New I-9

Today is form deadline

A sweeping law designed to curb illegal immigration turned the nation's 7 million employers into government police today by requiring them to document the status of employees with a special form, and many businesses griped about the new responsibility.

Under a Sept. 1 deadline in the implementation of the Immigration Reform and Control Act, which makes it a crime to knowingly employ illegal aliens, employers generally must have the new I-9 forms completed for workers who were hired since the measure was signed into law last Nov. 6.

The forms must be signed by employers after they review supporting documents that attest to the employee's eligibility to work, such as birth certificates, passports and permanent-residence cards.

A random nationwide check of businesses by The Associated Press indicated a high degree of compliance with the deadline, with no evidence of mass confusion or widespread dismissals that some critics predicted several months ago.

But many employers expressed irritation with the Immigration and Naturalization Service because of the additional paperwork now required, while others said they have been forced to fire some workers who couldn't provide supporting documents with their I-9s.

"We're having to let people go because they can't comply with the letter of the law," said David Staton, owner of the Staton Hills winery outside Yakima, Wash. "You're continually having to turn over people who cannot up with documentation and who for every reasonable appearance are Americans."

In California, where half the nation's estimated 6 million illegal aliens are believed to reside, farmers criticized the INS for subjecting them to today's deadline.

Workers don't mind new laws

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Starting today, employers can be fined or even jailed for not verifying their employees' legal entitlement to work.

Employer sanctions are part of last year's Immigration Reform and Control Act, designed to discourage illegal immigration. Companies must verify that employees hired after Nov. 1, 1986, are U.S. citizens or have permission to work.

The new requirement means more paperwork, but some El Paso businesses say it has not been a hardship.

"Even before the law, we used to check for aliens," Tony Lama boot company spokesman Wes Schotten said Monday. "So we have to fill out their (the government's) forms and not ours. That's about the only difference."

He said the 800-employee company has filed all the necessary forms in anticipation of today's deadline.

The El Paso branch of Kelly Services Inc., the temporary employment company, has filed all the forms, too, branch manager Rosa Navarro said Monday. But Kelly had to hire two of its own temporaries to take care of the paperwork, and the project took two months, Ms. Navarro said.

Kelly has hired about 600 people since last November, and most had to be contacted later to verify they could work legally in the United States, Ms. Navarro said. The company is now checking documents as employees are hired.

Anywhere from six to a dozen other companies hired Kelly workers to deal with the paperwork, she said.

"The documentation that is required now — there is no doubt that person is a U.S. citizen or has permission to work in the United States," she said. "I think it will reduce the influx of illegal workers into this country."

Local figure down

State population up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rockwall County east of Dallas posted the largest percentage jump in population, and was among 10 Texas counties that registered a population growth of more than 40 percent since 1980, government figures show.

Preliminary Census Bureau estimates released Monday show that between April 1, 1980, and July 1, 1986, only 58 of the state's 254 counties lost population, reflecting a general growth trend during the first half of the decade.

Total population for the state increased by 17.3 percent during the period, climbing from 14.23 million to 16.68 million for an increase of about 2,456,000 residents.

In Rockwall County, the number of residents climbed from 14,528 to 23,200 for a 59.7 percent rise.

The most significant drop was reported in Loving County, along the

Pecos River in far West Texas, where the population figure fell from Deaf Smith and some other surrounding counties lost population over the past six years, according to the Census Bureau report.

The estimated 1986 populations for some area counties included:
Deaf Smith, 19,700, down 6.8 percent;
Castro, 10,300, down 2.6 percent;
Parmer, 10,900, down 1.5 percent;
Oldham, 2,500, up 8.4 percent;
Potter, 106,000, up 8.1 percent;
Randall, 88,700, up 18.1 percent.

91 people in 1980 to an estimated 52 in 1986, or a 42.9 percent decline.

In raw figures, Harris County gained 388,800, making it the third-largest gainer behind Los Angeles and Maricopa, Ariz. Dallas County ranked fifth nationally, with a 276,700 increase, and Tarrant was seventh with 240,700.

At number 10 was Bexar County with a 181,100 population increase, while Travis County was number 13 nationwide with a 131,400 boost.

Counties registering 40 percent or more population rises were Hood, up 58.1 percent to 28,000; Williamson, up 49.8 percent to 114,600; Hays, up 49.8 percent to 60,800; Fort Bend, up 48.7 percent to 194,700; Bastrop, up 47.5 percent to 36,500; Collin, up 45.7 percent to 210,000; Denton, up 42.7 percent to 204,300; Irion, up 42.2 percent to 27,200; and Grimes, up 41.2 percent to 19,200.

Hanford site gets third bad report

SEATTLE (AP) — The Hanford nuclear reservation would probably fail a key nuclear waste dump test to determine that a 3,300-foot shaft be leakproof, says a federal mining engineer.

"In terms of the repository, I don't think the technology exists to seal the shaft," said Ernie Corp of the Spokane office of the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

He commented in a telephone interview after the bureau's report was released Friday. Despite Corp's observations, however, the report avoids the key issue of whether the shaft could be sealed to isolating highly radioactive wastes for 1,000 years.

"I was told ... we do not address the question of a nuclear repository. We only address the feasibility of sinking the shaft," said Corp.

His remarks put a new twist on the bureau's report to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that it is "technically feasible" to sink the shaft to the 3,300-foot depth required for the proposed dump. The report was written by David Forshey, a top bureau official, on Aug. 19.

Forshey did not return phone calls

Friday. Corp drafted the letter and led the research.

Hanford, in southcentral Washington state, is one of three prospective sites for permanent storage of the nation's nuclear wastes from commercial nuclear power plants. The others are in Texas and Nevada.

Hanford would be disqualified as a site for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste dump if it were shown radioactivity would seep to the surface from the 3,300-foot level within 1,000 years.

Corp said drilling the shaft would break rock formations and probably let water carry radioactive contaminants to the surface.

"I think if anything is going to disqualify the site, that's it," said Corp. "As far as sinking the shaft, if you have enough money, you can sink a shaft anywhere."

Corp said officials had narrowed the question down to whether it was feasible to sink a shaft through the basalt rock at the site.

"They didn't ask us if the shaft could be sealed to satisfy the repository requirements," he said. "That question was never asked."

Iraq claims two gulf sinkings

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said today its warplanes struck two large naval vessels off the Iranian coast, bringing to seven the number of raids it has claimed on Iranian oil targets since breaking an informal cease-fire in the Persian Gulf.

State-run Baghdad Radio interrupted regular morning programming to broadcast a military communique which reported that a vessel was hit at midnight (4 p.m. EDT Monday) east of Iran's Kharg Island oil loading terminal on the northern edge of the gulf.

The second target was struck at 2:07 a.m. today (6:07 p.m. EDT Monday) off the Iranian coast, said the broadcast, monitored in Cyprus.

The attacks followed a raid by Iranian commandos on a Kuwaiti freighter in the gulf and the shelling of border towns in Iraq Monday. The ship attack had raised fears that Iran would target Kuwaiti vessels protected by U.S. Navy warships.

A fourth northbound convoy of reflagged Kuwaiti tankers anchored in the gulf off Bahrain Monday as U.S. helicopters looked for mines.

There was no immediate confirmation of the raids from Tehran or independent shipping sources.

Baghdad has said its new offensive is aimed at forcing Iran to accept a U.S.-backed cease-fire resolution approved by the U.N. Security Council on July 20.

On Monday, Iraq threatened to escalate attacks following two days of Iranian raids on Iraqi land targets. Iran shelled Basra in southern Iraq and other border towns Monday. Iraq's Baghdad Radio, monitored in Nicosia, said several civilians were killed or wounded.

"Iraq is capable of sending 100 fighter jets to raid Iranian towns several times a day if Iran decides to resume the war of the cities," a military spokesman said, according to Baghdad's official Iraq News Agency, monitored in Cyprus.

