Poindexter said efforts were legal

North was praised for secret-keeping

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Adviser John Poindexter said today he worked "all along" to keep information from Congress about the secret Contra supply program, to the point of giving Lt. Col. Oliver North a written "well done" after he misled lawmakers.

Testifying for the second straight day at the nationally televised hearings, Poindexter said he believed efforts by the National Security Council staff to assist the Contras during a congressional ban were legal because the agency was not covered by the legislation.

He insisted he made sure that officials did "everything that we could to comply with the letter and the spirit of the Boland Amendment," as the legislation is known.

"The only thing I admit to is withholding information from the Congress," Poindexter said in a morning session in which his attorney, Richard Beckler, frequently complained about questions from Senate chief counsel Arthur Liman.

Liman asked Poindexter several times whether he recalled ever telling President Reagan that the NSC staff was assisting the Contras. "I do not recall a specific conversation in that regard," the admiral replied. "He knew that the Contras were being supported. We didn't get into the details of who was doing what."

Poindexter sat quietly at the witness table while Beckler stated his case. At one point, the 50-year-old admiral lit his pipe and listened to a lengthy exchange between his lawyer and members of the committee.

Poindexter answered questions under a limited grant of immunity that bars his words from being used against him in court.

Beckler, who disclosed on Wednesday that Poindexter is the target of a criminal investigation, complained that "the long arm of the independent counsel has reached down into the core of this committee."

That brought a soft-spoken, but firm, rebuttal from Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House committee, who said, "That is totally and absolutely false ... most disturbing and I reject it categorically."

The investigating committees have conferred frequently with independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh since beginning their respective probes. But Hamilton said it has done no more consulting than is required by statutes covering their relationship.

Walsh, in fact, has complained that he hasn't gotten sufficient cooperation from the select committees.

Liman's questioning related to congressional attempts to learn the details of the secret supply operation in 1985, while Poindexter was deputy national security adviser, and during the summer of last year, while he was the No. 1 man.

"I intended to withhold information from Chairman Hamilton" last year, Poindexter said.

For all the legal sparring initiated by Beckler, Poindexter's testimony was far less explosive than on Wednesday, when the admiral testified that he never told President Reagan that Iranian arms sale proceeds had been diverted to the Contras.

Committee members say Poindexter's testimony raises other questions, however.

"It raises a more serious fundamental problem," said House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash. "We simply cannot afford to have presidents shielded from critical and controversial policies by their subordinates. ... Where is the accountability?"

In other testimony, Poindexter: -Said that four days before the November news conference he ripped up a year-old presidential decision paper that described an arms-for-hostage trade. He said he did it to save Reagan "significant political embarrassment."

-Passed word of an investigation by Attorney General Edwin Meese III to his aide, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, who then began shredding documents.

-Recounted a meeting in the White House family quarters on Dec. 7, 1987, between Reagan and top advisers at which the president listened to debate on swapping arms to Iran in return for hostages, and conclud-

DOE rep to meet with civic clubs for participation

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

The Department of Energy's Susan Wiltshire will be in Hereford next week to meet with civic organizations as part of plan to develop more public participation in area DOE activities, according to Bob Wunderlich, deputy manager of DOE's salt repository project. Wunderlich announced Wiltshire's visit and gave an update on the status of employee numbers and procurements for the area during a Wednesday morning briefing.

"Generally we find the trend is still people moving to Hereford in greater numbers than we had anticipated," Wunderlich stated. Hereford now houses 42 project employees, 18 are transfers to the area, for a total of 38 percent of project personnel in residence. Amarillo is the home of 31 percent of the project personnel with 34 in residence, including 22 transfers.

Canyon houses 12 project families. Hereford and Canyon each show a gain of 5 over last week's figures with Amarillo showing a gain of one.

The 18 families transferring to Hereford have 15 school age children. Two are high school age, four will attend junior high, nine will attend elementary school with one in kindergarten, two in first, four in third and two in grades fourth through sixth.

Of 373 project staff offices in Hereford, Wunderlich estimates 261, or 70 percent, will be transferees. Revised transfer estimates show 16 families moving to the area in the remainder of July, 43 in August, 45 in September, 55 in October and 35 in November.

Procurements during the week of July 6-10 totaled $95,000 bringing total expenditures since February of this year to $1.6 million. Thirty-six percent, $580,000, has been committed in Hereford. Amarillo procurement commitments total $810,000 or 50 percent.

Hereford is expected to receive the most procurement dollars with next week's planned announcement of contracts for permanent office space for Battelle employees. In terms of

Power issue could prompt 2nd session

AUSTIN (AP) - The issue of increased gubernatorial power over state spending could lead to another special legislative session, Gov. Bill Clements says.

The governor also has further expanded the agenda for the current special session, which ends Tuesday, including legislation that would continue an appointed State Board of Education.

The 13 new items listed Wednesday bring the total number of subjects Clements has added to 32 in the past two days, but the governor said he was confident lawmakers could act on taxes, the state budget and other subjects before the deadline.

"I think they can act with the utmost speed when they have the momentum and want to do it. You'd be surprised how quick they can act when they have it on their minds to do it," Clements said.

He said the Legislature must approve so-called "budget execution authority," a procedure that would allow the governor, or a panel of officials including the governor, to modify state spending during a fiscal crisis between legislative sessions.

"I will say to you with no equivocation whatsoever, if budget execution is not passed, we will be back in another special session, soon," said Clements, who has called two special sessions since the Legislature's regular session ended June 1. "We'll have a next called session. We will."

Voters in 1985 approved a constitutional amendment to give such spending power to a governor. But the Legislature has refused since then to pass a law allowing it.

Reggie Bashur, the governor's press secretary, said Clements didn't favor a specific plan but wants some form of budget execution.

Excuses don't always work with this juvenile officer

By JERI SHIRE
Managing Editor

Lupe Chavez hears them quite often. But excuses about being poor, Hispanic, or migrant don't get very far with him.

"Usually they are very surprised when I come back and tell them I've been in that place," says Chavez, county juvenile peace officer. "In fact, it kind of opens doors to relate and better understand."

As a third-generation migrant worker from Miles, Texas, his similar background to many of the youth who must report to his office usually helps him gain the respect and trust of child and parent.

Chavez amuses himself recalling that he dropped out of school in tenth grade "with the idea that I was going to go out into the world and make all kinds of money."

It took less than a year for him to realize he needed to better himself, so at 17 he joined the National Guard for six months of active duty. He came home but didn't like the reserves and joined the Navy to serve on the U.S.S. Okanogan and Iwo Jima and with the Sea Bees in Vietnam.

Two years and six months later when he was discharged he went to his parents' who had moved to Plainview. There, at first sight he fell in love with his wife-to-be, Janie, who was a student in business school with his sister.

After time at a feedyard and as a salesman at C. R. Anthony's, he took his GED earned in the military and tried for his childhood dream job -- a policeman. While he was simply proud to be on the force, he also was Plainview's first Hispanic officer. Following a stint of selling insurance, he went to Tulia to become its first Hispanic officer. There he moved up to second in command.

In 1972, he set a goal to get his college degree and to do it in four years. Wayland Baptist University was one of the first colleges to get a law enforcement curriculum, so Chavez commuted there for a full-time class load in addition to working full time.

In four years, he got that degree. He moved to Hereford in April 1983 to take the juvenile officer job. There he began to see how much his background could be an asset to him.

With authority of experience he can advise kids on his past and encourage them not to give up, stay in school, get a degree, set goals and seek them. He doesn't forget to tell them that it won't be easy, either. Some have come back to tell him he was right.

He also lets the parents know that they are responsible for how their children are raised. Chavez credits his father's teaching of morals and values, his mother's love and his grandmother's devout Catholicism to part of his success. It must have worked. Of Chavez' 12 natural and adopted siblings, all who are old enough have finished high school or equivalent and are working or raising families.

"A thing my father used to say was 'Never forget where you came from, never forget who you are and stand up for what is right,'" Chavez said.

He tries to apply that by being active in the community -- Knights of Columbus, Lions Club, American Red Cross, Chemical People Task Force.

"If I'm going to live and raise my family in a community, I'm going to become involved," he explains.

Top state leaders agree on budget none of them like

AUSTIN (AP) - After months of political haggling and number crunching, the top three state leaders have agreed on a budget that none of them like.

"I think it speaks something for the agreement in that none of us are pleased and happy and satisfied with where we are. But we have come to an agreement," Gov. Bill Clements said Wednesday after meeting with Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The three leaders agreed on a $38.3 billion 1988-89 spending plan that they said should win legislative approval.

Unmentioned during Wednesday's 90-minute private session was taxes, a battle that now looms as a major obstacle toward completing the budget process before the current special session ends Tuesday.

"Revenues, in the general sense of all revenues, will match (spending) and be certified in due course," said Clements, who has been mum on what kind of tax plan he would favor.

Until recent weeks, Clements had been vowing to veto any tax hike above the continuation of the temporary motor fuels and sales tax rates now in effect.

The House's $5.2 billion tax bill would increase the state sales tax from the current 54 percent to 6 percent, and expands it to cover insurance premiums. The House also voted to keep the motor fuels tax at 15 cents per gallon instead of letting it revert to 10 cents on Sept. 1.

