Wreck rescue

Emergency personnel worked Tuesday to free Raul Mungia, 20, of Hereford, from his mangled car Tuesday following a two-vehicle accident on East U.S. 60 in Hereford. Mungia was in critical condition this morning at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, suffering from numerous injuries.

Two injured in accident

A Hereford man is in serious condition at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo after suffering numerous injuries in a two-vehicle accident Tuesday on U.S. 60 in east Hereford. Raul Mungia, 20, was pinned in his Chevrolet after it collided with a Ford pickup driven by Joel Ybarra, 23, also of Hereford. Ybarra is in satisfactory condition at Deaf Smith General Hospital in Hereford. Mungia was treated at DSGH before being transferred to NWTX.

Rescue workers had to pry Mungia from his car with the "Jaws of Life" rescue tool.

Police are still investigating the cause of the accident, which occurred about 12:20 p.m.

Police investigated two other, non-injury accidents Tuesday, and issued 11 citations during the day.

In other police business, the HPD investigated complaints including a family disturbance on East third; a civil problem in the 600 block of Stanton; a $6,500 residential burglary in the 400 block of Sunset; a juvenile shooting another child with a BB gun in the 200 block of Dairy road; a $150 burglary of coin-operated machines in the 300 block of Main;

A stolen bike on Thirteenth; a suspicious person report in the 100 block of Mimosa; the theft of a radio and equalizer from a vehicle parked on U.S. 385; an attempted suicide in the 800 block of S. McKinley; and two goats found along West U.S. 60.

According to Lo-Mart manager Emilio Saavedra, a report in Tuesday's Brand was incorrect. Saavedra said an assistant manager was struck by a vehicle in the parking lot, and the persons involved had not stolen merchandise from the store.

Sunny skies will continue

By The Associated Press

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were possible across South Texas tonight although high pressure kept the weather pleasant across all of the state.

Forecasts called for sunny skies and fair nights through Thursday with only South Texas expected to get any precipitation and that was to be in the form of widely scattered activity.

Some fog was reported at dawn along middle sections of the Texas coastal plains.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 60s, ranging from the 50s in the mountains of West Texas to the 70s in South Texas.

Highs Thursday will be mostly in the 80s and 90s.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s in North Texas and West Texas and in the 70s in South Texas, ranging from the 50s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the lower 80s along the coast. Extremes ranged from 50 at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 80 at Corpus Christi.

Beet growers say attacks are unfair

The Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association charges that the domestic sugar industry is being unfairly attacked by some national media, and "powerful American political figures."

The charge comes in the face of articles attacking the domestic sugar industry by Readers Digest, The Wall Street Journal, and other, unnamed media.

"TSBGA is bitter toward some national magazines and newspapers that are giving consumers false information about our domestic sugar industry," said Bill Cleavinger of Wildorado, TSBGA president. "We are also angry with many Washington-based lobbyists--including some former members of the Reagan Administration--who represent foreign countries which export sugar and other products into the U.S."

A TSBGA news release issued this week said the most recent media attack came from Readers Digest, which alleged in its August issue that the national sugar policy created high sugar prices for consumers and was a threat to U.S. foreign relations.

Luther Markwart, executive vice president of the American Sugarbeet Growers Association, said the article "ranks as possibly the most misleading story ever written on the subject of the sugar program" in a letter to the editor of the Digest.

TSBGA also claims that Michael Deaver, former White House communications director, and Richard Smith, former chief administrator for overseeing foreign agriculture operations in the USDA, are among the Washington lobbyists the sweeter industry believes are undermining American business interests.

Deaver and Smith, according to the news release, represent the Caribbean Basin Institute and other Caribbean interests among their lobbying efforts. The Caribbean is among the world's largest sugar-production areas.

Cleavinger said that destroying the current sugar program, which gives producers no subsidies but instead relies on an orderly marketing program, would "destroy the U.S. sugar industry. American producers and processors cannot compete with artificially-low world prices which are priced far below the cost of production. Leaving consumers at the mercy of imported sugar could create a situation similar to that caused by America's dependence on foreign oil--a situation of erratic and high prices.

"If our domestic industry is allowed to die, consumers would not have dependable sugar supplies and would face retail prices which may be low in one instance and extremely high in another."

'Liveability' could be big SSC factor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several entries in the super collider sweepstakes believe the winning state may be determined by which offers the most attractive way of life to world-class scientists.

Eleven states submitted proposals on Tuesday, in advance of today's deadline. At least four more were expected today to try to snare the $4.4 billion atom smasher. Another 10 are believed to have turned in their documents early, and the Energy Department says it won't release a list of contestant states until Thursday.

Whoever wins the right to the massive project will have 3,000 jobs, 500 of them for visiting scientists, practically no added pollution and an annual operating budget of $270 million.

There hasn't been such a competition since the late 1960s and early 1970s, when states tried to land what became Fermilab near Chicago, currently the world's most powerful particle accelerator and an installation that Illinois is counting on incorporating into its proposal for the new machine.

Everybody's list of leading candidates includes New York, Ohio, North Carolina, Colorado, Illinois, and Texas.

Another leading contender has been California, but late Tuesday, the state legislature, split by a partisan dispute over minority hiring practices, killed an attempt to keep the state in contention. Lawmakers were trying to work out a compromise.

State Sen. John Garamendi said killing the bid would make California "the laughing stock of the nation."

In soliciting proposals for the 53-miles-around machine, the Energy Department laid down some requirements, and the competing states say they are meeting them.

It seems that almost all the states are using adjectives like "perfect" and "unsurpassed" and "best" to describe their soil and geology.

Every participant believes it has a major airport close enough. Every state is offering site improvements -- roads, sewers, power lines and the like, frequently undertaking large bond issues to raise the necessary cash, sometimes to buy the land the federal government expects as a gift.