Iran and Iraq have periodically battered each other's cities with air, missile and artillery attacks.

Despite the new fighting, two Iranian leaders hinted Monday that their country had not completely rejected the U.N. cease-fire call.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, quoted Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani as saying Tehran was prepared for "all-out cooperation with the Security Council" if it condemned Iraq for starting the war.

"But if the Security Council submits to the United States and tries to pressure Iran, the Islamic Republic will resist with all its might," Rafsanjani was quoted as telling a news conference.

Mohammed Jawad Larjani, Iran's deputy foreign minister, also called on the United Nations to call Iraq the aggressor, saying that "such a step by the Security Council will pave the way for further cooperation between Iran and the United Nations."

Over weekend

Local police arrest seven

Seven arrests were made and numerous offences investigated, including indecent exposure, over the weekend according to Hereford Police Department officers.

Charges of indecent exposure were investigated on the 500 block of Westhaven when two juvenile girls reported to their parents that, as they were walking past a house, a man whistled at them and drew their attention to where he was standing in the doorway of his home. The girls said the man had no pants on, but the man denied the incident. The girls' parents declined to file charges.

A 26-year-old male was arrested for public intoxication and while the officer was booking into the county jail the man assaulted the officer. Charges of assault on a police officer are being filed against him in addition to PI.

A 25-year-old male was arrested for PI and stealing cigarettes. A 27-year-old was arrested for stealing a 12-pack of beer at a store located on East Hwy. 60. A man, 28, was arrested for driving while intoxicated and was also cited for having no liability insurance.

A 25-year-old and a 22-year-old were each arrested for second offenses of driving without liability insurance. The latter was also charged with driving without a license.

A 24-year-old man was arrested for driving while his license was suspended and cited for unsafe backing.

A wife was assaulted by her husband on Star Street. Charges are to be filed against the husband for Class A assault.

Theft and assault with a motor vehicle occurred at the Lo-Mart store when suspects stole some cigarettes from the store, then almost ran over the store manager with their vehicle in an attempt to get away.

A flagman was almost run over by a man, 19, driving a pickup. The incident occurred at the railroad crossing at Progressive and East Hwy. 60. No charges were filed.

Reckless conduct charges are being filed against several juveniles for pointing a Daisy Model 880 air gun at some other juveniles and threatening to shoot them.

A male suspect made a threat, over the telephone, to do bodily harm to another person. A man and woman got into an argument in the 200 block of Ave. H. The male suspect broke the woman's jam box but no charges are to be filed.

Charges are being filed against a man for using profanity to a police officer.

A black-and-white TV, Panasonic VCR, green tool box filled with tools, two cassette cases with about 65 tapes in them and a vibrator were stolen from a residence in the 700 block of Ave. G.

A stereo valued at $818 was taken from a home in the 200 block of Hereford Calle, $50 was taken from a residence located in the 900 block of Lee, and a $400 bicycle was taken from a residence located in the 200 block of Fir.

A jam box and change from Coke and candy machines was taken in the burglary of a business located on South Progressive Road. Two tires were stolen out of a pickup bed while it was parked in the parking lot of Deaf Smith General Hospital. A car was burglarized while it was parked in the 100 block of East Sixth, and a pickup was damaged while it was parked at the Hereford High School.

A purse was stolen out of a shopping cart at Save-N-Gain, a bottle of liquor was taken from The Store and a lawn mower was taken from the 400 block of Thirteenth.

Nothing has been reported missing in an attempted burglary in the 1300 block of West U.S. 60.

Unauthorized use of a motor vehicle was reported in the 300 block of East Fifth. The vehicle is a 1982 Chevrolet 3/4-ton blue over gray pickup valued at $7,500 and has not been located. The license plate is TN 2121.

No charges are expected to be filed in a second incident of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle which occurred in the 400 block of Ave. D.

Other offenses reported included citations for allowing a dog to run at large given to two persons living in the 600 block of Ave. G, damage to several mailboxes in the 100 block of Ironwood, trespass in the 900 block of McKinley, criminal trespass in the 500 block of West Third and a male subject who kept trying to start a fight with another man who lives in the area of the 400 block of Whittier.

Football contest begins

Football gets underway this week with a full slate of games on the high school and college level, and the popular Hereford Brand Football contest makes its debut in today's issue.

Sponsored by local merchants and business institutions, the contest offers weekly prizes of $25, $15 and $10 in Hereford Bucks to entrants who correctly pick the most winners from 25 games. In addition, weekly winners will vie for grand prizes of $100, $50 and $15 in Hereford Bucks at the end of the season.

Look for the contest in today's paper; read the easy rules and get your completed entries to The Brand office by 5 p.m. on Friday. Entrants must use the official form in the newspaper (no copies). Only one entry is allowed for each person, and entrants must be 8 years of age or be eligible.

The winning entrants will be listed on each Tuesday's contest page. Winners must pick up their awards at The Brand office within a week, or the awards will be forfeited.

Join in the fun! Enter each week for the chance at some valuable Hereford Bucks, spendable anywhere in Hereford.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

It is finally here. Football season begins Friday. It's the real thing. No coaches and the rest of the team out in the middle of the field (excepting Eric Roanhaus when we go to Clovis next week, from what I hear). No going back to the 20 if you don't make a first down, or do-overs or get-down-and-give-me-10-quick-push-ups. It's the real football season.

The real football season brings back memories of past years and the Texas football legends come back to the front of our thoughts.

I'm sure there are some legendary football heroes from Hereford's past. I grew up in Dimmitt hearing about a legend—Junior Coffey.

Junior was one of the first blacks to play at the "regular" high school anywhere in Texas. Junior was the first and second black to ever play in the State UIL Basketball Tournament. He was the first black to play in the state tourney his junior year, and he was still the only black to play at state when Dimmitt returned his senior year.

Junior's main sport, though, was football. He was good enough to have been drafted by Vince Lombardi and the Green Bay Packers. He would have played a while longer, but the Dimmitt runner was displaced by a Stinnett runner who was making a few more dollars—Donny Anderson. Junior then played a couple of seasons with the Atlanta Falcons before retiring to Washington, where he's a horse trainer.

Junior had only been gone from Dimmitt for five years when I saw my first Dimmitt game, and there was a running back named Roy Thomas who showed a few flashes of brilliance.

"He keeps on, he'll be another Junior Coffey," said a Dimmitt football fan.

I didn't know Junior Coffey from beans, and asked the old fan about him.

"He was good enough to carry 12 men across the goal line for a touchdown once," the fan said.

I might have been young, but I knew better than that. I confidently told the old man a football team only had 11 players.

"Yes," he said, "but the other team was called for having 12 men on the field. He drug 'em all across."

There are thousands of legends about King Football in Texas. There were legendary battles between Tulia and Berger and Tulia and Dumas and Dumas and Berger back in the 60s, district games that actually determined state championships.

Some of the best games weren't state championship battles.

One that comes to mind was a state semifinal between Linus Baer and Warren McVea. Sure, there were two schools involved, but the game was really between them. McVea outscored Baer six touchdowns to five and his school, San Antonio Brackenridge, won.

Any game that Ken Hall, the Sugarland Express, played in was legendary. And he never won a state football championship.

Ken Hall was something special, although he never was a star in college or pro football.

Ken Hall played for Sugarland High School, a Class B school back then, from 1950 to 1953.

Over three decades later, Ken Hall still dominates the national high school record book.

He scored 899 points in three-plus years—over 200 more than anyone else. He scored 395 points in one season, $1 more than the late David Overstreet, who is second.

In 1953, he scored 32.9 points per game. He had 57 touchdowns in one season, 127 for his career (29 more than anyone else).

Over his career, he picked up over 14,000 total yards in offense—over 3,000 more than anyone else. One season, his total offensive contribution was 5,146 yards—over 1,000 more than anyone else.

In 1953, he averaged 428.8 yards per game—139 more yards per game than anyone else ever averaged.

