School Spirit

The Hereford High School Drill Team is working hard, during a three day clinic this week, to learn routines they will be performing for Herd fans during the football season's half-time activities. Learning the complicated choreography takes concentration and physical endurance but these girls find the challenge fun.

Drill team getting its kicks

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

The high kickers on the Hereford High School Drill Team are getting ready for a new season of fun and excitement for football fans this fall. While the football team is learning plays at the field house, 24 dedicated girls, under the sponsorship of Sue Powell, are learning five feature routines they will perform during the season.

The routines will be performed to the songs Rockin' Robin, R-O-C-K, San Antonio Rose, On Broadway and Hip to be Square.

Nicki Harle, director of the Wrangler Belles Dance Team at Cisco Junior College, choreographed the dance routines and, along with assistant Ginny Steele, a lieutenant on the Wrangler Belles, is in Hereford this week teaching the complicated steps to the drill team.

Powell, a biology teacher at HHS, says she believes this is the 17th year for the drill team. It is her ninth year as sponsor. "I took a year off last year to sit in the stands and watch my daughter, Kristi, perform," she says. "Sara Lawson filled in for me."

Last year's team had 36 members but the number has been cut back to 24 this year because the girls will be using flag routines more and, according to Powell, 36 flags on a field is a little overwhelming.

50 hopeful teens tried out for the 24 positions last spring. Four, of the 24 who made the team, were selected by an Amarillo judge to be officers for the team. They are Stacy Bromlow, captain; and Kim Emerick, Deanna Hobbs and Anjani Wuerflein, lieutenants.

The officers attended a special camp to learn routines which they will be demonstrating for the other members of the team. They will also be the four girls front and center during drill team performances.

Team Managers are Judy Garcia and Jennifer Johnson.

Heat is returning

By The Associated Press

Heat advisories were issued for part of North Texas early Thursday as the mercury was expected to climb to readings over 100-degree mark.

National Weather Service officials expected the heat index to range from 105 to 100 degrees in south central North Texas.

Temperatures were in the 70s and 80s over most of the state. In the Panhandle and higher elevations of far West Texas, readings were in the 60s.

The early morning extremes ranged from 60 degrees at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 85 degrees at Waco in the central Brazos Valley.

Tankers at sea

Iran launches subs

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — As Iran tested a tiny submarine in the murky waters of the Persian Gulf, three Kuwaiti tankers arrived outside the area to begin a journey with U.S. escorts through the strategic waterway.

Gulf shipping sources said none of the tankers would enter the gulf today, as originally planned, but would probably begin the trip next week. The three-day Iranian naval maneuvers are scheduled to end tonight.

Tehran radio on Wednesday said the exercises, code-named "Martydom," displayed "the power and greatness of Islam against world arrogance, in particular against the mischiefs of plotter America." Iran also has said the exercises would honor hundreds of Iranian pilgrims killed in clashes during the annual Moslem pilgrimage to Mecca, Saudi Arabia.

Tensions between Saudi Arabia and Iran flared followed the killings, which Tehran blamed on the Saudis and Washington. Tehran radio on Wednesday quoted an unidentified Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying Saudi soldiers had surrounded Iran's embassy in Riyadh and its consulate in Jidda.

In the Iranian capital of Tehran, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini canceled all appointments scheduled for today, the final day of the Moslem Eid al-Adha feast, a major Islamic holiday. A Tehran radio report, monitored in Nicosia, did not explain the move by the 87-year-old revolutionary patriarch.

It is unusual for such a prominent Islamic leader to be absent for Eid al-Adha observances unless he is ill.

On Wednesday, Iranian state television showed the country's first submarine, a 20-foot-long vessel.

Before the sub was shown on television, a Western military expert in London said such rudimentary craft are little more than "large torpedoes" carrying one or two men, intended to sneak up to larger vessels and attach mines to their hulls.

Gulf shipping sources were skeptical about the submarine's usefulness in the shallow gulf, which has a maximum depth of less than 300 feet and is very murky in places.

In Washington, Pentagon sources said three empty Kuwaiti tankers had arrived in the Arabian Sea, south of the gulf. They are to be put under the American flag and escorted by U.S. warships through the gulf, one of the battlefields in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

A total of 11 Kuwaiti ships are slated for Stars and Stripes protection under a U.S. plan to protect navigation in the gulf. The Reagan administration adopted the plan after the Soviets leased three tankers to the Kuwaitis.

Iran has singled out Kuwaiti tankers for attack, accusing oil-rich Kuwait of aiding Iraq in the gulf war.

During the first U.S.-escorted convoy, the supertanker Bridgeton struck a mine off Iran's Farsi Island. The ship was repaired and partially loaded, and is waiting near Kuwait to begin its return trip.

The Pentagon has decided to dispatch U.S. Army helicopter gunships to operate from Navy ships in the gulf to defend against possible attacks by Iranian speedboats, said officials in Washington, speaking on condition they not be identified.

Local Roundup

Police look for hit-and-run vehicle

A Hereford man was treated and released for injuries he received in a hit-and-run accident Wednesday night. Nato Basquez, 49, received lacerations to the skull when a car struck him on Bradley Street. Hereford Police Department officers have not yet filed a completed report on the incident.

A convenience store clerk was frightened by a man who pulled a knife which she described as having a blade longer than five inches. The man began telling the clerk how sharp the knife was and then slashed the sleeve of her blouse with the weapon. Officers were unable to locate the man and the woman said she did not want to file charges.

Other offenses reported include reckless driving on the 700 block of Bradley, harassment in the 200 block of Lake, two incidences of harassing phone calls in the 200 block of Sixteenth, bicycles taken in the 400 block of Lawton and the 500 block of South 25 Mile Ave., a barking filed on a barking dog in the 100 block of Ave. C, plant spray drifting into a neighbor's house on the 700 block of South Texas, a civil dispute in the 800 block of South Schley and trespassing in the 100 block of Hiebach.

A vehicle fire was reported at the city swimming pool, seven citations were issued and three accidents with no injuries were reported.

Information is of relative value.

Franklin P. Adams, noted newspaper columnist, once said "Ninety-two percent of the stuff told you in confidence you couldn't get anybody else to listen to."

It was a wise insight, and it points out an important fact. Much of what we think is vital information is considered just so much noise by other people. And when you put information in print, there are a lot of readers out there who may question your news-value judgements.

The editor may place a story on Page 12 which contains information that some readers deem valuable enough for Page 1. Or it could be the other way around—a story on Page 1 may seem so dull to some readers that they wonder why it wasn't on Page 12. The secret, we assume, is to hit the majority of the readers with the right selection and placement of news articles.

As a newspaperman, I can be accused of bias, but I believe that print offers readers more information value in the news and advertising they see and it offers advertisers more selling value for each advertising dollar invested.

In the advertising arena, newspapers have advantage over radio and television in that people choose to read ads. The ads can be checked, circled, underlined, torn out, photocopied and passed along. In this way, they can work for days, even weeks, and still generate impressions—and deliver more sales.

Roy McQueen, publisher of The Snyder Daily News, has made some unscientific observations and came up with a solution of his own. He notes that many American men have some type of hearing loss, and that ailment is often a frustration for the spouse who is asked to repeat what is being said.

Scientists say that a passionate kiss sends many messages through the body. It ups the blood pressure, increases the production of insulin and adrenaline and makes the heart beat faster. It even sharpens the sense of hearing.

McQueen's solution is for wives to practice passionate smooching on their husbands. It will improve the marriage and perhaps help his hearing!

U.S. gulf commitment one of largest since Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's decision to provide protection to Kuwaiti oil tankers in the Persian Gulf is forcing the Pentagon into one of the largest deployments of American forces since the Vietnam War.

By the end of the month, U.S. Navy forces alone in the region will include at least 24 combat and support ships carrying more than 15,000 sailors and officers.

