Residents unrealistic about water bills, assessor says

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County Fresh Water District No. 1 Tax Assessor Blanca Hernandez said Tuesday that some of the people of the Labor Camp want for free what it costs the water district to supply. In response to remarks made by Labor Camp residents to the Hereford City Commission Monday night, Hernandez also said that some of the households may have more than one family living in the home, causing higher water use.

"They don't come to our meetings when they are invited. They don't believe us when we say the water rates are needed to run this business," Hernandez said of the constituents.

"Before this board took over, there was just a water supervisor," Hernandez explained. "He would let people slide on their bills and not charge them enough to upkeep the equipment. When something needs to be fixed or replaced, we have to come up with the money from someplace.

When this board took over there was no surplus of funds to fix things."

The water board is currently made up of four voting members and Hernandez. Members are president Maria Alejandre, Francis Arrenondo, Maria Vasquez, and Salvador Mirales.

"All 160 residents of the Labor Camp were notified of a meeting to raise water rates. Only four people showed up. The board and everybody in attendance approved of the raise," said Hernandez. "Nobody wants to do anything but complain. They want everything to be free."

Hernandez said that when the current board took over, the cost for water was low. The cost for 10,000 gallons of water was $5.

In 1978, the water board received a grant from the Housing and Urban Development Department. The money provided by HUD paid for the initial construction and got the water board on its feet.

"Since then things break down. In the beginning they did care about what to do if something broke. They misspent the money and almost ruined the business. We cannot get another grant from the government. We have to make this work," said Hernandez.

"These people do not understand expenses. Every winter meters break and lines freeze. If a meter is broken, we fix it without any expenses to the customer."

"You really can't believe what they tell you. Those people who showed their bills to the paper and the city commission said they lived alone, but in reality they may be sharing the water with three families. They do not mention all the people who live with them part-time," Hernandez said.

Parking Lot Underway

Workers prepare the corner of Main and Fourth streets for a planter box. The area that used to be the Star Theater is soon to become a parking lot for the First National Bank. The $200,000 project will take about 60 days to complete and will include the parking

Dispute disrupts consideration on aid, sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Partisan squabbling in the Senate is making it unclear when, or if, the chamber will vote on imposing sanctions on South Africa or approving President Reagan's plan to provide aid to the Nicaraguan Contras.

The acrimony erupted Tuesday as the Senate tried to unsnarl a tangled legislative agenda which threatens to delay next week's recess.

The day's action was marked by often-heated exchanges in a chamber known for courtliness and compliments even among long-time political adversaries.

The issues involve whether to impose sanctions against South Africa's white-ruled minority government, and approval of Reagan's package of $100 million in military and other aid to the U.S.-backed Contra guerrillas fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The fight interrupted consideration of a huge defense spending bill. When the issues couldn't be resolved, the Senate simply gave up for the night and went home. Unless the dispute is resolved, leaders of both parties have said, the Senate might be forced to delay its scheduled Aug. 15 recess date.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., started the fight when he offered an amendment which would have attached the sanctions package to an unrelated bill authorizing the Pentagon's budget for the next fiscal year.

Kennedy's measure encompassed sanctions approved last week by the Foreign Relations Committee, including a ban on new U.S. investment in South Africa, a ban against South African planes landing in the United States, and a prohibition against imports from companies controlled by the South African government.

That angered Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who ended up proposing his own amendment to also attach the Contra aid money to the Pentagon bill.

The Senate has been divided on both issues and opponents, chiefly senators against Contra aid, have threatened to filibuster.

That is possible because Senate rules permit unlimited debate which can only be shut off by 60 votes for a cloture motion. That margin is difficult to achieve in a chamber where Republicans hold a narrow 53-47 edge.

Dole has blocked consideration of the sanctions package until Democrats agree to permit a vote on Contra aid. Many of the supporters of sanctions are opponents of Contra aid, and vice versa.

When Kennedy offered his amendment with support from Minority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., Dole angrily responded by charging that supporters of sanctions had violated an agreement last week not to "sneak" amendments onto the defense bill.

Byrd then became angry himself and asked several times if Dole's "sneak" comment referred to Byrd.

"Are you referring to me when you said sneaked?" the irate Byrd kept asking.

