Bullard resigns hospital post

Deaf Smith General Hospital Administrator Jim Bullard resigned his post tuesday night at an emergency meeting of the Deaf Smith

Hospital District Board of Directors. Bullard's resignation was accepted by the board on a 4-2 vote, with Dr. Jim Herbertson and Dr. Gerald Payne voting against accepting Bullard's resignation is effective Oct. 15. Bullard said he has several prospects he is looking at, but has not yet decided which of at least three offers he might take.

Bullard has been DSGH's chief for nine years, beginning in August, 1978, when he replaced Ron Welty.

"I have enjoyed the people and the community," Bullard said, "particularly the medical community in Hereford. I consider my time spent here to be a valuable experience in my career."

When Bullard came to Hereford, there were five primary care physicians, an internist and two surgeons. In that time, Bullard has helped recruit eight other doctors to Hereford, five of whom are still here. Many of the recruited physicians are specialists.

"It has been a pleasure to be able to watch and direct the growth of the department managers and see their ability to adjust to the influx of specialty physicians and practices," Bullard said.

Among his major accomplishments, Bullard listed: -"Providing the medical support, physicians, equipment and staff to have people want to stay at home to get their health care. It's primarily a credibility factor that the community has confidence and trust in its hospital. We have defeated the idea that bigger is bet-

-"Our budget and recent numbers show improvments in our bottom line. We have implemented a strategic plan to keep this a viable health care provider under stringent government reimbursement programs without having to raise taxes;

"We have implemented an envied emergency medical system. We have established and operated an emergency medical system that is looked upon as the best of any rural system in the Panhandle, probably the best in the High Plains area of Texas."

Bullard added their are several things left undone and major programs that have not yet been accomplished.

"We must continue to keep the community's trust in our health care organization. We need one or two more specialists. We must look closely at our physical plant and determine what needs to be done that ensures our plant will be sufficient for the future.

"And we must have a structured marketing plan in place. If we had a better cash flow situation last year we could have aiready done

"We have now negotiated changes in our reimbursement situation with Medicare and Medicaid, and we are doing a better job collecting our accounts. We now have the funds in place to market our ser-

Bullard also bemoaned the decision last year by the DSHD board to turn down a plan to build new quarters for the Hereford Clinic near the hospital. The clinic would share X-ray and laboratory services with the hospital, and Bullard said the plan could have brought another $200,000 a year to DSGH.

"It would have helped our cash flow situation immensely." Bullard, however, pointed out that the preliminary budget for the fiscal year which starts Oct. 1 reflects a $480,000 surplus for the hospital during the next year.

DSHD board president Margie Ford had no comment about Bullard's resignation this morning.

Medicare 'windfall' eases DSGH woes

By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

Deaf Smith General Hospital has received a windfall of over $400,000 from Medicare and Medicaid that could ease some of its financial woes. the DSGH board learned at its meeting Tuesday.

The hospital district has received $89,000 as a preliminary settlement of underestimated costs from Medicaid for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1986, and another $323,121 from Medicare for services during the fiscal year which will end Sept. 30, 1987.

The Medicare money, however, could be more than the hospital is eventually owed by Medicare. The money does not take into account

Medicare and "they will always want some money back," said DSGH Administrator Jim Bullard.

Bullard and Phillis Morrison also said that Medicare will increase its monthly payments to DSGH by $30,000 beginning Oct. 1 because Medicare has increased its payments to the hospital for each diagnostic Related Group.

Bullard said that, despite the increase, Medicare is only paying about 48 cents of every $1 in medical care provided at DSGH.

The increase could put a rosier picture on next fiscal year's budget, which begins Oct. 1. The board looked at a preliminary budget Tuesday which forecasts a net profit of $428,000 but calls for a staff of at least fight against hosting the nation's first permanent nuclear waste repository has gotten a boost on Capitol Hill, but a congressman warns that the war isn't over.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved a plan Tuesday to research just one state instead of three for the dump and pay the eventual best state and pay the eventual best state and pay the senate that the state and pay the senate that the state and pay the sta tual host state $100 million annually.