That total does not include military personnel posted in several Persian Gulf countries such as Saudi Arabia and Oman where Air Force and Navy surveillance aircraft, respectively, are based, and in Bahrain, where the Navy's Mideast Task Force has a small support facility.

Although the Pentagon refuses to disclose the precise number of American servicemen in those three countries, the total could be as high as 2,000.

The last time such a large American force was gathered for a single mission was in early 1986, when the Navy combined three aircraft carrier battle groups for operations across Libya's "Line of Death" in the Gulf of Sidra.

At least 25,000 men and more than 30 ships were involved in those maneuvers; each aircraft carrier carried at least 5,000 men.

The Libyan operations were short-lived, however, as were other recent missions such as the 1983 invasion of Grenada and the deployment of Marines to Lebanon that same year.

Reagan administration officials have said Navy escorts for Kuwaiti tankers will continue as long as those ships are threatened with attack by Iran.

That open-ended commitment — Iran has vowed to continue attacking Kuwaiti ships as part of its 7-year-old war with Iraq — has been coupled in recent weeks with the realization that U.S. forces must be bolstered to deal with the threat of underwater mines and speedboat attacks.

The result is a slowly building commitment of American forces to one of the most difficult regions in the world in which to mount operations.

Since May 17, when the USS Stark was inadvertently attacked by an Iraqi warplane, the number of Navy warships posted inside the gulf has grown.

From three destroyers and three frigates, the Navy now has eight warships in the gulf — three cruisers, one destroyer and four frigates — in addition to the command ship LaSalle.

Two other large Navy ships are either on the way or soon will be: The helicopter carrier Guadalcanal will bring mine-sweeping choppers to the gulf, while the amphibious landing ship Raleigh is steaming with small mine-sweeping boats and SEAL fast-attack boats.

Just outside the gulf, patrolling in the northern Arabian Sea and directly supporting the convoy operations, is another Navy battle group headed by the carrier Constellation. Approximately 5,000 sailors and airmen are on the "Connie."

Steaming with that carrier is one of the Navy's most modern Aegis-class cruisers, the Valley Forge, plus one destroyer, two frigates and two support ships.

Now in the Pacific Ocean and steaming toward the gulf is another Navy battle group headed by the giant battleship "Missouri." That group, expected to arrive within the next 10 days or so, is known to include another Aegis cruiser, the Bunker Hill, the nuclear-powered cruiser Long Beach, one destroyer, one frigate and one support ship.

The Navy also has dispatched small teams of underwater demolition experts to the gulf along with a team of sonar technicians. Pentagon sources disclosed Wednesday that several Army helicopter gunships also had been ordered to the gulf to help Navy warships defend the tankers against speedboat attacks.

Pentagon officials speaking on condition they not be named said the mix of U.S. forces in the region can be expected to change over time. The battle group headed by the Missouri, for example, may at times operate on its own as a strike force ready to retaliate in the event of Iranian attack, allowing the Constellation to make port calls to rest its crew.

The officials concede, however, the forces committed to the gulf operations have already grown significantly beyond what was originally envisioned.

Court weighs appeal to stop investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A court is considering whether the Justice Department's backup appointment of independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh blunts Lt. Col. Oliver L. North's constitutional challenge to Walsh's authority to investigate the Iran-Contra affair.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals heard lengthy arguments on the issue at a hearing Wednesday that was attended by the former National Security Council aide.

North, a target of the criminal investigation into the secret sale of weapons to Iran and the diversion of funds to the Nicaraguan Contras, is challenging Walsh's authority as a federal prosecutor.

He wore his Marine uniform and, flanked by plainclothes Navy security agents, sat in the front row during the hearing that lasted more than two hours.

Defense attorney Barry Simon argued that Walsh is operating under an invalid Justice Department appointment as well as an unconstitutional independent counsel statute under which he was named by a special court.

"If the act is unconstitutional, if the regulation is invalid, then the grand jury is tainted," Simon argued.

He also claimed Walsh's assistants lack legal authority to present evidence to the grand jury because they did not take the proper Justice Department oath of office.

Hiroshima marks anniversary of attack

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — A moment of silence enveloped Hiroshima and doves soared over the once-devastated city today as Japan recalled the blinding flash 42 years ago that jarred the world into the nuclear age.

"I hope that on this day, the world's 5 billion people will think about what happened here," Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone told about 55,000 people gathered at Hiroshima Memorial Peace Park. "I pledge that we will build peace on this earth," he added.

At 8:15 a.m., the city of 1 million observed a moment of silence, punctured by the solemn tolling of a bell, as it remembered the more than 140,000 victims of the Aug. 6, 1945 bombing.

A U.S. B-29 bomber dropped "Little Boy," the first atomic bomb used against humans, on this regional military headquarters for southern Japan. Three days later, a second U.S. bomb devastated Nagasaki, killing an estimated 70,000 people.

The Japanese government surrendered unconditionally on Aug. 15, 1945, to end World War II.

Hiroshima has been rebuilt and "the oleanders are blooming now as if nothing happened here," Nakasone said. "But in the minds of the people, the scars of the bombing must still remain."

Nakasone said the United States and Soviet Union had produced "bright news" with their moves toward an accord on deep cuts in

Second energy crisis predicted

HOUSTON (AP) — An energy crisis worse than that of the 1970s could befall the United States if oil shipments are disrupted through the Strait of Hormuz, two experts said.

"We would go very quickly past $30, $40, $50 (per barrel of oil), somewhere up there," said Arved Teleki, president of Houston-based Hydrocarbon Consultants, Inc. "There is no telling."

Teleki and George P. Mitchell chairman of Mitchell Energy & Development Corp., on Wednesday held a news conference to outline implications for the United States of a disruption of supplies.

"You're going to go through the 70s cycle of gas lines, school shutdowns and problems all over the nation," said George P. Mitchell, chairman of Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. "The national security is at stake."

Alzheimer drug being tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-year clinical trial of an experimental drug that may help control memory loss in some patients with Alzheimer's disease was announced today by the federal government.

The plan calls for approximately 300 Alzheimer patients to be given the drug — tetrahydroaminoacridine, or THA — at 17 research sites across the nation.

The study follows a report by William K. Summers last November in The New England Journal of Medicine in which he described favorable results, with minimal side-effects, in 16 of 17 patients treated with THA.

"One patient was able to resume most of her homemaking tasks, one was able to resume employment on a part-time basis, and one retired subject was able to resume playing golf daily," the California physician said in his report.

Other drugs have been tried in the past, but either did not work or had side-effects that rendered them unacceptable.

Although researchers are hopeful THA may prove helpful in treating the memory loss associated with early stages of Alzheimer's disease, they caution that it is not expected to stop or reverse the disease's course.

That is because THA seems to modify memory loss by blocking the brain's normally rapid breakdown of a chemical messenger called acetylcholine that helps control memory.

However, brain cells die as Alzheimer's disease progresses and a drug such as THA that affects the breakdown of acetylcholine can work only as long as there are enough living cells to produce sufficient levels of the chemical, which is just one of the brain chemicals affected by the disease.

The clinical trials were announced by Robert E. Windom, assistant health and human services secretary, who oversees the Food and Drug Administration and other medium-range nuclear weapons.

The 45-minute ceremony took place near a carpet of yellow chrysanthemums, the flower of mourning for the Japanese. A flame at the park that is to burn until all nuclear weapons disappear from the earth surged higher during the minute of silence.

As Nakasone spoke, protesters unfurled a banner demanding a new law granting more benefits to the 350,000 Japanese designated as A-bomb survivors.

In other parts of the park, groups of left-wing and ultra-nationalist right-wing demonstrators chanted slogans and made speeches over loudspeakers. They, too, stopped their activity during the minute of silence.

"It is increasingly important that future generations be told about the horrors of nuclear war," said Hiroshima Mayor Takeshi Araki. He said 5 million schoolchildren visited Hiroshima in the past 10 years.

