition of project staff to the Panhandle. "The Salt Repository Project office is following a phased relocation plan to gradually relocate project staff to the Panhandle. The process began with 11 people moving in March and is designed to move people concurrent with when their work can better be accomplished in the area than from Columbus, Ohio. Currently, about 80 DOE and contractor staff are located in the Panhandle. Approximately 70 additional staff members will relocate this summer."

Neff said local officials have stressed that, wherever possible, the Salt Repository Project should benefit local communities. "DOE demonstrated its intent to bring positive benefits to affected communities by choosing to locate our offices in Hereford, as well as the offices of the project's integrating contractor (Battelle Memorial Institute) and exploratory shaft construction management contractor (Parsons-Redpath)."

He added that DOE was also attempting to make as many purchases as possible in Hereford, subject to technical requirements and federal procurement regulations. "Since the beginning of relocation in March, the SRP has spent more than $1 million in the Panhandle for supplies, office equipment, and materials. Nearly 40 area people have been hired in professional and secretarial categories."

Neff added that DOE was working with business leaders in Hereford to develop a workshop for local suppliers and contractors to explain federal procurement procedures and assist them in learning how to expand business opportunities and bid for contracts.

"Throughout nine years as manager of DOE's salt repository studies, I have worked frequently and closely with state officials and agencies in Texas," stated Neff. "So I can attest personally to the high quality and productivity of interactions with Governors Clements and White, their representatives and committees, and other officials and offices. In short, be assured that the official voice of Texas in this program has been heard—loud, and clear—and in a variety of settings and channels of communication."

Neff outlined a number of areas of interactive activities which had taken place since the designation of a Texa site for characterization 13 months ago. These included preliminary steps to negotiate a consultation and cooperative agreement, state participation in planning and policy development, and the sharing of information.

Neff said he invited the state, in July, 1986, to meet with DOE and representatives of Nevada and

Washington to initiate the process of developing consultation and cooperation agreements as provided by the NWSA. Since Texas indicated an interest in individual negotiations, Neff said he renewed DOE's offer to negotiate a C&C agreement in November, 1986. "In several informal discussions since then, the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs director has indicated that Texas is not yet prepared to undertake negotiations to attain formal agreement."

He added that Texas representatives are fully involved in 14 program working groups—including DOE's Environmental, Transportation, Quality Assurance and Institutional-Socioeconomic Coordinating Groups, as well as in development of the highly technical Deaf Smith County Site Characterization Plan and a local public participation plan.

"To facilitate effective state involvement in site characterization, SRP has met or talked with Texas officials several dozen times in the past year on a wide range of subjects. They include site transition planning, land access and the DOE-U.S. Army Corps of Engineers agreement, plans for public information and briefings, plans for early site studies, annotated table of contents and draft chapters of the Site Characterization Plan, site study plans, the Environmental-Regulatory Compliance Plan, environmental and socioeconomic monitoring and mitigation plans, and applications of the payments-equal-to-taxes provisions of the NWSA."

Neff reported the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs office applied for a grant of $6.7 million for the 1987 fiscal year. "In December, 1986, we approved an initial amount of $2.5 million following an analysis of the state's request. We asked for additional information to explain the need for the remaining amount. We have now received this additional information and expect to release additional grant funds soon."

Neff told the committee that his office has attempted to increase interactions with affected parties since beginning relocation of staff to the Texas Panhandle. These included: Bi-weekly reports to local offices of area Congressional representatives; weekly meetings at the Community Center in Hereford, where a deputy manager provides status reports; weekly discussions with the executive director of the Deaf Smith County Waste Deposit Impact Committee;

Regular access to news media for program updates and in-depth articles about transition and study plans; providing a speaker's bureau for requests from community groups, schools, and technical organizations in the Panhandle; and plans to open a public information office in Amarillo, similar to those in Hereford, Vega and Tulia.

Neff concluded by reporting on a public participation plan. "The SRP office has taken first steps on the road to developing a public participation plan, which is designed to assure that the project's technical work scope is fulfilled while the concerns of local citizens are addressed."

Neff told the senators: "As you know, the need to involve the public is order to build confidence in the disposal process is one of the seven findings of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act. In the SRP office, we have contracted with a private consultant to follow a three-step process to develop a public participation plan. The process shows people how to develop a schedule of activities on which they want to provide input and establishes methods for them to affect study planning, data evaluation and decision making."

Neff said his office would be talking again with local groups in July and August about community needs and interests, "so we can begin developing the draft plan."

For 1977 slaying Convicted killer put to death this morning

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Convicted killer John Russell Thompson, with his father and a brother watching only a few feet away, was put to death early today for fatally shooting a 70-year-old San Antonio woman during a robbery 10 years ago.

Thompson, 32, had no final statement and died quietly at 12:20 a.m., nine minutes after the lethal drugs began flowing through his veins.

"He did not want anyone to think he was discourteous, but he wanted his last words to be with God and not with anybody here," said Attorney General Jim Mattox, who spoke with Thompson as the convict was being strapped to the death chamber gurney.

He never acknowledged the presence of his father, brother or other friends and relatives who quietly watched as he was put to death.

The former laborer from Cibolo contended the May 21, 1977, shooting death of Mary Kneupper was an accident. Mrs. Kneupper was killed during a daylight robbery of the San Antonio mini-storage warehouse business she operated with her husband.

The execution came after state and federal courts Tuesday rejected legal motions for a stay and Gov. Bill Clements refused to grant a reprieve.

