In Iran-Contra hearing

Questions unfair, complains Beckler

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lawyer for former National Security Adviser John Poindexter complained bitterly today that lawmakers and lawyers on the Iran-Contra committees have treated his client unfairly by publicly questioning his truthfulness.

Congress "has the power to crush an individual if it wishes to, unless it shows some restraint," attorney Richard Beckler said.

Beckler, stating his complaint just before questioning of Poindexter resumed, described his client as a "soldier, scholar, statesman," who deserves "just treatment and fundamentally deserves fairness from this body."

Some committee members have told reporters they have doubts about the version of events that Poindexter has testified to in his first three days at nationally televised hearings.

The 50-year-old rear admiral quietly puffed on his pipe as Beckler made his arguments in the manner of a lawyer delivering an emotional closing argument to a jury.

As he did on Wednesday, when Poindexter first began testifying, Beckler asked the committees to withdraw the subpoenas that compelled his appearance.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House committee, denied the motion, as he had done on Wednesday. And Poindexter, answering questions under a limited grant of immunity from prosecution, commenced his give-and-take with House committee counsel John Nields.

In his first three days in the witness chair, Poindexter has said he did not tell President Reagan that proceeds from secret Iranian arms sales had been diverted to Nicaraguan rebels.

Poindexter told the committees on Thursday that neither Attorney General Edwin Meese nor former White House chief of staff Donald Regan ever asked him whether he approved the diversion of Iran arms sale profits to the Contras.

Asked whether Meese or Regan ever inquired whether he had told Reagan about the diversion, Poindexter said he couldn't recall that they had. He earlier told the committees he approved it without Reagan's knowledge.

Committee members said they expected to shift the focus of Poindexter's interrogation somewhat.

House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash., who is assigned as one of the four chief congressional questioners of Poindexter, stressed Thursday that there has been excessive focus on the former national security adviser's assertion that he never told Reagan about diversion of Iran arms sales monies.

"We have a disturbing reality that Admiral Poindexter assumed a responsibility that properly belonged to the president," Foley said.

"Where does this lead us in how national security policy is made?"

Foley said the panels' responsibility is to "explore the whole process by

Rusche alleges scratching dump would not be fair

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration pleaded with Congress Thursday not to hold up progress toward a permanent nuclear waste storage repository deep underground.

"The positive steps already taken are too important to derail, disrupt or destroy," said Ben Rusche, director of the Energy Department's Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management, in testimony before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

More than 30 bills have been introduced to delay, abandon or change the program. The chief sponsor of the 1982 law setting it up, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., has said he believes Congress must recast it.

Starting all over again "would just not be a fair or prudent way to do business," Rusche said.

The department has narrowed the choices for a permanent depot to three: at Yucca Mountain on the nuclear weapons test range in Nevada, in Deaf Smith County, Texas, and on the Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash.

The committee was considering five Senate bills, and Rusche opposed them all as having "no clear-cut value."

Those bills would:

—Give states adjacent to the repository state the same rights as the repository state, if they share a major common body of surface or ground water that could be hurt by a leak from the repository.

—Require a study of building the storage depot on an ocean floor.

—Require a study of reprocessing the spent fuel to recover usable fuel, suspending further site work until 1990.

—Require spent reactor fuel to be stored for 50 years before being transported to a repository.

—Halt repository activities until 1996 and authorize four regional temporary storage and repacking depots.

Prospects for the five bills are considered dim because the committee chairman, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., and ranking Republican, Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, are backing other bills that would accelerate the current search for a permanent storage site.

Plans laid to help Hereford celebrate Constitution

Upon getting Hereford approved as a "Designated Bicentennial Community" by the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, the local committee has laid out plans for the town to celebrate the document's birthday.

Hereford is the first to receive the designation in the Panhandle and is No. 1,401 in the nation.

Ruth Newsom is chairing the local committee. "The committee is pleased that the Chamber of Commerce has announced that the theme of the Town and Country Jubilee will be 'We the People' to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the signing of the U.S. Constitution," Newsom said.

This year's focus will be on the signing of the Constitution, which was on Sept. 17, 1987. In 1988, the focus will be on its ratification by states and in 1989, on the formation of the first Federal government under the Constitutional system. Further, in 1990 and 1991, a focus will be pushed on writing and ratification of the Bill of Rights.

Generally, the local committee will encourage civic, study, and youth clubs to plan a program on the Constitution this year and to ask school and county libraries to create displays during Constitution Week.

All individuals and businesses are asked to display the U.S. Flag on Sept. 17. A survey of retail stores indicates that there will be an ample supply of flags for purchase.

The committee is planning a program for the Town & Country Jubilee, and Keywanettes will distribute copies of the Constitution and Flag Code leaflets at the Jubilee Junction on Aug. 15.

A poster contest is planned on the topic "What Freedom Means To Me." Students will compete in two divisions: up to 12-years and 13 through 18 years. Posters will be displayed during the Town and Country Jubilee and during Constitution Week.

A feature story is planned for the Sept. 13 edition of The Hereford Brand and spot announcements and interviews for Constitution week will be provided for KPAN by Los Ciboleros Chapter of the DAR.

A bibliography of materials on the Constitution will be available at the C of C office.

Committee members working on the celebration are Mayor Wes Fisher, Newsom, Mary Williamson (vice chairman), Elvira Soto (secretary), Lee Cave, Miles Caudle, Joe D. Rogers and Jeanette Ramey.

Special session ends Tuesday

Tax talk on joint committee agenda

AUSTIN (AP) — Tax talk is the order of the day today as lawmakers try to figure out how to balance the $38.3 billion budget worked out by the state's three top leaders.

A House-Senate conference committee planned to meet today to negotiate the big differences in each chamber's tax plan. The House's $5.2 billion plan would raise the sales tax, now 5 1/4 percent, to 6 percent and stretch it to cover insurance premiums.

The Senate also set a 6 percent sales tax, but skipped over insurance premiums as they extended it to a handful of items. The Senate plan, totaling about $5.9 billion, also raises some fees and business taxes.

Senators Thursday voted to keep the motor fuels tax at 15 cents per gallon, instead of letting it roll back to 10 cents on Sept. 1. The House previously approved that plan.

The current special legislative session ends Tuesday. Speaker Gib Lewis said the House votes on the budget and tax plan would probably be on Monday.

The budget plan agreed to by Clements, who has abandoned his no-new-taxes pledge, drew mixed reviews from fellow Republicans.

"I think we ought to have a shredding party of our own, Texas-sized, and put that bill in it," said Rep. Chip Staniswallis, R-Amarillo.

"I think that he (Clements) has gone back on what the people of the state of Texas want. He is not listening," said Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Plano. "I think had he stuck by his guns, we would have come back and done some real budget reductions."

But Clements said Thursday that House members "had their opportunity over about a four-day period over in the House to see what they could do with the budget. And I would remind all of you they reduced it, what, $17 million? I've reduced it about $300 million."

Li. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis, who worked out the agreement with Clements, are expected to be able to push it through the Senate and House, although there is some grumbling that the plan could force increased local property taxes.

Some House Republicans were sympathetic to Clements' plight.

"I think he has looked at it and made a decision based on what he feels is best for the state of Texas, and I don't have any problem with that," said Rep. Ed Kuempel, R-Seguin.

Rep. Barry Connelly, R-Houston, was among those defending Clements. He said some GOP lawmakers had made no-new-taxes a false deity.

"I'm sure there are some of my colleagues who if God came down and said we needed new taxes, they would still vote against the tax bill," Connelly said.

But Staniswallis said the no-new-taxes campaign promise is "a ghost that (Clements) is going to have to wrestle with."

Local man's killer gets sentenced to 2 life terms

Marcos V. Castillo, a Dimmitt man who pled guilty last week to shooting a Hereford resident and his estranged wife, will go to the Texas Department of Corrections next week to start serving two life terms concurrently.

Castillo pleaded guilty to two counts of first degree murder of Robert Cabrera, 52, of Hereford, and his estranged wife Selia, 46, of Dimmitt. The couple was shot to death outside Joe's Liquor Store in Dimmitt on Feb. 16.

