City experiencing a building permit rush

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Hereford has experienced an economic boomlet in the first half of 1993, especially when compared to the same period in 1992.

Value of building permits issued this year by the City of Hereford, from January to the end of June, amounts to $1,480,415, compared with a total of $286,812 during the same period in 1992.

Actually, the six-month total this year even exceeds the year's total for 1992. Boosted by a permit of $800,000 for construction of a nursing home, the '92 permits added up to $1,463,868. The city issued 95 permits during the year.

Although there was little difference in the number of building permits issued in the first six months by the city -- 47 last year and 50 this year -- the value of improvements and alterations is significantly higher this year.

More than $1.4 million issued in first six months of this year

In 1992, there were no permits issued for new homes during the first six months. Construction was permitted for two new homes, for a total value of $300,000, in the first six-month period in 1993.

A single commercial building permit was issued by the city in the January-June period of 1992. The $100,000 permit was taken out by Scott Oil Change.

Through the end of June of this year, 13 commercial permits have been issued, most of them for alteration or remodeling in two shopping areas of the city. Only one permit was issued for new construction, that for a $10,000 warehouse at 103 Cooper.

The largest permit so far this year was taken out by National Medical Care, Inc., for $265,000, for a facility in the North Gate Plaza shopping center.

Permits of $200,000 each were issued to Conway Oil Company for a remodeling job at 403 25 Mile Avenue, and First United Methodist Church for alterations in the church's fellowship hall and kitchen.

A $150,000 permit was issued Taylor and Sons for remodeling of space in Sugarland Mall for a new supermarket.

Several businesses are opening in the North Gate center. Anthony's applied for a permit for $85,000; Balfour Optical for $18,000; Francisco's for $7,500; Rick's Ice Cream Parlor for $12,000 and The Office Center, $12,000.

Other major permits have been issued to Little Caesars, $45,000; Calco Machine, Inc., $10,000, and Purma Mills, $50,000.

The 1991 building permit picture marked a low in the economic health of Hereford, as determined by construction, either new or remodeling and alterations.

On a total of 99 permits issued, the amount represented was only $831,350. In the first six months of that year, 39 permits were taken out for a total of $390,992 in construction.

The record for building permits in Hereford was set in 1985 when 168 jobs were listed with a value of $11,840,861.

Tending the stock

Robert Tierney, a California man riding through the Hereford area, treats a saddle sore on his horse, Buddy, as mule Amos watches. Tierney, who lost his right leg following a ranch accident four years ago, is riding across country to raise money to build a dude ranch in Tennessee for handicapped children. He will travel today from Hereford to Canyon.

California man rides horse to help build dude ranch

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

He looks and acts just like any other cowboy ending a day of hard riding -- he strips the saddles from his horse and mules, rubs them down, tends the developing saddle sores and throws out hay and oats.

Only then does he begin thinking about his own needs.

But that is about all that is common between Robert Tierney and a "normal" cowboy.

These animals and Tierney have just ridden into the area from San Diego, Calif., and they will pass through Hereford today en route to Tennessee and a dream of a dude ranch for disabled children.

Tierney is making the marathon ride in an effort at raising $75,000 for the Little Critters Dude Ranch, which he hopes to build in Lawrenceburg, Tenn.

In addition to wanting to have a place for handicapped children and their parents to go on a special vacation, Tierney has another interest in the project -- he is considered disabled as well, having lost a leg four years ago following a ranch accident.

Tierney said his dream for the camp began about 1-1/2 years ago. Now that 150 acres of land just north of the Alabama line has been purchased, he is trying to pay off the mortgage and build the facilities.

Assisting him are two leading handicap-accessible design architects, who will help the camp not only look like a dude ranch, but also have facilities that make it possible for disabled children to experience life on the ranch, including a working outhouse, guide rails in the stream for blind and crippled children, bunk beds with chair lifts and horse-drawn wagons with wheelchair lifts.

The camp will have several goals, Tierney said.

The first is to help make the children more self-sufficient, productive members of society.

He said he can still do 95 percent of the things he did before his right leg was amputated below the knee after he was trampled by a horse.

Because many parents of handicapped children tend to be over-protective, a parent will be required to attend the week-long camp.

But, the parents will stay in rooms across the street from their children and will be kept occupied during the week by helping out with ranch chores.

As the children participate in camp activities, they will also improve their self-esteem, Tierney said.

"It's my hope that after a week at this dude ranch, these children and their parents," he said, "will grow and become a little stronger."

An additional incentive to attend the camp, he said, will be the price.

Because, Tierney explained, 90 percent of children with disabilities have parents who are divorced, cost is important due to low income single parents raising a disabled child.

So, by renting the ranch out to commercial groups throughout the off-season, the camp will be able to offer its 14-week program to handicapped children at a low price.

Tierney said he hopes to build the ranch in the summer of 1995 with the help of civic clubs from across the U.S.

Tierney will leave Hereford today, riding toward Canyon. He is traveling alone, his previous companion having returned to California after riding as far as Clovis, N.M.

He said he welcomes traveling companions for a little or as long as they can ride.

Additional information about the camp is available by contacting the group at: Little Critters Dude Ranch, P.O. Box 1761, Imperial Beach, Calif., 91933.

Clinton prepares to go to economic meet in Tokyo

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton is preparing for next week's economic summit in Tokyo with polls showing his approval rating inching up and even Republicans offering support and saying he'll be perceived as the strongest leader there.

"When you leave the American border, we are all Americans," House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia said Wednesday as he wished Clinton well at his first summit of the world's seven major industrialized democracies.

"I think all Americans want the American president to be successful, and to be successful as leader of the world," Gingrich added.

Although Republican leaders have been harsh critics of Clinton on domestic matters, they gave the Democratic president a warm sendoff at a White House meeting Wednesday.

Clinton, whose approval rating has gone up in polls, leaves Monday for a weeklong trip to Japan and Korea. Staking a leadership claim in advance of the summit, Clinton on Wednesday called on Japan to open its markets, on Germany to lower interest rates and on all of Europe to end a stalemate over farm subsidies.

"It's very hard for the United States alone to grow jobs without help from other nations," Clinton declared.

Judge puts brakes on NAFTA; calls for study on environment impact

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal judge Wednesday blocked the Clinton administration from proceeding with its proposed North American Free Trade Agreement with Mexico and Canada until it prepares an environmental impact statement.

Clinton wanted Congress to approve the agreement by January, but preparing an environmental impact statement could take months or even years.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey ruled that the agreement negotiated last year by former President Bush and the president of Mexico and prime minister of Canada violates the National Environmental Policy Act.

"NAFTA will have significant environmental effects and ... may worsen the environmental problems already existing in the United States-Mexico border area," the judge said in a 23-page ruling.

He issued an order forbidding the Clinton administration from submitting the proposed pact to Congress until it first prepares a formal statement on its environmental impact.

White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said the administration had not reviewed the ruling, and had no immediate comment. "We just got this. We're not prepared to comment right now," she said.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., called Richey's ruling "an egregious and almost outrageous interference in the powers and prerogatives of the executive branch." He accused the judge of "pursuing his own environmental liberal agenda."

John Fitzgerald, an attorney for an environmental group, Defenders of Wildlife, called the court's decision the "legally prudent thing to do."

"The administration may have believed that the impact assessment would come later," Fitzgerald said. "But the trouble is, as Judge Richey recognizes, a decision after the fact is too little too late."

Richey ruled that former U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills and Bush violated the Administrative Procedures Act in negotiating and approving the agreement last October without first formally assessing its environmental impact.

"Such an impact statement is essential for providing the Congress and the public the information needed to assess the present and future environmental consequences of, as well as the alternative to, the NAFTA when it is submitted to the Congress for approval," the judge said.

Both the Clinton and Bush administrations had contended that the National Environmental Policy Act requiring impact statements on significant government actions affecting the environment did not apply to the free-trade accord.

They also claimed that subjecting the pact to environmental and administrative procedures laws unconstitutionally infringes on the president's right and ability to conduct foreign policy.

"The defendant conveniently ignores the fact that the power to regulate commerce with foreign nations is given to the Congress under the Constitution," Richey said, dismissing the White House arguments.

The judge ruled in a suit filed by three environmental groups - Public Citizen, the Sierra Club and Friends of the Earth - after Bush signed the accord last October.

Richey noted that terms of the agreement would allow it to pre-empt various federal and state domestic health and environmental laws, including pesticide residue standards and pesticide controls.

