Six get labor sentences

Six former officials and technicians at the Chernobyl power plant were found guilty today in history's worst nuclear accident and sentenced to terms of up to 10 years in labor

Thirty-one people were killed when an explosion and fire tore through the power station's No. 4 reactor, triggering a huge leak of radiation.

Soviet officials blamed the April 26, 1986 accident on human error, saying the reactor blast was due to an unauthorized experiment during which workers flouted safety regula-

The accident spread clouds of radiation through the world, and tens of thousands of people were evacuated from the Chernobyl area.

Among those accused of repeatedly violating rules designed to ensure security at the power station were former plant director Viktor P. Bruykhanov, former chief engineer Nikolai M. Fomin, and Fomin's assistant, Anatoly S. Dyatlov.

Also accused were Yuri A. Laushkin, a senior engineer and atomic energy inspector at reactor No. 4. shift director Boris V. Rogozhkin, and the chief of reactor No. 4, Alexander P. Kovalenko.

All the defendants but Laushkin were charged under Article 220 of the Ukrainian criminal code with violations of security measures in enterprises where explosions may result. That charge carries a maximum 10-year prison sentence.

All were found guilty of all the charges against them expect Fornin, who was found not guilty of abusing

The verdict against the six was believed to mark the first time nuclear power plant officials in any country had been held criminally responsible for failing to ensure safety at their installations.

Zimmerman outlines Governor's opposition

By DEBE GRAVES Staff Writer

A list of reasons the Governor's Nuclear Waste Task Force does not want the Department of Energy to characterize a Deaf Smith County site for possible nuclear waste storage was the topic of a presentation to the Golden K Kiwanis group during a Tuesday noon meeting.

Susan Zimmerman, a geologist with the task force, spoke to the group at the Senior Citizens Center.

She said the task force is concerned about the safety of the underground waters should site characterization continue.

"The tests they have planned could have a significant negative impact on the aquifers and the uncertainties surrounding the sinking of exploratory shafts is of concern," she said.

Zimmerman stated that the freezering technique DOE proposes to use to sink the large exploratory shaft is not the proven method DOE purports it to be.

"It sounds like it might work and it has been used for 100 years; however, serious problems are traditionally associated with freezing technology," she said.

She contends it is the task force's fear that problems associated with the freezing technology will result in contamination of the Santa Rosa and Ogallala aquifers which supply water for a large area including the Texas Panhandle.

Zimmerman cited a recent judgewhich found the standards the Environmental Protection Agency used to develop guidelines for the DOE project were invalid in terms of protecting the water supply.

"The Deaf Smith County site should have been disqualified from day one," she said.

She said that Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox has mailed a letter to Secretary of Energy John Herrington requesting a stay on all fur-(See ZIMMERMAN, Page 2)

Sleeping aliens struck by train

LAREDO, Texas (AP) - Two illegal aliens who were struck by a train as they slept on railroad tracks probably were trying to avoid the dangers of snakes and poisonous spiders, immigration officials say.

"They believe the snakes never cross the tracks," said Capt. Omar Rodriguez of the Webb County Sheriff's Department.

Jesus Ochoa Castaneda, 21, of La Granja in the Mexican state of Jalisco and Concepcion Guitron, 24, also of La Granja, died Tuesday after they were struck by a train. They were among a group of six people sleeping on tracks about 20 miles north of Laredo.

Two others have died in railroad incidents during the past four days, officials said.

"This is snake country, with a lot of rattlesnakes and tarantulas, so they (the aliens) like to lie down to sleep on the railroad bed where they're safe from the snakes. That's what they think," said Oscar Martinez, an intelligence officer with the U.S. Border Patrol's Laredo sector.

Segregation up among Hispanics

CHICAGO (AP) - A growing number of Hispanic children are attending segregated schools, and the segregation of black students is continuing almost at the same pace as in the early 1970s, University of Chicago researchers say. The study, led by Gary Orfield, a professor of political science, also warns that inner-city children are becoming more isolated from mainstream American society.

"Whatever may be the roots of the 'urban underclass,' it is certainly true that its children go to schools that are almost totally segregated by race and class and have no visible connection to any paths of mobility in education or employment," the researchers said.

New York, Illinois and Texas have the most segregated schools for Hispanic students while Illinois and Michigan are the most segregated for black students, their report said.

Researchers who analyzed data from the Education Department's Office of Civil Rights found that nearly two-thirds of the country's black students attend predominantly minority schools - those where minorities make up more than half the student body - a figure virtually unchanged from 1972.

sider that there have been no real initiatives by the federal government on desegregation recently," Orfield said Sunday. "It's amazing we're not going backward."

The research team studied data from 32,320 public schools through 1984, the most recent year for which government figures were available.

New York was the most segregated state for Hispanic students in 1984. The percentage of those students attending intensely segregated schools - with at least 90 percent minority enrollment - rose from 56.8 percent in 1980 to 59.1 percent four years later, they found.

