Battelle leases Lo-Mart; store closing

New Battelle offices

The Lo-Mart Discount Center building, which opened in March, 1986 as a Smith's grocery store, will soon be converted to offices for Battelle Memorial Institute. An official announcement was made Tuesday after final contract approval. Lo-Mart will not reopen, and employees were promised jobs elsewhere when they were told of the change Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Hereford's Lo-Mart store on North U.S. 385 will be closing its doors in early September, to reopen in about three months as an office building for Battelle Memorial Institute employees working with the Department of Energy's Salt Characterization Project here.

The announcement was made Wednesday by John Treadwell, Battelle's deputy program manager in Hereford.

The 43,000 square foot building will be leased for three years at $50,271.67 a month for a total of $1.9 million, then as needed on an annual basis for seven years at $33,996.67 monthly, or $407,960 a year.

The building opened in March, 1986 as a Smith's grocery store and was purchased by Furr's Incorporated in November, 1986 for use as a discount store. The building is still owned by Furr's and rent checks will be processed through Mex-Tex Development, a subsidiary of Furr's based in Amarillo.

George Chapman, president of Mex-Tex, confirmed that he responded to concern on the part of DOE and Battelle negotiations about the fate of Lo-Mart employees with a promise from Furr's that all of the employees would be employed elsewhere in the company.

"I was told by Roland Hafenoehrl that everyone would have a job," he said.

Hafenoehrl was unavailable for comment; however, Chapman and Bub Smith, an independent oil and gas man who also works for Mex-Tex, both said they do not believe the company plans to reopen the Lo-Mart store in any other buildings in Hereford.

"When negotiations opened they mentioned a plan to combine the leftover merchandise with their inventory in Save-N-Gain," Treadwell said. "However, no mention of that has been made recently."

In making his announcement, during Bob Wunderlich's DOE Deputy Manager's meeting today, Treadwell said that the agreement was signed Tuesday afternoon and that Lo-Mart employees were informed last night and this morning of the changes.

"Lo-Mart will have a merchandise reduction sale between now and September 5, and then will begin moving any leftover inventory out to vacate the building by September 19," he said.

Estimates of renovations to the building total $800,000, according to Treadwell, and Battelle employees will move into the building as sectors are completed. Final move-in is expected to take three months.

In the meantime, Battelle has contracted to lease a total of 40 rooms, in blocks of 10, at the Holiday Motel in Hereford to be used as temporary office space for a rapidly increasing work force.

42 percent of the project work force to be officed in Hereford are now in the area. 51 of the families reside in Hereford with 66 employees commuting from Amarillo and 20 traveling from Canyon.

27 of the Hereford families are transfers, with the remaining employees classified as local hires.

Wunderlich said Amarillo has received the bulk of the dollars, with $632,000 of project money committed in Hereford, and $1.4 million, not including the Battelle-LoMart contract, committed to Amarillo.

WDIC seeks input on bills

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Members of the Waste Deposit Impact Committee will be seeking input from the groups they represent and from the public on several changes that could be made in the nuclear waste program.

WDIC met Tuesday and discussed four major bills that could change—in some cases, drastically—the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, the legislation which called for three sites, including one in northern Deaf Smith County, to be characterized for a possible permanent, high-level nuclear waste repository.

The bills include three that would call for a moratorium in the program for 12 to 18 months and another, by Senate Energy Committee Chairman Bennett Johnston (D-La.) that would offer a state up to $100 million up front and $50 million per year for accepting the repository, provided the state can provide a suitable site.

Debate will reopen on the bills Sept. 8, when Congress reconvenes from its summer recess, and hearings could begin on the bills around Sept. 18.

However, WDIC members want input from their entities before making a decision on which way they should lean when looking at probable changes in the nuclear waste program.

"I want to get a sense of direction from the group I represent," said Tom Legate, who represents the City of Hereford. "I also want to be sure that's the realm they want me operating in. There are some things in there that may need to be addressed, but that's beyond what I was originally seated for."

"We need to do something before the legislation is enacted," said WDIC Secretary Frank Zinser. "If we don't, we will have wasted our time. We will be reacting to what has happened.

"I'm not trying to stall," Legate said. "I want to proceed if my entity wants me to."

WDIC has scheduled a 7 a.m. meeting on Sept. 9 to discuss possible testimony on the pending bills.

Steve Frishman, who left his job as head of the Governor's Nuclear Waste Programs Office two weeks ago, told the committee that when WDIC members talked with their entities, they needed to "keep their information short—you don't want to confuse them. You also need to look at all of the consequences of each

Tech professor assails site

PAMPA, Texas (AP) — A Texas Tech University geology professor says he suspects the ground is unstable beneath a proposed nuclear waste repository site in Deaf Smith County.

Dr. C.C. Reeves said his data indicates instability beneath the nine-square-mile site proposed for the nuclear dump, but says he does not have enough data to rule out the site.

Several hundred feet of salt has been removed beneath the site and contributed to the formation of two basins, Reeves said.

The Department of Energy selected the site north of Hereford and 45 miles west of Amarillo as one of three proposed locations for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste repository in May 1986. The department will recommend a finalist to Congress from the three.

"The DOE has said in their environmental assessment that there is no salt dissolving on the site itself," Reeves said. "My studies have indicated that the surface is subsiding."

The salt layer below the surface has apparently dissolved, lowering the surface and helping to create a lake basin, Reeves said.

Bob Wunderlich, DOE deputy project manager in Hereford, has said the department drilled 10 bore holes in Deaf Smith and Swisher counties, and found formations in the area to be uniform throughout the holes.

However, Reeves said that the holes bored by DOE are too far apart to accurately depict uniformity of the formations since the basin areas may be as small as one mile in diameter.

Reeves said study results suggest that DOE will have to take extra measures to determine if the site meets requirements set for a nuclear repository, including one that the geologic integrity of the site has to be ensured for 10,000 years.

"I think it is very easy to account for the differences (between his

DOE advances info schedule

By DEBE GRAVES

The Department of Energy is accelerating a portion of its Salt Repository Project being conducted in northern Deaf Smith County, according to Project Manager Jeff Neff.

Neff announced this morning that plans to speed up public access of information concerning the final Salt Characterization Plan have been made following criticism DOE has received that under the initial plan, too little time was allowed for the public to review and comment on the plan.

"In effect we have added another step which is to include the publication of a consultative draft on January 8, 1988," Neff said.

All three sites being characterized for possible placement of nuclear waste will publish their tentative plans on the same day and will then allow two to three months for public meetings and to develop finalized plans which will include some alterations based on public comment.

"This does not represent a delay in our schedule nor does it mean an acceleration of anything other than getting information to people quicker and providing them more time to read it and respond to it," Neff said.

Under the original time frame the Nevada program would publish a final form site characterization plan this month; Washington state was due to present its final plan in December, and the Deaf Smith County site plan was to be published, in final form, next March.