A coalition of eight peace groups declared that the Japanese must fight not only nuclear weapons but also the Japanese militarism "that rounded up citizens of Hiroshima ... to go off and trample over countries of Asia" in the early years of the war.

The United States entered World War II after Japan attacked Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

The coalition said it wanted to erect a display in the peace park "showing what Japan did to other countries, so that we will not forget the country's past aggression against Asian peoples."

The coalition also pledged to seek a ban on nuclear weapons at U.S. military bases near Hiroshima.

Araki, the mayor, said the names of 4,619 A-bomb victims who had died in the past year had been added to a list kept in a marble cenotaph, bringing the total to 148,177.

Trouble brewing for telethons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Trouble may be brewing for charity telethons, those marathon fundraisers that tax the endurance of exhausted performers on stage as well as that of the viewers at home.

Jon Ross, a veteran broadcaster who is producing a "minitelethon" for the Leukemia Society of America this weekend, says the traditional telethon has fallen on hard times.

Ross said telethons are caught in a crunch amid rising production costs, increasing program choices for viewers and viewers' declining attention span.

His fund-raiser, "Six Hours for Life," will be telecast at various times this weekend on 82 stations.

"Jerry Lewis started the telethon for muscular dystrophy in 1965," said Ross. "It took a while to get off the ground, then it became a Labor Day tradition. Others saw it and said, 'Hey, let's do that, too.' The next thing you knew there was a flood of telethons."

"They all had a familiar pattern. They all urged you to call early. The hosts all took off their jackets and showed you how exhausted they were."

The 1970s were marked by the growth of independent stations, UHF stations, cable, pay television and videocassettes.

"Stations started paying more for programs and charging more for advertising," said Ross. "And here comes the telethon. It became more and more difficult to clear that many hours. But it was also hard to turn the charities down, so they began to charge them more money. Some stations gave the time free, but many charged $10,000 to $20,000 an hour.

"You can't fault the stations. They have to pre-empt a lot of programming and they lose a lot of income. The quality of some telethons has gone down and the viewer gets turned off. The attention span is very short. If you're not entertaining them all the time, they'll turn it off."

The March of Dimes will not stage a telethon this year because it was unable to get station clearances, Ross said. The Cerebral Palsy Society has not made a decision yet whether it will stage a telethon this year, said spokeswoman Nina Gordon.

The Jerry Lewis Telethon for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, however, will go on again this year over the Labor Day weekend.

"We've had no clearance problems whatsoever," said Richard Mann, associate director of public relations for MDA in New York. "I've seen Mr. Ross' remarks and I believe he's been making that prediction for several years. But we have a network of 200 stations and we have had no problems."

Mann agreed that the fact that it was the oldest and most famous of the telethons probably contributed to its acceptance by the stations.

School traumatic for family members

The start of a new school year is just around the corner. While some children are ready for the classroom, others may need extra help to make school an enjoyable experience.

This can be especially true for the oldest child, according to a Texas Christian University elementary education professor.

"The parent often finds the experience of sending the first child to school harder than does the child," said Dr. Luther Clegg. "The most important thing is to make the child feel that this is a positive experience and that school is an exciting, fun place to go."

The oldest child may be a little apprehensive about starting school, but others in the family usually look forward to school because they will be going where big brother or sister has gone, he said.

Although entering school for the first time may cause anxiety, the change from elementary to middle school often is more traumatic, Clegg observed.

"A child in the middle school grades is at an age when he or she is not an adult but also not really a child, which makes it a difficult time," he explained. In addition to keeping track of their children's performance in school, Clegg suggested the parents let the child know they are still accountable to their parents, while acknowledging that they are growing up.

What is the best thing a parent can do to keep a child prepared for the classroom? Read, read and then read some more, advised Clegg.

"I think it goes back to the parents," said the TCU professor. "If the parent reads, the child will see reading as being important; but, if the parents never read, then the children are less likely to incorporate reading into their everyday activities."

Dear editor:

I should like to take this opportunity to thank the people in Hereford for giving me the pleasure of working with their children as a teacher. I have consistently had outstanding students year after year, and that is a credit to the parents of these students. The cooperation of my colleagues, my administrators and the school board could not have been better all the years of my tenure.

In the last 17 years we have spent in Hereford, we have met many people we are proud to call friends. We shall miss our friends as we are moving from Hereford. Please continue to be the Hospitable, Hustling Hereford we have known.

Ann Landers

Bed-hopper fears AIDS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read your answer to the man who was concerned about his family's ability to deal with AIDS, if he should come down with it. He asked about taking his life to spare his loved ones financial hardship and the agony of seeing him suffer. You advised him to lead a normal life and practice abstinence. I am a heterosexual woman who can't stop bed-hopping. Though I'm concerned about AIDS and I try to be sensible, I sometimes find myself where I shouldn't be, doing things I shouldn't do.

I've had sex with at least 200 men in the last 20 years. I have not been tested for AIDS because I'm not sure I could handle it if I tested positive.

Do you believe the danger to heterosexual women is as great as they say? I read recently that deaths in the next 10 years from AIDS will number as many heterosexuals as homosexuals. I will watch for your reply because I don't dare give a return address.—Scared in Florida

Question: Do I dare tell Mr. Wonderful that I could go for him in a big way if he dropped about 30 pounds? My former husband became quite heavy the last few years of our marriage, and I was turned off completely by his bay window.

I need a better head than mine right now. Please be there for me, Ann. I don't want to mess up what could be a wonderful chance to have a good life with a great guy. At the same time I don't want to marry a man who doesn't appeal to me physically.

I am aware that people tend to put on weight as they get older, and this guy could be a blimp in 10 years. Pelase help me. — Hartford

DEAR HART: Whoa there! One doesn't leap into such a risky topic after one date. Give the relationship a chance to take root and grow. It after five or six evenings together you feel the same, it might be OK to chance it.

The best approach would be to talk about the health risks of excess pounds. You could offer to go with him to Weight Watchers or Overeaters Anonymous, even though you don't need it yourself. The signal that you care about him could be a big plus. Meanwhile, be realistic. Mr. W. could drop the weight to get the girl, but he might not keep it off. Put that into your computer for future reference, Buttercup.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a No. 10, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR SCARED: Your promiscuous history suggests that you are indeed a candidate for AIDS.

You should be aware that if you are infected, you can infect a partner even though you have no symptoms yourself. This is why AIDS is so treacherous, and why you should have yourself tested immediately. For people with histories of promiscuity, not to be tested is to be irresponsible to the point of endangering the lives of others. If you turn out to be infected, you must abstain or, at the very least, practice safe sex. I also implore you to stay out of strange beds.

Somehow we must get this message across to everyone, starting in school at the earliest possible age.

At the risk of sounding like a broken record, I repeat: Monogamy with a faithful partner is the best protection next to total abstinence.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a professional woman (divorced) and in my late 20s. A friend fixed me up with an extremely attractive man (also divorced), and we had a perfectly wonderful evening together. It was one of those divine four-hour dinners. We left the restaurant only after the maitre d' gave us that "Please, we'd like to go home" look.

Loving given certificate by Texas Rebekah Assembly

Richard and Juanita Haines of Amarillo were welcomed as guests of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 Tuesday evening.

Noble Grand Anna Conklin presided at the regular business session. Forty-nine visits to the sick and 30 cheer cards were reported.

Financial secretary Erma Loving was presented a certificate for keeping a perfect set of books and financial report issued by Rebekah Assembly of Texas.

Four youths place first in fashion show

Four Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers were among 170 4-H club members from 20 Panhandle counties that showed off their skills in clothing construction and buying as they stepped out in "Big City Nights", the district fashion show held recently at Frank Phillips College in Borger.

In the clothing construction division, Kristi Powell was a first place winner for her nontailored daywear. Karon Harder was named as one of the top seamstresses in the junior division for her active playwear and Sheila Teel captured first in the same division for her specialty wear. Trisha Teel was first place winner for her casual daywear in the intermediate bracket for construction.

