Weinberger to quit Cabinet post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger intends to resign, after presiding over a huge Pentagon buildup for seven years, and will be replaced by President Reagan's national security adviser, Frank C. Carlucci, sources say.

The sources, speaking Monday night on condition of anonymity, said the change of the guard would be announced soon, possibly Thursday, and that Carlucci's deputy, Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, will take over as Reagan's national security adviser. Powell will be the first black to hold that position.

Neither Weinberger nor Carlucci would comment on the job shift, and the White House also declined to put it on the record. But White House officials did not dispute the report.

Although he has disagreed with Secretary of State George P. Shultz over arms control policies, Weinberger, 70, is stepping aside for personal reasons, largely related to his wife's deteriorating health, rather than any policy dispute, the sources said.

Jane Weinberger, according to acquaintances quoted in today's Washington Post, has undergone radiation treatments for cancer and has been troubled by arthritis.

The expected resignation comes little more than a month before Reagan joins Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev at a summit meeting in Washington to sign the first super-power arms control agreement of the Reagan administration.

Carlucci, 57, grandson of an Italian immigrant stonecutter, is a veteran of three decades of government service, including senior domestic and international positions.

He was second in command at the Office of Economic Opportunity and deputy to Weinberger at the Office of Management and Budget in the Nixon administration. He also was second in command at the CIA under President Carter and second, again to Weinberger, at the Pentagon from 1981 to 1982.

He became Reagan's fifth national security adviser when the Iran-Contra affair forced Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter to resign.

Powell, 50, one of the highest-ranking blacks in the Army, once commanded the 101st Airborne Division. He agreed to become Carlucci's deputy only reluctantly, fearful that a desk job in Washington would stymie his military career.

Weinberger has fought frequent internal battles with Shultz and other White House advisers on topics ranging from arms control and Pentagon spending to the proper use of U.S. military forces. Sometimes he appeared more reluctant than Shultz to commit American forces to trouble spots.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., welcomed the forthcoming changes at the Pentagon. "I just never had very much confidence in Cap Weinberger, and I have a great deal of confidence in Frank Carlucci," he said.

William E. Jackson Jr., senior fellow at the Fulbright Institute of International Relations at the University of Arkansas, said Weinberger's resignation "will, intangibly, improve the atmosphere" at the U.S.-Soviet summit conference opening in Washington on Dec. 7.

"The Russians will read this as a positive sign," Jackson said.

Weinberger is a strong advocate of the "Star Wars" missile defense program and backs continued military assistance to resistance groups in Nicaragua and Afghanistan.

Weinberger served as President Nixon's secretary of health, education and welfare and as head of the budget office, where he earned the nickname "Cap the Knife" for his efficiency at cutting domestic programs.

But at the Pentagon he presided over a $2 trillion military buildup in the face of budget deficits, tax cuts and politically distasteful domestic cuts.

The San Francisco native holds bachelor's and law degrees from Harvard. Following World War II, during which he served in the Pacific with the 41st Infantry Division and later as a member of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's intelligence staff, Weinberger returned to join a San Francisco law firm.

Relaxing at the Glitz

The annual Glitz for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage was held Sunday evening with about 150 persons attending the dinner and art show. Margaret Formby, president and director of the HOF, is shown by the gaily decorated fireplace at the hall. Thirty percent of the sales by artists went to the Hall for operating expenses. This was the third annual Glitz.

Nunnally wins contest

Pat Nunnally, missing just three games, is the winner of last week's Hereford Brand Football Contest. Nunnally, of Hereford, will win $25 in Hereford Bucks.

Finishing second, also missing just three games but not as close on the tiebreaker, was Earl Stagner of Hereford. Stagner will win $15 in Hereford Bucks.

Debbie Lewis of Hereford came out best in a 10-way tie with four misses, and placed third. Lewis will win $10 in Hereford Bucks.

23 people missed just five games in the contest. Winners have until next Tuesday to claim their prizes at the Brand offices at 313 N. Lee. This week's contest appears in this issue of the Brand.

Hereford native headed M.D. Anderson

Clark honor slated Nov. 19

U.S. Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III will give the keynote speech Nov. 19 at the dedication of the R. Lee Clark Building at the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston.

Clark, 81, who was born and raised in Hereford, served as director, then president, of the Institute for 32 years. The 10-story building bearing Dr. Clark's name more than doubles the center's outpatient treatment facilities, adding 343,200 square feet of space to the clinic building. The addition will allow the Institute to accommodate 1,800 clinic visits a day.

Since his retirement in 1978, Clark has continued as an active contributor in the center's fight against cancer.

"The shift toward treatment of cancer patients on an outpatient basis has created a great demand for the expansion of clinic space at M.D. Anderson," said Dr. Charles A. LeMaistre, president of The University of Texas System Cancer Center. "The facility allow us to consolidate the majority of the outpatient services in one building."

"It is also a fitting tribute to the man who set this institution on its historical path."

The UT System Board of Regents, in naming the building in honor of Clark, made a special exception to the requirement that all UT buildings may only be named for persons who are deceased.

Clark was born in Hereford in 1906 to Randolph Lee and Leni Leoti Clark. His father was the founder of Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, and his grandfather was one of the founders of what later became Texas Christian University after an ill-fated attempt at forming a college in Hereford in the early 1900s.

Dr. Clark became the center's first director, in 1946, and oversaw the Institute's move from temporary quarters in the old Baker Estate to a new facility in 1954. Since, the center has expanded three times, and added a research center in 1976.

He retired from the Center in 1978, and served as President Emeritus until 1981, when he was named The University of Texas System Professor of Surgery and Oncology—one of only three, system-wide, appointments made to date and the first in health sciences.