Now, all three sites will publish plans in January, and the final Deaf Smith County plan may not be out until after the March time schedule (See MANAGER, Page 2)

A blood drive will be held today from 2-8 p.m. in the Community Center.

It is sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Police report

The Hereford Police Department had a light day Tuesday, investigating several minor incidents.

Offenses included a woman, 26, for driving a motor vehicle without liability insurance, second offense; Class C assault by an 18-year-old man; a stolen hood ornament from a Cadillac parked at a business on North US 385; injury to a child charges pending against a man, 18; and charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle are pending against a juvenile.

Hereford police issued 10 traffic tickets Tuesday.

Hospital board discusses salaries

A lengthy closed session meeting of the directors of Deaf Smith County Hospital District was held Monday night, and board president Margie Ford reported Tuesday that no action was taken as a result of the discussions.

The board had called the closed session to discuss pay scales of hospital employees, Mrs. Ford explained.

Walcott lowers tax rate

The tax rate for the Walcott Independent School District was decreased by seven cents when the board adopted the new budget last night. The 1987 tax rate will be 68 cents per $100 evaluation, compared to 75 cents for the previous year.

The new budget was approved at $409,615, according to Supt. Bill

McLaughlin. This was up slightly from last year's budget of $385,344. Dr. McLaughlin said the increase was related to two factors—the purchase of a new school bus and the addition of a parttime teacher for the gifted-talented students.

School board calls meeting

The Hereford Independent School District Board of Trustees will have a called meeting Thursday at 6 p.m. at the HISD Administration Building.

Items on the agenda include: amendment of the 1986-87 budget, adoption of the 1987-88 budget; setting the HISD tax rate; fleet insurance bids; shortened periods at Hereford High School; and a resolution for an Appraisal District representative.

City to meet Thursday

The Hereford City Commission will meet Thursday at 5 p.m. at the Hereford City Hall.

The commission will consider an ordinance that would give the Deaf Smith General Hospital District the city's formal approval to sell bonds.

The hospital district is required, by law, to have approval from both the city and county before the bonds may be sold. The county gave the hospital its approval Monday.

Wet weather in store

Forecasters are calling for a 70 percent chance of thunderstorms tonight, with locally heavy rains and a few severe thunderstorms possible. Tonight's low should cool off to 58 degrees, and northeast wind will be 5 to 15 mph.

Thursday will see mostly cloudy skies and a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms. The high will be 78 and east wind will be 5 to 15 mph. Today's low at KPAN was 63 after a high Tuesday of 83.

Porta-pots raise San Antonio stink

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — When it was first announced that Pope John Paul II would say Mass at an outdoor site across the road from Alicia Fahnert's home, the family thought they would get a good view of the event.

But that was before authorities placed about 250 portable toilets about 40 feet from the entrance gate to the Fahnert home.

Now Mrs. Fahnert is raising a stink to get the portable potties located elsewhere on the 144-acre site where the Pope will say Mass Sept. 13 before an estimated 500,000 people.

"This is such a disgusting sight," she told the San Antonio Express-News Tuesday. "They're all dilapidated and they block our view of the Mass site."

"It's so depressing to walk out to the yard and see all these green, blue and yellow potties," Fahnert said.

She said she has asked that the toilets be removed but has been told they will remain in that location until after the event.

"On Monday, when they put the potties up, I called the Rev. David Garcia, (chairman of the Mass site committee) who told me he couldn't do anything about it," she said.

"I then called Alamo Architects, who put up the potties, and they told me to call the Rev. Garcia," she added. "I'm just getting the run around," she said.

Church officials were not available for comment Tuesday night, the newspaper reported.

Fahnert said what is especially upsetting to her is that she and her family have worked closely with those in the papal committee, Secret Service and everyone else involved in the pontiff's visit.

"We have bent over backwards for them, then they go and put up these potties right in front of our house," she said.

"We're the only homestead that has these ugly things in front of the house," Fahnert said. "There are 144-acres at that site where the potties can be placed but they're placed in front on our house, and three weeks before the event."

The Fahnert family has also had to deal with disconnected telephone lines that result from telephone crews working at the Mass site.

"We have had to put up with so much, I'm getting really tired," Fahnert said. "All we're hoping for is that they move the potties."

Fahnert said Garcia has offered her family a few seats at the Mass that are located directly in front of the pope.

"We're thankful but we don't want them because we can't see ourselves being out there with all those people when we could be in our own home," she said. "But now with these potties out in front, we won't be able to see a thing."

CIA official says

Casey backed arms sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The late CIA Director William J. Casey sidestepped subordinates who questioned the Reagan administration's secret weapons sales to Iran, according to testimony quoted in a published report today.

Clair George, the agency's deputy director for operations, said Casey overruled his objections to individuals chosen by the White House to carry out the arms deals, The New York Times reported.

George's closed-door testimony Aug. 5 and 6 before the congressional Iran-Contra committees was scheduled for release today. The Times quoted a transcript it obtained in advance.

According to the newspaper's report, George told the committees he raised questions about Iranian middleman Manucher Ghorbanifar and retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, who arranged logistics for the secret arms shipments.

George said he went directly to Casey with his objections after learning that Ghorbanifar was the only intermediary for dealings with Iran.

"I said, 'Bill, I am not going to run this guy anymore,' which means in our language, 'I will not handle him, he is a bum,'" George said.

However, George said, Casey began to "wire around" — or circumvent — subordinates who objected to the plan.

Casey, a longtime friend and adviser to President Reagan, resigned as CIA director in February after being hospitalized seven weeks earlier with brain seizures. He died in May.

George also was questioned sharply about his claim before another congressional panel in October 1986 that the CIA had no role in secret resupply operations to aid the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. The claim has since been contradicted.

Eichner will also be looking for a new legislative consultant while in Washington.

depending upon the amount and type of public comment the program receives, according to Neff.

He stressed that this will not effect land acquisition or beginning construction of the exploratory shaft.

Land acquisition is moving forward with a joint meeting between project staff, the Corps of Engineers and Washington headquarters of the DOE later this week. Neff estimates that actual land acquisition will begin in December or January.

House approval of Congressional funding of $79 million, previously withheld pending the presentation of proof that DOE is working with the states being characterized, came through on August 12 and though Bob Wunderlich, deputy manager for the salt project, says congressional activity may impact the program at some point he sees no current impacts.

"There are so many bills out there and other ways Congress can impact the program that I am sure that there will eventually be some impact but there is none at this time," he said.

study results and DOE's environmental assessment study), Reeves said. "I'm really the only geologist that's been on the site. The DOE has never been on the site."

He recently met with DOE officials in Hereford and said they indicated they may conduct similar studies.

Reeves, the only scientist that dump-site landowners have allowed in the area, began drilling with a small rig in January 1986 with the help of some Texas Tech graduate students.

He would not divulge the cost of the study but said that he and several former students have provided "thousands" of dollars necessary to fund data collection.