"For example, NAFTA could serve as a basis to challenge ... the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act ... as well as California's health and safety code that prohibits certain carcinogens in water and food," he said.

County jail inmate does not return after Amarillo doctor visit

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department is seeking a jail inmate who walked away from the facility last month to go to the doctor, but who never returned.

Spokeswoman Sharon Pennington said on Thursday that Domingo Guerrero, 51, had a doctor's appointment in Amarillo on June 24. Guerrero had court permission to ride to the appointment -- which was one of several with an orthopedic doctor -- with family members. On June 24, Pennington said, Guerrero picked up his X-Rays and left for the appointment as scheduled.

However, he never returned to the jail. Guerrero is described as a Hispanic male, 5 feet, 8 inches tall, weighing 200 pounds. He has brown eyes and black hair.

He is classified as a walkaway from the jail. Anyone with information about Guerrero's whereabouts is asked to call the department at 364-2311.

Rodriguez convicted of murder attempt; gets 10-year sentence

A verdict of guilty to aggravated assault was returned by a 22nd District Court jury Wednesday in the trial of Israel Rodriguez, 21. In the punishment phase of the trial, the jury assessed a 10-year sentence in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division.

Rodriguez was charged with attempted murder of his former girlfriend, Janie Torres Galan, on Oct. 24, 1992.

The jury was given the option of finding the defendant not guilty or guilty of one of three offenses, attempted murder, attempted voluntary manslaughter or aggravated assault.

In the decision, jurors agreed that Rodriguez used the pickup he was driving as a deadly weapon because he allegedly tried to run over Galan.

The victim testified Tuesday that Rodriguez pulled her from her home and, while driving to a country road, beat and slapped her. When she escaped from the pickup, she said, he tried to run over her.

The prosecution's case was concluded Tuesday afternoon. Only witness for the defense was Rodriguez, who testified Wednesday morning.

The jury began deliberations on the guilt phase of the trial at 1:58 p.m. Wednesday and returned the guilty verdict at 5:34 p.m.

In the punishment phase, no witnesses were called by the defense and the prosecution only introduced records of juvenile offenses committed by Rodriguez. Deliberations on punishment began at 6:55 p.m. and the sentence was announced at 8:02 p.m.

Formal sentence will be pronounced by District Judge David Wesley Gulley after completion of a pre-sentencing investigation.

Until sentencing, Judge Gulley set bond for Rodriguez at $20,000. Rodriguez is in Deaf Smith County jail in lieu of posting bond.

Probe of Lubbock schools set by education agency

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - State education officials will investigate whether the Lubbock Independent School District has violated its own policies and state law as a trustee has claimed.

The Texas Education Agency will visit the district in mid-July, the LISD announced Wednesday.

Linda DeLeon, a school trustee since 1986, alleged in her complaints that LISD officials sometimes fail to post meeting times of the school board and its committees. Also, Ms. DeLeon told the TEA, minutes kept during executive session aren't accurate.

Ms. DeLeon sued five of her fellow trustees in 1987, alleging they had conspired to limit her say in desegregation talks with the U.S. Department of Justice.

Recycling day postponed

Because of the July Fourth holiday, the monthly recycling day for July has been moved from this weekend to July 10 in the St. Anthony's parking lot, weather permitting. Recyclable materials will be collected that day from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. by EnCoRe volunteers and the city of Hereford. The following items are accepted: aluminum and steel cans; No. 1 and No. 2 plastics; glass containers; newspapers and white paper; and auto batteries.

Scattered showers in forecast

Hereford had a high of 84 Wednesday and a low of 63 this morning. KPAN recorded .08 of an inch of moisture Wednesday. Hereford had 1.81 inches of rain in June and the total is 6.52 inches for the year to date. The average for the first six months of the year is 7.91. Tonight, partly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms. Low is the upper 60s. South wind 10-20 mph. Friday, partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms. High around 90, with south wind 10-20 mph and gusty. The chance of thunderstorms will continue through the Fourth of July weekend.

Pro-choice supporters concede Medicaid ban vote hurts cause

WASHINGTON (AP) - Abortion rights supporters concede that the House's overwhelming vote to retain the ban on Medicaid abortions is a crushing blow and raises questions about future gains on the issue in Congress this year.

"Everybody thought this was a much more pro-choice Congress," said Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo. "We found out we were wrong."

The House voted by an unexpectedly wide margin, 255-178, on Wednesday to keep the 16-year-old ban.

It approved an amendment by Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., to outlaw public financing for abortions except when the woman's life is at stake or in cases of rape or incest. It was added to a Medicaid financing bill, which was then sent to the Senate.

Anti-abortion lawmakers said taxpayers don't want to finance the procedures; abortion rights advocates claimed poor women are being discriminated against.

President Clinton had proposed lifting the original amendment, which carries Hyde's name, and abortion rights supporters thought they had a shot.

"Now that we have a pro-choice White House, a pro-choice Congress, we expected a stronger social conscience," said Pam Maraldo, president of Planned Parenthood. "We expected a little less of the 'Let them eat cake' philosophy toward poor women."

"Sixteen years of policy - it's not an easy thing to reverse or undo," added Kate Michelman of the National Abortion Rights Action League. "We never expected to reverse everything within six months of electing a new president."

Wednesday's vote was the first test vote on abortion of the new Congress, which includes 114 newcomers. The freshmen vote reflected roughly how the rest of the House voted; about one-fourth of the Democrats sided with Hyde and the Republicans were nearly unanimous.

Among female members of the House, 37 voted against the Hyde amendment and 11 for it. Democratic women split 31-5 against it, while Republican women were divided, 6-6.

Anti-abortion lawmakers were gleeful about their victory.

"This sends a message ... that the House does not want abortion on demand," said Rep. Chris Smith, D-N.J.

Smith and allies declined, however, to seek a similar ban when the District of Columbia spending bill was approved later Wednesday. If the Senate follows suit, it would be the first time since 1987 the city could use local tax dollars to finance abortions.

Schroeder and other abortion rights lawmakers said the Hyde amendment loss signals trouble ahead for other congressional battles on abortion.

Those issues include the Freedom of Choice Act, which would limit restrictions states can impose, and a decision on whether abortion should be covered in the administration's health care package of benefits.

Schroeder said if anything, the funding vote shows lawmakers will have to accept limitations on the Freedom of Choice Act; conservative Democrats want to let states impose waiting periods and other restrictions.

Abortion rights forces said they have to do a better job of educating the public. For instance, they argue most Americans see the funding issue as one about taxes, not equity.

But anti-abortion forces said the White House should heed the House's vote and back off its plans to include abortion as a basic health care right.

Weather cooperates; shuttle comes home

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Space shuttle Endeavour returned to Earth today with six astronauts and their trophy - a huge science satellite they snared in orbit.

The shuttle glided through a clear sky and landed at 8:52 a.m. EDT at Kennedy Space Center, where the journey began 10 days ago.

For the first time in three days, it was a fine morning for a shuttle landing. Thunderstorms and cloudy weather had thwarted Endeavour's landing attempts the previous two days.

"It's nice to have you home," Mission Control's Curtis Brown told the crew after Endeavour rolled to a stop on the concrete runway. "It's great to be home," replied shuttle commander Ronald Grabe.

NASA's newest shuttle added 4.1 million miles to the odometer - nearly 1 million miles more than intended - and circled Earth 155 times. It was the space agency's 56th shuttle flight and Endeavour's fourth.

Mission highlights included retrieval of a European satellite loaded with science samples, solar monitors and a telescope, and a nearly six-hour spacewalk by two astronauts to push in the satellite's antennas and practice techniques planned for the Hubble Space Telescope repair mission.

The crew also broke in the world's first commercial space laboratory, called Spacehab.

Despite their success, the four men and two women were more than ready to come home.

"If we do this much more, we're going to know much more about each other than we all want to know," Grabe joked to Mission Control as he prepared to come down.

NASA was determined to land Endeavour at Kennedy if at all possible, rather than detour the shuttle to the backup landing site at Edwards Air Force Base in California. Endeavour's next flight is the Hubble repair mission in early December, and NASA needs as much preparation time as possible.

Endeavour's mission marked only the second time that bad weather delayed a shuttle landing two days in a row. Columbia ended up going to Edwards after two days of trying to land at Kennedy in January 1986.