According to 64th District Attorney Jimmy F. Davis, Castillo was indicted in February on charges of capital murder and felony weapons possession. The charges were reduced in exchange for his guilty plea.

Castillo also was fined $10,000. He will not be eligible for parole for at least 20 years, because he used a deadly weapon.

Three attempts at burglaries foiled Thursday

Three attempted burglaries were foiled on Thursday. Two burglars were surprised when employees of the city swimming pool returned to the pool office around 11 p.m. As they drove up to the building the employees saw two juvenile males running from the area. The inside area had been broken into and cokes and chips had been opened. The estimated loss is $10.

A second burglary attempt was broken up on the 2000 block of Plains. A man reported stepping outside of his residence and seeing two boys run from his driveway and leave in a car. He believes he stopped a burglary as does a man on the 100 block of Aspen who reported to police that he thought he foiled an attempt to burglarize his vehicle when he stepped outside his home and found his car door swinging open. He thought a burglar may have heard him coming and ran off.

Reported thefts included a Pomeranian dog, valued at $400, from a residence on North 25 Mile Ave., a bicycle and tire pump from a home on the 100 block of Austin Road, a bicycle from a residence on the 300 block of Hickory, a radar detector from a vehicle on the 200 block of North Texas and a purse taken from a van on the 600 block of Star.

Other offenses reported include:

-Two juveniles who admitted to making harassing phone calls to a woman on the 600 block of Star.

-A caller who reported two suspicious people at a residence on the 400 block of Union. Officers stopped and talked with the men, who said they are friends of the owner of the home.

-A woman on the 200 block of Centre filed a complaint about the people laying down the seal-coating on the streets and leaving trash behind. She was advised that the crews go back after the job is completed and pick up any trash they leave behind.

-A man on the 800 block of Irving reported that someone broke out eight panes of glass from the rear of an empty rental house he owns. Damage is estimated at $80.

A 21-year-old man was arrested for no driver's license and no insurance and a 26-year-old man stopped for traffic violations was arrested on an Austin warrant for theft by check.

Twelve citations were issued and one minor accident with no injuries was investigated.

Firefighters battling blazes, nearly 22,000 acres claimed

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

Wildfires that charred nearly 22,000 acres of range and forest raged in six Western states today, but cool, wet weather slowed an Oregon fire that killed two loggers, destroyed eight houses and forced dozens of evacuations.

The blazes, fed by tinder-dry brush and trees, burned in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, California, Utah and Montana.

Light rain and overnight lows in the mid-40s helped 650 firefighters battling in southwest Oregon, where the largest blaze had burned more than 7,000 acres near Roseburg, killed two people, destroyed at least eight homes and forced 25 to 35 families to flee.

"We hope the rain keeps up, but we're not out of it yet," said Lynn Anderson-Farr, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Forestry in Roseburg. "When you have a fire this large, any factors that turn your favor help."

Two of the 300 firefighters battling a 500-acre blaze in Oregon's Umpqua National Forest suffered minor injuries. At least two families were evacuated temporarily as about 100 firefighters circled a 1,200-acre brush fire along the Little Applegate River.

Carl and Fay Giles listened helplessly on their logging company's radio Wednesday as fast-moving flames near Roseburg trapped their son Mark, 30, and employee James Richard Moore, 55, at a camp where they were trying to save equipment.

"Everybody knew they were there, and there was no way to get to them," said Dora Collins, a spokeswoman for the Douglas County sheriff's office. Rescuers recovered the bodies later Thursday.

Smoke from more than 9,000 burning acres in Oregon was visible in satellite photos and prompted the National Weather Service to issue a visibility warning to drivers and a health alert to those with respiratory problems.

A murky haze also hung over large areas of Northern California from the Oregon fires and a wind-driven timber fire started Wednesday by lightning. It scorched nearly 1,000 acres in northeastern California's Modoc National Forest.

About 200 firefighters were expected to control the flames by Saturday evening, said U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Nancy Gardner.

In Hangman Valley, south of Spokane, Wash., about 120 firefighters doused hot spots from a fire that swept through a subdivision, destroying 24 houses valued at $100,000 to $200,000 each and damaging 12 before the blaze was contained Thursday morning.

Three people suffered minor injuries in the fire and residents of 90 to 100 homes were evacuated. They were allowed to return Thursday to inspect the damage and collect valuables.

Firefighters in Washington's Okanogan National Forest, on the eastern slopes of the Cascade Range, expected to contain an 800-acre fire by tonight, and a 1,100-acre fire northeast of Tonasket was contained Thursday by 660 firefighters.

Two forest fires in northwestern Montana grew rapidly Thursday. One blaze at Sterling Gulch, southeast of Libby, expanded to an estimated 2,000 acres by Thursday night, said Jim Gregg, Department of State Lands manager at Kalispell.

About 100 miles to the east, near Marias Pass, a 500-acre fire burned out of control on Forest Service land south of Glacier National Park, said Becky Allen, a spokeswoman for the Flathead National Forest.

More than 550 firefighters in Idaho hoped to complete fire lines around a 1,900-acre blaze late today in the Boise National Forest. Tankers strafed the stubborn eastern flank with chemical retardant Thursday.

In New Mexico, about 30 small wildfires burned in the Gila Bend, Cibola and Santa Fe national forests, but a U.S. Forest Service official said none was out of control or endangering lives. Most were caused by lightning.

Lion Family Promotes Carnival

Hereford Lions Club President John D. Bryant, joined by his family and club sweetheart, appeared in clown suits at the weekly meeting Wednesday to promote the annual Lions' Carnival. The clowns,

Texans rally to triumph in windfall profits tax repeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Triumphant-oil state senators predict a tough conference committee battle over repeal of the Windfall Profits Tax following Senate passage of the measure as part of the omnibus trade bill.

Senate supporters said the size of the victory would provide leverage when they sit down with House members in conference and work out a compromise version of the sweeping trade bill.

"We won big," Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said after the 58-40 Senate vote Thursday. "Whether it's going to get it over the top we'll have to wait and see."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Finance Committee and of the conference committee, said he would talk to House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., who has been critical of the repeal move.

"I anticipate a tough fight in the conference committee as we try to convince the House to keep the repeal provision on the trade bill, but we have a real shot at getting this tax repealed," Bentsen said.

The tax approved in 1980 was an attempt to capture for the government some of the soaring profits derived from sharply increased oil prices in the energy crisis of the 1970s. There were forecasts of oil selling for $70 a barrel at one point.

But the steady drop in oil prices in the mid-1980s hammered oil states and left the tax moribund. It has generated no revenue lately with prices well below trigger levels that start collections. But prices have been creeping up again in recent months past the $20-a-barrel level.

Last year, the Senate passed a measure to repeal, but it languished in the House and finally died in conference.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said he expects more support in conference from the House leadership now that Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, has succeeded Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., as speaker.

"With this strong vote in the Senate, with Senator Bentsen chairing the conference committee, and with the previously declared support of Speaker Wright, I think we have the best chance we've had to actually repeal the tax," Boren said.

Treasury Secretary James Baker, a Houston businessman who is a close personal friend of Bentsen's, said he joined in the lobbying effort for repeal of the tax, calling several Republican senators about the vote.

If the repeal survives a House-Senate committee and is signed by the president, supporters say it would bolster confidence in the U.S. oil industry, fostering more bank loans for further domestic exploration.

France breaks with Iran

PARIS (AP) — France, locked for nearly three weeks in an "embassy war" with Iran, broke diplomatic relations today with the Islamic Republic, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

"France has decided as of now to break diplomatic relations with Iran," said the spokesman.

France has asked "the exercising president of the European Community to urgently (inform) member states of this situation and has charged its permanent representative at the United Nations to inform the Security Council," said the spokesman, speaking on condition he not be named.

Group says

English-only efforts 'racist'

AUSTIN (AP) — The founder of a Hispanic veterans organization is charging that efforts to designate English as the state's official language are racist and "neo-Nazi."

"This is a neo-Nazi philosophy brought into Texas from outside the state," said Dr. Hector P. Garcia of Corpus Christi, founder of the American G.I. Forum.