Cold front triggers showers

By The Associated Press

A weak cold front was expected to trigger showers and thunderstorms across most of Texas tonight and Thursday.

The front stretched early today across western Oklahoma through the Texas Panhandle southwestward into central New Mexico and was triggering showers and thunderstorms in northeastern sections of the Panhandle along and north of the front.

Another area of thunderstorms was located from northeast of Snyder on the Low Rolling Plains to east of Fort Stockton in the Trans-Pecos.

Forecasts called for showers and thunderstorms to increase across much of West Texas through tonight.

Pesticide hotline fields calls

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A little-known telephone hotline has gotten a lot of use since the maker of chlordane, a termite killer, agreed to stop selling the product.

Right after the Environmental Protection Agency persuaded Velsicol Inc. to stop selling the pest-killer, the National Pesticide Telecommunications Network in Lubbock got about 650 calls a day from consumers wanting to know about the product, the network's head said Tuesday.

Calls have leveled off to about 200 a day, Principal Investigator Dr. F.R. Jonas said from his office at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

The telephone hotline, sponsored mostly by the Environmental Protection Agency, was established in 1978 at a Texas Tech insecticide laboratory in San Benito. It is designed to be a clearinghouse of pesticide information and to provide referrals for specific health-related questions.

The hotline moved in 1985 to Lubbock, where insecticide specialists and graduate students at the Health Science Center's department of preventive medicine have fielded an average of 150 phone calls a day, answering questions about the thousands of pesticides on the market.

About 85 percent of the calls are from the general public, Jonas said. Some have questions that are not answered on insecticide labels and others are worried because they have used the wrong concentration or have exposed themselves to a product.

"Many people don't read labels, misapply the insecticide, then call when they get worried," Jonas said.

The rest of the calls are from businesses, doctors and veterinarians. The hotline can forward calls to a national poison-control center in New Mexico and an animal poison-control center in Illinois, Jonas said.

Half the calls concern about 20 often-used insecticides, Jonas said. In the days following the EPA's announcement that Velsicol Inc. of Rosemont, Ill., had agreed to stop selling chlordane, the number of calls shot up dramatically.

Chlordane was introduced in 1948 to combat a variety of pests, but was restricted in 1983 to underground use only against termites. Citing research that suggested chlordane causes cancer, the EPA pressured Velsicol this year to stop marketing the product.

Most of those calling with questions about chlordane wanted to know the risks associated with exposure, ways to detect the chemical and how to dispose of it, Jonas said.

The hotline, (800) 858-PEST, is staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week. During business hours, three pesticide specialists are on hand. Depending on the volume of calls, 11 to 13 graduate students staff the phones in shifts. The network can handle 10 calls at a time.

The staff has access to books, a computer data base and product information provided by manufacturers, Jonas said.

Some makers provide the hotline number on their labels and the EPA lists the number on pamphlets about insecticides. Jonas said the network plans to set up exhibits at conventions of pesticide operators and medical associations to spread word of the hotline.

State sells $1.25 billion in bonds

AUSTIN (AP) — The sale of $1.25 billion in cash management notes by the state should solve state government's cash-flow problems for a year, Treasurer Ann Richards says.

"State checks will be good, employees will be paid on time, schools will open and critical health and human services will continue," Ms. Richards said. "Texas can pay its bills and provide uninterrupted services for its taxpayers."

The one-year notes — with an interest rate of 4.726 percent — will generate money immediately for the state fiscal year beginning Sept. 1.

They will be repaid, at a cost of about $60 million, on Aug. 31, 1988, Ms. Richards said Tuesday.

The interest rate on the Texas notes was the lowest of any recent short-term issue on Wall Street, officials said. Louisiana sold $200 million in nine-month notes at 4.86 percent interest, and the city of Philadelphia sold $200 million in 10-month notes at 4.89 percent.

Ms. Richards said the lower rate for Texas notes indicates investor confidence in Texas despite more than a year of state economic and budget problems. She said there were more orders from buyers than there were notes to sell.

"I think there's still a tremendous interest in and a good feeling about Texas," she said.

"Maybe it's part of our mystique that is still hanging in there. But whatever it is, they are still interested in our paper ... The sale shows that Wall Street obviously has faith that Texas will take care of its economic problems."

The favorable interest rate means it is cheaper for state government to issue the notes than it would be to borrow from other state funds if the money were available there, Ms. Richards said.

"That (4.726 percent) rate, of course, is much lower than the rate would have been had we borrowed our own money — which we can keep invested at a higher rate," she said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a nurse who believes it is cruel, inhuman and immoral for doctors to place a time limit on life. It seems to me that the experts never strike a sensible balance. Either they go overboard or underboard, and this applies to just about everything in the medical profession.

For years the patient was kept in the dark about his or her fatal illness. There was a great deal of game-playing. In recent times, however, the psychologists, psychiatrists and sociologists are taking us in another direction.

Today terminal illnesses are discussed thoroughly with the patient in an attempt to prepare that patient for death. I maintain that there is no way a doctor can know for certain when a patient is going to die unless he or she has lapsed into a final coma or has deteriorated to the extent that there is no chance for reversal.

I agree with your recommendation that the seriously ill patient should be told of the prognosis so he can put his affairs in order, but the physician should preface his remarks with something like this: "We do not have all the answers nor can we play God. You could fool everybody and live a long time."

Hope must never be destroyed. Many patients have lived far longer than their doctors thought possible simply because they refused to be counted out.—Eternal Optimist in N.J.

DEAR OP: I agree that terminal patients should be told of the prognosis so they can put their affairs in order, and that hope should never be taken away. Many patients who had the can-do, I-shall-overcome-spirit surprised the experts and are now living good lives.

It is a well-known fact that people can die from heartbreak, disappointment and sorrow. The same works in reverse. The positive thinker, the fighter who refuses to accept the death verdict, can fool the doctors. Remember Norman Cousins' great book, "Anatomy of an Illness?" I'm sure it prolonged and saved lives.

How does it work? The chemicals unleashed by a determined outlook help the immune system fight disease. Witch doctors and faith healers would like to claim credit, but we know it has nothing to do with them. It has everything to do with the patient who believes he or she is going to get well.

This is not to say everyone can cure his or her cancer by thinking positively, but a good many positive thinkers have gone into unexplained remission for years and some have buried their doctors.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was deeply disappointed in your answer to the woman who told you she was from a foreign country and didn't speak very good English. The poor dear was writing about a man she had met on a cruise, and it was obvious that he was taking advantage of her and trying to get his hands on her money. You told her, "Give that Bozo the deep six."

Now, really, Miss Landers, do you honestly believe the woman understood what you meant? Please don't try to be so cute next time.—English Prof, UCLA

DEAR UCLA: You're right. My answer wouldn't have won any blue ribbons at the county fair. I did, however, suggest that she tell the manipulative creep "Adios," so I would bet that she got the message after all.