Illinois was next, with 41.2 percent of its Hispanic students atending intensely segregated schools in 1984, followed by Texas, New Jersey and Connecticut, according to the study.

Nationwide, the number of students attending intensely segregated schools rose from 28.8 percent in 1980 to 31 percent in 1984, the researchers said.

Moreover, Hispanics attending predominantly minority schools rose from 54.8 percent in 1968 to 70.6 percent in 1984, the researchers found.

A woman at King's Manor told officers that someone had taken a check from her purse. The check was made out to the woman and has been cashed. Officers are investigating the matter.

In Iran investigation

Meese faces charges of incompetency

WASHINGTON (AP) - Attorney General Edwin Meese III, insisting he could not have known the depth of the Iran-Contra affair when he began looking into it eight months ago, faced tough questions today from congressional investigators who believe his inquiry was incompetent or calculated to be superficial.

"He's not going to upset the apple cart at all," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, a member of the House investigating committee. "It looks to me like he's following the same pattern of cover up, protect the president."

After a relatively easy day Tuesday recounting his actions last November after President Reagan asked him to launch an investigation of the affair, Meese faced skeptical questioning expected to focus as much on what he didn't do as on what he did.

In other developments:

-A human rights association set up by law to monitor behavior of the Contras found at least a dozen incidents in which the rebels executed prisoners, forcibly recruited soldiers and killed civilians.

-Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., disclosed he resigned from the Senate Intelligence COmmittee last January because he was responsible for the leak of a draft staff report on the panel's Iran-Contra investigation. Leahy, who was vice chairman of the panel at the time but is not a member of the current Iran-Contra investigating committees, admitted carelessness in allowing a reporter to examine the draft.

When questioning of Meese resumed today, Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, said he planned to ask Meese why he failed to immediately require that records of Lt. Col. Oliver L. North be sealed to preserve them for investigators, a failure he said allowed potentially key documents to

And he said he wanted to know why Meese recruited a team of political appointees to carry out the inquiry rather than seasoned criminal attorneys with better investigative in-

"It seems to me that at least in retrospect, the records should have been sealed earlier and the criminal people should have been brought in earlier," Mitchell said.

Other questions remained, as well: How could Meese fail to ask then-CIA director William J. Casey, a close friend, about the diversion of Iran arms sale profits to aid the Contras? Why was then-National Security Adviser Jon M. Poindexter not questioned more thoroughly about his role? Why did Meese tell other administration officials about his inquiry? And why did he not pump North for details about the private corporation running the Iran arms deal and Contra aid operations?

Throughout Tuesday's testimony, Meese insisted he saw nothing from the time he undertook his inquiry until after the affair was made public Nov. 25 that prompted suspicions of criminal behavior.

He said Reagan "was quite surprised" when told about the diversion of Iran arms sale money to the Contras, and that it had been Reagan's decision to seek Poindexter's resignation and to fire North. The diversion was "unauthorized activity. It had not been approved and would not be approved by the president had he known," Meese testified. After a memo outlining the diversion plan was found in North's office on Nov. 22, North was questioned about it by Meese. North portraye dth etransactions as a direct transfer from Israel to the Contras. While he mentioned a U.S. corporation being involved. Meese apparently did not pursue that, according to Justice Department notes of the session.

"I must say that it's always easy, some eight months later, to look back. And it certainly looks a lot different to us now than it did then,"

Meese said. "At that time there was nothing that did give us a hint" of the seriousness of the affair.

He defended his investigating team, saying "that particular weekend, the team I put together did a pretty good job. It's as a result of their efforts that this hering has been conducted." And he said he had been slow to invovle the FBI int he inquiry because of sensitivity to past chrges that the agency has ben misused to investigate non-criminal matters.

Methodists hearing Oral complaints

DALLAS (AP) - The United Methodist Church is reviewing Oral Roberts' status in the denomination after complaints about his assertions that he raised people from the dead and that God would kill him if he couldn't muster $8 million from his flock, officials say.

The Memphis Conference of the United Methodist Church in Tennessee has called for Roberts' censure, and the United Methodist University Senate has dropped the Oral Roberts University seminary in Tulsa, Okla., from the list of schools it regards as suitable for Methodist ministers.

In addition, the Oklahoma Conference has asked that the church's highest legal body issue a ruling on Roberts' status in the church, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

Church officials said Thursday the ruling by the United Methodist Judicial Council could set the stage for future disciplinary action against Roberts, a member of Tulsa's Boston Avenue United Methodist Church.

"I think he'll see we are concerned...and we do have a mechanism in our church to hold all people accountable," said the Rev. Boyce Bowdon, director of communications for the United Methodist Church of Oklahoma.

Roberts, a television evangelist who began his career as an ordained minister in the Pentecostal Holiness Church, was named a local elder, a category of minister the church is phasing out, when he joined the Boston Avenue Church in 1968.

