County fathers reject architect's plans for jail

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
The Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court got another lesson in economics Monday, learning that renovations and additions to the county jail, if approved, would cost $1.5 million.

Antonio. Those plans, which also included an estimate of $450,000 for a separate juvenile detention and probation facility, were presented to the county fathers Monday by Ed Gondeck, a partner in the architectural firm.

The plan called for adding wings to both the east and west ends of the current jail, and performing renovations to the present structure. That process would increase the jail's capacity from a current figure of 45 prisoners to a comfortable limit of 80.

According to Gondeck, a new east wing of 1,333 square feet would cost $133,300, with a price tag of $620,000 on a new west wing of 6,200 square feet. An exercise area of 868 square feet was priced at $34,720, with the cost for renovations to the existing structure set at $623,025.

That added up to a construction cost of $1,411,045. The architect's fee for the project was listed as $112,883, with $26,072 in "other costs" for the total project cost of $1,550,000.

That figure was obviously too much for the court to swallow, and they decided following the presentation to refuse to approve the plan, opting to pursue other alternatives.

Those alternatives would include asking the architects to cut some fat out of the plans, bringing the total cost to under $750,000.

The court's move may or may not have been a good one, since the county must appear before the state jail standards commission on Thursday to show what progress they have been making in bringing the county jail back up to the commissions' standards.

Continental flights resume with reduced fares, pared schedule

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines returned to the skies this morning, two days after filing for bankruptcy, with bargain fares and about a quarter of its former U.S. routes.

"We are very optimistic and very enthusiastic about our future," Continental President Frank Lorenzo said Monday at a news conference. "Now that costs are firmly under control, we can compete and build a Continental Airlines that our founders and everyone associated with us can be proud of."

Lorenzo announced the airline will offer one-way fares of $49 on all non-stop domestic flights until Friday. The fares will then jump to $75 until Oct. 15, he said. No prices were quoted for flights after that.

Lorenzo's statement came two days after he announced the airline had filed for reorganization and temporarily suspended domestic flights after posting losses of $471.9 million since January 1979.

The airline's bankruptcy court papers said three problems made reorganization necessary: low-cost competition, reservations systems controlled by two other carriers and labor costs.

Late Monday afternoon, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Phil Peden granted Continental's request for a temporary restraining order requiring 266 airlines, cities and other companies to continue operational agreements that were in effect before Continental filed for reorganization.

According to the motion, the agreements were "vital to their (Continental's) continued existence."

Peden set an Oct. 7 hearing on the airline's motion for an injunction on the matter. Officials of pilot and flight attendant unions denounced the bankruptcy filing as "union busting" but said they had no plans to picket or strike Continental.

IRA guerrillas still at large after escape

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Twenty-one escaped IRA guerrillas remained at large today as Britain's chief prisons inspector began an inquiry into the mass breakout from Belfast's maximum security Maze prison.

Charges were leveled that sabotage, complicity by prison workers and security lapses enabled a total of 38 men to escape — Britain's biggest jailbreak ever.

The fugitives, who reportedly used smuggled handguns and knives to battle their way out of the prison, include three of the Irish Republican Army's top gunmen. They killed one prison officer and wounded six others as they fled.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, Northern Ireland's fiery Protestant leader, said Monday night he was told by Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior that the prison's outer gate had been left open before the breakout.

"The outer gate was open at that particular time. Somebody must have had it arranged to have it open. Mr. Prior admitted to me it was open," Paisley said after meeting with Prior.

Paisley, a member of the British House of Commons, claimed up to five guns had

250 attend Vandura Ball

Approximately 240 persons attended the $100-a-plate Vandura Ball Monday night to help support the Hereford YMCA building program, and Earl Stagner drove away with the door prize—a 1983 GMC van.

Sid Shaw, "Y" president, praised the work of Hal Easley, chairman, and Keith Ann Gearn and Jennie Cassels in making the ball a success.

He said the YMCA plans to make the ball an annual event, but it will probably be conducted in the spring in future years.

Police probing attempted rape

Hereford police are still investigating the attempted rape of a 71-year-old local woman early Monday morning.

Vernon Hope, a lieutenant for the local force, said the name of the woman would not be released at least until a suspect is arrested.

According to Lt. Hope, the incident took place in the victim's residence at approximately 2 a.m. Monday. She was not injured.

Meanwhile, Dameron Park was the site of a fight involving 200-250 people Sunday night, a police report claimed.

Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Deputy Don Daugherty was reportedly surrounded by the mob before Mike Morrison, a police officer, arrived to attempt to halt the uprising. Morrison was shoved around before the incident ended around 9:30 p.m.

A camera, some film and a camera case were stolen sometime Friday night from a 1968 Mercedes owned by Johnnie Matthews, 218 Centre. Location of the $400 theft is not known, police said.

Rodolfo Bribiesca, 339 Adelito Calle St., had his $275 color television stolen sometime Sunday evening, police reported.

Another Boost for YMCA

Craig Smith, right, president of Hereford State Bank, presents a check for $15,000 as the bank's contribution toward the Hereford YMCA building fund.

Charles Hoover, YMCA campaign chairman, accepted the check for the organization. The "Y" is involved in a campaign to raise $925,000 for a full-facility YMCA center on 15th Street.

Stock market sets new high mark

By The Associated Press
Investors' enthusiasm over the nation's economic recovery helped hoist the stock market to a new high, although at least one big bank sees another recession coming.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 5.18 points Monday to 1,260.77, surpassing by nearly 3 points the previous record set last Thursday.

Analysts said investors were registering their optimism that a recent slowdown in the growth of the nation's money supply will head off an increase in interest rates for the time being.

But in New York, Citibank said in a five-year economic forecast that inflation will heat up next year, setting the stage for a new round of credit-tightening moves by the Fed and a new recession by late 1985 or 1986. The bank also said, however, that the next recession is likely to be "a mild one" compared with the 1981-82 recession from which the economy is currently recovering.

These other economic developments:

A slimmed-down Continental Airlines, formerly the nation's eighth-largest air carrier, said it would resume operations today with $49 one-way fares to 25 U.S. cities.

The announcement came just two days after Continental announced the airline had deal American Express said it would buy just Allegheny's main asset, Investors Diversified Services Inc., which is a mutual fund and insurance and financial services company based in Minneapolis.

Baldwin-United Corp., bogged down in its struggle to meet almost $1 billion in short-term debt, filed for court protection under federal bankruptcy laws.

The financial services concern, with headquarters in Cincinnati, said it was not seeking court protection for

Lewis sees delay in special session

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Gov. Mark White will delay a special session of the Texas Legislature until May or June of 1984, House Speaker Gib Lewis has predicted.

Lewis said Monday that he thinks White will delay the session from earlier projected dates to see if the economy rebounds sufficiently to produce new state revenue that could provide for teacher pay raises.

192nd Old Farmers Almanac hits the stands

DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — The Old Farmer's Almanac, the little yellow book that claims it predicted Hurricane Alicia — albeit a week early — is back with an updated edition with a new forecast: a white Christmas and a cold, wet winter.

The nation's oldest continuous periodical, which hits the newsstands this week, uses "the latest scientific technology" to make the predictions, which are based on cycles of solar activity, positions of the planets and the moon's phases, said editor Judson Hale.

"It's tradition," Hale said of his 192-year-old publication. "It always appears, it doesn't change, and people realize that their grandfathers and great grandfathers and mothers read this."

"That yellow cover with the hole in the lefthand corner (to hang in the outhouse or pantry) is as good a sign of autumn as the changing of the leaves."

Yankee Publishing Inc., of Dublin, spends about $100,000 a year making the forecasts, which are checked against a 192-year-old secret formula developed by founder Robert Thomas and stashed now in a black box in the almanac's offices, Hale said.

Although the old formula is less specific than the modern almanac's 16-region forecasts, "It has never been in conflict with what we've come up with," Hale said.

The predictions are 80 percent accurate, Hale said, but he conceded recently that accuracy is a matter of opinion.

Take, for example, the forecast in the 1983 almanac for Texas on Aug. 18, the day Hurricane Alicia slammed into the state. The almanac predicted sunny and hot weather.

Hale said, however, the almanac's prediction for Aug. 9-13 called for a "possible tropical storm" for the area. "We missed by five days, but I'm going to claim that one because we were so close."

Atari computers dumped at Alamogordo

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — Alamogordo City Manager Dan Malone Monday confirmed that truckloads of Atari computer equipment have been buried at the Alamogordo city dump, but the computer company's officials in El Paso declined comment on the activity.

Malone said trucks started unloading their cargo last week. Three loads from El Paso's Atari plant were dumped Monday, he said.

Malone said Jack Keating, Alamogordo's garbage contractor, told him that Atari didn't want to dump the computer equipment in Texas because they feared they would be scavenged there.

"We have a contract with (Atari) to bury a bunch of stuff," said Keating of Browning Ferris Industries in Alamogordo. He said the contract was closed last week.