What are the signs of alcoholism? How can you tell if someone you love is an alcoholic? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. CHECK YOUR PULSE BEAT

NEW YORK (AP)—You can check your aerobic fitness level by taking your resting (lying down) pulse, says the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau.

The best time is right after you wake up and before you consume any stimulants or experience any stress. A fit heart pumps more blood per beat, so it uses less beats to supply the resting body.

Count your pulse for 30 seconds and double the result. Under 50 is very fit. Over 80 and you better see your doctor and start exercising.

TAPS program available

Amarillo College Access Division has initiated a program entitled Transitional Assistance for Post-Secondary Students (TAPS) to enable learning disabled students to succeed in a college environment. TAPS consists of a curriculum of specialized courses along with services, one-on-one instruction, counseling, and equipment to assist LD students in transition to college courses which lead to a certificate of degree, or to help these students successfully enter the job market.

Any student with a learning disability that can be verified by diagnostic testing is eligible to apply for the TAPS program at Amarillo College. A person with a learning disability is defined as having:

1. average or above average intelligence
2. learning disability as the primary disability
3. a severe discrepancy between achievement and aptitude
4. a permanent (non-curable) disability

TAPS is designed specifically for the moderately to severely learning disabled student who is motivated to learn better social, communication, academic, and life skills. TAPS provides a highly structured, closely monitored program of courses and services. The mildly learning disabled student may need less structure and fewer services. These students are served on an individual basis through Amarillo College's Accessibility Services rather than through the TAPS program.

TAPS consists of three stages in which students are progressively mainstreamed into other college curriculums with courses and services becoming increasingly individualized. All students enrolled in TAPS are required to take credit classes in the areas of personal development, study skills, utilization of resources, socialization, communications, life skills, reading, career and academic planning. Structured study labs and tutoring are part of the coursework. Students in TAPS are typically enrolled in class or lab for six to eight hours a day, five days a week.

Support services for TAPS students will be provided on an individual need basis to enable students to have an equal opportunity to succeed. Services include notetakers, specialized equipment, readers, the use of taped textbooks, peer tutoring, time extensions on exams, oral or taped exams, exams taken in an isolated location, counseling, and academic planning.

TAPS is currently funded as a demonstration project under a three-year grant (1987-1990) from the US Department of Education. For this reason, the TAPS program can be offered by Amarillo College at the same tuition and fee rate as all other college courses. No additional fees are assessed. Complete tuition information is available in the AC Adviser or by calling the Registrar's Office at 371-5030.

Application information for the TAPS programs is available by calling the college at 371-5436.

Preacher, policeman remain good friends

by SANDRA GINES
Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO, Texas (AP) - They are men of the law and men of the Lord. They are good friends whose lives have been woven together ever since they met during college days at Paul Quinn.

Willie Tompkins is the elder by about four years. At 6 feet, 2½ inches and 240 pounds, it's easier to think of him as an investigator in the district attorney's office grilling some reluctant criminal rather than behind the pulpit speaking of God's love.

But after talking to him, his gentle manner makes that first impression flip-flop.

Larry Courtney is a more compact package of energy. He's a little reserved at first, but only until he understands that the subject is religion; then he becomes almost jovial.

During the week, Courtney investigates house burglaries as a member of the Special Investigations team at the Waco Police Department. On the weekend, he is associate minister at the 200-member Mount Pleasant Baptist Church in Downsview, working alongside pastor Tompkins.

Tompkins and Courtney traced their paths from college to pulpit.

"Paul Quinn. That's when I first got to know him," said Tompkins with a smile. "He used to ease my wife, call her a 'cop's wife.' He was kind of a radical young man."

Courtney said, "he was the first black police officer that I knew personally, so I used to rib his wife about it when I'd see her."

Tompkins graduated from college and said he went into law enforcement because he could not find work as a coach and because he "always wanted to help people." He was also able to earn more on a policeman's pay, he said.

"After being on the police department for 9½ years, I was divinely called to the ministry," Tompkins said.

He said he drifted away from the church and was "kinda straddling the fence" for four or five years. One day in 1978, he was "scheming," or trying to decide who to take on a date when "a small voice told me to get out of town."

He went to Houston, and that Sunday morning, "lo and behold, I had a Jesus experience."

A lot of people do not understand a calling, Tompkins said.

"Preachers are not sent of themselves. They cannot make up their minds to be a preacher. The Lord calls you," he said.

In 1979, he was pastoring a small church in Moody and working in the juvenile department at the police station. Eventually, he was moved to a department that conflicted with his duties as pastor. "The call was stronger," he said, and he quit the police in 1981.

The two vocations are compatible for Tompkins, who said he is not one to mix preaching with law enforcement unless the opportunity presents itself.

"In all the years of law enforcement, when I kicked in the doors of drug dealers or caught an armed robber, it gave me a feeling of satisfaction that 'I'm really doing something,' but preaching fulfills his need to be a helping hand, he said.

Tompkins said he is happy doing three jobs, although someday he would like to just pastor. For someone who at one time worked full time on the police force, had a different part-time job and also pursued a master's degree, a heavy workload is second nature.

"As a child, I had had no little, and it's the only way I know how to provide for my family. And I don't want my kids to be associated with the times I had when I was a child," he said. He and his wife, Jacqueline, have two children.

Tompkins said he often finishes work at his business, A&W Janitorial Service, at 7 a.m. on Sunday only to be in the pulpit by 11 a.m.

"I've always had a full work schedule," Tompkins said, adding that to him, faith and work go together.

Two years ago, Tompkins took over the reins at Mount Pleasant, which happened to be Courtney's church. They had become good friends while on the police force, but Tompkins said his becoming a minister surprised Courtney.

"He basically couldn't believe a guy called 'Cool' would go into the ministry," Tompkins said.

Courtney said things worked out "strange."

"First, he was in college, then I was in college. Then he became a police officer, then I became a police officer. Then he became a warrant officer, then I became a warrant officer. Then he became a pastor of my church, then I became a minister. It seems like I'm following him around," he said.

The similarities do not end there. Courtney and his wife, Cynthia, also have two children.

Tompkins said the similarities in their lives have happened "for a reason." He said he hopes the reason was that he set a good example for Courtney to follow.

"Matthew says 'Let your light shine so men will see your good works and glorify your father who is in heaven.' I'd like to think that my little light was shining and he saw it," he said.

Courtney, too, chose law enforcement when he graduated from college. His ministry came about from "a deep-rooted inspiration that one gets from God that lets one know he is called."

Courtney said that inspiration is the criteria for ministering, not any degree.

"If you don't have the other B.A. degree, not the bachelor's but the Born Again degree, then you aren't qualified, in my opinion," he said.

His job serves different purposes but both are important, he said.

"My job at the police department is strictly my livelihood," he said. "Ministry is my commission."

"If I can just win one soul, and I've won several, to Christ...so that he comes out of the joint and calls me and tells me he's going to church, then I've done good. But that is something that comes after I do my job. My job as a police officer is to bring the criminal to justice," he said.