He has never had full standing as a Methodist clergyman, but continues to be recognized as a Church officials said the decision to review Roberts' status followed statements that he had raised people from the dead and that God would take his life if he failed to raise $8 million by last April 1, a deadline that was met.

The nine-member Judicial Council plans to consider in October whether Roberts and about 200 others nationwide who hold the local-elder title are members of the United Methodist clergy or laity.

Local elders may preach in their home churches, but it is unclear to whom they are accountable. If determined to be members of the clergy. they would be accountable to their bishops; as laity, they would be accountable only to their home churches.

Bowdon said he did not know what action might be taken against Roberts.

"As far as I know, this sort of thing has never come up in the Methodist Church before," Bowdon said. 'We've never had an Oral Roberts before."

The Rev. Mouzon Biggs, pastor of the Boston Avenue Church, said Roberts has never represented himself as a member of the Methodist clergy and that the news media has mistakenly referred to Roberts that way.

Biggs said there is no move afoot to oust Roberts from the church but acknowledged that some members hope that placing the question of his status before the Judicla Council will serve as a moderating influence.

But Biggs said those who "hope this will restrain Oral in some way' will be disappointed. The Judicial Council will not comment on his fund-raising tactics," Biggs said. "They will simply define who is a local elder."

Representatives of the Oral Roberts Ministries will not return "The Associated Press" phone calls Thursday night.

Sun Belt cities set population pace

WASHINGTON (AP) - Cities in the nation's Sun Belt are continuing to set the population pace, with Phoenix and Dallas the nation's fastest growing major metropolitan areas, the Census Bureau reports.

Phoenix grew to an estiamted 1,900,200 people in 1986, up 25.9 percent since the 1980 Census of 1,509,227 to lead the nation's major communities in growth, reported Thursday.

Close behind with a 24.7 percent growth over the past six years was Dallas, which climbed to an estimated 3,655,300 people from 2,930,568 in 1980, the agency said. That moved Dallas past Houston and into 8th ranking in size among metropolitan areas. Phoenix ranks

Other fast growing communities of million or more people were all located in the South or West.

They included Atlanta, up 20 percent; San Antonio, Texas, 19 percent; Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla., 19 percent; San Diego, 18 percent; Sacramento, Calif., 17 percent and Houston, 17 percent.

The nation as a whole increased by 6.4 percent between 1980 and 1986. Some northern "Rust Belt" cities that were losing population in the 1970s have turned around, while others continue to decline, the new list shows.

Three large metropolitan areas continued to lose population: Buffalo, N.Y., Pittsburgh and Cleveland. But two others, Detroit and Milwaukee, which hav been losing people since 1980, showed slight gains between 1985 and 1986, the new Census study shows.

In the only change in the nation's largest 10 metropolitan areas, the Dallas-Fort Worth area moved up from 9th to 8th place, switching places with Houston. Dallas had a 1986 population estimate of 3,655,300, while Houston weighed in with 3,634,300. In 1985, Dallas had 3,535,800 while Houston had 3,605,500.

Nationally, the New York metropolitan area remains far and away the most ppulous in the country with an estimated 17,967,800 residents, a gain of 50,000, or 2.4 percent, since the 1980 census.

New Mexico physicist develops lightning detector

Dan Jones remembers the reddish glow of a day-old sun streaming around a big cloud billowing up south of Boulder, Colo., that June evening

The New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology research physicist remembers reading the next day the same cloud spawned lightning that killed two children playing in their yard.

"That was one thing that started me thinking about building a lightning forecaster," he said.

The device is a personal detector that warns when conditions are favorable for lightning to strike.

Jones has built two rod-like lightning forecasters.

One, about a yard long, is portable. It consists of a telescoping television antenna, a 6-inch grounding spike and a sounding gadget on the side of some PVC pipe that contains an electronic circuit driven by two 6-volt batteries.

The other is longer and runs off a standard 9-volt battery. It is installed at a swimming pool at the New Mexico Tech campus at Socorro.

Both versions have been operating for about a year without a hitch. Different versions can be made.

"I haven't built one like a staff yet, but it can be done," Jones said. "One value of a staff version is that a golfer can keep it in his bag and it will tell him there's a cloud overhead and it says this is dangerous," he Golfers, with their long metal golf clubs, make good lightning rods. Golfers make even better targets if they live in Florida, where Jones said lightning strikes most frequently in the United States. "The predominant type of people who are killed are males engaged in outdoor activity - on golf courses, out on a lake in a boat, recreation areas, that sort of thing," he said.

Jones' device is triggered by an electric field produced by an electric charge generated inside storm

"The strength of the electric field draws a weak current from the sharpened tip of the antenna," he said. "The weak current is utilized by the electronic circuit to sound the

"The bigger the current, the more frequently it beeps," Jones said. 'The more frequently it beeps is an indication of a higher probability of lightning.

"The device forecasts lightning by detecting the electric field. The device will not predict where lightning will strike, but only will detect the high probability of a nearby strike," he said.