"I am greatly concerned and worried," he said of lobbying efforts to get the Legislature to take such action. "I'm deeply concerned and disturbed about the situation."

Legislation was introduced — but died — during the regular session to designate English as the official language. Similar legislation also has been introduced in Congress, Garcia said.

"We have achieved great advancements and understanding... by fostering the speaking and teaching of English," he said.

But making English the official language would divide American citizens, he argued. "There's no other purpose. It's raw racism," Garcia said.

"On the surface, U.S.-English as the official language sounds beautiful and patriotic, and you cannot speak to a more patriotic person than I," the World War II veteran said.

"What is behind this movement? What is behind this neo-Nazi philosophy? First and foremost, to create bad feelings, bad relations, bad understanding between two groups of people," Garcia said.

Groups favoring an official language designation have asked Gov. Bill Clements to include the issue on the agenda for the Legislature's current special session, but he hasn't yet done so.

drilled in Texas," Bentsen said.

Hard times in oil country have made the repeal idea easier to sell in the Senate this year, although the same has not been so in the House. This also marks Bentsen's first year as chairman of the Finance Committee, a post that carries considerable Capitol Hill clout.

The measure would lift a multi-tiered 1980 tax on oil that starts to kick in when crude oil hits $19 a barrel.

Universal tour offers stunts from TV show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The setting is a smuggler's lagoon on a Caribbean island, and the action starts when Crockett and Tubbs race in on a Scarab speedboat.

The action races for 15 minutes: gun battles, explosions, fireworks, spectacular stunts, a runaway mine trolley, a Hovercraft, and a helicopter crash that sends up a fireball as big as a napalm strike.

The live-action spectacular, based on exploits of Sonny Crockett and Ricardo Tubbs on NBC's "Miami Vice," is the newest attraction on the Universal Studios Tour.

The show, performed up to 10 times a day in a 3,000-seat arena, opened to the public over the Fourth of July holiday.

Universal describes it as the most ambitious special effects presentation ever designed for repeated performances. The gunfire is all electronic; computer-controlled explosions are fired only after the stuntman nearest the blast has signaled it is safe.

"We chose 'Miami Vice' because it's popular, well-known, has a lot of action and because it has style," said Phil Hettema, who produced the new show. He was production supervisor for the opening and closing ceremonies of the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics and for the closing ceremonies of "Liberty Weekend" last year.

"Everything on the Universal Tour is themed to music, film or television. That's what makes us unique. We're not an 'iron ride' park. We don't have any rides," Hettema said. It was stuntman-director Alex Plasschaert who selected the 24-man stunt crew and put them through a vigorous training course. Despite the high-tech fireworks, it's the stunt work that gives the show its pizzazz.

So far, the show has had only one mishap. One of the stuntmen portraying Tubbs was injured during training while attempting a backflip on a trampoline, Plasschaert said.

The show opens with Crockett and Tubbs speeding into the lagoon with guns blazing. The outdoor arena has been built to look like a seedy island port, with a wharf, a full-scale cargo trawler, a warehouse, water tower and an abandoned mine shaft.

The show pits the two detectives against four smugglers. One stuntman acts as "director," who occasionally stops the action to set up the next sequence and explains what's happening. Pulsating "Miami Vice" music plays throughout the show.

No ammunition is used, but several blasts of fire, including the chopper crash, sent waves of heat into the stands. In all, it was a crowd-pleasing performance, although the loud noise caused a number of babies and small children to scream in fright.

The "Miami Vice" show replaces one based on "The A-Team," a show which has been canceled. Hettema said the life expectancy of a show on the tour was about three years, although a more popular show might last longer.

Other live action shows on the Universal Tour include a sword and sorcery show based on the "Conan" movies, an animal actors show, the cowboy stunt show and the Screen Test Theater, in which members from the audience act out roles for a video camera. Future shows will be based on "E.T. — The Extraterrestrial," "Back to the Future" and the San Francisco earthquake.

Farmers market to open

The Golden Spread Farmers Market will have its 1987 grand opening on Saturday with Mike Moeller, deputy Texas Agriculture Commissioner, present.

The market, operated in conjunction with the TDA and Potter County Extension Service, will open at 8 a.m. with grand opening ceremonies at 1 p.m. The market is at the old Gold Sox Stadium on the northwest corner of the Tri-State Fairground, near the intersection of East Third and Grand streets. It is in its second year.

Produce is available Tuesday and Saturday from 8 a.m. until sell-out and on Thursday from 4-8 p.m.

which these policies were undertaken," which will be included in upcoming questioning of Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Meese and perhaps Regan.

Lawmakers may question Poindexter about President Reagan's decision to let him resign, while the president fired Poindexter's National Security Council aide, Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

Poindexter on Thursday gave a clue to the reasoning behind the disparity, testifying that he told Meese he had been only generally aware of the Contra diversion.

Three die in construction accident

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Two construction workers were killed in a cave-in and a third man died after being buried in the collapsing trench while attempting to rescue the other two, officials said.

James Crittenden Baird, 25; Mark Allison, 23, and Clifford Davis, 18, all of Amarillo, died when a 25-foot-deep sewer line trench collapsed Thursday.

Emergency personnel worked for almost five hours to recover Davis' body, guarding against the threat of an additional collapse.

The cave-in occurred at about 4:30 p.m. as workers from H.B. Jordan Construction Co. were attempting to dig a sewer line to an old water line, said Potter County Justice of the Peace Haven Dysart.

The dirt above the old water line apparently was loosely packed and unstable, and collapsed into the newly dug trench, Dysart said. Allison and Davis were immediately buried. Baird, who was working on top of the trench, jumped in to try to rescue the two, said construction crew member Lupe Martinez.

Witnesses said Baird was quickly trapped and then buried by the crumbling dirt.

"They told me to come out, and when I turned around it caved in," Martinez said. "They never had a chance. They couldn't even run."

Boulter schedules meeting in Happy

Rep. Beau Boulter will hold a town meeting in Happy at 7:30 p.m. today in the Happy High School cafeteria, 400 NW Third.

The meeting will focus on efforts to bring the Superconducting Super Collider to the Panhandle.

In fact, the admiral told the committees, he had approved the plan and personally decided to keep it from the president so Regan wouldn't be "associated with the decision."

Asked if Meese, whose internal investigation of the affair led to Poindexter's resignation, ever asked him about the president's knowledge of the diversion, Poindexter replied, "I do not recall his asking me whether I had told the president or his asking me whether I had approved it."

Poindexter said he also could not recall Regan, who was in charge of the White House staff, ever asking him what he knew about the diversion or whether he had told the president.

In other developments: -Reagan, queried by reporters at the beginning of a Cabinet session on the budget, refused to comment on Poindexter's testimony, saying, "I'm going to be making a statement when all these hearings are over, and then I will be ready to talk."

Newlyweds Retreat set Aug. 29

Rev. Bob Curry, C.S.S.R., director of the Bishop DeFalco Retreat Center announces a Newlyweds Retreat, to be held Saturday, Aug. 29 at 1 p.m. until Sunday, Aug. 30, at 3:30 p.m. The retreat is for couples married five years or less.

A team of experienced married couples and Fr. Curry will conduct the retreat. "The newlywed couples will have quiet time together and opportunities to discuss with others the adjustments, struggles and joys of married life," said Fr. Curry.