Although the choice would not be made until early 1989, Yucca Mountain, Nev., is widely regarded as the likely pick, barring a reversal of political opposition in more highly populated states. Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., denounced the legislation as harmful to his state.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, expressed cautious optimism that the committee vote means the Deaf Smith County site won't get chosen to house the dump. "It looks like the odds are Nevada, but we can't let down our guard. We can't assume the nuclear waste dump won't wind up in Texas because there's nothing in the bill to preclude that from happening. We must continue our best efforts to ensure it doesn't happen," he said.

A spokesman for Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said the measure would be scrutinized closely to determine whether a $79 million appropriation for site characterization could be used for land acquisition in the Panhandle.

If that were the case, Gramm would move to either strike or remove the money from the bill on the Senate floor, said Gramm spokesman Larry Neal.

Under terms of the 1982 Nuclear Waste Policy Act, the Energy Department tabbed Yucca Mountain, the Hanford Nuclear Reservation in Washington state and Deaf Smith County as three candidate sites for exploration, including the costly drilling of deep shafts, before a final decision is made.

The measure also revokes the Energy Department's selection of Oak Ridge, Tenn., as the location for an interim packaging and storage facility, directing that the department look elsewhere for one, and possibly two, such plants.

In a series of votes, the appropria-tions panel effectively embraced a revision of the nuclear waste program crafted by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., whose Energy Committee already had approved a separate bill incorporating the Budget process slows site study

The Department of Energy Salt Repository Project Office is slowing down activities in Deaf Smith County because of the budget process in Congress, it was announced this morning at the weekly DOE briefing by Bob Wunderlich, SRPO deputy manager.

If no new budget figures are approved, DOE will be working with a $380 million total for 1988. On that basis, SRPO would have $73 million available for site characterization work, plus a $20 million carryover.

DOE had proposed a total of $725 million for fiscal year 1968, with $160 million targeted for the site characterization study. Wunderlich pointed out that Congress has also placed $79 million on "hold" to see if DOE shows good faith in working with the affected states and Indian tribes. If this funding is released, it would add another $18 million to the

Customs Service finds record amount of cocaine

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Customs agents who did a double-take at a truck whose trailer didn't measure up found $6,000 and a hidden compartment containing a cocaine cache valued at nearly $1 billion.

The seizure at an international bridge in El Paso was the largest ever on the U.S.-Mexican border, U.S. Customs Service spokesman Charles Conroy said Tuesday.

Agents arrested the driver of the tractor-trailer - identified as Eduardo Pinto Chavira, 22, of Juarez - and charged him with cocainesmuggling. U.S. Magistrate Philip Cole denied bond for Pinto and scheduled a Friday detention hearing, where he will make his formal Conroy said a conservative estimate of the cocaine's value i million, but regional Customs Commissioner James C. Piatt said he estimated the value to be nearly $1 billion retail after its dilution.

"My guess is that this was to have gone all across the country," Piatt said. He said tests had not yet been performed to determine the purity of the rock cocaine.

Customs agents Monday were stopping and closely inspecting all empty trailers entering El Paso from Mexico, Piatt said. He explained that agents decide daily which types of cargo will receive intensive inspections, and that empty trailers were Monday's target.

Agents measured the Juarezregistered trailer and discovered that the inside length was about three feet shorter than the outside dimension.

They began questioning the driver and searched the truck's cab. When they found $6,000 in cash, the driver tried to flee and was arrested a few feet short of the Ysleta Bridge, Piatt wall at the trailer's front, and inside were 63 white plastic bales weighing about 55 pounds apiece, Piatt said. The bales were stacked about 10 feet high, according to Jack Flynn, Customs assistant district director.