The top seniors in eight categories will represent the district Aug. 17-18 at the state contest in Amarillo. Alternate winners in seven of the categories also will model their fashions at the state show, but won't compete for awards.

Others representing Deaf Smith County with top ranking score cards were Jill Dutton, intermediate buying and Jennifer Hicks and Cheryl Schlabs, intermediate construction. Others representing junior construction categories were C.D. Shirley and Susan Rickman.

The 4-H fashion show culminates a year-long learning program. The program helps boys and girls develop leadership and decision making skills, build self-confidence and poise, understand personality and clothing needs and develop skills in planning, selecting and constructing clothing.

Brockman named SWC All-Academic

Hereford's Lee Brockman, a junior linebacker at the University of Texas, was presented Monday in Dallas as one of the 24 players named to the GTE-SWC Academic Football Honor Team.

The honor team was presented at SWC kickoff luncheon Monday in the Reunion Ballroom of the Dallas Hyatt Regency. Members of the team were recognized for "distinguished academic and athletic achievement."

A native of Hereford and one of the most-recognized gridirers in the school's history, Brockman enters the season as the Longhorns' starter at strongside linebacker. He stepped in as number one linebacker three games into the 1986 season and made three starts before suffering a season-ending shoulder injury against Arkansas. In his two fulltime appearances last fall, Brockman made 10 tackles against Rice and 14 against Oklahoma—both team highs.

A former standout athlete for Hereford High School, Brockman is the son of Donna and the late Allan Brockman of Hereford.

"We are extremely proud to have the opportunity to recognize publicly the accomplishments of these outstanding young men," said SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby. "The excellence each has achieved, both in the classrooms and on the field, is remarkable."

The presentation also marked the inauguration of a comprehensive effort to honor scholar-athletes in all 12 SWC-sponsored sports during the 1987-88 academic year, through GTE's sponsorship of the SWC Academic Honor Team program. Athletes must meet the following requirements: (1) must be a letter winner, (2) must have been in residence at least three semesters or in the final season of eligibility, (3) carry a 3.0 grade average, and (4) have contributed significantly through leadership and example.

Pitcher Ed Walsh won 40 games for the Chicago White Sox in 1908, during the era when the team was called "The Hitless Wonders."

Sherrard is out

Cowboys get bad break

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Mike Sherrard's fractured right leg not only has put the gifted Dallas Cowboys' wide receiver out for the season, but forced Coach Tom Landry to rethink his entire passing game.

The Cowboys had planned to go deep to the fleet Sherrard this year after the 1986 first-round draft choice from UCLA averaged 18 yards per catch last season.

"We'd built our deep passing attack around him," Landry said.

Sherrard went down during a pass scrimmage against the San Diego Chargers on Wednesday.

He tripped over cornerback Carl Brazley and when Sherrard fell his left leg crossed over his right leg, causing the fracture.

"I did it to myself," Sherrard said as he was being loaded into an ambulance for the ride to a hospital. "It was just a freaky thing."

The Cowboys are coming off a 7-9 season, including a 1-7 finish.

Landry said "We'll have to build our passing game around somebody else now but you really can't afford to lose your top player.

"We have players who can play so someone else will have to take charge."

Landry wasn't certain who would take Sherrard's place.

The wide receiver position has been plagued by injuries.

Newly acquired wide receiver Rod Barksdale pulled a hamstring muscle in the scrimmage against the Chargers.

On Tuesday, Ray Alexander broke his arm and last week rookie wide receiver Everett Gay severely sprained an ankle.

Club President Tex Schramm said "It was a very freaky, sad thing to happen. I doubt he (Sherrard) has a chance to play this season. We're not concerned about this season. We're concerned about his future."

"It's a tremendous loss. He was one of the cornerstones of our offseason program. Everything was built around him. You hate to see it happen. For it to happen is a crime. Of all people...."

Sherrard's 41 pass receptions for 744 yards last year was the best performance by a Dallas rookie receiver since Bob Hayes caught 46 passes in 1965.

A walk-on at UCLA, Sherrard was the school's all-time leading receiver.

"Mike was going to be a big part of our offense this year," said tight end Doug Cosbie. "It's a little depressing. I really feel sorry for Mike. He had worked so hard."

"The whole thing about our team this year was to keep healthy. Now it looks like our whole passing game will have to be rethought."

Retired Dallas wide receiver Drew Pearson, who watched the incident from the sidelines, said "it's shocking. I had told him (Sherrard) earlier this week that if he avoided injury he was going to have an All-Pro season. This leaves a big void on the team."

Pearson added "Dallas really doesn't have another deep threat. Barksdale has great speed but he has a long ways to go. I don't see him helping by opening day."

The Cowboys obtained Barksdale Monday from the Los Angeles Raiders in a trade for cornerback Ron Fellows.

Sherrard was second in fan voting last year for the NFL rookie of the year. He caught five touchdown passes.

"At least we lost Mike early so we will have time to make a change," Cosbie said. "Emotionally this really hurts the team because we know what the can do."

Howe ready for return

NEW YORK (AP) — The proposed return to the major leagues of pitcher Steve Howe, whose career was jeopardized by drug use, apparently is stalled over a difference of opinion between the Texas Rangers and baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth on the timing of such a move.

The problem, according to published reports today, is that the Rangers believe the left-handed relief pitcher is ready to return to the majors. But the commissioner's office did not clear the return during a meeting Wednesday with Rangers officials.

"There is an obvious disagreement (between the Rangers) and the commissioner's office regarding Steve Howe," club president Mike Stone told the Dallas Times Herald on his return Wednesday night to Arlington, Texas. "I don't want to get into it, but it doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out what it is."

Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve said the team doesn't need permission to bring Howe up from its AAA American Association club at Oklahoma City.

"We don't need Ueberroth's approval..." Grieve told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "But we don't want to do anything to upset major league baseball."

"Steve Howe has done everything and more off the field and on the field to prove he's a good baseball player and a first-class citizen."

Ueberroth met with Stone and Rangers owner Eddie Chiles.

"A number of subjects were discussed, one of which was Steve Howe," Rich Levin, a spokesman for the commissioner's office, said Wednesday.

"There is no change in his status. He is still with Oklahoma City," Levin said in concluding his statement.

Jim Small, another commissioner's office spokesman, said there is no current suspension or restriction prohibiting Howe from playing for Texas.

Howe, 2-2 with a 3.48 earned run average for the 89ers, has been tested frequently for drugs since joining the team last month, his agent, John Lence, said.

"The Rangers have tested him at least two times a week and sometimes three or four times a week. Every test has been negative of any chemical substance. That includes cocaine, amphetamines, uppers, downers and even alcohol. His pitching performances (shows it is) obvious he is physically and mentally ready," Lence said from his home in Kalispell, Mont.

Howe, the 1980 Rookie of the Year in the National League for the Los Angeles Dodgers, told the Dallas Morning News he was unaware of new developments.

"I don't know what's going on right now. I came here to pitch, but until I have a better idea of what's happening, I'd rather not say anything," Howe, staying at an Arlington apartment, told The Dallas Morning News.

His past use of cocaine led to suspensions, fines and monitoring by baseball authorities.

Howe played for the Dodgers until 1983, when he was fined $54,000 and suspended by the club. Then Commissioner Bowie Kuhn extended the ban through the 1984 season.

Howe was placed on the National League restricted list in June 1985 and then signed with the Minnesota Twins of the American League in August of that year. The Twins later released him, also for drug-related reasons.

He began the 1986 season with the San Jose Bees, an independent team in the Class A California League, but tested positive for cocaine and was suspended.

Howe was then suspended by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which governs the minor leagues. But the drug-related suspension was lifted last month and he joined the 89ers.

He also agreed to participate in a drug-rehabilitation after-care program with the 89ers.

Close calls help Houston, Montreal

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

A couple of close calls in Montreal and Houston helped keep both National League races close.

