The Branding Iron

By GLADYS GONE
Staff Writer

O.G. Nieman, publisher of the Hereford Brand, is out of town today.

Chances are, he harbors some worries about, well, things.

He has good reason to worry because things seem to happen around the Hereford Brand when Speedy is out of town. Equipment and employees break down, controversy runs amok and in the newspaper, and schedules for deadlines and printing are cast aside.

One time the building burned. Speedy gets a little paranoid about these out-of-town trips he takes. The trips are great but the homecomings can be real heart-breakers.

Exiting from a flight in Amarillo after a recent trip to a press convention, Speedy was struck by a sense of panic when he spotted a Brand staff member waiting for him in the terminal. With thoughts of doom and disaster running through his mind he faced the employee with a sickly grin and a noticeable green cast to his skin.

The employee, there to meet someone else on the same flight, casually greeted the returning publisher and noting his apparent agitation politely inquired about the convention. After a few moments of social chit-chat Speedy broke. With droplets of sweat forming on his brow he formed the question, "What has been happening at the paper?"

Clutching his wife's hand he awaited his fate. The puzzled employee responded, "Nothing, everything is fine." Airport security were called in to subdue a tall, slender man endangering people by performing cartwheels down the terminal.

Remembering his young days as a sports writer for the newspaper in Andrews, Speedy is very patient with the minor day-to-day errors of staff members. He has even been known to console a tearfully repentant employee with stories of his own errors, like the time he ran an ad for a movie theatre...

It seems a civic group had decided to encourage voter participation through a promotion offering prizes. Among the donations from local businesses was a box-supper and free movie pass.

Publisher, family recall experiences

Speedy admits a letter was omitted from pass but he quickly adds that the theatre owner called and asked him to make some more mistakes. Seems the ad provided a record night for the drive-in.

A well-respected newspaper man, Speedy has served as president of various Texas press associations. His dedication to getting the story can be seen in his home. No, not the awards on the wall. Lavon makes him keep them at the office.

His garage. Preoccupied with the hot story he was hurrying to cover Speedy, who was called "The Blonde Bullet" in high school, ran to his car, put it in reverse and backed out...through the garage door.

The question most often asked about Speedy is how he got his nickname, the real one being O.G. or Oh Gee, according to Clint Formby. Speedy claims it was earned in high school because of his reputation with the girls but his son, Steve, sets the record straight.

"He earned the name while on the Golden Tornadoes in Lamesa high. He played all the sports but I think it was football or track abilities which earned him the nickname. Yep, he might of even been as fast as me, if they had invented track shoes and starting blocks back then."

Speedy wasn't always a newspaperman. In Andrews he was the manager of a milk and ice company and before that he was a patriotic member of the nation's Coast Guard. While in the Coast Guard, Speedy endured a difficult and testing stint. He was a movie projectionist stationed at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Once he settled on a career this Texas Tech graduate worked on papers in Lamesa, Brownfield, Littlefield, Midland and Slaton before moving to Hereford in 1972. The stint in Slaton is memorable to both of his sons.

Craig recalls, "We lived in Midland through the summer and then they packed us up and moved us to Slaton. It was Dad's first venture as a publisher."

Steve adds, "Our house in Midland was real nice but it took every penny they had to buy the Slaton paper and they moved us into a shack. We couldn't figure out why they were so excited about this move."

A liar, er... that's Lion for a quarter of a century and an ordained deacon at First Baptist Church, Speedy is a supportive father.

"He gives us his opinion but he doesn't interfere in our decisions," says Craig. "It usually works out that he is right."

"I have a great appreciation for him as a good businessman and as a good father," he adds. Steve agrees but he still takes pleasure in beating "good ol' dad" at a round of golf.

Chances are, Speedy is teeing off right now. Happy hunting.

Concerned Citizens

HPD faces allegations

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

A petition citing police brutality and harassment was presented at Thursday night's meeting of the Concerned Citizens of Deaf Smith County.

The petition was brought by Pete LaFuenta Jr., a leader of the organization, and will be circulated throughout Hereford.

Members of the group claim Hereford Police Department officers, including Hispanic officers, have discriminated against Hispanics by patrolling the Main Street drag favored by Hispanic teens while ignoring the actions of a largely Anglo group which congregates on the parking lot of the Hereford Community Center.

Alleged brutality incidences include an event in which they claim an officer held a gun to the head of a 15-year-old and numerous other cases where the group believes officers acted with undue force.

In response to the charges, Chief of Police Caydon Brush said he has had no formal complaints made against his officers but expressed concern about the allegations. Brush says he was made aware of potential problems through a visit with Richard Sambrano, a public relations employee with the U.S. Department of Justice.

Brush said Sambrano consulted with him about an incident in which an elderly Hispanic man was arrested after hitting a police officer at the scene of a fire. Since his visit with Sambrano Brush stated he has been unable to contact Kim Blackwell, secretary of Concerned Citizens.

"I have tried to call Kim because I want them to come in and file a written complaint against any officer they have a problem with," said Brush. The written complaint is required, by state law, before a police department can conduct an internal investigation.

Though normally such an investigation would be conducted by Captain Ted Langgood, Brush said he will open the door for those with complaints to participate in the process.

"I would admit a reasonable number of representatives of their group to assist, participate and observe each part of the internal investigation," Brush promised. "If they will follow the state law and provide us with written complaints on the incidents, I will allow them and a media representative to follow us and participate in the investigation."

Police report

Hereford police were called Thursday about a domestic disturbance at 319 Ave. D by neighbors, but were told by a family member they "did not need their help," according to police reports.

Witnesses told police that a woman was being held against her will inside the house, but police found no one inside the house. A neighbor then said someone was hiding in her back yard, and police found the couple hiding.

A man at 111 Ave. C told police he would file charges against the owner of a barking dog after the dog awakened the man early this morning.

Police also were called to break up a fight between a brother and sister, to investigate the theft of hubcaps from a car at Save-N-Gain, and two bicycle thefts.

Officers also issued 14 citations and arrested a 28-year-old man for public intoxication.

Chamber singers plan fund raiser

Hereford's Chamber Singers, one of 100 musical groups selected to represent the U.S. at the World Expo in Australia in 1988, have already initiated fund-raising projects to help finance the "down-under" trip.

The Chamber Singers are now selling advertisements for a booklet to be distributed at the group's appearances during the next year. Programs for specific appearances or shows will be inserted in the booklets.

Some businesses and institutions have been contacted and the group is mailing letters this week to firms in Hereford. Representatives of the singing group will follow up the letters with telephone calls to solicit ads or donor pages for the booklet.

The Chamber Singers have already catered several banquets as fund-raising projects and are planning other activities. A spokesman for the group said letters and applications have been mailed to seek grants or contributions from arts and music organizations in the state and southwest.

The announcement of the selection of the Chamber singers came at the July 2 Fun Breakfast, when Mayor Wes Fisher reported the honor and urged local and area citizens to support the group's trip to Australia. The trip is scheduled in June 1988, and the World Expo is at Brisbane.

The Chamber Singers' next appearance here will be during the Town & Country Jubilee in August. The group is also planning to have a float in the Jubilee Parade.

Roaches overrun bus

NEW YORK (AP) — A bus driver was forced to evacuate his passengers when a horde of overheated cockroaches crawled out from under a seat and started roaming through the bus, the Transit Authority said.

The downtown-bound Mill bus was two blocks west of Manhattan's Times Square late Tuesday when the bugs took over.

"Everything was fine and then the roaches came out. They were crawling on the walls, on the seats, on the people, just running around in different directions," passenger Irene Gornay told the Daily News.

Asked if the bus was crowded, Gornay said, "Not really, we all had seats, nobody was standing — until we saw the roaches."

At 42nd Street and Ninth Avenue, the driver pulled the non-airconditioned bus out of service and gave the passengers transfers.

A Transit Authority spokesman said a roach problem is "not all that unusual" during a heat wave on buses that are not air-conditioned.

The roaches gather under the rear seat near the engine, he said, but "when it's very hot, they leave the area and crawl around. The heat gets to them just like it gets to us."

Shultz says US credibility remedied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz today brushed off gentle questions about whether he should leave the Reagan administration, and declared that the damage done to U.S. credibility by the Iran-Contra affair "has been remedied."

Testifying at nationally televised congressional hearings for the second day, Shultz said there was nothing more he could have done in January 1986 to persuade Reagan to abandon secret arms sales to Iran. He and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger made their case "forcefully, fully," Shultz said.

"I don't, 3rd graf.

"I don't think there are any more arguments I could have thought of," he said.

Shultz was asked several questions by Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., about whether he felt he could do an effective job as secretary of state and whether he felt comfortable remaining in the Cabinet in the aftermath of the Iran-Contra controversy.

"Are you a psychiatrist or something?" Shultz replied at one point.

Shultz disclosed Thursday that he submitted his resignation to the president on three occasions in the past, most recently in August 1986. This time, he gave no indication that he intends to resign.

Instead, he said, "by and large the president's foreign policy has gone forward with widespread support" both within the administration and with Congress.

"It's been a very strong, coherent set of policies," he said. Shultz added there always is debate before a policy is formulated, but said it would be "alarming" if that were not so.