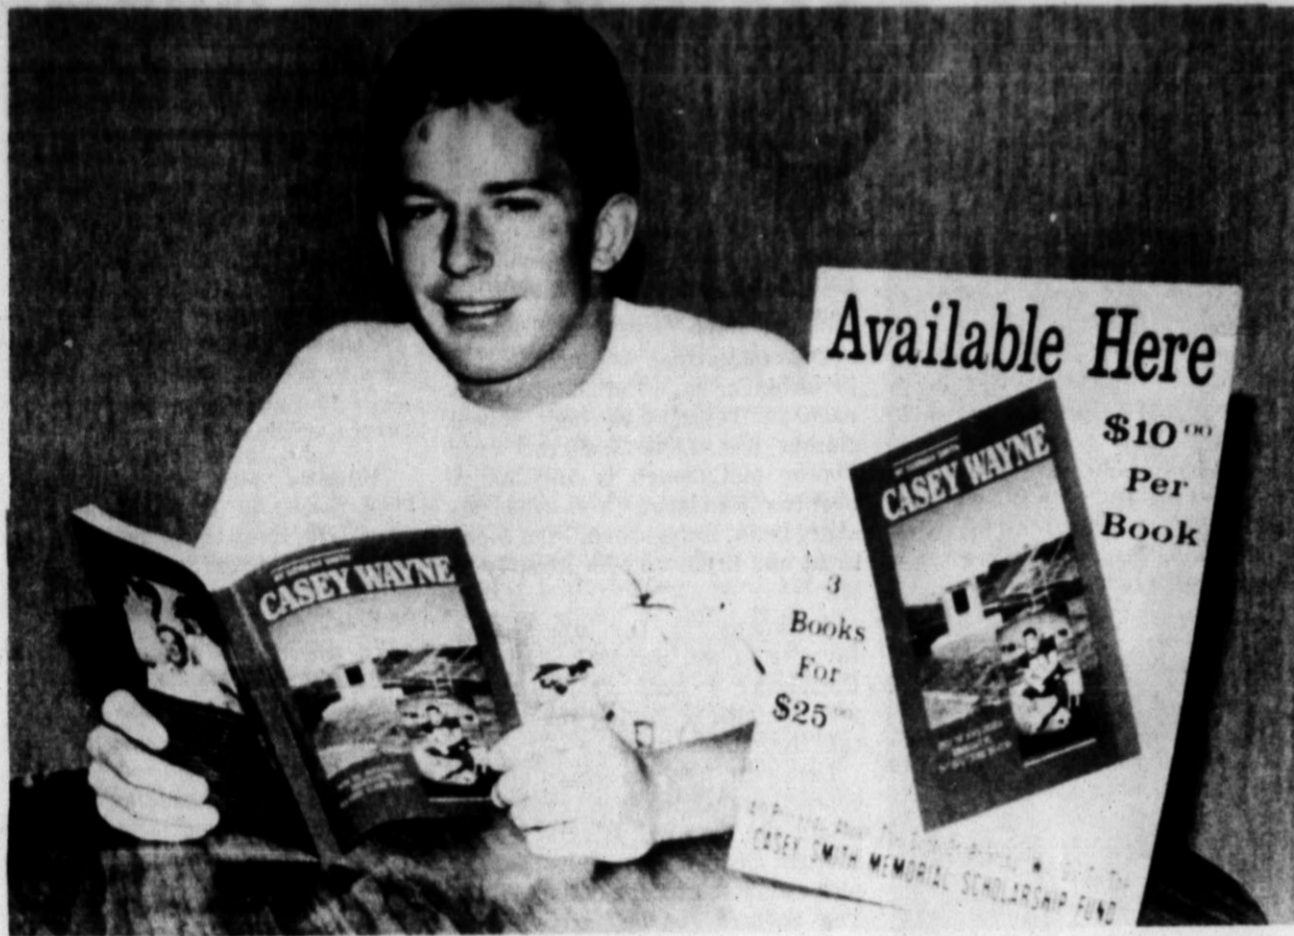

The romantic weekend includes a candlelight supper for two and a wine and cheese fellowship Saturday night. The retreat will conclude Sunday afternoon with the Eucharist, renewal of wedding vows and a reception. Each couple may invite another couple to witness the renewal of their vows during the Eucharist and to join them at the reception.

"Newlyweds have to make dramatic adjustments during those first five years of marriage," commented Fr. Curry. "They often think they are the only ones who are struggling. By listening to the experiences of the team couples and other newlyweds, they will be assured they are not alone. This retreat will help them recapture the romance in their marriage amidst the pressures of kids, jobs, careers, bills, and of getting to know each other."

The cost of the weekend is $60 per couple. This covers all expenses including the room for the night and three meals apiece. To register a couple should send a $15 reservation fee to Bishop DeFalco Retreat Center, 2100 N. Spring, Amarillo, Tx. 79107. The reservation fee is included in the total cost. Call the Center, 806-383-1811 for more information.

There will be no Scripture For Lunch Bunch this week.

Mission yearbook: The Chicago Presbytery calls us to join in praying for their Korean-American Youth and Young Adult Ministry, and the Young Korean-Americans it ministers to. These young people face extraordinary problems in trying to establish a self-identity. Many have parents who speak English with difficulty, who grew up in a distant country in another age. This is an important ministry, seeking to meet great needs.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Vacation Bible School for the whole family will begin Sunday, Aug. 9 at 9:30 a.m. with special classes for all of the kids and youth. For the adults, James Dobson's series of "Focus on the Family," will begin.

Then starting on Monday evening and continuing through Friday evening, Aug. 10-14, "The Great Family Gathering" will be held. At 6:30 a.m. a meal will be provided. Then singing, crafts, and classes for the youngsters and the Dobson films will be held for the adults. At 8:30 p.m. everyone gathers for games until 9 p.m.

An all-church swim will be held Friday night, with concluding assembly set for Sunday, Aug. 16.

High school youth may meet at the church Sunday evening at 7 p.m. in order to play Putt-Putt Golf in Amarillo. A trip to Baskin-Robbins will follow. Cost of the event is approximately $5; return to Hereford is planned at 10:30 p.m.

The undefeated co-ed softball team will compete against Frio Baptist Church on Monday and Community Church on Thursday, July 30.

The Chi Rho Swimming Party is set for 7:30-10 p.m. Sunday.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Vacation Bible School will be held July 27-31 from 9 a.m. until noon each day.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Western dress will be the proper costume for worshippers at the morning service of First United Methodist Church Sunday, and again that evening when the annual Pig Roast will be held in Fellowship Hall beginning at 6 p.m. The public is invited to both.

Each summer for several years Bill Walden has donated pork and supervised its preparation for the Pig Roast, assisted by others of the Methodist Men. Families attending the supper will bring salad, vegetables and dessert to complete the meal. Arrangements are in charge of the Family Life Coordinators, with Tom and Betty Conaway as chairmen.

After supper, a western talent show will be presented by members of the congregation.

For the morning service at 10:55 a.m., the church sanctuary will have decoration in the western theme. The sermon by Rev. Steve McElroy, pastor, and music will be reminiscent of worship in the church's pioneer years. Richard and Berta Ottesen are chairmen of the Western Day observance.

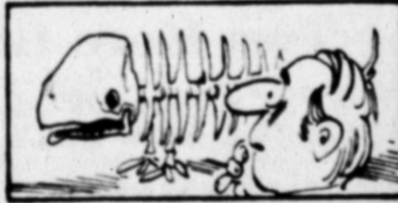

Pathologist, agronomist to visit Hereford Tuesday

Local gardeners and home owners are encouraged to contact the Texas Agriculture Extension Service of Deaf Smith County with any problems they may have with their yards and gardens.

Dr. Harold Hauffman, extension plant pathologist, and Dr. Brent Bean, extension agronomist, will be making visits Tuesday to homes and gardens upon request. They will also make suggestion on actions and improvements needed.

If you would like your problem inspected, please call the extension office at 364-3573 and leave your name, number, address and the nature of the problem.

Brownlee to speak Saturday

Reo Brownlee of Andrews will be the guest speaker at the Hereford Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship dinner set for 7 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Community Center.

The public is invited to attend. Brownlee, co-owner of Brownlee Well Service, was diagnosed in 1974 as having Hodskins Disease. Following surgery, radiation treatments and chemotherapy, he was healed. He has served as president of the Andrews Chapter of the FGBMFI in 1984-85 and founded the Andrews Christian Family Center in 1984, an organization dedicated to helping families in Andrews.

ROMANTIC LANDSCAPES STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — "The New Romantic Landscape" is on view at the Whitney Museum of American Art in Fairfield County through Aug. 22.

The exhibition presents works by 24 contemporary American artists who explore "the concept of the landscape as the embodiment of an enduring romantic ideal."