The Senate, which has not yet acted on the fuels tax, Tuesday approved $5.2 billion in tax and fee increases.

"We haven't even discussed revenues. It was never mentioned, so let's don't get into that," Clements said after the Wednesday meeting.

Hobby said, "I'm sure it will be a big fight, but I trust agreement can be reached," on taxes.

Lewis said, "That might give us more problems than the appropriations bill."

"I'm not too excited about the Senate tax bill," he said, referring to Senate-approved levies he believes could scare businesses away from Texas.

Clements said the overall budget would be an increase of about 4 percent over 1987 spending, which he noted is "not as much as some people would like."

"Obviously, I don't think anyone's completely happy with it," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, lead Senate budget negotiator. "You do the best you can."

His House counterpart, Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, also voiced some displeasure over the burden shifted to local school districts.

"The local taxpayers are going to be picking up more of the tab," Rudd said.

Local property taxes could be forced up by a provision that increases school districts' share of their costs.

Hobby, who fought for higher education spending increases, said the plan calls for about $500 million more for state colleges.

"It does the best that can be done under the present circumstances," he said, expressing the overall sentiment about the plan.

Money to fund additional merit pay raises for outstanding school teachers would be delayed under the plan.

Clements and Hobby said timing was the key to the end of the budget bill battle.

"It got to be July 15," Hobby said.

Police arrest 3

Two females and a male were arrested on unrelated charges on Wednesday, according to Hereford Police Department officers. A 21-year-old female was arrested for second offense of no liability insurance and no seat belt. A second woman, 24, was arrested on a warrant for interfering with the arrest of another person and a 22-year-old male was arrested at Hereford Community Center for public intoxication.

Officers are investigating a report from a man that while he was sitting in his home watching TV with friends, two suspects burst in and threatened them. The suspects claimed they had guns in their pockets and made threats in relation to a previous fight then left the home.

A man on Ave. B reported that while he was not at home a juvenile female came to his house. The juvenile tore a screen off a window and entered the home then began a fight with the man's 11-year-old daughter. The case was referred to juvenile authorities.

A report of domestic violence at Blue Water Gardens revealed that a wife had been assaulted but she did not want to file charges against her husband. In another domestic violence call, officers investigated a family fight in which assault was not a factor, no charges were filed in the incident.

Officers stood by to keep the peace at the emergency room of Deaf Smith General Hospital while hospital staff treated an unruly patient.

Other offenses reported include: theft of a $100 bike from the 500 block of Ave. J, a female juvenile cussing over the phone, theft of a U.S. flag from the front of a home on Northwest Drive, theft of hubcaps from a vehicle, a request that a man pay for damages incurred in an accident for which no report was filed and a complaint from a store that a woman had lied about having permission to charge merchandise. Charges were filed against the woman who has an outstanding bill.

Eighteen citations were issued and one fire call was received.

Though at first glance this may appear to be a photograph it is actually a photograph-of-a-photograph. The full color original hangs in the third floor jury room of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse and is 50-years-old this month. The picture shows former Vice President John Nance Garner at ease reading his newspaper and smoking a cigar. The employment numbers, Battelle is the largest of the Hereford based contractors.

Wunderlich stated that five possible options for office space for Battelle have now been narrowed to three. The larger of the three buildings will be announced next week and will provide 43,000 square feet of office space. Two other bids are being considered for an additional 21,000 square feet of office space.

Specifications for office furniture and telephone systems for the offices will be available soon for vendors wishing to bid for the procurement contracts, according to Wunderlich.

A training session scheduled for tonight will provide local businesses with information about bidding for project contracts. The workshop is scheduled from 7-9 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

In other business Wunderlich discussed:

-A presentation given to the Waste Deposit Impact Committee's Geotechnical Issues Council last week.

-Two visitors from a similar project in Germany who are scheduled to be in Hereford on July 20.

-An Institutional Socio-economic Coordinating Group meeting scheduled in Seattle, Wash., the week of July 20-24. Wunderlich noted WDIC's Phil Niedzielski-Eichner and Steve Frishman with the state office will be attending the meeting.

-A Corps of Engineers planning report, relating to land acquisition for the site characterization process being conducted north of Hereford, which was due Wednesday will be delayed until sometime next week. The supervisor, who must approve the report before it is passed on to the Salt Characterization Project office, has been unable to review the report due to a family medical emergency.

ed, "I don't feel we can leave any stone unturned in trying to get the hostages back." Administration officials were skeptical of an Israeli initiative to sell weapons to Iran with U.S. acquiescence, he said, but Reagan was unwilling to give up.

Identified Meese as the official who came up with the idea that the United States sell weapons directly to Iran through the CIA, the plan that spawned the involvement of retired Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord as a deniable commercial channel for the transactions. Meese made the suggestion to avoid reporting the transactions to Congress, Poindexter testified.

Said he believed he and North were the only two government officials who knew of the diversion, but denied ever seeing the five memos detailing the plans which North swore he sent "up the line" to the national security adviser. The first time he saw such a memo was when the affair became public, Poindexter said.

Said he "never believed and I don't believe today" that the Boland Amendment, a congressional ban on aid to the Contras during the 1984-1986 period, applied to the National Security Council staff "or the president's personal staff." That was the same position North took in his testimony. However, Poindexter's predecessor, Robert McFarlane, testified that it was clear to him that Congress intended the NSC staff to

Procurement workshop set tonight

More than 70 business people and their employees have signed up to attend the contracting workshop being presented this evening by Department of Energy personnel and contractors involved in the Salt Repository Project being conducted in Deaf Smith County. The two-hour workshop will begin at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center and is free of charge.

DOE's Bob Wunderlich, deputy manager for the local project designed to perform site characterization studies for a potential nuclear waste repository, says the workshop is being offered in response to requests from local businesses and the Waste Deposit Impact Committee. Purpose of the program is to provide local suppliers and contractors with an understanding of competitive bidding under the DOE's Salt Repository Project.

Reservations may be made by calling DOE's Hereford Information Office at 364-0101.

Philippine government files suit against Marcos family

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - The Philippine government today filed suit against Ferdinand Marcos and his family for recovery of $10 billion they allegedly stole during the deposed president's 20-year rule.

Ramon Diaz, chairman of a commission tracking down Marcos' alleged hidden wealth, said government lawyers were also preparing criminal charges against Marcos. But Diaz said the attorneys were currently tied up with more civil suits against some 40 individuals who allegedly connived with Marcos.

The Presidential Commission on Good Government, which Diaz heads, filed the civil suit before a special anti-graft court.

Diaz, at a news conference, said the $10 billion is "a very conservative estimate" of the amount of money Marcos, his wife Imelda, their three children and two sons-in-law acquired illegally.

The suit accuses the Marcoses of "breach of public trust" and "abuse of right and power" in their "plunder of the nation's wealth." It says they committed "theft of public funds... Extortion, bribery, embezzlement and other acts of corruption."

Diaz said his commission intends to begin filing criminal charges against the Marcoses and their associates next week despite problems posed by President Corazon Aquino's refusal to allow Marcos to return for security reasons.

Marcos has been living in Hawaii since his ouster in a civilian-military uprising in February 1986.

In addition to requiring the Marcoses to return the $10 billion with unspecified interest, the lawsuit seeks $12.5 million as reimbursement of expenses in tracking down the allegedly ill-gotten wealth, $10 million in actual damages and unspecified amounts in other damages and attorneys' fees.

"As a result of the defendants' unlawful, malicious, immoral and wanton acts... The Filipino people painfully endured and suffered moral damages for more than 20 long years, anguish, fright, sleepless nights, serious anxiety, wounded feelings and moral shock, as well as besmirched reputation and social humiliation before the international community," the suit claimed.

The suit is the second against the Marcoses since the government filed a $500 million civil suit against them last December for transfer of titles on four New York buildings allegedly owned by the Marcos family.

In 1985, about 905,000 Hispanic families were maintained by women. More than half of these families had incomes in 1984 which placed them below the U.S. poverty level, compared with 35 percent of all families maintained by women, according to "Women of Hispanic Origin in the United States Labor Force," a publication of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Ann Landers Is this progress?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What in the name of common sense is happening? Men reek of cologne, wear gold chains and puffed-up hair, blow-dried and stiff with spray.

Women keep insisting that they want to do their own thing, yet they buy whatever is "in" for fear someone might think they are wearing last year's dress.

Add to the picture chalk-white stockings, pointed-toe shoes that cripple, wrinkled fabrics, oversized shoulders that make us look like linebackers for the Chicago Bears.

The miniskirt has once again trapped the mindless female into thinking she looks sexy when in reality it's a repeat of a sick joke designed by men who hate women. (The only females in the last 40 years who looked good in a miniskirt were Betty Grable and Marilyn Monroe.)

One no longer sees well-dressed women in airports. Yesterday I saw two blue-haired ladies, both with huge rear-ends, wearing tight-fitting jeans. They looked like a couple of American buffalo.

In the middle of the day TV features passionate love scenes. I'm not talking cable. I mean major networks. The language in the movies and the theater would curl your hair.

Is this progress? Am I nuts to think it's disgraceful? I feel like a voice crying in the wilderness.—Vermont Lament

DEAR VERMONT: You're not nuts and you're not crying in the wilderness. I hear you.