As for his attempts in December

1985 to dissuade the president from approving any more arms sales to Iran, Shultz said he doubts Reagan "was in any doubt about my position."

Broomfield asked whether Reagan was relying too heavily on the late CIA Director William Casey, who was a forceful advocate of the sales, and why Shultz didn't prevail.

"I think he was relying on himself," the secretary of state replied. "You seem to miss the point, that the president is a very decisive person."

Convict, officials making changes

AUSTIN (AP) — A police chief lost his job and a district attorney says he will retire after prosecutors determined that an innocent man was imprisoned for more than eight months for arson in a mobile home fire in Canadian.

Gov. Bill Clements pardoned Claude Gene Grinder, 25, Tuesday. Grinder will be released Friday after the Texas Department of Corrections completes paperwork in the case, said prison spokesman Charlie Brown.

Grinder was sentenced to six years in prison last fall after wrongly confessing to a September mobile home fire, said Mike Roach, spokesman for the state Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Hemphill County District Attorney Guy Hardin, who sought Grinder's pardon after former Canadian Police Chief John Bradshaw allegedly claimed that Grinder did not set the fire, said he'll retire as a prosecutor at the end of his term in next year because of the "screw-up."

"It's sad that it takes five months to get an innocent man out of prison, but I guess that's the system," Hardin said. "It's not a good feeling you were a part of sending an innocent man to prison."

Grinder confessed to the arson in November after being extradited from his home in Arkansas.

He told the Pampa News in May that he confessed to the fire because he didn't believe his alibi that he was visiting his mother in his home state of Arkansas would be strong enough. Hardin said Grinder made the confession to win some points with the TDC because he was on mandatory TDC supervision on a forgery sentence.

Grinder began serving the five-year sentence for forgery Nov. 20, 1981, and was released on mandatory supervision Nov. 8, 1985, Roach said.

Hardin said he learned of Grinder's innocence this spring after a student in a law enforcement class in Amarillo taped a lecture by Bradshaw and brought him the tape.

Bradshaw was quoted as telling the class "we had a fellow in Canadian on probation and we took his confession and extradited him, but I know he didn't do it," the Pampa News reported.

Bradshaw was suspended April 22 in connection with his comments to the class and was fired May 13, due mostly to excessive absences, City Manager Dean Looer said.

Bradshaw, who has not been seen in Canadian since May, has said he doesn't remember saying such a thing.

John Alworth of the governor's general counsel's office, said Clements pardoned Grinder on the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles and three trial officials — Hardin, the Hemphill County sheriff and the trial judge.

Alworth said most pardons are not based on innocence but for prisoners "who did commit a crime but have gotten their lives together."

He said the Grinder pardon is the first Clements has granted based on innocence since his second term began in January.

Telephone calls concerning a coupon book being sold here in Hereford have swamped the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office the past two days. The "Merchant Sampler" books include coupons from local merchants for free services and goods, as well as buy-one, get-one free items.

Mike Carr, executive vice president of the chamber, says the chamber does not endorse the promotion, but that a check with some of the merchants confirms that they signed contracts with the advertising company to provide the goods and services. "As far as we can determine, the promotion is legal," he said.

The sales pitch to the merchants is that it doesn't cost anything, except what they give away. Carr points out that this could cost the merchant plenty. If, for instance, a business is giving away a free transmission adjustment at a $30 value and the company sells 500 books, it could cost the firm $15,000 worth of free service.

However, one of the businessmen who bought the package, said the representative told him if they sold 500 books, the business could expect only about 100 to be redeemed. If that's true, then about one of five people will probably get their money's worth out of the books.

The sales pitch to consumers is that you get a free camera and more than $1,000 in values from 150 coupons, all for just $39.95. That might be a good bargain if the customer uses all the coupons by the effective dates, which are printed in small letters at the bottom of the coupon. Again, if 500 books are sold and they are worth more than a $1,000 each, that's $500,000 in goods and services being given away in the next year by local firms.

Carr points out to business owners that they complain about money going out of town, but this advertising company will be taking a lot of money out of town in just a few days. For instance, the sale of 500 books would mean almost $20,000 is being taken out of the local economy.

In population

Dallas beats Houston

By The Associated Press
In a state that puts size next to sanctity, the news that the Dallas-Fort Worth area has surpassed the Houston area in population growth was embraced by Dallas officials and downplayed by their counterparts in Houston.
U.S. Census Bureau figures released Thursday show the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area's population surpassed Houston's for the first time.
Dallas-Fort Worth moved up a notch to become the nation's eighth largest urban area, while Houston dropped from eighth to ninth.
The population of the Dallas-Fort Worth area was estimated at 3,655,300 as of July 1, 1986, up from 2,930,568 in 1985. In Houston, the estimated population increased from 3,605,500 in 1985 to 3,634,300 last year.
That gives Dallas-Fort Worth an edge of 21,000 and places the North Texas metro area 400,400 behind seventh-ranked Boston.

As might be expected, Dallas area officials embraced the report, saying the population increase is a result of the area's high quality of life and diversified economy.
"We've always had a more sophisticated image than Houston, now we have more people," said Dallas City Councilman Craig Holcomb.
"Everyone wants to go with the winner and that's Dallas...by far the winner."
"This is certainly a bright spot," Holcomb said. "We can certainly use all the bright spots we can get."
Houston area officials, as might be expected, were less than impressed.
"Oh come on, it's hardly a coup," Houston City Councilman Jim Greenwood said. "Dallas-Fort Worth has 21,000 more? I think we spill that many in a year."
Overall, the Dallas area has grown 24.7 percent since the 1980 national head count, while Houston gained 17.7 percent over the six-year period. Among major metropolitan areas with 1 million people or more, only Phoenix, Ariz., grew faster than Dallas between 1980 and 1986, the study said.
Paula Wright, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Census Bureau in Dallas, says the population figures are drawn from a grouping of counties with close social and economic ties to the cities they surround.
The Dallas-Fort Worth figure, for example, includes people living in Collin, Denton, Dallas, Ellis, Kaufman, Rockwall, Tarrant, Johnson and Parker counties. The figure for Houston includes Fort Bend, Harris, Liberty, Montgomery, Waller, Galveston and Brazoria counties.
"Gosh, all those counties beat out po' little Houston?" Greenwood said. "Come to think of it they've passed us in vacant office space too. Guess they've got us on the run."
Taking on a more serious tone,

Greenwood noted that the competition between the two areas is beneficial for both. The national exposure both cities get from being ranked in the top 10 helps attract more business, industry and people to the state, he said.
"This kind of competition is healthy for both sides," Greenwood said. "There isn't a finish line in sight and I expect we'll expect we'll pass each other back and forth from time to time."
Dallas Mayor Annette Strauss said the prominent rankings of both areas shows Texas has survived the recent economic downturn spurred by falling oil prices.
"It says things are not as negative in Dallas as some would portray it to be," Strauss said. "We're still growing, and we're still working to make this city the best it can be."
C.A. Kasdorf, the manager of research for the Houston Chamber of Commerce, said Dallas should not rest on its laurels.
"I think Houston had its slowest growth (during the survey period) of the decade," Kasdorf said. "I don't think that will happen again. We're already starting to see more people coming back and we expect that to continue."
Charles Henderson, spokesman for the Houston Chamber of Commerce downplayed the news.
"I don't think the difference is terribly significant," he said, stressing that greater Dallas beat greater Houston by only 0.6 percent in the people count. "There's no rivalry other than the fact that it does give Dallas something to crow about during the economic downturn."
Don Vaughn, who spent 14 years in Dallas before recently becoming chief of the Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council, said he likes Houston better because of its cultural attractions and nearness to the coast.

On dumping plastics

Soviets ratify international ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is expected to join the Soviet Union soon in ratifying an international agreement to ban dumping of plastic garbage in the world's oceans, a practice that kills hundreds of thousands of seabirds and marine mammals each year.
A top Coast Guard official revealed Thursday during testimony before two House subcommittees that Soviet officials recently approved the agreement, known as Annex V of the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships.
The agreement enters into force one year after nations representing half of the world's shipping tonnage have approved it. The United States, with 4.8 percent of the world's shipping, would break the 50 percent mark.
The Soviet Union, which represents 6.2 percent of the world's shipping, was the 28th nation to approve it. That brought the total shipping tonnage up to 48 percent, said Rear Adm. J. William Kime, head of the Coast Guard's marine safety and environmental protection division.
"The ball is squarely in the court of the United States," Kime said. "All we have to do is take action and this will come into force."
President Reagan sent the agreement to the Senate for ratification on Feb. 9.
The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has scheduled a hearing for next Wednesday. Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the panel, strongly supports the measure and congressional aides expect it to be approved without controversy.

The agreement would prohibit the disposal of plastic garbage anywhere in the ocean and ban the disposal of other garbage within 12 miles of land.
U.S. law bans the disposal of garbage from ships within three miles of the coast.
Plastic garbage like six-pack containers and plastic bags thrown overboard is responsible for the deaths of an estimated 1 million seabirds and 100,000 sea turtles and other marine mammals annually, according to a report by a House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee on fisheries and wildlife conservation.
Scientists say the wildlife choke on the floating plastic junk or become entangled in it. The subcommittee report estimates the amount of plastic dumped into the sea each year at more than 1 million pounds, aiding in the decline of the northern fur seal, steller sea lion, Hawaiian monk seal and other species.