Dole refused several times to directly answer, then finally said, (See DISPUTE, Page 2)

Lugar warns that wheat deal with Soviets could trigger subsidy war

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard Lugar says the Reagan administration's wheat subsidies to the Soviet Union, begun as a political concession to Senate Republicans, could cause a subsidy war that will collapse commodity prices.

Lugar said Tuesday that the GOP urgency to extend the sales bonuses to the Soviet Union stemmed in part from belief that labor is mounting a $10 million political assault in five Midwestern Senate races that could jeopardize the Republicans' hold on the chamber.

But Lugar, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he believed any short-term political gain would be more than negated by the serious damage to U.S. alliances and the "free fall" in grain prices that could duplicate what has happened in the oil industry.

"American farmers will realize a subsidy war could drive prices even lower," Lugar said, noting that Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., is pushing for even more subsidization of farm exports. "A trade war is not in our best interests, either on a domestic level or in foreign policy."

Despite his misgivings, Lugar, R-Ind., said he was sensitive to the political motives behind the Soviet grain subsidy, which Dole had been seeking for months before it was announced Friday.

"The majority leader and others of us have picked up political intelligence that the AFL-CIO is planning to spend a total of $10 million in five grain states," Lugar said. "They are hoping to spend as much as $2 million per state ... to affect the races there and possibly the control of the Senate."

Republicans' hold on the Senate may well hinge on the outcome of November's races in farm states, including the five Lugar said were targeted by the traditionally Democratic labor organization: Wisconsin, Oklahoma, Idaho and North and South Dakota.

AFL-CIO spokesman Rex Hardesty, in Chicago for a union meeting, said of Lugar's assertion: "It's absolutely untrue. We would dream that we would have that kind of money. We don't."

The union has, however, targeted 19 of the 34 Senate races in a concentrated effort to help the Democrats win control of the Senate, now dominated 53-47 by the GOP. Hardesty said the union probably will narrow that list to 13 in September and 10 in October.

Dole also has made his concerns about continued control of the Senate plain, but said after Lugar's comments that he had not been aware of any specific AFL-CIO plan.

The split in the government between domestic and international politics also was reflected Tuesday in the House, where the Democratic leadership abruptly pulled from its agenda a bill broadening export subsidies after it was overwhelmingly opposed by the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Session opens today

White favors temporary tax

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby insists the only responsible solution to a predicted $3.5 billion state budget deficit includes a tax hike to avoid cuts in crucial services.

But House Speaker Gib Lewis, in whose chamber any tax bill must originate, vowed Tuesday to block any tax hike.

With the House and Senate leaders at odds on solving the problem, Texas legislators were to gather at 10 a.m. today for a 30-day special session called by Gov. Mark White.

Legislators were eager to hear White's plan, which the governor planned to detail in a speech to a joint session today. Although White has said budget cuts should be the first weapon in battling the deficit, published reports have said he is keeping an open ear to a tax hike.

Lawmakers who met privately with White Tuesday said he was looking at proposing the expansion of the sales tax to cover goods and services that are now exempt. Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said

White made it clear that such a move would have to be coupled with a decrease in the sales tax rate.

Lewis said he would fight a tax hike, even if pushed by White.

"Give us time to plan our way out of this crisis, not tax our way out," he said Tuesday as he announced his plan to eliminate 8,000 state jobs, reduce state salaries by 3 percent and make other cuts that could save $1.2 billion.

The speaker said his plan would get the state by until the regular session, which convenes in January.

"Asking the citizens of this state to pay more taxes in the height of a recession is not the solution and it could compound our problems in future years," Lewis said.

Hobby said he would stick with his plan, which includes raising the state sales tax from the current 4.125 percent to 5 percent.

"I think that's clearly the best thing for the state," Hobby said.

The decision to drop the charges came from acting 222nd State District Judge Marvin Marshall of Plainview.

Blockades causing traffic jams

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Authorities are warning El Paso residents not to drive to the border city of Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, because a blockade of two bridges has clogged the remaining routes with heavy traffic.

Opposition party members said Tuesday that the protest, originally planned to last 48 hours, would continue for two more days. Supporters of the National Action Party, PAN, took over two bridges Sunday night to protest alleged fraud in July 6 election congestion caused by the blockade of two of the four international bridges linking the cities.

Traffic jams created by the blockades have sparked a number of fights among impatient motorists, El Paso police Sgt. Hank DiMatteo said.