The Montreal Expos escaped a bases-loaded jam in the 11th inning Wednesday night and Andres Galaraga's home run in the 13th provided a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"It was a very important win for us because we took two out of three in a big series," Galaraga said. Galaraga, who had four hits, tied the game in the ninth with Montreal's third straight single after two outs.

St. Louis' lead in the NL East was trimmed to 4½ games over New York, which took advantage by routing Philadelphia 13-3, and five over Montreal. The defending World Series champion Mets have not been this close to first place since May 15.

The Houston Astros, aided by a disputed call in the ninth inning, beat San Francisco 6-5 in the 11th on Denny Walling's pinch-single.

Houston remained 3½ games behind NL West-leading Cincinnati, a 6-3 winner over Los Angeles. San Francisco fell five games back.

The Giants led 5-3 with two outs in the ninth and no one on base. But the Astros loaded the bases and Kevin Bass hit a sinking line drive that right fielder Chili Davis dived for, and first-base umpire Dutch Rennert ruled Davis trapped the ball. Two runs scored on the play, although pinch-runner Terry Puhl was thrown out at the plate.

Giants Manager Roger Craig argued the call and replays appeared to indicate Davis made the catch.

"It was right in the pocket. It never hit the turf," Davis said. "He blew the call."

In other NL games, Pittsburgh routed Chicago 10-0 and San Diego beat Atlanta 7-3.

Bob Forsch and the Cardinals took a four-hitter and 1-0 lead into the ninth inning before Montreal rallied. Hubie Brooks' two-out single finished Forsch and reliever Todd Worrell gave up single to Tim Wallach and Galaraga.

Worrell has blown 10 of 32 save opportunities this season. Galaraga hit his ninth home run of the season in the 13th off Ken Dayley, 6-2.

"Earlier in the game, I was trying to hit line drives, but in the 13th I was thinking about a home run," Galaraga said. "I hit it hard and yelled, 'Go, go, go.'"

In the 11th, the Cardinals loaded the bases with one out. But Andy McGaffigan got Willie McGee to ground into a force out at the plate and struck out Terry Pendleton.

The Expos loaded the bases with two outs in the 10th before Brooks grounded out. Casey Candaele led off the 12th with a triple but Montreal could not score him.

Randy St. Claire, 3-3, got the victory as Montreal raised its record in extra-inning games to 7-1.

The Astros also succeeded in extra innings when Walling's pinch-single beat San Francisco. Gerald Young led off the 11th with a double, took third on Billy Hatcher's sacrifice and, after bill Doran was intentionally walked, Walling batted for pitcher Larry Andersen and grounded a single to right field.

Houston swept the three-game series. Eddie Milner went 5-for-6 with three doubles for the Giants.

Andersen, 7-4, got the victory and Jeff Robinson, 6-8, took the loss.

Mets 13, Phillies 3

Gary Carter hit a pair of solo homes and two-run double and Darryl Strawberry hit a three-run homer as New York beat Philadelphia for its fifth straight victory.

The host Mets completed a three-game sweep and sent the Phillies to their fifth loss in a row.

John Mitchell, 3-3, pitched six innings for the victory. Randy Myers finished for his second save.

Reds 6, Dodgers 3

Barry Larkin's two-run single capped a four-run sixth inning as Cincinnati again beat Fernando Valenzuela and Los Angeles.

Dave Concepcion and Dave Collins hit run-scoring infield singles to break 2-2 tie in the sixth against Valenzuela, 9-9.

Ron Robinson, 5-3, gave up five hits in six innings. John Franco pitched the final inning for his 19th save.

Padres 7, Braves 3

Rich Gossage moved into a tie for second place on the all-time save list and Stan Jefferson's three-run homer capped a five-run second inning as San Diego won at Atlanta.

Garry Templeton and pitcher Jimmy Jones hit RBI singles before Jefferson connected for his fourth home run.

Jones, 4-4, got the victory. Gossage went the final 1 1-3 innings for his eighth save and 286th of his career, tying Bruce Sutter. Rollie Fingers holds the record with 341.

Doyle Alexander, 5-9, took the loss. Dale Murphy got his 1,500th career hit for the Braves.

Pirates 16, Cubs 0

Brian Fisher pitched a six-hitter for his second shutout this season against Chicago as Mike Diaz's two-run triple led Pittsburgh.

Fisher, 7-4, struck out five and walked two.

Yankees finally beat Cleveland

Youth was served when 48-year-old Phil Neikro made his 712th major-league start and 23-year-old Brad Arnsberg his second.

Arnsberg, despite giving up four walks and seven hits in six innings, didn't allow a run as he won his first major-league game and the New York Yankees avoided a series sweep by Cleveland with a 5-2 victory Wednesday night.

"I don't think I walked four guys the whole time I was in (Class AAA) Columbus, and I pitched 150 innings there," Arnsberg said. "I struggled with my curveball, and when I threw my fastball for strikes, it was over the middle of the plate."

Mike Pagliarulo led the Yankees with two homers off Neikro, but he said neither came off the veteran's fabled knuckleball.

"The pitches I didn't hit were knuckleballs, and they were the nastiest pitches I've ever seen," said Pagliarulo, who now has 23 homers. "The ones I hit out of the ballpark were sinkers, screwballs or whatever."

The victory kept the Yankees, who lost the first two games of the series 2-0 and 15-3, a half-game ahead of Toronto in the American League East.

In other games, it was Toronto 3, Chicago 2; Oakland 3, Seattle 1; California 6, Minnesota 1; Detroit 4, Kansas City 2; Milwaukee 5, Baltimore 1; and Texas 9, Boston 8.

The Indians left 12 runners on base, and they didn't score until the ninth, when Andy Allanson hit his first home run and Pat Tabler added an RBI single off Tim Stoddard. Dave Righetti got the final out for his 21st save.

Manager Doc Edwards said the Indians gave Arnsberg too much help.

"We chased some pitches that were out of the strike zone," Edwards said.

"He (Arnsberg) showed poise," Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said. "He got the big outs when he needed them. He popped out two guys with the bases loaded."

Blue Jays 3, White Sox 2

Toronto kept pace with the Yankees thanks to a ninth-inning rally against Chicago, climaxed by Ernie Whitt's two-run double with two outs.

With the White Sox leading 2-1, Willie Upshaw opened the ninth with a single off loser Rich Dotson, 8-8. Garth Iorg then hit a grounder to second, and both runners were safe when shortstop Ozzie Guillen dropped Fred Manrique's throw for an error.

Dotson appeared to get out of the jam when he got two groundouts, but Whitt doubled off the right field wall.

Jimmy Key, 13-6, was the winner with eight innings of eight-hit pitching, and Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his 25th save.

Greg Walker hit his 20th homer in the fourth inning to account for both Chicago runs.

Angels 6, Twins 1

California tightened the AL West race when John Candelaria held Minnesota to two hits and no walks in six innings.

Candelaria, who spent 45 days on the disabled list after two arrests for drunken driving, was making his first start since June 16. He faced the minimum number of batters thanks to two double plays.

The Angels trail Minnesota and Oakland by one-half game, with the Athletics leading the Twins by .005.

Candelaria's duel with right-hander Bert Blyleven, 10-9, was broken open in the fifth inning when Bill Buckner's three-run homer gave the Angels a 6-0 lead.

Athletics 3, Mariners 1

Oakland took a slim hold of first place as Jose Rijo and Gene Nelson combined on a five-hitter and Jose Canseco hit his 23rd homer.

Rijo, 2-5, called up from Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League just before the game to replace the injured Joaquin Andujar, allowed five hits in 5

McDonald just wants to work

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - The glory days of the Rose Bowl are long gone for Paul McDonald.

The cheers of thousands after two Rose Bowl victories by his Southern California Trojans are just old echos and now McDonald is simply trying to find a job on the bench with the Dallas Cowboys as a third-string quarterback.

He's got Danny White and Steve Pelluer ahead of him and a fast gun, rookie Kevin Sweeney of Fresno State, behind him.