Grabe's biggest concern about the extra two days in space seemed to be how much more water the astronauts had to drink. Fluid-loading is part of landing-day preparations for all shuttle crews to prevent dehydration and dizziness. Today was the crew's third day of swilling.

"We're already perhaps the most hydrated crew ever to be in orbit," Grabe said.

AHA urges caution in donations

The American Heart Association has issued a warning to Panhandle residents to be cautious when responding to requests for donations from non-profit organizations.

"Requests from organizations with similar-sounding names may confuse the donors and divert funds from intended agencies," said Howard Bailey, chairman of the board of the Amarillo AHA division.

"In particular we are concerned that the public may confuse the American Heart Association with other groups whose names include words like 'American,' 'National,' 'Heart,' 'Heart Disease,' 'Heart Research,' 'Cardiac,' 'Cardiovascular' and so on."

The American Heart Association, he said, is not:

- Heart Support of America.
- American Heart Disease Prevention Foundation.
- American Heart Research

PATIENTS IN HOSPITAL
Dorothea Barker, Wilma Davis, Manuel Gutierrez, Amado Guzman, Doris Hargrove, Norma Petty.

- Foundation.
- National Heart Savers Association.
- National Center for Cardiac Information.
- Heart Disease Research Foundation.
- Open Heart Foundation.
- National Stroke Foundation.

"Only one organization -- the American Heart Association -- has an unsurpassed record of fighting heart disease and stroke through research and education for almost 70 years," Bailey said. "Panhandle residents can look for our name and torch logo. Our trademark is their guarantee of fiscal responsibility and effectiveness."

Bailey said the Texas Affiliate and other AHA offices around the country have had numerous requests for information about such sound-alike and look-alike organizations.

"While the AHA does not wish to question any legitimate not-for-profit agency raising funds for cardiovascular research, we do want the public to understand that there is no relationship between these sound-alike groups and the American Heart Association," Bailey said.

In fiscal year 1991-92, Bailey said, the AHA spent 34.1 percent of its total funds raised on research, 31.5 percent on professional and public education, 13.1 percent on community services, 13.6 percent on fund raising and less than 7.5 percent on management and general expenses.

Officers installed for Hereford club

District Governor Mike Higgins of Amarillo recently installed the new officers of the Hereford Chapter of the American Business Clubs.

Installed were: Jerry Walker, president; Kathy Danley, first vice president; Floyd Nail, second vice president; Oscar Williams, secretary; Jim Culpepper, treasurer; and Randy Williams, sergeant-at-arms.

Plaques were presented to Oscar Williams, AMBUC of the Year, and David Retman, past president.

Members spouses were recognized as special guests at the installation. Hereford AMBUCS meet at noon Tuesday in the Ranch House Restaurant.

Insurance companies announce rates hike

AUSTIN (AP) - State Farm Insurance Cos. has announced it will raise property insurance premiums an average of 12.4 percent, and auto rates, an average of 8.3 percent.

Meanwhile, Farmers Insurance Group of Cos. raised statewide auto insurance rates an average of 5.7 percent effective Wednesday, with homeowners' insurance rates rising an average of 11.7 percent, effective Aug. 1.

State Farm on Wednesday cited weather-related losses and increasing claim costs as the reason for the rate hikes.

"We are concerned about the affordability of our products and regret that it is necessary to adjust our rates," said State Farm spokesman Charles Wirth.

"However, hail and wind losses in Texas have pushed up our claim costs," he said.

Rates will vary by coverage and location for individual policyholders. The new rates are effective immediately for new customers and will apply to existing customers as their policies are renewed.

Farmers Insurance blamed lawyers for their hikes.

"Attorney involvement in auto insurance claims rose by 60 percent from 1977 to 1988 industrywide," Mark Toohey, a Farmers spokesman, said. "Half of the money paid by insurance companies for injuries from auto accidents goes to lawyers and to pain-and-suffering awards."

Under Texas law, insurance companies can raise their rates without having to get state approval if the increases are within a certain range.

The rate changes are within that limit, but State Board of Insurance Chairwoman Claire Koriath said she was disappointed in the increase.

She urged consumers to shop around.

"The Texas Department of Insurance doesn't encourage people to leave one company for another. But we urge consumers to put in a little time and determine which companies give the best deals," Ms. Koriath said.

"Texas' competitive system gives consumers the opportunity to shop around for a better deal," she said.

The Insurance Department offers a free booklet called "Shopping Smart," which offers tips on saving money on insurance, she said.

Clinton offers $1 billion plan to end timber fight

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton is hoping to end the deadlock over the northern spotted owl and logging in the Northwest by severely scaling back timber harvests and injecting $1 billion to help ease the loss of logging jobs.

A timber plan to be announced at the White House today would reduce timber harvests to about one-third what they were in the 1980s when logging in federal forests west of the Cascade Mountains was at its peak, administration officials said.

To offset the economic impact, Clinton is offering more than $1 billion over five years for new jobs and retraining, economic development for businesses and community assistance, officials said.

The jobs will be mostly in watershed restoration and ecological programs, and the money would have to be approved by Congress.

The administration proposal comes nearly three months after Clinton at a forest conference in Oregon promised to resolve the longstanding dispute between loggers and environmentalists over protection of the threatened owl.

But it is not likely to end the fight.

Timber industry representatives and their allies in Congress already have said the proposed logging reductions - an annual drop from 4 million board feet in the 1980s to 1.2 million board feet - is too severe. Efforts will be made to increase the harvest, Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash., predicted Wednesday.

And either environmentalists or the timber industry - or both - may yet go to court to challenge the Clinton plan because it is either too restrictive or not protective enough.

Logging in the Northwest old-growth forests has virtually come to a halt because of a court-imposed moratorium. The court said the government was violating environmental laws in its timber sales because of damage being done to the habitat of the Northern spotted owl, an officially declared threatened species.

The administration's timber plan includes an owl protection scheme and logging levels that hopefully will satisfy the federal court and allow limited timber harvesting on the federal lands to resume, while also protecting the owl. It does not establish owl preserves free of logging.

But as the information about the plan emerged Wednesday, some Northwest lawmakers accused Clinton of going back on promises to help loggers and raising false hopes that many of their jobs might be saved.

"He offered workers and families hope for their jobs and hope for the future. Now those hopes are shattered," Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., declared in a Senate floor speech. He claimed the Clinton plan would cost as many as 72,000 timber jobs.

Other estimates have put the losses far lower than that, with one administration analysis showing a drop off in the range of 25,000 to 30,000 jobs.

Key elements of the Clinton plan, according to administration officials who spoke on condition of anonymity, include:

- Harvests in national forests west of the Cascade Mountains at an annual level of 1.2 billion board feet a year, compared with more than 4 billion board feet at the timber heyday of the 1980s. The harvest levels could be higher in the early years to allow timber sales that already are in the pipeline, officials said.

- Reserving some sections of old-growth forest where salvage logging and thinning would be allowed only if an interagency team determines the practices would not be detrimental to the spotted owl habitat.

- Creating 10 "adaptive management areas" in which local governments and community groups would work together to allow both logging and protection of species.

Convicted killer executed today for 14-year-old crime

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Convicted killer Curtis Paul Harris was executed early today for using a tire jack 14 years ago to fatally club a motorist who had stopped to help Harris and his brother with their disabled car.

Harris, 31, and his brother, Danny, both were sentenced to lethal injection for bludgeoning Timothy Merka, 27, of Mumford, in what became known as the "Good Samaritan" killing.

Merka had been flagged down by the Harris brothers the night of Dec. 11, 1978 when their car broke down on a rural Brazos County road.

When Warden Jack Pursley asked Harris if he had a final statement, Harris replied "No," then said "No" again.

He was pronounced dead at 12:27 a.m. CDT, eight minutes after the lethal drugs began flowing into his arms.

Harris' execution was the second this week in Texas. A Houston man, Markham Duff-Smith, was executed early Tuesday for arranging the killing of his mother so he could collect his inheritance.

Curtis Harris was 17 at the time of the Merka killing. His brother was 18.

Their disabled car had been stolen earlier by companion James Manuel and they flagged down Merka, who worked at nearby Texas A&M University, to give them a battery jump.

Testimony showed Danny Harris held down Merka, who was pleading for his life, while Curtis beat the man with the tire tool. Then they emptied his pockets, took his wallet and drove home to Bryan with his pickup truck.

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) - Mary Jo Buttafuoco has settled her lawsuit against Amy Fisher and the Long Island teen-ager's parents.