I'd like to add to your list women's bathing suits cut darned near to the throat, and hair that looks like the victim got a hold of a live wire.

As for language, you need not go to the movies or the theater to get an earful. Just turn on the radio and get a rock station. Or walk down the street and listen to a casual conversation between members of the under-30 set. The "S" word and the "F" word come as natural as breathing.

Where will it end? Don't ask me. I just work here.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have not done anything in the last two years that would make me a candidate for AIDS, but I was pretty wild five or six years ago, and like everyone else, I have tinges of anxiety.

As much as I have read about this illness I am unclear as to the symptoms. Can you run them by me? Also, where can a person go to be tested? Thanks for your help.—Fort Worth

DEAR F.W.: The symptoms of AIDS are:

A persistent cough even though you have no cold.

Flu-like symptoms that hang on.

Unexplained fatigue and weight loss.

Unrelenting diarrhea for no apparent reason.

Night sweats.

Purple spots on the skin.

Anyone who wishes to be tested should check with the local city, county or state health department. Private clinics and some hospitals also do testing. Look in the phone book and call for an appointment.

Remember that eight to 12 weeks must pass after exposure before the antibodies will show up in a test.

DEAR ANN: I take vitamins regularly. My mother says store-bought vitamins are not nearly as beneficial as those found in fresh fruit, vegetables, milk, etc. Is she right?—Gold Coast

DEAR GOLD: She's wrong. The body can't tell the difference.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $2.50 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Tips to measure whole-wheat flour

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — When substituting whole wheat-flour for all-purpose flour in baking recipes, is it necessary to adjust the quantity of flour? — A.H.

DEAR A.H. — Generally, no. I usually substitute an equal amount of whole-wheat flour for all-purpose flour. Sometimes, depending on the type of whole-wheat flour you have, the result can be heavier than desired, in which case a slight reduction would be advisable. However, I've found that there's no standard rule and it depends very much on the recipe and the types of flour involved, so you'll have to experiment.

Better, lighter results are usually possible by substituting whole wheat for only part of the all-purpose flour called for in the recipe. This is also a good way to gradually introduce a reluctant family to whole-wheat baked goods. Start by substituting a small quantity and gradually increase the proportion of whole-wheat flour. They'll get used to it bit by bit.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Whole-wheat Quickbreads and Cookies," which has a variety of delicious recipes for whole-wheat baked goods, including cookies made with zucchini (which should be of interest to many gardeners this time of year!), whole-wheat banana bread, whole-wheat brownies and more. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Save money on instant coffee by mixing your favorite, expensive brand with a lower priced store brand. You can experiment to see how much you can mix and still retain the good flavor. This also can be done with coffee creamers, powdered milk, bubble bath and hand lotion. Sometimes we may even invent something we like better while saving money. — BETTY

DEAR POLLY — To keep from getting bitten by mosquitoes, rub any exposed area with vanilla. Mosquitoes will not bite you. — CLEM

DEAR CLEM — Thanks for the tip. I've heard this one before, and it must work for many people. And it's certainly easy and safe to try. However, I'm sorry to say, it didn't seem to help me when I tried it (mosquitoes simply adore me), but I sure did smell good! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Could you tell me how to clean glue and paste off of children's scissors? — J.W.

DEAR J.W. — Soaking scissors in hot, soapy water should loosen the glue. If necessary, scrub with a scouring pad after soaking. Soaking in alcohol may also be helpful. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Wearing vinyl dishwashing gloves while hanging out the wash on a chilly morning helps keep hands warm. Wearing such gloves while cutting up a refrigerated chicken also helps keep hands warm. Mashed banana and strawberries mixed together make a tasty, no-sugar-added dessert. — JOHN

Grace Covington recently entertained members of the Westway Home Extension Club with a brunch in her home.

Following the meal of ham and egg quiche, strawberry and lemon bread, holiday weiner tidbits, fruit plate, coffee and almond tea, the group spent the remainder of the social hour visiting and relating their summer activities.

Guests present included Joyce Aycock, Carolyn Evers, Helen Brown, Mary Riley, Mary Dee Holschier, Leta Kaul, Jeanette Ramey and the hostess.

Be physically, mentally prepared for exercising

Before hopping on your bicycle to get some extra exercise, make sure you and the bike are fit for the road.

"Cycling is good way to improve cardiovascular fitness," says Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. "But it's also an easy way to get hurt if you aren't physically and mentally prepared."

"Remember, bicycling is like any other form of exercise," says Heussner. "You should stretch out before and after each ride to increase your flexibility and avoid muscle and tendon pulls. Relaxing your shoulders and keeping your elbows bent to help absorb shocks, and consistent pedaling to increase efficiency are also good techniques you can use to decrease the possibilities of injury."

"Helmets are an important part of bicycle safety," the specialist says. "They should pass safety requirements, fit snugly, and be worn at all times."

"Bikes that are working properly are more enjoyable to ride, as well as safer," says Heussner. "The tires should be properly inflated and be the correct type for your bike. The gears should shift smoothly, and the brakes should stop evenly."

If you're buying a new bike, be sure to have a salesperson help you find one that is suitable for your height, weight and intended use, Heussner cautions.

Bicyclists have the most safety problems with traffic. They often forget that they must follow the same rules as moving vehicles, and they need to signal at every stop and turn.

"Bicyclists are also more difficult to see, especially at night, which often causes problems for unsuspecting motorists. Because of this, cyclists need to obey traffic laws, be aware of all motorists, and have their bikes equipped with proper reflectors and lights," Heussner maintains.

She adds, "Cycling can be an enjoyable way to get out and get some exercise, but make sure you and your bike are in good condition, and you follow the rules of the road."

Joint counseling is what you get from friends trying to steer you to their favorite spa.

Top state leaders agree on budget none of them like

AUSTIN (AP) - After months of political haggling and number crunching, the top three state leaders have agreed on a budget that none of them like.

"I think it speaks something for the agreement in that none of us are pleased and happy and satisfied with where we are. But we have come to an agreement," Gov. Bill Clements said Wednesday after meeting with Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The three leaders agreed on a $38.3 billion 1988-89 spending plan that they said should win legislative approval.

Unmentioned during Wednesday's 90-minute private session was taxes, a battle that now looms as a major obstacle toward completing the budget process before the current special session ends Tuesday.

"Revenues, in the general sense of all revenues, will match (spending) and be certified in due course," said Clements, who has been mum on what kind of tax plan he would favor.

Until recent weeks, Clements had been vowing to veto any tax hike above the continuation of the temporary motor fuels and sales tax rates now in effect.

The House's $5.2 billion tax bill would increase the state sales tax from the current 54 percent to 6 percent, and expands it to cover insurance premiums. The House also voted to keep the motor fuels tax at 15 cents per gallon instead of letting it revert to 10 cents on Sept. 1.

The Senate, which has not yet acted on the fuels tax, Tuesday approved $5.2 billion in tax and fee increases.

"We haven't even discussed revenues. It was never mentioned, so let's don't get into that," Clements said after the Wednesday meeting.

Hobby said, "I'm sure it will be a big fight, but I trust agreement can be reached," on taxes.

Lewis said, "That might give us more problems than the appropriations bill."

"I'm not too excited about the Senate tax bill," he said, referring to Senate-approved levies he believes could scare businesses away from Texas.

Clements said the overall budget would be an increase of about 4 percent over 1987 spending, which he noted is "not as much as some people would like."

"Obviously, I don't think anyone's completely happy with it," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, lead Senate budget negotiator. "You do the best you can."

His House counterpart, Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, also voiced some displeasure over the burden shifted to local school districts.

"The local taxpayers are going to be picking up more of the tab," Rudd said.

Local property taxes could be forced up by a provision that increases school districts' share of their costs.

Hobby, who fought for higher education spending increases, said the plan calls for about $500 million more for state colleges.

"It does the best that can be done under the present circumstances," he said, expressing the overall sentiment about the plan.

Money to fund additional merit pay raises for outstanding school teachers would be delayed under the plan.

Clements and Hobby said timing was the key to the end of the budget bill battle.

"It got to be July 15," Hobby said.

Police arrest 3

Two females and a male were arrested on unrelated charges on Wednesday, according to Hereford Police Department officers. A 21-year-old female was arrested for second offense of no liability insurance and no seat belt. A second woman, 24, was arrested on a warrant for interfering with the arrest of another person and a 22-year-old male was arrested at Hereford Community Center for public intoxication.

Officers are investigating a report from a man that while he was sitting in his home watching TV with friends, two suspects burst in and threatened them. The suspects claimed they had guns in their pockets and made threats in relation to a previous fight then left the home.

A man on Ave. B reported that while he was not at home a juvenile female came to his house. The juvenile tore a screen off a window and entered the home then began a fight with the man's 11-year-old daughter. The case was referred to juvenile authorities.

A report of domestic violence at Blue Water Gardens revealed that a wife had been assaulted but she did not want to file charges against her husband. In another domestic violence call, officers investigated a family fight in which assault was not a factor, no charges were filed in the incident.

Officers stood by to keep the peace at the emergency room of Deaf Smith General Hospital while hospital staff treated an unruly patient.

Other offenses reported include: theft of a $100 bike from the 500 block of Ave. J, a female juvenile cussing over the phone, theft of a U.S. flag from the front of a home on Northwest Drive, theft of hubcaps from a vehicle, a request that a man pay for damages incurred in an accident for which no report was filed and a complaint from a store that a woman had lied about having permission to charge merchandise. Charges were filed against the woman who has an outstanding bill.