In an unusual move earlier Tuesday, the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles met for a second time this week to consider whether Thompson was entitled to a reprieve or commutation.

The board, in an unprecedented action for an inmate so close to execution, had voted 3-2 Monday in favor of the request, but reconvened Tuesday because the sixth member of the panel, Wendell Odom, was not at the earlier meeting. Odom, however, voted against the requests.

Thompson chose freshly squeezed orange juice as his final meal and spent Tuesday afternoon visiting with family members and his fiancée.

Thompson said he and three companions were robbing Mrs. Kneupper when he hit the woman in the head with his .45-caliber pistol. The gun went off, fatally wounding her, he contended.

He had been out on parole just three months after serving two years of a six-year burglary sentence. He also had arrests for auto theft, robbery, weapons possession and theft.

"I never had a job that I liked," Thompson said in an interview. "I came from a good family. It was middle class and all of that. It's just that I always followed ones who got into trouble."

Thompson became the fifth Texas inmate to be put to death this year. His first murder conviction in 1978 was thrown out on appeal, but a second trial in 1982 also resulted in a death sentence.

"It's frustrating. After 10 years it's a long time," Dorothy McCannon, Mrs. Kneupper's daughter, said. "You can't understand when so many have been dealt with in shorter time."

His death brought to 25 the number of executions in Texas since the state resumed carrying out the death penalty in 1982. That total is the highest in the nation.

By majority vote

Kiwanis accepts women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The overwhelming vote by Kiwanis International to accept women as members marks the end of an era for the nation's major service organizations, but don't look for an overnight influx of Kiwanis club females.

"I think it'll be gradual," incoming Kiwanis International president Tony Kaiser said Tuesday after the group, in its third try in three years, voted to end a 72-year tradition of limiting members to business and professional men.

"Many of our clubs and members are just so comfortable with the male membership that it will take them a little while to adjust their thinking," Kaiser explained.

The membership gave every indication of enthusiasm for the new rule, with well over two-thirds of the 5,636 delegates to the Kiwanis' annual convention rising noisily to their feet when asked who supported the amendment. Cheers filled the Washington Convention Center when the result was announced and a paper balloting procedure was declared unnecessary.

"I was surprised," acknowledged outgoing Kiwanis president Frank DiNoto, who presided over the session. "It was overwhelming."

Only 47 percent of the delegates to last year's convention in Houston supported the change, and that was twice as much backing as the proposal had received the year before in Toronto.

The Supreme Court ruled May 4 in a California case that states may force service organizations such as Rotary International to accept women as members. The Jaycees started admitting women three years ago after the court made a similar ruling against them in a Minnesota case. Lions International, another major service organization, voted last week to allow women to join.

Before Tuesday's vote, 40 clubs in 16 states already had admitted women as members, in violation of the Kiwanis constitution and by-laws. The revised rules permit qualified people of either sex to be invited to join the 8,200 Kiwanis clubs around the world. No club is required to invite women, but no woman invited to join a U.S. club can be barred on the basis of her sex.

Rex Derr, an Olympia, Wash., club member who offered the amendment, said it would "open doors for clubs who choose different membership initiatives and guarantees continuity to clubs proud of where they now stand."

DOE will have a two-year Congressional moratorium would have on the program, Wunderlich stated: "My expectation is that we would still staff the office. We just wouldn't be able to perform field work."

He said there are currently 25 bills related to the controversial program before Congress and that at least count 43 lawsuits were pending. "If Congress or the courts give us a directive we will follow it," he stated.

Parsons-Redpath Manager Glen Stafford and Wunderlich closed the meeting with responses to detailed questions regarding the mining and sinking of a shaft proposed during the project and downplayed the importance of an upcoming visit from representatives of a similar project in Germany as, "a public relations move on their part."

White House names Contra aid lobbyist

AUSTIN (AP) — The new White House lobbyist for Central American programs, including aid to the Contras, says the United States must not let Nicaragua become another Vietnam.

Former Texas congressman Tom Loeffler, 40, was named by President Reagan as a special lobbyist on Tuesday, and called a press conference to talk about his new job.

"I believe what we have cut out for us is going to be a good, tough challenge but also one that will be a very fruitful debate and ultimately a resolution on behalf of the people of Central America who need our help," Loeffler said.

He said he would work free of charge for $1 a year, and would set aside any work as co-chairman of Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign in Texas while working for the president.

"Over the last several years we have seen a very pleasant and favorable trend in Central America ... such that we have four countries that experience and live within the framework of democracy," Loeffler said. "It is mighty important that we see the fifth country — Nicaragua — achieve that status."

He was asked about comments that there is a danger that Nicaragua will turn into another Vietnam, and he responded, "I think that we learned from the Vietnam situation that as a nation we should never be involved again in a war of gradualism."

Loeffler was a special assistant for legislative affairs to former President Ford before his election to the House in 1978. He left Congress in 1986 to make an unsuccessful run for the Republican nomination for governor of Texas.

He said he did not know whether Reagan had seen the papers.

"On the three where I had approval to proceed, I thought I had approval from the president," North said, adding that much of his authority was not explicitly stated, but assumed.

—North said he saw in Poindexter's office a copy of the earliest intelligence "finding" from November 1985 that had been signed by Reagan, a document which apparently has disappeared.

The document had been drafted hastily to cover a clandestine HAWK anti-aircraft missile shipment to Iran which already had taken place, possibly in violation of the law. It was a blatant statement of the arms-for-hostages nature of the deal, containing no rationale of an opening to "moderate elements" in Iran, which Reagan initially said was the purpose of the arms sales to Iran.