Herd picked to reach state 4A grid finals

DALLAS (AP) — Hereford and Jasper are the pre-season favorites of Dave Campbell's Texas Football magazine to reach the state class 4A championship game, with Aldine MacArthur and Conroe McCullough getting the nods for the class 5A title game.

The magazine, in picking the favorites for state championships in each of Texas' five high school classes, has Aldine MacArthur over Conroe McCullough in 5A, Jasper over Hereford in 4A, Cuero over Pittsburg in 3A, Refugio over Pilot Point in 2A and Bremond over Munday in 1A.

Arkansas is the pre-season favorite to win the 1987 Southwest Conference football championship, with Oklahoma getting the nod to take the national title.

Last year, the pre-season edition correctly predicted that Texas A&M would win the SWC. It's the second straight year for the magazine to pick Oklahoma for the national title. The Sooners finished second last year.

This year, there were some changes in SWC football with Southern Methodist blanked out by NCAA sanctions and three new coaches at the eight remaining schools.

"There's a story in the magazine on SMU's plight and then kind of a chart telling where all the SMU players scattered," Campbell, the editor-in-chief, said Thursday. "This is the first time we've ever had to do something like that in the 28-year history of the magazine."

A panel of football writers picked A&M to finish second behind Arkansas, with Texas tagged for third and Texas Christian for fourth.

Campbell said Arkansas hasn't been chosen to win the conference since 1978. Houston wound up as the champion that year.

"Everything points to Arkansas," Campbell said.

When schools juggled their schedules after the NCAA banned football at SMU for 1987 and the school voluntarily scrapped the 1988 season, Texas picked one of the toughest opponents, adding Auburn to the schedule, Campbell said.

Campbell said a game to watch this season will be Arkansas vs. Texas A&M on Nov. 14.

Mattingly drives in seven runs

Yankees defeat Rangers, 12-3

By The Associated Press

New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly and Texas Rangers catcher Mike Stanley wrote their names in the American League record book.

Mattingly, tying a record by homering for the sixth straight game, wound up hitting two — one of them a grand slam — as the Yankees beat the Rangers 12-3 Thursday night. Stanley was charged with five passed balls.

Mattingly, who also had a run-scoring grounder that gave him seven runs batted in on night, seemed unimpressed with his performance.

Stanley would just as soon forget his.

"I don't care about any of that record stuff," Mattingly said. "None of it helps win a pennant."

"I only had two good at-bats tonight. I didn't hit anything hard except the home runs and I made an error, so it wasn't that good a night."

Mattingly's home run with the bases loaded came off Charlie Hough, 10-5, in the second inning.

The grand slam was his fourth of the season, tying the Yankees' club record shared by Lou Gehrig (1934) and Tommy Henrich (1948).

The major league record for grand slams in one season is five, by Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs in 1955 and Jim Gentile of Baltimore in 1961.

And the major league record for home runs in consecutive games is eight, by Dale Long of Pittsburgh in 1956.

Stanley, battling Hough's knuckle ball, was charged with five passed balls, tying the league record set by California's Tom Egan on July 28, 1970.

Stanley's passed balls accounted for two unearned runs, one in the first that gave New York a 1-0 lead and sent Yankee starter Ron Guidry, 2-4, on his way to victory.

"Sometimes the knuckler would break a lot and sometimes it didn't break at all," said Stanley. "It was a constant battle. I had a tough time catching it. What else can I say?"

Hough had a tough time controlling the knuckler and walked three batters to load the bases for Mattingly in the second.

In the eighth, Mattingly faced reliever Mitch Williams and connected for his second homer of the night and 16th of the season, an opposite-field shot on a full-count pitch.

"Williams is nasty," the left-handed hitting Mattingly said of the left-handed Williams. "I feel good when I just put the ball in play against him."

Since coming off the disabled list on June 24, Mattingly is batting .623.

In his last five at-bats with the bases loaded, he has four home runs and an RBI single.

"I just found the swing five or six days ago," he said. "Something just clicked. I haven't hit a home run that I was trying to hit."

He has now hit two home runs in a game nine times during his career, including twice this season.

"He's as good a hitter as there is in baseball," New York Manager Lou Piniella said.

By hitting home runs in six straight games, Mattingly joins a group that includes Gehrig, Roger Maris and Reggie Jackson, who was the last to turn the trick while he was with the Baltimore Orioles in 1976.

The game was delayed one hour, 43 minutes at the start because of rain.

In other games, it was; Cleveland 4, Chicago 3; Toronto 5, Minnesota 2; Milwaukee 6, California 4; Detroit 3, Seattle 2; Oakland 6, Boston 3, and Baltimore 5, Kansas City 4.

Indians 4, White Sox 3

Cory Snyder hit a three-run homer and Sammy Steward provided clutch relief pitching as Cleveland made Doc Edwards' debut as manager a successful one with a victory over Chicago.

Edwards, the Indians' bullpen coach, took over when Pat Corrales was fired earlier in the day.

Snyder's homer in the first and a solo shot by Mel Hall in the sixth gave the Indians their first win in four decisions against Richard Dotson, 7-6.

Scott Bailes, 3-2, got the win with relief help from Stewart, who got the last five outs for his first save. Stewart pitched out of trouble after Bailes left the game in the eighth with one out and runners on first and third.

Blue Jays 5, Twins 2

Jesse Barfield's four hits and Jimmy Key's pitching led Toronto over Minnesota. Barfield had a double, three singles and one RBI.

Key, 10-6, allowed six hits and two earned runs in six innings. Tom Henke, who struck out pinch-hitter Randy Bush with two outs and the bases loaded in the ninth, picked up his 18th save.

Loser was Bert Blyleven, 8-7. The Blue Jays have won all five games against the Twins this season by a combined score of 41-8.

Brewers 6, Angels 4

Ernest Riles capped a four-run second inning with a two-run single, and Rob Deer hit his 21st homer as Milwaukee beat California.

Teddy Higuera, 8-7, won for the third time in his last four starts, but needed relief help from Mark Clear and Dan Plesac.

Clear pitched out of a two-on, one-out jam in the seventh after the Angels had scored twice, and Plesac pitched the final two innings for his 19th save.

Tigers 3, Mariners 2

Kirk Gibson broke a 2-2 tie with his 12th home run leading off the seventh inning to lift Detroit over Seattle behind Walt Terrell's nine-hitter.

Gibson's homer at Tiger Stadium was off Seattle starter Mike Moore, 3-11.

Terrell, 7-8, survived four doubles, walked three and struck out two in his third complete game of the season.

Athletics 6, Red Sox 3

Alfredo Griffin had three hits and Luis Polonia had two and both figured in a tie-breaking, three-run seventh inning to lead Oakland over Boston.

Dave Stewart, 12-7, earned his fifth consecutive victory, scattering five hits before needing seventh-inning relief help from Dennis Eckersley, who picked up his seventh save.

Boston right-hander Roger Clemens, 8-7, last year's Cy Young winner in the American League, was 4-0 in six previous starts.

The victory enabled Oakland to move to within one game of AL West leader Minnesota.

Orioles 5, Royals 4

Billy Ripken singled Ken Gerhart into scoring position and Cal Ripken Jr., drove him in with the go-ahead run, leading Baltimore over Kansas City.

Mike Boddicker, 7-4, picked up the victory, while Tom Niedenfuer gained his third save by getting the final out. The loser was Charlie Leibrandt, 8-8.

With the game tied 3-3, Gerhart singled leading off the seventh. With one out, Billy Ripken singled and then Cal Jr., greeted reliever Steve Farr with a fielder's-choice grounder that forced his brother but scored Gerhart with the go-ahead run.

Ken Caminiti hits homer, triple, scores winning run

Rookie leads Astros past Phillies, 2-1

By The Associated Press

Houston's Ken Caminiti felt as high as the roof in the Astrodome after hitting a home run, a triple and scoring the winning run in his first major-league game.

Gerald Young, playing center field in the absence of injured Billy Hatcher, singled to right with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning to score Caminiti from third base, giving the Astros a 2-1 victory Thursday night over Philadelphia.