But, when it comes to lightning, better safe than sorry.

"It alerts people to their being at risk for being struck by lightning," Jones said.

"Once there has been a storm, it (the device) has a further advantage in that it does monitor the storm," he said. "As long as it is beeping, there will be a possibility of lightning."

The device can give about five minutes' warning - long enough to allow people to take shelter, Jones

He said he took his gadget along when he and a friend hiked to the top of Wheeler Peak near Taos last September.

"We sat down, had lunch and talked for a while. It beeped once after clouds had been growing for some time and I said, "Let's get out of here.' We put our backpacks on and walked down a ridge along the trail. Ten minutes later, lightning struck in the vicinity of the peak," Jones said.

He said he wants to test his device a bit more this summer.

"Next fall, I hope to get a company set up in Socorro and start manufacturing and marketing the gadgets," Jones said. "In the long run, I'd like to make it

cheap enough so homeowners can buy it just like they would buy a smoke alarm," he said. "Parents could have one on their home and bring their kids in before lightning

Ann Landers

Safe sex essential

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several weeks ago, I was told about something that happened to the son of a lovely neighbor couple. I have not been able to sleep since. Here's the story. What can I do to help?

As a birthday gift, a group of the young man's pals solicited a sexually active girl to spend three hours with him in a motel. When he was told of the "gift" he tried to get out of it but his friends insisted that he accept it as his initiation into the "fraternity of manhood.

He met the girl in the motel room. After they had sex, she excused herself to go into the bathroom. Twenty minutes went by and she did not return so he went to look for her. On the bathroom mirror scrawled in lipstick was the message, "Welcome to the World of AIDS."

The young man thought it was a joke. Several months later, when he was bothered by headaches, he went to see a physician, the doctor asked if there had been any changes in his behavioral pattern. He thought it best to mention the motel incident. The boy was tested for AIDS and the results were positive.

The girl and her family have since moved out of town. That birthday was the lad's 14th. His parents are beside themselves. What can be done?-Sleepless Nights in Canada

DEAR CANADA: My astute editor, Tom Stites, advised me not to print your letter because he said it is one of those often-repeated stories that has been around for months and may not be true. I argued that the letter should be printed (with a disclaimer) because it illustrates a crucial point-teenagers are just as susceptible to AIDS as adults.

It is apparent that we can't depend on parents to educate their children about safe sex. The job must be done in the schools. It is no longer a matter of "giving kids ideas." They already have ideas. It is now a matter of life and death.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I met and married when we were both 20 years old. He came from a broken home, barely graduated from high school and then went into the service. We were very much in love, had three children in five years and I was happy to be a military wife and homemaker.

Moving so often, changing schools and leaving good friends were hard on the kids but nobody complained. I made it my business to keep the family morale up. My husband often bragged about what a terrific wife I

In 1985, after 23 years of marriage, my husband told me he wanted an "open marriage." I didn't know what he meant. When he said, "I want to be free to take out other women and you can go with other men," I nearly died. I told him I had no desire to be with other men and if he wanted to run around I would give him a divorce. I was stunned when he took me up on it. We were divorced shortly after and within a few months he married a woman younger than our daughter.

He still owes me money on the divorce settlement. I've lost my health benefits and am living from hand to mouth. I feel helpless and miserable. What can I do?-D in Oklahoma

Bernadina Ramos feted with bridal shower

Mrs. Vincent Ramos, the former Bernadina Gamez, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Joe Soliz,101 Quince.

Guests were welcomed by the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Isaia Gamez, and were registered by the bride's sister, Vonnie Gamez.

The hostesses served horse-shoe shaped mauve and gray mints, punch, coffee, and nuts from a table covered with a lace cloth. The focal point of the refreshment table were three square cakes: a yellow cake with pineapple, a white cake, and a banana cake.

The table was decorated by a silver tea service, a floral arrangement, silver candelabra holding mauve tapers, crystal punch bowl, cups and plates.

Hostesses' duties were performed by Helen Rose, R.C. La Fuente, Tina Saldana, Piliar Abalos, Marcella Soliz, Alice Gilleland and Janie Granado. They presented the honoree with a monetary gift.

SOME DEFEATS By Bob Wear

We will not be defeated in everything we try to do, but there will be 'some defeats'. It may be helpful to proceed, as if we are going to succeed in everything we try to do, but we know that there will be some set-backs.

We accept the fact that a strong positive attitude and a hopeful view will be helpful to us in what we try to do; but pretending that everything is alright, when it is not alright will not help us. It is better that we be honest, and accept realities; and accept realitites without being discouraged. There will be some 'success' and some 'defeat'. With a wholesome attitude about living, an occasional 'defeat' can be used to strengthen the life fiber, and provide lessons we need. We can see and accept 'defeats' as only incidents or happenings, as only part of the total life structure.