The terms of the settlement, reached Tuesday, were not disclosed.

Fisher, 18, is serving five to 15 years for shooting Mrs. Buttafuoco in the head. Fisher claimed to be having an affair with Mrs. Buttafuoco's husband, Joey, who denied the allegation. He is awaiting trial on statutory rape charges.

Mrs. Buttafuoco had sued for $150 million, claiming that Fisher's parents had failed to "exercise the necessary and proper parental influence, supervision and authority" and should have sought psychiatric help for her.

Mrs. Buttafuoco also settled with Peter Guagenti, who is serving a prison sentence for supplying Fisher with a gun.

The U.S. launched its first weather satellite, Tiros 1, on April 1, 1960.

Manuel received a 25-year prison term for his part in the killing. He was released in 1989. Another person at the murder scene, Valerie Rencher, testified against the brothers and received no prison time.

The execution came after defense attorneys unsuccessfully sought an appeal from the U.S. Supreme Court. Harris' lawyers contended jurors improperly were selected in his trial and that jurors were not allowed to consider his mental retardation when they considered his punishment.

Harris, an eighth-grade dropout, suffered severe brain damage inflicted when his alcoholic father struck him repeatedly with a 2-by-4 board, leaving a permanent dent in his head, Harris' attorney, Kevin McDonald, said.

Danny Harris, 32, has come within a few hours of execution before winning reprieves. The U.S. Supreme Court this week also rejected an appeal in his case and a July 30 execution date was set.

Harris' execution was the seventh this year in Texas and 61st, tops in the nation, since the state resumed capital punishment in 1982.

Prison officials improved an intercom system introduced into the death chamber for the Duff-Smith execution Tuesday. The speaker system, which made Duff-Smith's comments nearly inaudible, was changed to include bigger speakers and more powerful microphones.

Two teams shot a 30 in the weekly event. The team of Dave Darnell, N.D. Kelso, Scott Taylor and Earl Yocum took second place on a scorecard playoff. Third place went to the team of Rick Hopping, Steve Stevens, Don Summersgill and Martha Jones.

The weekly scramble is open to all interested golfers. Players who sign up for the event are placed on teams on the basis of A-B-C-D handicaps. Merchandise prizes are awarded to members of the winning teams.

Trade shakes up top of NBA draft

By MIKE NADEL

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - Chris Webber tried on the Orlando cap and it fit perfectly. He hugged his parents in celebration, and his father shed tears of joy.

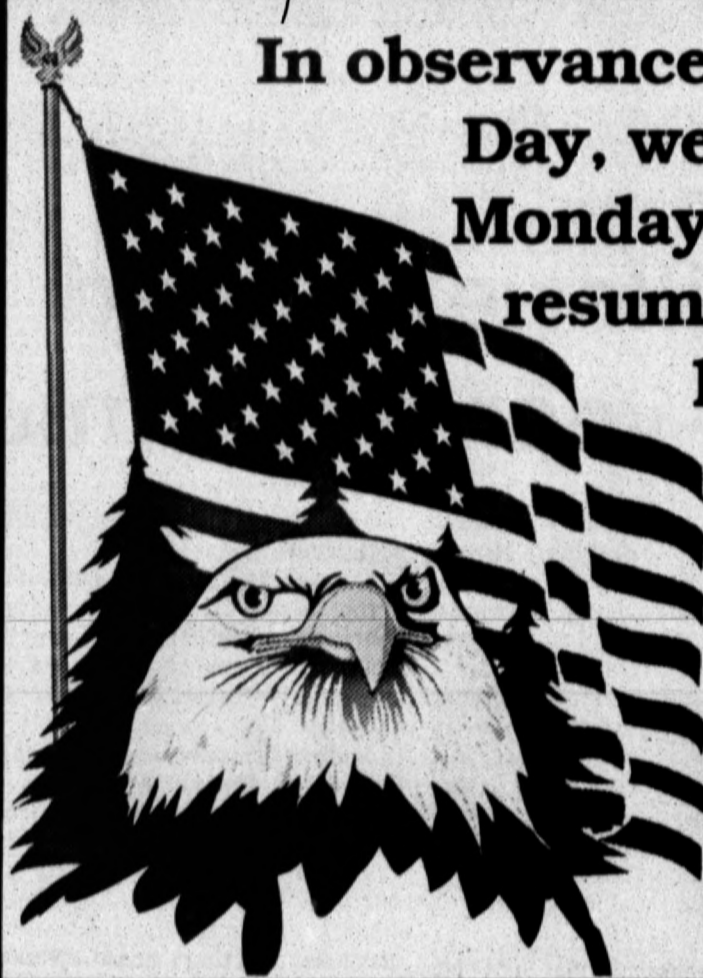

Fifteen minutes later, Webber's Magic ride was over. "It was the best career of my life," he said. "I went out undefeated." The Magic will never go unbeaten. But Orlando used Wednesday's NBA draft to surround Shaquille O'Neal with quality players who will make it tough to beat for years to come.

The Magic waited for the Philadelphia 76ers to take 7-foot-6 Shawn Bradley and for Golden State to choose guard Anfernee Hardaway. Then they sent Webber to the Warriors for Hardaway - the player they claim they wanted all along - and three future No. 1 draft picks.

After the trade was announced, the crowd at The Palace, site of the

Two Kids Inc. titles decided

Championships were decided in two Kids Inc. leagues in games played Wednesday night.

The Cardinals took the major girls' softball tournament with a 9-5 win over the Rangers in the championship game. The Cardinals also won the regular season championship.

An unfortunate turn of events decided the Babe Ruth League regular season championship. The White Sox were leading the Astros 19-6 in the bottom of the fifth inning when the White Sox committed a violation of pitching rules, forcing the Sox to forfeit the game.

According to Kids Inc. rules, if a pitcher goes as much as four innings in a game, he must have two complete off-days before pitching again. A White Sox pitcher who had pitched four-plus innings on Monday, according to Kids Inc. records and umpires, pitched Wednesday, forcing umpires to rule the game a forfeit and give the league championship to the Astros.

Novotna knocks off Navratilova

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Jana Novotna spoiled Martina Navratilova's bid for a 10th Wimbledon title today, upsetting her 6-4, 6-4 to reach the final for the first time.

Novotna will play the winner of the semifinal between two-time defending champion Steffi Graf and Conchita Martinez.

The 36-year-old Navratilova had not lost a set the entire tournament, but she was completely outplayed by Novotna. The eighth-seeded Czech dictated the play with her sharp serves, including six aces, and precise chip returns and passing shots.

Novotna covered the court with ease, running down Navratilova's best shots at the baseline and volleying with power and placement. Navratilova, meanwhile, couldn't seem to do anything right.

It was Novotna's first victory over Navratilova in eight matches. It marked a major breakthrough for the 24-year-old Czech, who has long been noted for her talent but rarely produced against the top stars.

Every service game was a struggle for Navratilova. She faced a break point in all but two of her service games, while breaking Novotna only once.

Novotna broke Navratilova three times in the first set. Navratilova, down 1-5, closed to 4-5, but Novotna served out the set in the next game with an ace down the middle.

Novotna took the advantage in the second set when she broke for a 2-1 lead, as Navratilova netted a low backhand volley. Navratilova saved three break points at 3-1, two with netcorids, and another at 4-2. But Novotna served out the match at 30, with Navratilova hitting a weak backhand return into the net.

Novotna dropped to her knees and let out a scream, then covered her mouth in disbelief.

In Friday's men's semifinals, top-seeded Pete Sampras plays No. 4 Boris Becker and No. 2 Stefan Edberg faces No. 3 Jim Courier.

It's the first time since 1927, the year seedings were introduced, that the top four men have reached the Wimbledon semifinals. It's the eighth time in the Open era that it's happened at a Grand Slam tournament.

Written off before the tournament, Andre Agassi had something to prove. He lost his title but made his point.

Agassi came in as the No. 8 seed, the lowest of any defending Wimbledon champion. Having played only one match in two months because of a wrist injury, he was given little chance of making a big impact this year.

Yet, Agassi advanced as far as the quarterfinals, where he gave top-seeded Pete Sampras a battle before succumbing in five sets Wednesday. Along the way, he charmed the crowds and provided plenty of copy for the tabloids.

"I think I proved a lot to the people and to myself," Agassi said after a 6-2, 6-2, 3-6, 3-6, 6-4 loss to Sampras. "Things could have gone a lot differently. I could have gone out early. But I went out and competed well and had my chances."