Throughout Tuesday's testimony, North sought to justify the covert actions and the deceit that goes with them as necessary to promote democracy in "a dangerous world." He sought repeatedly to make the point that the covert operations' goals — survival of the Contras and the freeing of the hostages held in Lebanon — fully justified his activity.

Speaking with characteristic intensity, North said "Thank God" there were people, including foreign governments, willing to help the Contras with money at a time when Congress had cut off the flow of U.S. funds. But he emphatically denied that he ever had solicited any of the money.

North also disclosed Tuesday that he began shredding key documents in the affair in October 1986, a month and a half before the public disclosures that led to a criminal investigation of his activities. The shredding began, he testified, when he saw the covert operations unraveling after a Contra resupply plane crashed in Nicaragua and American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus was captured.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some highlights of Lt. Col. Oliver North's testimony Tuesday before the congressional Iran-Contra committees:

"I will tell you right now, I'd have offered the Iranians a free trip to Disneyland if we could have gotten Americans home for it."

"I never personally discussed the use of the residuals or profits from the sale of U.S. weapons to Iran for the purpose of supporting the Nicaraguan resistance with the president. I never raised it with him and he never raised it with me during my entire tenure at the National Security Council staff."

"You said that you wanted to hear the truth. I came here to tell you the truth: the good, the bad, and the ugly. I am here to tell it all, pleasant and unpleasant, and I am here to accept responsibility for that which I did. I will not accept responsibility for that which I did not do."

"The only thing we did was divert money out of Mr. Ghorbanifar's pocket and put it to a better use."

Ann Landers Infidelity wreaks havoc

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading another letter about husbands and their affairs I realized how many of us live with wounded hearts.

There are organizations for people who need to talk about the death of a spouse, or a child, or for those who live with alcoholics, but I know of no group that will help a woman put her life back together after she learns that her husband has betrayed her.

I almost died of shock (and pain) two years ago when my husband received a letter addressed in childish-looking handwriting. I'll never forget the look on his face as I handed it to him.

After reading the letter he said, "It's from the kid of a man I used to work with." He then put it in his jacket pocket.

Yes, I did the unforgivable thing. When he left the room I read the letter. "Dear Dad," it started out.

After two days of talk and tears I learned that he had had an affair with a girl half his age. It lasted nine years and she had two children by him. She threatened to tell me everything if he stopped seeing her, so he continued.

Four years ago he decided to cut her out of his life and take the consequences. He hasn't heard from her since and believes she has moved out of town.

I saw nothing to be gained by kicking him out, but these two years since I learned he deceived me have been hell. Any suggestions on how I can get over this?—Pain Without End

DEAR PAIN: You need to unburden yourself to a professional. (Family or friends won't do). A trusted clergyperson or a therapist would be ideal.

I urge you to get going at once. The tone of your letter suggests that you are still agonizing. Two years is much too long to carry this load. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You really came down hard on drivers who ignore ambulance sirens. Please lighten up.

In our town we have a few fire chiefs who use their sirens to get to meetings and police officers who use their sirens to go to lunch. There are so many ambulance sirens and flashing lights in this city one would think that half the population has had a heart attack.

We also have the new two-for-one computer traffic control system. This means two minutes on red and one minute on green. This makes motorists mad and encourages those with sirens to use them.

My letter proves there are two sides to every story.—No Location; We Don't Want More Trouble

DEAR NO LOCATION: Thanks for the fill-in. My advice is the same. All motorists must give sirens the right of way. For every fire chief who is going to lunch there are 50 who are going to a fire. (Wake up and smell the smoke!)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you won't take this lightly because it's one heck of a nuisance to a lot of people in our age group.

Please use your influence to get the bakeries, fast-food stores and restaurants to stop putting sesame seeds on all their products. The darned things get under our dentures and make life miserable.—Ouching in the East

DEAR OUCH: Consider it done. Hear ye! All you folks who sprinkle sesame seeds with reckless abandon, have a heart and leave 'em off a few things for the denture wearers of America! They will bless you and your sales are sure to increase.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Hund Honored

A bridal shower was held recently in honor of Miss Mary Ann Hund, bride-elect of Phillip Birkenfeld, in the E.B. Black House. Receiving guests were, from left, the honoree's mother, Alice Hund; the honoree; and Mildred Birkenfeld, mother of the prospective bridegroom.

Bridal shower fetes Miss Mary Ann Hund

Miss Mary Ann Hund, bride-elect of Phillip Birkenfeld, was honored with a bridal shower recently in the E.B. Black House.

Greeting guests were the honoree and her mother, Alice Hund and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mildred Birkenfeld. Registering guests was Phyllis Duncan from a table decorated with a silk floral arrangement of dusty rose and white.

Refreshments were served from crystal and silver serving pieces by Angela and Patricia Hund, sisters of the bride-elect. Punch, cookies, and fruit were served from a table covered with a cloth of dusty rose linen topped with white lace. The table was centered by a pink silk floral arrangement surrounded by crystal cups holding dusty rose candles.

Hostesses included Carolyn Evers, Velma Warren, Judy Detten, Pat Simmacher, Cheryl Betzen, Patsy Hoffmann, Oleta Diller, Lorine Schwertner, Francie Farr, Theresa Artho, Faye Dirks, Jo Ann Jesko, Regina Warren, Nancy Paetzold, Charla Schlabs, Nadine Berend, Vera Berryman, Clara Reinart, June Koelzer, and Romilda Friemel.