Ken Hall is also first, second and third in the all-time records in a season's per game rushing average. That's right—everyone else is at least fourth.

He had 38 100-yard games in his career, tying him for first place with some other fair running backs—Steve Worster, of Bridge City, and Billy Sims of Hooks.

And those are just the ones he has the No. 1 spot in the record book for. He's also on the all-time list for most extra points in a career.

And he never won a football state championship. Class B played only to a regional title, but Sugarland won a couple of those behind the Sugarland Express.

bb

Maybe my most favorite legend is about a state title game—The Gravitts of Denver City vs. the Koys of Bellville.

Seems that during the week before the 1960 title game, some Denver City people went to Bellville to wager some of their oil money that DC would beat Bellville by more than three touchdowns.

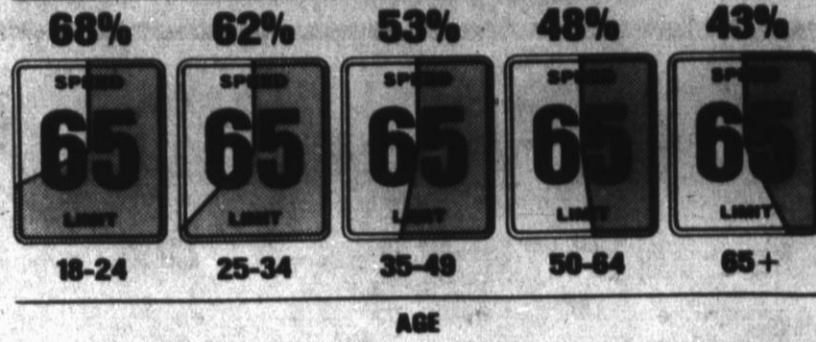

Bellville backers knew a good bet when they saw it.

Bellville lost—by 16 points. No one in Bellville was too sad about it, though. The story goes that they were actually dancing in the middle of the field after the game, on their way across to collect a few Denver City oil patch dollars.

For Papal communion

Craftsmen making vessels

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — The designers of the communion vessels for Pope John Paul II's upcoming Mass say nothing else they've worked on compares to the significance of this endeavor.

"No project is of this importance or prestige," said Norman Taylor, a designer of vessels the pope will use at his Mass in San Antonio Sept. 13.

"I think he (the pope) is a very down-to-earth individual who will appreciate the simplicity of these vessels," James Avery said of the chalice and other communion implements created by his company.

The vessels "are very simple, but strong," Avery said, adding those qualities are the same ones conveyed by the pontiff.

The chalice, the ciborium, which holds the communion wafers; the flagon, which holds the wine; and the paten, a plate from which bread is offered during Mass, were commissioned by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Antonio.

Crafted from silver and gold, the vessels also include Hill Country limestone from the Guadalupe River near Kerrville.

"We wanted to use native craftsmen and native elements to create these special pieces," the Rev. Greg Neveld said in July when announcing the project. "Each place he (the pope) visits in America will give him a different flavor of our country. We wanted the things he used here to reflect Texas and the Southwest."

Avery, known for Christian-oriented jewelry designs, was approached by Neveld on behalf of the archdiocese. Two of Avery's senior designers, Dennis Barecky and Taylor, shepherded the project.

Barecky, who did the major design work, said use of four interwoven cords carved into the limestone represents the four corners of the Earth and Christianity being carried to them.

The limestone rings the upper part of the stem of the chalice and is repeated in other parts of the ciborium and flagon.

"It's continuous. There is no beginning, no end. It is a symbol of God's oneness," Avery said of the pattern. "We wanted them to be significant in scale, but not to the point they're cumbersome."

The chalice stands 9 1/2 inches tall; the flagon, 9 1/2 inches; and the ciborium, 6 1/2 inches.

The paten is 8 inches in diameter to hold the 5-inch diameter host the pope will use during the Mass, which is expected to draw at least 500,000 people.

North wanted Perot's money for Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan by Lt. Col. Oliver North to channel to the Nicaraguan Contras as much as $2 million raised by Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot to free hostages later fell through, newly declassified testimony showed.

Marine Lt. Col. Robert Earl, who was North's deputy on the National Security Council staff, told Iran-Contra committee investigators earlier this summer that he learned about the scheme in May 1986.

Earl said he discovered the plan only a week or two before Perot dispatched a courier to the Mediterranean with money to buy the freedom of U.S. hostages in Beirut. But the plan failed and Earl said Perot's money never was diverted to the Central American rebels.

Earl told the investigators that North, the fired White House aide at

For Chief Justice

Republicans tout names

AUSTIN (AP) — Two GOP state lawmakers and former San Antonio Judge Roy Barrera, who ran for attorney general last year, are among Republicans reportedly under consideration as potential appointees for chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court.

State GOP Chairman George Strake said a number of Republican judges around the state also are possibilities for replacing Democratic Chief Justice John Hill, who announced this week that he will step down Jan. 1.

Gov. Bill Clements will make the appointment, but he was vacationing in Colorado and not available for comment Friday.

Reggie Bashur, Clements' press secretary, said the governor would consider many names.

"The governor is going to have a very comprehensive review. He's going to have an inclusive, as opposed to an exclusive, list. It's going to be a long list," Bashur said.

The Houston Post reported Friday that Rep. Mike Toomey, R-Houston, the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, was on the list of potential replacements for Hill.

The Houston Chronicle and Austin American-Statesman said Rep. Patricia Hill, R-Dallas, was another lawmaker on the list.

The Austin newspaper quoted Strake as saying the list of potential nominees also includes District Judge Barbara Culver of Midland, District Judge Oliver Kitzman of Hempstead, San Antonio district judges David Peoples and Tom Rickoff, and former San Antonio appellate judge John Clark.

Others mentioned by the GOP chairman included District Judge Tom Phillips of Houston, District Judge David West of Pasadena, and Dallas appellate judges Linda Thomas and Nathan Hecht.

"I don't know which of these will even be considered, but we have at this time, unlike previous times, a stable of candidates that would make good Supreme Court justices," Strake said.

Bashur said the governor believes strongly that the state's judicial system needs reform.

The outgoing chief justice has unsuccessfully urged that judges be appointed in a merit-selection system rather than partisan elections. And earlier this year, in an unprecedented action, the State Commission on Judicial Conduct publicly disciplined two Supreme Court justices — C.L. Ray and William Kilgarlin — for alleged improprieties.

EMPLOYERS

Growers of perishable crops, who historically have relied on illegal Mexican immigrants for harvesting, contend they are exempted by another provision of the law that defers sanctions against them until December 1988.

Michael Henry, spokesman for the California Farm Bureau in Sacramento, said his group had encouraged members to meet the deadline, but added that if the INS attempted to fine growers who did not comply, the group was prepared to take legal action.

At the Los Angeles-based Merchants & Manufacturers Association, which represents 3,300 California companies, spokesman Louis Custrini said many employers fear they won't be able to find replacements for undocumented workers who must be let go.

"We have received calls from a number of employers, especially in labor-intensive industries, who say the immigration law is creating a vacuum that is hard to fill," he said.

Many employers who were queried said their main objection to the new law was the additional bureaucratic burden of completing the I-9, a one-page form that must be made available to INS inspectors.

"It is a lot of extra paperwork we're not too pleased with, but it's something we're able to handle," said John Pennington, spokesman for Genesco Inc., a Nashville, Tenn.-based maker and market of footwear and men's apparel with 7,000 employees.

"It will be a burden," said Laura Barbara, spokeswoman for Floating Point Systems Inc., a computer software maker based in Beaverton, Ore., that employs 800 people. "It has complicated administrative procedures and caused an inconvenience to the applicant and us."

Maine blueberry processor Jasper Wyman & Son Co. was forced to copy 1,500 I-9s at its own expense because the INS provided only a few copies.

In Connecticut, Meridien Dress Co. President Mike Michael said he had not received any I-9 forms from the INS and was meeting with his accountant for a primer on how the law works.