His football career could soon be over.

"I'll just do the best I can do," the seven-year NFL veteran said.

"Whatever happens will be great with me."

The left-handed McDonald, who held the NCAA record for lowest interception career percentage and went 43 games without throwing an interception, has had his chances in the NFL.

He started all 16 games for the Cleveland Browns in 1984 and completed 55 percent of his passes despite 53 sacks. He had waited for his chance on the bench behind Brian Sipe.

McDonald completed 13 straight passes in a game against Houston and finished the year with 3,472 yards. He had 320 yards passing in one game against New England.

But he was released by Cleveland after the 1985 season. He didn't throw a pass as he sat on the bench behind Bernie Kosar and Gary Danielson.

McDonald was signed by the Seattle Seahawks for 1986, but was cut before the regular season.

Then Dallas signed him as insurance when White's wrist was cracked.

"I was disappointed in Seattle last year," McDonald said. "I felt I didn't get a chance to show what I could do. I completed 7 of 11 passes, which wasn't too shabby."

McDonald played for Dallas offensive coordinator Paul Hackett at Southern California and Cleveland, his biggest ace in the hole when the final cuts come.

"It's a big plus for me knowing how he thinks," McDonald said. "I do have experience. I've been in big games as a starter. I know what it's like."

"I feel I can add something to the Cowboys. But it doesn't matter what I think, does it?"

"I realize I'm sort of on the bubble. But I do have a business degree I feel I can put to use in some capacity if things don't work out. I might give broadcasting a try. But I don't really know if I'm any good. I anchored a sports news show for two weeks. I found out it's not all that easy."

McDonald has been impressive in the Cowboys' daily, two-a-day workouts.

"It's the best shape I've ever been in," McDonald said. "I'm giving myself the best chance to do what I can do to make this team."

McDonald's to change Big Mac wrap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Big Mac will look and taste the same, but fast-food colossus McDonald's says the sandwich will begin doing its part to help the global environment.

In action hailed on Capitol Hill as a model for the eat-and-run industry, McDonald's announced a plan to phase out use in the United States of foam containers manufactured with chlorofluorocarbons, or CFCs.

Scientists say those chemicals, in wide and increasing use around the world, are destroying the atmospheric ozone layer that helps protect humans from the sun's cancer-causing, ultraviolet rays.

The Reagan administration, warning of increased risks of skin cancer, has been negotiating this year with other industrialized nations in an effort to have CFC production decreased by as much as 95 percent worldwide.

Clifford Raber, government relations vice president for McDonald's, said Wednesday that the world's largest restaurant chain "made this decision with the full recognition that McDonald's packaging represents only a minute portion of total CFC usage."

"While our decision will not have any realistic impact upon the level of CFCs being emitted, we do believe it could be helpful in persuading others to make similar decisions," Raber said in a letter to Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt.

Last February, Stafford asked McDonald's to stop using containers made with CFCs, which also serve as refrigerants and solvents, especially in the production of computer chips.

Stafford, one of the leading environmentalists in Congress, hailed the action.

"I commend the company for its responsible and imaginative leadership and I trust that the rest of the fast-food industry will follow suit," Stafford said. He expressed hope that other industries "can find alternatives to the use of CFCs."

Raber said McDonald's had been studying the issue before Stafford's request. He said containers made with CFCs will be phased out in the United States over the next 18 months.

Lana Ehrsam, a company spokeswoman, said the change eventually could be extended to McDonald's outlets in other countries, where 2,000 of the chain's 9,400 restaurants are located.

Ms. Ehrsam said McDonald's U.S. products would continue to be sold in foam packages, but they will be manufactured with hydrocarbon-based blowing agents. She said those agents are considered environmentally safe by federal authorities.

"We don't anticipate any added costs to our customers," she said.

Raber acknowledged only that CFCs have a "possible impact" on the environment, but he said McDonald's believes its decision "is the most responsible available to us at this time and that it will contribute to a better environment for people everywhere."

Tomato King tells of success

By KATHY WILLIAMS
Sherman Democrat

TRENTON, Texas (AP) - The Tomato King of Trenton lives with his wife of 50 years and tends a small garden realm. In winter, he whittles animal figures.

A.L. Mackey stands vigilant but friendly guard over his vegetable subjects, fending off nematodes and mockingbirds. He battles nematodes with ebony rye plantings and mockingbirds with wooden fans and hanging bird carcasses. An underground irrigation system delivers water to his thirsty kingdom.

Velma Mackey cultivates flower around their stucco farmhouse crowded with 12 winters of figurines.

The pride of Mackey's garden is two rows of Better Boy hybrid tomatoes. The deceptively small crop produces a bountiful harvest.

"We give them away and sell 'em. I don't give them to anybody who sells. When I get too many, I sell them to the grocery store or the little cafe. They like to get them, too, because they think they're wonderful. I'm the Tomato King of Trenton," said Mackey.

1987 been a good year for the Better boys, but Mackey's seen better.

"We've made more tomatoes than we did this year. I know because one year, one Friday, me and that woman over there (Velma) picked 12 half-a-bushels on those two rows. This year, we got about 10 half-bushels. So they weren't as good this year as we have had. They were beautiful. We had lots of ripe tomatoes and lots of green tomatoes and they showed out. You could see them from the road," said Mackey.

And what's the king's secret for such high yield?

"I'm the caretaker here, that's all. I don't have any secrets. Anytime you think you're the one, you're wrong: it's Mother Nature, it's God. A farmer is closer to God than anyone because you can see every day what he does and what he's done."

But Mackey is a resourceful and hardworking caretaker. In addition to the irrigation system, he designed special fencing to help the plants bear their load. In fact, he's so proud of the prop system, he's entering "Texas Gardener" magazine's Texas Gardener of the Year contest, partly to encourage others to adopt the technique.

"I don't guess there's anybody no one that I know of our have read about in the magazine, that ties 'em up. They (Mackey) tomatoes) never touch the ground."

"I've got a fence, steel posts set with five wires up. I just keep a going up, tying them (branches) up and they (tomatoes) don't ever touch the ground. That's what I wanted to get over (in the contest)," said Mackey.

Last year's Better boys were so lush and laden that Mackey had to set seven foot wooden posts beside the fence and add extra strands of wire.

Mrs. Mackey said, "They don't rot when you tie them up off the ground."

Mackey said, "Yeah, I don't have any that rotted. Most people around here this year had tomatoes that just rotted green on the ground."

The Tomato King of Trenton knows there's no substitute for hard work in a garden. Soil must be worked and conditioned. He tills bales of straw into the black earth and adds compost made from "anything good I can find." He puts down heavy layers of straw (mulch) around plants and between rows to retain moisture in the soil.

"A lot of people come down and go in my garden say, 'Oh you really got some good soil.' That's not no part of it. It don't make no difference about the soil. You're going to have to build it. You're going to have to build it each year."

He builds the soil and lets winter freezes help with weed and bug control. "I open that row up every fall and leave it open in the winter time. It's just the way we've always done it. What I'd like see, I'd like to see some young people get interested in it enough to get into it. We're always going to have to eat. But they don't do it. I have them say they will, but they don't do it. Because it is a lot of work."

"But he loves to work," said Mrs. Mackey.

"I do work on it every day in the summer early in the morning and late in the afternoon. I usually come in that back door there about 9 o'clock (at night)."

Why would someone who farmed for 31 years; ginned cotton for 15 years and was a plumber after that, work so hard on a tomato crop he mostly gives away?

"I know people think I'm crazy, but I can't help that. I love to work with the soil...It thrills me to feel like I've learned something about the soil. It does me good, it makes me feel good," Mackey replied.

Neighbors have some misconceptions about his success, said Mackey. That disturbs the tomato king because, he said, he'd "like for people to get as interested enough to try as hard as I do."

"A lot of people think I know what I'm doing. And a lot of people think that it's the soil, that it's the best soil in the world. But they're both wrong, because that's not the way it goes. That's not the way it is."