At DOE meeting

Accusations, rumors abound

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

The denial of a rumor and addressing a potential problem concerning lack of availability of motel rooms to tourists were issues Robert Wunderlich, deputy manager of the Department of Energy's Salt Repository Project in Deaf Smith County, dealt with during his weekly briefing session this morning.

The briefing session is designed to answer questions people of the community have regarding aspects of the site characterization studies being conducted to locate the nation's first high-level nuclear waste repository and to provide statistics concerning the transitional moves of 373 expected project personnel who will be officed in Hereford.

Hereford resident Naoma Spann questioned Wunderlich about the problem tourists and visitors to the area are having in getting motel rooms due to the large number of rentals project personnel take up.

"Your people are taking up motel rooms during the week and I resent that we can't even get weekday rooms for people coming in for a reunion," she said.

Wunderlich said that he is unaware of the total number of rooms available in Hereford and of the percentage project employees occupy. "I will check on the number this week and have that figure for you at next week's meeting," he said. "If it is a real problem for tourism we will ask some of our people to stay in Amarillo during the time period you need more motel rooms."

Also brought up was a rumor that Battelle had an agreement to lease the McGee Furniture building, on South Main, and then renege on the deal after McGee's had already begun liquidating stock. Wunderlich denied the rumor and said such an agreement would not make sense due to the strictures of the competitive bidding process by which his agency must abide.

Margaret McGee also denied the rumor.

"At no time have we had a lease agreement with Battelle or DOE," she said.

Also questioned was the $50,271.67 a month, three-year lease DOE signed with an Amarillo realty company to lease the Hereford Lo-Mart building, owned by Furr's, for Battelle office space.

Spann asked, "How do you figure this is going to help Hereford?"

Wunderlich counts the $1.9 million lease as procurement dollars committed to Hereford even though he admits the lease payments are mailed to Amarillo and then work their way through Furr's corporate offices to West Germany.

"Extensive renovation work, totaling around $800,000, will be done to the building," he said, "Most of the money we will expect to flow back into Hereford through contracting the renovation work as well as the utilities and procurements for telephones and office furniture."

Wunderlich says he bases his assumption that the renovation work will be contracted in Hereford on the fact that Henry Reid, owner of the building converted for DOE office space, used local contractors. Battelle currently occupies a furniture store on West U.S. 60 which was converted by an Amarillo contracting firm.

To date no furniture contract has gone to a Hereford bidder and some criticism has been registered that some clauses in the bids have prevented local vendors from having an opportunity to bid.

Wunderlich says that his figures show $2.5 million has been committed in Hereford, including the $1.9 million for Lo-Mart, and that should an outside contractor be selected for the renovation work he will adjust his figures accordingly. He says that $1.5 million has been committed in Amarillo.

Hereford now has 53 project personnel in residence of which 25 are local hires and 28 are transferees. Amarillo has 75 personnel in residence with 61 transferees.

An additional 53 staff members are expected to report to Hereford in September, 56 in October and 35 in November.

MDA activities planned Monday

A local pledge center will be manned Sunday night and all day Monday for the annual Muscular Dystrophy Telethon.

Janice Holmes and members of the Hereford Elks Lodge will be manning the center, at 436 N. Schley. The phone number to make pledges will be 364-1273.

Holmes said volunteers are needed to help man the pledge center and to go door-to-door Monday to solicit donations.

Persons wishing to volunteer may call 364-2851.

Weed, brush program scheduled

The Deaf Smith County Extension Crops committee will sponsor a Weed and Brush Control Program Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the banquet room at the Hereford Community Center.

The program will include control of weeds and brush in rangeland; control of noxious weeds; herbicide regulations; and management of Conservation Reserve Program acres.

Hospital gets bond update

The board of directors of Deaf Smith General Hospital District heard an update Tuesday on possible bond programs to help the district out of its current financial problems.

The district is looking at two different bond programs, and learned Tuesday that one of the programs, The Texas Municipal Fixed Rate Pool Fund, has been extended another 30 days, until Sept. 30.

The extension should give the district more time to choose the proper bond agent, according to DSGH administrator Jim Bullard.

Adult education classes planned

Registration for adult basic education classes will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in Room 127 at Hereford High School.

Four classes will be offered, including English as a Second Language, basic skills, GED, and citizenship classes.

All necessary materials will be offered at no charge. The classes will be held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

For more information about the classes, call John Matthews at 364-4456.

Kickoff Party is Thursday

Well Capped

Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner, executive director of the Waste Deposit Impact Committee, donned a hardhat to view Tuesday's capping of the Detten Well. Eichner, right, along with Keith Painter a District 10 representative of the Railroad Commission, left, and John Peck, a geologist with Stone and Webster who are DOE's contractors for the technical studies, took a special interest in the capping of the well which was used to gather hydrologic data and geophysical logs for the Department of Energy's Site Characterization Project. The well, located just north of Hereford, was one of four used for the tests and is the third one to be capped.

Veterans want continued studies on Agent Orange

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some major veterans' organizations want government scientists to look for a valid way of studying Agent Orange exposure among Vietnam veterans before they abandon a congressionally ordered study. Scientists at the federal Centers for Disease Control have told congressional and administration officials that a pilot test finding shows they cannot find enough former ground soldiers who were exposed to the herbicide to do a scientifically valid study. Charles E. "Butch" Joeckel, executive director of the Disabled American Veterans, said the CDC's finding "must be viewed as acknowledgment that the CDC study protocol was flawed and that investigators must now examine what other methods of scientific inquiry may be used" to identify exposure.