Caminiti, called up from Class AA Columbus of the Southern League on Wednesday, walked with one out in the ninth, went to second on a single by Craig Reynolds, and took third when reliever Mike Jackson intentionally walked pinch-hitter Jose Cruz to load the bases. Young then lined the first pitch from Jackson, 3-7, into right field to end the game.

Caminiti, a third baseman, also tripled in the fifth for his first major-league hit and hit a solo homer in the seventh to tie the score 1-1.

"When they called me I thought I was going to Tucson (AAA)," Caminiti said. "This might be the highest high I've had. I knew it could happen. I just didn't know it would be this fast."

The victory moved Houston to within 1 1/2 games of first-place Cincinnati in the National League West.

Elsewhere, New York blanked Cincinnati 9-0, Montreal shut out Atlanta 2-0, Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 7-0, Chicago beat San Francisco 4-1 and San Diego edged St. Louis 9-8 in 10 innings.

Caminiti started the game with a diving catch of Juan Samuel's grounder on the first play and added several other fielding gems before breaking up Kevin Gross' no-hitter with a triple for his first major-league hit to start the fifth inning.

After Caminiti tied the score 1-1 with his homer, Houston fans demanded an encore bow and Caminiti obligingly tipped his hat to the appreciative crowd.

"I'd never done that before either," Caminiti said.

Darwin, 6-6, matched Gross with four hitless innings to start the game.

"Ken saved the game for us defensively in the first two innings," Astros Manager Hal Lanier said. "It gave Darwin a chance to get going."

Darwin started the game in place of Nolan Ryan, who suffered a sprained ankle when he stepped in a hole on his ranch at nearby Alvin during the All-Star break.

Philadelphia Manager Lee Elia found no fault with Jackson: "I thought he had good stuff. He was facing a .190 hitter (Young) and we had a play to cut the run off at the plate."

But walking Caminiti was the start of Jackson's ninth inning downfall.

"I wasn't trying to be too fine, I just missed when I had to make a good pitch," Jackson said.

The Phillies walked 10 Houston batters in the game, seven by Gross.

"One thing always seems to hold us back," Elia said. "Tonight it was the walks. Caminiti may hurt you but you can't walk him in that situation."

Ryan, 4-10, who missed a start in the Astros' rotation Thursday night, said he hopes he won't miss another scheduled appearance on the mound.

"Instead of starting the rotation after the (All-Star) break, I'll probably end it," he said. "My foot feels a lot better today than it did yesterday."

Ryan's record of 143 strikeouts is the second best in the National League. He also has the fifth-best earned run average at 3.17.

"I was walking along the property when I stepped in a hole," Ryan said.

"I guess it goes right along with the kind of year I'm having."

Mets 9, Reds 0

Dwight Gooden pitched a seven-hitter for his 14th career shutout and Gary Carter drove in four runs as New York routed Cincinnati at Shea Stadium.

Gooden, 7-2, struck out two and walked one en route to the 38th complete game of his career and third this season.

The Reds, who scored six runs in three innings against Gooden on July 5 at Cincinnati, have lost four straight and seven of their last eight games.

New York sent nine men to the plate in the third inning, scoring four times, with Kevin McReynolds' bases-loaded misjudged double to center clearing the bases. Carter had a run-scoring single in the third and hit a three-run homer in the sixth, his 12th of the season.

Expos 2, Braves 0

Floyd Youmans pitched a three-hitter for his second consecutive shutout and Hubie Brooks drove in two runs with a home run and sacrifice fly as Montreal beat Atlanta for the Expos' fourth straight victory.

Youmans, 7-3, struck out five and walked five en route to his sixth straight winning decision. In his last game, Youmans pitched a one-hitter to beat Houston, 1-0.

Doyle Alexander, 4-6, retired the first 12 Montreal batters before Tim Wallach opened the bottom of the fifth with a triple. Brooks followed with a long fly to center, scoring Wallach.

Dodgers 7, Pirates 0

Fernando Valenzuela pitched a seven-hitter for his first shutout of the season and the first against Pittsburgh this year.

Valenzuela, 8-7, struck out eight, walked four and induced four double plays. It was the left-hander's 27th career shutout and his first since May 24, 1986. The complete game was his seventh of the year, tying him with the Pirates' Rick Reuschel for the NL lead.

Mike Marshall walked leading off the Dodgers' second against Bob Kipper, 5-7, and Mickey Hatcher followed with his fifth homer of the season.

Cubs 4, Giants 1

Jamie Moyer pitched four-hit ball for 6 2-3 innings and Andre Dawson hit a two-run double as Chicago beat

San Francisco at Candlestick Park.

All the hits off Moyer, 9-6, were singles. The left-hander, who walked two and struck out four, was relieved by Scott Sanderson in the seventh after Chris Speier ended the shutout bid with a run-scoring, pinch-hit single. Sanderson finished the game for his second save.

Padres 9, Cardinals 8

Benito Santiago homered off reliever Todd Worrell with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning to lift San Diego over St. Louis.

Worrell, 4-4, entered the game in the 10th and struck out Chris Brown leading off. But Santiago ended the game with his eighth home run of the season, a drive over the right-field wall.

Lance McCullers, 5-6, pitched one inning for the victory.

Bo Jackson gets both cheers, boos

By DOUG TUCKER

AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Maybe Bo Jackson's dream of turning an outfielder into a running back is not so far-fetched at all. With one eye-popping burst of athletic prowess, he turned boos into cheers.

"Fans are fickle," the 1985 Heisman Trophy winner said Thursday night. "But I'm not out there to listen to criticism or to listen to boos. I'm out there to play ball. All that stuff goes in one ear and out the other."

The Kansas City Royals were shocked last week during a road trip to Toronto to learn that Jackson has agreed to play running back for the Los Angeles Raiders, the arch-rivals of the NFL's Kansas City Chiefs, during the baseball off-season.

Jackson, insisting he plans only to dabble in football "as a hobby," was loudly booed when he made his first plate appearance against Baltimore. It was Kansas City's first home game since the football revelation.

Off and on in the early innings, fans threw tiny footballs onto the field, many bearing the inscription "It's a hobby."

But in the fifth, the mood of the crowd took a drastic turn. Jackson made a diving, tumbling catch of a line drive by Cal Ripken, Jr. — one of the most spectacular defensive plays Royals Stadium has seen this year — for the first out. He then made the third out of the inning by racing to the wall to snare a drive by Ray Knight.

As he ran off the field, most of the capacity crowd seemed to stand and cheer. Suddenly, one of the toy footballs came flying out of the stands and Jackson made a bare-handed catch and flung it to the ground. The next time he came to bat, cheering and applause were clearly heard above the boos.

"I went at it hard," Jackson said of his catch. "There's nothing fantastic or great about it. If you hustle, you make things happen."

The quick, powerful 24-year-old insisted he was not hurt by the fans' reaction.

"I've been getting criticized since the first day I came here," he said. "It's not the first time. Why should it bother me? You have those fans who stick with you through thick and thin and fans who stick with you only when you're doing good. I am grateful for those fans who are with me."

Jackson was an instant hit with Royals fans this year after unexpectedly making the major league roster despite his obvious lack of baseball experience. In a game last September, he hit what is believed to be the longest home run ever struck in Royals Stadium. Then in a game this April he drove in seven runs with a grand slam and a three-run homer.

Jackson rushed for more than 1,700 yards for Auburn in 1985, the year the Royals won the World Series, and was the NFL's overall No. 1 draft pick in 1986. But he rejected an estimated $7 million offer from Tampa Bay to sign with the Royals, who selected him in the fourth round of baseball's 1986 June draft.

But, after repeatedly assuring everyone that he was through with football and even refusing to answer reporters' questions on the sport, Jackson's announcement came as quite a shock.

Doubly disturbing to Kansas Cityans is the fact he's signing with the Raiders. Since the early days of the AFL, the Raiders have been arch-rivals of the Chiefs, who share the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex with the Royals. In recent lean years, when the Chiefs were drawing about 30,000 to most home games, every date against the Raiders was a virtual sellout.