"We don't toss garbage from our kitchen windows into our streets, but we toss it over the rail into our oceans, and we have done so for centuries," said Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass., chairman of the subcommittee and author of a bill implementing the agreement domestically.
The Reagan administration submitted its own bill that differs slightly from the Studds measure.
The administration proposal specifies that the federal government would enforce the agreement within 200 miles of the coast against U.S. vessels and vessels from foreign countries that have not signed the pact, Kime said.
But he said for violating ships from nations that have signed the pact, U.S. officials would only forward evidence to that nation.
The administration bill also adds criminal penalties to civil fines of up to $25,000 per violation included in the Studds measure. Kime said the administration wants to add criminal penalties against "willful violators" of up to $50,000 in fines and five years in prison.

The international agreement does not detail how the pact would be enforced. Kime said after the pact is ratified, the enforcement procedures would be added to it and take effect after 22 months unless there are formal objections.
The agreement does not apply to government-operated ships. But Rep. Don Young, R-Ala., said the U.S. Navy is one of the world's biggest plastic polluters.
Larry Koss, manager of the Navy's shipboard pollution program, said the Pentagon has been looking for ways to avoid dumping plastic overboard, but because warships have so little space it has been impossible.

Kuwaiti tanker hits mine

KUWAIT (AP) — One of the two Kuwaiti tankers sailing under an American flag and U.S. Navy escort hit a mine today in the Persian Gulf about 120 miles from its destination.
There were no injuries reported among the 26 people on board, but the giant tanker Bridgeton began taking on water. Even so, it was able to proceed, said Navy Lt. Richard Vogel, who was aboard the stricken vessel.

Vogel's report was dispatched by Associated Press reporter Tim Ahern, the news service representative aboard the destroyer USS Kidd, one of the American warships escorting the Bridgeton and the Gas

Prince to Kuwait.
"We've been hit. We've been hit," Vogel told the Kidd.
The tanker hit the mine shortly before 7 a.m. local time (midnight EDT), as it was steaming about 120 miles southeast of Kuwait. The two ships are expected to arrive in Kuwait later today.
The explosion occurred on the port, or left, side of the ship about 200 feet from the bow, Vogel reported to Navy officers aboard the Kidd.
The explosion was so strong aboard the 1,200-foot-long ship that crew members standing on the bridge, about 1,000 feet from the explosion, were almost knocked off their feet, Vogel said.
The explosion was clearly audible as a loud "boom" aboard the Kidd, which was one mile to the left and about one-half mile to the rear of the Bridgeton.
Seconds after the boom, Vogel radioed to the bridge of the Kidd, which is the command ship of the three-vessel Navy convoy.
The Kidd's captain, Cmdr. Daniel J. Murphy, Jr., ordered his ship slowed from 16 knots. The Kidd slowed to 5 knots, and then later picked up speed again.
Meanwhile, extra lookouts were posted aboard the Kidd's bow to look for mines. At least nine sailors were on the bow, some of them armed with M-14 rifles to fire at any suspicious objects in the water.
At the time, all three Navy ships were at "general quarters," the highest state of alert, because they were passing near Farsi Island, from where Iran has recently launched speedboat attacks against gulf shipping. The site of the explosion was 18 miles west of Farsi island.

Delta refunds tickets for passengers

By The Associated Press
After the latest in a recent string of odd mishaps, Delta Air Lines says it will refund tickets to anyone who is too spooked to fly on the carrier.
"We felt that was only fair," said Bill Berry, a spokesman for the Atlanta-based carrier. "In the past, when there has been a hurricane coming in and people are afraid to fly, or there has been any time when we feel that fear is a legitimate concern, we have been willing to make a refund."
The most recent incident occurred Thursday, when Delta Flight 881 from Hobby in southeast Houston lost one of its four main landing gear tires on takeoff, said Bill Ainsworth, spokesman for Houston's aviation department.
Rather than turn back to Hobby, the pilot decided to land the plane at Houston Intercontinental Airport north of the city, Delta officials said.
"The pilot decided to go over to Intercontinental to land since the runways are larger and did so without incident," said Delta spokeswoman Jackie Pate.
The Dallas-bound Boeing 737 landed at Intercontinental at 12:25 p.m. and was being inspected, Ainsworth said. The 106 passengers were taken by bus to an airport terminal, and the jet was then towed from the runway.
Arrangements were made for passengers to get to Dallas aboard other flights, Ms. Pate said.

The Federal Aviation Administration, which recently began a study of the airline's pilot training program, plans to investigate the Thursday mishap, a spokesman said.
"That (the wheel falling off) is fairly unusual," said FAA spokesman Fred Ferrar. "It's not catastrophic because obviously the pilot was able to land, but the FAA will still want to know why the wheel came off and if there is any chance of it happening again on others (airplanes) of this type."
Since June 18, Delta has been plagued with a series of near-accidents and other problems.
In the most recent incidents, a Delta baggage handler in Atlanta nearly got trapped in the luggage compartment of a jet that was about to take off Sunday for North Carolina, but a passenger heard his cries for help.
Last Sunday, because of controller error, two Delta jets flew dangerously close to each other in the air over Virginia, the FAA said.
Delta airliners caused at least two near-collisions with other aircraft, landed on an incorrect runway, landed at the wrong airport and came perilously close to crashing into the Pacific Ocean after a pilot's mistakenly shut off the jet engines, officials said.
While Delta said that the press is scrutinizing its every move, it also concedes it can't explain some of the pilot errors. Delta maintains that other airlines have similar problems, some of which the press neglects.
"We do not know what the cause is," Ms. Pate told the Dallas Times Herald. "This job would be easier for me if there was a concrete answer to all of this. There is no thread we can find linking" the incidents.

Taxpayers time to tackle taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Thanks to a record $5.7 billion tax hike, the tax man will be taking a bigger bite out of Texans' incomes, but state residents will still be paying less than the national average.
Taxes will be higher for clothing, automobiles, cigarettes and hotel rooms, and there are brand new taxes on private club memberships, pest control services and yard work, among other items.
Come Sept. 1, the state tax bill on an average $12,500 car will go up $125. And Texans will pay $60 more for a $6,000 car.
The state sales tax rises three-quarters of a cent in October, but the motor vehicle sales tax goes up a full penny a month earlier. New license and occupational taxes for doctors, dentists and engineers go into effect Sept. 1, but lawyers don't have to pay them until January.
The new taxes are included in 72 pages of new laws passed earlier this week as the Legislature came within hours of the midnight deadline on a special session devoted to forging a budget for the next two fiscal years.
If the total tax burden were split equally among every man, woman and child in Texas, the bill would be $730 a person, up from $667 last year. The national average is $973.
While most Texans will be worrying about higher taxes, commercial anglers on the Gulf Coast may be delaying late September expeditions until early October to take advantage of a benefit of the new bill. After Oct. 1, any ice they buy will be tax-exempt.
In some cases, prudent buyers may need a scorecard on the effective dates to try to avoid the new taxes.
For other big-ticket items such as new cars, major advertising campaigns to remind potential buyers of the impending tax increases are certain.
"I certainly expect that dealers will be publicizing the fact that vehicles bought before Sept. 1 are subject to a lower tax," said Gene Fondren, president of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association.

Texas automobile dealers opposed the 1 percent increase in motor vehicle sales taxes just like any other group, Fondren said.
But the timing of the increase, just before new models come out and prices on old ones go down, will most certainly make the theme of car dealers' August advertising campaigns predictable.

The new 6-cents-per-dollar sales tax rate — up to 8 cents in some large cities — will make the Texas sales tax among the highest in the nation.
But with no corporate or personal income tax, Texas taxpayers will remain among the nation's least-burdened, even with the huge tax increase.
In 1986, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated that a Texas family earning $25,000 a year spent about $299 of its income on state taxes.

Bancshares report earnings

First Abilene Bancshares has reported consolidated earnings of $1.203 million, or 60 cents per share, for the quarter ending June 30.
The earnings compare to $1.061 million, or 53 cents per share, for the same quarter in 1986. For the year, earnings are $2.509 million, or $1.25 per share, as compared to $2.665 million, or $1.33 per share, for the first six months of 1986.
Kenneth T. Murphy, chief executive officer of FAB, said declines in the company's provision for loan losses provided "a positive influence on earnings while lower net interest income due to decreasing loan volume couple with increases in some expense areas affected earnings."
The company is the parent company of Hereford State Bank and banks in Abilene, Sweetwater, and Eastland.

Ann Landers Love is a strong force

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to the frustrated mother of the 11-year-old daughter was fine, but you missed the real issue. It's not Mom's authority or the daughter's behavior that caused the problem, it's the way they interact.

I saw our family in that woman's letter. I loved my daughter, but I was beginning to dislike her intensely. I also had become highly critical of her and was habitually negative.