Flynn and Piatt said markings on the bales indicated the cocaine was packed in the Medellin province of Colombia and shipped through Mexico. Medellin has been called the biggest cocaine-producing region in the world.

The district director said luck had little to do with the seizure.

"Our agents made a good job of making the driver nervous," he said. That's pretty much an admission of guilt when you start running back for Heightened enforcement of the Gulf Coast likely has pushed smuggling efforts west, Flynn said.

Banking industry losing money

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. banking industry is losing money for the first time since the Depression, prompting analysts to predict layoffs and other cost-cutting measures at major banks.

The nation's 13,937 federally insured commercial banks reported a second quarter loss of $10.6 billion, the first red ink for the industry as a whole in more than 50 years, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said Tuesday.

"It was clearly the worst quarter in the history of the industry since the FDIC began operating in 1934," FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman

The losses came as banks transferred an unprecedented $21.2 billion to reserves for bad loans, particularly those owed by Third World nations such as Brazil, which has stopped paying on its $23.6 billion debt.

Seidman said he believed the reserves were the banks' best estimate of future loss, but some analysts said the reserves should be even higher and predicted banks would be forced to follow the costcutting lead of Chemical New York Corp., the nation's fifth-largest bank company.

Beset with shaky loans to Latin American countries, Chemical Bank announced this week that it is reducing its work force by 10 percent, or by about 2,100 jobs.

"I think we're going to see a lot more of this kind of restructuring,' said Paul Getman, senior financial analyst with Wharton Econometrics, a Philadelphia forecasting firm.

Bert Ely, a financial industry analyst based in Alexandria, Va., said figures in the FDIC's quarterly banking profile indictate that, in at least the second quarter, banks did not have expenses under control.

Noninterest expenses, which include payrolls, rose at an 11 percent annual rate to $23.8 billion in the second quarter.

The second quarter loss for the industry more than wiped out a record first quarter net income of $5.3 billion, posted after banks added $4.1 billion to loan loss reserves. The net loss for the first six months was $5.3

Seidman said he expected bank performance would turn around in the second half of the year. He predicted net income for the full year would be between $4.5 billion and $6 billion.

A horrible second quarter had been expected. Major banks, including Citicorp, Chase Manhattan Corp., Security Pacific Corp. and BankAmerica Corp., had announced in May that they were adding to reserves to cover Third World loans.

According to the FDIC's quarterly banking profile, 2,354, or 17 percent, of commercial banks lost money in the three months ending June 30. That compares with 2,019, or 14 per-cent, in the first quarter.

Although 83 percent of the banks howed a second quarter profit, the industry as a whole was dragged down by the 10 largest banks, which all lost money and account for nearly a quarter of all the banks' assets.

Texas farmers lasso top sorghum subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) - Eight of the 10 largest direct federal subsidy payments for grain sorghum for 1986-87 will go to Texas farms under terms of the 1986 crop programs, a government report indical

No. 1 on the payment list is the King Ranch, in Kingsville, Texas, which is expected to reap $614,136 in sorghum payments when the last checks of the year are delivered early next month.

That figure made the famous Texas ranch the 10th largest subsidy recipient in the country for 1986, with income more than 12 times the $50,000 cap imposed to prevent such windfall gains, the recent Agriculture Department report said.

Texas ranks with Kansas as the country's two major producers of sorghum, with Lone Star farmers harvesting an estimated $568 million worth of the feed grain in 1985, the most recent year in which Agriculture Department figures were available.

Rounding out the sorghum subsidy list for 1986 is Skloss Farms of Mission, Texas, $491,863; F.J. Kotzur and Sons Inc. of Edinburg, $141,670; Roy M. Smith of Corpus Christi, $138,230; W.M. Laughlin of Premont, Texas, $112,078; Edward J. Ermis of Woodsboro, Texas, $110,599; Richardson Seeds Inc. of Vega, Texas, $105,728; and Floyd Niemann of Woodsboro, Texas, $97,142.