Mavs have easy decision, select Mashburn

By ARNIE STAPLETON - AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - For once, the Dallas Mavericks were in a no-lose situation.
 The Mavericks, coming off one of the worst seasons in NBA history, selected Kentucky's Jamal Mashburn with the fourth pick in Wednesday night's draft.
 Dallas, relegated to the No. 4 pick despite owning the league's worst record at 11-71, wanted either Mashburn or Memphis State guard Anfernee Hardaway, who would have teamed with last year's fourth pick, Jim Jackson, to create the Mavericks' backcourt of the future.
 But Golden State chose Hardaway with the third pick before trading his rights along with three first-round draft picks to Orlando for the rights to Michigan's Chris Webber.
 That was fine with the Mavericks. "Building like we are right now, we could use either one of them," said Rick Sund, the Mavericks' vice president of basketball operations.

"For us to be very competitive in our target years - three or four years from now - we need to have a forward that you can count on getting 20 points a night, and we think Jamal has that capability," Sund said.
 "On the other hand, had Anfernee been there he would have been a very fine backcourt mate for Jimmy Jackson. So, either way, we were very, very satisfied with what was going to happen for us."
 New Mavericks coach Quinn Buckner said he felt Hardaway would be gone by Dallas' turn, and he saw no reason to lament.
 "I knew we would get a good player," Buckner said. "People have asked me about the lottery, and that's just one of the things you don't control. This one we couldn't influence or control."
 "We got a really good player. It's not like we didn't need someone to help us at that position."
 Mashburn said going to Dallas was "better than being picked No. 1."
 "This is definitely exciting," he said. "It's a situation that you can come into and play and make some mistakes without a lot of pressure. I just want to go in there and play. I'm ready to suit up right now."

 Mashburn, the fourth straight underclassman taken in the draft, did everything for Rick Pitino's Wildcats, averaging 21 points, 8.4 rebounds and 3.6 assists as Kentucky reached the Final Four. He has good range on his jump shot, making 37 percent from 3-point range.
 Mashburn said he felt he could take his game up a notch in the NBA.
 "I think I'll be a better pro than I was a college player because it's one-on-one and if someone double teams you I'm able to kick it out to a shooter or somebody cutting to the basket," Mashburn said.
 Minus the chance to choose Hardaway, the Mavericks went with a physical guard with excellent shooting range with the first pick of the second round: 6-foot-7 Lucious Harris. The leading scorer in Long Beach State and Big West Conference history, Harris averaged 23.1 points and shot 41 percent from 3-point range last season.

 Dallas selected Michigan center Eric Riley with the 33rd pick, then sent his rights to Houston for the rights to power forward Ron "Popeye" Jones, the 41st selection in last year's draft.
 Jones is under contract for another year with Milano Teorematour in Europe, where he averaged 21 points and 13.3 rebounds last season and dropped his weight from 270 pounds to 248.
 Mashburn, however, was Dallas' money pick. He should command more than $20 million and serve a vital role as the Mavericks pick up the pieces of a shattered franchise.
 Pitino, who calls Mashburn the "summa cum laude of basketball," has said Mashburn was talented enough to be the first pick, and Buckner agreed.
 "Jamal is that good," said Buckner, who promised to test

Mashburn at small forward, power forward and even some at shooting guard.
 "I fit in anywhere," responded Mashburn. "It doesn't matter where I'm at, just as long as I'm on the court."
 Mashburn said he was eager to make a name for himself.
 "I want to make my own footsteps," he said. "So, I'm just going to try to be a Jamal Mashburn, not anybody else. Not Magic Johnson. Not Michael Jordan. Not anybody else."
 The Mavericks considered Hardaway the better all-around talent but Mashburn the better fit as they come off a season in which they challenged the NBA's futility record before eking out 11 victories, a franchise low but two more than the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers, the worst team in history.

The Mavericks also had the fourth pick last year and drafted Ohio State's Jackson, who held out for 54 games before agreeing to a six-year, $21 million deal, the biggest in team history and the largest ever for an NBA rookie guard.
 The Mavericks and Mashburn could reverse the recent trend of top picks holding out into training camp. The Mavericks have enough money under the salary cap and Mashburn said he was eager to sign a deal and get to camp.
 "I'm in a situation where I can grow and take my bumps and bruises and I can develop as a player," Mashburn said. "I just want to get suited up in a Mavericks uniform and go play."
 A player eager to sign, excited to be going to Dallas? The Mavericks might just be turning things around.

Rockets have feeling about Cassell

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ - AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich had that good feeling again.
 He had it last year when he made the unpopular choice of choosing Robert Horry in the first round of the NBA draft and he had it again Wednesday night when he made Florida State's Sam Cassell the 24th pick in the draft.
 "Here's a guy we talked about his physical traits, his quickness, his ball handling and being able to play two positions that helps him," Tomjanovich said. "But the clincher was the mental attitude the kid has."
 "He's played on a team that had a lot of personalities and he seemed to be the glue that held them together."

 Fans boomed a year ago when the Rockets chose Horry over Southern California's Harold Miner.
 Horry started 79 games for the Rockets and averaged 10.1 points and helped push the Rockets to the second round of the playoffs.
 "Rudy said he had that good feeling that he had last year when we picked Robert Horry," General Manager Steve Patterson said. "Rudy has been very high on him since the beginning."
 "He gives us a player who can play both spots. Over time, we'll see how he develops. He's got the versatility to play both spots."

Cassell averaged 18.3 points in his two seasons with the Seminoles and helped them to the NCAA final eight last season. He set an NCAA tournament record with seven straight 3-point baskets against Tulane.
 "I think I can come in and contribute a lot defensively," Cassell said. "I think it was my defense that impressed the coaches about me. I know how to keep the big guys happy and I think I can score too. That won't be a problem."
 Cassell will get a chance to work with Hakeem Olajuwon, the NBA defensive player of the year last season.
 Olajuwon also was a first team selection for the fourth time on the All-NBA defensive team. He led the league with 5.1 blocked shots per game, ranked second with 14.1 rebounds and was fourth in scoring at 27.1 points per game.
 Cassell was among the players who worked out for the Rockets prior to the draft.
 "I felt good, I answered all their questions and I had a good feeling about them too," Cassell said. "They told me their game plan."
 Cassell said he was familiar with Rockets starting guard Vernon Maxwell, a former Florida player.

"He's a very feisty player," Cassell said. "I've followed his career at Florida. He won't back down and I won't either. We both want what's best for the team and to improve."
 Cassell, a native of Baltimore, Md., played two seasons at San Jacinto Junior College in nearby Pasadena, Texas, where he averaged 22.3 points over the two seasons.
 "It's like coming back home for me," Cassell said. "Going back to Houston won't be a culture shock for me."
 The Rockets selected UCLA's Richard Petruska and Argentina's Marcelllo Nicola with two second round selections and they also made a trade with Dallas that brought them Michigan center Eric Riley, the Mavericks' second round pick.
 The Rockets gave up Popeye Jones, their 1992 second round pick, to get Riley.
 "He was in a situation at Michigan where they brought in the Fab Five and he'd been a highly recruited player," Tomjanovich said. "I think he's a little better than what people saw there because he didn't get the minutes."
 "If he'd gone to another school he'd have been drafted higher."

NBA DRAFT
 draft and home of the Detroit Pistons, boomed lustily. Webber, the 6-9 forward from Michigan, and Hardaway, Memphis State's do-everything guard, then walked onto the stage. They posed for photographers, trading hats and smiles.
 The two future millionaires then shared a long hug.
 Both players wanted to run with Shaq; only Hardaway will get the chance.

"I thought I was a Golden State Warrior - for about two minutes - but I'm definitely glad to be a Magic player," said Hardaway, a fine passer, ballhandler and shooter who can play point guard, off-guard and forward.
 "I was glad to see I caused all that trouble," he said, referring to the trade. "Somebody obviously had respect for me to do that."

Mets finally win two consecutive games

By The Associated Press

Two-peat
That was the word used in the New York Mets' clubhouse Wednesday night after beating the Florida Marlins 7-1 at Joe Robbie Stadium. It was the first time the last-place Mets won two in a row since mid-April, a span of 65 games.

The 65-game slide tied the 1980 Seattle Mariners for fourth place on the all-time list. The major league record is 80 straight games by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1915.

The Mets, 23-52, finished 6-21 in June to fall 28 games behind first-place Philadelphia, the most ever at the end of the month since divisional play started in 1969.