Kropff family reunion held

The children of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Kropff held a family reunion recently in the home of Carl and Pauline Kropff, north of Hereford.

Those attending from Hereford included Wayne and Dorothy Phillips; Steve, Elizabeth, Aaron, and Karla Landers; Gerald and Monica Banner; Greg and Stephen Banner; Mark, Janie, Angelia, Renee, Melani, and Marcus Banner; Philip, Rhonda, Bryce and Aundrea Banner; Jay, Debbie, T.J. and Chris Sample; Nancy, Ryan, Camille, Abby, and Carla Caperton; and Dianne, Michael, Amanda, and Chelsea Clevenger.

Out-of-town guests included C.C. Kropff, and Bill and Nancy Martin, all of Carthage, Texas; Stan and Kay Kropff of Canyon; Fred and Betty Batterman of Dimmitt; Doug, Sue, Brendon, and Bryan Banner and Bob, Kimberly, Nathan, Angela, and Clay Banner, all of Amarillo. Several games were played including pitching horse shoes.

Cubs win 'basebrawl' battle over Padres, 7-5

Astros are shut out, 2-0, by Expos, Sebra

By The Associated Press
Montreal Expos pitcher Bob Sebra says he has turned his season around and the Houston Astros probably hope they don't have to see him again this season.

Sebra allowed only five hits Tuesday night in pitching the Expos to a 2-0 victory over the Astros.

Sebra, 5-9, also had the game-winning RBI when he singled home Montreal's first run in the second inning for his first RBI in 58 at bats spanning two years in the major leagues.

The right-hander has allowed only two earned runs in 23 innings against the Astros this year. It was his first shutout of the season.

"After we had a 1-0 lead, it was weird," Sebra said. "I was very confident. I knew I could hold the lead."

After allowing five base runners in the first three innings on five hits, Sebra retired the last 18 batters.

"Since I was 3-8, I've taken it as a new season," Sebra said. "I don't think I have anything to prove."

Montreal manager Buck Rodgers praised the work of the 25-year-old

Sebra. "He pitched his third outstanding game in a row after getting off to a slow start," Rodgers said. "This was a fine game, and he pitched it when we needed it. We need a stopper-type guy like him. He only threw 121 pitches tonight."

Houston's second baseman Bill Doran just gave Sebra credit for a job well done.

"I'd be willing to bet if we took the top five games against us he had three of them," Doran said. "He has a great curve ball, and it's a credit to him that he stopped our lineup."

Loser Bob Knepper, 3-9, has lost seven of his eight last decisions, but he pitched well in eight innings of work.

"I was not so confident and aggressive coming in," Knepper said. "Later I got a little fired up and more comfortable going after batters with my curve and fast ball."

Knepper and Sebra had duelled earlier in a 1-0 game won by the Astros on April 12.

"Knepper pitched a great game against me and this time I got the win," Sebra said. "I felt like I was in control all the way."

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 7, San Diego 5 in a game marred by two brawls; New York defeated Atlanta 6-2 and 5-1; Pittsburgh beat San Francisco 6-4 in 12 innings; Philadelphia downed Cincinnati 10-8 in 10 innings; and St. Louis beat Los Angeles 5-4 in both games of a doubleheader that ended at 3 a.m. CDT, with the second game going 10 innings.

Cubs 7, Padres 5
Eric Show says he wasn't throwing at Andre Dawson. The Cubs aren't so sure.

Dawson was hit in the face by a Show pitch Tuesday and he said it might have been unintentional, circumstances might indicate otherwise.

The Cubs retaliated as if it were intentional, fights broke out and before they beat the San Diego Padres 7-5, five Chicago players, including Dawson and two pitchers, were thrown out of the game.

Dawson, who homered twice on Monday against San Diego, hit his 24th homer of the season and seventh against the Padres in the first inning Tuesday after Dave Martinez also homered.

Paul Noce homered for the Cubs to open the third and one batter later, Show hit Dawson in the face. Dawson suffered lacerations of the lip, needing 21 stitches inside and outside the mouth, and a contusion of the left cheekbone, but there were no fractures.

The Padres insisted it was unintentional and some of the Cubs agreed, Hit It Hard, Girls!!!

Will broken window be saved from Rose house?

CINCINNATI (AP) — The house where Pete Rose grew up is for sale. A handyman could buy the place and fix a broken window at the back of the house, but a slice of Americana would be lost.

Rose's first hit — at age 3 — broke a window in the family's house, and the it remains as testimony to the man who later became baseball's most prolific hitmaker.

On a summer's day in 1944, Rose whacked a hard rubber-coated ball across his backyard and into the kitchen window, cracking an upper pane of plate glass. His father, Harry Rose, was impressed.

"My husband said, 'Hon, Hon, come here. Look at where he hit the ball,'" said Pete's mother, LaVerne Noeth. "He said, 'I don't want it fixed. I'm not going to fix that. I'm going to show people where Pete hit that ball...'"

The glass remains cracked today. Though much remains as it was in the neighborhood, the window may soon be lost to time. The old Rose homestead is for sale.

Rose, now the 46-year-old manager of the Cincinnati Reds and owner of an all-time career leading 4,256 hits, says he doesn't remember that first hit. "Who remembers anything when they're 3 years old?" Rose said as he dressed for a game with the Houston Astros last week.

Officials at the Smithsonian Institution and the Baseball Hall of Fame are in no hurry to try to acquire the broken window. The Smithsonian has a Rose cap and that will suffice, said Carl H. Scheele, curator of sports and entertainment for the museum in Washington.