All payment estimates except for the Smith farm were updated by The Associated Press with information from the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, which reported no information available for the Corpus Christi-based farm. Texans also ranked high in wheat, where Fayburn L. Livingston of Megargel, Texas, was to receive $177,683 and W.T. Waggoner Estate of Vernon, Texas, was scheduled for $169,788, according to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

For corn, Sedan Farms of Dalhart was to take in $368,176 and Tejano Farms Joint Venture of Laward, Texas, was authorized to receive $329,677, of which it refused payment and no checks were ever issued, according to the ASCS.

The size of payments under the federal farm law and efforts by some producers to revamp their operations to collect more money have stirred a debate on Capitol Hill over the need for tighter payment limitations on farm subsidies

The Agriculture Department report covers deficiency payments, considered direct income supports, and diversion payments, which are made for idling some acreage.

Although the 1985 farm law imposes a $50,000 ceiling on income subsidies to any one producer, part of the payments are not subject to the limitation. That explains how big producers can collect hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In 1986, for example, 46 cents of the $1.06-a-bushel sorghum subsidy was exempt from the $50,000-a-person limitation, according to Charles Cunningham of the Agriculture Depart-

Because the law specifically permits such large total payments and because some farms have been reorganizing to avoid the payment limits, critics say tighter restrictions are needed to reduce the amounts of government subsidies going to large farmers. "The payment limitation has always been a puny tool for dealing with corporate and other large-scale farming operations largely because there hasn't been the will to have an effective limitation," says Marty Strange, co-director of the Center for Rural Affairs in Walthill, Neb.

The center, which was formed in 1973, advocates changes in federal policy to help smaller so-called family farm operations.

Strange contends a tighter payment limitation is needed to "prevent all the federal government money from being soaked up by the big operators who will use that one to expand their operations."

But Rep. E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Mission, chairman of the House Agriculture Department, says the intent of the payment system is to induce growers to idle acreage and thus reduce surpluses that depress farm prices and raise warehouse expenses paid by the taxpayers.

De la Garza said recently that massive payments represent "onethousandth of one percent - but they get all the publicity."

For 1987, Congress has imposed a new $250,000 limit on total subsidy payments and some lawmakers fear that has led to more "farm splitting." The General Accounting Office has estimated that reorganizations will increase farm subsidy costs $2.3 billion through 1989 by adding 31,300 new farming entities to government programs.

Richard W. Goldberg, deputy undersecretary of agriculture, has said that the Reagan administration has developed "a detailed proposal for correcting what has become a loophole in the current payment limitations "

Highway litter program working unacceptable behavior with a tough

AUSTIN (AP) - With volunteers and tough talk in advertisements, Texas is cleaning trash off its roadways - and keeping it off - faster than any other state, a research group says.

Two years after the state highway department introduced its "Don't mess with Texas" campaign against litter, trash on Texas highways has decreased 54 percent, said Daniel Syrek, director of the Institute for Applied Research in Sacramento, Calif.

"We know of no other state that has achieved this degree of reduction in a two-year period," Syrek said Tuesday at a news conference also attended by Don Clark, director of the highway department's travel and information division.

Clark said highway cleanup efforts cost the state nearly $50 million in 1985-86, but the annual cost increase has declined from 15 to 20 percent a year to 6.5 percent.

"We have slowed down the increase, and we hope to reduce the cost a couple of years down the road," he said.

Clark said the $2 million-a-year campaign, which uses sports and music personalities in television and radio advertising, was started after the highway department found that "traditional efforts like 'Pitch-in, please don't litter, don't be a litterbug' simply were not working."

"I don't know if it was Stevie Ray Vaughan's growl, Randy White's menacing threat, Mike Scott's explosive pitching or volunteer efforts by thousands of Texans, but Texas is no longer losing the war against trash on our roadsides," Clark said.