Others complained about the difficulty in getting employees to complete the form, partly because of misconceptions that only Hispanics and other ethnic minorities are subject to the new law.

At the Kelly Services Inc. temporary employment agency office in El Paso, Texas, branch manager Rosa Navarro said it took two mon-

EMPLOYEES

Companies with high turnover, such as Kelly, or with a wide geographical spread, such as El Paso Natural Gas Co., have had at least minor problems complying.

The gas company had to round up its independent contractors, who work in such places as Bloomfield, N.M., and Casa Grande, Ariz., said John McFall, director of public relations.

The employees have to take time off at company expense to go to a district office and verify their work eligibility.

But McFall said getting documentation for independent contractors has been a minor problem, and the only one.

"By and large, it's going very smoothly," he said, adding that the 3,300-employee company has hired few people in the last 10 months.

The sanctions have been particularly controversial in El Paso, which is 80 percent Hispanic and depends heavily on trade with Mexico.

Schotten said he doubted whether the forms and employee sanctions will curb illegal immigration.

"I'm not sure anything will help until the Mexican economy strengthens," he said.

ths to document the 600 people hired after the law was signed.

"We've had people who've gotten very upset," she said. "We had one lady who looks Anglo and she was pretty upset we had to ask for documentation."

At Michael's Restaurant in Des Moines, Iowa, owner John Huss said he had just finished the documentation process, which he described as painful and frustrating.

"I have some of my own children working here and they say 'Dad, you know I was born here. Why do I have to do this?'" he said. "And then I don't have to fill one out. So if I was an illegal, I guess they wouldn't know."

Fines for failure to have I-9s on file after Tuesday can range from $100 to $1,000. But in Washington, INS spokesman Verne Jervis said it was unlikely that inspectors would cite errant employers for paperwork violations, unless it was clear they were hiring illegal aliens.

"We've soft-pedaled this law," he said. "We've conducted an extensive information campaign. We're not threatening people and waving a big stick in their face, and we've gotten cooperation. We see good-faith efforts to comply with the law, and that's really what we're after."

Nevertheless, civil-rights groups have sharply rebuked the INS for what they call the agency's failure to adequately explain how the law works, particularly its amnesty provisions for illegal aliens who have worked in the country since 1980.

"The government has failed miserably to publicize anything except in vague terms the sanctions against employers," said Lucas Gutentag, national litigation coordinator of the Immigration and Aliens' Rights Task Force, a part of the American Civil Liberties Union.

"As a result, there's enormous confusion among employers," he said.

Beatlemania shown in Dallas exhibit

By MICHELLE LOCKE Associated Press

DALLAS (AP) — Beatle City, an exhibit charting the rise and fall of the Fab Four, is playing exclusively in Texas and organizers say they hope the new Liverpool import will score a hit.

Three days after the opening, about 3,000 people had visited. Unlike the days of screaming Beatlemania, a mellow, positively reverent mood reigned as visitors walked past the relics of John, Paul, George and Ringo.

Wrapped in a progression of Beatle hits, the exhibit begins at the group's adolescent stages — complete with a reproduction of John Lennon's childhood living room.

Photographs, music and a few displays chronicle the group's progress, from their fresh-faced start in Liverpool nightclubs to the heady days at the top of the pop charts, the breakup and, finally, John Lennon's death in 1980.

The presentation is worth the pricey $6 ticket, visitors said. "We're major Beatles fans," said

Paul Dunklee, 16, of Plano. "It's real interesting. We haven't ever seen the pictures (that are) here."

The Liverpool exhibit opened in Dallas' refurbished West End warehouse district Aug. 7 and runs through January 1988 while new quarters are under construction in England.

Beatle City is being sponsored by Southfork Ranch, the home of CBS-TV's "Dallas" series, said Southfork manager Ken Brixey.

He said organizers hope up to 120,000 people will visit the exhibit. Average daily attendance after two weeks was about 1,200 on weekends and 750 during the week.

The exhibit is more than a string of souvenirs, said Mike Byrne, general manager.

"It's about four guys who changed the attitude of the world, wrote more songs than anyone else has in the last 25 years and were cultural innovators as well," said Byrne, 44.

"The idea was to give a full experience of the Beatles' rise and fall, I suppose, from the early days of Liverpool right into the breakup," said Byrne, who grew up in Liverpool and was acquainted with Ringo Starr and George Harrison.

For 21-year-old Steve White of Arlington the exhibit was a success.

"It's incredible. I'm just a really big Beatles fan. This is the third time I've been here," he said. Although White was too young to experience the group in their heyday, he said that doesn't matter.

"That's what I find so incredible about their music. I feel like I should be 30 or 33 years old and I should have seen them in concert as much as I love them," White said.

Paul Frantz, 36, does remember when the Beatles were introduced to America, and recalls watching their debut on "The Ed Sullivan Show."

"I was 14. I sat there with my parents shaking their heads," Frantz said. "Everybody has a different memory. The pictures really bring it back."

Beatle City hasn't been without controversy.

The Dallas Times Herald panned the exhibit as "an expensive, kitschy jaunt."

"They came on the wrong day," Byrne said.

He said some criticisms — that exhibits aren't clearly marked or that replicas aren't set apart from genuine artifacts — can be blamed on the exhibit not being fully finished.

But he made no apologies for mixing in objects of the right time period with actual leftovers from the group.

"I think it makes sense, or it shouldn't offend anyone, to bring a guitar in which is a replica of what Paul used, particularly if it is actually from the 1960s as well," he said. "We're not trying to kid anyone."

It takes about 45 minutes to stroll through the exhibit. Photographs are key reference points.

There are young Beatles, Beatles in black leather, Beatles beginning to comb their hair forward rebelliously, and Beatles in suits, after manager Brian Epstein began crafting their image.

Some of the exhibits include guitars used by the group, autographed programs from the 1963 royal performance and a life-size model of Lennon clothed in one of his suits.

The idea is to unfold the Beatles' rise as influences in the rock music world, Byrne said.

"(They were) the biggest influence in the entertainment business for 25 years (with) the adulation of the whole world and the attention. It's a wonder they didn't all go mad, really," he said.

"I want to see it continue as a tribute to the Beatles and for the fans, you know, really, it's so that the fans have always got somewhere to come and enjoy those years."

Accent on Health

Adults Need Vaccines, Too

Immunizations and periodic "booster shots" are for all ages. They protect not only against common "childhood" illnesses, but also against some diseases and infections which can strike adults more severely than they do kids.

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) warns that adults should be as careful in keeping their own immunizations current as they are with their children's.

Robert D. Crider, director of the TDH Immunizations Division, said, "Modern vaccines are our main protection against serious epidemics as the population becomes more concentrated."

"Only a few decades ago," Crider said, "a few diseases took thousands of lives yearly in the United States. For example, only 50 years ago (1937), diphtheria infected more than 2,200 Texans, killing 242 victims. Today, with tetanus-diphtheria inoculations started in childhood and boosters administered every 10 years, both tetanus and diphtheria can be avoided. Only unvaccinated persons are likely to suffer either of these potentially fatal diseases," Crider explained.

Diphtheria usually spreads when unimmunized persons breathe droplets exhaled by an infected person who coughs or sneezes. Symptoms are inflammation of the nose, throat, and windpipe. One in 10 victims dies as a gray coating in the throat covers the windpipe, or toxins produced by the virus damage the heart muscle.

Tetanus (lockjaw) occurs when tetanus bacteria from the soil or other source enter a break in the skin. Cuts, burns, punctures, even tiny scratches can become infected with tetanus. The infection leads to progressively severe muscle spasms and in 50 percent of the cases, death. Adults often overlook having their tetanus booster renewed every ten years.