I decided to try a one-month experiment. During that time I would refrain from all negative comments. I would offer only compliments and praise and point out her good qualities. I forced myself to hug her at every opportunity. It wasn't easy. It was never a hugger. At first she reacted stiffly, but by the end of the month a miracle had occurred. Our relationship turned around completely. I liked her. We enjoyed each other. We listened and talked to one another.

She is almost 15 now and still sits on my lap and wants a hug. I never miss an opportunity to let her know I love her.

If this worked for us, it can work for readers. "T." in Indy

DEAR INDY: Brilliant approach. And the rewards can be enormous. I've always said children will live up (or down) to your expectations. If you treat them as if they are lovable and honorable, they will break their necks to be just that.

A kid who is told, "You're no good," will fulfill the prophecy because he'll believe it and get stuck in that mold.

Love is the strongest force in the world, and it's one of the few things you can give away and still have more of than ever.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recently found out that all three of our babies were born mentally retarded and have Smith-Lemli-Opitz syndrome. Our oldest is 5 and I'm heartbroken. We had to put him in a group home.

More than a year ago, I started having severe anxiety attacks and spent a week in the hospital. I had my tubes tied because my husband says we can't support any more abnormal kids. The problem is that I am beginning to hate my friends who are able to have normal children. When I see them enjoying their little ones I become resentful and nasty. I cannot understand why God saw fit to favor them and ignore me. I have always tried to be a good person and do the right thing.

I need to find a reason to go on living. Can you help me?—Feeling Blue in the West

DEAR FRIEND: Life has certainly dealt you some cruel and painful blows. I can understand why you feel as you do. But we must accept that which we cannot change and not rail against it. To do otherwise is to invite misery.

Have you seen a doctor about medication to help lift the depression? If not, I urge you to do so. I also hope you will get counseling. You need to talk about your hostility toward friends. Verbalizing your feelings will help you get rid of your anger and feelings of persecution.

Hideous things can happen to some kind and wonderful people. Life is so unfair. Please write to me again and tell me that you have read this column and that you are taking my advice. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When you were growing up did you have to memorize poems? What was your favorite? Can you still recite it?—R., Latin School (Chicago)

DEAR R.: One of my favorites was "If" by Rudyard Kipling. I just tried to recite it from memory and by golly, I did it!

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 70 and have had two recent attacks of shin splints. Ice packs and pain killers helped, but what can I do to prevent recurrence?

DEAR READER — Shin splints are painful shins caused by strain of the leg muscles that attach to the tibia (shin). When these muscles are stretched, as in sports activity, some of the fibers tend to pull away from the tibia. Ice and rest can help alleviate symptoms. However, to prevent recurrence, you will have to discontinue brisk walking or running until your pain disappears, then begin an exercise program of increasing walking (or jogging) after a suitable period of daily stretching and warmup.

Shin splints are more common among people who exercise on hard surfaces, such as roads and packed gravel. Try to walk and run on grass until your legs become adapted to the increased activity. In addition, make sure that you wear shoes with adequate ankle support and soft, resilient soles.

If these measures aren't successful, check with your doctor to make sure that you don't have a stress fracture or circulatory insufficiency that could be a source of leg pain.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My dermatologist says that facial masks are fine for cosmetic purposes only and don't really penetrate or affect the skin. However, the local beauty-parlor folks insist they are necessary twice a week for deep cleaning. What's your opinion?

DEAR READER — I side with your dermatologist. The beauty-parlor folks make a good deal of financial profit by offering this service; therefore, they are not likely to discourage you from having facial treatments. As long as you accept the fact that facial masks are used purely for cosmetic purposes — and even this conclusion is in doubt — it's OK to have them. However, don't be conned into believing that they are necessary for "deep cleaning" or for healthy skin. Mild soap and water is just as effective — and a lot cheaper.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Twice now, I've had Novocain for tooth extractions. Each time, I've had a bout with Bell's palsy. Is there a connection?

DEAR READER — Bell's palsy is a paralysis of the facial nerve, the branches of which are present in the cheeks near the gums. During the injection of Novocain, your dentist may inadvertently be numbing parts of the facial nerve. Share your concerns with him or her so that the needle will be placed especially carefully in the future.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I used to suffer from severe depression. Then I started taking oral contraceptives and began eating a high-carbohydrate diet, including about a half-pound of candy a day. My depression disappeared. However, the doctor wants me to stop the pills because of my age (35). What can I do to keep the depression from returning?

DEAR READER — Your doctor is correct. You probably should stop taking contraceptive pills around age 35, because the risk of developing blood clots from the pills increases with age. In addition, a half-pound of candy a day is unhealthy and is likely to produce many problems, such as obesity and a diabetic tendency.

Ask your doctor about anti-depressant medication. If he or she is reluctant to consider this possibility, request a consultation with a psychiatrist or counselor. Your depression can best be treated with drugs or counseling.

Some women's natural hormone cycles predispose them to depression. Oral contraceptives may overcome this tendency by replacing your own hormones with the synthetic variety. Therefore, some form of hormone therapy may be necessary in your case. Your gynecologist can work with your psychiatrist/therapist to find the proper combination of medicine that will be suitable for you.

In population

Dallas beats Houston

By The Associated Press
In a state that puts size next to sanctity, the news that the Dallas-Fort Worth area has surpassed the Houston area in population growth was embraced by Dallas officials and downplayed by their counterparts in Houston.

U.S. Census Bureau figures released Thursday show the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area's population surpassed Houston's for the first time.

Dallas-Fort Worth moved up a notch to become the nation's eighth largest urban area, while Houston dropped from eighth to ninth.

The population of the Dallas-Fort Worth area was estimated at 3,655,300 as of July 1, 1986, up from 2,930,568 in 1985. In Houston, the estimated population increased from 3,605,500 in 1985 to 3,634,300 last year.

That gives Dallas-Fort Worth an edge of 21,000 and places the North Texas metro area 400,400 behind seventh-ranked Boston.

As might be expected, Dallas area officials embraced the report, saying the population increase is a result of the area's high quality of life and diversified economy.

"We've always had a more sophisticated image than Houston, now we have more people," said Dallas City Councilman Craig Holcomb.

"Everyone wants to go with the winner and that's Dallas...by far the winner."

"This is certainly a bright spot," Holcomb said. "We can certainly use all the bright spots we can get."

Houston area officials, as might be expected, were less than impressed.

"Oh come on, it's hardly a coup," Houston City Councilman Jim Greenwood said. "Dallas-Fort Worth has 21,000 more? I think we spill that many in a year."

Overall, the Dallas area has grown 24.7 percent since the 1980 national head count, while Houston gained 17.7 percent over the six-year period. Among major metropolitan areas with 1 million people or more, only Phoenix, Ariz., grew faster than Dallas between 1980 and 1986, the study said.

Paula Wright, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Census Bureau in Dallas, says the population figures are drawn from a grouping of counties with close social and economic ties to the cities they surround.

The Dallas-Fort Worth figure, for example, includes people living in Collin, Denton, Dallas, Ellis, Kaufman, Rockwall, Tarrant, Johnson and Parker counties. The figure for Houston includes Fort Bend, Harris, Liberty, Montgomery, Waller, Galveston and Brazoria counties.

"Gosh, all those counties beat out po' little Houston?" Greenwood said. "Come to think of it they've passed us in vacant office space too. Guess they've got us on the run."

Taking on a more serious tone,

Greenwood noted that the competition between the two areas is beneficial for both. The national exposure both cities get from being ranked in the top 10 helps attract more business, industry and people to the state, he said.

"This kind of competition is healthy for both sides," Greenwood said. "There isn't a finish line in sight and I expect we'll expect we'll pass each other back and forth from time to time."

Dallas Mayor Annette Strauss said the prominent rankings of both areas shows Texas has survived the recent economic downturn spurred by falling oil prices.

"It says things are not as negative in Dallas as some would portray it to be," Strauss said. "We're still growing, and we're still working to make this city the best it can be."

C.A. Kasdorf, the manager of research for the Houston Chamber of Commerce, said Dallas should not rest on its laurels.

"I think Houston had its slowest growth (during the survey period) of the decade," Kasdorf said. "I don't think that will happen again. We're already starting to see more people coming back and we expect that to continue."

Charles Henderson, spokesman for the Houston Chamber of Commerce downplayed the news.

"I don't think the difference is terribly significant," he said, stressing that greater Dallas beat greater Houston by only 0.6 percent in the people count. "There's no rivalry other than the fact that it does give Dallas something to crow about during the economic downturn."

Don Vaughn, who spent 14 years in Dallas before recently becoming chief of the Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council, said he likes Houston better because of its cultural attractions and nearness to the coast.

On dumping plastics

Soviets ratify international ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is expected to join the Soviet Union soon in ratifying an international agreement to ban dumping of plastic garbage in the world's oceans, a practice that kills hundreds of thousands of seabirds and marine mammals each year.

A top Coast Guard official revealed Thursday during testimony before two House subcommittees that Soviet officials recently approved the agreement, known as Annex V of the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships.

The agreement enters into force one year after nations representing half of the world's shipping tonnage have approved it. The United States, with 4.8 percent of the world's shipping, would break the 50 percent mark.