Eighteen citations were issued and one fire call was received.

Mark of Time

Though at first glance this may appear to be a photograph it is actually a photograph-of-a-photograph. The full color original hangs in the third floor jury room of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse and is 50-years-old this month. The picture shows former Vice President John Nance Garner at ease reading his newspaper and smoking a cigar. The newspaper, San Antonio Express, proclaims the possibility of finding Amelia Earheart and is dated July, 1937. Garner was a colorful Texan, born in a log cabin, who was known as "Cactus Jack". For more information about Garner check with the Deaf Smith County Library where two biographies are available in the Texas section.

DOE CONTRA

employment numbers, Battelle is the largest of the Hereford based contractors.

Wunderlich stated that five possible options for office space for Battelle have now been narrowed to three. The larger of the three buildings will be announced next week and will provide 43,000 square feet of office space. Two other bids are being considered for an additional 21,000 square feet of office space.

Specifications for office furniture and telephone systems for the offices will be available soon for vendors wishing to bid for the procurement contracts, according to Wunderlich.

A training session scheduled for tonight will provide local businesses with information about bidding for project contracts. The workshop is scheduled from 7-9 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

In other business Wunderlich discussed:

-A presentation given to the Waste Deposit Impact Committee's Geotechnical Issues Council last week.

-Two visitors from a similar project in Germany who are scheduled to be in Hereford on July 20.

-An Institutional Socio-economic Coordinating Group meeting scheduled in Seattle, Wash., the week of July 20-24. Wunderlich noted WDC's Phil Niedzielski-Eichner and Steve Frishman with the state office will be attending the meeting.

-A Corps of Engineers planning report, relating to land acquisition for the site characterization process being conducted north of Hereford, which was due Wednesday will be delayed until sometime next week. The supervisor, who must approve the report before it is passed on to the Salt Characterization Project office, has been unable to review the report due to a family medical emergency.

ed, "I don't feel we can leave any stone unturned in trying to get the hostages back." Administration officials were skeptical of an Israeli initiative to sell weapons to Iran with U.S. acquiescence, he said, but Reagan was unwilling to give up.

-Identified Meese as the official who came up with the idea that the United States sell weapons directly to Iran through the CIA, the plan that spawned the involvement of retired Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord as a deniable commercial channel for the transactions. Meese made the suggestion to avoid reporting the transactions to Congress, Poindexter testified.

-Said he believed he and North were the only two government officials who knew of the diversion, but denied ever seeing the five memos detailing the plans which North swore he sent "up the line" to the national security adviser. The first time he saw such a memo was when the affair became public, Poindexter said.

-Said he "never believed and I don't believe today" that the Boland Amendment, a congressional ban on aid to the Contras during the 1984-1986 period, applied to the National Security Council staff "or the president's personal staff." That was the same position North took in his testimony. However, Poindexter's predecessor, Robert McFarlane, testified that it was clear to him that Congress intended the NSC staff to be bound by the prohibition. In February 1986, the arms sales became entangled with the administration's covert support for the Contras after North returned from a London meeting with the idea that profits generated from the arms sales could be used to support the Nicaraguan rebels at a time when Congress had cut off U.S. aid, the so-called diversion.

"I thought it was a very good idea," Poindexter said. "I felt I had the authority to approve it...I was convinced I understood the president's thinking on this."

But Poindexter decided not to tell Ragan, "so I could insulate him and provide some future deniability should it leak out. On this issue, the buck stops here with me."

Poindexter said he did brief Reagan on North's activities, but not in detail. "I do think the president understood that Colonel North was instrumental in keeping the Contras supported," he said, adding that he had also brief Reagan on the building of a runway in Costa Rica for the resupply effort run by Secord.

Reagan was also made aware that the United States was encouraging third countries to contribute to the Contra cause. Under a revised law, such solicitation was permitted as long as it was for non-lethal, "humanitarian" purposes.

But Poindexter admitted that a $10 million contribution solicited from oil-rich Brunei, which never got to the Contras because of an error in a bank account number, would have been mingled with arms sale money intended to buy weapons for the rebels.

"I don't frankly recall making a big distinction in my thinking about it between humanitarian and nonhumanitarian," he testified.

While Poindexter's testimony on Wednesday appeared to have answered the central question in the investigation, that of the president's knowledge of the diversion, committee members said the substantive issues for the government remain.

"It leaves enormous and large and serious questions hanging over the policymaking process in this administration," said Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md. "Who's running the government in that instance?"

Philippine government files suit against Marcos family

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - The Philippine government today filed suit against Ferdinand Marcos and his family for recovery of $10 billion they allegedly stole during the deposed president's 20-year rule.

Ramon Diaz, chairman of a commission tracking down Marcos' alleged hidden wealth, said government lawyers were also preparing criminal charges against Marcos. But Diaz said the attorneys were currently tied up with more civil suits against some 40 individuals who allegedly connived with Marcos.

The Presidential Commission on Good Government, which Diaz heads, filed the civil suit before a special anti-graft court.

Diaz, at a news conference, said the $10 billion is "a very conservative estimate" of the amount of money Marcos, his wife Imelda, their three children and two sons-in-law acquired illegally.

The suit accuses the Marcoses of "breach of public trust" and "abuse of right and power" in their "plunder of the nation's wealth." It says they committed "theft of public funds... Extortion, bribery, embezzlement and other acts of corruption."

Diaz said his commission intends to begin filing criminal charges against the Marcoses and their associates next week despite problems posed by President Corazon Aquino's refusal to allow Marcos to return for security reasons.

Marcos has been living in Hawaii since his ouster in a civilian-military uprising in February 1986.

In addition to requiring the Marcoses to return the $10 billion with unspecified interest, the lawsuit seeks $12.5 million as reimbursement of expenses in tracking down the allegedly ill-gotten wealth, $10 million in actual damages and unspecified amounts in other damages and attorneys' fees.

"As a result of the defendants' unlawful, malicious, immoral and wanton acts... The Filipino people painfully endured and suffered moral damages for more than 20 long years, anguish, fright, sleepless nights, serious anxiety, wounded feelings and moral shock, as well as besmirched reputation and social humiliation before the international community," the suit claimed.

The suit is the second against the Marcoses since the government filed a $500 million civil suit against them last December for transfer of titles on four New York buildings allegedly owned by the Marcos family.

In 1985, about 905,000 Hispanic families were maintained by women. More than half of these families had incomes in 1984 which placed them below the U.S. poverty level, compared with 35 percent of all families maintained by women, according to "Women of Hispanic Origin in the United States Labor Force," a publication of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Ann Landers Is this progress?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What in the name of common sense is happening? Men reek of cologne, wear gold chains and puffed-up hair, blow-dried and stiff with spray.

Women keep insisting that they want to do their own thing, yet they buy whatever is "in" for fear someone might think they are wearing last year's dress.

Add to the picture chalk-white stockings, pointed-toe shoes that cripple, wrinkled fabrics, oversized shoulders that make us look like linebackers for the Chicago Bears.

The miniskirt has once again trapped the mindless female into thinking she looks sexy when in reality it's a repeat of a sick joke designed by men who hate women. (The only females in the last 40 years who looked good in a miniskirt were Betty Grable and Marilyn Monroe.)

One no longer sees well-dressed women in airports. Yesterday I saw two blue-haired ladies, both with huge rear-ends, wearing tight-fitting jeans. They looked like a couple of American buffalo.

In the middle of the day TV features passionate love scenes. I'm not talking cable. I mean major networks. The language in the movies and the theater would curl your hair.

Is this progress? Am I nuts to think it's disgraceful? I feel like a voice crying in the wilderness.—Vermont Lament

DEAR VERMONT: You're not nuts and you're not crying in the wilderness. I hear you.

I'd like to add to your list women's bathing suits cut darned near to the throat, and hair that looks like the victim got a hold of a live wire.

As for language, you need not go to the movies or the theater to get an earful. Just turn on the radio and get a rock station. Or walk down the street and listen to a casual conversation between members of the under-30 set. The "S" word and the "F" word come as natural as breathing.

Where will it end? Don't ask me. I just work here.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have not done anything in the last two years that would make me a candidate for AIDS, but I was pretty wild five or six years ago, and like everyone else, I have tinges of anxiety.

As much as I have read about this illness I am unclear as to the symptoms. Can you run them by me? Also, where can a person go to be tested? Thanks for your help.—Fort Worth

DEAR F.W.: The symptoms of AIDS are:

A persistent cough even though you have no cold.

Flu-like symptoms that hang on.

Unexplained fatigue and weight loss.

Unrelenting diarrhea for no apparent reason.

Night sweats.

Purple spots on the skin.

Anyone who wishes to be tested should check with the local city, county or state health department.

Private clinics and some hospitals also do testing. Look in the phone book and call for an appointment.

Remember that eight to 12 weeks must pass after exposure before the antibodies will show up in a test.