"I think it ought to be saved," he said. "But it would have much meaning locally as a Cincinnati neighborhood item."

A spokesman for the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., said his institution might be interested in preserving the window.

"It is one of the more unusual things suggested," said Peter Clark, registrar at the Hall of Fame. A committee concerned with acquisitions will consider the request, he said.

Flag football association to meet July 14

The Panhandle Flag Football Association has scheduled its first meeting on Tuesday, July 14 in Amarillo.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. at Sam Houston Park at Eighth and Western. The business of the meeting will include appointing members to the association and discussing league rules and possible schedules.

Kevin Knapp said anyone interested in having a team join the association is invited to the meeting. Knapp said the association is aiming to have each community in the Texas Panhandle represented at the meeting.

For more information on the Panhandle Flag Football Association and the meeting, contact Knapp at 352-2587 or write to Knapp at 7108 Fulham, Amarillo, TX, 79109.

Eighth straight loss for Texas at Exhibition Stadium

Clancy pitches Blue Jays over Rangers

By The Associated Press

In the Toronto Blue Jays' lively dressing room, pitcher Jim Clancy sat relaxed on a stool and wore a quiet kind of smile, the sort that reflects relief as much as satisfaction.

After a strong start to the season, Clancy, 9-6, had lost four of his last five decisions and won only once in his previous eight starts. He had not won at Exhibition Stadium since beating the Texas Rangers on May 3.

So, on Tuesday night he delayed the customary postgame hand of cribbage and talked about the vicious slider that contributed to a 6-2 victory over the Rangers.

"I had control with the fastball and the slider was working real good," said Clancy, who lasted 7 2-3 innings for his third victory against Texas this season. Tom Henke then came on and collected his 15th save. "I was able to change speeds on the slider."

"Basically the way I pitched these guys is to keep it in on the fists of the power hitters and throw a few sliders away from them."

The Blue Jays remained in second place, four games behind the New York Yankees in the American League East. It was Toronto's second win after eight straight losses and the eighth consecutive victory against the Rangers at Exhibition Stadium.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York rallied to defeat Minnesota 12-7, Chicago beat Baltimore 9-3; Cleveland defeated Kansas City 6-4; California beat Boston 9-4; Detroit downed Oakland 6-4; and Seattle outlasted Milwaukee 9-5.

Clancy, who lowered his earned run average to 2.95, allowed six hits, including solo homers by Darrell Porter, his fourth, and Oddibe McDowell's 10th. He set down seven consecutive Rangers between the second and fifth and retired 10 in a row between the fifth and eighth.

No matter the severity of a slider, though, no pitcher wins without solid defense. On Tuesday, Clancy got it, Texas starter Mike Loynd, 1-5, did not.

A botched double play led to a three-run fifth inning as the Blue Jays snapped a 1-1 tie.

After Fred McGriff led off with a single and moved to third on a single by Rick Leach, Garth Iorg grounded to third baseman Larry Parrish for a potential double play. Parrish threw to second baseman Curtis Wilkerson for the first out but when Wilkerson saw McGriff leaning off third, he ran him back to the bag. McGriff beat his throw and Iorg ran to second when he saw it uncovered.

"In that situation, you go up as a hitter and the only thing you don't want is a ground ball to first or third," Iorg said. "I was running hard for first and I just saw the commotion and went to second."

Tony Fernandez followed with a ground-rule double to score both runners, moved to third on a ground out and then scored on a third-strike wild pitch to Jesse Barfield, who went to first on the play. George Bell then extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a line drive that fell out of Parrish's glove.

Loynd lasted 4 2-3 innings and was charged with four runs on six hits. "It was the best Loynd has thrown all year but we didn't help him out too much," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said.

In support of Clancy, Iorg, Fernandez and Bell made outs on balls that appeared to be Rangers hits.

"They made some good plays on some balls and we couldn't get anything going," Valentine said.

Toronto added to the lead in the sixth when Leach doubled and scored on Iorg's single. In the seventh, Ernie Whitt doubled off Mitch Williams, the Rangers' fourth pitcher, to drive in Kelly Gruber.

Wilkerson singled and Ruben Sierra doubled before Henke ended the eighth inning by getting Scott Fletcher on a groundout.

Rance Mulliniks hit a solo homer, his fourth of the year, in the Toronto first.

Texas is 9-23 against Toronto since the start of the 1985 season and 8-27 at Exhibition Stadium since 1982.

Yankees 12, Twins 7

As fast as they could say Steve Lombardozzi, the New York Yankees had rallied from a seven-run deficit.

The Yankees entered the bottom of the seventh inning trailing 7-0 to the Minnesota Twins and former teammate Joe Niekro Tuesday night.

With one out, Mike Pagliarulo homered and Dan Schatzeder relieved. Pinch-hitter Rick Cerone hit a grounder toward second that got by Lombardozzi for an error, and the Yankees had the break they needed.

New York went on to score six more runs in the seventh — all unearned — to tie the score and then won the game 12-7 with five runs in the eighth. The Yankees snapped the tie on two consecutive wild pitches by reliever Juan Berenguer.

"That's not a rally, that's an explosion. That's the quickest runs I've seen scored in a long time," Yankee Manager Lou Piniella said, apparently forgetting an 11-run third inning against Boston and Roger Clemens on June 26 that wiped out a 9-0 deficit.

New York broke the 7-7 tie in the eighth, starting when Cerone drew a leadoff walk from Keith Atherton, 4-4.