"I do the very best I can and anything I think is right, then I'll try it. And sometimes that's not it and I just think, well, I must have been wrong there," Mackey said.

Mackey said he feels it's most important to raise his own tomato stock from seeds. He starts seeds in peat pots buried to their tops in sand-lined cold frames.

"When I put my plants out, they start growing right then. Hot house plants when you put them out, they lose about two weeks," he said.

Mrs. Mackey explained "He opens his (cold frames) up every day to strengthen them (the plants.) They are the thickest plants you've ever seen. So dark green."

Mackey said, "they (his Better Boy) always look like tomato plants, just as soon as they sprout. Hothouse plants are always tall with a few leaves at the top."

The tomato king raises many more baby plants than he needs, and these, too, he gives away.

"I usually put out 500 seeds, but I don't need but about 100 myself. What I do is I give them away. But there's a little hitch to it: when I give 'em plants, I don't give 'em tomatoes."

As the summer heats up and the garden produces less, Mackey reuminate about his winter carvings. He gives most of them away, too. But he does have a line of armadillos on sale at a Trenton store.

"I know I'm getting better at whitlin' those armadillos," Mackey said. "Not too long ago I cut myself and I thought it was the armadillo bleeding."

Whether he's named Texas Gardener of the Year, Mackey said, he plans to continue trying new angles and working hard to live up to his royal title.

The impact of refugees on a country is partly determined by their totals in relation to the host nation's population. In Jordan, 823,000 people are classified as refugees. This amounts to one in four Jordanians. Pakistan has almost 3 million refugees, but, because of its larger population, only one Pakistani out of every 36 is a refugee.

Five local teachers attend conference

AUSTIN -- Local teachers, Catherine Cortez, Judy Bullard, Teddie Poindexter, Linda Baird and Wanda Nail, were among the 500 participants of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association annual Leadership Conference held in Austin July 31 and August 1.

TCTA is an organization representing 25,000 classroom teachers with headquarters in Austin.

Teachers attending the two-day conference heard Commissioner of Education William N. Kirby speak at the opening session. Participants also had an opportunity to attend mini-conferences on legal and legislative issues, effective public relations, and career ladder/praisal issues.

TCTA's Leadership Conference is an annual event that offers its leadership an opportunity to learn new techniques and assist them with dealing with current educational issues and problems.

State President Wendell Whittenberg presided over the conference.

"By participating in this conference, our teachers and leadership have demonstrated that they are committed and dedicated to being the best they can be and to providing the best possible education for their students," Whittenberg said.

DR. GOTT Ischemia is a warning sign

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT - What type of stroke is transient cerebral ischemia?

DEAR READER - When blood clots are carried to the brain, they lodge in small arteries and cause interruption of brain functions. Often, the clots are large, become wedged and produce irreversible death of tissue, resulting in the weakness, speech impairment and confusion that are the hallmarks of a stroke.

However, these clots may cause only a temporary disruption of blood flow to the brain. Almost as soon as they become stuck in a blood vessel, the body's defense mechanisms dissolve them. In such cases, neurological symptoms are transient; blood flow is re-established quickly and no long-term consequences result. This is called a transient ischemic attack or TIA. It is a type of stroke that leaves no permanent disability, although it is a warning that a more serious stroke may follow. Therefore, doctors are likely to treat TIA patients with medicine, such as aspirin, that reduces the blood's tendency to clot.

Many experts believe that the forgetfulness, increasing confusion and poor judgment of some older patients may be due to microembolic phenomena: showers of tiny clots, of which the patient is unaware, that occur over many years and eventually cause obvious neurological malfunction - a form of mini-TIAs.

At present, many medical centers are experimenting with anti-coagulant drugs - other than aspirin - to see if there are any compounds that could be used to prevent TIAs. To date, no substance appears superior to aspirin.

DEAR DR. GOTT - What are skin tags? Where do they come from and how does one get rid of them?

DEAR READER - Skin tags are little collections of cells that protrude above the surface of the skin, like warts. Skin tags appear to be an inherited abnormality that some people develop as they age. Although the tags are cosmetically unwelcome, they are harmless and can easily (and repeatedly) be removed in the office.

Ischemia is a warning sign

DEAR DR. GOTT - About 1 1/2 years ago I injured a big toe. My nail turned black, and now it seems to be working away from its base. The toe is red and it hurts. How long will it take for another nail to develop completely? Is there something I can do to make the old nail fall off faster?

DEAR READER - Toenails grow slowly and once the growing portion of the nail bed is damaged, the new nail may seem to take forever to grow in. In your case, the continued pressure from wearing shoes is probably the reason that the toe remains red and painful.

Check with a doctor to make sure that you don't have a fracture or an infection that is inhibiting growth of a new nail. Sometimes the old nail has to be removed to allow new tissue to form. Your doctor can advise you.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report on ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE discusses symptoms, management and new studies of this tragic and irreversible disease. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

Because of its elastic stomach, a frogfish can swallow a fish almost the same size as itself.

Except during the Civil War, passports were not needed to enter or leave the United States until 1918.

Cook Talk

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor
WHEN YOU GRILL,
DON'T PLAY WITH FIRE

Have a fun - and safe - barbecue. Review the tips below and make them part of your cookout routine.

-PICK A SAFE SPOT: Choose a well-ventilated area for grilling. Don't light a fire where a flare-up could ignite nearby greenery. Make sure the grill stands firm and level or is placed on a flat surface.

-OFF TO A FAST START: Light charcoal briquettes with an electric charcoal starter, or liquid, solid or wax starters. Allow liquid starters to soak into the briquettes for 1 minute before lighting. Or, use self-lighting briquettes. They're pre-soaked and require only a match for starting.

Never use kerosene or gasoline to start a fire. Never pour fuel or starter fluid on hot charcoal briquettes.

-COOKING WITH GAS: If you have a gas grill you'll avoid the hassle of fire-starting, but before lighting your fire, be sure to check all valve connections and hoses to make sure they are properly connected.

-KEEP YOUR DISTANCE: Work with long-handled utensils especially designed for grilling. Sturdy gloves and cooking mitts prevent unnecessary burns.

-UP IN FLAMES: To reduce flare-ups, reduce the melting fat that causes them by using lean ground meats and trimming as much fat as possible from meat cuts. If you have a flare-up, lower the heat by moving the food away from the coals (or the coals away from the food). As a last resort, remove the food from the grill and spritz the fire with a little water from a pump-spray bottle.

-PUTTING OUT THE FIRE: To put out the fire after grilling, simply cover the grill or leave an open grill alone and let the fire consume the briquettes. Or, extinguish briquettes by using tongs to place them individually in a bucket of water. Never pour water on the briquettes in the grill and never pour the briquettes into a pail of water.

GRILLED SPICED HENS
Five 1-4 to 1-2-pound
Cornish game hens, thawed
2 tablespoons paprika
2 tablespoons chili powder
4 teaspoons garlic powder
2 teaspoons onion powder
1 teaspoon celery salt
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper
1-3rd cup cooking oil

Using a long, heavy knife or kitchen shears, halve hens lengthwise by cutting through the breastbone, just off center. Then cut through the center of the backbone. (Or, ask your butcher to halve the hens.) Rinse hen halves; pat dry with paper towels.

In a small mixing bowl combine paprika, chili powder, garlic powder, onion powder, celery salt, salt, dry mustard and red pepper. Add oil; mix well. Brush mixture onto hen halves.

Grill hen halves, bone side up, on an uncovered grill, directly over medium coals for 20 minutes. Turn; grill 10 to 20 minutes more or until birds are tender enough to be easily pierced with a fork. Makes 10 servings.

Names in the News

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — When Maurice Douglass isn't trying to strip footballs out of opponents' hands for the Chicago Bears, he often can be found stripping off his clothes at Cincinnati nightclubs.

"I've worked as a male stripper at three clubs there for the past three or four years," the 23-year-old defensive back said Wednesday.