Asked to describe the computer equipment, Keating said only that it was outmoded.

Atari officials in El Paso refused to comment.

"It's all hearsay at this point," Sig Toth, Atari's production manager, said late Monday after the dumpings had been confirmed. Toth said all questions must be answered by the firm's California headquarters.

El Paso's Atari office laid off 380 of the firm's 660 workers Sept. 16 and restructured its operation.

Instead of making home video game cartridges, the plant will now repair faulty merchandise returned by vendors, an Atari spokesman said when the layoffs were announced.

The $7 million plant opened in El Paso in March 1982.

Spokesman Bruce Entin said more than 3,000 employees in California have lost their jobs due to recent sales losses.

Highway lobby calls for massive repairs

AUSTIN (AP) — Almost 1,350 traffic wrecks per week were caused last year by obsolete Texas roads, according to a report released today by a highway construction lobby group.

The Road Information Project, in a report prepared for the Texas Good Roads and Transportation Association, said upgrading outdated roads could give Texas motorists a 15 percent better chance of avoiding a traffic wreck.

Poor roads trailed only driver error as the leading cause of wrecks in the state in 1982, according to the TRIP report. Fixing those roads could save $438.9 million a year in property damage, hospital charges and payments to victims and survivors, the report said.

"These roads were fine for pre-World War I conditions when most of them were built, but they are hazardous for today's traffic," said Eugene Robbins, president of TRGTA.

The asylum

Through the eyes of the news planet, Earth is the asylum of the universe.

Take any one day. Take September 8, 1983.

Martinsburg, West Virginia woman was sleeping in bed with her husband; awakened to discover an intruder who'd come in through a window, was licking her leg.

Arthur Young, 21, got 90 days.

In suburban Chicago a young woman leaving a health club—got run over and killed by a drag-racer.

Same day: Man in Cherokee, Iowa walked — naked — into the Wilson Packing Plant with a shotgun and demanded that people stop killing pigs.

It's a wacko world if it is the way we newspeople describe it.

In St. Louis, Missouri on that day a burglary burgled Sterling Lacquer Manufacturing Company. But on his way out he stepped in a vat of red paint. Knee-deep.

Police followed the indelible tracks and caught him redfooted.

Louise and Donald Gauthier — wife and husband — in Holyoke, Massachusetts, are both running for mayor. Police were summoned to their house to break up a family fight.

KLAC, Los Angeles, was embarrassed. A girl, age 7, telephoned a local disc jockey and he tried to get her to perform in a kidporn film.

And it was that day, September 8, that teachers in slum schools in Miami began getting combat training and combat pay.

In downtown St. Louis a man walked into the United Missouri Bank, demanded and got money.

The teller could not describe him because he was holding a paper towel over his face.

The bank's security camera — shot him in the back.

You've known that the way to fix it is to kick it.

September 8 was the day we heard from the Ford engine plant in Bridgend, England that they repair their factor conveyor belt that way. When it gets stuck, kick it. They employed kickers in relays to stand by and kick it. Until finally the company modified the machine at a cost of $360,000 so it would not get stuck.

But it did. Six times. So they rehired the kickers.

"There are too many Asians on California campuses," says the Chairman of the California Board of Regents. That's easy for him to say. He, Yori Wada, is one.

And one thing more: The hurricane had just gone through Rosenberg, Texas doing $500,000 worth of improvements when a man about that town was seen wearing a T-shirt on which was painted the words: "I SURVIVED ALICIA."

With him was a blonde girl. On her T-shirt, one word: "ALICIA."

The mood in the Channel 6 newsroom was somber Monday.

Weatherman Jim O'Brien killed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Colleagues of WPVI-TV weatherman Jim O'Brien continued to reel under the shock of his death in a weekend skydiving accident, which a coroner's report said killed the popular broadcaster instantly.

"Mercifully, I do not think he suffered any pain, the impact was so severe," said Dr. Theodore Garcia, Montgomery County coroner.

Garcia said Monday virtually all of O'Brien's internal organs were damaged by the fall Sunday at 12:30 p.m. at the New Hanover Township Airport in Gilbertville.

He said there was some indication that O'Brien had tried to break his fall by bracing himself on his left side, but the effort was futile.

"It's like falling out of a 10-story building onto pavement," Garcia said.

New trial denied

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A Texas judge has turned down South Carolina native Lennell Geter's latest request for a new trial on an armed robbery conviction that ended in a life sentence for the 25-year-old man.

Judge Hebert Line has verbally denied the new trial motion on the grounds that he does not have jurisdiction in the case, Edwin M. Sigel, Geter's Dallas defense attorney, said Monday.

The judge has promised to issue a written ruling, but the lawyer told The State newspaper of Columbia he did not know when it would be filed.

Sigel also said he did not accept Line's reason for denying the motion, saying he believes the judge is intimidated by the extensive media attention the case has attracted.

"I think he's just reacting to the press," said Sigel. "He said even if he did have jurisdiction he wouldn't grant the motion."

Line, who presided in Geter's October 1982 trial, denied the first motion for a new trial last November. The Denmark, S.C., native, who is black, was convicted by an all-white jury.

The conviction is being appealed. Sigel said Monday that an additional appeal will be filed asking the higher court to grant the motion for a new trial.

The latest motion was based on evidence discovered since Geter's conviction. It includes witnesses who will testify Geter was not involved in crimes in which he was implicated in the sentencing phase of his trial, the "discovery" of additional alibi witnesses and information to support claims that Texas police gave "false and misleading" testimony about Geter's criminal record.

Geter, who has a degree in engineering from South Carolina State College in Orangeburg, is serving a life term for the August 1982 armed robbery of $615 from a fast food restaurant in the Dallas suburb of Balch Springs.

A former classmate of Geter's, Anthony Williams of Swansea, is accused of the armed robbery of $31 from a Garland, Texas, convenience store. He is to go on trial Oct. 31 in Dallas County.

Geter and Williams were among six S.C. State graduates recruited last year to work as associate engineers in a minority training program at E-Systems, a military and electronics design contractor in Greenville, Texas.

They were arrested in August 1982 after 15 unsolved robberies occurred in several small towns near Dallas.

Jones claims contest prize

Cal Jones, John Mark Streun, and Isaac Briones each missed seven games to top last week's Hereford Brand Football Contest, with Jones claiming the first place prize of $25 by being closer on the tie breaker game.

Jones guessed 27 points for The Hereford-Monterey game, which proved to be a 13-7 win by the Herd. Streun's guess was 35, with Briones' guess 55. Streun claimed $15 for second place, while Briones claimed $10.

Eight entrants missed eight games on the contest, just missing out on the money. They included Carolyn Schumacher, Arthur Valde, Dwane Lavake, Cuby Kitchens, Roger Williams, Dago Valdez, Kay Weston, and Byron Roark.

Some 29 other entrants missed nine games. A total of 250 people entered the contest last week.

Police have recaptured 17 guerrillas, including two who were grabbed Monday as they walked on a narrow country road 10 miles south of the prison and a few miles north of the border with the Irish Republic.

The Daily Telegraph newspaper of London quoted an unnamed prison official as saying the fugitives held guards captive for an hour without other staff knowing, then drove unhindered in a truck through five security gates and past unmanned watchtowers.

The paper quoted the official as saying that the night before the breakout prisoners watched the film "Escape from Alcatraz."

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,
Although I am currently a resident of Lubbock, Texas, I am still interested in the events held in Hereford. You see, I am a former resident of Hereford. I was fortunate enough to attend part of the Fiestas Patrias festivities held there in Hereford. I really enjoyed the parade, but noticed that the Hereford High School Band did not perform. I was truly disappointed with the band for failing to appear at the parade.

During the Fiestas Patrias parade held here in Lubbock, however; I'm pleased to say that the Texas Tech University Band marched and played in full uniform! If a University band can take the time to prepare and play for the community celebration, why can't a high school band perform for their hometown? As I understand, the band was not out of town this year...there was no satisfactory explanation for their absence.

As an alumnist of Hereford High School, I remember participating in the Fiestas Patrias parade in 1979, along with the Hereford High School Band. I was proud to participate in the parade then, as I know many students would have been, if they had the chance to march and play in this year's parade. I am upset with the band director (or whoever was responsible for the band) for not letting the band participate in the parade this year. I feel that those band members that were willing to participate in the parade were deprived the chance of expressing their pride in their band and heritage.

I hope that next year, those responsible for the band will try to make an effort for the band to perform at the 1984 Fiestas Patrias parade, and make me, along with many others in the community of Hereford, proud of their High

To the People of Hereford
Our most sincere thanks to those friends who expressed support for King's Manor in the recent action concerning city property adjacent to King's Manor. King's Manor's great success and effectiveness is due to the tremendous and unselfish dedication of people like you.

May we also thank the Senior Citizens Organization for their decision to seek other property. We are immeasurably grateful for this gracious expression of care and concern for others.