DEAR ANN: I take vitamins regularly. My mother says store-bought vitamins are not nearly as beneficial as those found in fresh fruit, vegetables, milk, etc. Is she right?—Gold Coast

DEAR GOLD: She's wrong. The body can't tell the difference.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $2.50 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

School Spirit

Eighteen-year-old Shelly Hubbard will be in style for her junior year at Hereford High School with the "Hubba Herd" jacket her mother, Linda, created for her. In fact the hand painted jacket drew so much praise when Shelly wore it recently that Linda will be taking orders for the jackets, in short or full length, at her booth in the upcoming Town and Country Jubilee. Booth reservations for Jubilee Junction are being taken now at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Covington serves as hostess

Grace Covington recently entertained members of the Westway Home Extension Club with a brunch in her home.

Following the meal of ham and egg quiche, strawberry and lemon bread, holiday weiner tidbits, fruit plate, coffee and almond tea, the group spent the remainder of the social hour visiting and relating their summer activities.

Guests present included Joyce Aycock, Carolyn Evers, Helen Brown, Mary Riley, Mary Dee Holschier, Leta Kaul, Jeanette Ramey and the hostess.

SAVING THE BOOKS

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States possesses some of the most complete libraries and literary collections in the world, but some of the books may never be read again.

According to the New York Public Library, which houses an astonishing 88 miles of bookshelves, as many as 35 miles of books are being consumed from within by acids. The books are literally crumbling between their covers.

Scientists are working on expensive chemical treatments that may allow them to arrest some of the deterioration. But, they say, the only practical solution is to embark on a massive microfilming program in an attempt to preserve the contents of the millions of volumes on the library's endangered list.

Be physically, mentally prepared for exercising

Before hopping on your bicycle to get some extra exercise, make sure you and the bike are fit for the road.

"Cycling is good way to improve cardiovascular fitness," says Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. "But it's also an easy way to get hurt if you aren't physically and mentally prepared."

"Remember, bicycling is like any other form of exercise," says Heussner. "You should stretch out before and after each ride to increase your flexibility and avoid muscle and tendon pulls. Relaxing your shoulders and keeping your elbows bent to help absorb shocks, and consistent pedaling to increase efficiency are also good techniques you can use to decrease the possibilities of injury."

"Helmets are an important part of bicycle safety," the specialist says. "They should pass safety requirements, fit snugly, and be worn at all times."

"Bikes that are working properly are more enjoyable to ride, as well as safer," says Heussner. "The tires should be properly inflated and be the correct type for your bike. The gears should shift smoothly, and the brakes should stop evenly."

If you're buying a new bike, be sure to have a salesperson help you find one that is suitable for your height, weight and intended use, Heussner cautions.

Bicyclists have the most safety problems with traffic. They often forget that they must follow the same rules as moving vehicles, and they need to signal at every stop and turn.

"Bicyclists are also more difficult to see, especially at night, which often causes problems for unsuspecting motorists. Because of this, cyclists need to obey traffic laws, be aware of all motorists, and have their bikes equipped with proper reflectors and lights," Heussner maintains.

She adds, "Cycling can be an enjoyable way to get out and get some exercise, but make sure you and your bike are in good condition, and you follow the rules of the road."

Tips to measure whole-wheat flour

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — When substituting whole wheat flour for all-purpose flour in baking recipes, is it necessary to adjust the quantity of flour? — A.H.

DEAR A.H. — Generally, no. I usually substitute an equal amount of whole-wheat flour for all-purpose flour. Sometimes, depending on the type of whole-wheat flour you have, the result can be heavier than desired, in which case a slight reduction would be advisable. However, I've found that there's no standard rule and it depends very much on the recipe and the types of flour involved, so you'll have to experiment.

Better, lighter results are usually possible by substituting whole wheat for only part of the all-purpose flour called for in the recipe. This is also a good way to gradually introduce a reluctant family to whole-wheat baked goods. Start by substituting a small quantity and gradually increase the proportion of whole-wheat flour. They'll get used to it bit by bit.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Whole-wheat Quickbreads and Cookies," which has a variety of delicious recipes for whole-wheat baked goods, including cookies made with zucchini (which should be of interest to many gardeners this time of year!), whole-wheat banana bread, whole-wheat brownies and more. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. ## Sort of, in Olympics talks

September 17 is deadline

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer
LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — On Sept. 17, 1988, the 24th Summer Olympics are scheduled to open in Seoul.

Sept. 17, 1987 is shaping up as another major date in the history of those already-embattled Games.

One year before the opening ceremonies in Seoul's gleaming Olympic Stadium, the International Olympic Committee is to issue invitations to its 167 national Olympic committee members.

After that date, IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch said Wednesday, it will become increasingly hard to negotiate a settlement on North Korea's demands to co-host the Olympics.

"Sept. 17 is a very important date," he said. "We would like there to be a solution by then. It is not an ultimatum. ... We are not thinking of a deadline. But after Sept. 17, things become more and more difficult."

To try to solve the problem and defuse Pyongyang's threat to lead a boycott of the Games, Samaranch offered a five-sport package to the north after two days of joint meetings with Olympic officials from the two Koreas.

Like a four-sport plan unveiled at the last joint session in June 1986, Samaranch described it as the IOC's "final offer."

Like that plan, it would give the north the archery and table tennis tournaments and one-quarter of the preliminary rounds in the soccer tournament.

Like that plan, Samaranch called the offer historic. The only time the Olympics have been split between two countries was 1956, when the equestrian events of the Melbourne Games were shifted to Stockholm, Sweden, because of Australia's strict animal-quarantine laws.

Unlike the earlier package, this plan included two sweeteners — the women's volleyball tournament and the full route of the men's 100-kilometer cycling road race, giving the north the chance to stage two more medal ceremonies.

The North Koreans said they would study the proposal and give a prompt reply. But — like June, 1986 — they said that what Samaranch was offering was not enough.

Chin Chung Guk, vice president of the North Korean Olympic Committee, said Pyongyang still wants at least eight sports, including the full soccer tournament, men's basketball and wrestling.

Hosting the entire soccer program "is a very, very important issue," said Chang Ung, secretary general of the North Korean panel.

Chang said more than one-third of the 430,000 square meters of new sports facilities built in hopes of co-hosting the Games have been soccer stadiums.

Chin said Samaranch's emphasis that no more sports would be offered did not concern him.

"Last June 11, he said it was the final offer," Chin said.

He also blasted the IOC for awarding the Games to Seoul, where political demonstrations have recently erupted into violence between protesters and police, and blamed the South Koreans for failure to reach agreement.

Samaranch said that, as IOC president, he would be "the first to defend giving the Games to Seoul. I have to and I want to."

Home runs are main story

Baseball season resumes

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Home runs are increasing and so are strikeouts. The St. Louis Cardinals are way up and the New York Mets are way down. Bret Saberhagen is back, Roger Clemens is struggling.

The second half of the 1987 baseball season resumed today after the All-Star break with everyone in pursuit of the Cardinals, Cincinnati, Minnesota and the New York Yankees while Mark McGwire chases Roger Maris.

"I don't know that much about him. What year did he set the record, 1961?" McGwire said of Maris' single-season mark of 61 home runs. McGwire, the Oakland rookie, leads the majors with 33 homers in 87 games.

Home runs have been the story of the season so far. Homers are 22 percent above last year's record pace and runs also are showing a large increase.

The debate over lively balls has reached such a crescendo that baseball announced this week it will re-test the balls to make sure they are not juiced-up.

The ball that George Bell has homered on 29 times, Eric Davis 27 and Dale Murphy 25 is the same ball batters are missing more than ever. The strikeout rate is above last season's record mark and is up even more than the home-run pace.

While McGwire has been the biggest individual surprise, the Cardinals have been the most amazing team.

Despite injuries to John Tudor, Tommy Herr, Tony Pena and Danny Cox, the Cardinals lead the National League East by nine games over Montreal and 9 1/2 over the World Series champion Mets.

Jack Clark is the heart of St. Louis' lineup. He leads the majors with 86 runs batted in and is batting .311 with 26 homers.

The Cardinals have been beset by injuries. Cox was 8-3 before breaking a bone in his foot, although Tudor could start pitching next month after recovering from a broken leg.

The Yankees, held back because of their pitching the last two years, lead the American League East by three games over Toronto. The Yankees made an early move to bolster their staff for the stretch by acquiring Steve Trout from the Chicago Cubs this week, and may be close to getting Floyd Bannister from the Chicago White Sox.

Davis, leading the NL with 27 homers, has helped the Reds take a 2 1/2-game margin over Mike Scott's Houston Astros. Cincinnati can score runs, but how well it does in the second half will depend on pitching.

Former 20-game winner Tom Browning will have to pitch better than he did earlier in the season when he got demoted to the minors and Mario Soto remains a question mark. So does Manager Pete Rose — will he play at all this season?

The AL West, as almost always, is a season-long scramble that turns into a race in September. Minnesota leads Oakland and Kansas City by two games. California is three games back, Seattle is 3 1/2 behind and Texas trails by 6 1/2.

The Twins do some pitching and get more hitting. Oakland can hit, Kansas City and California can pitch. Saberhagen keys the Royals' staff with a major league-leading 15-3 record, and a 2.47 earned run average that is the best in the AL. Kansas City's Bo Jackson can hit home runs and strike out — and thinks he can play football, too.

The former Heisman Trophy winner signed a contract with the Los Angeles Raiders during the All-Star break, catching many by surprise. But that was not as shocking as the performance by the Mets in the first half.