Dr. Clark continues to maintain an office near the hospital.

Our best wishes for a speedy recovery go to Steve Leasure, who sustained burns at his shop last Thursday. Steve is in the burns unit of Lubbock General Hospital, 602 Indiana Ave., Lubbock 79417. We'd also like to extend wishes for a fast recovery to our friend Lloyd Sharp, who has been hospitalized in Amarillo with a heart problem.

"The problem is representation, not discrimination," stated an Amarillo Daily News editorial Monday when it summed up "the situation in Hereford." The newspaper had just completed an eight-part series which dealt mainly with discrimination against Hispanics.

The series on Hereford really didn't present anything new, except some sensational headlines that didn't always mirror the content of the article. We don't discount the fact that there is some discrimination in Hereford, nor that representation of Hispanics needs to be improved. The same can probably be said for Amarillo and most Panhandle towns who have a number of minority residents.

We do resent the manner in which the reporters gathered and presented their reports. Many of the discrimination charges came from just a few citizens, including unsuccessful political candidates, unhappy welfare recipients, convicted felons, and representatives of the Texas Rural Legal Aid and the American Civil Liberties Union.

The Daily News has the right and freedom to express its views on Hereford's conduct of community affairs. This community has the right to resent and to protest the manner in which reporters, with little feel or experience for the area, have judged our community.

Representation needs to be improved, says The News. But they never mention Paul Abalos' service on the city commission and the fact that he was elected before districts were gerrymandered to try to guarantee the election of a Hispanic. Nor do they point out that Sheriff Joe Brown is Hispanic as are a number of courthouse workers; that Art Gonzales is a former board member of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and an active Hereford Hustler for a number of years, or that Ruben Gutierrez is president of Whiteface Kiwanis Club. They should have talked to some teacher aides. One of them told us, "Some of the Hispanic Rights' activists call me a brown-assed Anglo because I have a good education, a good job and participate in community affairs." (See BULL, Page 2)

Cleburne, Crowley band winners

Cleburne and Crowley High Schools were selected as the top Class 4A marching bands at the regional contest Saturday in Wichita Falls. Canyon's band was named as the alternate.

Hereford, Snyder and Graham were the other 4A bands competing in the contest. Cleburne and Crowley are repeat winners, as both advanced to state competition last year. The Mighty Maroon Band had earlier won its 30th consecutive Division I rating in marching at the district contest in Amarillo.

City okays franchise reading

The Hereford City Council approved, on second reading, a proposed 10-year franchise agreement with Southwestern Public Service Company at the council meeting Monday night.

The franchise must be read once more before getting final approval.

The council also okayed a proposal from city manager Darwin McGill to examine the feasibility of a storm drainage system on North U.S. 385 between Save 'n' Gain and Stevens Chevrolet, and gave the Hereford Gun Club permission to erect a sign near the entrance of the Hereford Municipal Airport.

Polls open for amendment vote

Polls opened at 7 a.m. today as Texas voters scanned a lengthy ballot of 25 amendments and two binding referendums.

The ballot ranged from nuclear physics to county treasurers, with issues that could determine the future of the state scattered throughout the two-sided ballot in Deaf Smith County.

Among today's ballot highlights are proposals dealing with an elected or appointed State Board of Education; a $500 million bond issue to help lure the Superconducting Super Collider to Texas; pari-mutuel wagering, which has been outlawed for 50 years in Texas; several amendments, known as the "Build Texas" amendments, which would provide for the sale of bonds and other provisions ostensibly to improve and diversify the state's economy; and general amendments covering primarily local issues that must be approved by voters statewide.

Some portions of the state, including Randall County, will have local elections that should draw a heavier-than-normal voter turnout. Randall County voters also have a local-option election that would legalize pari-mutuel wagering in the county.

There is also a mayoral election in Houston, where incumbent Kathy Whitmire is facing six challengers.

In Austin, voters are again looking at a proposal to move the city's airport from its present location north from downtown to east of the city.

Polls will be open until 7 p.m. today.

Gorbachev to pursue SDI ban

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev says he will go to the summit with President Reagan next month to seek a breakthrough in space weapons policy that eluded the two leaders in their last meeting.

"We will work unrelentingly at these meetings for a palpable breakthrough, for concrete results in reducing strategic offensive armaments and barring weapons from outer space — the key to removing the nuclear threat," the Communist Party chief told the nation Monday.

His speech opened a week of festivities marking the 70th anniversary of the Russian revolution that brought the Communists to power.

The ceremonies continued today with speeches by foreign leaders and representatives of various segments of Soviet society. The traditional Nov. 7 military review and parade through Red Square will cap the celebration on Saturday.

Gorbachev called the agreement banning medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles, to be signed at the summit beginning Dec. 7 in the United States, "very important in itself."

But he said that issue basically was resolved a year ago at the Reykjavik summit, which collapsed over Reagan's insistence on proceeding with development of the space-based defense system known as "Star Wars."

"The world expects the third and fourth Soviet-U.S. summits to produce more than merely an official acknowledgement of the decision agreed upon a year ago, and more than merely continuation of the discussion," the 56-year-old Soviet leader said.

Computer chips short after Japan slows sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan has stopped flooding world markets with low-cost computer chips, the U.S. government says, but now there's a new problem: a scarcity of Japanese chips.

The Commerce Department said Monday that Japan, which earlier had ceased "dumping" computer chips, or semiconductors, at bargain-basement prices in the United States, also has stopped the practice in foreign markets.