To the city commissioners and city officers - please know that King's Manor in our long range plan sees the eventual need for all currently owned property and finally acquiring and utilization of the park property. We would hope that King's Manor will look forward to working with the city to make this a reality.

Young couple excited about youth ministry

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

Working in the church is somewhat of a family tradition for Gary and Ronda Morgan. His father and both her father and grandfather have all served as ministers.

Gary, who is a licensed minister in the Church of the Nazarene, has recently been called to Hereford Church of the Nazarene as minister of youth. He and Ronda are both very excited about the challenge of working with the youth in this city.

The young couple moved here from Franklin, Ohio, where Gary had been minister of youth and music at Franklin Church of the Nazarene for the past two and a half years.

He has also served as youth and music director at a church in Monroe, Ohio, and has been employed at several radio stations as disc jockey, news director, music director, and public service director, as well as giving sports play by play and writing commercials.

While living in Middletown, he worked at Christian radio station WCNW in Cincinnati, and in Columbus, he was a DJ at station WHOK. In college, Gary worked part-time at WMOA in Marietta and WMVO in Mount Vernon.

He attended Mount Vernon Nazarene College in Mount Vernon, Ohio, where he studied speech communications. He only lacks a few hours to complete his degree and says that he is planning to go to West Texas State University, possibly in the spring, to finish.

Gary is a native of Ironton, Ohio, and Ronda is originally from Oklahoma City. The two met when Gary came to sing at the church Ronda's father pastors in Vandalia, Ohio. They were married there almost four years ago. The couple are parents of one son, 18-month-old Joshua.

Before their marriage, Ronda worked with an interior decorating business in Centerville, Ohio. She attended vocational school while in high school and has a certificate in fashion and interior design.

When the couple lived in Columbus, Ronda was assistant to a chiropractor. She has also worked in several restaurants, and since Gary has been a youth minister, she has worked closely with him, especially helping in counseling situations with the teenage girls.

She enjoys sewing, floral design, ceramics, and all kinds of arts and crafts, including macrame and counted cross stitch. Both she and Gary enjoy sporting events, and he played football, basketball, and golf in school.

This is a good way to get to know the kids, commented Gary, who has already been attending pep rallies and athletic events at the local schools.

"Our youth group at Franklin was very involved in school and community activities," he stated, "and I was asked by the coaches to speak to the high school football team there during August practices. We also sang at various community events, such as Christmas teas and a city festival."

One of the highlights of his youth work was when the youth choir he directed had a chance to sing at Opryland U.S.A. two years ago.

In the smaller churches where he has served, Gary has not only directed youth choirs, but the sanctuary choirs as well. Here his work will be strictly with the youth, but for Christmas, he has consented to direct the adult choir in a special Christmas musical, which he says he is looking forward to.

Gary's music background, as in the ministry, goes back to his family. "When I was growing up our family sang together and did revivals in various places," he noted. "I was involved in choirs and select ensembles all through school and during my junior year in high school I was selected to be a part of the All-Ohio Youth Choir which sang for the Ohio State Fair and at other times during the year."

Gary traveled with Living Proof, a scholarship group which promoted the school, while attending Mount Vernon Nazarene College.

In addition to his musical experience, Gary feels that his background in radio has helped to prepare him for his current work with youth.

"I was called into the ministry when I was 12, but growing up so close to it and knowing everything that was involved, I shunned away from it. I went into the communication field, but I don't feel that time was wasted. That's what ministry is — communication.

"I enjoyed radio — it was fun and challenging work — but I like this even better. I wouldn't trade what I'm doing now for anything. Just knowing God is using me to change kids' lives is very exciting, and humbling."

"My goal as a minister is to get the kids to a point where they can take over what I've taught them and be leaders," continued Gary. "I want to do things with them rather than for them, so they will know how to carry on the ministry. "My desire is to get the kids involved so they can realize their potentials as ministers themselves."