The Soviet Union, which represents 6.2 percent of the world's shipping, was the 28th nation to approve it. That brought the total shipping tonnage up to 48 percent, said Rear Adm. J. William Kime, head of the Coast Guard's marine safety and environmental protection division.

"The ball is squarely in the court of the United States," Kime said. "All we have to do is take action and this will come into force."

President Reagan sent the agreement to the Senate for ratification on Feb. 9.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has scheduled a hearing for next Wednesday. Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the panel, strongly supports the measure and congressional aides expect it to be approved without controversy.

The agreement would prohibit the disposal of plastic garbage anywhere in the ocean and ban the disposal of other garbage within 12 miles of land.

U.S. law bans the disposal of garbage from ships within three miles of the coast.

Plastic garbage like six-pack containers and plastic bags thrown overboard is responsible for the deaths of an estimated 1 million seabirds and 100,000 sea turtles and other marine mammals annually, according to a report by a House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee on fisheries and wildlife conservation.

Scientists say the wildlife choke on the floating plastic junk or become entangled in it. The subcommittee report estimates the amount of plastic dumped into the sea each year at more than 1 million pounds, aiding in the decline of the northern fur seal, steller sea lion, Hawaiian monk seal and other species.

"We don't toss garbage from our kitchen windows into our streets, but we toss it over the rail into our oceans, and we have done so for centuries," said Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass., chairman of the subcommittee and author of a bill implementing the agreement domestically.

The Reagan administration submitted its own bill that differs slightly from the Studds measure.

The administration proposal specifies that the federal government would enforce the agreement within 200 miles of the coast against U.S. vessels and vessels from foreign countries that have not signed the pact, Kime said.

But he said for violating ships from nations that have signed the pact, U.S. officials would only forward evidence to that nation.

The administration bill also adds

criminal penalties to civil fines of up to $25,000 per violation included in the Studds measure. Kime said the administration wants to add criminal penalties against "willful violators" of up to $50,000 in fines and five years in prison.

The international agreement does not detail how the pact would be enforced. Kime said after the pact is ratified, the enforcement procedures would be added to it and take effect after 22 months unless there are formal objections.

The agreement does not apply to government-operated ships. But Rep. Don Young, R-Ala., said the U.S. Navy is one of the world's biggest plastic polluters.

Larry Koss, manager of the Navy's shipboard pollution program, said the Pentagon has been looking for ways to avoid dumping plastic overboard, but because warships have so little space it has been impossible.

Kuwaiti tanker hits mine

KUWAIT (AP) — One of the two Kuwaiti tankers sailing under an American flag and U.S. Navy escort hit a mine today in the Persian Gulf about 120 miles from its destination.

There were no injuries reported among the 26 people on board, but the giant tanker Bridgeton began taking on water. Even so, it was able to proceed, said Navy Lt. Richard Vogel, who was aboard the stricken vessel.

Vogel's report was dispatched by Associated Press reporter Tim Ahern, the news service representative aboard the destroyer USS Kidd, one of the American warships escorting the Bridgeton and the Gas

Prince to Kuwait.

"We've been hit. We've been hit," Vogel told the Kidd.

The tanker hit the mine shortly before 7 a.m. local time (midnight EDT), as it was steaming about 120 miles southeast of Kuwait. The two ships are expected to arrive in Kuwait later today.

The explosion occurred on the port, or left, side of the ship about 200 feet from the bow, Vogel reported to Navy officers aboard the Kidd.

The explosion was so strong aboard the 1,200-foot-long ship that crew members standing on the bridge, about 1,000 feet from the explosion, were almost knocked off their feet, Vogel said.

The explosion was clearly audible as a loud "boom" aboard the Kidd, which was one mile to the left and about one-half mile to the rear of the Bridgeton.

Seconds after the boom, Vogel radioed to the bridge of the Kidd, which is the command ship of the three-vessel Navy convoy.

The Kidd's captain, Cmdr. Daniel J. Murphy, Jr., ordered his ship slowed from 16 knots. The Kidd slowed to 5 knots, and then later picked up speed again.

Meanwhile, extra lookouts were posted aboard the Kidd's bow to look for mines. At least nine sailors were on the bow, some of them armed with M-14 rifles to fire at any suspicious objects in the water.

At the time, all three Navy ships were at "general quarters," the highest state of alert, because they were passing near Farsi Island, from where Iran has recently launched speedboat attacks against gulf shipping. The site of the explosion was 18 miles west of Farsi island.

Taxpayers time to tackle taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Thanks to a record $5.7 billion tax hike, the tax man will be taking a bigger bite out of Texans' incomes, but state residents will still be paying less than the national average.

Taxes will be higher for clothing, automobiles, cigarettes and hotel rooms, and there are brand new taxes on private club memberships, pest control services and yard work, among other items.

Come Sept. 1, the state tax bill on an average $12,500 car will go up $125. And Texans will pay $60 more for a $6,000 car.

The state sales tax rises three-quarters of a cent in October, but the motor vehicle sales tax goes up a full penny a month earlier. New license and occupational taxes for doctors, dentists and engineers go into effect Sept. 1, but lawyers don't have to pay them until January.

The new taxes are included in 72 pages of new laws passed earlier this week as the Legislature came within hours of the midnight deadline on a special session devoted to forging a budget for the next two fiscal years.

If the total tax burden were split equally among every man, woman and child in Texas, the bill would be $730 a person, up from $667 last year. The national average is $973.

While most Texans will be worrying about higher taxes, commercial anglers on the Gulf Coast may be delaying late September expeditions until early October to take advantage of a benefit of the new bill. After Oct. 1, any ice they buy will be tax-exempt.

In some cases, prudent buyers may need a scorecard on the effective dates to try to avoid the new taxes.

For other big-ticket items such as new cars, major advertising campaigns to remind potential buyers of the impending tax increases are certain.

"I certainly expect that dealers will be publicizing the fact that vehicles bought before Sept. 1 are subject to a lower tax," said Gene Fondren, president of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association.

Texas automobile dealers opposed the 1 percent increase in motor vehicle sales taxes just like any other group, Fondren said.

But the timing of the increase, just before new models come out and prices on old ones go down, will most certainly make the theme of car dealers' August advertising campaigns predictable.

The new 6-cents-per-dollar sales tax rate — up to 8 cents in some large cities — will make the Texas sales tax among the highest in the nation.

But with no corporate or personal income tax, Texas taxpayers will remain among the nation's least-burdened, even with the huge tax increase.

In 1986, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated that a Texas family earning $25,000 a year spent about $299 of its income on state taxes.

Delta refunds tickets for passengers

By The Associated Press

After the latest in a recent string of odd mishaps, Delta Air Lines says it will refund tickets to anyone who is too spooked to fly on the carrier.

"We felt that was only fair," said Bill Berry, a spokesman for the Atlanta-based carrier. "In the past, when there has been a hurricane coming in and people are afraid to fly, or there has been any time when we feel that fear is a legitimate concern, we have been willing to make a refund."

The most recent incident occurred Thursday, when Delta Flight 881 from Hobby in southeast Houston lost one of its four main landing gear tires on takeoff, said Bill Ainsworth, spokesman for Houston's aviation department.

Rather than turn back to Hobby, the pilot decided to land the plane at Houston Intercontinental Airport north of the city, Delta officials said.

"The pilot decided to go over to Intercontinental to land since the runways are larger and did so without incident," said Delta spokeswoman Jackie Pate.

The Dallas-bound Boeing 737 landed at Intercontinental at 12:25 p.m. and was being inspected, Ainsworth said. The 106 passengers were taken by bus to an airport terminal, and the jet was then towed from the runway.

Arrangements were made for passengers to get to Dallas aboard

other flights, Ms. Pate said.

The Federal Aviation Administration, which recently began a study of the airline's pilot training program, plans to investigate the Thursday mishap, a spokesman said.

"That (the wheel falling off) is fairly unusual," said FAA spokesman Fred Ferrar. "It's not catastrophic because obviously the pilot was able to land, but the FAA will still want to know why the wheel came off and if there is any chance of it happening again on others (airplanes) of this type."

Since June 18, Delta has been plagued with a series of near-accidents and other problems.

In the most recent incidents, a Delta baggage handler in Atlanta nearly got trapped in the luggage compartment of a jet that was about to take off Sunday for North Carolina, but a passenger heard his cries for help.

Last Sunday, because of controller error, two Delta jets flew dangerously close to each other in the air over Virginia, the FAA said.

Delta airliners caused at least two near-collisions with other aircraft, landed on an incorrect runway, landed at the wrong airport and came perilously close to crashing into the Pacific Ocean after a pilot's mistakenly shut off the jet engines, officials said.

While Delta said that the press is scrutinizing its every move, it also concedes it can't explain some of the pilot errors. Delta maintains that other airlines have similar problems, some of which the press neglects.

"We do not know what the cause is," Ms. Pate told the Dallas Times Herald. "This job would be easier for me if there was a concrete answer to all of this. There is no threat we can find linking" the incidents.

Bancshares report earnings

First Abilene Bancshares has reported consolidated earnings of $1.203 million, or 60 cents per share, for the quarter ending June 30.