After Wayne Tolleson sacrificed and Rickey Henderson walked, Berenguer took over and got ahead of Willie Randolph 1-2. But his next two pitches sailed over the head of catcher Tim Laudner, allowing Cerone to score and putting the Yankees in front.

Tim Stoddard, 2-1, the third New York pitcher, worked two scoreless innings as the Yankees ended Minnesota's four-game winning streak.

White Sox 9, Orioles 3

Carlton Fisk drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a double and Floyd Bannister pitched three-hit ball for seven innings as Chicago sent Baltimore to its 31st defeat in 37 games.

Fisk, 9-for-18 in his last four games, hit his ninth homer after Greg Walker led off the second with a single.

Walker hit his 17th homer in the eighth to give Chicago a 6-2 lead, and the White Sox added three runs in the ninth on Harold Baines' RBI single and Fisk's two-run double.

Indians 6, Royals 4

Cleveland's Joe Carter hit a two-run homer just inside the left field foul pole off reliever Dan

Quisenberry with one out in the ninth inning.

Carter had tied the game 4-4 with a two-run single off Quisenberry, 4-1, in the seventh.

Carter's 18th homer of the season came on a 2-2 pitch and followed a leadoff single by Tony Bernazard. Doug Jones, 2-1, pitched 2 2-3 hitless innings for the victory.

Tigers 6, Athletics 4

Bill Madlock hit a two-run homer and Frank Tanana pitched seven-hit ball for 6 1-3 innings as Detroit defeated Oakland, snapping the Athletics' three-game winning streak.

Lou Whitaker walked to lead off the game and Madlock followed with a two-run homer off Joaquin Andujar, 3-2. The Athletics made it 2-1 in their half of the inning on Mike Davis' 19th homer of the season.

The Tigers took a 5-2 lead with single runs in the fourth and fifth on RBI singles by Darrell Evans and Kirk Gibson.

Matt Nokes hit his 17th of the season in the eighth for Detroit.

Angels 9, Red Sox 4

Jack Howell and Bob Boone drove in three runs each and California scored six runs in the fifth inning on only three hits.

Mike Witt, 10-5, allowed 11 hits in 7 1-3 innings and DeWayne Buice finished for his eighth save.

Leading 3-0 in the fifth, Gary Pettis' single and walks to Mark McLemore and Brian Downing loaded the bases with one out. Pettis scored on Al Nipper's wild pitch and Devon White singled to score McLemore.

Left-hander Tom Bolton relieved and walked Wally Joyner intentionally before Howell's triple cleared the bases. Howell later scored on Boone's sacrifice fly.

Mariners 9, Brewers 5

Dave Valle highlighted a four-run Seattle first inning with a two-run homer and Jerry Reed pitched four innings of one-hit relief for his second save.

Starter Lee Guetterman, 7-1, worked five innings, allowing five runs and seven hits, including three homers.

Five consecutive base hits by Seattle, including Valle's ninth homer, chased Juan Nieves, 5-6, after only one-third of an inning.

Jim Paciorek, Bill Schroeder and Rob Deer homered for Milwaukee.

Key Club to leave for Canada TELEVISION SCHEDULE

Members of the Hereford Key Club will be in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, July 12-15 to represent their club at the 44th Annual Convention of Key Club International along with 2,500 other Key Club members, announces local club president Shaun Moore.

Those attending from Hereford include Carl Delozier, Stuart Mitts, Cody Wilson, Jerry Hardisty, and faculty advisor, Gene Y. Brock. The group from Hereford will join a tour group in Dallas of three other Key Clubs and Kiwanians from the Texas-Oklahoma District of Key Club International. The tour will include a stop at Niagara Falls. Also, the group will breakfast as a group at the top of the CN Tower in Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

The local representatives were selected for their service to their home, school, and community, and will be electing international officers and voting on issues which will determine the direction the organization will take in the year ahead.

Highlights of the convention include internationally renowned speakers and talent, as well as educational forums, individual and club competitions, and sessions designed to strengthen the local club and individual members.

Beverly Harder to present program Thursday morning

Canning, freezing and preserving procedures will be the topic of a program given by Deaf Smith County Extension agent Beverly Harder from 10-11 a.m. Thursday in the Southwestern Public Service Reddy Room.

Beginning at 11:15 a.m. until noon, pressure canner gauges will be checked. Bring only the lid to have this check performed.

The program will cover methods of food preservation, canning changes, objectives similar to its sponsor, Kiwanis International.

The local sponsor is the Kiwanis Club of Hereford and Whiteface Breakfast Club. There are more than 123,000 Key Club members in approximately 3,500 high schools in 10 countries.

information on speciality recipes, and equipment to make the food preservation season easier. 4-H'er Lori Urbanczyk, who is working in the project field of food preservation, will be assisting with the program.

Those wishing to attend are asked to call the extension office at 364-3573 to pre-register so adequate program materials will be available.

The ZIP code for Dublin, Ga., is 31023, and the Area code is 912.

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR

With all of the present-day problems and difficulties concerning "our way of life", it is becoming increasingly questionable about its survival. It must be remembered, however, that not all is lost yet; and, with this, let us be fully aware of the great need to be hopeful about the future, to find some basis for maintaining some glimmer of hope.

We know that the defeatist attitude will bring disaster. If we think failure, and talk failure, we will certainly contribute to the possibility of failure. On the other hand, the loose and unjustified attitude that there is no reason to be concerned, that everything will turn out all right, is dangerous.