Vaughan, a rock musician; White, a Dallas Cowboys lineman; and Scott, a Houston Astro, are featured in the anti-litter advertising.

"The key thing, it appears to us, is the introduction of hard-hitting advertising," Syrek said. He added that most other states use "polite, general advertising (asking) people not to litter."

The Texas department also developed the "Adopt-a-Highway" program in which volunteers remove trash from two-mile sections of roadways. In July, 4,700 miles, or 6 percent of state-maintained roads, were cleaned by volunteers.

Syrek said in areas where volunteers had adopted highways, litter has decreased by 65 percent

He said the annual cost per capita of Texas' anti-litter program is 18 cents, compared with an average of 37 cents for four other states with similar programs that Syrek has

But Johnston has argued that $3.9 billion could be saved by exploring just one of those sites, presuming it proves satisfactory, and has made clear he regards the Nevada location the place to start. His legislation would delay any funding until 1989, when the Energy Department would be required to make the pick.

Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., noted that the MRS planned for Oak Ridge has been widely opposed by state officials and expressed his satsifaction Western legislators were angered this year when Energy Secretary John S. Herrington proposed putting off indefinitely the selection of an Eastern site.

Johnston's measure also would postpone, until the year 2010, further consideration of a site in the East.

Currently, DSGH has 149 "fulltime equivalancies," lumping fulltime and part-time personnel into one category. However, a recent study performed by an outside consulting firm shows DSGH only needs about 130 "full-time equivalancies."

The resulting cut in personnel could lead to more pay for the remaining employees, according to Morrison who said some employees have been without a pay increase for over three years.

'Back to School" was the theme of the luncheon as the meal was served in the form of old-fashioned school lunches brought in snacks, syrup buckets or rolled up in newspaper. Lunches ranged from peanut butter and jelly sandwiches to fried pies while lemonade was served.

President Mariellen Homfeld recognized Mrs. Christine Larson and Mrs. Kelly Hamby's daughter, Jessica, as guests, then conducted the business meeting.

It was announced that the group would sell Del Cero pecans again thi year so everyone was urged to get their orders in early.

Following the business meeting, Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent, presented the program eagerly anticipated by everyone: Christmas in September. She showed a variety of items that could easily be created for Christmas and included crafts and holiday foods for all ages.

Present for the meeting, in addition to the hostess and guests, were ning home at 3 p.m.

Several options suggested by association

Occasionally problems may arise between you and your doctor. You may feel your doctor does not give you enough information for you to make informed decisions about your care. You may experience difficulty in getting information from your medical records. Or, perhaps, you have been unable to reach your doctor at night or on weekends.

says, if you and your doctor encounter a problem, discuss it. Many problems are caused by incomplete communication resulting in misunderstandings. However, if a satisfactory solution cannot be reached, several options are open to

If your doctor is a member of TMA, a professional association of more than 27,000 Texas physicians, his or her conduct can be reviewed by the local county medical society, which is a component of TMA. These local medical societies have established "grievance" or "medication" committees to review complaints. Send your grievance in writing to your local county medical society. If you need help in locating the medical society nearest you, contact TMA at 1801 N. Lamar Blvd., Austin, Texas 78701, (512)477-6704. You can be assured that the county medical society will give your case a thorough and fair review. Disciplinary actions that medical societies can take include censure, probation, or expulsion from membership.

If your doctor is not a member of TMA, his or her professional conduct is not subject to review by a county medical society. In that case, or if you believe your doctor's conduct may be a violation of the law, you may want to contact the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners.

The board will determine if the complaint is within its jurisdiction as stated by law. Possible disciplinary actions that may be taken by the board include restriction, suspension, or cancellation of physician's license to practice medicine.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago I met a man at work. I was an exotic dancer and he was a steady customer. I had a rule against going out with men who came into the club, but I fell for "Ben" like a ton of lead and decided he was too good to pass up, so I made an exception and we have been living together ever since.