We must not maximize our 'defeats', and minimize our successes; but accept both for what they are. Of course, 'some defeats' hurt, and may momentarily dominate our lives; but there is no reason to prolong this domination. We must put the 'defeat' where it belongs, just one among the many happenings of the total life structure. "What is defeat? Nothing but education; nothing but better."-W. Phillips.

The possibility of 'defeat' is present in most everything we try to do, but this possibility must not be permitted to lessen our efforts. In fact, we can let it help us to be more diligent in what we are trying to accomplish. When and if we are defeated, we must remember that we can let the defeat make us wiser and stronger. There will be many successes, and we can make sure that these are in the areas and experiences that count the most; such as character and personality suc-

Life is on-going. Let us remember that one instance of 'defeat' does not mean total defeat, just as one instance of success does not mean total-life victory. We must move on, and keep going with the lessons

Adjustable-rate mortgages

Adjustable-rate mortgages are the most complex of the new mortgage forms. The common feature of the ARM is that the interest rate is not fixed and will vary according to an interest-rate index selected when the loan is originated. Lenders are not required to increase the interest rate as the index increases, but they are required to lower the rate if the index decreases.

Astros fall to Smith, Braves 6-1

ATLANTA (AP) - The flicking 14th save. Darling, 6-7, was the winfingers of a wise old catcher, flashing signs to a struggling young pitcher, were the steadying hand Zane Smith needed.

Coached by eight-time all star Ted Simmons, taking a rare turn behind the plate, the Atlanta Braves hurler scattered seven hits to beat Mike Scott and the Houston Astros 6-1 Tuesday night.

"I know how to do my thing. When you have a pitcher who gets ahead early, throws strikes and makes them hit it, it gets easier," said Simmons. "I think he's learning to pitch. I'm just trying to help him."

One way he helped was by repeatedly flashing the sign for Smith's seldom-used changeup.

"My stuff had been getting me by for five innings," Smith said. "But by the sixth, they all knew what I was throwing. Tonight, Ted was the key to the game."

Smith, 9-6, said he let Simmons call every pitch. "I didn't shake him off once," Smith said. "Everything he called was the right thing. He's been around a long time, and with him catching, it teaches me how to pitch."

It was especially sweet for Smith to go the distance. He's had only four victories in his previous 14 starts, despite having the lead in 13 of them, and has not made it past the sixth inning in his last four starts.

The Astros spoiled Smith's shutout bid in the eighth when Craig Reynolds led off with a single and scored on Jim Pankovits' pinch dou-

Scott, 11-7, gave up nine hits in four innings as he suffered his sixth straight loss to the Braves. Scott has won only two games in 11 career decisions against the Braves.

Dion James had two run-scoring singles, a double and a triple in an 11-hit attack by Atlanta.

Ken Oberkfell doubled and Gerald Perry singled off Smith's knee in the first. Oberkfell scored on a wild pitch and Ken Griffey singled home Perry. Andres Thomas singled and scored on James' single in the second. The Braves added two runs in the single, moved to third on James' double, and scored on a single by Oberkfell. James, who went to third on Oberkfell's hit, scored as Perry grounded out.

James drove in the Braves' final run in the eighth with a single. Dodgers 4, Giants 2

Tommy Lasorda is on a roll and his stage has been the third-base coaching box at Dodger Stadium.

Los Angeles had lost six straight games and was playing its worst baseball of the season when the Dodgers manager decided to shake things up by moving in as the thirdbase coach.

Since that move, the Dodgers have not lost and won their fourth straight game Tuesday night, beating San Francisco 4-2 behind Orel Hershiser's four-hit pitching over eight innings.

Lasorda said he'll stay in there as long as the Dodgers keep winning.

Hershiser, 11-9, struck out six and walked two. Ken Howell came on to pitch the ninth and gave up singles to Jeffrey Leonard and Harry Spilman, his fourth hit of the game, leading off. Howell then got Bob Brenly on a pop foul and induced Chili Davis to hit into a 6-4-3 double play to end the game and earn his first save.

John Shelby's two runs batted in helped Los Angeles take a 3-0 lead in the first two innings against Atlee Hammaker, 6-8. Mets 6, Cardinals 4

Tim Tuefel singled with the bases loaded and none out in the eighth inning to put New York in the lead and send St. Louis to its fifth straight defeat.

With St. Louis leading 4-3, pinchhitter Len Dykstra walked leading off the Mets' eighth against reliever Todd Worrell, 4-6. Lee Mazzilli, pinch hitting for starter Ron Darling, followed with a high fly to left that Vince Coleman misplayed for a twobase error. Mookie Wilson was then intentionally walked to load the bases and Teufel followed with a ground single to center to score Dykstra and Mazzilli.

Roger McDowell pitched the final two innings for the Mets and got his

The Reds loaded the bases in the bottom of the inning against Mark Davis, 5-6. With two outs, Davis hit Bo Diaz with a pitch, walked Nick Esasky and gave up an infield single to Kurt Stillwell.