Francisco Barrio, former mayor of Juarez and a PAN candidate for governor, said about 8:30 p.m. MDT Tuesday that the protest would continue for two more days.

Wildfires char 100,000 acres

By The Associated Press

A helicopter crashed, killing four people en route to a Colorado brush fire that proved to be a false alarm, as 2,700 firefighters from six states headed to Oregon and Washington to battle wilderness blazes covering 57,000 acres.

Four wildfires also continued to rage in Idaho after charring 43,000 acres.

In western Colorado, three firefighters were being flown Tuesday from a blaze near Delta to Hotchkiss, where a fire had been reported, when the copter crashed in the rugged Gunnison Gorge. The three and the pilot died.

The report of the Hotchkiss fire turned out to have been a false alarm, said Doug Huntington, a Bureau of Land Management spokesman. The cause of the crash was under investigation.

In Oregon and Washington, gusty winds fanned scores of fires Tuesday and 2,700 firefighters were en route from Montana, Idaho, Utah, Arizona, California and Alaska, said Mike Ferris, spokesman for the U.S. Forest Service in Portland, Ore.

Hundreds of firefighters battling the blazes also have been hampered by low humidity and 90-degree temperatures.

Demos review Rehnquist memos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats, looking for new ammunition to challenge William H. Rehnquist's nomination to be chief justice, are reviewing documents Rehnquist wrote as a Nixon administration lawyer.

The Reagan administration, hoping to keep Rehnquist's Senate confirmation on track, agreed to show the Senate Judiciary Committee memos dealing with Rehnquist's role in controversial Nixon administration policies.

The memos from Rehnquist's stint in the Justice Department were written from 1969 to 1971 when he was chief legal adviser to then-Attorney General John Mitchell under President Nixon. They involve domestic wiretapping and the administration's plans for dealing with Vietnam War protesters.

All 18 senators on the committee and six staff aides — three Republicans and three Democrats — were permitted to look at the documents but not to copy them.

Military disciplined many for drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Holding out its own campaign against drug abuse as a model for President Reagan's proposed crackdown on government workers, the Pentagon says it has discharged 51,000 servicemen for misusing drugs and disciplined another 92,000 between 1983 and 1985.

Dr. William Mayer, assistant defense secretary for health affairs, told reporters Tuesday the military's war on drug abuse cost about $175 million a year.

Reagan on Monday endorsed mandatory testing of government employees who "have the health of others, the safety of others, in their hand," citing air traffic controllers as an example. People in the military services are subject to unannounced urinalysis testing at any time.

Mayer credited an emphasis on education and rehabilitation as well as punishment for forcing down the incidence of drug abuse from 27 percent of the active-duty force in 1980 to 8.9 percent in 1985.

'Star Wars' survives two attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's proposed budget for "Star Wars" anti-missile research faces more attacks from congressional opponents after surviving two attempts to cut deeply into the program's budget.

The Senate on Tuesday twice rejected by the same 50-49 margins proposals to limit next year's Star Wars budget to increases of only 3 percent, and then 15 percent, after inflation.

But the program, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative, still faces sharp reductions as the Senate and House consider parallel bills authorizing the Pentagon's budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Reagan wants a 77 percent hike for SDI to $5.3 billion, but the bill on the Senate floor would provide only $3.95 billion, a 28 percent increase over the program's current $3.1 billion budget.

The measure being considered by the House would give the SDI project $3.8 billion.

International

S. African sanctions draw conflicts

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Sanctions against South Africa come at a time of vast internal reforms, a pro-government broadcasting organization said today, and suggested that the measures were marked by hypocrisy.

However, the South African Broadcasting Corp. said in its commentary that it is clear "that the momentum of sanctions will be slowed only if there is total capitulation by South Africa to demands that most would find totally unacceptable."

The commentary followed the Commonwealth summit in London that ended Tuesday, in which Britain endorsed limited sanctions and six other countries — Australia, the Bahamas, Canada, India, Zambia and Zimbabwe — adopted harsh measures against South Africa to protest apartheid.

By law and custom, apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in which South Africa's 24 million black majority has no vote in national affairs. The 5 million whites control the economy and maintain separate districts, schools and health services.