That finding is likely to lead to a further reduction of the $300 million in retaliatory tariffs President Reagan imposed on Japanese electronics products last April, administration officials said.

"Our monthly monitoring now shows clear, firm and continuing evidence that third-country dumping has stopped," Commerce Undersecretary Bruce Smart said.

But U.S. companies who had lodged a major trade complaint because of the battering they received from imports of Japanese-made semiconductors now claim they can't get enough of the items—at any price.

Industry officials claim that Japan, in an effort to get the U.S. sanctions removed, sharply curtailed production of chips by its producers, particularly those destined to U.S. markets, to drive up prices. Japan has denied the allegation.

Industry sources, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said they anticipated action by the government of Japan within the next few days to make sure there is an adequate supply of Japanese chips in the United States.

In April, Reagan imposed $300 million in tariffs on Japanese televisions, power tools and small computers. He lifted $51 million of the sanctions in June at the seven-nation economic summit in Venice, citing some Japanese progress toward compliance.

Semiconductors are the tiny electronic circuits that are the building blocks of computers and modern electronic devices. U.S. manufacturers claimed Japan had dumped chips, or deliberately sold them at below-wholesale value, in a calculated effort to dominate world markets.

The U.S. Semiconductor Industry Association welcomed Monday's Commerce Department finding.

"That's a development that is certainly consistent with the intent of the trade agreement signed over a year ago," industry spokesman Coburn Aker said.

In September 1986, Japan agreed to stop dumping chips, both here and abroad, and to give U.S. semiconductor makers greater access to Japanese markets.

Of the remaining $249 million in U.S. sanctions, $84 million deal with dumping and $165 million were leveled because of alleged Japanese refusal to comply with this "market-access" part of the 1986 agreement.

"We still find little evidence of the steady increase in market access called for in the (1986) agreement," Smart said. "Until meaningful progress is registered in this area, the semiconductor agreement is not being fully implemented."

Meanwhile, a congressional report on Monday said Taiwan must do more to cut its lopsided trade surplus, claiming the imbalance is a threat to the world trading system.

The United States, which imported $15.7 billion more from Taiwan than it sold there last year, accounts for 80 percent of Taiwan's trade surplus, according to the report by the Joint Economic Committee.

Iran denies U.S. attack

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A booby-trapped car exploded in a residential suburb of Kuwait this morning, causing some damage but no injuries, police sources and news reports said.

Iran meanwhile denied that a U.S. Navy frigate fired on Iranian vessels in the Persian Gulf on Sunday. Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the attack was on an Indian launch and killed an Indian crewman.

A convoy of two U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti tankers was heading north through the Persian Gulf escorted by two U.S. missile frigates and two smaller vessels that appeared to be minesweepers, shipping sources reported.

The official Kuwait News Agency quoted an official source as saying that the car explosion was in the fashionable Shamiya neighborhood, about 1½ miles from downtown Kuwait. The Interior Ministry is in the suburb but it was not immediately known how close the blast was.

Police sources said the explosion, the second to hit the capital in 10 days, destroyed two cars and shattered windows.

The news agency said one car parked next to the rigged vehicle was damaged. It gave no other details.

An explosion Oct. 24 ripped through a building housing a sales office of Pan American World Airways, causing damage but no casualties. Kuwaiti media blamed that attack on Iranian-inspired saboteurs.

The country lies close to the Iran-Iraq warfront and has been target of several acts of sabotage since December 1983, most blamed on Shiites who are of the same Moslem sect that is predominant in Iran.

Iran considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq in the 7-year-old war.

Tension has been spilling over into the oil-rich Persian Gulf region, spurring a stronger U.S. Navy presence. President Reagan agreed in July to reflag 11 Kuwaiti tankers with the Stars and Stripes to provide them with U.S. protection.

The Pentagon said the USS Carr fired 50-caliber machine guns at three small vessels believed to be Iranian that came too close to the frigate and the tanker it was escorting Sunday.

The Pentagon said Monday that none was known to have been hit. A spokesman for Tehran's War Information Headquarters today denied there was any U.S.-Iranian encounter in the gulf waters Sunday, the Iranian news agency said.

IRNA quoted an "informed military source" as saying the U.S. Navy instead attacked an Indian transportation launch, killing one of its crewmen.

He said all crew members of the launch were Indian and that its destination was the United Arab Emirates.

Nicaraguan defense official comes to US

By The Associated Press

A top Nicaraguan military official familiar with the Sandinista government's tactics, strategy and intelligence has defected to the United States, according to reports published today.

Maj. Roger Miranda Bengoechea, 34, abruptly left Nicaragua on Oct. 25, The New York Times reported today, quoting diplomats, politicians and a Nicaraguan government communication.

The Washington Times quoted a well-placed source as saying Miranda was spying for the United States for a long time before he defected, and is now being debriefed. The newspaper did not say where Miranda was.

The U.S. State Department declined to comment and the American Embassy in Managua said it had no information on Miranda's whereabouts. The reported defection came at a critical time diplomatically, with a Central American peace accord scheduled to take effect Thursday.

"Even if he has not been working for the CIA all these years, he is still a gold mine for them," a foreign military officer who studies the Nicaraguan army told the New York newspaper.

The New York newspaper quoted Miranda's associates anonymously as saying he supervised the staff of Defense Minister Humberto Ortega, brother of Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega.

Miranda also directed the military's public relations effort, took the official notes at meetings of the military general staff and was at private meetings when Humberto Ortega discussed tactics, strategy and intelligence, the New York newspaper said.

Miranda was one of about 105 members of the Sandinista Assembly, the ruling party's top consultative body, the newspaper said.