Courtney said most of his colleagues see him as just another police officer. Some "make jokes out of it, I get respect from some, and some don't care one way or another."

His religious convictions affect the way he approaches some facets of his job, he said, such as interrogation.

"I use moral conviction on all my prisoners," he said.

"My concerns are to try to make an individual first realize he has done wrong, and then not to make him feel inferior. It's not a police officer-thug relationship, it's more person to person."

Courtney said he tells prisoners that he is not better than them because he also is a sinner.

"That has, more than any interrogation method I have ever used caused a person to confide in me," he said.

Courtney said he considers both his jobs full-time.

"I'm not what you'd call a Sunday morning minister; I don't try to win souls just on Sunday morning, I try to win souls every day," he said.

He described a time that he had an effect on a criminal's life.

"This guy was not known to talk to police. He'd tell you where you could go and what you could do and that's it," he said.

The first time he talked to that person, "I felt like I was talking to myself," Courtney said. Giving up on getting any information, Courtney tried to "win him over," but "he laughed at me and made fun of me."

"I asked him to pray with me. I think he thought I had a mental problem," Courtney said.

Months later, the man contacted Courtney and told him that as a result of that session, he had accepted Jesus as his savior, quit using drugs and started going to church.

"He took the first step and God took the next step," Courtney said. "It surprised me...brought tears to my eyes, because at the time I left him I felt I hadn't reached him."

Courtney said that he has retained his motivation on the police force for two reasons. The first is that he does not get discouraged as long as he has done his best. The second is he draws strength from God to deal with his frustrations, such as "when it seems like I'm in a circle. You put 'em in, they get out. You put 'em back in, they get out."

The Stamp Act in 1765 required stamps to help defray the cost of the British troops in colonial America.

Nine colonies, led by New York and Massachusetts at the Stamp Act Convention in New York, Oct. 7-25, adopted a Declaration of Rights. It opposed taxation without representation in Parliament and trial without jury by admiralty courts. The Stamp Act was repealed on March 17, 1766.

HHS JV spikers win tournament

Hereford High School's junior varsity volleyball team won the Lubbock Junior Varsity Tournament Monday by winning three straight matches. The HHS varsity won one of four matches in the Lubbock Varsity Tournament last Friday and Saturday, but showed much progress in the eyes of head Coach Brenda Reeh.

'Y' gymnastics classes start on September 8

Gymnastics classes will begin on Sept. 8 at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA for preschoolers, youth ages five to seven, and youth ages eight to 10 and older. Instruction in the classes will include the uneven bars, balance beam, vault, floor exercises, and tumbling, plus the trampoline and mini trampoline. Each class is open to both boys and girls. Preschool children will work on body awareness, special awareness, and motor skills using elementary gymnastics skills. Instructor will be Terrie Smith of Muleshoe. Registration fees are $22 for YMCA members and $30 for YMCA non-members. Children will prepare for competition in the winter and also for a spring gymnastics meet that will include youth from the YMCA in several Panhandle cities.

bock Estacado; and 15-8, 15-2 over Lubbock Monterey. In the varsity tournament last weekend, Hereford lost its first match, 15-7, 15-3, to Pampa, and fell to Perryton, 15-11, 15-9, in the second match.

Hereford then scored a 15-10, 15-4 victory over Canyon, but lost 3-15, 15-9, 15-8 to Levelland.

About the HHS varsity team, Coach Reeh said, "Each match, we got a lot more aggressive. We realized we can be competitive in our district, even though we have a young team. Our passing got so much better every match."

"Defensively, our three strongest players in the tournament were Libby Kosub, Kamille Martin, and Cande Robbins."

Kosub had four kills in the match against Perryton, and Wisty Mars had three kills. Against Canyon, Mars had four kills and Kosub had three kills.

Nikki Self served 10 straight points in game one of the Levelland match, and Stacy White served five straight points in game two of the Canyon match.

Coach Reeh said serving was a major factor in the Hereford junior varsity team's tournament title.

"Our serving was consistent to give us the momentum we needed to go all the way through the tournament," she said.

"From my experience, the self-discipline and self-control this team had was better than any other junior varsity team I've ever seen," Reeh adds.

Commenting on both the varsity and junior varsity, the HHS head coach states, "The success we had in both the varsity and junior varsity tournaments is going to help our overall volleyball program and our confidence."

The tournament championship trophy that the junior varsity team won is the first championship trophy ever claimed by an HHS volleyball team.

Reeh said the junior varsity team's defensive leaders included Stacy White, Libby Kosub, and Cande Robbins.

Krystal Sims had six straight serves in game two of the Lubbock Coronado match. Sims had three kills in the match, and White had two kills.

Twelve of Hereford's 30 points in the Lubbock Estacado match were scored on service aces. White recorded six aces, and Kosub and Self each had three aces.

Hereford also had 12 service aces against Lubbock Monterey - four each by Self and White, and two each by Sims and Jill West. Robbins had two kills in that match.

The next matches for the Hereford volleyball teams will be at Brownfield High School on Thursday. Match times are 2:30 p.m. for the junior varsity and 3:30 p.m. for the varsity.

Defending champ has first-round lead

City golf tourney postponed

Only the rain could slow down James Salinas in defending his championship crown of the Men's City Golf Tournament, and even that may be temporary.

Salinas tied the course record Saturday, carding a 7-under score of 64. Sunday's play in the 36-hole tourney had to be postponed due to rain, with the final 18 holes scheduled Sunday. Salinas appeared headed for a new course record at Pitman Municipal Saturday with a 6-under-par 29 on the front nine. He shot "only" 1-under on the back nine, however.

YMCA wallyball signup continues

Registration for wallyball, the game of volleyball played on a racquetball court, continues at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

The YMCA's fall wallyball leagues will be adult co-ed "A" and "B" leagues, and a high school league.

Signup deadline is Thursday, Sept. 10, and the leagues will start the season on Sunday, Sept. 13. Playing dates will be Sunday afternoons. Registration fees are $6 for YMCA members and $12 for YMCA non-members.

Two racquetball courts at the YMCA building are set up for playing wallyball play.

The league seasons will be for six weeks, plus single-elimination playoffs after the regular season.

Salinas has a nine-stroke lead going into the final 18 holes. Paul Hubbard was in second place with a 2-over 73 in the first round, while Jessie Grijalva was third at 74.

The top three low gross and the top three low net players in each flight will receive $150, $80 and $60 in merchandise prizes. No player can win both gross and net awards. The race in the top flight may be for low net, as Hubbard and Grijalva are just one shot back of Salinas at 65. Salinas is a "scratch" golfer, so his gross and net scores are the same.

Don T. Martin leads the first flight with a score of 76, with Dwayne Cassels and Jerry Stevens two shots back at 78. Martin, Stevens and Bill Davis each have a net of 64 to lead in that category.