Because influenza (flu) is almost a yearly occurrence at home or at the office, its seriousness is sometimes underestimated. Airborne strains of the flu virus change frequently, sometimes causing only mild symptoms, but complications may incapacitate or kill the victims. Each major change in the virus calls for re-immunization of the persons most at risk of severe illness. Persons 65 and older, and persons with chronic respiratory, heart, or immune system illnesses are urged to renew their flu vaccinations annually.

"Some persons fail to get their flu shots for fear of side effects," Crider said, "and some believe untrue stories of persons contracting the flu from the vaccine. Certainly there are a few people who should avoid or delay flu shots—those with severe allergic reactions to eggs, those with certain paralytic disorders, and persons ill with fever at the time of their appointments," he said.

Crider added, "These few people should seek their doctor's advice, but people should have no fear of illness from the vaccination. They should feel relieved of a potentially serious danger. They should bear in mind that worldwide flu epidemics before we had vaccines were catastrophic. In the 1918 outbreak, more than 21 million people died," he said.

Rubella (German measles) is usually mild in adults, but can be particularly harmful to unborn children. The child of a woman who contracts rubella in the first three months of pregnancy can have serious birth defects. Women of childbearing age who are vaccinated against rubella should not become pregnant until three months after receiving the vaccine.

Crider advised anyone who was not vaccinated with measles (rubeola) live virus vaccine at 15 months old or older, or who has not been diagnosed as having had the disease, to ask a doctor for the vaccine.

Until 1976, measles vaccine was routinely given to one-year-olds, but research has shown that children given the vaccine before their fifteenth month may not have developed full immunity. As a result, some of those children, now college age, have become vulnerable to measles. Therefore children immunized before 1976 may need to be re-immunized.

"Cases either of measles or mumps can be extremely harmful to persons after childhood. Either can be deadly, or disabling to adults," Crider said. He added that mumps is particularly dangerous to adolescent and adult males, since it can cause sterility.

Computerized placement testing now available

Amarillo College Testing Services Coordinator/Counselor Craig Barnard has recently developed a system of computerized placement testing for the college that is not available at any other institution in the state of Texas.

The program is entitled Masterscan and enables academic and counseling advisers to access student records and test scores in a matter of seconds on any HP-compatible computer on the AC campus. This capability is especially important for advisers needing scores in hand when dealing with new students and individuals walking on campus for the first time.

Previously, 15 to 20 people were routinely required to score student placement tests. With the new Masterscan Program, tests are scored in a matter of minutes by as few as two or three individuals.

Another result of Masterscan is the availability of immediate test result feedback for students using the service. Tests currently logged into the Masterscan system include the Nelson Denny Reading Test, AC's Language Skills Assessment Test and Math Skills Assessment Test, both of these latter instruments having been developed by Amarillo College.