A Defense Ministry communication said Miranda had left with at least $15,000 in government funds as he was being investigated for "various anomalies."

Miranda apparently went to Mexico on a regular basis for medical treatment, the Washington paper said. Last week, he took his wife along and stayed there. The Sandinistas then closed his office and dispersed his staff across the government, said the newspaper.

Miranda joined the leftist Sandinistas in the 1970s and fought as a guerrilla in the revolution that overthrew dictator Anastasio Somoza in 1979. He may be the highest-ranking Sandinista to depart since Eden Pastora Gomez, who was deputy defense minister and chief of the militia, joined the opposition in 1981.

modernization, known in Russian as "perestroika," or restructuring.

Gorbachev also called for a "truthful analysis" of the role of the late leader Josef V. Stalin and his legacy in Soviet history. He announced creation of a special commission to resume the rehabilitation of Stalin's victims, a task which was begun in the 1950s but suspended after the ouster of Nikita S. Khrushchev in 1964.

He praised Stalin's collectivization of agriculture and industrialization, saying they were central to the revolution, but accused Stalin of "enormous and unforgivable" crimes relating to the execution, imprisonment or banishment of millions of Soviets the dictator

BULL GORBACHEV

The News editorial Monday summed up the situation in Hereford with a quote by British novelist G.K. Chesterton: "It isn't that they can't see the solution' it is that they can't see the problem."

The quote, it seems to us, aptly describes the series of articles in the Amarillo newspaper. They wind up with the conclusion that some problems need to be addressed. We are and have been addressing those problems. Progress has been made, as reflected in our schools, our governmental bodies, our civic clubs and our community. More progress will be made, with or without the urging of Amarillo reporters who have little interest in this community.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear editor: The past week we heard frustrating experiences about living in Hereford. I'm 36 years old and still growing with my family in Hereford. It's a great town to live in and raise kids. To teach our kids to say "no" to drugs and illicit sex and to resist peer pressure is just a small part as a parent. The people who wrote all those articles didn't really have Hereford's best interests in mind. The highest of distinctions is service to others, or to rephrase in my words: "If you can't say something good about someone don't say it." What service did the Amarillo Globe-News do for our homes? A fool knows more in his own house than a wise man in another's house. I'm a Hispanic...no I'm a Chicano...no I'm a Mexican American...no I'm a Tex-Mex...no I'm a Spanish American...no I'm a Mestizo. Anyway, I was born in El Paso about four blocks from the border. So, I am a U.S. citizen and I have the laws to obey. But the greatest law to obey is to love your God with all of your heart, mind, soul and strength. I fail to see where any kind of marijuana or cocaine might strengthen our love to our heavenly Father. I live in Hereford by choice. I'm just trying to make a living here in Hereford and raise a family. Thanks to all of you, I'm working. Every dog is a lion at home. That's what being at home in Hereford means to me. Could you straighten up the Amarillo Globe-News in Sunday's paper? They incorrectly spelled my daughters' names—Melissa and Naomi Grijalva. Also, their scores were 98 for Melissa and 94 for Naomi. Nothing gets my blood circulating more than when you mess with my girls' golf team scores. They're the best. Thank you, Hereford, for the chance of proving ourselves. Jesse Grijalva

Dear editor: Look what the Amarillo Daily News has done for you recently: They have asked you to support the super collider with your money and vote. themselves-investigative reporting. The Amarillo Daily News decided to be judge and jury in Hereford without ever looking in their own backyard. What about the crime rate in Amarillo? The question is why? It could be perceived they want all Battelle and D.O.E. employees to live in Amarillo, and Hereford to only receive the shaft. I suggest the majority of Hereford has chosen to live here for various reasons, but most of us call Hereford home. We enjoy the comfort and feeling of security in knowing our neighbors by name. We are in Hereford, Texas by choice not by chance. I for one did not appreciate the Amarillo Daily News smear campaign. Integrity in reporting should be paramount. We live in an imperfect world and realize Hereford is no better nor worse than our neighbor Amarillo. We are addressing our own areas of concern and will place our priorities where we want them. To this issue I suggest the Amarillo Daily News clean up their own backyard before they presume to tell Hereford what is wrong in Hereford. Robert Baker

Dear editor: There is no doubt that the newspaper media is a very effective tool (or weapon, which ever the case may be) for helping indecisive individuals or companies make decisions. Decisions such as where to live or establish business based on objective articles on social climate, local government, schools, crime rate, etc. Regardless of local resident's views of government employees and supporting companies moving to Hereford I'm sure the majority of Hereford residents agree that the Amarillo Daily News has "done us dirty." I would like to know if complimentary copies of the Amarillo Daily News (or possibly just objective article clippings) are being sent to certain government agencies and companies considering relocating to Hereford. If by chance they need more copies, they can have mine and send it wherever they want. Sincerely, Greg Skypala

HHS girls win 1-4A cross country title

The Hereford High School girls' cross country team won the District 1-4A championship last Saturday at Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock.

Hereford, led by first place runner Nancy Garza, had a team score of 19 points, compared to 45 by second place Canyon.

Benny Carrasco of the HHS boys' cross country team also qualified for regionals by placing fifth. The top two teams and the top five individuals in each varsity divisions qualified for the regional meet, which is scheduled in Lubbock this Saturday.

The top three teams and top 10 individuals in the regional meet advance to the state meet in Georgetown on Saturday, Nov. 14.

The Hereford girls' district title was the first for the school since 1963 (class 5A). HHS girls' teams were District 3-5A runnerups in 1984 and 1985, and third last year in District 1-4A.