The Raiders are scheduled to play the Chiefs in Kansas City on Dec. 13.

The Price of Adventure

Comparing some outdoor sports

Sport	Cost of Instruction	Cost of Participation
Flying	$2,400	$40/hour
Skydiving	$700-$2,100	$33/jump
Skiing	$250-$350	$100/day
Sailing	$200-$300	$100/day
Scuba diving	$150-$500	$30-$50/day

Enjoying the great outdoors carries a price tag. The cost of instruction and participation in adventure sports varies. But the No. 1 bargain is likely the training required to play it safe.

Staubach says he will help lure Robinson to Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys Quarterback Roger Staubach says he will be glad to help lure Navy center David Robinson to San Antonio.

The San Antonio Spurs selected Robinson in the NBA collegiate draft last month, but Robinson must finish a two-year stint in the Navy.

If he does not sign with the Spurs he could be eligible for another draft.

Robinson has said he is taking his time to decide whether or not to sign with the Spurs.

Staubach, a 1964 Naval Academy graduate who also spent time on active duty before joining the Cowboys, said he had talked to Robinson last season.

"It would be an easy sell for me to tell him to come to Texas and San Antonio," Staubach told the San Antonio Express-News.

"I am a big basketball fan and my first choice would have been for Robinson to be a (Dallas) Maverick, but, after that, the next best thing would have been for him to get to San Antonio or Houston," said Staubach, now a Dallas businessman.

Staubach said, however, Spurs officials have not asked for his help yet.

John Dalton, chief executive officer of the Seguin Savings Association, said he had spoken to Spurs officials about seeking Staubach's help.

"They said, 'Sure,'" said Dalton, a Spurs fan and graduate of the Naval Academy.

GENERAL

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Country singer Willie Nelson will perform at a concert to benefit Texas Tech University's athletic scholarship fund, officials have announced.

The Sept. 8 concert is being sponsored by the Texas Tech Athletic Department.

"We have tickets priced under normal concert costs so more people will have an opportunity to enjoy one of our country's most popular entertainers," Athletic Director T. Jones said Thursday. Tickets are $10 and $12.

TRACK AND FIELD

PARIS (AP) — Edwin Moses fell on a rain-slickened track and lost a 400-meter hurdles for the second time in six weeks, and Said Aouita of Morocco set a world record in the 2,000-meter run at the Paris International track and field meet.

Moses, who had a 122-race winning streak snapped last month in Madrid, appeared to have a solid lead, but hesitated as he approached the seventh hurdle. He hit the barrier soundly, then lay on the ground while Amadou Dia Ba of Senegal won the race in 48.89 seconds.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Try pre-chilling ice-cream mixes

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — Is it necessary to chill ice-cream mixes before freezing them? — DONNA

DEAR DONNA — If you're using a simple mix of already cold milk or cream, sugar and perhaps a touch of flavoring, it is not really necessary to chill it before starting the freezing process. But any mixture that is cooked should be thoroughly chilled before freezing. This will shorten the freezing time required, and result in a better-frozen product.

Mixtures that are too warm may not freeze at all without the addition of extra ice and salt during the freezing process (if you're using that type of freezer). The freezer will simply function more efficiently with a chilled mixture. Also, chilling the mixture, even those simple mixes made of only already cold ingredients, gives the flavors a chance to blend so the ice cream will taste better right out of the freezer. In general, I recommend chilling all mixtures thoroughly before freezing them.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Homemade Ice Cream," which has some luscious recipes for a variety of flavors and types of ice cream that anyone can make at home. Some recipes require a special ice-cream freezer (although any type can be used), while other recipes can be made in the freezer compartment of your refrigerator. There's even a low-cal, low-fat "ice cream" made out of bananas that everyone can and will enjoy, regardless of most dietary restrictions. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I've had good luck freezing whole potatoes. I put one cup oil in a gallon of water and blanch peeled or scraped potatoes three to four minutes in this mixture, depending on size. I drain and cool on paper towels, then put them on cookie sheets and freeze just until solidly frozen. I then package in gallon zip-style freezer bags and store in the freezer. The potatoes don't stick together. — N.S.

DEAR READERS — Several weeks ago, I printed a question about goat's milk. Following is a letter containing some interesting information for those who drink goat's milk or who are interested in raising dairy goats. I hope all you city folk will be patient while we devote a little more space to a subject that is, perhaps, of greater interest to readers in our more rural areas. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I was glad to read your column and see interest in goat's milk. I'm sorry your reader got hold of some off-flavored milk. I've been raising French Alpine goats for six years and have had success with quickly cooled fresh milk, but after a day or so, it began to change flavor. I recently learned of an enzyme in goat's milk called capruic acid which will do this. Pasteurizing the milk will destroy this enzyme.

To pasteurize, I simply strain the fresh milk into canning jars and heat in a hot-water bath using a floating pasteurizing thermometer. When the milk reaches 165 degrees throughout, the jars are removed and quickly cooled. The milk will keep for a week and stay full-flavored. They may also be frozen for future use or made into cheese. If budget permits, a home pasteurizer may be purchased for about $125.

In addition to the suggestions in your column, other sources of poor tasting fresh goat's milk may come from the doe's diet or a worm-infested goat. If this is the case, a change in diet or proper worming will remedy this.

For more information and a free catalog, write to Caprine Supply, P.O. Box Y, 125 East Second St., DeSoto, KS 66018. They have been a great warehouse of information. — KAREN R.

Woodturner uses lathe to make logs

KRUM, Texas (AP) — It takes the soul of an artist, the scouting skills of a backwoods bargain hunter and sometimes the back muscles of a pioneer for Clay Foster to create his works.

The Denton County man is a woodturner, not to be confused with a wood carver.

"Carving is taking a block of wood, a chisel and mallet and removing wood with the chisel and mallet," Foster says. "Turning is putting the wood on a lathe and the lathe turns the wood and you hold the cutting tool up to it."

Foster, a founding charter member of the American Association of Woodturners, is one of a handful of artists across the country who use the traditional craft to create non-traditional pieces.

Foster's works are so unusual he says he has no trouble selling them at the few shows he attends each year and through two Dallas galleries — The Front Room and the New Art Gallery in the LTV Center — that handle his work.

Later this week, July 16-18, he will show his work in "The Art of Craft" show at the Denver Art Museum.

The recognition is nice, he says, but it is the work itself that is important to him.

The process begins with scouting out the logs that are his raw material. Any site with wood is a likely place for Foster to appear, pickup ready for hauling away unwanted logs.

"I keep my eyes open all the time for wood," he says. "I think I'm preserving trees that would otherwise have been hauled away to the dump, or burned up in somebody's fireplace."

Back at his rural workshop, he sometimes lets the logs sit outdoors to soak up moisture that will further bacteria growth and mineral deposits, giving the wood rich colors and designs.

Then, he cuts the log through the center, the pith.

"You have to cut through the pith or the log will get real bad cracks," he says. "Then, I cut the log into rounds, but I leave the bark on for the contrast in textures. I want people who walk up to any of my works to be able to tell it came from a tree. They might not be able to tell you what it is, but they can tell it came from a tree."

The next step takes a strong back, lifting the cut log onto the lathe. Foster then cuts the outside shape he wants and then turns the inside to match.

Since no manufactured lathe is large enough to turn the pieces Foster makes — up to 40 inches — he has had to make his own.

"It's kinda a Rube Golberg lathe," he said. "It's gone through a lot of permutations. This one is made out of plywood, pipe and old tractor parts. I also make my own tools now. I started with wood-carving tools, but realized that doing unusual work needed special tools so I make them or adapt them to my own use."

After the wood is shaped, he seals it to slow the drying process and prevent cracks.

About once a month, Foster weighs the piece. When it stops losing weight, he knows the wood is dry and ready for the next step, reworking it on the lathe to counter the warping that occurred as the piece dried. Then he sands it and puts on a natural-looking finish with just a little sheen.

"I like the process. The lathe is the only tool you can put a piece of wood on and before you take it off have a finished product," he said.