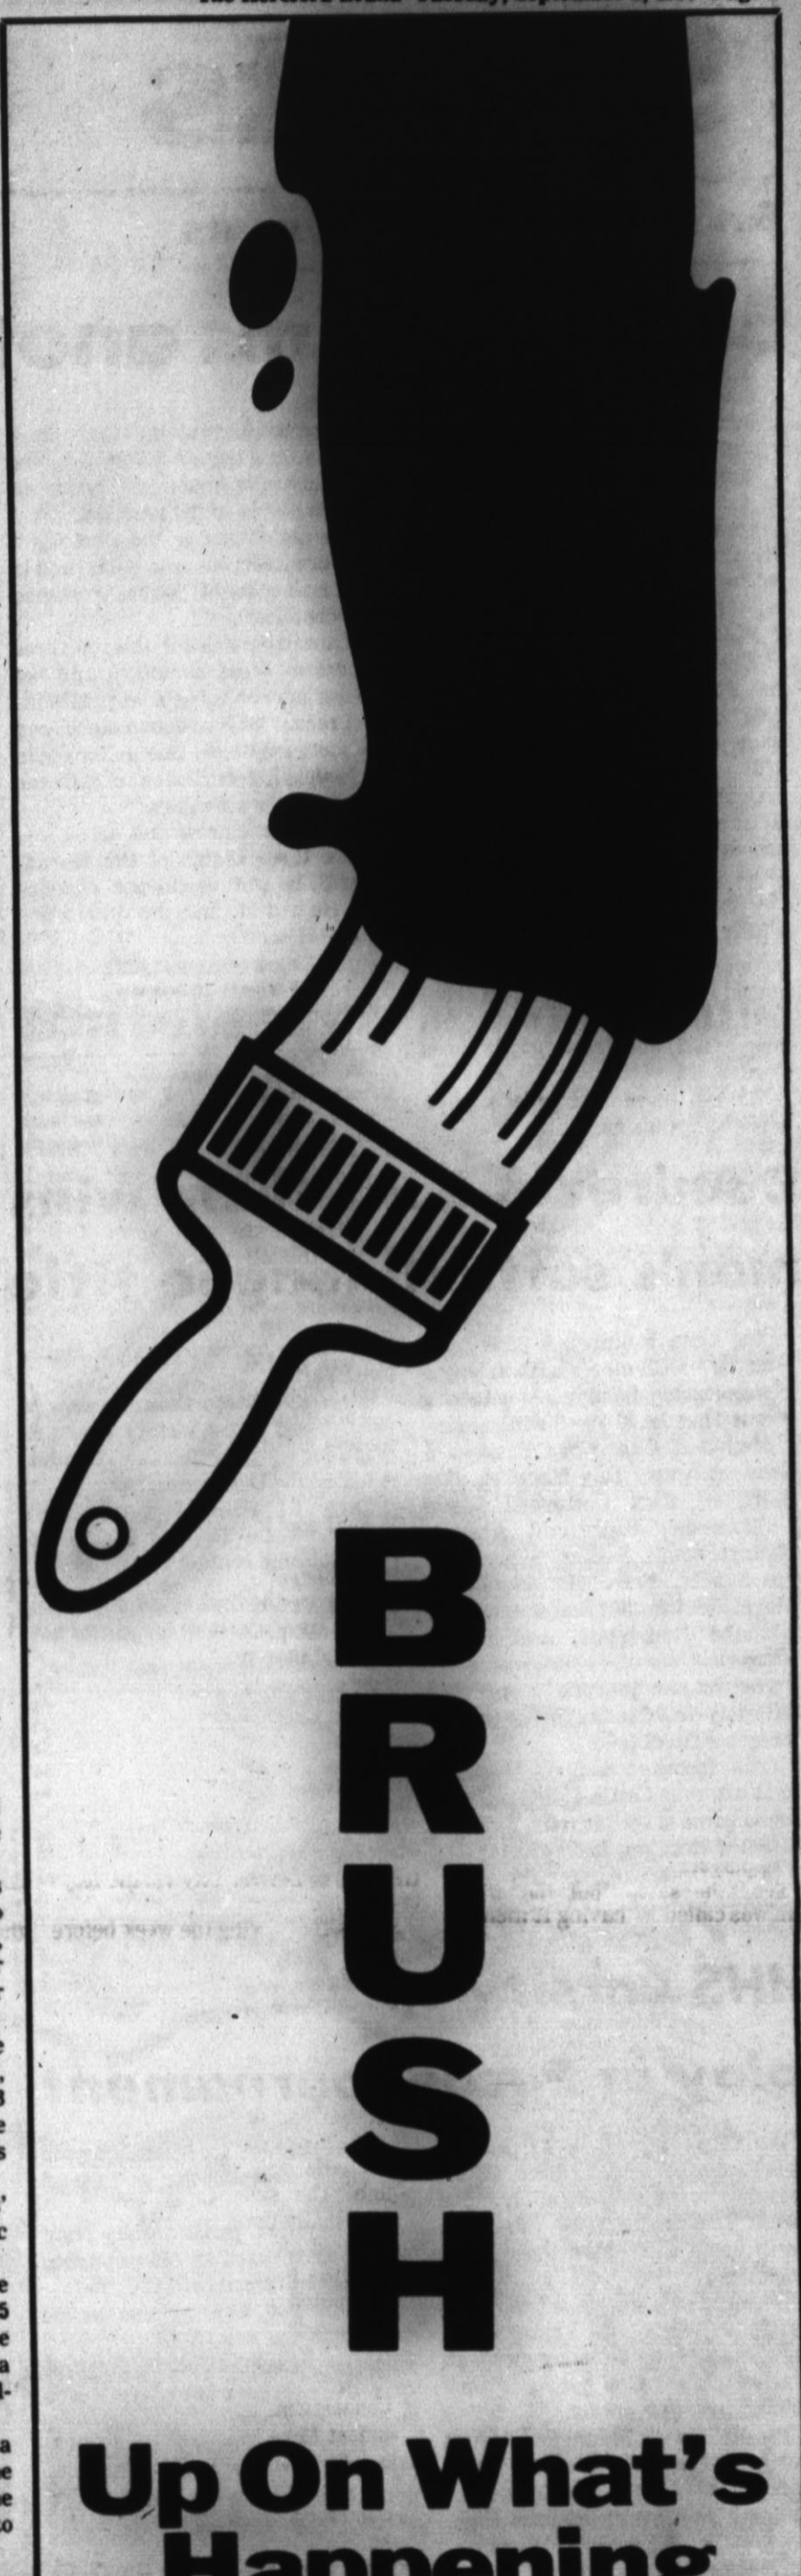

Test results and recommendations are given to individual students and are also sent to their academic advisers at the completion of each testing session. The Masterscan Program makes student placement test record files obsolete since all data is stored on computer and accessed simply and quickly with the insert of a student social security number.

Other offerings available through Amarillo College Testing Services include most academic make-up testing for the college. Regularly scheduled chemistry testing and that for Developmental Writing classes on the college campus are currently given through Testing Services.

As of Fall 1987, AC faculty members will have the ability to log all academic tests on microcomputer with students again receiving virtually instantaneous feedback on their test performance. Most Amarillo College students work at least parttime and need test scheduling options to ease their education efforts, according to Barnard. College Credit by Examination (CLEP), High School Equivalency (GED), and SAT/ACT testing is also offered by AC Testing Services.

Another service available through Amarillo College Testing Services is item analysis where faculty members can have their academic tests programmed into the computer for analysis to determine good, poor, and re-do questions.

Seventh title in nine years

Salinas claims another city golf crown

James Salinas won his seventh Hereford city men's golf tournament in nine years with a two-round score of 133.

Salinas shot a 69 on Sunday in the final round. That round was postponed from Sunday, Aug. 23 because of rain. In round one on Saturday, Aug. 22, Salinas shot a 64.

This was Salinas' third consecutive city title. In addition to 1985, 1986 and 1987, his other city championships were achieved in 1979, 1981, 1982 and 1983.

Bobby Baker and Mike Fields finished in a tie for second place with scores of 149. Both had first-round scores of 76 and second-round scores of 73.

In the net score standings for the championship flight, Paul Hubbard placed first with a tournament score of 131. Tommy Weaver finished second at 133, and Jesse Grijalva was third at 134.

The net score is a golfer's gross score minus his handicap.

In other flights, the first place gross scores were a 157 by Dwayne Cassels in the first flight, and a 168 by Ken Helms in the second flight.

The net winner in the first flight was Jerry Stevens with a 132, and in the second flight, Dave Workman was first with a 131.

Gift certificates for the top three golfers in gross standings and net standings in each flight were $150 for first place, $80 for second place, and $60 for third place. One golfer could not win gift certificates in both the gross and net standings.

Here are the gross and net scores for all three flights of the tournament. The gift certificate winners are listed first, and the others are listed separate.

HHS varsity spikers play in Pecos tournament

Hereford High School's varsity volleyball team won three of six games in pool play last Friday in the Pecos Tournament, just missing a berth in an eight-team tournament on Saturday.

Hereford was one game behind the first place team after Friday's pool play. In each pool of the tournament, a team played two games against each of the other teams.

The HHS varsity team lost its first two games of the tournament, 15-11 and 15-6 to Snyder. Hereford then split two games with Midland High, winning the first game 15-13 and losing the second game 15-7.

Against Imperial, Hereford won twice, by scores of 15-7 and 15-8.

Hereford High School Coach Brenda Reeh said, "My main concern is the mental endurance that it's taking us. That's going to come from more playing. In each match they are learning how tough it is to stay mentally alert."

Last Thursday, the HHS varsity and junior varsity played at Brownfield. The varsity won its first game, 15-11, but lost the next two games and the match, 15-13, 15-7.

The loss dropped Hereford's season record to 1-4.

"Libby Kosub had an excellent offensive match. She and Cande Robbins blocked well together. Libby hit the ball consistently for us," Coach Reeh said.

The Hereford junior varsity team stayed undefeated in four matches by defeating Brownfield 15-7, 15-1.

In game two, Krystal Sims served 15 points in a row. That prompted Reeh to declare, "This is the first time I've ever seen one player serve 15 points in a row."

Hereford's volleyball teams play at Clovis tonight. The junior varsity game is scheduled at 6 p.m. and the varsity game at 7 p.m.

City Golf Tourney Winners

James Salinas, left, won the Hereford city men's golf tournament Sunday with a two-round score of 133. It was the seventh city championship in nine years for Salinas. Paul Hubbard, right, placed first in the net standings in which a golfer's handicap is subtracted from his gross score. Hubbard's net score was 133.

Rogers Hornsby and Ted Williams each won two batting triple crowns, leading their leagues in batting average, home runs and runs-batted-in for a single season.

HHS football pep rally set Thursday

A Hereford High School football "Kickoff Party" has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Whiteface Stadium.

The event is a pep rally for the beginning of the 1987 football season and for the Andrews game. Hereford plays at Andrews at 7:30 p.m. Friday in a non-district game.

The pep rally will begin at 7:30 p.m., after the sophomore football game between Hereford and Canyon has ended. That game is scheduled for a 4:30 p.m. starting time.

POSITIVE THINKING
PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — You have to accentuate the positive if you want to be a great golf professional. Paul Azinger, a member of the PGA Tour, has reached that conclusion. "Guys like Jack Nicklaus, Greg Norman, Ray Floyd and Tom Watson achieved greatness because they focused on the positive things and never considered anything negative," he said. Azinger knows he's not yet a great, although he has hopes. "I'm not sure what it takes because I haven't made it," he said. "But I have noticed that the guys who are considered great always have an intense look. They concentrate 100 percent of the time."

Convenience Vs. Quality

Time has become more and more important to today's consumers. With many women now embarking on dual careers, quality of family and personal time is increasingly difficult to manage.

Just because you're busy doesn't mean you can't serve the best. Convenience doesn't have to mean compromise. Arrowhead Mills offers you a wide variety of quick fixing quality mixes, so you can spend your time where it matters most.

Miniskirts expected to cause problems

HOUSTON (AP) — The miniskirt is back and school dress codes are being revised to cut down on thigh baring, Houston area school officials say.

The latest fashion rage will mean the return of the tape measure to allow school officials to set standards for student decency, administrators say.

School officials are having to take a second look at dress codes to figure out if and when miniskirts fit into the

DENTIST PHOBIA

NEW YORK (AP) — Patients are still as fearful of the dentist as ever, according to Health Magazine.

Research indicates that as many as 12 million Americans qualify as dental phobics — people whose fear of dentistry is so intense they avoid seeing a dentist altogether. Studies also show the biggest fear a patient has is the injection that renders the actual treatment painless.

All this fear is in spite of recent attempts by dentists to control anxiety. One in five dentists is trained in hypnosis. Many use movies or headphones to distract their patients.

range of what is called "suitable school attire."

When miniskirts were at their peak of popularity, most Houston-area schools had strict rules about how short a skirt could be.

A standard of three inches above the knee was common, and teachers were as handy with a tape measure as they were with a piece of chalk.