The Vietnam Veterans of America said it had consulted scientists who quarreled with the CDC's methodology in selecting soldiers for study. "This wasn't an earth-shaking development to us because we didn't think their model worked anyway," said the Veterans group's spokesman, Mike Leaveck. "Now insinuations are being made because of this validation test failing that you can't do any study. That's pure poppycock." Veterans Administration spokesman Bonner Day said the agency had no comment on the dispute. Congress in 1979 took the Agent Orange study away from the VA and gave it to the CDC, largely because of opposition to the VA by veterans groups. Money for the CDC's study has come from the VA's budget, however, and Day said the VA has spent $65 million so far on the study. Officials at the American Legion charged the CDC had drawn criteria for the study so narrowly that it disqualified some veterans exposed to the potentially toxic herbicide — including veterans who served more than one tour in Vietnam. "What they're saying is they can't find enough exposed people. We find that hard to believe," said John Sommer, deputy director of the American Legion.

About experience

NEW YORK (AP) — A third of applicants lied about their experience in applying for a job, according to a recent study. Researchers say well-designed questionnaires and the use of computers could help prevent such deceit. The study found that 76 of 221 applicants "claimed to have experience performing a non-existent task," says Ron Pannone, supervisor of personnel research for The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey. Studies elsewhere have found falsification in biographical questionnaires by up to 67 percent of applicants, and Pannone said responses can be so easily faked that the bistate agency does not use such questionnaires in hiring. He and other researchers discussed the problem Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association. One way to combat falsification is to ask questions for which the "right" answer is not obvious, Pannone said. Such "empirically based" questions are developed by extensive testing that finds correlations between a desired characteristic and answers to questions that seem unrelated. Those questions can then be used in a questionnaire as an index for measuring the characteristic, without giving away the "right" answer. Another step is warnings on the questionnaire that falsification will be detected, he said. Giving tests by computer could help circumvent another falsification problem, cheating by recruiters who want to help job applicants score high on biographical questionnaires, said psychologist Terry Mitchell. That kind of falsification may cost the life insurance industry $30 million a year or more, through investment in people hired through falsification and who later fail on the job, he said. A computer program designed to fight recruiter cheating is being tested, said Mitchell, associate scientist in agent selection services at the Life Insurance Marketing and Research Association (LIMRA) in Farmington, Conn. The association provides a biographical hiring questionnaire designed to predict potential success in life insurance sales. An estimated 13 million people have taken some form of it, including about 75 percent

Catholics, Protestants unite for papal visit

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Catholics and Protestants have disagreed for years, but 3,000 of them will unite in song and prayer in preparation for Pope John Paul II's Sept. 13 visit, clergymen said. "There is basic unity among the Christians, no matter what denomination they come from, what church they belong to, that really goes over the boundaries of our differences," said the Rev. Robert Kownacki, a Catholic priest and chairman of the papal visit ecumenical committee. "We don't all agree on everything. But we are discovering that we agree much more than we disagree and that makes praying together easier," Kownacki said Tuesday. The ecumenical service is scheduled for Sept. 10 at Trinity Baptist Church. Many of those attending the worship service will be from across the state and some will stay to greet the pope. The Rev. Buckner Fanning, minister of Trinity Baptist Church, said a discussion of the denominational differences will help Christians learn about themselves. "We don't all agree on things, but we ask questions. We learn what other people believe and consequently we learn more about what we believe and we rub off on each other," Fanning said. "It's not all of us getting together and say we're going to walk in some sort of lockstep, but we're going to walk in the spirit of love and unity," he said. The ecumenical event is sponsored by the San Antonio Community of Churches and the Texas Conference of Churches. The Texas Lutheran College Brass Ensemble will provide instrument music while the choirs of the Second Baptist Church and Trinity Baptist Church will provide the vocals. The Rev. Don Baugh, executive director of the SACC, said the service was designed so worshippers feel comfortable and learn. "Those for whom the pope is not our spiritual leader rejoice in the fact that the pope can come to our city and hold up many of the things that we hold in common because of who Jesus Christ was and is in our lives," Baugh said. The Rev. Elaine Smith, pastor of Bethany United Methodist Church, said many denominations debate the issue of ordained women, among other things. "Jesus thought us how to come together and relate together even with our diversities," she said. "If we were all alike it would become terrible dull." Ministers, priests and rabbis earlier this year met in the city's first Jewish-Christian forum in preparation for the pope's visit. Ms. Smith said, adding that the city is becoming a regional ecumenical center.

Texas formally submits two proposals for atom smasher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas' proposal for landing the lucrative super collider project was formally presented to the U.S. Energy Department by a confident group of Texas state and congressional officials. "We in Texas know that our state has much to offer the rest of the world and that Texas would be an excellent site for the superconducting super collider," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, dean of the Texas congressional delegation. "I feel sure that once DOE examines our proposals they will be convinced that Texas has the best site," he said Tuesday. Texas is among two dozen states who had until 2 p.m. EDT today to present documentation for their quest for the $4.4 billion project. Ed Bingler, executive director of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, said copies of the state's proposals filled 60 cartons, weighed 2,400 pounds and took up 200 cubic feet of space. Texas is pushing two sites for consideration — one near Amarillo and one near Dallas-Fort Worth. Texas officials said New York and California also are expected to submit multiple bids. The largest and most advanced particle accelerator ever constructed, the super collider is expected to become the world's preeminent facility for high-energy physics research. Wherever the gigantic atom smasher is built, it will create up to 4,500 construction jobs, 2,500 permanent technical jobs, and 500 to 1,000 visiting scientists each year. The two official Texas sites are the product of two years of research and evaluation during which more than a dozen sites in the state were examined. Private groups are independently proposing locations near Midland and El Paso. Reflecting the hopes of many Texans, Bingler said snaring the super collider would open the door to a major diversification of the Texas economy through introduction of high-tech science. He also said the project would correct an imbalance in the return Texans get for their tax dollars. "We're really only getting less than 60 cents for every dollar that flows to Washington," he said. Inducements for the Texas sites include payment of up to $700 million in infrastructure costs, agreements with utilities at each site to offer low cost electricity, and $150 million in research and community pledges, said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. Gramm said the state is not offering direct monetary inducements to attract the project, which Congress earlier this year forbade the DOE from considering. Small-state senators won the provision by playing on fears that big states could "buy" the project. Instead, Texas officials said they are working to pass a constitutional amendment on the Nov. 3 ballot that will allow Texas to issue $500 million in bonds for the research facility that would be spent on "site enhancements." "What we do have are site enhancements — $600 million to $700 million in site enhancements which do count as part of the technical proposals, ... to build roads, to run utilities and to build buildings," said the junior Republican senator. He also said the state would offer $200 million through a joint venture with public utilities to supply power to either of the two facilities at less than one cent per kilowatt hour. "Nobody in the nation can match that in terms of a proposal," Gramm said. Cost of building the super collider is estimated at more than $5 billion, and the annual operating budget will be about $300 million, said Dr. Peter Flawn, chairman of the Texas SSC commission. A committee of the National Academy of Sciences will have 90 days to winnow the sites to an unspecified number of finalists. The department will try to compress its subsequent review to meet its deadline of a preliminary selection in July 1988 and confirmation in January 1989. The super collider, if built, will require about 11,000 acres and easements to build an underground tunnel 52 miles around. The tunnel will be used to smash beams of protons into each other to investigate the nature of matter.