Six Deaf Smith County 4-Hers will compete at the annual State 4-H Trap & Skeet Shoot today through Saturday. The competition has been transferred this year from San Antonio to the Greater Houston Gun Club on the outskirts of Texas' largest city. While the 4-Hers are in Houston they will be treated to a baseball game in the Astrodome with the division leading Houston Astros hosting.

Over 600 4-Hers from Texas will participate in the annual shoot. Those 4-Hers from Deaf Smith County include Audy Sciumbato, Cameron Betzen, Aaron Savage, Kirby Kaul, Shawn Sciumbato and Justin Thomas. Adult 4-H leaders attending will include Albert Sciumbato and Pat Betzen.

The 4-H Parent Leaders Association for provide funds for the trip.

$898,998 awarded

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Public Safety will be awarded $898,998 by the U.S. Customs Service as its share of the loot seized in a South Texas drug raid, U. S. Sen. Phil Gramm announced Tuesday.

The money came from a raid carried out Feb. 6 at the Kingsville airport by DPS officers, customs agents and the Kleberg County sheriff's department.

WATER

Hernandez said the water board looks over the water consumption of each household and compares it to previous months.

"We do have cases of the meters being wrong, but we investigate them and try to fix the meters if they are broke," Hernandez said.

"We did see a customer's water usage jump a great deal last month. We have went out to her house and tried to contact her but she was not there," Hernandez said. "We have been waiting for her to come in to complain but she has not shown up. Instead she goes to the city commission and the newspaper."

Hernandez said that each time the board considers a raise in rates, it calls the State Water Commission to see if it is still following state standards. "According to them (the state), we are lower in our rates than most communities our size."

"They told us in Austin that as long as we have a five-member board and followed the rules and regulations set by the state water board, they could complain all they wanted. Austin said that we are OK," Hernandez said.

SESSION

by falling oil prices, has sent lawmakers and lobbyists scrambling for solutions.

Fred Mason of the Texas Taxpayers Coalition, which includes conservative religious groups, Tuesday said spending cuts were a must.

"We demand that our legislators resist the lobbyists and special pleaders and examine those (state government) departments for places to cut spending. They are all huge agencies, which makes inefficiency and waste inevitable," Mason said.

Officials from 33 chambers of commerce statewide met in Austin Tuesday to discuss the budget crisis. A spokesman said no votes were taken during the private meeting, but the group's mood was clear.

"There was a consensus, particularly among those who spoke, that it would take a combination of tax increases and budget cuts," said Sam Bell, manager of the Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce. Lewis said increased taxes are out of the question because many Texans cannot afford them.

"A fellow that got laid off, when he and his wife had a job they had two cars. Some of them are having to sell one of them. It's inconvenient as heck for that guy to have to wait for his wife to come home before he can go do the shopping," Lewis said. "That's what we're talking about. It's no different."

Lewis said his plan would make no significant cuts in public education spending, and no cuts at all for state prisons and state facilities for the mentally retarded and mentally ill.

DISPUTE

"If I said that, I didn't intend it."

Dole responded snappishly to Kennedy charges that Republicans were blocking consideration of the sanctions bill. Senate procedures give the majority leader wide-ranging authority in setting the chamber's agenda.

"I agree that South Africa is important, but a lot of other things are important, too," he told Kennedy. "Why don't we spend some time on problems in this country?"

Byrd, like Kennedy, complained about Dole blocking a vote on sanctions. "I've had enough of this business of having the majority leader stand here and act as a traffic cop on this floor," the agitated Byrd said. "He determines who will call up an amendment, what will be in that amendment, and when we will vote."

Dole defended himself, telling Democrats that "When anybody's the leader, they're going to take a little heat. If you don't want to pay the penalty, don't try it. I didn't become the majority leader to lose."

The Contra aid package had been approved earlier Tuesday by the Appropriations Committee as the panel sent to the floor a bill that includes the Contra aid as part of a measure appropriating money for Pentagon construction projects.

Convert wins gubernatorial

By The Associated Press

A black former Democrat is the choice of Michigan Republicans to challenge Gov. James Blanchard and backers of three GOP presidential aspirants are seeking a silver lining in a murky delegate election that pushed the 1988 campaign off to an early start.

In Kansas, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole crushed a Republican primary opponent Tuesday and now faces a general election campaign against Guy MacDonald, an unemployed Wichita schoolteacher, who was the surprise winner of the Democratic primary.