Milwaukee has 15 stolen bases in three games

The Brewers apparently found a flaw in Jose Guzman's delivery, and after falling behind by a 1-0 score in the first inning, they stole three bases in the third and took a 2-1 lead.

Catcher Bill Schroeder, who came into the season with one career stolen base, swiped second after leading off with a single and after a grounder moved him to third, he scored on Guzman's wild pitch.

Molitor then walked, stole second and scored on Yount's two-out single. Yount also stole second in the inning.

Leading 2-1 in the fifth, the Brewers sent Guzman to his 10th loss in 18 decisions when Molitor hit his seventh home run of the season following singles by Dale Sveum and Mike Felder.

That made it 5-1, and an error, a single and a sacrifice fly produced another run in the inning to pad the lead to 6-1.

Yount's 14th homer with Molitor aboard in the seventh made it 8-1. The Rangers had scored in the first for a 1-0 lead after loading the bases with one out. Yankees 2, Royals 1

Rick Rhoden scattered eight hits Tuesday night and led the New York Yankees past the Kansas City Royals

"If you're a good pitcher, you win games like that," said Rhoden, 13-6.

Rhoden pitched his first complete game at Yankee Stadium. He struck out three, walked two and retired the last nine batters.

Rhoden was toughest when he faced his biggest jam, following a leadoff triple by Willie Wilson in the fifth inning with the Royals trailing 2-1. After Kevin Seitzer struck out, George Brett hit a fly ball to medium right field, but Wilson chose not to challenge the arm of Dave Winfield.

The Yankees scored in the first when Gary Ward drew Mark Gubicza's only walk, took third on Don Mattingly's single and came home as Winfield grounded into a double play. Jim Eisenreich hit a sacrifice fly in the third that lifted the Royals into a 1-1 tie.

Juan Bonilla led off New York's third with a single, moved up on Wayne Tolleson's sacrifice and took third on Ward's single. With Mattingly at the plate, Gubicza threw a wild pitch and Bonilla scored for a 2-1

Tigers 3, White Sox 1

In Detroit, Darrell Evans' 21st home run helped Jeff Robinson defeat Chicago. Robinson, who threw a five-hitter, struck out 10 in his first major-league complete game.

The Tigers, who have won 10 of their last 12 games, beat the White Sox despite a three-hitter by Bill Long, 5-6.

Errors by Long and second baseman Fred Manrique enabled the Tigers take a 2-0 lead in the third. Evans hit a solo homer in the fourth. Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 4

Jesse Barfield hit an RBI single that broke a 44 tie in the eighth inning as Toronto beat Boston.

Lloyd Moseby drew a leadoff walk from Joe Sambito, 1-3, and Charlie Moore sacrificed. With two outs, Barfield singled off Bob Stanley.

Jeff Musselman, 9-4, got the victory for the second straight day. Tom Henke earned his 23rd save and second in two games.

George Bell, leading the AL with 83 RBI, hit a two-run single in the third that gave the host Blue Jays a 4-4 tie. Angels 9, Athletics 2

Bill Buckner went 3-for-5 in his California debut and Mike Witt pitched a strong six-hitter to lead the Angels in Oakland.

Buckner, signed as a free agent shortly before the game started, hit a double that keyed a two-run second inning. He had a two-run single with the bases loaded in the fifth against Joaquin Andujar, 3-4.

Witt, 13-6, struck out 11 and walked

Mariners 6, Twins 1

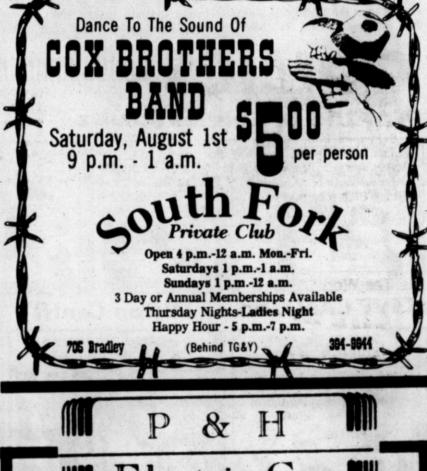

Mike Morgan pitched a four-hitter, Gary Matthews hit a two-run homer and Phil Bradley went 4-for-4 as Seattle beat Minnesota.