LIVEABILITY

Several states are stressing low construction costs. Idaho says its offer will save $750 million. Illinois says its offer of the existing Fermilab at Batavia as an injecting accelerator will save $430 million. It's commonly conceded that world-class physicists — the kind that win Nobel Prizes and can live anywhere — want major urban areas nearby, especially those with world-class universities. Many physicists are musicians and treasure the orchestras and chamber music groups in major cities. Like other sought-after people, they simply won't move to communities without good schools. When a state is goaded into sniping at a competing state, the weapon is quality of life. One of Texas' proposals is near Amarillo. Gov. Roy Romer of Colorado asked, rhetorically, in an interview, "Do you know any scientists who want to spend a year in the Texas Panhandle?" The Panhandle has its charms. Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Texas, said at a news conference he thought its "clean air and clear skies" would prove an attraction for an Amarillo site. It isn't known if Boulter had Colorado in mind, but Romer admitted that wide publicity about Denver's air pollution problems wouldn't help his state's entry. Romer said Colorado will win because it will be everybody's second choice — many scientists already "have second homes" in the state. What few opponents there are also are stressing what they see as a downgrading of the quality of life brought on by the accelerator. "This is the richest farming land in America," said Craig McNamara, leader of opponents trying to keep the machine from being located near Davis, Calif. McNamara, who would lose 120 acres of the 520 acres he uses to farm walnuts, presented a petition to the Energy Department arguing that state officials had not considered seismic faults in the area. The super collider proposals are being screened for completeness by the department, then turned over to the National Academy of Sciences later this month. An academy committee will select finalists in December. Energy Secretary John Herrington will select a tentative winner next July, making it final in January 1989 if it passes its environmental impact statement — assuming that the final go-ahead is given by Congress, where the project has wide support. There is very little environmental impact. The 30 feet or so of earth above the tunnel stops radiation from the countering beams of protons. The installation will generate about as much low-level radioactive waste as a major hospital. Normal activities can continue above the surface, except on the 8,000 to 12,000 acres the lab will need for experimental halls, offices and support buildings. The proton beams, smashing into each other with 20 times the available energy in today's accelerators, will enable physicists to probe exotic theories, perhaps resolving mysteries such as how ordinary matter arose out of the pure energy of the "Big Bang" origin of the universe some 20 billion years ago.

Study shows job applicants lie of current life insurance agents in the United States and Canada, Mitchell said. Deceit by applicants is usually not a problem with empirically based questionnaires like the LIMRA test, and cheating by life insurance industry recruiters appears to be done by only a "small but highly motivated group," he said. Recruiters in any industry may cheat to get an applicant hired if they feel pressured by hiring quotas and frustrated that applicants they favor are not passing such a test, Mitchell said. Recruiters may coach an applicant on how to answer some questions, he said. To discover helpful answers on the test, some recruiters have systematically filled out and submitted bogus answer sheets to see how various answers affect the score, he said. Other tricks include having "ringers" take the test in place of the applicant, copying from previous answer sheets that got high scores, or letting an applicant take the test repeatedly until he passes. But a computer can routinely scramble the order of questions or ask new questions based on answers to previous ones, which makes it harder to copy answers from a previous answer sheet, Mitchell said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 31-year-old woman who grew up under a cloud of insecurity, shame and despair. My father molested me sexually for several years.

I never told anyone about it because I was afraid that I would not be believed, or if they did believe me they would think I had led him on.

I have read a lot about child-molesting in the last few years (mostly in your column) and the message has been "tell someone and get it off your mind." I decided to take your advice.

I couldn't face a friend or family member with this filthy story so I decided the next best thing would be to write to my father and tell him I remember everything he did to me, ask him why and say, "I forgive you."

It took me five days to write that letter. It was the most difficult thing I have ever done in my life. After I dropped it in the mailbox I felt very good, as if a 10-ton weight had been lifted from my shoulders.

I thought it was over and that I had done what needed to be done to help me get on with my life, but I was wrong. Three weeks later I found out that my father had sent copies of my letter to my three brothers and a sister, with a note saying I was a liar and that I was crazy.

They believed him, Ann, and now I cannot face them. I am worse off then before. Can you suggest what I might do to repair the damage — X-Rated USA

DEAR USA: Get counseling! You should have had it long ago. Your therapist will help you put the past in its proper perspective and understand that it wasn't your fault.

When you feel more confident you will be able to face your father, stand up to his cowardly accusations, talk to your siblings and clear your name. This should be your goal.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I felt a chill run down my spine when I read about the teenager who, while driving, reached into the back seat for a tape and ended up killing four bicyclists.

Unfortunately, the wonders of technology will only help make this a more common occurrence. Earlier today I was almost rear-ended by an idiot who, between drinking coffee and talking on his car phone, didn't have any hands left to drive with.