A surprise loser in Michigan was three-term Rep. Mark D. Siljander, upset in the Republican primary by Fred Upton, one-time aide to David A. Stockman when he represented the district in the House.

William Lucas, the Wayne County official whose conversion to the GOP was hailed last year by President Reagan, defeated three rivals Tuesday in the Michigan gubernatorial primary.

Bidding to become the nation's first elected black governor, Lucas was receiving 44 percent of the vote to outdistance Richard Chrysler, a businessman who spent nearly $3 million of his own money.

Vice President George Bush, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and the Rev. Pat Robertson were watching the slow tally of votes in the election of thousands of Republican precinct delegates in Michigan, the first step in a process that will determine the makeup of the state's delegation to the 1988 GOP National Convention.

Results of the contests may not be known for days but that didn't stop all three camps from declaring how pleased they were.

"The vice president's support is a mile wide and a mile high here," said Rich Galen of Bush's Fund For America's Future.

But W. Clark Durant, spokesman for Kemp's Michigan Opportunity Society, said Bush did not do as well as expected.

In Iowa City, Iowa, Robertson said he was "enormously encouraged."

"The reason that I am encouraged is because No. 1, the evangelicals in Michigan got into the political process with great gusto," he said.

"Blanchard received more than 93 percent of the Democratic primary vote against a follower of political extremist Lyndon LaRouche.

The Siljander-Upton contest was dominated by a controversy over a tape recording on which Siljander, who won a special election to succeed Stockman in 1981, asked local ministers for support to help "break the back of Satan."

Upton said the message unfairly equated him with Satan.

Conceding defeat, Siljander said, "The tape did it. That's just the way it goes."

Missouri also held primaries and former Republican Gov. Christopher Bond and Democratic Lt. Gov. Harriett Woods brushed aside opponents and resumed attacking each other in the battle to succeed retiring Democratic Sen. Thomas Eagleton.

Kansas House Speaker Mike Hayden topped a field of seven Republicans and will run against Lt. Gov. Tom Dooking to determine who succeeds Democratic Gov. John Carlin. Dooking is the son and grandson of former governors.

Burial will follow at West Park Memorial Cemetery.

Mr. Miller received his Doctorate of Pharmacy from the State of Arizona and was a certified pharmacist in Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona.

Michigan Republicans got the jump on the nation by kicking off the presidential campaign more than two years before the national convention. None of the precinct delegate candidates were identified on the ballot with any presidential aspirant and all were free to shift alliances as often as they wished between now and 1988.

A poll by NBC News said that 40 percent of the Republican voters Tuesday said they favored Bush. Kemp and Robertson each had the support of 9 percent of the 2,552 people questioned.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Through the years I've managed to read your column all over the world. You have influenced many an important decision I made in my teens and in later life as well.

This letter is in reference to the woman who resented her husband's ex-wife using their son as an excuse to keep in touch with him. Your advice, as usual, was right-on.

I waited until 34 to marry because I believed God would provide the right partner and I was willing to wait for him. He did. But Edward, who had been divorced for five years, came packaged with a few "extras."

Three days before we were married Edward's ex-wife tried to commit suicide. It was her solution to battling a cocaine habit which she somehow managed to hide from her family. The 15-year-old daughter reluctantly stayed with her grandmother during her mother's hospitalization. The 13-year-old boy moved permanently into my husband's home with us, immediately after our honeymoon.

"John", spoiled and lazy, slept whenever and ate whatever he pleased and spent every waking minute of summer vacation in front of the TV.

We've been married nearly two years as I write this letter. The ex-wife and her family have been through the Intervention program and she has been drug free for seven months. My husband and I are both helping her to communicate with the daughter. We know it is vital that the channels between the three of us be kept open at all times. The boy is also shaping up. He is finally bringing home acceptable grades and realizes that even though we have our differences we can still be friends.

It would have been easier for me to call it quits after two months of marriage, but Edward and I decided to gut it out. I'm glad we did because I believe we are going to be stronger and happier as a result of what we have been through together. Just sign us—REWARDS TO COME

DEAR REWARDS: Your perseverance paid off! Everyone has profited. I'm sure the rewards will be richer in years to come and your marriage will be a better one because it was built on a foundation of mutual support.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several years ago, we adopted a child from a highly respected agency. He is intelligent and beautiful. People are naturally drawn to him.