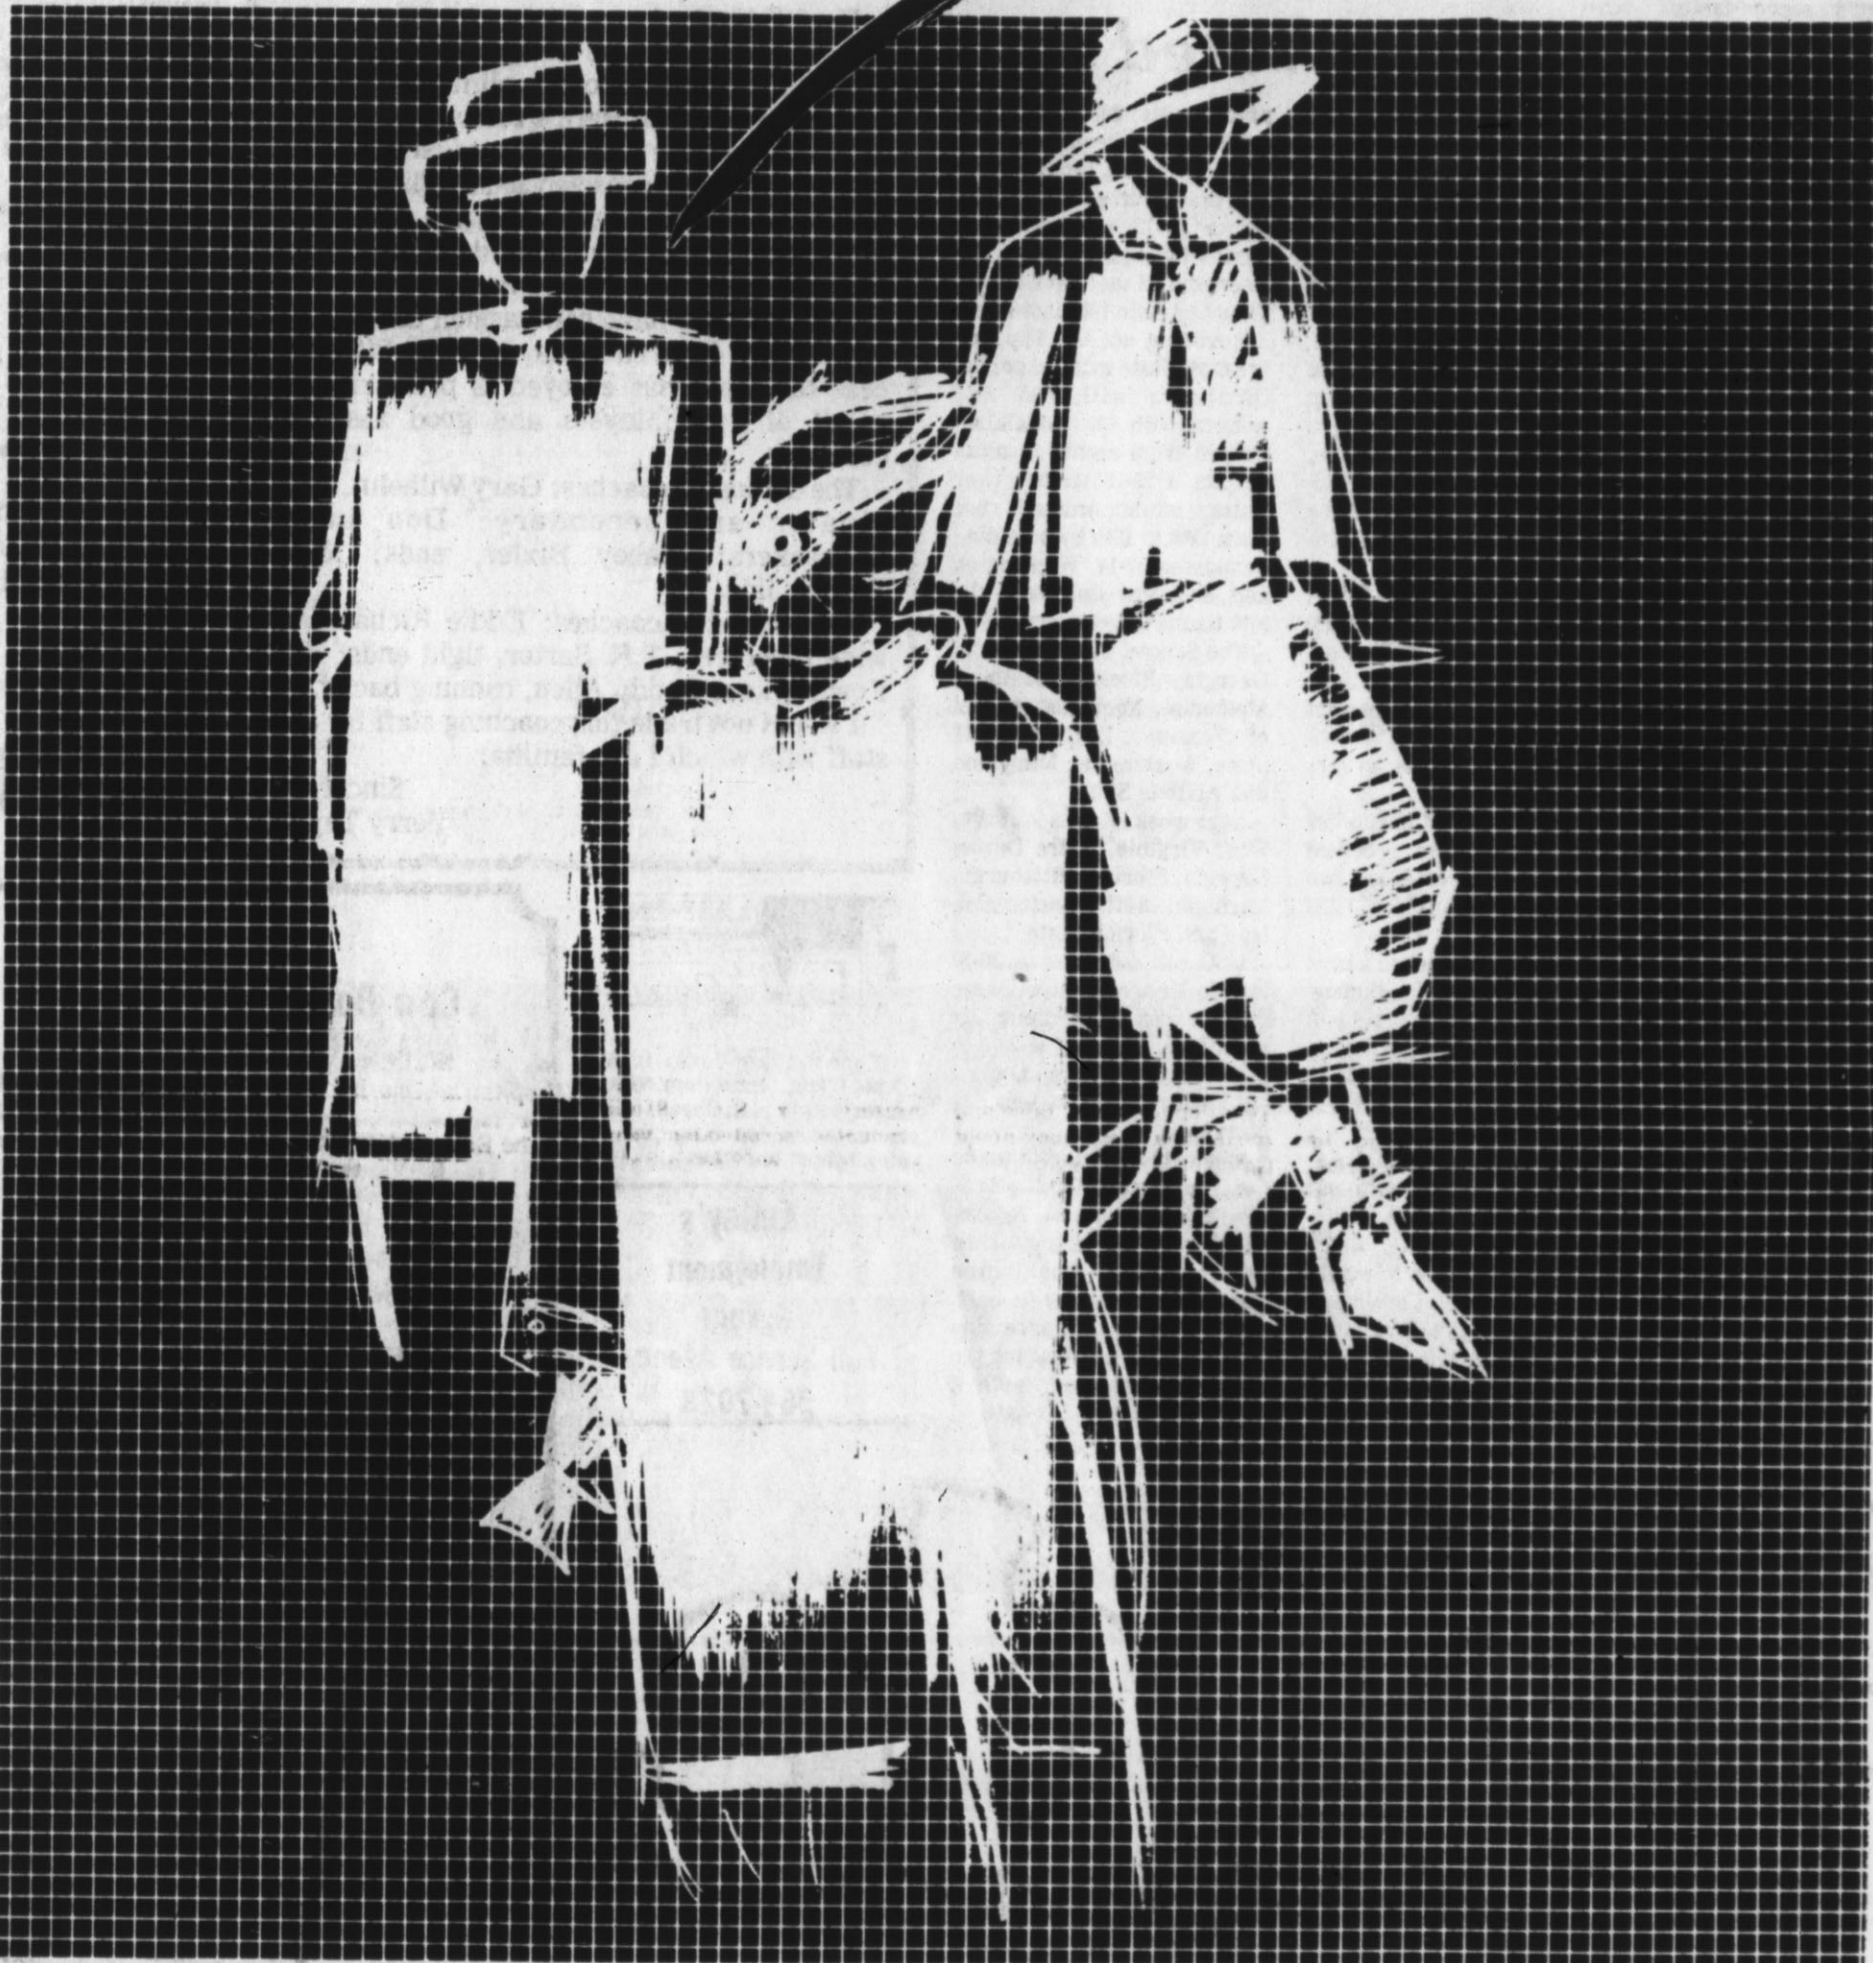

Future plans that Gary has for the youth include a retreat next month, a live nativity scene at the church the week before Christmas with the youth and live animals as the cast, a special youth week emphasis in January with various ministry activities planned each night, and a ministry-oriented choir and drama tour to Washington, D.C. next summer.

Currently, he and Ronda are both working with the youth on Wednesdays, in a program Gary has termed "Wednesday Night Live."

"We really enjoy the fellowship of the youth and adults, and appreciate the friendliness of the people," commented Ronda.

Girls get third, boys eighth Saturday in cross country

Girls from Hereford High School were third while HHS boys finished eighth Saturday in a cross country meet at Plainview.

Selma Moreno paced the distaff Whitefaces with a 12:26 clocking, good for second in overall individual competition. The weekend before, Moreno was also second to help HHS win the Borger meet.

Saturday saw Amarillo top the girls' division with a score of 73. Canyon followed with 94, Hereford 101 and Coronado 128. Rounding out the competition were Dumas (166), Tascosa (171), Vernon (180), Palo Duro (222), Plainview (267), Levelland (312) and Monterey (354).

Hereford's second-fastest female was Dana Cabbiness, 13th overall with a 13:23 clocking over the two-mile course. Glenda Gonzales garnered 17th with a time of 13:27.

Also running for HHS were Yolanda Alaviz (34th, 14:04), Francis Flores (39th, 14:11), Eva Nedrano (89th, 16:11) and Veronica Estrada (93rd, 16:14).

Brownfield escaped with the boys' crown as its 93 points barely bettered Monterey's 96, Lubbock's 98, Dumas' 100 and Plainview's 103. Following that pack were Amarillo (144), Caprock (152), Hereford (185), Palo Duro (204), Levelland (237) and Tascosa (248).

The highest individual finisher for the HHS boys was Gary Blevins, whose 17:04 was good for 34th. Capturing the 43rd-45th places were Hereford's Frankie Vallejo (17:24), Eliso Ramirez (17:25) and Jim Layman (17:26).

Also running the three-mile course for the Whitefaces were Lupe Rocha (48th, 17:30), Alonzo Martinez (54th, 17:40), Joel Lopez (69th, 18:21) and Bobby Aranda (37th, 18:23).