In those days, it wasn't at all unusual to see girl students kneeling on the floor in the hallway as a teacher or principal measured a questionable skirt.

Tina Pappas, fashion director for Foley's, a major department store, says miniskirt mania is being reborn.

"Today it's just starting. This just happened. I think that in another year, short skirts will be the norm for teens," she said.

Many school districts are taking a more tolerant approach this time around. Decency is the main standard.

"If she can bend over and not expose anything, that would be considered within the proper limits," said Sandra Walker, secretary to the superintendent of the Cypress-Fairbanks Independent School District.

Some districts, including the Houston Independent School District, are letting principals decide what's decent and what's not.

Betty Minzenmayer, assistant superintendent of campus management at HISD, looked up from her desk this week to see the bare, miniskirted legs of a young, female student.

"I looked and thought 'Oh, here we come, miniskirts again,'" she said.

Minzenmayer was dean of girls at Sam Houston High School when miniskirts first were fashionable. The rule at Sam Houston was that when a girl knelt on the floor, her skirt had to reach the ground.

There were times, she said, when parents were called to bring a more acceptable dress and some student were, as a last resort, sent home.

"In the 1980s, I think we've gotten our minds more geared to instruction than to a particular dress code," she said. "We just have more things to worry about now, as long as the dress does not expose the body inappropriately."

The Pasadena school district, which formerly adhered to a three-inch rule, now uses the more flexible, but nebulous, rule of decency.

Frank Braden, assistant superintendent for secondary schools in Pasadena, said principals will use their own judgment.

"Full-style miniskirts should be modest enough, although the tight denim skirt might be a problem," Braden said.

"Much will depend on the size and shape of the young lady, I imagine," he said.

La Porte High School has set a standard that is a little more conservative than other districts. It has a newly adopted, one-inch-above-the-knee rule.

"We want the students to be comfortable and relaxed, but not very revealing," Principal Jerry Dennis said.

POLLY'S POINTERS Cool off chilli with added items

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I made chilli, but made it too hot with pepper. I tried adding a potato but that did not work. What can I put in the chilli to take the chilli powder out? — E.C.

DEAR E.C. — Although adding a cut-up potato to too-salty stews or soups can sometimes reduce the saltiness (the potato is removed after 15 to 20 minutes), there is little you can do to remove extra pepper or other spicy seasonings. I sometimes add macaroni to chilli that is too spicy hot. The starchy macaroni increases the volume of the chilli so the seasoning is diluted, and the bland macaroni also seems to absorb some of the hotness. Or, you could add extra ingredients such as beans, more tomatoes, additional meat, etc. to increase the quantity of the chilli, thus making the entire potful less spicy.

Another trick is to serve a cool dollop of sour cream on top of each bowl of chilli. The coolness of the sour cream tames the flames of the pepper and provides a pleasing flavor contrast to the spicy chilli.

One more thing to try: Freeze the chilli for future meals. The hotness of chilli peppers seems to decrease after being frozen for a time. Saltiness tends to decrease, too, which is why it's a good idea to season soups and stews just before serving, rather than before freezing. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Cover your lap with a green apron when sewing, crocheting, tatting and doing other handwork. It is very comforting and easy on the eyes. — STELLA

DEAR POLLY — For really smooth, delicious baked custard, pour the custard mixture through a strainer before baking. — SARAH

JOBS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In the city where the jazz sounds of Charlie Parker and Count Basie still echo along 12th Street, a new generation of musicians is carrying on the old tradition.

The fourth annual Jobs of Note program is underway in Kansas City this summer. It puts musically talented inner-city high school students to work playing jazz classics in downtown parks, nursing homes, day-care centers and shopping districts.

WANT ADS DO IT ALL!
YOU WANT IT YOU GOT IT
CLASSIFIED
364-2030
ADDRESS: 313 N. LEE

CLASSIFIED ADS
Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.00 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	.14	2.00
2 days per word	.24	4.00
3 days per word	.34	6.00
4 days per word	.44	8.00
5th day FREE

Ten days (2 free) is $15.00 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is $23.00 minimum; one month is $31.00 minimum.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.50 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALS
Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Dr. Gott — Carsickness

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I get carsick very easily and have to take Dramamine at least twice a week. I'm 22 and too old for this. What can I do?

DEAR READER — Motion sickness is a disabling ailment. It is thought to result from unbalanced nerve signals reaching the brain from the position-sensing vestibular apparatus in each ear. Dramamine probably acts by reducing the sensitivity of the vestibular mechanisms.

There is now a breakthrough in the treatment of motion sickness: the scopolamine patch, marketed under the trade name of Transderm-Scop. When applied to the skin, this impregnated patch slowly releases scopolamine into the body. Scopolamine is a potent anti-motion-sickness drug; its specific action is not completely understood.

The patch is attached to the skin of the scalp behind the ear, where it produces its effects for three days. At the end of that time, it is removed and, if necessary, a fresh patch is applied to the other side of the head. This treatment has been very effective for people who become sick aboard ships or in planes and cars.

Many motion-sick patients have a psychological component to their ailment. This appears to be a fear of loss of control that passengers feel when they leave the driving to someone else. For instance, I used to become violently carsick after being driven a block in the back seat of a closed car. On the other hand, if I'm behind the wheel, I can happily drive for hours over the most winding and undulating roads. I think that my motion sickness is in my head, not in my vestibular mechanisms. It has taken years of driving for me to accept my occasional role as comfortable passenger.

So keep trying to overcome your car sickness; eventually you may outgrow it. Meanwhile, use over-the-counter Dramamine or prescription Transderm-Scop to get you through.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What makes a chocoholic? Is there a physical cause?

DEAR READER — I don't know what makes a chocoholic. People get addicted to the darnedest things: gambling, alcohol, food, caffeine — even to eating clay or laundry starch. Chocolate contains sugar, caffeine and a stimulant called theobromine; one or all of these may be the basis for your craving.

However, if you have an uncontrollable urge to eat chocolate, you also may have an addictive personality, which is often a disease of attitude. The substance itself isn't really the cause. Without a change of attitude, you may "beat" your chocolate addiction, but move on to some other compulsive behavior. Try working out your problem through a support group, such as Weight Watchers or Overeaters Anonymous. The Yellow Pages will list chapters in your area.

DEAR DR. GOTT — During a routine eye exam, my ophthalmologist became curious about a scar on my retina and ordered a blood test for toxoplasmosis. It came back positive, with a titer of 4,096. Can it affect other parts of my body? What should I do about it?

DEAR READER — Toxoplasmosis is a relatively common infection caused by a parasite that is spread from cats to humans. It can affect the retina and produce scarring. Many people have had toxoplasmosis and have recovered without treatment.

Scars from the infection can remain in various body organs for years. The tricky part of the diagnosis is to establish whether the parasite is still actively present in body tissues. In the former situation, no treatment is ordinarily necessary; in the latter, therapy with sulfonamides and pyrimethamine is advised.

Your blood titer is high; a value exceeding 1:1,000 usually indicates acute infection. Your doctor should repeat your titer, as well as other confirmatory tests (the complement fixation test, for example) in about six months.

Greenland

Greenland is separated from North America by the Davis Strait and Baffin Bay. Most of the island in the North Atlantic is a lofty plateau 9,000 to 10,000 feet high. The estimated population in 1985 was 53,000 people.

Newspaper Bible

DO YOU REALLY WANT TO BELIEVE?

Immediately after this Jesus instructed His disciples to get back into the boat and strike out across the lake to Bethsaida, where He would join them later. He Himself would stay and tell the crowds good-bye and get them started home.

Afterwards He went up into the hills to pray.

During the night, as the disciples in their boat were out in the middle of the lake, and He was alone on land, He saw that they were in serious trouble, rowing hard and struggling against the wind and waves. About three o'clock in the morning He walked out to them on the water. He started past them,

But when they saw something walking along beside them they screamed in terror, thinking it was a ghost.