The problem is that so many strangers blurt out, "What is his nationality?" When I reply, "I don't know", everyone has an opinion. He's Hispanic, Oriental, or Hawaiian, etc. These brash people are convinced they are right.

Recently, we were in a Chinese restaurant where the hostess said to him, "She is not your mommy. You are Chinese like me."

I don't know what to say to people like that. Do you?

At the time of the adoption, we received minimal information on the biological parents. Both nationalities were listed as "English." I called the agency for additional information and was told, "We don't know any more than that."

Please tell me how to deal with rude strangers.—SOMEWHERE IN ARIZONA

DEAR ARIZ: Simply say, "The child is an American." If additional questions are asked, stony silence is the best response. It can be an extremely effective put-down. Try it.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting—What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Babe Ruth hit his first major league home run against the New York Yankees.

A change in the route for Saturday's Greg Black Memorial 10-Kilometer and Two-Mile Fun Run was announced today by the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

The runs are scheduled to start at 8 a.m. Saturday. Weldon Knabe, general director of the YMCA, said a change was made so that runners would not have to cross Highway 385

Astros stop

Dodgers, 10-2

By The Associated Press

The eight-game winning streak of the Los Angeles Dodgers ended not with a whimper, but with a bang—in fact, three of them.

The Houston Astros, who were held in check by Bob Welch for seven innings, rocked the right-hander and three relievers for three home runs and nine runs in the final two innings of their 10-2 victory Tuesday night.

"It's a thrill to help the team win," said Billy Hatcher, whose first major league grand slam homer against Dennis Powell capped a five-run ninth as well as a 15-hit attack by the Astros. "But Denny Walling got us untracked and Kevin Bass got a triple to put us ahead."

Bass collected three hits, including a single and double, and Jose Cruz also contributed three hits.

"It's a team thing and everybody contributes. When the big bopper, Glenn Davis, is not hitting, everybody else has to pull together."

"I was surprised as anyone," said Walling, who climaxed his seventh career four-hit game with a game-tying solo homer on Welch's first pitch of the eighth inning. Walling then added another solo shot in the ninth for his single-season career high of eight home runs.

The victory dropped third-place Los Angeles 6 1-2 games behind the first-place Astros in the National League West.

The Dodgers left the bases loaded twice in the game, including in the seventh against winning pitcher Aurelio Lopez, 3-1, who relieved starter Bob Knepper at the start of the inning. The Dodgers were leading 2-1 and were threatening for more, but Greg Brock flied out to center for the third out.

and Highway 60.

The new route for the 10-kilometer run is: start at the YMCA on Fifteenth Street, go on Fifteenth Street to Avenue H, go around North Park on Avenue H, Fourteenth Street and Avenue I, and back to Fifteenth Street; go on Fifteenth Street to Irving Street, and then on Irving Street to Sixteenth Street; go on Sixteenth Street to Avenue K, and then on Avenue K to the designated turn-around point; and follow the same route back to the YMCA to the finish line.

The turn-around point for the two-mile run is on Fifteenth Street between Avenue K and Blevins Street.

The entire race for the 10-kilometer runners will be on pavement, Knabe notes.

"We feel that Highway 385 and Highway 60 are dangerous intersections. City manager Darwin McGill is pleased with our new route for the same reason," Knabe said.

Entry fees are $8 per person when paid in advance, or $10 when paid on the day of the race. Late registration is scheduled between 7 a.m. and 7:45 a.m., before the races start.

Awards in the 10-kilometer run include wall plaques for the first place finishers, and medals for the second and third place finishers.

In the two-mile run, medals will be awarded to the first, second and third place finishers in each of the open divisions, and each participant will receive a T-shirt.

Divisions in the 10-kilometer run are men's 13 and under, men's 14 to 19, men's 20 to 29, men's 30 to 39, men's 40 to 49, men's 50 and over, women's 13 and under, women's 14 to 19, women's 20 to 29, women's 30 to 39, women's 40 to 49, and women's 50 and over. There will be an open men's division and an open women's division in the two-mile run.

Before 1985, the runs were known as the Town & Country Jubilee 10-Kilometer Run and Two-Mile Fun Run.