Hereford is slated to host a cross country meet this coming Saturday in Veterans Park. Martha Emerson, HHS coach, anticipates 450 to 500 runners will participate. Included in the competing schools will be Coronado, Estacado, Dunbar, Monterey and Lubbock from Lubbock along with Amarillo, Palo Duro, Caprock and Tascosa from Amarillo.

Also expected to field teams are Borger, Boys Ranch, Brownfield, Canyon, Dalhart, Dumas, Levelland, Lockney, Muleshoe, Olton, Pampa and Shallowater.

The first race will be at 10 a.m., when junior varsity girls will attack the course. They are supposed to be followed by the varsity girls at 10:30 a.m., JV boys at 11 a.m. and varsity boys at 11:30 a.m.

'Huskers rated tops

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Nebraska Cornhuskers, who have crushed four opponents this season by a combined score of 226-49, are a unanimous choice today as the nation's No. 1 college football team.

Texas remained in second place and Arizona moved up to third, while Southern California and Notre Dame, two of the top names in college football, fell out of the Associated Press Top Twenty.

Nebraska whipped UCLA 42-10 after trailing 10-0 in the second period. The Cornhuskers received all 60 first-place votes and a perfect score of 1,200 from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Texas, a 26-6 winner over North Texas State, received 58 second-place votes and two third-place ballots for 1,138 points.

For the third week in a row, Arizona reached its highest point ever since the AP poll began in 1936. The Wildcats trimmed Fullerton State 31-10 and climbed from fourth to third with 1,001 points.

Iowa moved up from seventh to fourth with 998 points following a 20-14 victory over Ohio State, which dropped from third to eighth as a result. North Carolina, a 51-20 winner over William & Mary, remained in fifth place with 917 points and Alabama held onto sixth place with 880 points by defeating Vanderbilt 44-24.

West Virginia jumped from 12th to seventh with 750 points for a 27-17 triumph over Boston College, knocking the losers out of the Top Twenty. They had been 19th last week.

Rounding out the Top Ten are Ohio State with 709 points, Oklahoma with 695 and Auburn with 693. Oklahoma slipped from eighth to ninth despite a 28-18 victory over Tulsa, while Auburn rose from 11th to 10th by pouncing Tennessee 37-14. Washington and Southern Cal were the 9-10 teams a week ago.

The Second Ten consists of Georgia, Florida, Southern Methodist, Michigan, Miami of Florida, LSU, Florida State, Washington, Maryland and Arizona State.

Last week, it was Auburn, West Virginia, Notre Dame, Georgia, Florida, Pittsburgh, Michigan, SMU, Boston College and Florida State.

USC fell out after a 26-20 loss to Kansas. Notre Dame disappeared by dropping its second game in a row 20-0 to Miami and Pitt was knocked out after a 13-7 loss to Maryland.

Meanwhile, Miami made the Top Twenty for the first time this season, LSU returned after a two-week absence by trouncing Washington 40-14. Maryland came back after a one-week lapse and Arizona State made it for the first time this year with a 44-14 rout of Wichita State.

Biles tries to justify 8-21 career record

HOUSTON (AP) - How have the Houston Oilers managed to lose 11 straight games over the past two seasons?

Coach Ed Biles made it all clear Monday when he gave his annual state-of-the-Oilers address to the Houston Touchdown Club.

"I can look in the mirror every morning and see the direction we are going," Biles said.

It sounded like Biles meant the Oilers were headed in reverse but he really meant the opposite.

Despite the criticism that goes with an 8-4 start, Biles says the Oiler management is on the right road, headed forward. They've done everything right except win a game.

"I think with what we are trying to accomplish and what we are going through, we have nothing to hide," Biles told the weekly luncheon group. "In fact, I welcome the opportunity for it to be presented in the way it's going and not through second-handed information, through the media and radio...."

Biles, embattled in his third year of trying to build a winner, then presented his view of the Oiler progress.

Biles pointed out that his 8-21 record was not too far from the early records of Tom Landry at Dallas and Chuck Noll at Pittsburgh. Biles said Landry had an 18-46 record in his first five years and Noll went 12-30 over three years before turning the Steelers into world champions.

Landry started with an expansion team, whereas Noll took over a team that had not won for decades. The Oilers went from a playoff team in 1980 to 7-9 in 1981 to 1-8 in 1982 to 0-4 this season.

Biles had said he took over an aging team whose draft choices had been depleted. "I took this football team over in 1980 because the decision was made that the Houston Oilers were headed in the direction it was headed - that the draft choices were all gone, it was an old football team and it was people that wasn't going to help us," Biles said.

"There were 56 people on that roster that got beat badly out at Oakland at that time. The last three games of that season they barely snuck into the playoffs and they got bombed the first playoff game out there."

Biles pointed out that only 16 of those 56 players remained on the Oiler roster prior to Sunday's 30-13 loss to Buffalo. Biles also took the occasion to defend Oiler owner Bud Adams, regularly panned as "Bottom Line Bud," interested only in a profit.

"Money can't buy you a championship," Biles said. "The team that wins consistently in baseball is the Los Angeles Dodgers. They're not doing it by buying free agents, they're doing it by bringing people up through their farm system."

Gridiron coaches praised in letter

Dear Editor:

In an effort to give proper and deserving credit, I would like to compliment the assistant coaches of the Herd's football program.

These men are hard workers, self-starters and extremely conscientious. They spend numerous hours trying to give the Herd players an advantage. They don't just coach football; they coach young men.

They not only have compassion but also demand much from each player. What little success the team has enjoyed is primarily the result of good players and good assistant coaches.

The defensive coaches: Gary Wilhelm, coordinator and secondary; Don Long, linebackers; Stacey Bixler, ends; Mark Turner, line.

The offensive coaches: Eddie Richardson, wide receivers; T.R. Sartor, tight ends; Ken Fowler, line; Buddy Allen, running backs.

I would not trade this coaching staff for any staff with which I am familiar.

Sincerely,
Jerry Taylor

Happy Birthday,

Aussies soak up Cup to sink 132-year dominance

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) - The winning skipper, John Bertrand, wept unashamedly. His heart-broken American rival, Dennis Conner, kept a stiff upper lip while his beaten red-hulled sloop flew the Stars and Stripes at half staff.

It was an occasion for tears and cheers - a dark day for American pride, an elixir for the national ego of a distant continent of some 15 million people who sometimes feel forgotten at the bottom of the world.

And it was a day on which this staid old seaport resort went deliriously mad over a band of leather-tough, free-living Australians who absconded with one of this country's most prized possessions - yachting's American's Cup.

For a few wild, unharnessed hours, it seemed everybody donned the green and gold, sang "Waltzing Matilda" and became an Aussie. Nobody met a stranger.

"We finally got rid of that darned Cup," a National Guard corporal said under his breath as the radio blared the news that Australia II had crossed the finish line 41 seconds ahead of Liberty, thus ending a 132-year possession of the bottomless silver pitcher by the United States. It didn't mark the end of an era. It marked the end of an age.

When a schooner named America beat a fleet of British vessels in a race around the Isle of Wight for a pot-bellied silver cup that cost $500, British pride was shattered.

At the time, Britain was undisputed queen of the oceans. Her people were lordly and condescending. They looked upon American citizens as Yankee hayseeds, uncouth descendants of religious outcasts.

The New York Yacht Club put up the Cup for world challenge. Over 113 years, beginning in 1870, yachting powers, mostly British, sought to capture the trophy - first with giant sloops and ketches, then multimillion-dollar J boats and finally the present day 12s. All failed. None won more than two races.

Meanwhile, America itself grew to be the richest and most powerful nation in the world. The New York Yacht Club became haughty and arrogant - legalistic and hairsplitting in making its own rules.

Many times challengers returned home, saying they had been swindled. The New York Yacht Club paid them little mind.

The emergence of Australia as a legitimate contender and finally a winner is an ironic twist - almost a reverse replay - of history. Australia's heritage has been much like that of America, the continent originally a British penal colony, very pioneer-spirited and slow in development, stuck with a massive inferiority complex.

Then it began emerging with great fighters, remarkable athletes and in recent years the source of some of the world's most popular pop and rock musical artists - a modern, progressive land.

They swarmed the docks to shoot off firecrackers, send themselves in the Aussies - a brash, hardy and uninhibited breed without pretense - and the feeling was reflected in the great outpouring of celebrants after Australia II's remarkable triumph.

flairs into the sky, join in the Aussies' catch ballads and then poured onto the streets and into the alleyways.

It was Times Square on New Year's Eve, New Orleans at Mardi Gras time.

A Thames Street pubkeeper brought cases of champagne to the docks and kept popping corks endlessly as long as Aussie thirts continued. "They're great people," he said. "They came to my place every night. People loved them. I would say 60 percent of all Americans wanted the Aussies to win."