For they all saw Him. But He spoke to them at once. "It's all right," He said. "It is I! Don't be afraid."

Then He climbed into the boat and the wind stopped! They just sat there, unable to take it in!

For they still didn't realize who He was, even after the miracle the evening before! For they didn't want to believe!

When they arrived at Gennesaret on the other side of the lake they moored the boat,

And climbed out. The people standing around there recognized Him at once.

And ran throughout the whole area to spread the news of His arrival, and began carrying sick folks to Him on mats, and stretchers.

Wherever He went—in villages and cities, and out on the farms—they laid the sick in the market plazas and streets, and begged Him to let them at least touch the fringes of His clothes; and as many as touched Him were healed.

Ann Landers

Respond to invitations

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My 6-year-old was having a birthday party. Of course, he was terribly excited. Since I had limited him to nine guests he had a difficult time deciding who to invite.

He was very much involved with the party plans and printed all the names on the envelopes himself. One person RSVP'd yes and one RSVP'd no. The others didn't respond. Since we didn't know how many to expect, we bought balloons, hats, favors and prizes for eight. I ordered a big birthday cake and lots of ice cream.

Would you believe that not one person showed up? What can a mother say to a child who has talked of nothing else and waited with eager anticipation for weeks? My heart just broke when he asked, "Mom, do you think everybody forgot?"

These children can barely read, so I blame the parents. Please urge them to be more considerate when a reply is expected. A child's happiness is at stake.—Lotsa Leftovers in Tulsa

DEAR LOTS: I agree it was rude and thoughtless of the parents not to RSVP, but it is a fact of life that some people are inconsiderate or just plain lazy and to assume that the children would show up was overly optimistic.

Next time you have a party, phone those who fail to respond and ask whether they plan to come. It shouldn't be necessary to do this, but it's the only way you will know for certain.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem I am unable to discuss with anyone, and it is making me a recluse. My doctor says he can't help me and that I should "live with it." I'm referring to bladder control.

Some days I am pretty good, but I never know when I will leave a ring on an upholstered chair—or, worse—laugh at a joke when I'm in a group and feel moisture trickling down my leg.

Is there an organization that can give me some help? I feel—Alone in Hannibal, Mo.

DEAR MO: Write to HIP (Help for Incontinent People) and ask for their literature. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope (22 cents) to HIP, P.O. Box, 544, Union, S.C. 29379. This organization was formed in 1983 to help the estimated 11 million Americans and Canadians who have the problem. I can vouch for the fact that HIP is reputable and up on the latest.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I first moved to this town, I was befriended by a wonderful couple who lived next door. We became very close and I considered them family.

Last year "John" began an affair with a neighborhood acquaintance. It's still going on, hot and heavy. He and his lady love told me of their romance because they "wanted to share their happiness" with me. I suspect they really want me to cover for them in case his wife gets wind of it.

I resent the fact that they have let me in on their dirty little secret. Since the revelation, I cannot bear to be around John and his wife. I feel as if I'm part of a conspiracy. Yet, after being close to them for 10 years, I can't cut them dead. Also, Ann, the wife is a terrific person and I love her dearly. Please advise.—Unwilling Accomplice in Colo.

DEAR U.A. IN COLO: Get off the guilt trip. Cutting you in on the dirty little secret does not make you an accomplice.

Continue your relationship with John's wife but distance yourself from him. Of course, you will offer no hospitality whatever to John and Miss What's-er-face.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a No. 10, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Texas Young Farmers

Officers for Texas Young Farmers attended the Vocational Agriculture Teacher Inservice Education Conference held Aug. 12-14 in Houston. Shown, from left, are Ray Schlabs, Jr., of Hereford, president; Tom Bass of Huntsville, Area I vice-president; and Jay Eudy of Austin, program director of the vo-ag ed program in Texas and State Young Farmer advisor. The 1988 Young Farmer Convention is set for Jan. 15-16 in Lubbock.

Hamburger supper held at Shaw home

Members of Xi Epsilon Alpha recently celebrated their Beginning Day by having a couple's hamburger cookout at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Shaw, 410 Douglas.

The guests played croquet and yard darts and had hamburgers and homemade ice cream.

Those in attendance were: Peggy and Tom Hyer, Marge and Ralph Bell, Holly and Stacy Bixler, Teresa and Mark Peiffer, Ruby and Steve Sanders, Kay and Oscar Williams, Susan and Louis Cardinal, Melinda White, Tommy Kemp, Terry Sparks, and Connie Matthews.

Members were reminded of the first meeting to be held today, Sept. 1 and the upcoming service style show.

New sorority year begins for chapter

The Barn House was the setting recently for the members of the Alpha Iota Mu chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority to meet for Beginning Day to kick off the new sorority year.

A brunch of fresh fruit, an egg casserole, cinnamon rolls, orange juice, and coffee was served to the group.

President Beckie Fry called the meeting to order. The special guests, Mary Ward and Mary Ann Peebles, were introduced. Dona Hendrickson presented to the members the new yearbooks for this year. Kathy Kerr reported on the results of the fundraising project at the Jubilee and thanked all members involved.

Other committee chairmen highlighted the future plans for the new year. Thank you's were extended from members for gifts and kindnesses received throughout the summer.

The next meeting will be held

Thursday, Sept. 3 in the Reddy Room at 7:30 p.m.

The members present included: Janice Betzen, Camille Beville, Glenna Calaway, Louann Eubanks, Jackie Fangman, Fry, Nancy George, Hendrickson, Wanda Huseman, Elizabeth Jesko, Glenda Jesko, Carol Kelley, Kerr, Gay MacLaskey, Deeann Matthews, Patricia Sarchet, Christi Smith, and Marge Bell, chapter advisor.

Parents to meet tonight

All Hereford High School senior parents are asked to be present at a planning meeting at 7 p.m. today in the HHS auditorium.

Mesa Scholarship recipients named

Thirty-two West Texas State University undergraduate students are the first recipients of the Mesa Scholarships for Academic Excellence for the 1987-88 academic year.

Established by funds provided by Mesa Limited Partnership, the scholarship is intended to reward and recognize freshmen and continuing undergraduate students who promote and exemplify academic excellence at West Texas State University. The awards are made in increments of either $500 or $1,000.

Recipients include students from Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Kansas.

Hereford recipients were Charles

A. Hund, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hund and Denise Paetzold, daughter of Mrs. Sylvia Paetzold.

To be eligible, entering freshmen must have a composite score of 23 or higher on the ACT or a combined verbal and math score of 950 or higher on the SAT. They must also rank in the first quarter of their graduating classes. Continuing students must have a 3.4 or better grade point average on all college work attempted.

Applicants were required to submit two reference letters with their application, as well as a brief essay discussing their educational plans, career objectives and personal goals.

Hereford resident graduates recently in San Antonio

Captain Anne M. Clyde, Civil Air Patrol, local commander of the Hereford Composite Squadron, recently attended and graduated from the Civil Air Patrol's Corporate Learning Course held in San Antonio, Texas.

Captain Clyde has been instrumental in re-organizing the local squadron after it had been inactive since the early 1970's. She is a Registered Nurse and is employed at the Deaf Smith County Hospital.

The purpose of the course is to train CAP officers in the areas of leadership, management, fiscal and property control, and the legal aspects of the CAP programs.

The Civil Air Patrol is the official auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force and is responsible for 80-90 percent of the search and rescue within the United States. The local squadron is engaged in the training of cadets (teenagers) in leadership, aerospace subjects, and citizenship. The training received by Captail Clyde will be useful in accomplishing these goals locally.

CAP cadets frequently attend local, state, and national (as well as international) activities in addition to their training programs. Some of these include search and rescue, communications, flight (powered and glider), summer camps, and travel to foreign countries.

Correction

The reception honoring the golden anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hocket was not held Sunday, Aug. 30, as reported in the Brand. It will be held Sunday, Sept. 13, from 2-4 p.m. in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

The Brand regrets the error.