We do have many problems, and some seem to almost defy solution; and there are dangers, some of them grave dangers, which threaten us and "our way of life." Challenges are being hurled against us which are not easy to meet triumphantly. Nevertheless, giving up, giving in to despair, assuming that there is no hope would make us unworthy of our heritage.

It has been said that "there are no hopeless situations, only hopeless people who think hopelessly. For it is the very pattern of our thinking that worries us and makes things appear hopeless to us." -Cliffe. It remains for each one of us to decide how much truth there is in this observation, and it should be examined very carefully, because we do see some folk accomplishing things which others are saying are hopeless.

One fact is clear, we can work better, think better and fight better in an atmosphere of hopefulness. We must not succumb to our own faulty thinking, or to the cleverness of those who, for one reason or another, wage constant psychological warfare against us.

Our cause is just, it is worth our best efforts; it has not been lost yet, and there must be hope; hope in the future as the source of our strength for the present.

Beef cow herd operations are making some money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers and ranchers who operate beef cow herds are making a little money now, but an Agriculture Department economist says they're still in financial danger.

No massive expansion in the nation's cattle herd is in sight due to the financial uncertainty and because it takes about 2½ years from the time a cow is bred to produce a calf and grow it for the beef market.

In 1986, the nation's cow-calf operators generally enjoyed substantial net cash returns for the first time in five years, says Russell Bove of the department's Economic Research Service.

Producers netted an estimated average of $35.70 per cow last year and may realize more than $45 in 1987, according to Bove's analysis.

The estimates represent net cash income, the difference between cash receipts and cash expenses for a year. No allowance is made for capital costs of replacing and maintaining buildings and equipment.

But net cash income is one way to illustrate the financial condition of agricultural producers, and it shows how much a farmer or rancher has left over — or lost — after paying out-of-pocket expenses.

In 1978 and 1979, when cattle prices were relatively high and feed costs low, net cash returns of cow-calf operators nationally averaged $55.70 and $121.14, respectively, per cow. In 1980, returns dropped to about $55 per cow, and by 1984 were in the red. Operators about broke even in 1985 before returns went up last year.

"Positive returns near $36 per cow in 1986 and projected favorable returns in 1987 may encourage cow-calf producers to expand their beef cow herds and take advantage of abundant forage supplies," Bove said. "However, the incentives for a sharp, broad national expansion are not present."

He added: "By 1988, large pork and poultry meat supplies may reduce net returns, limiting additional expansion in the beef herd."

As computed, cash receipts for average cow-calf operators include the sales of steer and heifer calves, yearling steers and heifers, and cull cows. The agency has been publishing the annual estimates since 1977.

Despite the improvement in net cash income, when allowances are made for capital improvements, the cow-calf operators still are losing money, as they have since 1979, Bove's report found.

Looking further at the cow-calf cash balance sheet, Bove said total cash expenses stood at about $164 per cow in 1977 and peaked at $277 in 1984. Feed costs rose by 45 percent, other variable expenses rose 63 percent, and fixed expenses more than doubled during the 1977-84 period.

Since 1984, cash expenses have dropped substantially and may average around $234 this year, he said.

Meanwhile, cash receipts rose from about $147 per cow in 1977 to an estimated $352 in 1979, dropping to $307 in 1980 and $247 in 1983. Last year, the average beef cow returned $262 in total receipts and may go to about $279 this year.

City council votes to phase out breed

FARMERS BRANCH, Texas (AP) — The City Council has voted to phase out pit bull terriers, which have been known to attack humans and other animals, within the city limits.

Residents in this Dallas suburban city will not be allowed to acquire pit bulls during the phasing out period under the action taken Monday.

"I have been told by several citizens that they have had problems with pit bull dogs," said council

Class of '78 to plan reunion

The 1978 Hereford High School graduating class is having a reunion planning meeting at 7 p.m. July 13 in the Energas Flame Room.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Alexander the Great, history says, made his soldiers keep clean shaven so the enemy could not grab them by their beards.

member John Dunagan. "They are very dangerous animals ... it's like pointing a loaded gun at your neighbor and not telling him when it's going to go off."

On June 24, a pit bull broke through the screen door of a home in Richardson, a nearby suburb, and killed the family's small dog. A toddler who was in the room at the time of the attack was not injured.

Six Farmers Branch residents were bitten by pit bulls in 1983, said Tom McDougald, acting director of community services. The same year, the city's animal shelter stopped making pit bulls available for adoption.

He said one case of a pit bull attack was reported in the city this year.

CLASSIFIED ADS
Classified advertising rates are based on cents a word for first insertion ($2.00 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	.14	2.00
2 days per word	.24	4.00
3 days per word	.34	6.00
4 days per word	.44	8.00
5th day FREE

Ten days (2 free) is $15.00 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is $23.00 minimum; one month is $31.00 minimum.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $1.95 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALS
Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

The World Almanac DATE BOOK

July 8, 1987
Today is the 189th day of 1987 and the 18th day of summer.

TODAY'S HISTORY: On this day in 1889, the last bare-knuckles championship boxing match was held - John L. Sullivan retained his heavyweight title by knocking out Jake Kilrain in the 75th round.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS: Alec Waugh (1898); Nelson Rockefeller (1908); Walter Kerr (1913); Marty Feldman (1933).

TODAY'S QUOTE: "I can lick any man in the house!" - John L. Sullivan

TODAY'S MOON: Between first quarter (July 4) and full moon (July 10).