If car phones are so darned important why don't they manufacture headsets so the crazy fools can have at least one hand on the wheel? I don't feel safe these days even with my seat belt on. Sign me — A Moving Target in New Orleans

DEAR TARGET: Don't knock car phones. They can be immensely useful, especially in case of an emergency.

I do agree, however, that talking on a car phone can be a dangerous distraction if the driver is, at the same time, eating a hamburger, drinking coffee, reading a road map or putting on lipstick. Lives can be forever changed (or ended) in a blink of an eye. Listen out there. I'm talking to you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm trying to lose weight. Last night I started to reach for a banana and my mother said, "Eat an apple instead. Bananas are fattening." Is this true? I don't believe it. — Julie in New Brunswick

DEAR JULIE: I hate to contradict your mother, but an apple and an average-size banana have approximately the same number of calories. — 100.

Season opens Saturday

31 are out for cross country

More athletes are out from cross country at Hereford High School this year than last year — 16 boys and 15 girls.

The top five girls' runners are back from last season, and five boys' runners return from last year's varsity.

The 1987 season opens Saturday with the Levelland meet. Other meets this month are the Borger meet on Saturday, Sept. 12; the Plinview meet on Saturday, Sept. 19; and the Hereford meet on Saturday, Sept. 26. All meets begin at 10 a.m.

The HHS girls' cross country team has six seniors, three juniors, and six sophomores working out, and the boys' team has seven seniors, seven juniors, and two sophomores working out.

One athlete on each team went to the state class 4A meet last year — senior Nancy Garza of the girls' team and junior Benny Carrasco of the boys' team.

In addition to Garza, the rest of the top five runners from last year are returning this year are: Alina Benitez, a junior; and Carolyn Rieves, JoAnn Tohm, and Elia Hernandez, all seniors.

"I have some newcomers that should be pretty good. The girls' team is in pretty good shape. We have some good backups," Hereford Coach Martha Emerson said.

Along with Carrasco, other top runners back for the HHS boys' team include Ishmael Castillo and Manuel Diaz, both seniors. Others who ran in varsity divisions at meets last year are Adolfo Martinez, a junior, and Herman Nava and Arturo Martinez, both seniors.

"I have five back from last year's varsity and two others that should give good competition for the varsity," Coach Emerson said.

When asked about District 1-4A competition, Emerson said about the boys' team, "I believe we can compete in the district this year. Levelland won the district last year with a young team, and they'll be tough this year. Dumas and Canyon should be tough teams, too."

Concerning girls' teams, Emerson figures Canyon will continue to be a top team in the district, even though their best runner from last season graduated. She also notes that Dumas had a young team last season.

The October and November schedule for the cross country season is: Amarillo meet on Saturday, Oct. 3; Lubbock meet on Saturday, Oct. 10; Dumas meet on Saturday, Oct. 17; Dalhart meet on Saturday, Oct. 24; District 1-4A meet on Saturday, Oct. 31; regional meet on Saturday, Nov. 7; and the state meet on Saturday, Nov. 14.

Was 'borrowed' bat, says Hatcher

Astros' hitter ejected from game for using corked bat

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros, mired in a seven-game losing streak, had new troubles after Billy Hatcher, their leading hitter, was ejected from a game with the Chicago Cubs for using a corked bat.

Andre Dawson and Shawon Dunstan each had RBI doubles to lead the Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the Astros, leaving Houston 5½ games behind the San Francisco Giants.

The Astros outthit the Cubs, 9-6, but left 10 men on base and lost Hatcher's hit in the fourth inning and Hatcher himself for the rest of the game.

Hatcher became the first major leaguer to be ejected from a game for an altered bat since Craig Nettles was ejected from a game in 1974 while he was playing for the New York Yankees.

"There's more cheating going on now than ever," said Cubs manager Gene Michael. "I think you ought to suspend them for three months. Let's face it, if a person only gets 10 days for robbing a bank there'd be more banks robbed."

The Cubs scored early against Manny Hernandez, making his first start of the year for Houston. In the second inning Jerry Mumphrey hit a one-out single to left and moved to second on Keith Moreland's fielder's choice.

Dunstan followed with a double to the gap.

The Cubs scored twice in the third when Dave Martinez singled, stole second and advanced to third on catcher Alan Ashby's throwing error. After an error by Hernandez allowed one run, Dawson hit his double to complete the Cubs scoring.

"We're going to keep playing hard," said Dunstan. "We want to be respectable the rest of the way and try for second or third in the division."

Houston scored one run in the fourth on three singles and would possibly have had a big inning had Hatcher not been called out.

Gerald Young led off the inning with a single in the hole at third and Hatcher was ruled safe on a broken bat infield single to shortstop.

Third baseman Keith Moreland picked up the bat and asked home plate umpire Dana Demuth to examine it. Demuth then showed the two pices to crew chief John McSherry who called Hatcher out and ejected him from the game.

"The bat was hollowed out and had three or four inches of cork inside it," said McSherry. "We're going to write it up and send it to the league president with the bat. He'll decide what is to be done."

The corked bat that Hatcher claims he merely grabbed off the bat rack may play a key role in the National League West race if the Houston Astros' leading hitter is suspended for using it.

Lanier is concerned about the punishment that might be assessed and the effect it might have on his team's chances in the pennant race.

"I'm sure there will be some type of punishment," Lanier said. "We're in a pennant race, and to lose a player the caliber of Hatcher could lose you the pennant."

Lanier, however, says it's too early to count the Astros out of the pennant race.

"We've had a lot of chances to win these games," said Lanier. "And we still have a month to go and I still think it will come down to the last week."

Hatcher disclaimed any knowledge of the cork in the bat and said that the bat was not his.

"I just grabbed a bat off the rack because all of my bats were broken," Hatcher said. "It was one of the pitchers' bats. I don't even know who it belonged to and I didn't know it was corked. You can check any of my bats if you want to."