"For one thing, they resented the New York yacht Club, which is like owning the bat and ball, playing the game in your own backyard and having your mother looking out the window."

Joey Gregory, a New York writer and actress, sported a T-shirt with the imprint, "Americans for Australia II."

said a Newporter. "It always seemed like high society. But the Australians made me a fan."

Everybody had to be impressed when millionaire Alan Bond, who headed the syndicate, and handsome, mustachioed John Bertrand, introduced each of the Australia II crewmen, tanned a nut-brown and fresh-looking, with a loving reference to each.

So the old Cup is gone. There was a mystique in America's long winning streak. But it's in good hands and now we'll have to go and get it back some day - from the new sovereign of the seas.

Coach happy with Giants

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - New York Giants Coach Bill Parcells had a can of soda in his hand, a stick of gum in his mouth and a notion in his head.

He had something to say about his team, and he said it more than once. His words weren't poetic nor nearly as overwhelming as the Gaints' 27-3 National Football League victory over the normally explosive Green Bay Packers Monday night. But he made his point.

"Although our won-loss record doesn't show it, I think we're an improving football team," said Parcells, whose team evened its record at 2-2 while notching its largest margin of victory in eight years at Giants Stadium.

Presumably, Parcells and Green Bay Coach Bart Starr watched the same game. But it didn't sound that way as Starr indicated his team made it easier for the Giants to look improved.

"We embarrassed ourselves," Starr said. "We did just about everything we could to cost ourselves a ball game. The Giants are good, but they are not supermen. We made them look like supermen."

"I don't like to admit it, but I can't remember us playing any worse than this." The Giants chose to look at it another way.

"This was just our night. There was no way they could beat us," said linebacker Lawrence Taylor. "We got very stingy. They got close to our goal line and we'd bend. But we didn't break."

Staffers deadlocked

Brand Managing Editor Bob Nigh pulled even with Publisher Speedy Nieman after the Fearless Forecasters panel suffered the effects of the upset bug last week. Still, the two newspaper staffers trail the rest of the field as Butch White clings to a slim margin.

Nigh posted a 16-10 mark last week, edging out White and Helen Higgins, who each sported 15-11 marks. Mike Carr forged a 14-12 mark, while Nieman fell to 13-13.

White's overall mark of 68-36 tops the panel, with Mrs. Higgins second at 67-37. Carr is third with a 65-39 record, and Nieman and Nigh round out the pack with 63-41 records.

All fine panelists missed the Arkansas loss to Mississippi, Oregon's win over Houston, Iowa's win over Ohio State, New England's win over the Pittsburgh Steelers, and Cleveland's win over San Diego.

Nieman did show his "smarts" by picking Texas Tech over Baylor, denying that loyalty to his Alma Mater had anything to do with his decision. And, Nigh was the only panelist to correctly pick Oklahoma State over Texas A&M.

White correctly picked Miami, Florida's win over Notre Dame, while Carr was alone in picking the St. Louis Cardinals' win over Philadelphia.

Girls to have soccer league

Registration for the YMCA Girls Soccer League ends Friday, with practice expected to start Monday and competition to get underway the following week.

Any girl in first-through-sixth grade is eligible for the league, which costs $8 for YMCA members and $14 for non-members. Teams are to be drawn up only by the YMCA office.

According to a YMCA press release, everyone plays at least half of every league game. "Fair play and values are the backbone of the program," it read. "YMCA emphasizes a game played by children who respect themselves, the other team, the officials, and most of all, want to have fun. The goals of the program are to have fun, learn the game, have good, clean competition and develop skills."

Coaches are needed for the girls soccer league. Any parents, friends or college students who are interested in leading a team are asked to contact Weldon Knabe, YMCA program director.

For more information, call or visit the YMCA office in the Sugarland Mall (364-6990).

POLLY'S POINTERS

Pea-shelling magic

DEAR POLLY — My husband and I like to freeze our homegrown peas, but we don't enjoy the tedious shelling process. I've finally figured out a way that works beautifully. Put the whole pea pods after washing them in a pressure cooker with one cup water. Bring the pressure-cooker up to five pounds pressure. When the pressure reaches five pounds, turn off the heat, then time for two minutes. Remove from the cooker, drain and plunge the peas into a pan of cold water. You'll find that the peas come out of the pod easily after this treatment. No more boredom or bother with difficult shelling! — MRS. F.C.

DEAR POLLY — This is a Pointer about growing garlic. I grow Mennik's giant garlic, planting it around the middle of September. It grows about six inches before frost. In the spring, the plants grow about 3 feet high and the leaves are one-half inch wide when it's ready to harvest in the latter part of July or early August. The bulbs are almost as big as golf balls and will keep year round. Plant the cloves in rows five or six inches apart. Polly, tell the gardeners to plant garlic in mid-September. It really works. — ADOLPH

SAN ANTONIO — Modeling their hand-made and partially designed fashions, four young fashions designers from across the state captured their first place honors at the 1983 Texas 4-H fashion show held here recently.

Fifty-five 4-H'ers competed in the state finals according to Texas Agricultural Extension Service clothing specialists.

Winners in the four main categories include, Annie Melena, Dallam County, active sportswear; Melissa Lehr, Concho County, non-tailored daywear; Jacqua Nance, Dawson County, tailored daywear; and Dena Dohmann, Calhoun County, evening and specialty wear.

Winners in these categories received a $300 scholarship from Cloth World Inc.,

Amarillo, and a set of scissors from White Sewing Machine Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Nance and Lehr had the distinction of being double winners. Jacqua won first in the wool and mohair division and was awarded a $100 bond by the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association, $60 by the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Auxiliary, and mohair yarn from the American Mohair Council.

Melissa was the cotton division winner and pocketed $100 from the Texas Cottonseed Crushers' Association, Dallas, and corduroy fabric from Crompton Co., Inc., New York.

Runners-up in the main division were Donna Smith, Lamb County, active sportswear; Kellye Lynne Tollock, Willacy County, non-tailored daywear; Sarah Henly, Childress County, tailored daywear; Kim Wilson, Wood County, evening and specialty wear. Each received a $225 scholarship from the Mary Kay Foundation.

Sarah Henly, Childress County, was runner up in the wool and mohair division receiving a $50 bond from the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association and $40 from the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Auxiliary. Sandra Dornak, Montgomery County, was the runner-up in the cotton division receiving corduroy fabric from Crompton Co., Inc., and $50 from the Texas Cottonseed Crusher's Association.

Cass County received special recognition as the county with the highest percentage increase in clothing project completion for the past year. Cass County Extension agent Pamela Lee was presented a model 930 sewing machine from Bernina Sewing Machine Inc., North Salt Lake City, Utah.

A luncheon honoring all the participants was sponsored by the McCall's Pattern Co. The Texas Volunteer 4-H Leaders Association served as overall sponsors of the event.

"The Texas 4-H fashion show is one of the key educational activities of the overall 4-H clothing program," said Nancy Brown, Texas Agricultural Extension Service clothing specialist who helped coordinate the show.

"Contestants select and coordinate fabric patterns and accessories as they relate to individuality and interpretation of today's fashions. Sewing lessons are taught by adult leaders or older 4-H members supervised by the county Extension home economists. Participants also develop poise and grooming by modeling in public fashions shows," said Brown.

The Texas A&M University specialist said contest scores are based on overall appearance (55 percent) and construction (45 percent).

Garments and ensembles made of fabrics containing a minimum of 6 percent cotton are eligible for judging in the cotton division, while garments that contain at least 60 percent wool or mohair are eligible for competition in the wool and mohair division.

To compete in the show, a 4-H member must have completed a 4-H clothing project and won first place in local, county and district shows. About 11,000 youth participate in clothing projects annually across the state.

The Consumer Alert

by Jim Mattox
Attorney General

AUSTIN—How do you go about selecting a new appliance? If you're like most Texas consumers, you may never have thought about it. You're likely to make a hurried decision in such cases if a major item like a kitchen stove or a refrigerator goes out.

You may even buy the first brand you see at the first store you visit, under these circumstances. Of course, you will be least likely to get the best product at the best price in such a case.

The best way to select an appliance is to think about what you need and want from it and write these attributes down. Are you most concerned about reliability and lack of service problems? Or is it more important to you to have an appliance with very low operating costs? Maybe you are worried about size, perhaps needing an appliance to fit an existing space. And then, perhaps you're on a tight budget and must consider price first.

After you've analyzed your needs, you will be better able to select the style, features, size, energy requirements, and price that should be considered in making a buying decision.

Our Consumer Protection Division attorneys say you then should gather manufacturers' pamphlets, read ads, visit the library, or talk with several knowledgeable salespeople about the type of product you're considering.

After such study, you will be able to eliminate all but a few brands. At this point, you should do some comparison shopping at several stores to see features demonstrated, to read warranties, to compare prices.