TODAY'S TRIVIA: Which state did Nelson Rockefeller serve as governor? (a) West Virginia (b) Massachusetts New York

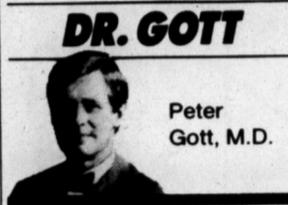

TODAY'S BARS BY PHIL PASTORET
Fairly tale for grownups: Once upon a time the hotel room they gave you was as attractive as the one pictured in the travel brochure.

Another point in favor of the newspaper: You can't lug around a TV to hide behind when you want to avoid someone.

TODAY'S TRIVIA ANSWERS: (a) Nelson Rockefeller served as governor of New York from 1959 to 1973.

Tribute made to Wyler on PBS

NEW YORK (AP) - The late film director William Wyler said he was criticized for having "no signature" - you couldn't tell a Wyler film from that of another director just by the look of it.
But that didn't halt a stampede of stars who wanted his Midas touch on their careers. His 45 years' worth of films included some of their biggest hits - Bette Davis in "Jezebel," Gary Cooper in "Friendly Persuasion," Charlton Heston in "Ben Hur," Barbra Streisand in "Funny Girl."

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT - What causes wax buildup in the ears? Are the new ear-wash products safe to use?
DEAR READER - Ear wax has a protective function. Although all people make wax, it does tend to build up excessively on occasion. This is due both to the nature of the wax - hard or gummy - and to the anatomy of the ear canals. If the canal is angulated, the wax may tend to accumulate and not be expelled as easily as it is from straight canals. Also, in my experience, luxuriant hair growth in ear canals will impede the drainage of wax.
When used according to the manufacturer's directions, commercial ear-wash products are safe - and often are quite helpful in relieving the problem. Check with your doctor first, however, to make sure that there is no reason that you shouldn't use these products.

DEAR DR. GOTT - My husband is 60 and is on his feet all day. He suffers from what the doctors call cellulitis. He gets a very high fever (102 to 105 degrees), and then his leg gets red, swollen and black and blue from his calf to his toes. The doctors have taken every test imaginable and tell him he has to learn to live with it. We can't. There must be a cause for this. Can you help?

DEAR READER - Cellulitis is a diffuse infection of the skin. It can occur under conditions that reduce the skin's ability to fight bacteria. For example, poor blood circulation to the skin may set the stage for cellulitis because the tissues are deprived of oxygen. Cellulitis is usually treated with antibiotics.
A problem may arise when other conditions are confused with cellulitis. Deep bone infection can mimic cellulitis, as can the severe skin irritation that is seen with varicose veins.

I believe that your husband's doctors need to discover the cause of his cellulitis. Does he have varicose veins or arterial insufficiency? A venous problem could be helped by elastic stockings and elevation of the legs after work; an arterial problem might require surgery to re-establish blood flow. If your husband's doctors are really stuck making a diagnosis, and they certainly seem to be, you should ask for a referral to a diagnostic clinic at a major teaching center or university hospital. In the meantime, I'd urge your husband to take a medical leave of absence from his occupation, since standing at work seems to make the problem worse.

"William really is the reason that I became a box-office star," Davis says.
"He directed more Academy Award performances than any other director," says Gregory Peck, who starred in Wyler's "Roman Holiday."

Fourteen actors and actresses won Oscars for Wyler-directed performances. Twenty-one others were nominated. Wyler himself was nominated 15 times and won three Academy Awards.

Davis and Peck are among an array of movie stars whose reminiscences are included in the PBS profile "Directed by William Wyler." It airs Monday as the second in the "American Masters" series.

Wyler's daughter, Catherine, is executive producer of the engaging, hour-long tribute, chock full of tidbits, anecdotes and film clips.

The endearing interview with Wyler was taped just days before his death in 1981. Folded into it are interviews with his wife, Talli, directors John Huston and Billy Wilder and actors Laurence Olivier and Greer Garson, among others.

Wyler was born in Alsace-Lorraine, now part of France. An uncle in the movie business paid his passage to the United States. He worked his way up from gofer at Universal, landing his first directing job in 1925, a western called "Crock Buster." It was shot in three days on a budget of $2,000.

In 1932, he successfully directed the difficult but brilliant John Barrymore in "Counselor at Large" and boosted his reputation in the industry.

His perfectionism was legendary.

"He made me do 48 takes in front of 200 extras. And I had never in my life done more than two takes before," Davis says.

Heston says Wyler was never that bad, that he didn't recall more than 27 takes. He said Wyler could never be described as satisfied by a performance, but rather "resigned to the fact that you weren't going to do it any better."

Screenwriter Lillian Hellman recalls Wyler picking her up on his motorcycle and zooming through the streets of Hollywood on the way to the studio.

They clashed, though, when Wyler directed "Mrs. Miniver" as a bald-faced propaganda film in favor of U.S. entry into World War II. Wyler says others also criticized the film as jingoistic, but the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor at about the same time the movie came out. It won an Oscar.

Wyler felt strongly about the war and joined the Army Air Corps. He made documentaries crouched in the bellies of bombers. The PBS show includes his stunning footage of fighter planes firing on him.

Because of the noise of the planes, Wyler lost all hearing in one ear and most of it in the other. He returned home, uncertain if he could continue his career.

But he went on to make the definitive coming-home movie, and it too won an Oscar - the tender "The Best Years of Our Lives."

"I'm accused constantly of having 'no signature,'" Wyler said. "That's the big artistic demerit. You can't tell a Wyler film from another man's film just by looking at it. To me it's more fun and more challenging, too, to do different types of pictures."