The earnings compare to $1.051 million, or 53 cents per share, for the same quarter in 1986. For the year, earnings are $2.509 million, or $1.25 per share, as compared to $2.665 million, or $1.33 per share, for the first six months of 1986.

Kenneth T. Murphy, chief executive officer of FAB, said declines in the company's provision for loan losses provided "a positive influence on earnings while lower net interest income due to decreasing loan volume couple with increases in some expense areas affected earnings."

The company is the parent company of Hereford State Bank and banks in Abilene, Sweetwater, and Eastland.

Ann Landers Love is a strong force

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to the frustrated mother of the 11-year-old daughter was fine, but you missed the real issue. It's not Mom's authority or the daughter's behavior that caused the problem, it's the way they interact.

I saw our family in that woman's letter. I loved my daughter, but I was beginning to dislike her intensely. I also had become highly critical of her and was habitually negative.

I decided to try a one-month experiment. During that time I would refrain from all negative comments. I would offer only compliments and praise and point out her good qualities. I forced myself to hug her at every opportunity. It wasn't easy. It was never a hugger. At first she reacted stiffly, but by the end of the month a miracle had occurred. Our relationship turned around completely. I liked her. We enjoyed each other. We listened and talked to one another.

She is almost 15 now and still sits on my lap and wants a hug. I never miss an opportunity to let her know I love her.

If this worked for us, it can work for others. Please tell your readers.—"T." in Indy

DEAR INDY: Brilliant approach. And the rewards can be enormous. I've always said children will live up (or down) to your expectations. If you treat them as if they are lovable and honorable, they will break their necks to be just that.

A kid who is told, "You're no good," will fulfill the prophecy because he'll believe it and get stuck in that mold.

Love is the strongest force in the world, and it's one of the few things you can give away and still have more of than ever.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recently found out that all three of our babies were born mentally retarded and have Smith-Lemli-Opitz syndrome. Our oldest is 5 and I'm heartbroken. We had to put him in a group home.

More than a year ago, I started having severe anxiety attacks and spent a week in the hospital. I had my tubes tied because my husband says we can't support any more abnormal kids. The problem is that I am beginning to hate my friends who are able to have normal children. When I see them enjoying their little ones I become resentful and nasty. I cannot understand why God saw fit to favor them and ignore me. I have always tried to be a good person and do the right thing.

I need to find a reason to go on living. Can you help me?—Feeling Blue in the West

DEAR FRIEND: Life has certainly dealt you some cruel and painful blows. I can understand why you feel as you do. But we must accept that which we cannot change and not rail against it. To do otherwise is to invite misery.

Have you seen a doctor about medication to help lift the depression? If not, I urge you to do so. I also hope you will get counseling. You need to talk about your hostility toward friends. Verbalizing your feelings will help you get rid of your anger and feelings of persecution.

Hideous things can happen to some kind and wonderful people. Life is so unfair. Please write to me again and tell me that you have read this column and that you are taking my advice. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When you were growing up did you have to memorize poems? What was your favorite? Can you still recite it?—R., Latin School (Chicago)

DEAR R.: One of my favorites was "If" by Rudyard Kipling. I just tried to recite it from memory and by golly, I did it!

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 70 and have had two recent attacks of shin splints. Ice packs and pain killers helped, but what can I do to prevent recurrence?

DEAR READER — Shin splints are painful shins caused by strain of the leg muscles that attach to the tibia (shin). When these muscles are stretched, as in sports activity, some of the fibers tend to pull away from the tibia. Ice and rest can help alleviate symptoms. However, to prevent recurrence, you will have to discontinue brisk walking or running until your pain disappears, then begin an exercise program of increasing walking (or jogging) after a suitable period of daily stretching and warmup.

Shin splints are more common among people who exercise on hard surfaces, such as roads and packed gravel. Try to walk and run on grass until your legs become adapted to the increased activity. In addition, make sure that you wear shoes with adequate ankle support and soft, resilient soles.

If these measures aren't successful, check with your doctor to make sure that you don't have a stress fracture or circulatory insufficiency that could be a source of leg pain.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My dermatologist says that facial masks are fine for cosmetic purposes only and don't really penetrate or affect the skin. However, the local beauty-parlor folks insist they are necessary twice a week for deep cleaning. What's your opinion?

DEAR READER — I side with your dermatologist. The beauty-parlor folks make a good deal of financial profit by offering this service; therefore, they are not likely to discourage you from having facial treatments. As long as you accept the fact that facial masks are used purely for cosmetic purposes — and even this conclusion is in doubt — it's OK to have them. However, don't be conned into believing that they are necessary for

Giants' linebacker tells about his drug use

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL says it never watched Lawrence Taylor. The New York Giants have no comment.

But Taylor says "pretty nearly everybody," including police, knew or suspected he used drugs for three years and nobody did anything about it.

Taylor's allegations and his description of a three-year bout with cocaine are contained in a forthcoming book, "LT: Living on The Edge," excerpts of which were published in the September edition of Sport magazine, due out early next month.

In the excerpt, the NFL's Most Valuable Player wrote that he started using cocaine in October 1982 and continued until just before entering a drug rehabilitation facility early last year under the name of Paul Davis, his best friend. In 1985, he said, he started using crack, the powerful cocaine derivative "because the high was much more intense."

"From very early on, the Giants knew who on the team was into drugs," he said. "They certainly knew I was because they let me know...."

"Cops and NFL security people, people I knew, would follow me. This wasn't paranoia, this was surveillance — and it was a joke. If they wanted to bust me, fine. But I knew they weren't going to do that, not as long as I was who I was and my game was intact," the All-Pro linebacker wrote.

"If I were Joe Blow, OK, there'd be the slammer or some midnight trip to Betty Ford's farm.... It was almost a thrill in itself knowing that people knew what I was doing and wouldn't do a thing to stop me."

But the people Taylor said were aware of the problem denied any knowledge.

"This office has never had Lawrence Taylor under surveillance," NFL spokesman Joe Browne said. "Any future dealings with Taylor and the Giants regarding this matter will be handled on a confidential basis."

Giants' general manager George Young had no comment and compared Taylor's account with the Japanese play "Rashomon," in which people see the same event from different perspectives and added:

"We're told all the time about confidentiality in dealing with players. We're also in the rehabilitation business, not the punitive business."

Taylor, who lives in Upper Saddle River, N.J., did not specify what police agency followed him. The New Jersey State police and Upper Saddle River police both denied any knowledge and Prosecutor Larry McClure of Bergen County, where Giants Stadium and Taylor's home are located, said:

"If either myself or my staff knew he was taking drugs he would have been arrested. I could care less if he was Lawrence Taylor, Mahatma Gandhi or Oliver North."

Taylor, who led the NFL with 20½ sacks last year as the Giants won their first Super Bowl, had shunted aside all questions about his drug problem after it became known he had undergone rehabilitation in Houston last March.

But in the excerpt in Sport, he went into detail, crediting his wife Linda with persuading him to get off drugs.

Taylor said most of his teammates were aware he used cocaine: "The Giants, like every other team in the NFL, had guys who did drugs and guys who didn't. I knew some of them. I didn't know others. Pretty nearly everybody knew about me because I made no effort to hide it."

Buckley wins bass club tourney at Santa Rosa

Larry Buckley won the Hereford Bass Club tournament held last Saturday and Sunday at Santa Rosa.

Buckley totaled 112 and one half points in his first place effort. Jerry Walker finished in second place with 99 points, and Bruce Johnson was third with 78 and one half points.

The big bass was a four-pounder, caught by Walker.

Don Parr, the season leader in the club standings, was fourth in last weekend's tournament with 75 points. Sharon Johnson, Ruth Parr, and Lowell Risher tied for fifth place with 10 points each.

Carl Johnson scored 82 points for the junior division title, and also caught the big bass for that division, one pound, eight ounces.

The Hereford Bass Club will hold its next meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 4

After knockout loss to McCallum

Curry says he will return

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — After two losses, Donald Curry says he will take a couple of months off before trying to regain his position as world welterweight boxing champion.

"I'm back. Well, I'm not back, but I'm coming back if it's the last thing I ever do," the 25-year-old Fort Worth fighter told a news conference Thursday.

"I'm going to take a little time off and rest, but I don't want to sit idle too long. I've accepted the loss and now I just want to go on with my career," he said. "I hope to fight in October."

After a stunning fifth-round knockout Saturday in Las Vegas at the hands of junior middleweight champion Mike McCallum, promoter Bob Arum, who has promoted all 27 of Curry's professional fights, said the knockout severely affects Curry's prospects as a top attraction and that Curry should retire.

In the moments after the fight, Curry said retirement was a definite possibility.

But Thursday, Curry said he would feel uncomfortable quitting after losing a fight he thought he should have won.

"I'm not going to quit. I'm not a quitter. I'm a winner and I've been a winner all my life," he said.

McCallum's knockout of Curry was his 29th in a perfect 32-0 pro career and was his sixth consecutive successful title defense. McCallum has never been knocked down, but Curry delivered a right that staggered McCallum.

Curry was ahead on the cards of all three ring judges and had just scored against McCallum with a left when he moved back, dropped his right hand and got hit with a left uppercut that he said "came out of left field."