Your lawyers urge you to ask yourself the following questions before making that final decision, in order to save yourself possible consumer problems afterwards:

—Have you totalled the cost, delivery, installation, and service charges before deciding whether you can afford the appliance?

—Are you sure it will fit your space?

—Are you sure you need all the features you're buying?

—Does the appliance have a reputation for being well-built?

—Did you choose a dealer with a good service record, one who is well-known in your community as being reliable?

—Have you read the use and care manual and warranty before buying, and asked questions about any things that are unclear?

—Did you comparison shop in at least three places before making your final decision?

If you have used this checklist, you probably will avoid any unpleasant experiences later. If a problem should develop, though, get in touch with our Consumer Protection Division in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen or San Antonio.

Caring still important in 'high tech' society

COLLEGE STATION — Despite today's "high tech" society, people still need to care for each other, an educational futurist told a gathering of church leaders at Texas A&M University recently.

"You need to lead people down the path of care," Dr. John Hoyle, professor of educational administration at Texas A&M, told some 150 participants at the 38th annual Town and Country Church Conference.

"Technology won't change who you are. Nothing will replace you. You have the gift of humanity in serving God's people."

"You are called upon to help people help themselves—it's a tough job," he emphasized. "If you can help put people back together, the world will come out all right," he said, alluding to such problems as high rates of divorce, suicides, drug abuse and illegitimate children that are plaguing society.

"Many people today know the price of everything and the value of nothing," Hoyle said, in regard to the trend toward self-centeredness in today's society.

Regarding the future, Hoyle noted that there are two views—doomsday and utopian. "Those who hold the doomsday view believe the world is doomed by modern technology while the utopians hold the positive view that everything will be for the better."

As a positive futurist, Hoyle challenged the church leaders to think in a holistic (world) way and to relate happenings to everyone inhabiting the earth. "There is an interconnectedness that we all need to be concerned about," he said.

The educator also emphasized that the future is "now," that today's events and happenings affect everyone's future and that people must relate to these developments.

And Hoyle challenged the church leaders to be forward-thinking and to connect ideas with knowledge so that the future world will be a better place in which to live.

"As futurists, we face a number of issues that we should all be aware of," Hoyle pointed out. "For instance, our population is growing as well as changing rapidly, particularly in Texas. We have growing numbers of minorities and older citizens, and the demand for jobs continues to increase."

Regarding today's high technology, Hoyle emphasized, "It creates hope but we may be overselling it." High technology is causing a lack of jobs for some people, he noted, and may be at the root of some of the problems that are plaguing society today.

"Religion has become a consumer item due to high technology," he said. "The 'electronic church' is coming on strong—mass media religion may be the religion of tomorrow."

"Yes, we live in a 'Baskin-Robbins society' today that offers limitless choices," Hoyle said. "You have a key role in helping people make the right choices."

Make sure African violets get light

COLLEGE STATION — If you want African violets to "light up your life," then be sure they get enough light.

"Although African violets cannot tolerate direct sunlight, they often need more light than most people give them in order to bloom," says Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"If African violets fail to bloom, more than 90 percent of the time it's due to insufficient light," he points out. Too little light causes the central stem of violets to stretch and the leaf petioles to elongate as they reach for the light source. The result is a misshapen plant with few, if any, blossoms, Janne notes.

In contrast, a well-lighted plant will be symmetrical with closely spaced leaves and an abundance of flowers in the center.

"Fluorescent lights are excellent for growing African violets," says the horticulturist. "However, don't crowd plants under light and keep about 8 inches between plants and lights. If plants seem to stretch, lower light slightly or raise the plants."

Janne suggests watering African violets only when the soil is dry to the touch, and then watering them thoroughly. Water should be at room temperature or slightly above because cold water can cause leaf spotting. Wick systems work well if the soil is leached thoroughly every four to six weeks to get rid of soluble salts that may accumulate.

Use only well-drained potting soil high in organic matter for growing African violets, recommends Janne. Specially formulated fertilizers are available for African violets, or use soluble fertilizers recommended for indoor flowering plants after diluting to about one-fourth strength.

High rail rates seen as obstacle to southern coal sales abroad

AUSTIN (AP) — Southern coal won't be in high demand in Europe until railroad transportation costs in the United States drop, European coal consumers told southern governors in a satellite teleconference.

During the conference conducted by a television hookup between Rotterdam and the Southern Governors' Association meeting here, both sides agreed Monday that rail rates are a major obstacle to international coal sales.

Texas Gov. Mark White said the problem is obvious. "We can get coal from Poland cheaper than coal from Wyoming or Montana," said Texas Gov. Mark White. He called the rail rates "devastating" to coal-consuming states such as Texas, and said Texas officials can understand why European nations are looking elsewhere for coal. The Texas governor called on Congress to order the Interstate Commerce Commission "to move with dispatch to bring hauling rates under control."

White added, "It will not hurt the railroads. They are not having trouble attracting new capital."

The SGA is actively courting European markets for coal. But during the teleconference, several of the Europeans made it clear that the United States does not have a captive market for coal in Europe.

"The railroads have a monopoly against us," said Domenico Maiello of Italy. "Our only defense is to step out of these mines."

Kal Bograd, a Danish official, said the price of southern coal could be reduced if southern ports were dredged to allow larger freighters to be loaded. Several officials talked about off-shore facilities that could be used to top off the super-freighters that cannot be fully loaded in U.S. ports.

But Bograd said expensive dredging projects or off-shore facilities would cut only about $1 from the price of a ton of coal.

"You'll still have very high railroad rates. That's the main problem," he told the 11 governors attending the first day of the three-day SGA meeting.

Louisiana Gov. David Treen said rail rates have been made artificially high by "featherbedding" in the railroad industry. "It ought to be a crime for someone to deliberately and

It's a new way of measuring Mississippi mud

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The miracles of high technology turn up in unexpected places, cutting costs, eliminating work — and wiping out jobs.

Next week, the job of profiling the height of the levees that keep the Mississippi River hemmed in from New Orleans to Natchez, Miss., shifts to high tech.

The fancy new electronic system to be used by World Surveys Inertial may mark the beginning of serious change in conventional surveying methods.

Surveying sections of levees is a job that the Corps of Engineers does every year or so because levees sometimes lose their crowns due to erosion, or sink due to the slow shifts and settling of the earth.

Natchez is 365 miles upriver from the Gulf of Mexico and Harry Odom, an owner of Odom Consulting Engineers of Baton Rouge, said the survey normally would cost the Corps $400,000 and take two months.

It would require the services of several survey crews, walking or riding the levee top on both sides of the river, peering through a surveying tool called a theodolite, slapping mosquitoes.

This time the job will be done in two weeks with a specialized computer, laser beams, a few men and a helicopter. Odom said World Surveys, with a subcontract from Kenneth Balk & Associates, will do it for $200,000. Loaded with sensitive equipment, the chopper clatters along over the levees bouncing laser beams off the ground at the rate of 4,000 pulses a second so a computer can make measurements.

At 4,000 pulses a second, Odom said the beam even reads the ground through the foliage of trees. Much of it bounces back from leaves, but some gets through the cracks.

In high tech jargon, the name for the system is ILIPS, for Integrated Laser Inertial Profile System.

"The federal government has spent millions trying to develop ILIPS," said Odom. "They filled an airplane with computers and all sorts of inertial systems and guidance systems and position systems, trying to profile the ground — and they can't do it yet."

At Corps Division Headquarters, surveying with inertial gear based on the same electronic principles used in a ship's compass is regarded with interest tinged with skepticism.

"For certain things it is a very, very quick system but sometimes the accuracy is not what we want," said Tom Harrington, chief of the design memo branch. "Inertial from the horizon seems to be extremely accurate, sometimes the vertical is not so good."

Odom said World Surveys has laid out a $3 million investment that bets it not only can do "very, very quick" surveys but also with pinpoint accuracy.

Another test, he said, will come in Venezuela, where the company is preparing to survey a drainage basin on Rio Caura, a river that flows into the Orinoco, to outline an area for a reservoir.

"That job would take 50 people two years to complete, if it could be done at all, because we're talking about jungle. We're talking about places where you go in and you might lose your head," Odom said.

World Surveys figures the actual helicopter survey will take less than a month.

In preparatory work, 35 doppler radar satellite stations have to be set up to supply the fixed points, plus 15 to 20 clearings hacked out of the rain forest for helicopter landing space.

Odom's companies specialize in difficult and precise offshore oil work such as finding the exact location of an oil pipeline or exploring for oil and gas at shallow or intermediate depths beneath the seabottom.

He does not worry about high tech putting people out of work because he thinks it will ultimately create jobs for those it made "redundant."

As to those 50 men who might have worked two years on the Rio Caura survey project, Odom said what about the 1,000 workers who won't have to wait two years for construction to begin, and the thousands who will receive the benefits from the project that much quicker.