Morgan, 8-11, pitched his sixth complete game. Joe Niekro, 5-8, lost his fourth straight decision. Indians 4, Orioles 3

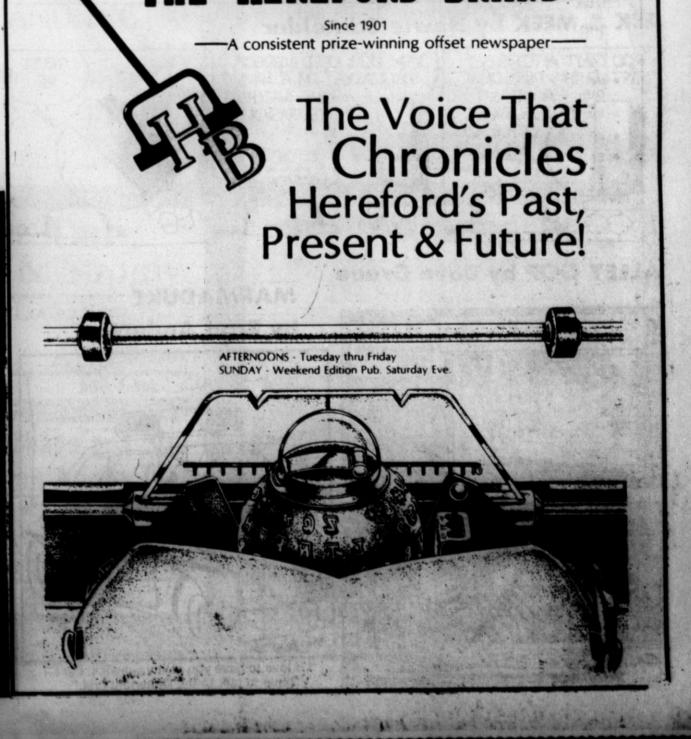

Pat Tabler singled home the winning run in the 10th inning to lift Cleveland over Baltimore.

Tommy Hinzo singled with two outs in the 10th, stole second base and scored on Tabler's hit off Tom Niedenfuer, 2-3. The Indians tied it in the ninth against Niedenfuer on Brook Jacoby's triple and a sacrifice fly by Carmen Castillo.

Sammy Stewart, 3-1, pitched two innings for the victory. Baltimore had won seven straight on the road.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Sean Penn an extra on the set of the movie "Colin The Daily Mail. has until Friday to do some explain-ing to a prosecutor who thinks the pugnacious actor may be violating the terms under which his jail sentence was postponed.

Penn was sentenced to 60 days in jail for parole violation but granted a delay July 6 to finish film projects in West Germany and New York. Unconfirmed sightings have put him out on the town in New York and Los Angeles.

"I'm outraged that he is wandering around the country having a good time when he is supposed to be working," Deputy City Attorney Alice Hand said Tuesday.

A warrant gives Penn until Friday to explain his whereabouts.

Jeff Auerbach, vice president of Sheen-Greenblatt Productions, which is filming Penn's latest movie, "Judgment in Berlin," said Monday, "Penn is in Berlin right now and arrived there the middle of last week."

Penn was on probation in connection with a nightclub scuffle. He was sentenced to jail after being charged with reckless driving and punching

LONDON (AP) - Academy Award-winning lyricist Sammy Cahn is drawing critical acclaim for his show "Words and Music," in which he reminisces about five decades of writing for theater and movies.

The two-hour show, which received a standing ovation at Monday's opening, was first seen on Broadway in

Among Cahn's most celebrated songs are "Love and Marriage," "High Hopes," "Thoroughly Modern Millie" and "Three Coins in a Fountain."

Harry Eyres in The Times of London wrote: "Whatever it takes to write immaculate lyrics under pressure seems to have kept him enviably young." Robin Stringer in The Standard said the show was "highly polished."

Cahn, 74, made no claims for his singing voice, handing over much of the singing chores to others. "His voice sounds rather like an unvacuumed carpet," said Jack Tinker

Poultry producers pushing Chik Chek

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The $6.8 billion broiler chicken industry has begun a campaign to counteract some of the adverse publicity about the contamination of poultry by salmonella and other food-poisoning bacteria.

George B. Watts, president of the National Broiler Council (NBC), released a letter sent July 7 to Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which held hearings on the government's inspection program.

Various consumer groups have strongly urged improvements in federal meat and poultry inspection, which a National Academy of Sciences study found could not guarantee consumers protection against salmonella and other harmful food bacteria.

One recommendation supported by consumer groups and the Agriculture Department is for labeling of poultry to inform consumers that the product should be handled and cooked properly.

In a related development, a manufacturer says the Food and Drug Administration has approved a new test kit developed so consumers can quickly check their fowl for salmonella.

The $5 kit, called Chik Chek, is made by Diversified Diagnostic Industries Inc., Moraga, Calif. The company says the test takes less detect salmonella.

Watts said in his letter to Leahy and other committee members, "Assuring that the consumer receives safe and wholesome chicken has always beena priority of the broiler industry."

Even so, he said, the council's board of directors has just approved a number of projects under way to improve products, including one called GMPs for "good manufacturing practices" for fresh broilers.

The GMPs, Watts said, are being drawn from quality control plans throughout the industry and from scientific literature. When com-than 15 minutes and employs a pleted, the GMPs will be distributed chemical swabbed on the product to all broiler companies for their voluntary adoption.

Watts said the guidelines "will specifically address each major control point in the production and processing of poultry, and are designed to enhance product quality and consumer protection."