"I just took a vacation there for a second, and it cost me. I was pretty confident at the time of the knockout about what I was doing. I felt I was dominating the fight. I felt it was only a matter of time because I knew I was hurting him throughout the fight," Curry said.

Curry said he will take several weeks off and meet with his training adviser, David Gorman, and his business agent, Akbar Muhammad, at the end of August to plot his next steps.

He said he then wants a rematch with McCallum, a fight that Muhammad said could take place in February, although not necessarily promoted by Arum.

"Right now, today, we have offered Mike McCallum a million dollars to get him in the ring," Muhammad said.

Curry, 5-foot-11 and 154 pounds, has fought both as a welterweight and as a junior middleweight and plans to continue as a junior middleweight, he said.

"I don't think there's anything for me as a welterweight. I want to win the junior middleweight," Curry said. "I want McCallum. Physically and mentally, I know I can beat him."

Curry said he has agreed to Gorman's recommendation that he undergo a complete physical and neurological examination before returning to the ring.

"I would want that before he goes back into training," Gorman said. "I've got a feeling he's going to want a couple of quick fights once he gets a rest."

Pitcher Sandy Koufax, a Hall of Famer, fanned 2,396 batters in 2,325 innings, slightly more than one per inning.

In a game that was suspended Sept. 2, 1986, and completed the next day, the Cubs and Astros used 53 players, a record.

Pitches four-hitter

Candiotti hurls Indians past Rangers, 4-2

By CHUCK MELVIN
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tom Candiotti, rescued from oblivion by the knuckleball last year, has relegated the pitch to secondary status in an effort to pull himself out of a season-long slump.

The Cleveland right-hander relied heavily on fastballs and curveballs Thursday night to throw a four-hitter as the Indians defeated the Texas Rangers 4-2.

"It just seems I'm more effective when I can incorporate other pitches," Candiotti said. "(Pitching coach) Steve Comer has been working with me, taking me back to where I started last year — getting me into situations where I can throw the knuckleball aggressively."

Candiotti, 3-10, hadn't won since June 5 and hadn't thrown a complete game since April 21. He led the American League with 17 complete games last year, when he was 16-12.

He used fastballs and curves to get ahead of hitters Thursday and came with the knuckleball only in selected situations.

"I want him to use all his pitches," said Doc Edwards, who was making his first home appearance as the Indians' manager since he replaced the fired Pat Corrales on July 16.

"That might have been part of Candy's problem before — trying to force the knuckleball," Edwards said. "You have to throw pitches you believe in."

Candiotti walked one and struck out seven in his second complete game of the season.

"We hit terribly. He threw a lot of strikes with his breaking ball," said Pete O'Brien, who had one of the Rangers' four singles. "It looked like he would just throw it (the knuckleball) in the middle of the count, because he didn't have that good control of it."

Brook Jacoby and Pat Tabler each homered for Cleveland off Texas starter Jose Guzman, 8-9.

"I made a good pitch to Tabler, a curve," said Guzman. "To Jacoby, I just put a fastball right there for him."

The victory was only Cleveland's third in its last 11 games. Texas, which had won four of its previous five games, is still 7-2 against the Indians this year.

The Indians took a 1-0 lead in the third on Joe Carter's RBI single, after Brett Butler walked and took second on Tommy Hinzo's sacrifice.

Jacoby's homer, a two-run shot to right, made it 3-0 in the fourth. The home run was Jacoby's 18th, one more than he had all of last year.

Candiotti retired the first 12 Texas hitters before he walked O'Brien to start the fifth. Pete Inaviglia singed O'Brien to second, and both runners advanced on Andy Allanson's passed ball before Larry Parrish and Oddibe McDowell hit consecutive sacrifice flies.

Cleveland added a run in the seventh on Tabler's solo homer, his first since June 10 and his eighth this year.

Edwards couldn't fault Allanson for the passed ball, because Allanson was playing only his second game since being called up from Class AAA Buffalo.

"You have to remember, Andy hasn't caught a knuckleball all year. It's like trying to catch a wounded butterfly," Edwards said.

In other American League games, it was Baltimore 2, Kansas City 1; Toronto 4, Minnesota 3; and Milwaukee 12, Oakland 5 in the only games scheduled.

Orioles 2, Royals 1

The Baltimore Orioles are playing like a "family" these days, in more ways than one.

"It's a lot of fun in the clubhouse now," pitcher Eric Bell said after leading the Orioles to a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals Thursday night for their ninth straight victory. "We're nice and loose and we're joking around a lot. It feels like we're one big family right now."

That can be also taken literally, of course, since the recent callup of Billy Ripken gave the Orioles three family members on the same team with Manager Cal Ripken, Sr., and shortstop Cal Ripken, Jr.

The youngest Ripken has chipped in with some timely hits while hitting in eight straight games and solid defense. On Thursday night, Cal Jr., knocked in the Orioles' two runs with a fifth-inning single.

"That's what it takes to win ballgames and keep the streak going," Cal Ripken Sr. said. "We're just trying to play them one at a time. Just go out there and try to win every day."

The Orioles got a strong performance from Bell, who pitched a five-hitter and struck out a career-high 12 for his first complete game in the major leagues as he improved his record to 8-7. Bell had also pitched well against the Royals last Friday night in a 3-1 victory.

Danny Jackson, 4-12, suffered the loss.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 3

An RBI single by Lloyd Moseby with two outs in the bottom of the ninth and the five-hit pitching of Dave Stieb led Toronto over visiting Minnesota.

Garth Iorg singled with two outs in the ninth off reliever George Frazier, 5-5, moved to second on Tony Fernandez's single off Keith Atherton, and scored on Moseby's base hit.

Minnesota's Gary Gaetti hit a solo home run in the sixth, his 18th of the season, to tie the score 3-3 against Stieb.

Stieb, 9-5, struck out eight to win his third straight game.

Brewers 12, Athletics 5
Greg Brock and Paul Molitor homered to key consecutive four-run innings, leading Milwaukee over Oakland at County Stadium.

Joaquin Andujar, 3-3, balked with the bases loaded, forcing in Milwaukee's first run in the third. Brock then followed with a three-run homer, his 10th, to give the Brewers a 4-2 lead.

The Athletics got a run back in the fourth on Alfredo Griffin's RBI double off starter Chris Bosio, 6-2. But in the bottom half of the fourth, singles by Glenn Braggs, Bill Schroeder and Steve Keifer accounted for one run, another scored on Dale Sveum's grounder and Molitor's two-run homer made it 8-3 and chased Andujar.

Parker drives in six runs for Reds

By The Associated Press

Some extra batting practice earlier this week by Cincinnati's Dave Parker resulted in an almost perfect performance against the Montreal Expos.

Parker drove in six runs with a homer, double and single in five at-bats as the Reds defeated the Expos 8-4 Thursday night at Olympic Stadium.

The six runs batted in, tied Parker's career high for a game set against Los Angeles on May 9, 1975, while a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I took a lot of batting practice on Monday and Tuesday and it paid off tonight," Parker said.

"Pete (Manager Rose) told me that when you take a lot of extra BP (batting practice), you sometimes get tired and it takes a while until you see some results," Parker said.

Elsewhere in the National League Thursday, Philadelphia beat Atlanta 5-1; San Diego edged Pittsburgh 2-1 and St. Louis defeated Los Angeles 9-6 in the only other games scheduled.

The Expos scored four runs off Ted Power, 8-5, in the first inning, but he settled down and pitched eight innings, allowing eight hits. John Franco pitched the ninth inning for the Reds.

The Expos sent nine men to the plate and scored four runs — three unearned — in the first inning on four hits. Tim Wallach's double accounted for two runs before Andres Galarraga and Mike Fitzgerald each drove in one with singles.

Montreal starter Bryn Smith, 6-4, allowed eight hits and six earned runs in 4 1-3 innings as the Expos lost their third straight.

Phillies 5, Braves 1

Don Carman pitched five-hit ball over seven innings and drove in a run with a single as Philadelphia beat Atlanta at Veterans Stadium.

Carman, 6-7, struck out six and walked five. Mike Jackson pitched the final two innings for the Phillies allowing no hits.

With the score tied 1-1, the Phillies took a 3-1 lead in the fifth with the help of Carman's single.

Darren Daulton reached on a one-out single and raced to third on Steve Jeltz's double. Carman then singled to score Daulton and Jeltz took third; Jeltz then scored on Juan Samuel's sacrifice fly.

Padres 2, Pirates 1

Eric Show pitched six-hit ball for 8 2-3 innings and Randy Ready hit a home run as host San Diego beat Pittsburgh.

Show, 5-11, struck out eight and walked two before leaving with two outs and two on in the ninth inning. Rich Gossage got the last out for his seventh save.

Ready led off the second with a homer off Doug Drabek, 2-9, and Tony Gwynn doubled in the other San Diego run in the third.

Cardinals 9, Dodgers 6

Vince Coleman snapped a 6-6 tie with a run-scoring single in the ninth inning and Ozzie Smith added a two-run double as St. Louis won its fourth straight, taking a 9½-game lead over second-place Montreal in the NL East.