From clubhouse arguments to injuries to Dwight Gooden's cocaine problem, nothing has gone right for the Mets this season. Even if the Cardinals played .500 ball the rest of the season — St. Louis' .651 winning percentage is the best in baseball — the Mets would have to go 47-28 to catch them.

Clemens, the most dominant pitcher in baseball last season, did not make the AL All-Star team and lost out on a $300,000 incentive bonus. Clemens, 24-4 in 1986, has been inconsistent since a 29-day holdout in spring training and is 8-6.

Clemens, like the rest of the Boston Red Sox, has struggled. The Red Sox got within one strike of winning the World Series last season, but are 13 1/2 games behind the Yankees.

Baltimore and Los Angeles, two teams that represented some of the best organizations in baseball for so long, are also in the midst of bad years.

Yankees hire Chambliss to executive post

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Chambliss, who spent five of his 16 major-league seasons with the New York Yankees, was named to what was described as an executive post "in the area of player development."

The hiring of Chambliss, who is black, comes 10 days after George Steinbrenner, the team's principal owner, was challenged on national television to spearhead baseball's drive against racial bias by hiring more members of minority groups.

A first baseman best-known for the ninth-inning homer that gave the Yankees the American League pennant in 1976, Chambliss had a lifetime batting average of .279 with 185 homers for the Cleveland Indians, Yankees and Atlanta Braves.

Cowboys' Landry to coach three more years

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry says he has told club president Tex Schramm he will coach the team for three more seasons, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

Landry, who said he has reached a "basic agreement" with Schramm to sign a three-year contract, said Wednesday he told Schramm he is committed to rebuilding the team and will coach through the 1989 season.

"I told Tex that if he wants me to sign a three-year contract, that is fine," Landry told the Dallas newspaper.

Landry, who will turn 63 before regular season play opens Sept. 13, is the only coach the National Football League team has ever had. It will be his 28th year with the Cowboys.

"I plan to be here three more years. I think it's a great challenge," Landry said. "I think any time people write you off, it's time to go to work."

"Instead of just struggling to make the playoffs, we must now build a new base and set our foundation,"

Landry said. Schramm said he is "extremely happy" about the decision by Landry, whose contract expired at the end of the 1986 season. There had been speculation that Landry would not coach the team longer than one more season.

Landry's salary will be among the highest among NFL coaches, Schramm said. This means it would be about $1 million since Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins was paid $900,000 last season and is expected to earn about $1 million this season.

Schramm declined to say how much Landry is paid.

"As always, he will be paid according to his success," Schramm said. "And he is, no doubt, one of the top coaches in the league."

NFL rules say a coach must have a standard contract before he steps on the field for the opening of training camp. The Cowboys rookies report to camp Sunday at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

The Cowboys finished 7-9 last season, their first losing season in 21 years. Landry has described it as one of the most frustrating years in football.

The former University of Texas player who was a player, a player-coach and an assistant coach for the New York Giants before taking over as head coach of the Dallas expansion team says he has worked harder during the off-season this year than during any other period of his career.

"I just feel that this is a very important time in our history," Landry said. "It's time to blend in some new blood with our team. I am willing to take the time to do that."

"I just hate to stop in the middle of it," he added. "I just think it will take a little time to get it going."

Landry coached the Cowboys to the Super Bowl five times and has two victories in the five appearances.

win, lose & DREW

For Dallas Cowboys' coaches this season

Walker-Dorsett backfield is goal

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Coach Tom Landry said Dallas Cowboys coaches, rebounding from a losing season, will find a way to get running backs Herschel Walker and Tony Dorsett on the field at the same time.

"Any time you have two superstars like that, you're going to have problems," Landry said. "It's going to take a lot of skill on our part to get both of them on the field and get the most out of them, but I think we are going to be successful in doing that."

When a team falls on losing times, as the Cowboys did with their 7-9 record last season, "the only thing you can do is work harder than you have been," Landry said at a news conference Wednesday.

The Cowboys' pre-season training camp begins Sunday in Thousand Oaks, Calif., where Landry will try getting the team's younger players to push the veterans.

"The key to big improvement will be how our younger players come along, and I'm talking about Kevin Brooks, people like that. If they push the veterans or take their place, we'll be an improved team."

One veteran the younger players may not have around to push is wide receiver Tony Hill, perceived as overweight and out of shape.

"He has not demonstrated he has been losing weight and getting back into the shape he needs to be in to help the Cowboys," Landry said, adding Hill may be released before Sunday.

Landry said he would meet with Hill in the next day or so and decide on his future with the club "on the basis of what his reaction is."

In 10 seasons with Dallas, Hill has been to two Super Bowls and three Pro Bowls and holds the Cowboys record for yards receiving. But last season, he was bigger and slower and a less vital part of the offensive attack.

Landry said that Hill, who is now 31 and up to about 230 pounds, has not appeared to have heeded his warning that more would be expected this off-season of Cowboys veterans than ever before.

"I think you can assume people's intent on what they do," Landry said.

Reporting along with Cowboys rookies and first-year players Sunday will be 17 veterans, including eight signed as free agents after playing with other National Football League teams.

Chances are "slim to none" that the Cowboys' No. 1 and 2 draft choices will be on hand Sunday, Landry said, because of continuing contract negotiations.

"But that's not critical if they're not on hand for rookie camp," Landry said. "If they miss the first week or two of veterans' camp, that's when it becomes critical, because we put in all our offense then, and the rest of the time we're just fine tuning it."

If wide receiver Mike Sherrard, last year's No. 1 draft choice, had not missed veterans' camp last year he might have become a starter after two or three weeks instead of late in the season, Landry said.

Landry said injuries — particularly which players are injured — are the most important factor in a team's improvement.

"People like Danny White, Herschel Walker, Tony Dorsett, Randy White — if these type players don't get hurt, we'll improve rapidly," Landry said.

Landry said he has always contended that defense is the most important part of a good team.

Offensively, he said, "I think we'll be improved. The offensive line will be better, although not right away."

Robinson will not commit to NBA yet

By BILL SCHULZ
Associated Press Writer

ST. MARY'S, Ga. (AP) — All-American David Robinson is committed to two years in the U.S. Navy, and the NBA's No. 1 draft pick isn't committing to anything else.

"I don't look at myself as playing for any specific team," says Robinson, an ensign in the Navy, a trained civil engineer, and the top pick of the San Antonio Spurs.

Robinson said that, in part because of his commitment to the Navy, he is in no hurry to begin contract negotiations with San Antonio.

"I told them (the Spurs) I wanted to go down and see first, to talk to some of the people, maybe talk to some of the players," Robinson said Wednesday during interviews at the Kinds Bay Submarine Base where he is a construction supervising officer.

"You get a little bit of a feeling about a team seeing them on television, but there's a lot you don't know," said the Naval Academy's star center, who scored 2,669 points for the Midshipmen and led the nation with 4.5 blocked shots per game last season.

Robinson said money was not a key issue in any negotiations. He admitted Washington would have been his first choice as a place to play.

"It's home," he said, but added, "I'm very flexible. I can live almost anywhere."

He said he wanted to play for a team backed by a "good organization, with the general manager fairly straightforward and the attitude on the team that it feels like you can go out there and win — even though your record may not have been that good last year."

As far as the money for a No. 1 draft choice is concerned, Robinson said, "I have no real idea of what I'm worth."

"If you gave me $1 million a year for six years, I'd be ecstatic," Robinson said. "But that may not be a real indication of what I'm worth to a specific NBA team."

He said determining the worth would be an agent's job. His job would be to decide where he wanted to play. He said he hopes he'll be able to visit San Antonio fairly soon after playing in this summer's Pan American Games.

Asked if he really wanted to play for the Spurs, Robinson answered, "That's what I'm trying to figure out."

Robinson said the Navy is a fine opportunity for him and he isn't sorry he has committed to two years in uniform. He didn't obtain basketball stardom until late in his career at the Naval Academy.

"Basketball will be after work and on my own," Robinson said.

Conceding there is little opportunity to improve his game with just weightlifting, shooting, running and solo workouts, he said competition in preparation for the Pan American Games and, he hopes, the 1988 Olympics, will give him valuable practice "playing at that level of competition."

The time in the Navy, Robinson said, will give both his body and mind a chance to mature before taking on the rigors of the NBA. The delays won't hurt his game, he said.

Down on the FARM

WATCH UP FOR POWER LINES

Power lines can be dangerous.

Touching irrigation pipe to a power line can divert the electricity through the pipe... and to anyone in contact with it. In this part of the country, this is the leading cause of farm injuries and deaths in electricity-related accidents. Any equipment of unusual height represents a potential danger. Lift arms on field equipment, combine auger spouts and even radio antennas can cause serious injury or death if they, and you, make contact with a power line.

Keep an eye up for power lines. Watch up, for safety's sake.

Celebrity broker says

Star commercials may be coming to end

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Too much of a good thing may be bad when it comes to celebrities making television commercials.

"We're going through another revolution," said Marty Ingels, the man who started the first revolution in 1976 when he set up a business to induce stars to do commercials.

"We've reached the saturation point," he said. "It's a big controversy whether the celebrity endorsements have been overexposed."