Ben and I became engaged in September of '86. We planned to marry in October. I knew that my job was putting a strain on our relationship so I quit. This was not an easy decision, Ann. I was making over $40,000 a year. Since then I've been bouncing from job to job, very unhappy because I really loved danc-

Here's my problem: Ben and I made an agreement. I would forget about going back to dancing and he would stay out of strip joints. I've learned from good authority that he has not kept his part of the bargain. I also discovered that he is involved in making copies of hard-core porno films and selling them to guys at work. When I confronted him with the receipts for the films, he promised to quit doing it, but I'm not sure I can trust him. My instincts tell me he's not honest about where he goes, who he sees, etc.

I grew up in a home split by divorce and promised myself I would never do that to my kids. All I've ever wanted out of life is a good fami-

I love Ben, but I've postponed the wedding and suggested counseling. Ben says he doesn't believe in counseling. Please help me, Ann. I'm desperate - Hung Up My Dancing Shoes in Conn.

DEAR CONN.,: Sounds as if Ben's character is seriously flawed, which is no surprise to you. Adults rarely change in this regard, but since the stakes are so high, maybe Ben can beat the odds.

His only hope is counseling. If he refuses to go, go alone and find the strength to give this guy the gate. Better now before you marry and have a family. The next letter may be of special interest to you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was 20 I married a man I was madly in love with. (Or so I thought.) After 18 years of pain I have decided to leave. I now realize I looked for the wrong things.

These are the questions a woman should ask herself before she mar-

HEALTH

AT HOME INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) Americans increasingly are taking con-trol of their own health needs, according to Boehringer Mannheim Diagnostics, a maker of self blood-glucose monitoring devices for people with diabetes.

It says people with chronic illnesses now have a wide range of home health testing products and services to choose from, and are using them.

In addition to the blood sugar monitor, there also are home health tests for asthma and for high blood pressure, among other diseases.

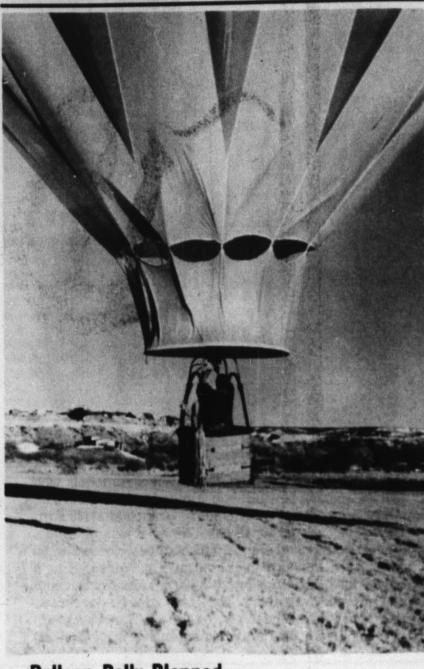

If I had asked myself these ques-tions before I rushed into marriage,I would have been a lot better off.

I hope you will print my letter for the benefit of the young women who think they are in love and are willing to overlook "a few things" because they are afraid that they can't live without the guy .-- G. in Charlotte, N.C.

DEAR G.: Well said - and your timing was perfect. Thanks for a letter that may help the woman who hung up her dancing shoes in Connecticut, as well as many others.

Hereford junior varsity is now 7-1 after defeating Dunbar, 15-2, 15-4. On Saturday, Hereford plays at Dumas. The junior varsity match is scheduled for 2 p.m., and the varsity match will begin at about 3 p.m. Next Tuesday, Hereford plays at home against Lubbock Estacado, with match times of 6:30 p.m. and

In Tuesday's varsity match, Hereford, after winning game one, 15-0, moved out to a 4-0 lead in game two. Dunbar came back to score 13 straight points.

Hereford then scored seven straight points to close the gap to 13-11, but Dunbar scored twice to win the game, 15-11.