The record for men in the 10-kilometer is 33:02, set by Jesse Sturgeon of San Antonio in 1984. Sturgeon won last year's race in a time of 34:12.

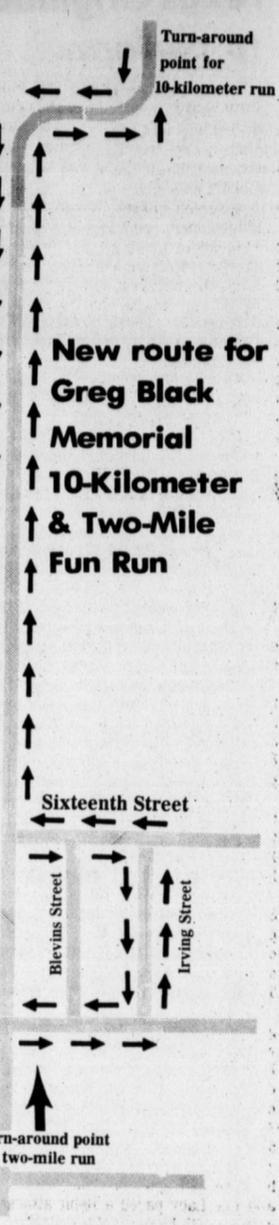

Donnie Henderson of Hereford won the 1985 women's 10-kilometer run in a time of 51:02. The women's division record is 39:51, set by Beverly Watkins of Amarillo in 1982.

Last year's winners in the two-mile run were Allen Dudding of Hereford in the men's open division in 11:49, and Nena Veazey of Hereford in the women's open division in 14:19.

Records in the two-mile run are 10:15 in the men's division, set by Buddy Hutto of Levelland in 1983, and 12:48 in the women's division, set by Selma Moreno of Hereford in 1983.

Registration forms are available at the YMCA. Entry fees, plus division being entered, should be sent to: Race Director, Hereford and Vicinity YMCA, 500 E. Fifteenth Street, Hereford, TX, 79045.

For more information on the races, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

USFL spent itself out of a 1986 season

An AP Sports Commentary
By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was the standard line used over the years to explain away the USFL's wacky decisions. "These guys," it went, "wouldn't have made all that money if they weren't smart."

True enough, perhaps, if you're talking about making money from real estate deals or selling cars or building shopping centers.

But USFL owners, the guys who spent four years trying to figure out when and where to play, were pretty dumb about sports and even dumber about sports fans. Even at the end, they were deluding themselves, convincing each other that a jury's verdict against them was a victory and that by folding they were staying in business.

As Harvey Myerson, the league's lawyer, said in another context during the USFL's late, lamented antitrust action against the NFL, it was pure Kafka.

Start from the beginning. The USFL arrived in 1983 dedicated to providing America with spring football at a reasonable price. It was a concept that a lot of people thought could work, including ABC and ESPN, who provided the league with $18 million in television money for each of its first two seasons.

Before the first season had even begun, however, the league had exceeded its spending guidelines by signing Herschel Walker. Before the second season, Donald Trump and William Oldenburg were spending wildly for players. And before the third season, the USFL had voted to go to the fall for its fourth.

Meanwhile, the league went from 12 to 18 to 14 to 8 franchises, Phoenix and Chicago traded teams, Boston went to New Orleans and then to Portland, Michigan merged with Oakland, Philadelphia moved to Baltimore, Washington went to Orlando. And on and on and on.

"They never got it," a television network executive was saying Tuesday. "They never knew how to market and build a base of fan support. Instead of sticking around and waiting for that base to increase, they left town as soon as things began to go bad."

"You go for the kids. You start with an 8-year-old and now he's a 12-year-old with a deep, emotional attachment to his team. That's what it's all about."

Which brings us to Trump and Eddie Einhorn, the New York and Chicago slickers who sold a bill of goods to the guys from Jacksonville and Tampa and Memphis and Phoenix.

First Trump told the Sun Belts that spring football was minor league and he wanted no part of it. Then Einhorn, who bought the Chicago franchise but never presided over a game, told them that a fall TV contract was a cinch.

OK, it wasn't a cinch. So Trump told them they could sue the NFL and Myerson told them there was no way they could lose. So they lost, winning a token antitrust judgment that left them with all of $3.