"We've been hearing a lot about (corked) bats lately, but this is the first one we have seen," McSherry said. "It was hollowed out with a groove and about three or four inches of cork was inside it."

Houston relief pitcher Dave Smith later admitted the bat belonged to him but denied any knowledge of how the cork got inside the bat.

Lanier defended Hatcher.

"Billy was really innocent," Lanier said. "He didn't know what he had in his hands. That is one of the bats our pitchers use to play their silly little games to see how far they can hit the ball in batting practice. It just happened to be the same model of bat Billy uses and he was out of bats, so he picked it up."

Chicago Manager Gene Michael believes a severe penalty is appropriate for anyone who is caught cheating.

"Isn't it something. We always seem to be involved. They have to do something about it," Michael said. "There's more cheating going on now and we've got to have some rules to stop it."

"I think they'll have some real tough rules if it takes lawyers to do it. We've got to have tough penalties — three months' suspension."

HHS varsity spikers lose to Clovis; JV stays unbeaten

Hereford High School split a pair of volleyball matches at Clovis Tuesday night, losing the varsity match in a best-of-five series and winning the junior varsity match in a best-of-three series.

The varsity has a season record of 1-5, and the junior varsity is undefeated at 5-0. The first home game of the 1987 season is next Tuesday night against Lubbock High, with the junior varsity match scheduled for 6:30 p.m. and the varsity match after the junior varsity match.

The Hereford varsity won two of the first three games of Tuesday's match at Clovis before losing the last two games. Hereford won game one, 15-13, lost game two, 15-7, won game three, 15-7, and lost games four and five, 15-10, 15-12.

Nikki Self had four service aces, with 90 percent of her serves being good ones. Libby Kosub led Hereford in kills with eight.

Kosub also led HHS with 21 service points, and Tricia Kahlich had 18 service points.

Hereford Coach Brenda Reeh said, "What has happened our last two matches has been both positive and negative. We've accomplished things offensively that we thought would only be possible later on in the season after much more work and practice.

"Accomplishing those goals so soon really builds our confidence. The last two losses, however, have been like losing basketball games in the last seconds by one or two points," she continues.

"When you work so hard as these kids have and come so close, the spirit really takes a beating. I know, however, that this bunch isn't close to being down for long — they're learning what it must take if they're to win. We just have to put it into motion," Coach Reeh adds.

In the junior varsity match, Hereford won game one, 15-13, and lost game two, 15-12, before winning the third and deciding game, 15-10.

1942 team is overall leader in school grid history

A look at Herd scoring offense, defense

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth in a series of articles on Hereford High School football history. Part 6 deals with scoring offense, scoring defense, and average margin of victory in one season.

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Hereford High School has had many high scoring football teams in its history, plus many outstanding defensive teams.

Several of those teams have been both high scoring one and ones that did not allow much scoring by the opponents.

The chart on this page indicates that 18 HHS football teams have averaged 20 or more points per game. Twenty-one teams have limited their opponents to an average of fewer than 10 points per game, and 14 teams have had an average margin of victory of more than 10 points per game.

When we look closely at which teams are ranked among the leaders in each category, we reach the following conclusions:

1. Eight teams are ranked in all three categories (1929, 1942, 1945, 1946, 1965, 1972, 1981 and 1982).
2. Five teams are ranked in both scoring defense and margin of victory (1928, 1930, 1933, 1966 and 1969).
3. One team is ranked in both scoring offense and margin of victory (1955).

The team ranked highest overall in these categories is the Hereford Whiteface 1942 regional championship team. The HHS football team that year allowed only a touchdown and an extra point to be scored against them in seven games—an average of 0.9 points per game.

Their scoring average of 35.0 points per game is second only to the 1945 team that averaged 36.4 points per game. The 1942 Whitefaces defeated their opponents by an average of 32.4 points per game, the best average in school history.

The 1945 HHS varsity is ranked fourth in scoring defense, allowing 4.0 points per game, and is ranked second in average margin of victory — 32.4 points per game. H.V. Stanton coached both the 1942 and 1945 Whiteface teams.

Three of the teams directed by today's HHS head coach — Don Cumpston — averaged better than 20 points per game, including last year's state semifinal team.

The 1982 Whitefaces averaged 26.6 points per game, and the 1981 Whitefaces, also a state semifinalist, averaged 25.5 points per game. Last year's Whiteface varsity scoring 22.4 points per game.

Two of Cumpston's teams did not allow opponents to score an average of more than 10 points per game. The scoring defense for the 1981 Herd varsity was 7.7 points per game, and the scoring defense for the 1982 Whitefaces was 8.8 points per game.

Those same two teams also scored better than 10 more points per game than their opponents scored. The average margin of victory for the 1982 team was 17.8 points per game, and in 1981 it was 17.7 points per game.

Next time: Hereford High School football won-loss records according to calendar dates.

Here are the Hereford High School football teams that averaged 20 or more points a game, limited their opponents to fewer than 10 points per game, and had an average margin of victory of more than 10 points per game:

Incaviglia snaps slump

CHICAGO (AP) — When Pete Incaviglia snaps a batting slump, he does it in grand style.

With only three hits in his last 18 at-bats, Incaviglia collected a single, a game-winning double and a two-run home run to lead the Texas Rangers to a 6-4 victory Tuesday over the Chicago White Sox.

"Incaviglia has been hitting the ball well all season, and when you continue to hit line drives, I never worry," said Texas Manager Bobby Valentine.

His double just inside the third-base line in the seventh inning scored Pete O'Brien and triggered a two-run rally off loser Bill Long, 8-7.

"I wasn't trying to pull the ball, but Long gave me a breaking pitch and I was able to get it down the line," Incaviglia said. "I've been hitting the ball real hard lately."

Chicago Manager Jim Fregosi wasn't ready to give Incaviglia all the credit.