Garza became the first Hereford High School runner to win the gold medal in the district varsity girls' race. She was third in District 1-4A in 1986 and second in District 3-5A in 1985.

Garza's time of 12:15 was her best time ever in meets at the Olympic qualifying course in Lubbock in her three seasons of varsity competition.

HHS tennis team suffers heartbreaking regional loss

It was the biggest heartbreak of heartbreaks for the Hereford High School tennis team Saturday when they lost the Region 1-4A team tennis championship match to Monahans on total sets, 21-19.

Hereford and Monahans tied 9-9 in the singles and doubles matches, forcing the team tennis match—and the regional title—to be decided on sets.

The heartbreaking loss brings an end to an outstanding tennis season for Hereford, which has won two straight District 1-4A championships. Only the regional champions advance to the state tournament.

"It's disappointing when you get that far. But when you give it all you've got, what can you say?" Hereford Coach Ruben Vargas said.

HHS spikers tie for third in District 1-4A

Hereford High School finished in a tie for third place in District 1-4A volleyball by defeating Borger, 15-12, 15-17, 15-8, on Friday in Borger.

The victory gave Hereford a final district record of 9-5, tied for third with Levelland. First place Pampa, 14-0, and second place Dumas, 10-4, advance to the bi-district playoffs.

Hereford also won the junior varsity match over Borger, 9-15, 15-11, 15-7. Hereford's final season record in junior varsity matches is 16-5.

Friday's varsity and junior varsity matches, which were played at the same time, were moved from Saturday because of regional band competition.

The 1987 season was a great turnaround for Hereford High School after two seasons (1985 and 1986) in which the varsity record was a combined 2-42 and the junior varsity record 2-35.

"I'm real proud of our accomplishments this year. We were in Hereford girls' golfers finish fall season

Hereford High School's girls' golf team defeated Amarillo High 356 to 386 in a dual match played Saturday at Phillips Country Club in Borger.

Amy Coneway of Hereford shot a 78, the low round of the dual match and also the low round for all golfers from eight schools competing in matches.

Two triangular matches were also played Saturday. In one of them Borger won with a 408 compared to 437 by Pampa and 472 by Palo Duro. The other triangular match saw Plainview shoot a 421, Tascosa 467 and Caprock 531.

Coneway's 78 was seven strokes better than the rounds of Cristi McBee of Plainview and Becky Buccola of Amarillo High.

Hereford's Brenda Martinez placed fourth with a score of 86. The Grijalva sisters, Naomi and Melissa, shot a 94 and a 98, respectively. Susan Bell had a round of 100.

Hereford's team score of 356 was the best of the fall season, Coach Stacy Bixler reports. The HHS golfers will resume competition in the spring season, which will include the District 1-4A rounds.

Here are the Hereford golfers nine-hole totals and overall totals for Saturday's round: Amy Coneway, 41-37-78; Brenda Martinez, 42-44-86; Naomi Grijalva, 46-48-94; Melissa Grijalva, 48-50-98; Susan Bell, 49-51-100.

the playoff picture all the way to the last week of the season and that certainly helped keep motivation high," Hereford Coach Brenda Reeh said.

"I think our players' attitudes and discipline both on and off the court this season contributed greatly to our success. The players developed an attitude in which they expected to win no matter who they played.

"That's what turns programs around. They've had a great season," Reeh adds.

HHS sophomores win over Monterey 13-7

The Hereford High School sophomore football team came from behind in the fourth quarter Saturday to win at Lubbock Monterey, 13-7.

Hereford, which is 5-4 for the season, plays its season finale at Denver City this Thursday at 7 p.m. The game will be against the Denver City junior varsity team.

The contest at Denver City was added to the schedule after a Nov. 12 game against Canyon was cancelled.

Hereford gained a 6-0 lead in the first quarter Saturday when Jason Walterscheid completed a pass to Chuck Lemons for a 65-yard scoring play.

Monterey moved ahead of Hereford 7-6 in the fourth quarter. Hereford's Burt Noland completed a 68-yard pass to George Madrigal for the winning touchdown with three minutes left in the game, and Eddie Cantu kicked the extra point.

"Brad Mason and Chuck Lemons did a fine job at tailback," Hereford offensive Coach Stan Carter said, noting that Mason had 85 yards in 10 carries.

"It was a very exciting win for us. We played real hard and overcame a bunch of adversity. I'm real proud of these kids. They had a lot of fun," Carter adds.

Defensive Coach Ron Young praised the entire defensive team for their play in the game: "It was a tremendous defensive effort. We probably held them to under 100 yards total offense."

Hereford intercepted a Monterey pass and also recovered a fumble.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago I married a man who was in law school.

The first three years of our marriage were filled with tension and hostility.

He had trouble handling pressure and took it out on me.

When he failed to pass the bar exam I stood by, pregnant, sick as a dog for six months, worried about our future and gave him pep talks regularly.

The second time he took the bar he passed, but he couldn't find a job for nine months. He stayed at home and watched the baby while I went to work.

He would call me at the office several times a day, hollering and screaming about how frustrated he was. When I got home, he would run past me to get out of the house and not return for three or four hours. He said he had to work out at the gym to keep from going nuts.

During those incredibly trying months when he wasn't working I was scared to death to leave the baby alone with him. He behaved irrationally and was very irritable and short-tempered. When he finally found a job, it was 2,000 miles away. The baby and I followed. His position is prestigious but now he doesn't like it.

He blames me for everything that goes wrong, finds fault with my cooking, complains that I'm not earning enough money and says I am not intellectually stimulating. Three times in seven months I have packed to go home, but I lose my nerve and stay.