The Dodgers have lost five straight games and have also dropped seven in a row to the Cardinals.

Matt Young, 5-6, came on in the ninth in relief of starter Orel Hershisser and allowed a one-out single to Tony Pena and an infield hit by pinch-hitter Steve Lake. Coleman then singled to right to score Pena and Smith followed with his 200th career double.

The victory went to reliever Ken Dayley, 5-1. Todd Worrell pitched the ninth inning for his 21st save.

POLLY'S POINTERS Proper sealing is a must for canning

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — When canning tomatoes, I occasionally have a jar that does not seal properly. Can such a jar be reprocessed in the boiling water bath to reseal the lid? — EDITH

DEAR EDITH — Simply replacing the jar in the boiling water will not correct the problem that prevented a proper seal in the first place. Such a jar must be emptied, the contents reheated (if it was a hot pack) and put into a clean, hot jar with a fresh lid and ring, then processed in the boiling water bath. In other words, you must start from the beginning. If you're only dealing with a single jar, it would probably be simpler to just refrigerate the contents and use within a couple of days. However, if you have several jars that didn't seal, review your canning procedures carefully before re-canning the food. You may be doing something wrong that is preventing a proper seal.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Canning Fruits, Tomatoes and Pickles," which gives complete directions for boiling-water bath canning, including the latest recommended processing times for various fruits, juices, tomatoes and pickles. It also includes recipes for my favorite dilled green beans and fruit butters. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Here's something to help save a salad for two to three days. When I cut up vegetables for a salad (such as lettuce, celery, carrots, broccoli, radishes, jicama), I do not put on any dressing — or tomatoes. After eating some of it one night, I smooth it down and spray the top with a vegetable-oil cooking spray. By keeping air out of the salad with the spray, the vegetables don't turn dark and stay fresh through the second or third day. — L.R.B.

DEAR POLLY — Some time ago, I cut out a Pointer but misplaced it. It was about a solution of bleach and dishwasher soap mixed to whiten white nylon socks or underwear. I had mixed it before and soaked my husband's socks in it, and it really helped brighten them. Can you reprint the quantity of ingredients? — B.

DEAR B. — I'm happy to repeat the formula for this laundry pre-soak, but you should be aware that it's not really recommended for nylon. The pre-wash contains chlorine bleach, which can yellow nylon. The pre-soak will remove many stains and brighten dull, grayed whites and colors on colorfast items that are safe for chlorine bleach.

Mix 1/4 cup chlorine bleach and 1/4 cup automatic dishwasher detergent in 2 gallons of hot water in a plastic bucket or your washer. Soak white cottons and synthetics that can be washed in hot water for two hours (more if heavily stained). Colorfast colors that can be safely chlorine-bleached can be soaked for 30 minutes after allowing the mixture to cool. Always test first before using on colored fabrics.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Homemade Soaps and Cleaners," which has this formula as well as a more gentle pre-soak for delicate fabrics, a formula for homemade laundry soap and recipes for household cleaning products, furniture polishes, hand soap and more. Others who would like the newsletter should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — For a nutritious treat to satisfy that sweet tooth, just add sliced canned peaches in light syrup (using some of the liquid to moisten) to leftover cooked rice. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar to taste and pop into the microwave to warm.

As a nurse, I accidentally found a useful way to make bandaids come off more easily. Simply fold over part of one end so that it doubles back on itself. The adhesive at that part doesn't stick to the skin and it enables you to lift up this flap and yank it away (the quicker, the better, right?) My patients enjoyed this because it saves having to pick and pick at a starting point to remove the bandage. — C.C.

IT'S LIKE THIS

Here is another story illustrating what the Kingdom of God is like: A farmer sowed his field, And went away, and as the days went by, the seeds grew and grew without his help. For the soil made the seeds grow. First a leaf-blade pushed through, and later the wheat-heads formed and finally the grain ripened. And then the farmer came at once with his sickle and harvested it." Jesus asked, "How can I describe the Kingdom of God? What story shall I use to illustrate it? It is like a tiny mustard seed! Though this is one of the smallest of seeds, yet it grows to become one of the largest of plants, with long branches where birds can build their nests and be sheltered." He used many such illustrations to teach the people as much as they were ready to understand. In fact, He taught only by illustrations in His public teaching, but afterwards, when He was alone with His disciples, He would explain His meaning to them.

'Collegian' key to careers for young Blacks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "The Black Collegian" may be the best kept secret in American publishing. It can't be found on newsstands, but it has the fifth-largest circulation of any black-owned and operated publication in the United States. Just a handful of its 120,717 readers subscribe, but thousands of young black men and women read the magazine and many credit it with providing them a key to careers in mainstream American businesses. "We publish this magazine with a missionary zeal," publisher and president Preston Edwards said. "It's not like we're selling widgets or something like that. We're providing young people with information to help them plan their careers, which will determine their lifestyle for the rest of their life. "We're very proud of what we do." For all of its success today, "The Black Collegian" was nearly stillborn, almost a victim of a con game that preyed on the aspirations of black Americans during the 1970s. When the first issue appeared in December 1970, it had a thin 40 pages, eight of which were advertisements. It aimed to be a college version of "Ebony" or "Life." Today, the magazine is a slick publication that runs 140 pages or more, full of advertising to recruit minority students. It is published four times during the academic year and has articles listing the hows and wheres of finding jobs and succeeding in them. It began as a magazine sold on the campuses of traditionally black colleges. But it is now distributed free by college guidance offices on 1,200 campuses nationwide. Each issue is built around a theme. In September, the careers issue appears, with articles about fields that hold promise and those that have flattened out or appear to be dead ends. In November, the 100 largest recruiters of college graduates is the theme. In January it is engineering and black history. In March, the jobs issue is published. When the magazine began, it wasn't intended to be oriented toward jobs and careers. At that time, Edwards was teaching finance and accounting at Southern University in Baton Rouge. It was the deaths of two students at Jackson State in May 1970 that galvanized Edwards and his students. "We saw that there was a need for a publication directed towards college students that dealt with issues on college campuses," he said. "Initially we wanted a news magazine. But after reality set in, we realized that we had to generate the funds from advertising and that it had to be a career magazine, so that we could generate recruitment advertising." But there were others who were tapping corporate America's burgeoning interest in recruiting minority college students. "There were problems in the industry caused by non-black magazines based in California, publishers who pretended to publish a magazine but didn't publish a magazine," Edwards said. "They sent bills to corporations. It was just a scam. "Somebody would call the company and tell them they represented a black organization that was promoting equal opportunity employment and they would like that company to advertise in their magazine, and the companies would pay. "When that came out, it became extremely hard for us to sell advertising." Things limped along until the first jobs issue in 1978 — the same year as the first engineering issue.

'Bandstand' revisited on cable

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Contrary to Chuck Berry's lyrics, they're no longer dancin' on "Bandstand" in Philadelphia, P.A. But 30 years after millions of bobby soxers rushed home after school to watch their favorite dancers on "American Bandstand," a new generation of Philadelphia teenagers is influencing coast-to-coast dress and dance styles with a daily cable TV show, "Dance Party USA." These urban teens dress like Madonna or Tom Cruise rather than Annette Funicello or Frankie Avalon, and they listen to Walkmans and compact discs rather than hot wax 45s. Their funky do-your-own thing dances bear little resemblance to the Jerk, the Twist and the Pony of their parents. But while your 1987 American teen is supposed to be more worldly, sophisticated and less impressionable than that of a generation ago, these TV dancers have attracted the same kind of national following, even idolation, that Dick Clark's hand-picked high schoolers did in the 1950s. "Our show is just like the old Bandstand used to be. We feature the kids," said Michael Nise, executive producer of "Dance Party USA." "Our kids usually get 3,000 to 5,000 letters a week, and one of our dancers, Bob Catalano, averages 700 letters a week."

The 18-month-old "Dance Party USA" is carried six afternoons a week on the USA Network and is a spinoff from "Dancing on Air," a live Monday-through-Friday show that has aired for six years on WPHL-TV in Philadelphia. The 75-odd dancers, most aged 15-18, travel directly from school to the studio to perform first on the live local show, then tape one or two shows for cable. Each show features the kids dancing to three or four hits, a video clip and often a lip sync by one of the regulars. There are also old "Bandstand" standbys such as ladies' choice dances, spotlight dances and a Dear Abby-like advice feature for lovelorn teens. The host, disc jockey Andy Gury, regularly quizzes the dancers about the status of their love lives and the problems of modern-day teens, such as parental divorce, drug use and peer pressure. A contest in which the school collecting the most names on a petition won a visit from a troupe of "Dance Party" regulars generated nearly 2 million signatures. Covington (Va.) High School won with 400,000 signatures. The show is the highest-rated youth-oriented program on USA Network. Last month, it attracted an estimated daily audience up to 590,000 households, according to USA publicist Jim Murray. "Dance Party's" popularity is rising at the same time the original "American Bandstand," in its 30th anniversary year, is leaving network television. It was dropped by ABC but is going into syndication. '67 class reunion set Aug. 8 The 20th reunion of the 1967 Hereford High School graduating class is planned Aug. 8.