"Two-peat, first time in history of '93 Mets," manager Dallas Green joked. "I get excited about all wins. I like to win."

Bret Saberhagen pitched an eight-hitter to improve to 4-7. All four of his victories are against the expansion Marlins and Colorado Rockies.

New York had 14 hits, including four from Joe Orsulak and Eddie Murray's solo homer.

Elsewhere in the NL it was Chicago 4, San Diego 1; Montreal 9, Pittsburgh 1; Cincinnati 5, Houston 4; Atlanta 3, Colorado 2; St. Louis 9, Philadelphia 3; and Los Angeles 5, San Francisco 3.

Cardinals 9, Phillies 3
Mark Whiten homered and drove in four runs as St. Louis cut Philadelphia's lead in the NL East to 6 1/2 games at Busch Stadium.

Donovan Osborne (6-3) pitched 6 2-3 innings for the win and Tommy Greene (9-2) was the loser.

Expos 9, Pirates 1

Larry Walker homered and drove in three runs as Montreal routed Pittsburgh at Olympic Stadium. Walker was 7 for 11 with two home runs, three doubles and four RBIs, and Montreal outscored Pittsburgh 18-3 in the last two games of the series.

Mike Gardiner (1-2), making his first start of the season, was the winner and Jeff Fassero pitched four hitless innings for his first save of the season. Denny Neagle (2-3) was the loser.

Reds 5, Astros 4

Brian Williams walked Gary Varsho with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning to give Cincinnati the comeback victory over Houston at Riverfront Stadium.

Randy Milligan hit a pair of solo homers for the Reds.

Jeff Reardon (2-1) pitched the ninth inning for the victory and Al Osuna (1-1) was the loser.

Dodgers 5, Giants 3

Eric Karros snapped a seventh-inning tie with a run-scoring single as Los Angeles beat San Francisco at Dodger Stadium.

The Dodgers scored twice in the seventh after Jose Offerman drew a one-out walk from reliever Kevin Rogers (0-2).

Braves 3, Rockies 2

Greg Olson's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning lifted Atlanta over visiting Colorado.

Ron Gant, who hit his 17th homer in the fourth inning, opened the inning with a double and scored on Olson's fly ball to center.

Mark Wohlers (2-0) pitched two scoreless innings for the victory and Keith Shepherd (1-2) took the loss.

Cubs 4, Padres 1

Sammy Sosa had his fourth two-homer game this season, and Rick Wilkins and Mark Grace also connected, as Chicago swept the three-game set against San Diego at Jack Murphy Stadium.

Jose Guzman (7-6) allowed one run and six hits in 6 2-3 innings. Randy Myers pitched the ninth for his 24th save.

Wally Whitehurst (2-5) gave up two runs in taking the loss.

Valenzuela shuts out Blue Jays

By The Associated Press

When Fernando Valenzuela and Dave Stewart are mentioned in the same breath, it's usually a reference to June 29, 1990, the night they became the only pitchers to throw no-hitters in different games on the same day.

They finally got to pitch against each other on Wednesday night, and Valenzuela came out on top, throwing a six-hitter that led the Baltimore Orioles over the Toronto Blue Jays 6-0.

Against the Blue Jays, Valenzuela (3-7) struck out two and walked none as he won for the first time in five starts, escaping a none-out, bases-loaded jam in the second inning.

In other games, New York beat Detroit 7-0, Seattle beat Minnesota 5-3, Oakland beat California 5-4, Boston beat Milwaukee 12-2, Cleveland beat Chicago 4-2 and Texas beat Kansas City 5-4.

Harold Baines drove in three runs and had three hits as Baltimore ended Toronto's four-game winning streak. Rangers 5, Royals 4 hit consecutive home runs in the sixth inning for Texas.

Rafael Palmeiro and Juan Gonzalez

Brian Bohanon (3-1), activated from the 15-day disabled list prior to the game, allowed one run and five hits in five innings. Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his 15th save in 18 chances.

Mark Gardner (4-5) gave up five runs and eight hits in six innings for visiting Kansas City.

Indians 4, White Sox 2

Wayne Kirby singled in the go-ahead run in the seventh as Cleveland extended its winning streak to six, its longest since Sept. 17-22, 1990, and finished its homestand 10-3.

Dennis Cook (5-4) pitched two-thirds of an inning for the victory, and Jeremy Hernandez got six outs for his fourth save.

Yankees 7, Tigers 0
Mike Stanley hit his fourth career grand slam and Jim Abbott (5-7) allowed three hits in eight shutout innings as Detroit completed an 0-9 road trip.

David Wells (9-3), tagged for six runs and seven hits in five innings, lost his second straight start.

Mariners 5, Twins 3

Randy Johnson (10-4) fanned 10 for his fifth straight double-figure strikeout game, allowing two runs and six hits in eight innings at the Metrodome.

He increased his major-league-leading strikeout total to 157, and struck out 10 or more for the 31st time. Norm Charlton pitched the ninth Athletics 5, Angels 4

Brent Gates homered, doubled and drove in four runs in the first two innings as Oakland won for the 13th time in 15 games against visiting California.

Joe Boever (2-2) gave up two hits and struck out three in 3 2-3 shutout innings. Dennis Eckersley pitched the ninth for his 16th save.

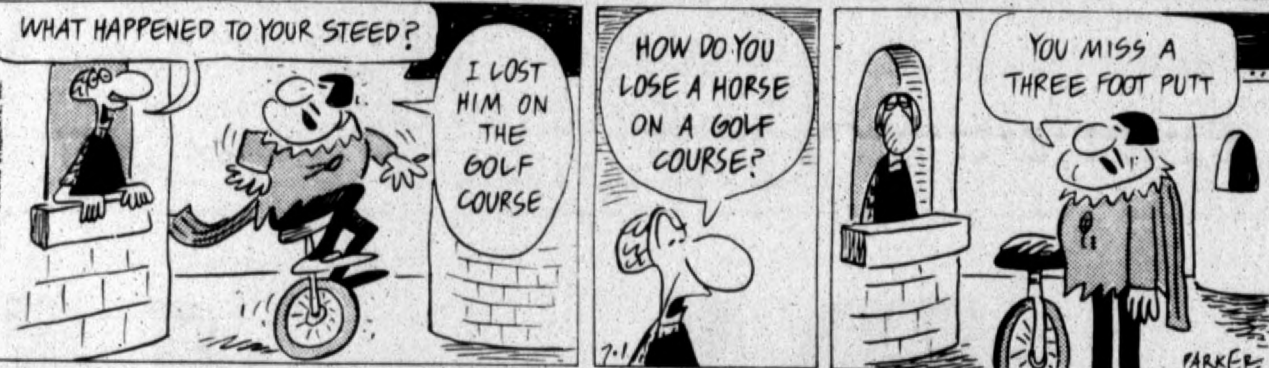

Red Sox 12, Brewers 2

Carlos Quintana had three of Boston's 15 hits and drove in three runs. Scott Cooper and John Valentin drove in two runs each as the Red Sox finished their homestand with an 8-1 record.

Danny Darwin (7-7) won for the seventh time in 10 decisions, allowing two runs and six hits in eight innings.

Electric campers

Seven Deaf Smith County students recently attended a Southwestern Public Service Co. electricity camp in New Mexico. They built "hands-on" projects, participated in demonstrations and heard lectures on basic electricity, safety, wiring and electrical terminology. County agents and SPS employees served as advisers and instructors. More than 115 4-H members from the Panhandle attended the June 21-25 camp. Shown are county participants: back, from left, SPS senior marketing representative Steve Hardy, County Agent Jay Johnson, adult leader Jill Johnson, Brian Betzen and Justin Scott. Front, from left, are Krista Warren, Amber Vasek and Julie Lueb.

In-depth review of super collider team is ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) - Troubled by accusations of poor management at the super collider, Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary has ordered an in-depth review that could result in a shakeup of the team building the giant atom smasher.

O'Leary, who strongly criticized the performance of the collider's managers during a House Energy and Commerce oversight subcommittee hearing Wednesday, said the review will be completed in 30 days.

One focus of the probe is whether the Energy Department should terminate its management contract with Universities Research Association, the non-profit consortium of universities now overseeing construction of the collider in Texas.

Other options, O'Leary said, include renegotiating the contract to strengthen Energy Department oversight and dividing the contract into two components: construction and scientific work.