Ken Helms is the second-flight leader with a 79, followed by N.D. Kelso (82), and Dave Workman (83). Leading the way on net scores are Workman (62), Helms (63) and Kelso (66).

Tea time Sunday for the second round are 12:07 p.m. for the second flight, 12:37 for the first flight, and 1:07 for the championship flight.

In Hereford High School football history

23-game unbeaten streak is longest one

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles on Hereford High School football history. Part four deals with winning streaks.
By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The two longest winning streaks in Hereford High School football history — 23 games and 16 games — occurred 50 years apart.

The 23-game streak went from Sept. 14, 1928 to Sept. 12, 1930, and the 16-game winning streak was from Oct. 23, 1900 to Dec. 5, 1901. The streaks are for consecutive games without a loss, including tie games.

Two district championship seasons are part of the 23-game streak. The Whitefaces, under head Coach Tom McCollum, won the district title in 1928 and had an overall record of 9-0-2.

In 1929, McCollum directed Hereford to another district championship and a 10-0-1 record. Hereford High School won its first game of the 1930 season to extend the undefeated streak to 23 games.

This streak could be two games longer, but missing information on the 1927 season includes what apparently was the final game of the season, Lockney at Hereford on Nov. 24. Hereford beat Friona on Nov. 16, and before that lost to Canyon 14-0 on Nov. 4.

The three tie games in the 23-game undefeated streak were a 0-0 tie versus Panhandle and a 6-6 tie versus Memphis in 1928, and a 7-7 tie versus Olney in 1929.

I suppose that some people would say that the undefeated streak ended with the Olney game, because that game was the regional championship game and because Olney claimed the regional title on penetrations, 4-2.

But basing the unbeaten streak only on final scores, the longest streak in HHS football history would be at least 23 games.

The second longest winning streak included the last three games of the 1980 season and the first 13 games of the 1981 season, all under Coach Don Cumpston.

Hereford last three games of the 1980 season were against the class 5A high schools in Lubbock. The Whitefaces then won six straight non-district games in 1981, followed by victories in all four district games to put the winning streak at 13 games.

Hereford defeated Palo Duro 42-30 in the bi-district playoff game, beat El Paso Bel Air 22-0 in the regional playoff game, and defeated Fort Worth Eastern Hills 28-16 in the state quarterfinals.

The streak was broken when the Whitefaces suffered a narrow 10-7 defeat at the hands of Richardson Lake Highlands in the state semifinals.

Had Hereford gone all the way to winning the state title, the winning streak would have eventually been 21 games, since Hereford won its first three games of the 1981 season.

The third longest winning streak in football in school history is 12 games. That includes the last four games of 1965, Jerry Taylor's last season at HHS, and the first nine games of the 1966 season, under Cumpston.

There is one more winning streak of at least 10 games in HHS football history. Hereford won its first 10 games of the 1935 season, under Coach McCollum, before losing to Matador 19-13 in the regional championship game.

Other winning streaks have been eight games twice, seven games five times, and six games on five occasions.

On the other side of the coin, the longest losing streak was 14 games from Oct. 17, 1958 to Nov. 20, 1959. Eight other losing streaks of five or more games each were suffered by HHS teams — one streak of eight losses, two streaks of seven losses, two streaks of six losses, and three streaks of five losses.

Here is a game-by-game list of the two longest undefeated streaks, plus the dates of the other winning streaks of six or more games:

STRENGTH IN CALMNESS
By Bob Wear

There may be a time and place for agitation and excitement, but this condition of mind is soon expressed in ways that are not in keeping with our potential best. We do have a choice about how we respond to the various stimuli which issue from the happenings and circumstances which concern us. We also have great capacity and potential for learning to exercise the most wholesome kind of personal control. It is a fact, that much of our irrational and regrettable behavior is fashioned by our excitement and agitation.

If we will learn to be calm, and we can learn to be calm, all of the happenings concerning us can be handled much better. There is something about being 'calm', and 'smart' (we know the score, but are not upset about it), that provides stability. This stability gives credibility to our words and our actions. Being calm does not mean that we are any less firm, or less purposeful, or less concerned; but it does enable us to make maximum use of our capabilities. Certainly we become upset occasionally, but this upset must not be permitted to take control. If we permit it to take control, our thinking and our behavior can become flighty, shallow, and even potentially volatile. When this happens, we have created a big disadvantage for ourselves.

Strength that is helpful is in 'calmness', because, when we become upset to the extent that we are under the control of the upset, we weaken ourselves. "Calmness is the nearest quality of the human life. It is the poise of the great nature, in harmony with itself and its ideals."-W.G. Jordan. If we wish to appear strong, and actually be strong we must remain 'calm'.

A desire to be calm, accompanied by a strong resolution to be so, tied together by a strong conviction of the need, will help us cultivate a calm nature. Each victory of 'calmness' will help confirm it as an abiding life quality.

Dee White receives award

Hereford resident, Dee White, was recently presented the Golden Post Award at the World of Poetry convention in Las Vegas, Nev. Aug. 9-12. Out of an original 800,000 applicants, White was one of 600 from around the world who were awarded trophies. More than 2,500 persons attended the convention.

White writes poems and short stories, many with a humorous slant. The poem he submitted for the award is titled "Fry My Brains Over Lightly."

West Virginia

George Washington and Daniel Boone helped explore the West Virginia area in 1753. It eventually became part of the state of Virginia. But people of the area often objected to rule by the eastern part of the state. When Virginia seceded in 1861, the Wheeling Conventions condemned the act and created a new state, which was admitted into the Union in 1863.

A hit would mean a 40-game streak

Molitor to try to tie Ty tonight

By RICK GANO
AP Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Paul Molitor has been thankful for many things during his 39-game hitting streak — including good health, good luck and no borderline hits. "They've been clean hits but they haven't all been pretty," Milwaukee's designated hitter said Tuesday after lining a sixth-inning single off Cleveland's Don Gordon to keep the streak alive in a 10-9 Brewer victory. "I've had a couple off the handles and some infield singles just between the fielders. At least it hasn't come down to a hit that's been questionable or a defensive play that was possibly an error," Molitor said. "That eliminates controversy or putting pressure on anybody out there, official scorers or anybody." Molitor didn't get his hit Tuesday until his fourth at-bat and tonight can tie Ty Cobb for fourth place on the modern-day list when he faces the Indians' John Farrell, a late replacement for injured Rich Yett.

Molitor is aware he is one game away from tying Cobb and only five behind Pete Rose's 44-game streak in 1978. "It's been up on the scoreboard so I've noticed the people who are ahead of me. You have to be appreciative of what's happened to this point. "When I'm through playing and have a chance to look back — whether it ends at 39 or I tie him — I have to be pleased at this point," he said. "Forty four is a very nice number.