"The women, they're everywhere, they're all over you, grabbing you. They have guards up front to keep the women off the stage," said the soft-spoken Douglass, who played briefly in four games at the end of last season for the Bears.

Though he enjoys the attention, he says he does it for the money — $500 a week for three nights.

When Bears Coach Mike Ditka heard the news, he said, "Well, some got it and some don't."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Johnny Cash, Loretta Lynn, Ricky Skaggs and other country-western stars left something of themselves in the wet concrete of the city's new StarWalk, including handprints, footprints and even false fingernails.

StarWalk, the country music equivalent to the Hollywood Walk of Fame, highlights 50 Grammy Award winners for country music.

Many of the stars showed up Tuesday night for formal ceremonies inducting the performers into the StarWalk, a co-venture of Fountain Square entertainment district and the Nashville chapter of the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences.

Lynn Anderson decorated her plaque with fake fingernails, makeup mirrors, cosmetic brushes, earrings and other personal items.

Wynonna Judd brought her dog, Loretta Lynn Judd, and pressed the fox terrier's paws into the wet concrete alongside her hands.

Singer Jeannie Seely sat right down in the concrete to leave a distinctive mark.

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Dan Rather's job at the "CBS Evening News" is secure even though the program's ratings are shaky, his boss says. And there are no plans to add a co-anchor to the program.

"There's no alternative to Dan Rather," CBS News chief Howard Stringer told television reporters Tuesday. "He took us to the top, and I hope he takes us back there."

Stringer said the problems at CBS

News run deeper than the anchor. Massive layoffs and budget cuts of $30 million over the past year have had a devastating effect on the longtime leader of network news, he said.

"Whatever we've been through, it's certainly time to put it in the past," he said.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Luciano Pavarotti's concerts here sold out within two hours, leaving many fans at the mercy of ticket scalpers.

Pavarotti's visit has created such a stir that scalpers holding tickets for his appearances Aug. 16-25 at the Teatro Colon opera house and Luna Park demand up to $250 for front-row seats, which were originally priced at $75.

Some fans had waited in line two days for tickets to "La Boheme," which is on the program for Aug. 25.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Beastie Boys say they are preparing to sue the city for requiring "adult subject matter" warning labels on tickets for a Sunday concert here.

The three-man group's "Together Forever" tour, which began June 13 in Honolulu and ends in New York on Aug. 17, must print such warnings on tickets and concert advertisements only in Jacksonville, said Bill Adler, a spokesman for Rush Productions.

"It's just a warning, like a warning on a pack of cigarettes," City Council President Clarence Suggs said Wednesday night. He said city lawyers checked the law for constitutionality before it was approved.

All teens invited to dance

A dance for junior and senior high youth will be held at 9 p.m. Saturday at the James Paetzold barn located southeast of Hereford. Cody Ruland will furnish the music.

Price of admission is $3 per person. Proceeds will be used to help defray traveling expenses for The Shockers baseball team when they go to the state tournament.

Cheesecake named after Texas Town

By BONNIE LASITER
Palestine Herald-Press

NEW YORK, Texas (AP) — Lyn Dunsavage woke up one morning with the perfect product and the perfect name: The New York, Texas, cheesecake.

Marketed from her spacious farmhouse overlooking the hills of New York in Henderson County, her cheese-cake is capturing the attention of taste buds around the state.

Bob Wray Jones, food service vice president for Neiman Marcus stores, describes the cake as "the most sumptuous, delicious piece of cheesecake you've ever eaten."

Jones' description, quoted in promotion material for the cheesecake, is as close as words can come. The New York, Texas, cheesecake is a four-pound concoction that stands about four inches high atop an ample graham cracker crust. It's firm, but fluffy. Rich, but light.

"I just really think this could be the cake of Texas," Mrs. Dunsavage says.

Her marketing strategies include a debut at the State Fair this year and inclusion in the Taste of Texas promotion through the state Department of Agriculture.

The Dunsavages have lived in New York since 1981, commuting to Dallas for work.

New York, Texas, was named in 1856 by Davis Reynolds, who hoped the town would become as big as its namesake. But, his dreams faded when the railroad bypassed New York in 1901, and the post office was moved to LaRue.

Today, New York retains the church, store, and cemetery established by the Reynolds family and still maintained by their descendants.

Mrs. Dunsavage began her cheesecake venture just nine months ago. She had sold The Dallas Downtown News, a newspaper she had founded 10 years earlier, and with it had sold her privilege to write in the Dallas market. She also had a niece who was looking for a job. Lyn Dunsavage needed an idea.

It came to her early one morning in her second-story bedroom as she looked out over the green hills toward New York.

"I woke up one morning and said, 'Aha, I have the perfect product and the perfect name.'"

She baked a few of the cheesecakes she had become known for and took them to Dallas. The first week, she had orders for 10. The second week, she sold 35, and the third, 135.

Mrs. Dunsavage was baking all night and on weekends and peddling her product in Dallas.

Her husband, Peter, jumped in to help. He formerly worked for the Environmental Protection Agency in Dallas.

"He said, 'The first thing you can do is teach me to bake it because I'm a better baker than you are,'" Mrs. Dunsavage said.

She developed the recipe for her cheesecake from memory and one of her mother's recipes.

"As a child, I went to Philadelphia and New York with my grandparents. I remember the cheesecakes seemed to be large, fluffy and sweet," she said. "For years people have been calling something cheesecake that isn't."

Mrs. Dunsavage found a handwritten recipe in a book of her mother's after she died. Looking through old cookbooks is a hobby of hers.

"Mother's recipe tasted like I remembered, but it wasn't high enough," Mrs. Dunsavage experimented with the recipe through the years until she had a cake that was as tall and light as she remembered the ones of her childhood being.

"For years, people have been saying, 'That's the most fabulous cheesecake I've had,'" Mrs. Dunsavage said.

The label lists the ingredients in order of the amount: cream cheese, sour cream, sugar, graham cracker crumbs, eggs, flour, vanilla extract and lemon. The Dunsavages boast the ingredients are all Texas-made, except for the graham cracker crumbs.

Soon after Mrs. Dunsavage started peddling her cakes in Dallas, Neiman Marcus called her in for a testing.

Thirteen chefs and executives sat around a table holding forks, plates, water pitchers and a bowl "in case they wanted to spit out what they were eating." It was quiet except for the sounds of their forks hitting their plates and their lips smacking.

"That was probably the most excruciating thing I've ever done," Mrs. Dunsavage said.

Finally, they proclaimed her cake good enough for their fall catalog, which comes out this month.

Neiman Marcus mentioned their new product in a mailout for preferred customers earlier this year, and the Dunsavage phone started ringing.

"We quickly had to get packaging and other materials," Peter Dunsavage said.

The back porch was converted into a kitchen. The 40-by-10 room still has paintings hanging on the walls, but now holds four ovens and three refrigerators. The temperature is maintained at 78 degrees.

The recipe requires special handling and cooking techniques, Dunsavage said. It takes two hours to make one cheesecake and the Dunsavages can bake eight at a time. The porch-turned-bakery has the capacity to turn out 100 cakes a day. The bakery produces about 100 a week now.

"It's a family operation; everyone does something," Mrs. Dunsavage explained as 11-year-old Katrina showed how a cake is packed for mailing. The Dunsavages also have a 9-year-old daughter, Jennifer, and a 15-year-old son, Doug.

The cakes are frozen and packed in a cardboard box and then set into a Styrofoam carton for shipping. With overnight shipping, the cake is still frozen when it arrives.

Much of the Dunsavage market is retail, but they also are selling to restaurants. "Cheesecakes can absorb odors of a kitchen, like grease, so it's more cost efficient to buy it from a wholesaler," Mrs. Dunsavage said. Several restaurants in nearby Athens and other retail stores carry the cheesecakes.

Dunsavage has plans to expand the bakery as the business grows, but no plans to leave the scenic New York community.