Game three was tied at 1-1, 4-4 and 6-6 before Dunbar gained a 13-6 lead. The Hereford rally began with a kill by Wisty Mars for point No. 7.

Moments later, Hereford got the serve back on a kill by Kristi Wells. A service ace by Mars and a spike by Libby Kosub helped move Hereford to within three points, 13-10.

Hereford then scored a point, but Dunbar scored, and the visitors had a 14-11 lead. That set the stage for Cande Robbins' serving heroics, coupled with Kosub's match-winning Hereford Coach Brenda Reeh said, "Our serves definitely gained the momentum for us in the first game. During the second and third games we lost the edge at times but we were mentally tough enough to fight back.

"The first game was fun to win 15-0, but I think we learned the most from the third game when we had to stay calm and intense. I've never been as proud of these ladies as I am tonight," Coach Reeh continues.

"The junior varsity also played a momentum. Jessica Dearing had a great serving match, and the girls never quit," she adds.

Dearing had 19 points served for the HHS junior varsity team.

GIVE APPROVAL

It is admitted that some criticism is appropriate; however, it should be remembered that approval is often appropriate, too. It seems to be the 'approval' that is so often neglected. It is better for us, individually and collectively, that we be more concerned with sincere appreciation and approval of others and their useful accomplishments. When such is in order, and it often is in order, it must be expressed in the very best way. This is the kind of thought and action which will help to keep alive all of the good things which mean so much to all of us.

Why are we often hesitant in giving approval of others, reluctant to express our appreciation for them and the good things they do? It may be that we are afraid of tosing some status or prestige. We may feel that we will be building them up and helping them overshadow us. All of this may be true, however, much of the failure or neglect to express approval and appreciation is probably due to carelessness. Regardless of the reasons for this failure, improve-ment can be made, and should be made. We do not lose by expressing approval and appreciation, we gain. This action helps at least two people, the recipient of the kind words and theone who speaks them.

Giving approval and expressing appreciation are especially impor-tant in the more initmate relationships of life: the husband and wife, and the parents and children. Such actions are essential to creating and maintaining the family climate in which each individual can discover the greatest degree of selfrealization. It is in this climate of approval and mutual-appreciation that we develop the inner security, the good self-image, and the emotional stability so essential to effective liv-

In all areas of human associations, the actions of 'giving approval', when justified, and expressing appreciation, that is sincere, will be helpful contributions to all of us; and will be of untold value to the common

Farm and Ranch

Study shows mid-size family farm is dying

Recent research regarding the economics of farm size indicates why the mid-size family farm is dying.

And technology changes in the future will make it even more difficult for these farms to compete, according to an agricultural economist with the Texas Agricultural extension Service at Texas A&M Universi-

Dr. Ronald D. Knutson says that although the mid-size family farm has been the backbone of U.S. agriculture, it is bearing the brunt of current financial stress.

Knutson adds, "There is a consensus that agriculture is likely to be dominated by small farms that earn the majority of their income outside of farming and by large farms."

He says that the family farm survival problem has been referred to as "the disappearing middle."

Knutson defines a mid-size family farm as one that meets the following

-A majority of both the management and work must be done by the operator and his family.

-A close association must exist between the household and the business. -Managerial control must be exercised by the operator.

-The farm must obtain a majority of its income from farming.

Knutson says that research conducted during the past five years on this subject in the Agricultural and Food Policy Center at Texas A&M University sheds some light on why

"the mid-size family farm is disap-

He says, "There has been progressive expansion in the most efficient size of farms and, as a result, mid-size family farms have been losing, or have lost, their comparative advantage."

Knutson adds that a study to be released soon relating to the economies of size bears out the cost advantages for large farms in the nation's three largest crop producing states.

The study revealed that in California cotton production costs per pound decrease as size of farm increases to at least 8,000 acres.

In Texas and Kansas, the study also disclosed that wheat costs per bushel decline as production reaches the 4,000-acre mark.