There's nothing to go home to. My family is struggling to get by and can't help me. I am torn between staying with my husband and going home to hard times. I also worry that he will have a breakdown if I leave. Please, Ann, tell me what to do.—Tortured in Denver

DEAR DENVER: Insist that your husband get professional help and treat you decently. Give him six months to shape up. If there is no improvement, leave.

You are better off alone than with an immature, mean-spirited man who uses you as a whipping post and an outlet for his frustrations. If you find yourself unable to leave after all the punishment you've taken, you need professional help.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a senior citizen who has lost three or four inches in height the last few years. This, as you know, is part of the natural aging process. It is very depressing to be reminded daily that I am shrinking.

I am meticulous about grooming. I dress in excellent taste and always look my best, but I have no control over my height. Why can't people understand this? My husband is the most important person in my life. Every day he says, "Honey, you are just beautiful." His compliments make me feel wonderful until some friend tells me that I look like an elf. Any advice, Ann? — Annoyed in Arizona

DEAR A. IN ARIZ.: Stand tall, both figuratively and literally, and ignore the clods. If they live long enough they will, probably get the same comments.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Now it can be told. The U.S. Army developed the AIDS virus to curb the population explosion in Haiti and Africa and cut down the number of sex perverts in New York and San Francisco.

Eliminating these undesirables will make it a better world. No sane person will disagree. Right?—I.M. Brilliant (Indiana)

DEAR INDIANA: U.R. NUTS. I wish all the people who think like you would join hands and fall into the black hole of Calcutta, never to be heard from again.

Are you struggling with decisions about sex and needing more information to help you make them? Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," can be like talking to a good friend. To receive a copy, send $2.50 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Merry Mixers host supper

Tables decorated with fall centerpieces, by Joan Womble, were the setting for a covered-dish Mexican food supper and style show at the Merry Mixers Square Dance Club regular dance recently.

Assorted dishes of Mexican food were brought by the members, who also modeled for the style show. The square dance fashions were furnished by Arlene's Square Dance Shop, of Amarillo, and Arlene Marchbanks emceed the show. Styles for both men and women were modeled by 14 men and women.

Visitors for the supper, show, and dance represented seven different area clubs, from Amarillo, Dimmitt, and Lubbock. Clubs represented were the Silhouettes Club, XYL&M, Ye Ole Squares, and TopTex all from Amarillo.

From Dimmitt there were members of the Castro Country Kurlie Q's and the Dimmitt Promenaders and the Solo Squares from

Good manners getting attention

By LOIS McFARLAND
The Scottsdale Progress
SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Twenty or 30 years ago, office etiquette just wasn't important. But as more women entered the workplace, things changed. Now manners count in the office and beyond, says Beverly Cooper, president of the Etiquette Centre.

"After more than two decades of allowing rudeness to reign, today's executives and professionals, and those aspiring to join the senior ranks, have found that a neglected social education impedes career progress," Ms. Cooper said.

She said this rudeness came about because manners weren't taught in the home — or if they were, children didn't listen. The sit-down meal was passe and children were reared by the "fast food on the go method."

"So we have a whole new set of rules today," Ms. Cooper added. "A lot of rudeness many times is because people don't realize they are being rude. They don't know what the more appropriate behavior might be. A lot of them just simply don't know the rules. These people are in their 20s, 30s, maybe even 40s."

In today's competitive business world, the social graces are being taught because people just don't know them, she said. "The little things add up," Ms. Cooper said. "Minor details make up the total person. There is a certain way to make a proper introduction and many people avoid making introductions simply because they don't know how to do it and they are uncomfortable."

"Nor do they know how to give a proper handshake or whether to stand when somebody enters the office," she added. "Just what is the rule now with women in the business world? Do men stand or don't they?"

In today's business world, introductions are genderless, she said, but they do depend on protocol.

"The more prominent person's name is spoken first," she said. "It is not necessarily the woman's name that is spoken first as in a social setting. Rules are pretty much the same where a woman's name is spoken first when making an introduction in the social world or an older person's name is spoken first."

The question of when to stand is more complicated in the business world.

"The rule is to remember that it is genderless," she said. "So a woman should rise to greet somebody (man or woman) just as if she were a man."

Rules also have changed for paying the bill when the meal is over. "The person that did the inviting pays the bill. It's as simple as that. A man shouldn't feel like he has to pay if he has been invited by a woman. The women really have to be in control and take the check as soon as it arrives at the table," she said.

Ms. Cooper teaches people in her etiquette seminars to be more comfortable and more self-confident at social and business occasions.

"The most important thing is to make an introduction," she said. "We should on the first occasion use Mr. or Ms. or Mrs. A lot of older people especially are offended by people calling them on a first-name basis the first time they meet. You let that person say, 'Please call me Beverly,' or whatever the name might be. If you forget somebody's name, just be honest."

Table manners is another area Ms. Cooper emphasizes in her classes. She works on getting young business people to keep their elbows off the table through a practical dining session.

"One of the big questions with table manners is which knife and fork to use," she said. "People don't know the basic place settings or how to set a table. So if you don't know how to set a table, you wouldn't know which plate to use. Your salad plate and butter plate are always on the left and the drinking utensils are always on the right. With the silverware, you always start from the outside and work your way in."

One courtesy that seems to be dropping by the wayside among the younger generation is the RSVP. "I stress that an RSVP means to respond to an invitation within a week after it is received and preferably sooner," she said.

"We are finding that more people are beginning to send thank-you notes," Ms. Cooper noted. "Thanking people for gifts is an absolute requirement. That's another way of standing out, of giving yourself the edge."