It's difficult to turn on a television set and not see a star doing a commercial. Bill Cosby for Jell-O. Cliff Robertson for AT&T. Cybill Shepherd for beef. Michael J. Fox for Pepsi. Bruce Willis for Seagram's wine coolers. More than 50 percent of all income received by actors comes from commercials, according to the Screen Actors Guild.

"The first star to really cross into commercials was Edward G. Robinson, who did a Maxwell House Coffee commercial around 1966," said Ingels. "It raised a lot of eyebrows at the time. Now it's no longer a stigma. Look at who's doing commercials now — Robert Duvall, George C. Scott."

Television eventually kills every trend by overexposure, from Westerns to variety shows to nighttime game shows. It's doubtful star commercials can escape the same fate. The last trend in commercials was the use of "real people" with faces you would never recognize. The cyclical nature of television also plays a major role, as times and tastes change.

Ingels became a celebrity broker after many years as a comedian and actor. He starred in the series "I'm Dickens — He's Fenster" with John Astin and in such movies as "The Horizontal Lieutenant" and "If It's Tuesday This Must Be Belgium." He is married to actress Shirley Jones.

"The first reason actors do commercials, of course, is for the money," he said. Another is to show another side of their talent. For instance, a star may want to sing.

Ingels said fees have consequently "gone through the roof, but they've also gone into the basement."

"They've hit the basement by the virtue of supply and demand. You can get a star now for $75,000 when it used to take $250,000. Everybody is available," he said. "The list of holdouts, which we have on our bulletin board, is getting smaller every day."

Ingels said 1976 surveys showed a commercial had a 63 percent better chance of succeeding if it had a familiar face or name in it. The percentage has dropped to 38 percent.

In 1967, Carl Yaztremski won the batting title in the American League with a .304 batting average.

Judge appoints examiner, predicts PTL success

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A bankruptcy judge has agreed to Jim and Tammy Bakker's request for an independent overseer of PTL's reorganization, while a federal judge in North Carolina ordered a grand jury probe of the ministry.

U.S. District Judge Robert D. Potter in Charlotte, N.C., ordered a special grand jury to convene there Aug. 17 to investigate the ministry's operations under Bakker, the PTL founder who stepped down in March amid a sex scandal.

Potter issued his order Wednesday after meeting Tuesday with U.S. Attorney Charles Brewer and other Justice Department officials. The State newspaper reported today. Brewer refused to comment, citing Justice Department policy, the Columbia publication said.

PTL also is being investigated by the Internal Revenue Service and the U.S. Postal Service, and a criminal investigation has been reported by the Charlotte Observer. Officials have refused to comment on the probe.

Federal bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds on Wednesday appointed Columbia bankruptcy lawyer William Robinson to oversee PTL's reorganization.

Bakker's attorney, W. Ryan Hovis, suggested Robinson, but Reynolds sided with PTL attorneys who wanted the scope of Robinson's duties limited. He said the examiner will not monitor PTL's religious activities.

"That will be left exclusively to the debtor (PTL)," Reynolds said. Attorneys for both sides said they were satisfied with the appointment and the latitude Robinson was given.

Reynolds, who visited PTL's Heritage USA on Monday, on Wednesday offered a suggestion for

Ways with Wine by David Hutchins

THE CONNOISSEUR'S COOLER

Many Americans are moving toward low-alcohol beverages. They also seem to prefer tastes that are gentle, fruity, and not austere dry. For these reasons, wine coolers have enjoyed enormous success. However, for the person looking to climb up the ladder of sophistication and quality, there are the German white wines. These are light wines with natural (not added) fruit flavors. They have a rounded taste that is neither bone dry nor cloyingly sweet. German wines are grown in the northern limit of a grape that has a floppan quality. While they do not exhibit the full body of wines from warmer regions, they do not have any tannic bite. Instead, they show delicate textures, floral aroma, and perhaps the lowest alcohol levels of any wines in the world.

At THE STORE you will find wines from all over the world. Germany, Italy, and France as well as from California and New York. Today many of the domestic wines equal those from abroad. Feel free to ask us any questions you have about wine...the world of wine is our favorite topic of conversation. Stop by 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7882 and look us over. Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

German wines have an alcohol content between 7.5% and 10.5%.

Soaring 243 percent this year

Mexico has hottest stock market

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's stock exchange soared a sizzling 243 percent in the first six months of the year, making it one of the world's hottest markets.

The stock market has been reaching new heights since last summer, gains fueled, analysts say, by investors' expectations of better economic times ahead and low prices for the stocks of major companies.

"We're talking about extraordinary increases," said Timothy Heyman, director of analysis for the brokerage house Estrategia Bursatil and author of a new book on investing in Mexico.

Over the past 12 months, the market's Index of Prices and Quotations, made up of the prices of the stocks of 42 companies, skyrocketed 911 percent to a level of 161,667 on June 30.

In all of last year, the price index advanced a record 321 percent, by far the best performing market in the world when calculated in terms of the local currency.

When measured in dollars, the Mexican exchange slipped to No. 2 behind Spain's stock exchange and just ahead of Italy's.

In comparison, the United States' most closely watched stock index, the Dow Jones Industrial Average, gained 22.6 percent in 1986 and an additional 27.6 percent in the first half of 1987.

The Mexican stock exchange, formed in 1894, is tiny by comparison with the United States' markets.

Last year, 197 companies were listed on the Mexican stock exchange, compared to the New York Stock Exchange's whopping 1,500 common stocks.

Only 26 brokerage houses are licensed to operate on the floor of the stock exchange, which is located in the heart of Mexico City. Analysts estimate the brokerages may have total accounts of about a half million by year's end.

Investors who prefer to invest in stock market funds have less than two-dozen to choose from.

Yet, the market is increasingly attracting new investors, bringing in more, analysts said, from the ranks of the middle class, whose purchasing power has been badly hurt by the nation's lengthy economic crisis.

Few foreigners have invested in the market, analysts said, partly because they are limited in buying shares of Mexican companies.

They can participate by investing in the stock market funds offered by local brokerages. There also is a Mexico Fund, which is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and is made up of a variety of Mexican stocks.

Two Mexican companies — Telefonos de Mexico, the government-owned telephone company, and Tubos de Acero de Mexico, a steel-pipe maker — are listed on Companies listed on the exchange are generally a cut above the average, Somoza Alonso said. They are big, sell their products overseas, use advanced technology and operate with foreign capital.

Other analysts note a greater feeling of confidence in the economic outlook. Many investors doubt President Miguel de la Madrid will alter

It also approved more special arrangements permitting companies to buy some of the nation's foreign debt at cheap prices, giving firms more money to pump into their local operations.

Oil prices also began rebounding, bringing in more revenues to the oil-producing nation.

Moreover, the government signed a long-awaited agreement in March with foreign bankers for $7.7 billion in fresh loans.

Whether the market can continue its breathless performance draws mixed predictions.

"It doesn't have an end soon," said Ramirez de la O.

Somoza Alonso said, "It would be imprudent to predict that the stock exchange can continue rising at the pace that it has done in the last four or five months."

Future increases, he predicted, should be more moderate.

Better economic year in 1987 predicted —M.S. Alonson

the American Stock Exchange.

Manuel Somoza Alonso, president of the Mexican stock exchange, said the main reason for the market's sharp gains has been the low prices of the stocks of large Mexican companies.

"The most important percentage of growth in the index of prices is due to the adjustment of an exchange that was tremendously undervalued," he recently told a group of foreign reporters.

He said firms listed on the exchange registered an average increase in sales of 135 percent and 322 percent in profits during the first three months of the year.

"The stock exchange," he said, "is reflecting an expectation that the firms that are registered are going to have a better economic year in 1987 and certainly in the years ahead."

the economy's course before his term ends in December 1988.

"Private business in Mexico is beginning to upgrade its opinion of... de la Madrid..." private economist Rogelio Ramirez de la O wrote recently. "De la Madrid enjoys greater business confidence now, even though the problems of the country remain serious."

Heyman pinpoints the start of the market's surge to last summer when the International Monetary Fund and Mexico worked out an agreement that marked the first step toward a fresh financial rescue package for the cash-short nation.

A string of economic events followed, helping fuel the rise.

The government announced a fresh economic program that forecast a growing economy this year, after a sharp downturn in 1986.

DR. GOTT Effects of lung infection

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I contracted mycobacterium avium-intracellulare. I was told that it probably was caused by my removing wild birds from the waste-water treatment plant where I worked. Is there any new treatment available?

DEAR READER — Mycobacterium avium-intracellulare produces a type of lung infection that resembles tuberculosis. However, it is not as serious as tuberculosis, and many experts believe that treatment is not necessary.

Otherwise-healthy patients with MAI seem to have chronic lung infections that remain stable for years. On the other hand, MAI infection in immunologically suppressed patients, such as those with AIDS, can be serious and fatal. MAI bacteria are quite resistant to antibiotics; there is no one universally effective treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My fiancée was in a car accident 1½ years ago and developed seizures. Medication is not controlling them. He's 100 pounds overweight, but when he tries to exercise, he has a seizure. He also exhibits bizarre behavior during seizures: He searches for a cap he doesn't have, pulls non-existent strings off his sweater, walks like a gorilla and refuses to have anyone touch him. He's only 37 and I hate the idea of him living the rest of his life like this. Can you help?