Corporate computers lack safeguards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Computer owners have failed to take even the most elementary steps to stop snooping by hobbyists who delight in cracking their security systems, says a 17-year-old who has penetrated dozens of computers across the country.

Neal Patrick told a House Science subcommittee Monday that it would have been easy to stop him and his high school friends from most of their exploits by merely making more complex the passwords needed to enter a computer.

While Patrick and the

"414s" — a group of young computer buffs named after their area code in Milwaukee — did not maliciously destroy records or alter data, it would have been easy to do so, he told the panel.

"The potential for damage was enormous," said Patrick, who began his computer career with an introductory course at school in the 7th grade. At one of their targets, the Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, a group member accidentally erased some billing data from the computer.

"If someone with a sinister intent had accessed that computer, the damage could have run into the millions, just in dollar value," he said. The group also entered computers of a bank and of the Los Alamos National Laboratory. With a home computer and a telephone hookup costing just a few hundred dollars, and only a good working knowledge of how to operate the system, anyone could duplicate the "electronic travels of the 414s," said Patrick — unless companies and institutions took more trouble to protect themselves.

Passwords that act as entry keys to computers are often exchanged through computer "bulletin boards" which can be dialed by telephone. Other password systems are easy to guess, since the computer owners often neglect to change them from the simple commands like "test" or "system" which are used to demonstrate the computer program to a buyer.

"If they had just changed those (passwords), we couldn't have gotten in," Patrick told the panel. Other experts, however, said it won't be that easy to deter all hackers, a term used to refer to people who gain access to computer systems for fun. They said changing password systems may merely offer some a new challenge — a tougher code to crack.

Residents host guests

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ansel McDowell over the weekend were Dr. and Mrs. Ansel McDowell Jr. of Lake Jackson, Stewart McDowell of Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Slaughter of Perryton, and Dr. and Mrs. Dan McDowell and children, Ashley and Justin, of Breckenridge, Texas.

The weekend guests were in Hereford to attend the wedding of Eleise McDowell and Wade Boren.

Eating too little

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am presently on a diet that I started two weeks ago. I am 5 foot 3, age 17 and weigh 106 pounds. I lost four pounds. I eat good, well-balanced meals and have just cut down on the size of the portions that I eat.

The problem is that lately I have frequently experienced some dizziness and head rushes when I stand up. Is anything wrong?

DEAR READER — Yes. You are not eating enough. Why do you think you need to weigh less? You may be starting down the path to anorexia nervosa, a condition where a person thinks she is fat when in fact she is thin. The end result is starvation and the damage that does to your health.

Often, when the diet is too limited, or there is an over restriction of carbohydrates, the body washes out a lot of salt and water. The loss of normal body water causes a person to have a tendency to faint. The loss of normal water in the tissues in your legs allows blood to pool in your legs when you stand. That means you cannot send enough blood to the brain.

A less severe, sensible diet that does not overly restrict carbohydrates will not cause this. But starvation or semi-starvation will cause such problems regardless of the type of food you eat. A lot of people today suffer from the adverse effects of unhealthy dieting. Others get so thin the liver can no longer manufacture glucose, and, in the extreme form, that can lead to death.

I think you should read Dangerous Dieting in The Health Letter 16-2, which I am sending you. So should anybody contemplating a diet. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I understand Dupuytren's contracture is inherited. All our family are musicians and artists. We were going to have surgery but were told it could grow back. How long should we wait to have it done?

DEAR READER — You will be interested in this letter from another reader: "Thank you for your column on Dupuytren's contracture. I have experienced two operations on the same finger for this problem. The second operation

Ann Landers Problem with pennies

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me if money has gone so crazy these days that pennies are no longer considered legal tender.

The reason I am asking is because a good friend of mine took $40 worth of pennies to the bank to be converted into bills, and the bank here in New Orleans refused to accept them.

Do they have the legal right to do this?

P.S.: The pennies were loose in a bag. Would that make any difference?—Daily Reader In The Southland

DEAR SOUTHLAND: I checked with Barry Sullivan, chairman of the First National Bank in Chicago. He said there is no law making it mandatory for a bank to give currency for coins. He also said, "Every customer is important to us and we would certainly accommodate that person who came in with 4,000 pennies. There would be no charge—not even a penny for his thoughts."

The genial Mr. Sullivan pointed out that for major banks, coin-counting is routine. It is performed for governmental bodies, corporations and individuals. A fee is charged for large amounts. Machines that are available to do this job save many hours of tedious labor.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I saw myself in the letter from the woman who fought depression for so many years. I, too, was suicidal. There were three or four times when I could have died. The woman who wrote expressed it so well: "Nothing seems worthwhile. I am tired of fighting. The peace and serenity of death is so appealing."

Change lifestyle to beat back pain

COLLEGE STATION — Back pain now rivals the common cold as a major health complaint of Americans.

According to the American Medical Association and insurance company data, some 22 million Americans experience back discomfort during the course of a year; over 16 million of them will visit their doctors; and about 2 million will be hospitalized.

Only about 20 percent of back problems are caused by actual disease of the bones and joints of the back. "The vast majority of back problems are simply due to poor daily lifestyle habits," says health educator Dr. Mary Ann Shirer.

A major cause of back pain is improper body mechanics or poor posture when standing, sitting, bending and lifting, and lying down, says Shirer, a specialist with Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service.

Improving posture and body alignment in all daily activities — whether sitting at a desk, doing housework, or driving a tractor — will relieve back strain, protect the back from injury and slow down "back wear" from the aging process, notes the specialist.

Poor muscle tone, weak muscles and a lack of flexibility also cause back pain. Faithfully following an exercise program to strengthen abdominal and back muscles and to increase body flexibility can alleviate existing back problems and reduce the risk of developing back problems.

But an exercise program takes a daily commitment to be effective, says Shirer, and should not be started while you have severe back pain. It's also a good idea to get your doctor's approval, especially if you have back problems, other medical conditions, or are over 35 years of age, cautions the specialist.

Being overweight or obese is another contributing factor to back pain. Excess weight shifts the body's center of gravity and puts an added strain on the back, especially if the excess weight is carried around the abdomen, she ex-

I am going through a terrible spell at this very minute. I can't tell my husband how I feel. He becomes angry when I am not well — tells me I could "snap out of it" if I really wanted to. He even went so far as to suggest that I am trying to get sympathy.

My boss doesn't help much either. When I returned to work (a job I have held for nine years and missed only one week when I was hospitalized), he called me in and said, "You're lucky to have a job to come back to. Most companies wouldn't have taken you back." That might be true, but it made me feel awful. A one-week absence out of nine years, with no complaints about my work, isn't too bad a record.

Depression is like cancer or any other disease. It is not a character defect. How much nicer if he had said, "Glad to have you back. We missed you."

I, too, am living one day at a time — sometimes 15 minutes. Depression is hell, but those of us who have it must speak out and plead for understanding.

Thanks for giving us such a terrific forum, Ann. It's great to have you on our side.—Hurting, Too (In Florida)

DEAR HURTING: We know so much more about depression than we used to. We are now aware that often it is caused by a chemical imbalance—inherited, at that—and medication, carefully monitored by a physician, can make a world of difference.

I urge all the depressed people out there to hang on—keep trying. Life CAN be beautiful again. You've just got to believe it.

plains. "Even mental stress and anxiety can play a role by causing the back muscles to become tense and aggravate backpain," says Shirer.

For the person who has weak muscles, poor posture, is overweight and has poor stress management skills, even the slightest mechanical stress can cause a back injury or strain, whether the person does heavy lifting or not.

The oldest known song written in English is a ballad called Judas. A manuscript of this survives from the 13th century.

4-H Firsthand

4-H program builds on past experience

By BRAD MORRISON
County Extension Agent
4-H has a proud 75-year heritage that forms the basis of this year's National 4-H Week theme, "4-H: Building on Experience."

National 4-H Week, Oct. 2-8, is a special time for 4-H members and leaders to promote the nation's largest youth organization and to bring some recognition to its contributions.

Over the years millions of 4-H'ers have gained valuable leadership experiences and learned practical skills that have improved their quality of life.

Today almost five million youths across the nation between the ages of 9 and 19 are gaining valuable learning experiences through 4-H—187,000 of those are in Texas. The Texas 4-H program reaches boys and girls through more than 2,000 community based clubs and another 900 short-term project groups.

4-H'ers are engaged in some 50 different project areas in which they gain lifelong skills through the program's "learning-by-doing" concept. These projects had their beginning 75 years ago when special Corn Clubs were organized for boys in Jack County.

First focusing on such traditional areas as crop and livestock production and canning and sewing, 4-H projects now deal with a wide range of subjects, including small engines, rocketry and veterinary science—even the use of computers.

The 4-H program is conducted in each state through the Cooperative Extension Service and is backed by the state's land-grant university (Texas A&M University for the Texas program) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Some 22,000 adult and teenage 4-H leaders shoulder much of the responsibility for the 4-H program in Texas.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.