The director of the collider laboratory, Roy Schwitters, had scant comment when asked in an interview about the review, which he said he hadn't heard about until Wednesday's hearing.

Asked if O'Leary's comments suggested that his job and those of other top managers were in jeopardy, Schwitters replied: "I don't know what the details of her 30-day review are. I can't answer it until I understand better."

Announcement of the review comes just six days after the House voted for the second consecutive year to kill the collider, now estimated to cost $10 billion or more.

While O'Leary didn't question URA's handling of the science issues, she took consortium officials to task for not properly overseeing the project and its costs.

"The attitudes of the leadership of the (super collider) laboratory are simply unacceptable to the standards of this Department of Energy, this administration and to me personally," O'Leary told the panel during a daylong hearing.

She wasn't alone in her criticism. Government auditors and committee chairman John Dingell portrayed URA as in over its head building one of the world's biggest construction projects.

"The SSC ranks among the worst projects we have seen in terms of plain contract mismanagement and failed government oversight," said Dingell, D-Mich.

He and other witnesses also criticized URA for not meeting longstanding demands by Congress and the Energy Department for an adequate cost-accounting system to track the hundreds of millions of dollars already spent on the project.

"They don't have the cost systems in place to effectively manage the project," said Victor Rezendes, who is in charge of the General Accounting Office's audits of collider contracts.

The GAO, DOE inspector general and others chronicled the difficulties they have had auditing records, saying that collider managers sought to thwart outside scrutiny.

Dingell repeatedly scolded collider officials throughout the hearing, at one point lecturing Schwitters after being displeased by an answer.

URA President John S. Toll and other collider managers offered little defense against the onslaught by Dingell and other lawmakers, but did say their consortium has done its best to manage a hugely complicated project.

"I do believe the URA overall is well qualified," he said.

"I believe if you look at it, the management of this laboratory by the URA is one of the best bargains the federal government has."

Saying that he was disturbed by reports that URA officials were uncooperative with outside investigators, Toll promised that his agency would cooperate in the future.

Toll conceded that the DOE inspector general's findings that $203 million in contracts had not been properly documented were probably correct. "We are criticized for not documenting that enough and that may be an appropriate criticism," he said.

Wombles attend USS Shangri La crew reunion in Wyoming

Benny and Joan Womble of Herford returned Monday from Buffalo, Wyo., where they attended the 10th annual reunion of the USS Shangri La Association.

Womble served on the aircraft carrier for about six months in 1946. At that time the war was over and the carrier was operating from a base in San Diego, CA.

"The carrier had a big turnover of crew members at that time," said Womble. "The Navy used it for short-timers who lacked a few points before becoming eligible for discharge." Because of the situation, Womble said he didn't meet anyone at the reunion that he remembered.

The reunion was hosted in Buffalo by Charlie Brown, who was a "plank owner" of the Shangri La. In Navy parlance, that means he was a crewman on the ship when it was first commissioned in 1944.

About 150 former crewmen and wives attended the reunion. Womble estimated that about 90 crewmen were present and about 25 to 30 "plank owners" were recognized. Next year, the reunion will be held in Norfolk, VA.

Womble said the carrier had a wartime crew of about 3,500. Only 2,000 were on the ship during Womble's short term of duty.

The Shangri La had a unique history. On April 18, 1942, Gen. James Doolittle led his squadron of Army B-25 bombers off the deck of the USS Hornet for the raid on Tokyo. The Japanese thought they had sunk the Hornet earlier in the South Pacific, so when the press asked President Roosevelt about the launch site, he responded: "Let's say they came from Shangri La."

Immediately, there was a special war bond drive to raise funds to build a USS Shangri La. It was launched at the Norfolk navy yard on Feb. 24, 1944, and christened the USS Shangri La by Mrs. Doolittle. The Shangri La took her place with the carrier force in the South Pacific, and she was launching aircraft when the Japanese accepted the unconditional terms of the Allied command on Aug. 16, 1945.

In May of 1946, the Shangri La was in Norfolk to load radio-controlled aircraft and their "mother" planes to take part in Operation Crossroads to test the effects of the atomic bombs at Bikini Atoll. During the next 24 years, the ship was decommissioned several times for major overhaul and modernization including installation of the new heavy duty steam catapults and the canted, or angled, flight deck. The ship took part in the Viet Nam conflict.

Her final decommissioning was in 1971, and in 1988 she was sold for scrap to Taiwanese ship breakers.

Teenage girls killed in 'animal-like' attack

HOUSTON (AP) - Two teenage girls were subjected to "one of the most vicious, sadistic, animal-like attacks I've ever seen" after they stumbled across a gang initiation rite and were raped and strangled, a law enforcement source says.

The source was not identified by the Houston Chronicle.

Six members of the Black N White gang were gathered at a railroad trestle last week for the initiation of two new members when the two girls walked past them, police said.

The initiation, which required that the two "wannabes" fight the existing gang members, was accompanied by a lot of drinking, police said.

Officers said Elizabeth Pena, 16, and Jennifer Ertman, 14, left a friend's apartment to walk to Miss Pena's house and took a shortcut through the woods.

"I think it was purely a crime of opportunity... these girls happened along, and they were in the wrong place at the wrong time," said Houston Police Department Lt. John Silva.

When the attack on the girls began, Silva said, the two would-be gang members left, but none of the six gang members attempted to stop the assaults.

"They all participated in the rapes and the strangulations," prosecutor Ted Wilson said.

Charged with capital murder and held without bond are Peter Anthony Cantu, 18, Derrick Sean O'Brien, 18, Efrain Perez, 17, Raul Omar Villarreal, 17, and Jose Ernesto Medellin, 18.

A source told the Houston Chronicle that the girls were forced to submit to "just about every sex act you can imagine, and a few you just couldn't imagine."

Some of the men arrested told police that after the girls stopped moving, the six took turns jumping up and down on their bodies, to make sure both were dead.

Cecelia Rodriguez feted with bridal shower

Bride-elect honored

Cecelia Rodriguez, shown with her mother Mary Rodriguez, was feted with a bridal shower July 26 in Hereford State Bank. The honoree and Marcos Vasquez plan to wed Saturday.

Cecelia Rodriguez, who will marry Marcos Vasquez Saturday, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday, June 26, at Hereford State Bank.

The honoree and her mother, Mary Rodriguez, welcomed shower guests. Cynthia Daniels registered guests and Verline Shipley and Brenda Milam served refreshments of mini cinnamon rolls, fresh fruit, quiche and banana punch.

The table, which carried out the bride-elect's chosen colors of pink and ivory, was decorated with a fresh green plant accented with mauve silk flowers.

The hostesses presented Miss Rodriguez with a mixer, loaf dish, bath rug set, can opener, crock pot, toaster, kitchen rug, canister set, soup bowls, sandwich plates, glasses, measuring cups, cake pan and loaf pan.

Hostess duties were shared by Amanda Almazan, Wynona Blair, Nell Rhoton, Cindy LaComb, Nancy Gonzales, Ginger Gaddy, Lydia Montgomery, Bertha Salazar, Lola Smalts, Vonnie Elliott, Debbie Holmes, Faye King, Brenda Milam, Debbie Gonzales, Martina Rojas, Opal Walterscheid, Madeline Rosson, Charlene Sanders, Reni Mason, Cynthia Daniels and Verline Shipley.

Vet Science Day Project set July 8

The Deaf Smith County 4-H will be sponsoring a Vet Science Day Project beginning at 9 a.m. July 8.

Current topics in the beef industry will be discussed and the group will take a tour of a local feedyard to learn the basic nutrition, processing and management practices.

Hints from Heloise

Q. My husband and I love flour tortillas. We have recently begun watching our fat intake due to health reasons and I am concerned that flour tortillas are high in fat.

Because the brand we buy doesn't have the nutritional information on the package, how can I find out how much fat they contain? — R.C., El Paso, Texas

A. Depending on the manufacturer, a 9-inch flour tortilla can have 1 to 3 grams of fat and 65 to 150 calories. If your favorite brand doesn't give nutritional information on the packaging, write or call the company.

The Nutrition and Dietitian Hotline is very helpful with questions like yours. It is staffed with registered dietitians who can give you reliable nutrition information.

They also have information on dietitians in your area, recorded nutrition messages and written materials on a wide range of topics.

The toll-free number is 1-800-366-1655 (TDD is available), and registered dietitians are available to answer your nutrition questions from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. (Central Time) Monday through Friday.