Ms. Cooper suggests eliminating slang from the vocabulary. She also stresses speaking in complete sentences and using complete phrases.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — Many of you may have taken notice recently when State Comptroller Bob Bullock announced the state probably would end the current biennial budget period with a $197 million surplus. We took notice, and had something of a mixed reaction to the announcement.

We obviously were pleased, as surely every Texan is, that state government appears to be back in the black. All of us were tired of hearing about the state's fiscal crisis, and no one enjoyed having to make the tough choices that are required in times of crisis. The news seems to indicate that the worst is over and that future budget decisions can be made in something other than a panic atmosphere.

More than that, though, the surplus announcement is comforting because it says something positive about our economy. The mere fact that we may have a surplus points to some fundamental improvement in the state, or at the very least shows our economic downturn has bottomed out.

Still, we are concerned about the news because it might lull some into a false sense of security. Some leaders might be tempted to devote less than their full attention on the economy and state finance because they assume that a recovery has begun and that it would be best to continue on our current course.

Bullock obviously shared these same fears because he said in his announcement that the surplus does not mean Texas' economy is booming. He said that much of the surplus is due to Gov. Bill Clements' line-item veto of a series of budget items. Those vetoes were highly controversial, cutting into programs that benefit the Panhandle and South Plains, but one can't argue that they are responsible for 70 percent of the current surplus. A close look at the surplus, then, reveals an economy that is poised to begin a recovery but one that has no guarantee of future success. The question remains: How should we react to the surplus and what should we do to ensure future economic success?

In our opinion, we should do anything but stay the course. When we opposed the record tax and budget bills enacted this year we did so because neither could do any long-term good for the state. Our position on those bills hasn't changed.

The state's tax structure still is woefully out of sync with the economy. We have a tax system that may not be able to fully take advantage of future economic growth and in fact may hinder growth with its high sales tax rates (8 percent in some cities). Our entire system of taxation in Texas must be reviewed in the coming months and work begun on a new system that has as its cornerstone a reduction in the tax burden for the average working Texan.

The new system also should be flexible enough so that future surpluses are not squandered as past ones have been. Future surpluses either should be laid aside to protect against future crises or should be returned to the taxpayers in some form of tax relief.

We are pleased to report that there is a select committee on tax equity operating currently that is charged with doing what we suggest. Though there is no guarantee this committee will be able to arrive at a solution for our tax-structure problems, we think the committee has a commendable goal and we wish them much success.

Finally, we must continue to keep state spending under a tight rein. We're not saying essential services like education and law enforcement should be ignored. They shouldn't. But, we must guard against excessive spending in any area.

If we allow this surplus to clear us of the panic that has been gripping state government and take advantage of this opportunity to review our whole financial process with an objective eye, truly good news could be in store for all Texans.

If you have any questions about the budget surplus, or other issues, please write us at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas, 78711.

THE PRODUCT — A wood repair system.

Manufacturer's claim — That this system consists of a wood filler combined with a wood hardener to repair, rebuild and restore wood that has rotted or decayed ... that it is especially good for the rebuilding of rotted window sills, rotted deck planks and softened wooden columns ... that the hardener is formulated with a special resin that penetrates deeply into wood, binding and reinforcing decayed wood fibers while protecting against further moisture damage ... that, after as much of the decayed, spongy wood as possible has been removed, the liquid hardener is brushed on, saturating the softened wood and hardening within minutes to permit multiple applications and forming a solid base after drying ... and that the wood filler is then used, permitting sanding, drilling, planing, carving, painting or staining within 30 minutes.

The world's best source of borax, a water softener, is in the Mojave desert, California.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am recovering from prostate surgery. My doctor said they found three small cancer cells you could only see under a microscope. I asked him if there was anything more we should do at this time. He said we could go back in and take some more for a biopsy, but then we would have nothing left. He said at my age — I'm 68 — it would probably be 10 years before anything would have to be done.

I have a nagging feeling of not wanting to wait 10 years until something drastic has to be done. I always thought when you found cancer, you did everything you could to stop it at the beginning. Should we be doing something more than just checking every six months?

DEAR READER: In the past it was believed that the early stages of prostate cancer, particularly in an older male, could be disregarded, because such a cancer would not be expected to progress rapidly enough to be a problem during the man's life. More recent studies suggest that such early prostate cancers may be life threatening.

In a study from Johns Hopkins University of 50 men with such early cancers, eight showed progression of their cancer within eight years. Six of these eight died from prostate cancer, and one who was still alive had serious progression of his cancer. That, and related studies, have caused a rethinking of how to treat early prostate cancer.

At age 68, you certainly could live long enough for your prostate cancer to progress. The current thinking by many of the experts is that the younger male with early prostate cancer is either a candidate for radiation treatment to the prostate, or radical surgery to remove the entire prostate. A new operation developed by Dr. Patrick C. Walsh at Johns Hopkins will preserve the nerve and vascular supply to the area to prevent impotence in a high percentage of such cases.

A recent national panel of experts convened by the National Cancer Institute recommended a large study to compare the relative benefits of radiation versus surgery in the treatment of early prostate cancer. The panel of experts specifically rejected the idea of having a group of patients who received no treatment to serve as controls. That means they believe men with such early cancer should be treated, either by radiation or surgery.

I'm sending you my recent Special Report 71, The Prostate Gland. Others who want this issue can send $10 and a long, self-addressed envelope with 39 cents postage to THE HEALTH LETTER 71, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Can you tell me why, after two lengthy sessions at a certified electrolysis clinic, I still have as many hairs on my chin as I had before I went for treatment? The electrologist says it will take a lot of treatments to get rid of unwanted hair. I was under the impression that one treatment on each hair would be enough to kill the root permanently. This is expensive and I don't want to keep going indefinitely.