For a long time it seemed very, very far away. I guess you have to say as each day goes by it becomes a little more realistic. "But we talked the last week about focusing on each game and not five. So tomorrow we look at 40 and try to keep our momentum with our club winning games." Molitor, whose ultimate target is Joe DiMaggio's 56 games in 1941, flied out in the first and walked in the second off Cleveland starter Ken Schrom. Molitor grounded out sharply to second base in the fourth off reliever Jamie Easterly. But in the sixth he didn't wait. His first-pitch liner hit the back dirt of the infield between first and second base and sped into right field as the crowd of 15,580 responded with a 1½-minute standing ovation. It was the 15th time in his streak that Molitor's first hit has been to right and it was his third hit in five at-bats against Gordon this season. Molitor flied out in the eighth and is now 68 for 164 (.415) during the streak. "If we win the game it doesn't matter to me if Molitor gets a hit or not as long as we win the game," Cleveland Manager Doc Edwards said. Edwards said the Indians didn't pitch Molitor any differently because of the streak. "We're going to go after him. It's tough to keep a guy like that from getting the bat on the ball," he said.

Johnson propels St. Louis to win

Cardinals beat Astros, 7-1

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Now that Curt Ford's been sidelined with a hand injury, it may be up to Lance Johnson to fill the bill for the St. Louis Cardinals. "But I don't really like to look at it that way," the slender Johnson said after fusing Tuesday night's 7-1 victory by St. Louis over the Houston Astros. "I just look at this as my chance. If I play the way I'm capable of playing, maybe they'll use me more in the future." Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said he likes what he has seen of Johnson, including a triple by the left-handed hitting outfielder against Houston that started St. Louis toward its 41st comeback success. "He's going to be a pretty good player, that young man," Herzog said. "He hits the ball good. He plays (right field) shallow, which I like. They won't hit very many behind him." Johnson, who was promoted last week from Louisville of the American Association, put the Cardinals on track in the second inning. "It was a pitcher's pitch," he said of an 0-1 delivery from Danny Darwin, 8-8, that he hit for a one-out triple. "I was lucky I got on top of it. It was a high fastball." After Johnson's hit and Tony Pena's fielder's choice RBI grounder, Greg Mathews, 9-8, failed to bunt but Vince Coleman hit the gap in right-center with a triple that put St. Louis up 2-1. Ozzie Smith and Jack Clark each doubled in a two-run Cardinals fifth, and Terry Pendleton hit a sacrifice fly. St. Louis added three more runs in the sixth, enabling Mathews to coast with ninth-inning help from Bob Forsch. Clark's run-scoring double gave him 100 RBI, marking only the second time the 31-year-old slugger has reached that plateau in one season. "Each year's different. You could have 98 or 99," Clark said. "It was a little bit tough. You don't put yourself in a certain class until you have 100 RBI." In addition to Clark and Johnson, the Cardinals' offense revolved around two Coleman bunt singles, two Smith doubles and two Mathews singles. Mathews, bolstered by the Cardinals' robust attack, worked in and out of trouble with an eight-batter before departing. Billy Hatcher's double, a Mathews wild pitch and Bill Doran's single gave the Astros the early lead in the first inning.

Rangers defeat Royals 15-8, Howe gets win in relief

By CRAIG HORST
AP Sports Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Texas reliever Steve Howe may be hitting his stride just as the Rangers are starting to roll. Howe pitched the final 2-2-3 innings of a Rangers 15-8 victory Tuesday night over the Kansas City Royals for his first major league win since Sept. 3, 1985, when he beat Milwaukee for the Minnesota Twins. "I think myself and the Texas Rangers are going to click real well," said Howe, who went into the game with an 0-2 record and a 7.45 earned run average since being called up Aug. 6 from Oklahoma City. "You've got to reach down and pray. Please don't let me get down right now. You've got to be able to think positively. Something is going our way, I don't know what it is. But (first-place) Minnesota continues to leave the door open."

and remained four games off the pace. The Kansas City bullpen was in shambles after being battered for eight runs on eight hits. After White's slam tied the score, Sierra and Incaviglia opened the seventh with singles off Bob Stoddard, 1-3. Sierra scored as Pete O'Brien grounded out. John Davis came on to strike out Parrish, but Mike Stanley tripled to drive in Incaviglia. Stanley scored on Darrell Porter's pinch single. The Rangers added five more runs in the ninth with Sierra opening the inning with an inside-the-park home run to straightaway centerfield. White hit his sixth career grand slam and his 12th homer of the season off Henry, who relieved Jose Guzman after Guzman walked Willie Wilson and Kevin Seitzer and gave up a run-scoring single to George Brett. Henry walked Danny Tartabull to load the bases for White, who homered well over the 385-sign in left-center. Sierra had got his 24th homer of the season with two out in the first inning. Incaviglia hit his 26th in the third and Parrish got his 27th in the fifth with two on to give Texas a 7-2 lead. Curtis Wilkerson hit a three-run triple in the ninth for the Rangers, who had 16 hits in the game.

Howe, who has twice been released by major league teams because of drug use, stopped Kansas City on three hits and one run while striking out two and walking two. The official scorer awarded the victory to Howe, who relieved Dwayne Henry in the seventh inning with Texas ahead 10-7. Henry had given up a grand slam home run in the sixth inning to Frank White to tie the game 7-7 and was lifted after he walked Jamie Quirk with one out in the seventh. Besides Howe's performance, Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine said he was happy to see Ruben Sierra, Pete Incaviglia and Larry Parrish all homer in the same game. "It was a joy to my eyes," Valentine said. "I think we dug ourselves into a deep hole (in the race). I think we're capable of digging out of it, and I think we are starting to dig out of it." The Rangers failed to gain ground on the Twins, who lost 5-4 to Detroit,

FIVE PLUS TWO EQUALS 5,000

The apostles now returned to Jesus from their tour and told Him all they had done and what they had said to the people they visited.

Then Jesus suggested, "Let's get away from the crowds for a while and rest." For so many people were coming and going that they scarcely had time to eat.

So they left by boat for a quieter spot. But many people saw them leaving and ran on ahead along the shore and met them as they landed.

So the usual vast crowd was there as He stepped from the boat; and He had pity on them because they were like sheep without a shepherd, and He taught them many things they needed to know.

Late in the afternoon His disciples came to Him and said, "Tell the people to go away to the nearby villages and farms and buy themselves some food, for there is nothing to eat here in this desolate spot, and it is getting late."

But Jesus said, "You feed them." "With what?" they asked. "It would take a fortune to buy food for all this crowd!"

"How much food do we have?" He asked. "Go and find out." They came back to report that there were five loaves of bread and two fish.

Then Jesus told the crowd to sit down, and soon colorful groups of 50 or 100 each were sitting on the green grass.

He took the five loaves and two fish and looking up to heaven, gave thanks for the food. Breaking the loaves into pieces, He gave some of the bread and fish to each disciple to place before the people.

And the crowd ate until they could hold no more!

There were about 5,000 men there for that meal, and afterwards twelve basketfuls of scraps were picked up off the grass!