Additionally, the research showed that in Nebraska, corn costs fall on farm sizes of up to 3,700 acres; while in Kansas, sorghum costs became he adds. progressively lower as production reached 4,000 acres.

California rice producers realized progressively lower costs as production reached or exceeded 6,000 acres. according to the study.

"The study documented in every instance that large farms do have lower unit costs of production," Knutson says.

He points out that large farms are able to buy farm inputs at lower prices and market their production at higher prices.

"If quantity discount purchases are not available from farm supply firms, large farms become classified as distributors and receive upto 20 percent discounts on inputs," Knutson explains.

Large farms also are able to sell their commodities at higher prices and are more effective at developing and implementing marketing plans,

Research also indicates that large farms may be more progressive in adopting new technologies than midsize family farms.

"The studies show a positive relationship between the adoption of management factors on dairy farms and size of farm. The result is that large dairy farms have a higher average output per cow," Knutson

"The research results should not be surprising. They are consistent with trends that have been taking place in agriculture toward fewerbut larger-farms," he adds.

Nevertheless, the "disappearing middle" is an important agricultural policy issue, Knutson says.

"This is particularly significant since future technological changes will make it even more difficult for mid-size family farms to compete,"

Americans using more processed potato products buying fresh potatoes to boil, bake or fry, Americans are turning more to potato products that have been frozen, dehydrated, canned or chipped, an Agriculture Department report says.

Moreover, according to the analysis, U.S. potato production is steadily shifting from the Northeast to irrigated areas of the Pacific Northwest.

The annual per capita consumption of potatoes remained about the same at slightly less than 122 pounds from 1970 to 1985. But fresh potato consumption dropped almost 20 percent during the period, from 61.4 pounds to 49.3 pounds.

The per capita consumption of processed potato products rose a corresponding 20 percent, from 60.4 pounds to 72.5 pounds.

The biggest gainer during the 1970-85 period was frozen potato products such as french fries. Overall, per capita use of such products rose 45 percent, from 28.9 pounds to 42.1

Eugene Jones, an assistant professor of agricultural economics at

"HEY GUYS WAIT FOR)

WASHINGTON (AP) - Instead of Ohio State University, said in his report for the department's Economic Research Service that rising consumer income affects the mix women in the U.S. labor force, rising of potato consumption.

According to his study, per capita in 1985. fresh potato use falls 4.2 percent for each 10 percent rise in income. By comparison, consumption of frozen potatoes climbs 8.1 percent for each 10 percent growth in per capita income. The consumption of chips and dehydrated potatoes is unaffected by income growth.

Jones said that frozen potato consumption rises 2.2 percent, or about one pound per person, with each 10 percent growth in fast-food sales, which also can mean declines in the use of fresh potatoes.

Fresh potatoes are bought more as a retail grocery item, while frozen potatoes are more often marketed through restaurants, particularly fast-food places. However, he said, the current trend toward baked potatoes at fast-food establishments could diminish the negative effects of eating out on fresh potato consumption."

ME ... DON'T LEAVE ME FERRET WITHOUT YOU.".

potatoes by American consumers has been the growing proportion of from 36 percent in 1970 to 43 percent

"Less time is available for in-home food preparation when women participate in the labor force," Jones said. "Therefore, pre-prepared potatoes are purchased rather than fresh. Fresh potato consumption declines 1.6 percent with each 10 percent growth of women in the labor

Jones said the growth of frozen potato products between 1970 and 1985 coincided with the expansion of potato production in the Pacific Northwest, with processors' preference for the Russet Burbank potato apparently an underlying factor.

Processors favor the Russet Burbank variety for freezing and dehydrating because of its high solids content and elongated shape, which makes it desirable for producing long french fries, he said.

The Pacific Northwest appears to have a production advantage in Russet Burbank production," Jones said. "The variety requires moderate amounts of water consistently applied throughout its growing season. The irrigated Pacific Northwest growing areas meet this need well."