DEAR READER: The problem is that you have many fine hairs and dormant hair follicles that are not visible at one time. Even though the hair follicles for the visible hairs are destroyed, the others then sprout and you have more hair on your chin. Such hair is a lot like weeds in the garden. You can pull one crop and there is another crop next week. Only after repeated treatments can all the follicles (i.e. roots) be identified and destroyed.

But you might see a doctor about the actual cause of your increased hair. In some cases hormone therapy will stop the recurrence of prominent hair. That may take six months. Then electrolysis will remove the visible hair. Hormone therapy will continue to suppress the hair growth.

Where women want their skirts to stop

A recent survey of working women in six major U.S. cities found that, despite the latest fashions, 92 percent preferred to wear longer skirts — those with hemlines below the knee — to work.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

A friend of mine is going to be 80 this year and I remember once reading in your column that the president would send 80-year-olds a greeting card.

Would you please reprint the address for me? I'd really appreciate it. — Linda, Poncha Springs, Colo.

When requested, President Reagan will send a birthday card to persons 80 years of age or older. He will also send an anniversary card to couples celebrating their 50th anniversary.

Here is the address: Attention: Greeting Office, The White House, Office of Communications, Washington, D.C. 20500. Please be sure to include the "Attention: Greeting Office" on the envelope. Happy birthday to your friend. She is lucky to have a good friend like you. — Heloise

Send a great hint to: Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, Texas 78279

PLASTIC BAGS

Dear Heloise: Save those plastic bags from the fruit section of the supermarket. When taking baby out, take a few of these bags along.

Put a soiled diaper inside, tie a knot and it's neat and convenient to hold until you can dispose of it. — Mrs. James Schultz, Jersey City, N.J.

BACON TIP

Dear Heloise: When I take bacon out of the fridge and it is cold and I want to separate it, I just put the package in the microwave and defrost it for 30 to 45 seconds. This sure helps me out. — Helen, Morrison, Colo.

Planning tips for income tax listed

The time to do something about your 1987 income tax situation is now—not after the end of the year.

Dr. Wayne Hayenga, a Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist, says there is a number of things an individual can do now to ease the 1987 income tax burden as well as to better deal with recent changes in tax laws.

—If you think your tax rate will fall next year, postpone 1987 income until after Jan. 1 and shift itemized deductions from 1988 to 1987.

—Be sure to get a Social Security number for any child over five because you will need it to claim the child as an exemption on next year's tax return.

—If you have a home-equity loan, keep home improvement receipts as such expenses increase the amount of interest you can write off on the loan.

—Set up separate bank accounts for money borrowed for different purposes, such as personal, business and investment, so you can prove to the IRS how the money was used.

—Buy bank certificates of deposit or Treasury bills maturing in 1988 if you expect your tax rate will fall next year.

—If you are self employed and don't qualify for an IRA deduction, open a Keogh account before Dec. 31.

—Short-term capital gains (from investments held six months or less) will be taxed only up to 33 percent in 1988, so postpone taking such gains.

—Take long-term capital gains in 1987 if you will be in the 33 percent bracket next year; no more than 28 percent of profits will be taxed this year.

—You can no longer defer taxes on a late-December transaction, so avoid selling stocks for a gain during the last five business days of December unless you plan to pay 1987 taxes on the profits.

—Offset gains with capital losses this year; you can use up to $3,000 of losses to reduce regular income and carry excess losses into 1988.

—Wait until after a mutual fund pays taxable capital-gains before investing; otherwise, some of your money is returned to you to be taxed.

—Since 65 percent of consumer interest is deductible this year, pay off credit cards and personal loans.

—If you plan to borrow investment capital, set up a margin account; interest on the loan is deductible up to your investment income plus $6,500.

—To pay off consumer debt that is not fully deductible, get a tax-deductible home-equity loan or second mortgage.

—If you're in the market for a house, buy one this year to deduct the mortgage points. If you're selling a house this year and owe tax on the gain, the capital-gains rate will be no more than 28 percent vs. 33 percent next year.

—To treat your vacation home as a residence or investment property, consult your tax adviser.

—Handle year-end deductible charitable contributions by credit card and write the check in 1988.

—Miscellaneous expenses must exceed 2 percent of adjusted gross income to be deductible if you itemize. Such expenses include tax and investment advice, union dues and safe-deposit boxes. Calculate these expenses to see if you are near the 2 percent mark.

—nonreimbursed business expenses, such as meals and entertainment, are 80 percent deductible; business travel may be 100 percent deductible, as a miscellaneous expense. Keep all receipts.

—To be deductible, medical expenses must exceed 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income.

—pay state or local income and property taxes before yearend unless you will owe the alternative minimum tax; in that case, the taxes will not be deductible.

—Consider buying work-related equipment you can write off up to $10,000 or begin depreciating purchases in 1987 as long as deductions don't exceed business income.

—A bank or brokerage custodial account for your child will reduce taxes on earnings if the child is 14 or older. If a child is younger and gets less than $1,000 in taxable interest or dividends this year, earnings will be taxed at the youth's rate, if at all.

—EE savings bonds for a child between 4 and 14 can defer taxes on the interest until the bond matures. After age 14, taxation will be the child's rate.

—For any child who earned 1987 income, consider a tax-deductible IRA.

—If you pay more than half of your parents' household expenses, you can claim a personal exemption of $1,900 a parent.