Local 4-H program set to begin new year

By DAVY VESTAL
County Extension Agent

The new 4-H year starts soon, so now is an excellent time to make a commitment to join this action-oriented organization, says Davy Vestal, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

4-H is a national program for all youth between the ages of 9 and 19 regardless of race, color, ethnic background, economic status or cultural differences. In Texas, you can join 4-H when you enroll in the third grade, regardless of your age. The Texas 4-H program is administered by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The purpose of 4-H is to develop leadership and character in young people, Vestal points out. 4-H'ers learn by doing through actively working on projects and participating in club meetings and 4-H activities.

4-H clubs are organized in such places as rural, suburban and urban neighborhoods. Groups may be organized among neighborhood families in one or two city blocks, housing complexes or anywhere they are needed.

Youth can participate in a variety of projects in 4-H, such as foods, clothing, animal projects, electricity, photography, arts and crafts and many, many others. In fact, almost anything you want can be a project, says Vestal.

Most important, 4-H is a lot of fun! Where else can you get together with other people your age and have fun while you learn? Boys and girls in 4-H are always on the move doing something and participating in various activities. For instance, the 4-H shooting sports project attracts numerous youngsters each year who are interested in learning to shoot and observe gun safety. Livestock projects give youngsters a chance to be responsible for an animal and enter stock shows where they learn competitiveness and sportsmanship. 4-H'ers can even learn to make their own clothes through clothing projects.

Other 4-H activities such as the Share-the-Fun give youngsters the chance to participate in organized recreation, notes Vestal. County 4-H Fun Day, Day Camp or Rally Day is the time for playing games and making new friends. Members in 4-H can go trips, take tours of interesting and educational places, and help finance their college education with scholarships awarded through 4-H.

Boosting the 4-H program is the private sector which provides resources of money, personnel and materials for the advancement of 4-H. The many business and industrial leaders who have supported and continue to support 4-H gives significant testimony that 4-H is a valuable educational program for America's youth, Vestal points out.

Remember, you are what you want to be in 4-H. It is educational, interesting, challenging and lots of fun.

For more details on 4-H and how to join in on upcoming activities for the new club year, contact the county Extension office, adds Vestal.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Halfway field day set

Agriculture producers, gardeners and home owners can study the progress of scientific research efforts in solving the production problems of the Texas High Plains. These studies will be on display at Halfway sept. 8 at the 78th annual field day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station - High Plains Research Foundation facility, 14 miles west of Plainview on U.S. 70, will be the site of this year's program, said Dr. John Abernathy, resident director of the research center. The annual tour alternates between the facilities at Halfway and at Lubbock.

Field tours of research projects will begin at 1 p.m. and will feature five major stops, said Doug Nesmith, research associate in soil fertility and field day chairman.

The stops will highlight types of cotton developed for new farming systems; the effects of climate and soil temperature on grapes; farming systems research and weed control; the adaptation of chemigation to center pivots and its use by the farmer.

Insects still active in area

By CARL D. PATRICK
Extension Entomologist
GENERAL SITUATION

Greenbugs continue to increase. Continue to check for headworms in sorghum. Spider mites remain a problem in corn. Bollworm activity has increased.

SORGHUM

Greenbugs continue to increase. Economic infestations still remain very spotted which will require each field being checked to determine the need for treatment. Lady beetles are active, but are not able to contain the rapidly developing greenbugs. No parasitic wasp activity has been detected. Swollen brown aphids called mummies are often the first evidence of the presence of parasitic wasps. When 20 percent of the greenbug infestation is comprised of mummies, there is little need for an insecticide application. When 20 percent mummies are present, actually 80 percent are parasitized, they are just not showing it yet.

Headworms are likely to increase in sorghum. As corn becomes unattractive to corn earworm moths, they will be attracted to sorghum to lay eggs. The worms that develop are called sorghum headworms. Check sorghum at least once a week in order to detect worms while they are small. Labeled insecticides will be more effective against small worms.

False chinch bugs are being reported infesting sorghum in the Stinnett area. Infestations are usually concentrated in small areas. They feed in the head reducing seed weight and quality. An insecticide application is justified when an average of 140 false chinch bugs per head are found.

Spider mites remain a problem in corn. Once corn reaches full dent spider mites can not cause additional yield loss, but they can prematurely kill plants which can lead to lodging problems.

COTTON

Bollworm activity has increased in cotton. Greg Cronholm, Extension entomologist at Plainview, reports 2-3 eggs per plant and an average of 2 worms per plant in some fields.

Budworms are being reported from both the Rolling Plains and High Plains. They are more difficult to control than bollworm; however, reduced susceptibility to pyrethroids has not been detected in either area. Where a bollworm infestation needs to be controlled and budworms make up part of the infestation, a high rate of a synthetic pyrethroid is recommended in combination with chlor-dimeform (Galecron or Fundal).

Accent on Agriculture

By DENNIS W. NEWTON

This week in the County Extension Office I received a report from the Texas Water Development Board that combined irrigation surveys from 1958 through the last survey period which was 1984. The report has some very interesting statistics about the use of irrigation water and the history of irrigation in every county in Texas.

According to the report, the peak period for irrigation in Deaf Smith County was in 1974, when 314,053 acres were irrigated. In the last survey, in 1984, that acreage had dropped to 293,535 acres. Estimates for the current year put the acreage total at approximately 270,000 acres. If these estimates are correct, that would be the lowest total of irrigated acres in 30 years. The acreage totals for the survey years are 1958-282,660; 1964-304,400; 1969-275,100; 1974-314,053; 1979-294,500; and 1984-285,530.

Even more interesting than the acreage totals are the water usage amounts for the same period. The water usage in acre-feet for the various years are: 1958-407,293; 1964-469,145; 1969-481,525; 1974-514,799; 1979-315,706; 1984-297,892. This trend in declining water usage is continuing. In a report from the High Plains Undergroud Water Conservation District, the water table in the Ogalla Aquifer actually increase this past year for the first time.

What does this all mean? It very simply shows that the water conservation programs and new irrigation techniques that producers have implemented in past years are paying dividends today.

According to the Texas Water Development Board report, we in Deaf Smith County were irrigating approximately the same number of acres of cropland in 1984 that was irrigated in 1958 with 109,409 acre-feet less water. This is a 37 percent reduction in water usage.

This increased efficiency in irrigation must continue if Deaf Smith County producers continue to be competitive with other parts of the country. A number of state and federal agencies are continuing to provide producers with up-to-date information and finding better methods to improve water usage. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station, the High Plains

Undergroud Water Conservation District, the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District, the USDA Soil Conservation Service and the USDA Agricultural Research Service are all working to provide better information and technical assistance to irrigated farmers. To improve your irrigation practices contact a representative of the agencies for assistance.

Persons interested in reviewing a copy of the Texas Water Development Board Report can come by the County Extension office in room 304 of the Courthouse in Hereford. Copies of the report can be obtained by writing the Texas Water Development Board; P.O. Box 13231, Austin, Texas 78711 and asking for report No. 294.