Further, he said, "A special task force is drafting cooking and handling instructions to be included in a voluntary labeling program. The committee will develop a number of versions of the labeling, some intended to direct application to poultry products, with alternatives for use in retail meat cases."

Since January, Watts said, more water conservation," said Combest.

"In West Texas, severe weather conditions, such as droughts and high temperatures, often result in reducthan one million food safety leaflets, addressing specific and detailed cooking, handling and storage instructions have been distributed to retail grocers, magazine and newspaper food editors, food associations, schools, extension home economists, meat and poultry distributors and consumers.

Watts said the broiler industry has endorsed the concepts of "risk assessment and risk-based inspection" embodied in the National Academy of Sciences report, including a shift from bird-by-bird visual inspection to a system of statistical sampling and quality assurance tests designed to detect major risks to public health.

The council "agrees that the current system should be changed and that the first step is the completion of a comprehensive risk assessment as called for by NAS," Watts said.

In a fact sheet also distributed by Watts, the council called attention to the academy's assertion that poultry "is a nutritious and desirable part of the American diet" and that "we do not want to discourage anyone from eating chicken."

The council's fact sheet said there has not been any dramatic new rise in foodborne illness, although reported salmonella cultures from all courses have increased over the 25 years records have been kept.

'The good news is that this rise is getting proportionately smaller," the council said. "In 1963, the annual increase was 5 percent, today this number has been reduced to only 2 percent."

Chicken is not a major cause of salmonellosis, the disease caused by salmonella, the bacteria, the council

"According to the centers for Disease Control, for the last 12 years of data, it was impossible to find a food cause for 39 percent of the salmonellosis outbreaks in the United States: 32 percent were the result of mixed foods, 12 percent involved beef and veal, 6 percent were traced to turkey,4 percent to pork and procesed pork, and just less than 4 percent to dairy products," the council said.

"Chicken was only involved in 3 percent of the outbreaks, fish and shellfish in just over 1 percent and lamb in much less than 1 percent."

Microorganisms such as salmonella "are a natural part of our environment and are found on, or in, all types of raw food, meat, poultry, eggs, dairy products and even vegetables," the council said.

"Over the 20 years USDA has tested, the number of chickens with salmonella has been 30-35 percent, and remains in that range today," it

Further, the council said in its fact sheet, "There is no danger from properly cooked chicken" because "salmonella and other dangerous organisms are completely killed at temperatures much lower than thenormal kitchen cooking temperatures necessary to produce table-ready chicken."

Combest proposal passes

The House of Representatives has passed Cong. Larry Combest's (R-Texas) bill to construct a Plant Stress and Water Conservation Reserach Laboratory in Lubbock.

The learning experience is offered to the producer for $500 while the total cost for each participant is $3,500. The difference is from gifts and grants.

Those interested in the program must fill out an application by July 31 and go through a screening process. Class sizes are limited and preference is given to candidates who have demonstrated leadership potential. Candidates must be actively engaged in production agriculture or in a related agribusiness occupation in Texas.

irrigated cropland in the Southern and Western High Plains region account for more than 25 percent of the food and fiber produced in the U.S.," Combest said. "As we look to the future of farming, it is necessary to produce higher yields with less water and with better tolerance to unpredictable weather extremes."

Combets noted that as early as 1959 Congress identified plant stress as a high priority in agricultural research. Following a feasibility study in 1978, the Department of Agriculture recommended construction of a laboratory to house the research program at Lubbock, Construction for the 67,000 square feet facility will be conducted over a five year period at an estimated cost of $27 million. A 50-acre site on the Texas Tech campus has already been leased from the university.

Combets introduced H.R. 2663 on June 11 along with House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza (D-Texas) and Congressman Charles Stenholm (D-Texas).

A SURE FORMULA FOR NATIONAL PROSPERITY!

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, whose people he has chosen as his own. The Lord gazes down upon mankind from heaven where he lives. He has made their hearts and closely watches everything they do. And with a breath he can scatter the plans of all nations who oppose him, but his own plan stands forever. His intentions are the same for every generation. (Psalm 33:12-15, 10-11)

The best equipped army cannot save a kingfor great strength is not enough to save anyone. A war horse is a poor risk for winning victories--it is strong but it cannot save.

But the eyes of the Lord are watching over those who fear him, who rely upon his steady love. He will keep them from death even in times of famine! We depend upon the Lord alone to save us. Only he can help us; he protects us like a shield. No wonder we are happy in the Lord! For we are trusting him. We trust his holy name. (Psalm 33:16-21)

One night the Lord appeared to Soloman and told him. "I have heard your prayer and have chosen this Temple as the place where I want you to sacrifice to me. If I shut up the heavens so that there is no rain, or if I command the locust swarms to eat up all of your crops, or if I send an epidemic among you, then if my people will humble themselves and pray, and search for me, and turn from their wicked ways. I will hear them from heaven and forgive their sins and heal their land. I will listen, wide awake, to every prayer made in this place. (2 Chronicles 7:12-15)