The 33-year-old Austin native says he did not set out to become a woodturner. He did, however, intend to work with wood.

Foster's father gave him his first handsaw at the age of 5. His first choice of vocations was to become a furniture designer and maker. He took art and industrial art courses at North Texas State University.

"I started doing some woodturning and found it more satisfying," he says. "In furniture design, the creative part is designing and the creative part is over when you start making it. Woodturning is creative all the while you're doing it."

"One thing I like about woodturning rather than furniture making is you start with the tree itself," he said. "You don't know what's in that tree until you cut it open. It's like Christmas. As I turn the wood, or look at trees in the forest, I think of all the things they've been through. You'd have some perspective on life after a 100 years."

Country's moral fiber, TV evangelism sagging

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States faces a "moral and ethical crisis of the first dimension," says pollster George Gallup Jr., and it demands a resurgence of faith. By the indications, TV evangelists aren't improving the situation.

Instead, a survey finds confidence in them has plunged sharply.

Most Americans consider the electronic preachers dishonest, insincere, without any special relationship to God, and especially unworthy with money.

Among the big-name figures, only Billy Graham still holds predominant esteem.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Ben Armstrong, executive director of the National Religious Broadcasters, said religious broadcasting has suffered its "worst public disaster" from the sex scandal involving former PTL star Jim Bakker.

"The credibility crisis for religious broadcasting is real and wishful thinking will not make it simply go away," Armstrong editorializes in the organization's journal.

"The general public is now demanding greater accountability for their donations," he says, adding that his organization is developing new standards for implementation Aug. 1. "We must set our own house in order."

Gallup, whose surveys keeps extensive tab on the nation's spiritual health, told a recent Minnesota Prayer Breakfast of 1,100 people in St. Paul that a "deep spiritual malaise" was abroad in the land.

He cited widespread cheating on taxes, extramarital affairs of "epidemic proportions," fraudulent telephone charges, pilferage costing department stores $4 billion a year and defaulting on education loans by many students.

Gallup, an Episcopal layman, said people need to learn how to bring biblical principles into their lives, to pray and to speak out about the values of faith to others.

He said the most "hopeful trend in America today" is the growth of interest in Bible study and prayer fellowship groups. "People are discovering that faith grows best in the presence of faith," he said.

In some other developments, such as increased interest of college students in religion courses, he also saw signs of "renewed search for depth in our spiritual lives arising out of the frustration with the material world."

A report of the recent survey on TV evangelists appeared in "Emerging Trends," a newsletter published by the Gallup organization's Religion Research Center in Princeton, N. J.

Comparing 1987 results with a similar survey conducted in 1980, the new poll showed a steep decline in trust of leading TV evangelists (except for Graham) and of TV preachers generally.

Sixty-three percent consider them "not trustworthy with money," compared to 36 percent in 1980; 53 percent consider them dishonest, compared with 26 percent before.

Fifty-six percent think they have "no special relationship with God," compared to 33 percent before; 51 percent consider them insincere, compared with 25 percent before.

How vitamins are measured

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In writing about vitamins and minerals, you express some in milligrams and others in units. I understand milligrams, but what is a unit?

DEAR READER — Traditionally, the unit of measurement of vitamins A, D and E has been the international unit (IU). Other vitamins and minerals are measured in grams, milligrams or micrograms. The international unit is a reflection of activity, not quantity; this has been found to be a useful shorthand when comparing the active components of vitamins. For example, retinoic acid and beta carotene, like 30 other compounds, can be turned into vitamin A. Technically, vitamin A is retinol; 1 microgram of retinol is biologically equivalent to 6 micrograms of beta carotene. To complicate matters further, 3.33 IUs of retinol is equal to 10 IUs of beta carotene.

Take my word for it; you and I will be less confused if we simply follow tradition on this one. Nutrition handbooks and food packages usually list vitamins A, D and E in international units.

DEAR DR. GOTT — We recently switched health insurance companies. When doing strep-throat cultures, our old company sent us to the hospital, which kept the culture for 48 hours. Our new company sends us to a clinic, where the culture is kept only 24 hours. Is this adequate?

DEAR READER — Probably. Strep cultures used to be kept for 48 hours, and many hospitals still use this tried-and-true system. However, newer and quicker strep cultures can be read at 24 hours. I think that your insurance company is just keeping up with new advances in the field of bacteriology.

DEAR DR. GOTT — When medication and diet failed to relieve the severe pain from Crohn's disease, I had major surgery. My doctor told me I would need a vitamin B-12 injection every month for the rest of my life. Why?

DEAR READER — Crohn's disease is an inflammatory bowel disease that usually affects the lower small intestine (ileum). If the inflammation is severe and does not respond to medication, part of the inflamed bowel may have to be surgically removed. Unfortunately, this is rarely curative because other adjacent portions of intestine tend to become inflamed and the process repeats itself.

Vitamin B-12, when combined with a compound (intrinsic factor) secreted by the stomach lining, is absorbed into the body through the wall of the ileum. In your case, the ileum probably was removed. Therefore, you are lacking the specific intestinal area for B-12 absorption. No matter how much of the vitamin you take by mouth, it will slide through the intestine and be excreted; over time, you will become B-12 deficient. This will cause you to become anemic and weak. The condition is identical to pernicious anemia — anemia caused by a lack of intrinsic factor in the stomach.

As your doctor has properly suggested, your potential B-12 deficiency can be corrected by vitamin shots.

Ann Landers Scam revealed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I want to unload a year's worth of guilt by exposing a racket I cleaned up on.

In 1983 I applied for a job in a telephone sales office. I worked from 6 in the morning until 11 at night, five days a week. The first week I made $450. After two months I made $600 a week. I traveled from New York to Nevada selling photocopying supplies to mom-and-pop stores.

In early 1986 I met a man who helped open my eyes. I quit the racket and went to work in a factory for $180 a week. What a come-down for a hot-shot who once took home $740!

Here's Tip No. 1: If you receive a call from someone asking about your Xerox or Savin, Canon, etc., don't assume they work for that company just because they know the model number.

The most common pitch is: "There has been a price change in toner and developer and our computer says you were overlooked when we notified our choice customers, so I set aside two boxes of each at the old price. Will that cover you for awhile?" (A box of toner is usually two bottles of generic brand. It should sell for $59. I got $250 a box.) Go to a retailer in your neighborhood and check the price.

You'll be shocked.

Another pitch: "Our warehouse is overstocked. The buyer before you asked me to hold a box. You're lucky. This price is below wholesale."

Ask questions, such as what's the name of your company? The address? Phone number?

This letter is long, but it's important, Ann. I used to be one of the best rip-off artists in the country and I know the ropes.

This same scam works for telex machines, computers (ribbons, etc.) and how sweet it is. Sign me—No Name or City, Just Glad To Be Myself Again

DEAR YOURSELF: It's not every day a reformed crook writes in to confess past sins and to share the secrets of the scam. You undoubtedly opened a good many eyes today.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm enclosing a clipping from the Spokane paper and want to know what you think of it. In my opinion, that sheriff in New Mexico deserves a medal for his efforts to clean up Catron County by arresting unmarried cohabiting couples. He said, "Morality in this country is sinking fast. Some children don't even know who their daddies are."

A 1983 statute replaced an 1855 law against cohabitation by people who are not married. The law is referred to as the "go and sin no more" statute because the penalty for the first offense is a warning from a judge stating that the couple can get married or stop living together. The penalty for subsequent offenses is up to six months in jail, a fine of up to $5,000 or both.

The sheriff did not divulge how he goes about tracking down unmarried cohabitators, but I think it's a terrific idea. Will you get behind it?—V.M. in Wash.

DEAR V.M.: No way. I can see all kinds of problems here, starting with invasion of privacy, and running smack into the burden of jailing millions of unmarried couples. I think that sheriff needs a different hobby.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What is the best way to stop hiccups? Everyone has his or her own personal method. What's yours?—Halifax, Nova Scotia

DEAR HAL: I take a glass of water and sip it very slowly, taking a deep breath after each sip. It has never failed to work for me.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.