"In my opinion, Steve Lyons could have made a play, but he just stood there frozen," Fregosi said.

Texas starter Jose Guzman, 11-11, gave up seven hits in eight innings before being replaced by Mitch Williams.

"I had a rough first inning when the White Sox got a cheap infield hit, a fielder's choice on a ball I should have fielded and a weak hit to center," Guzman said.

"The key to my winning, of course, is to throw strikes and get the first ball over, because if I don't, my change-up and curveball are worthless," he said.

Valentine was happy with Guzman's performance.

"Guzman had been wild in a couple of earlier starts ... but he showed me he has that ability to keep hitters off balance," he said.

Incaviglia hit his 27th homer of the year in the eighth inning off reliever Scott Nielsen. Tom O'Malley, on base after a single, was sent home by the blast.

In the ninth inning, Harold Baines singled and Ivan Calderon doubled him to third, leading to Guzman's exit.

With Williams on the mound,

Baines scored as Greg Walker ground to third, and Calderon came around from second when Carlton Fisk singled.

Williams got his fifth save after retiring Jerry Hairston on a fly ball and Ken Williams with a strikeout.

The White Sox took a 2-0 lead in the first on Walker's bases-loaded single. Texas tied it in the fifth on run-scoring groundouts by McDowell and Mike Stanley.

Summerfield men selected to lead Cattlemen's Roundup

Bud Thurber and John Trotter of Summerfield have been appointed area chairmen for the Cattlemen's Round-Up for Crippled Children, according to Jim Alexander of Abilene, CRCC general chairman.

250 chairmen statewide are assisting the Cattlemen's Round-Up for Crippled Children fundraiser which benefits the West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene and San Angelo.

Aubrey Stokes, San Angelo attorney, is general co-chairman of this 18th annual event.

"The agricultural community has always believed in the philosophy of neighbor helping neighbor, and the Cattlemen's Round-Up is a prime example of that belief," says Shelley V. Smith, WTRC president/executive director.

"Livestock donated by ranchers are collected at a designated point in each community and transported to the auction site," Alexander explains. "The local chairman's job is to make a personal pledge, then ask others to join them in this drive which is anticipated to raise $300,000 this fall.

Sales of livestock are converted to dollars and the amount helps provide out patient treatments for the more than 11,000 handicapped children and adults who will be treated this year at the Rehab facilities.

Scheduled CRCC sale dates include Cattle Sale - Sept. 28 at Abilene Auction; Horse Sale - Oct. 3, Abilene Auction; Coleman Sale - Oct. 7; Stephenville Sale - Oct. 7; Junction Sheep & Goat Sale - Oct. 12; San Saba Sale - Oct. 15; and Brownwood Sale - Oct. 28.

The Round-Up idea began in Coke County back in 1960 on the late Conda Wylie's Fort Chadbourne ranch. He came to Shelley Smith with the suggestion that 20 top steers be cut from his herd and sold to help defray operational expenses at the Rehab Center. This spontaneous gathering of livestock continues to be a vital part of the Center's annual budget which is generated by donations, gifts and third party reimbursements.

Since its establishment 34 years ago, WTRC has always aimed toward treating the whole patient rather than just the handicap. Treatment and diagnostic services provided include physical, occupational and speech therapy, audiology, orthotics, psychology, education, social services, and diagnostic clinics. Patients are admitted by referral, and are treated without charge except for braces and hearing aids.

Persons wishing to make a donation of stock or cash should contact the local chairman or call Smith at WTRC-Abilene, 915/692-1633.

Keeping cool

For centuries, people have devised ways to keep cool in hot weather. Ancient Egyptians soaked the walls of their homes with water. In Rome, slaves hauled snow from the mountains to pack into the hollow walls of their masters' villas.

Farm and Ranch

Foreclosed holdings continue to increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The land taken over by banks and other lenders from farmers unable to repay loans is approximately equal to the combined area of Maryland and Delaware, an Agriculture Department analysis shows.

"Lender holdings are still increasing, but at a slower rate," the report said. "They have not peaked, but the credit crunch of the 1980s appears to be easing."

Although farmland prices have strengthened after declining a third nationally in the last five years, the report said no land boom is in sight. A large supply of farmland is on the market, preventing a rapid recovery.

Analysts said farms repossessed by lenders are not weighing heavily on the U.S. farmland market, although in some parts of the country larger property inventories have potential to depress local prices.

The report was prepared by a team of Economic Research Service experts, Jerome Stam, Greg Gajewski and Steven Koenig. They noted that many people are concerned that the inventory of farm property held by lenders has placed a lid on farmland prices in a relatively inactive market.

Four categories of lenders accounted for 74 percent of the $92 billion of farm real estate debt — excluding household debt — as of Dec. 31, 1986. The remainder was owed to "individuals and other lenders" who sold farms on contract or took morgages as part of the sales agreement.

"Little is known about the amount of acquired or reverted property held by this 'individuals and other lenders' group," the report said. "The focus here is on the four major categories of institutional lenders."

Holdings of the four groups are estimated at more than 7.96 million acres, valued at $3.81 billion.

The cooperatively owned Farm Credit System, which includes federal land bank associations, was estimated to hold 2.77 million acres of farmland and buildings, or 34.7 percent of the total taken over by the four groups. The value was estimated at more than $1.1 billion, or 28.9 percent of the total.

Life insurance companies hold 2.42 million acres, or 30.3 percent, valued at $1.44 billion, or 37.9 percent of the estimated total value.

The Farmers Home Administration's holdings were estimated at 1.58 million acres, or 19.8 percent. The value of FmHA holdings was estimated at $848.8 million, or 22.3 percent of the total.

Commercial banks were estimated to hold 1.21 million acres, or 15.2 percent, valued at $413.9 million, or 10.9 percent of the total.

To assess the possible impact of farmland holdings acquired by lenders through foreclosures and other means, the analysts examined today's situation within the context of the overall U.S. picture and past trends.