ALUMINUM PIE PAN

Dear Heloise: If a recipe calls for cooking meat or anything on a rack in a roaster and you don't have one, an aluminum pie pan (the kind a frozen pie comes in) may be used instead.

Take an ice pick and punch a few holes in the bottom of the aluminum pie pan and turn it upside down in the roaster. The pie pan can be made to vary from round to a bit oval so it will fit your roasting pan. — Lee Boatright, San Angelo, Texas

Youth bread-in-a bag workshop scheduled

Making bread-in-a-bag will be a 4-H special interest project scheduled from 9:30 a.m. until noon Wednesday, July 7, in the ballroom of the Hereford Community Center.

Youth, third grade students through 19 years of age, may enter the event. They will learn the basics of bread making and will be given facts about the grains used in milling flours for grain. They will also be given rules for the County 4-H Bake Show to be held Aug. 4.

Each youth will leave the workshop with an unbaked loaf of bread which may be held under refrigeration until evening and baked for the families' evening meal.

Size of the workshop will be limited and reservations are necessary by calling the county extension office at 364-3573. Reservations must be made no later than 3 p.m. Friday. A $1 supply fee will be required of each participant and may be paid as the workshop begins. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Degrees awarded at Texas Tech

More than 1,800 students at Texas Tech University received degrees during the spring commencement exercises.

Those from Hereford were Robert Wayne Backus, bachelor of science degree; Jason Eric Bullard, bachelor of business administration degree; Charles Allan Hund, bachelor of science degree; Christopher Howard Johnson, bachelor of science degree; John Mark Strom, master of science degree; and Jeffrey Franklin Wheeler, bachelor of fine arts degree.

The language used by more people than any other is Mandarin, spoken by an estimated 68 percent of China's population, or about 770 million people as of 1990.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent-H.E. FOOD SAFE: FREEZING FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Freezing is a simple and fast method of preserving foods at home that keeps the natural color, fresh flavor and food value of most fruits and vegetables better than any other method of food preservation.

Steps To Success in Freezing Foods-Good Quality Food--

Careful selection of foods to be frozen is important. The food coming out of the home freezer or the freezer locker will be no better than it was before it was frozen and stored.

Careful preparation--

Speed in preparation is necessary. Promptness in handling, chilling and freezing any product helps retain quality. It is necessary to control the growth of bacteria, yeasts and molds and to stop the chemical action of enzymes. Follow the instructions carefully in the preparation of any food for freezing.

Proper Packaging--

The purpose of packaging or wrapping food is to keep it from drying out and to preserve food value, flavor, color and pleasing texture. Packaging materials should be moisture-vapor-proof to prevent evaporation and to retain the highest quality in frozen foods. Glass, metal, rigid plastics and some treated cardboard containers are moisture-vapor-proof packaging materials suitable for all packs, and are especially good for liquid packs. Food packed in rigid containers should have an air-tight seal. Be sure the lid is on straight and, if needed, use freezer tape to insure an air-tight seal where the lid and container come together.

Bags and sheets of moisture-vapor-resistant extra heavy aluminum foil, polyfilm or polyethylene-lined papers are suitable for dry-packed vegetables, fruits and meats. Bags can be used for liquid packs, but are less convenient than rigid containers. Plastic bags should have an air-tight seal. Fill bags, leaving enough head space to make a "goose neck" twist. To make the goose neck twist, squeeze air from filled bag, twist top, turn over about half way, and tie with freezer wire or rubber band. Bags and foil sheets are used with or without outer cardboard cartons to protect against tearing. Bags without a protective carton are difficult to stack.

Label containers with the name of the fruit or vegetable and the date frozen. If a food locker is rented, include the locker number on the package.

Loading the Freezer

Freeze fruits and vegetables soon after they are packed. Put them in the freezer a few packages at a time as they become ready, or keep packages in the refrigerator until all are ready. Then transfer them to the home freezer.

Put no more unfrozen food into a freezer than will freeze within 24 hours. Usually this will be about 2 to 3 pounds of food per cubic foot of freezer capacity. Overloading shows down the rate of freezing, and food that freezes too slowly may lose quality or spoil. For quickest freezing, place packages against freezing plates or coils, leaving a little space between packages so air can circulate freely. After food is completely frozen, arrange in freezer so that food frozen longest will be used first.

For more information on freezing specific fruits and vegetables call the County Extension Office at 364-3573 and ask for pamphlet L-2215 to be sent to your home.

that she needs to go faster.

I have pointed out that her speed is no faster than mine, since the distance between us remains constant. (Just as passengers in the front seat of a car travel at the same speed as those in the rear.)

Can you explain her need to keep ahead of me? Is she perhaps making a "statement" asserting her independence or showing her athletic prowess? Can it be that she is ashamed to be seen with me, although I consider myself quite presentable? She denies all the reasons I've stated and insists that her motive is to get more exercise. What are your views on this?--Single File Husband in Washington

DEAR S.F. IN WASHINGTON:

Exercise, my foot. Ever hear of "body language?" Your wife, without realizing it, is demonstrating real hostility.

People who feel warmly about one another often hold hands when they walk together, sometimes locking arms if it's an informal setting. At the very least, they walk side by side so they can chat. The problem you have written about suggests that there are deeper problems in your marriage than walking single file. Perhaps you ought to look into this.

Gem of the Day: You know you are getting old when the only whistles you get are from your hearing aid.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ORLANDO: Many books have been written about the importance of holding and hugging infants and young children. When this does not occur, children grow up alienated, distant and unable to show affection.

Those "cold fish" are almost always victims of a cold fish, and they hand down that same miserable legacy to their unfortunate children. Too bad.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whenever my wife and I walk anywhere, she invariably gets ahead of me so that we are traveling single file. When I ask her to walk beside me, she says that my pace is too slow and

Whole grains yield hearty benefits

Both refined grains and the products made from them have been stripped of their natural goodness.

Commonly listed as white flour, wheat flour or enriched flour, refined grains are almost devoid of the fiber and important nutrients that were intact in the original grain. This adulteration has changed a wholesome food into a food fragment containing little nutritional benefit and very little character.

Fiber-rich whole grains and whole-grain flours have been the focus of many scientific studies demonstrating the reduced risk of diverticulosis, colon and rectal cancer and atherosclerosis. Diets containing adequate fiber inherently tend to be lower in fat and calories, especially saturated fat and cholesterol, which many contribute to the reduced risk factor.

Fiber is filling and, because it contains so few calories, is an excellent part of the low-fat, high-complex carbohydrate diet recommended for better health.

Experts at the Department of Transportation point out that many allergy medications make you drowsy. If you are taking one that does, don't drive.

Women's nutrition facts

Each year, approximately 247,000 women in the United States die of heart attacks and more than 90,000 die of strokes. These statistics are prompting some women to adopt new eating habits.

When preparing meals at home, it is important to choose foods carefully and check labels to make sure the meals you prepare are nutritionally balanced. When dining out, pick a restaurant with a varied menu.

Most food labels list the units per serving of six specific factors: calories, protein, carbohydrates, fat, cholesterol and sodium. Here's a quick overview of each and the effects they have on our health:

Calories. A calorie is a unit of heat energy derived by the body from food. Exercise causes the body to "burn" calories.

Protein. Protein is the basic structural material for all plants and animals. An excellent energy source, protein can be found in such foods as meat, fish, poultry, eggs, milk and cheese.

Carbohydrates. Carbohydrates are made up of multiple units of simple sugars connected to each other. When carbohydrates are eaten, they are ultimately broken down into glucose, a single sugar, which is then converted to energy. Some sources of carbohydrates are vegetables, cereal, rice, bread, pasta, nuts, fruits and grains.

Fat. Fat is a body substance which does not dissolve in water but does dissolve in organic substances. Fat is not all bad; it is a concentrated form of energy. However, eating large amounts of fat can increase the chances of developing cancers of the colon, breast, uterus, bone and lung. It is also associated with an increased risk of heart attack or stroke. Many authorities suggest that, for most people, the maximum percentage of daily calories from fat to be 30 percent.

Cholesterol. Cholesterol contributes to the formation of sex hormones, skin oils and digestive juices. Since it is produced naturally by the liver at a rate of one to two grams a day, it is really not necessary to take in any additional cholesterol. Every food that comes from an animal contains some cholesterol. This includes eggs, cheese, meat, milk, poultry and fish. Plants and plant oils do not contain cholesterol.