DEAR READER — Your fiancée appears to have suffered brain damage at the time of the accident. This damage is associated with episodes of seizure activity and bizarre behavior that probably are caused by abnormal electrical discharges within brain tissue.

If medication is not controlling his problem, he needs evaluation by neurologists who are experts in dealing with post-traumatic epilepsy. I recommend that you ask his doctors for a referral to the neurology clinic at a teaching hospital.

At Amarillo dinner theatre

Former 'Hawaii 5-0' star appearing

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

Best known for his role as Dan in television's long running Hawaii 5-0, James MacArthur (Jim to his friends) quietly takes control of the stage as Charlie Baker in The Foreigner currently playing at Amarillo's Country Squire Dinner Theatre.

Set in a fishing lodge resort in Georgia, the play deals with the mistaken belief guests at the lodge have that Baker speaks no English. With delightful mime and "gobble-d-gook" conversations, MacArthur is enchanting.

Of his previous success with Hawaii 5-0 MacArthur admits: "I don't remember all of the 270 shows we filmed but I will watch a rerun and get a kick out of trying to figure out who the bad guy is."

It is estimated that 105 million people around the world still watch "5-0" weekly. MacArthur says he has watched himself on television while high up in the Andes, in India and even in Kuwait, where kissing in public is punishable by a sentence in jail and so scenes with kissing and those showing people in swimsuits are edited out.

The son of Helen Hayes and the late playwright Charles MacArthur, he says as a child he wanted to be an archeologist. "Then, at the age of 16," he says, "I discovered bones with flesh on them were more interesting."

Among his lists of credits are appearances in Walt Disney's film version of Swiss Family Robinson and movies such as The Interns, The Bedford Incident and Battle of the Bulge. His television credits include The Untouchables, Love Boat, Fantasy Island and Vegas.

Though he has appeared with screen greats such as Henry and Jane Fonda, Sidney Poitier and Richard Widmark MacArthur says appearing on the stage is more fun than film or television because he finds the audience reaction during a play deeply satisfying.

In any medium he stressed that acting is interaction with other actors. "Acting is reacting," he says, "all you do is listen and respond."

In The Foreigner MacArthur says he is working with: "A wonderful cast which mixes well for a good time for actors and audiences." The cast includes Steve Jones as Froggy LeSueur. Jones has studied acting with Lee and John Strasberg.

Bee Vary takes the role of Betty Meeks, owner of the fishing lodge. She can currently be seen in the PBS movie The Land of Little Rain. Her performance as Meeks is a delightful blend of southern country and humanness.

Stephen Berrier returns for his 18th role at the Country Squire in the part of Rev. David Marshall Lee. He can be seen in the Orion film Robocop due out this month.

Fluer Fox, Stan Norman and Kyle Page join the cast in the respective roles of Catherine Simms, Owen

Musser and Ellard Simms. MacArthur says he was planning to spend the summer vacationing in Colorado but instead was compelled to join 25-year-friend Jack Booch, who directs the play, in Amarillo. He had previously never been closer to the Panhandle than Midland but says he plans to take in all the sights.

Though he admits the British accent he uses during the show would get him arrested in London, he laughingly says it works in Texas and so does The Foreigner. In the immortal words of Jack Lord, "Book 'em Dan, Laughter One."

SEVEN SCULPTORS

The exhibition, open through Oct. 31, features 22 recent works by Magdalena Abakanowicz, Jonathan Borofsky, Sandro Chia, Antony Gormley, Tom Otterness, Richard Rosenblum and Joel Shapiro. All the works reflect, in different styles and media, the renewed interest in the human form that has been apparent in sculpture of the past decade.

Works are installed both outdoors in Storm King's landscaped setting and inside the art center's building. Also on view around the open-air museum are the more than 230 works of the permanent collection, many of monumental size and by some of this country's greatest artists. The sculpture park itself remains open through Nov. 30.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When "Dynasty" star Joan Collins returns from London, her estranged husband Peter Holm says he'll be waiting at the home they once shared with a special welcome.

"I'll be outside at Cabrillo Drive and Coldwater Canyon (Boulevard) setting up a picket line for Joan," Holm, 40, said Wednesday. He said about 10 people carrying banners and placards would help him protest his homeless state.

Miss Collins, 53, is due to return today.

Holm was evicted Friday from the Hollywood Hills home where he and Miss Collins had lived and is dependent on friends, said his attorney, Frank Steinschreiber.

Holm is biding his time until Monday, when he'll get a chance to convince a judge he is entitled to $80,000 a month in temporary support from Miss Collins, said Steinschreiber. Holm is basing his money demands largely on his work as the actress' business manager.

Marvin Mitchelson, the celebrity divorce lawyer representing Miss Collins, has maintained that the actress gave Holm $1.3 million over the course of their marriage, as well as $900,000 in expense money, so he deserves no more.

EL TORO, Calif. (AP) — The Marines' new commandant says he's ordering a return to traditional, hard-core physical fitness drills, saying the Corps must maintain "a warrior focus."

Gen. Alfred M. Gray Jr., who took over the Corps last month, criticized combat performance and readiness during stops Tuesday at the Marines' air bases in El Toro and Tustin.

Gray, 59, said the Marines' headquarters in Washington "looked like a morgue" every afternoon because everyone was out jogging "in cute little sneakers" so they could look in a mirror later and "still look nice."

"That's fine. We're going to be the best-looking outfit that ever got run off a hill," he said.

TELLURIDE, Colo. (AP) — This secluded city in the San Juan Mountains will play host to leading Soviet writers and thinkers during the Telluride Ideas Festival, the brainchild of author-futurist John Naisbitt.

The Soviets will discuss "glasnost," the loosening of restrictions in their nation, during next month's festival.

"I would expect that if these programs continue and are replicated across the country thousands of times, it becomes more powerful than what officials can do," Naisbitt said recently. "It's nice for Telluride to assert leadership in this regard."

The author of the best-seller "Megatrends" compared the Soviet Union to "an awakening giant," and said glasnost is the most important development in Soviet life since the Russian Revolution in 1917.

"In my judgment, glasnost is the real thing," he said.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A New York production company is working on a television docudrama about Jan Kemp, the teacher who won a legal battle in her protest of the University of Georgia's favoritism toward athletes.

The two-hour movie could be ready to air on CBS by fall of 1988, said New Screen concepts producer Lou Gorfain.

The first draft of the script is due next week, and approval by CBS to start production could come before Labor Day, Gorfain said Tuesday.

The film would cover events leading up to Ms. Kemp's lawsuit against two university administrators, in which she claimed she was fired as a remedial instructor because she spoke out against preferential treatment for athletes.

She settled out of court for reinstatement and more than $1 million. The two administrators later were reassigned.

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist Eudora Welty plans to read her story about a postmistress at a ceremony honoring a new stamp for fellow Mississippi writer and former postmaster William Faulkner.

Welty will read "Why I Live at the P.O." at the Aug. 3 ceremony for the Faulkner stamp, University of Mississippi officials said.

Welty, who lives in Jackson, will open an annual conference Aug. 2 on Faulkner and his fictional Yoknapatawpha County in north Mississippi.

The reading will follow presentation of the first Eudora Welty Awards for Creative Writing to two high school students.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Singer Willie Nelson has signed a contract to stage his Farm Aid III concert at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and says a host of other entertainers will perform at his third farm benefit.

University Chancellor Martin Massengale joined Nelson in signing the contract Monday for the Sept. 19 concert.

Also appearing will be John

Cougar Mellencamp, Bon Jovi, Neil Young, Waylon Jennings, Kris Kristofferson, Merle Haggard and Emmy Louis Harris, Nelson said.

"I thought it was important to do it in an area not only where the concert would be appreciated, but also it would draw attention to the areas where the problem is worst," he said.

Farm Aid I was held at Champaign, Ill., in 1985 and Farm Aid II was at Austin, Texas, last year.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Bette Midler will appeal the dismissal of her $10 million lawsuit against Ford Motor Co. for using a voice that sounded similar to hers in a commercial, her lawyer says.

U.S. District Judge Ferdinand F. Fernandez ruled in favor of Ford on Monday as well as Young and Rubicam, the ad agency that produced an ad for Lincoln-Mercury cars. The ad used a voice imitating a Midler-associated song, "Do You Want To Dance."

"Regardless of the morality of the defendant's actions, the law offers no protection," Fernandez said.

Gerald F. Edelstein, Miss Midler's attorney, said, "They attempted to sell cars using Bette Midler, and we're not letting them get away with it."

The 1986 lawsuit contended that Ford and the ad agency did not seek Midler's permission to use the sound-alike voice.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress-singer Cher says there was a time when she would have been afraid of roles like the one she's playing in her latest movie.

In "Suspect," she plays a public defender who becomes involved in a murder case.

"I always think of myself as being able to play working-class types. You know, basic women," she said. "And since I didn't have that much schooling, I was scared to try to portray a woman who's been to law school and uses these big words."

Cher also discussed her two marriages, which ended in divorce, in an interview with Ladies' Home Journal.

Sonny Bono, "was the boss of the marriage, like Benito Mussolini ruled Italy," she said, while rock star Gregg Allman, "couldn't even tell himself what to do and couldn't try to be dominant over me."

The middle letter in the MiG jet fighter is lower case because it stands for the Russian "and."