Some observations:

—The 7.96 million acres of acquired farmland represent 0.8 percent of the 1 billion acres in the U.S. total. The $3.81 billion value is 0.7 percent of the total value of all U.S. farmland and buildings.

—An agency survey of rural land transfers for July 1985 through June 1986 showed that 3.3 percent of the acres and 3.5 percent of the value of all rural land were transferred, or sold, during the period.

Consequently, land transfers determined from the survey "are well within the historical rule of thumb of 2 percent to 5 percent of farmland being transferred in one year."

—A transfer rate of 3.3 percent implies that an estimated 33.2 million farm acres exchanged hands per year. The four categories of lenders held 7.96 million acres, equal to 24 percent of the sales. In value, the groups held $3.81 billion worth of farmland, or less than 20 percent of estimated annual sales of $19.4 billion.

"So lender holdings of farmland are an important, but not dominating factor in the farmland markets," the report said. "Lenders do not sell all of their holdings in any single year. Consequently, the ratio of acquired property holdings to annual transfers overstates their likely importance."

The report added: "As a group, the life insurance companies, despite their major holdings, have been slow to sell farmland. And FmHA has been hampered in its attempts to sell large quantities by the Congress and the courts."

Analysts said "large regional differences exist" in farmland holdings by lenders and that the potential impact if more important in some areas than others. Those include the Farm Credit System's districts of St. Paul, Minn.; Omaha, Neb.; and Sacramento, Calif.

The FCS has tried to sell land as soon as possible without unduly affecting local land values, because "it needs the cash flow to help solve its own financial problems," the report said.

"Commercial bank holdings tend to be scattered among thousands of banks that are often limited by law as to how long they can hold acquired farmland," the report added. "So most commercial banks seek to sell their land within a fairly short time." Congress restricts FmHA sale and management of its inventory, and life insurance companies have taken more of a wait-and-see position.

"Some companies are actively trying to sell their acquired properties, but most have been content to hold the (land) as investments while they watch farmland prices," the report said. "Life insurance companies have come under increasing scrutiny by rural advocacy groups regarding their management policies. This probably will be a growing problem for all agricultural lenders."

Ag exports are rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new forecast by the Agriculture Department shows the value of U.S. farm exports may total $28 billion this fiscal year, up 4.6 percent from a decade low of $26.3 billion in 1985-86.

Officials said Thursday the actual volume of exports for the year ending Sept. 30 may total 129 million metric tons, up 18 percent from 109.5 million tons last year.

The new forecasts also are slightly more than USDA indicated in its previous report three months ago.

Exports are expected to rise again in fiscal 1988, both in value and quantity, although the report gave no figures for next year.

"Grains account for virtually all of fiscal 1987's 18 percent expected rise in volume, as lower U.S. prices, reduced competitor supplies and the Export Enhancement Program (EEP) increase the U.S. share of world grain trade," the report said.

But while the tonnages of major grain shipments are larger this year, their values are down. Virtually all of the increase in 1986-87 export tonnage was due to larger shipments of livestock, horticultural products and cotton.

Imports of agricultural products, meanwhile, are expected to be worth about $20.5 billion, down slightly from the record $20.9 billion in imports last year but $500 million more than the May forecast.

That would leave a U.S. agricultural trade balance of $7.5 billion this year, up from $5.4 billion in 1985-86.

Exports are of prime concern to U.S. policymakers and farmers. The EEP program, for example, subsidizes exports to targeted countries where competitors — mainly the European Economic Community — also have subsidized sales in an effort to gain a market edge.

Under EEP, the subsidies are paid to exporters as bonuses in the form of government-owned surplus commodities so the companies can sell U.S. products to the targeted countries at competitive prices.

Farm exports rose annually for a dozen consecutive years to a record of $43.8 billion in 1980-81 and a volume of 162.3 million tons before starting their slide.

Looking at next year, the report said, "Volume will rise as the United States retains its larger share of world grain markets and world grain trade increases. Export value could rise faster than volume as prices improve for bulk exports, and exports of high-value products continue expanding."

Halfway field day is Tuesday

HALFWAY — The ongoing efforts of scientists to improve the area's leading crop—cotton—will be featured at a stop of the 78th annual field day Sept. 8 of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Wagons will transport visitors to research sites at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station—

High Plains Research Foundation. The facility is located 14 miles west of Plainview on U.S. Hwy. 70. Tours will be conducted from 1 to 4 p.m.

Improving fiber quality to enable South Plains farmers to obtain premium prices for their crop is a continuing goal in research at the center, said Dr. John Gannaway, TAES cotton breeder.

A new challenge for the cotton breeder and farmer is the development of types of cotton suited to new farming systems, said Gannaway. The tour stop will emphasize work being done to meet these needs.

Other stops on the tour will feature the effects of climate and soil temperature on grapes; farming systems research and weed control; the adaptation of chemigation to center pivots and its use by the farmer, and studies on the amounts and methods of fertilizer applications for maximum benefits.

The Texas Forest Service will present red oak trees to 250 landowners who take the field tours.

Other features of the field day include displays of equipment, farm supplies and information booths.

The field day is a cooperative presentation of TAES, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the High Plains Research Foundation, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture-Agricultural Research Service and the Texas Forest Service.

TGSPB elects five

Five sorghum farmers were elected to the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board in mail balloting which ended on August 15.

They are Billy Bob Brown, Panhandle; Ralph B. Mabry, Lubbock; K.B. Parish, Springlake; Dale

K. Spurgin, McKinney; and Wilbert Vorwerk of Taylor. Mabry and Parish were incumbents. Spurgin and Vorwerk have served as appointed representatives to the board.

Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board (TGSPB) is a fifteen-member board elected by fellow-producers to administer the program of market development, research, and education that is conducted with sorghum checkoff funds. The TGSPB checkoff is eight-tenths cent per hundredweight and refundable.