Cut to Monday, when the six out-of-towners wanted to take their losses and play the 1986 season anyway, just for the sport of it. Sorry, said Trump, that's minor league and I can't tell the folks at "21" that I operate a minor-league football team. Stephen Ross, another New York builder whom Trump hand-picked to run the Baltimore franchise, agreed with him.

Then Trump walked out, leaving the rest of the guys to tell the world that there wouldn't be a 1986 season and to tell the players they'd be out of work. In fact, the only one not out of work was Myerson, who would pick up a couple of million more to appeal the antitrust case.

"It was his ball and he took it home," said one of the participants in Monday's meeting.

The sad thing is that it didn't have to happen.

There were guys in the USFL office like Peter Hadhazy and Dom Camera who knew about football and about marketing and wrote memos urging the owners to remain in the spring and build a fan base. But they weren't rich guys, they were sports guys, so by the USFL's definition, they couldn't be too smart.

Maybe the best summation of the situation is NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle's version of his meeting with Trump in 1984. Trump, according to Rozelle's testimony at the trial, told him that if he were granted an NFL franchise, he would sell his Generals to "some stiff."

Trump hasn't sold the Generals but he's finally found his stiff — the rest of the USFL's owners.

Rangers suffer 9-2 loss to Orioles

By The Associated Press

Larry Sheets hit his 12th home run of the season, and it almost went unnoticed.

As Sheets approached the plate in third inning, the Memorial Stadium crowd was clamoring for a curtain call by rookie Jim Traber following his eighth homer in just 62 plate appearances.

Then, adding to the frenzy of the moment, a posted score showed that Chicago had taken a 2-0 lead over Boston's AL East leaders. The noise level went up several more decibels.

"I didn't know what was going on," Sheets recalled. But he had the presence of mind to hit the next pitch over the fence to cap a five-run rally, and the Orioles went on to defeat the Texas Rangers 9-2.

Winning for the ninth time in 12 games, the surging Orioles moved to within 2½ games of the slumping Red Sox, the closest they've been to the top since May 30. The Orioles have picked up 7½ games since the All-Star break, going 13-6 to Boston's 5-13.

Traber, Jim Dwyer and Fred Lynn had two RBI apiece for the Orioles, and Lee Lacy paced a 10-hit attack with his 10th homer and two singles. In 18 games since the All-Star break, Lacy has hit .382.

Staked to an 8-0 lead after four innings, Storm Davis pitched eight innings while extending his lifetime record against the Rangers to 10-0 and evened his 1986 mark at 8-8.

Since being recalled from Rochester as a replacement for ailing Eddie Murray, who is now eligible to come off the disabled list, Traber has batted .333 in 17 games, with 22 RBI on 21 hits.

With Murray recovered from a pulled hamstring, and expected back any day, Manager Earl Weaver will have to find a spot in the line-up for Traber's hot bat.

"Whatever role they give me, is OK with me," Traber said. "If it's in a DH role, or first base, or the outfield, I don't care, just so long as I can contribute."

Weaver said he couldn't explain the home run surge by Traber, who hit only 12 in 87 games at Rochester, adding: "Maybe it's easier to figure out the pitchers up here."

"He's given us a big lift, and got us back in the pennant race," catcher Rick Dempsey said of Traber. "He sure is busting games wide open. He looks like Eddie Murray up there."

Traber was struck on the right forearm, just below the elbow, on a pitch from Mitch Williams in the seventh.

"There's no doubt, he didn't try to hit me," Traber said of Williams, who has hit four batters in his last 2 1-3 innings against the Orioles. "There's no bad blood. When I got to first, he asked me how I was."

The Rangers lost for only the fourth time in 12 starts, but it dropped them 2½ games behind first-place California in the AL West.

"This is what happens when you leave the ball in the middle of the plate," said loser Jose Gusman, 8-11, who was lifted after Sheets homered. "I tried to come inside, but I left the ball in the middle. That was the difference."

TEAMWORK

TEAMWORK noun a joint action by a group of people in which each person subordinates his individual interests and opinions for the unity of the group.

When the word "teamwork" is mentioned, the most obvious thought is that of football or another sport. While it is true that a football team must have unity, teamwork also applies to business.

Actress has international role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although Elizabeth Bennett commutes between roles in the American television series "You Again?" and the British series "Home To Roost," there is no cause for confusion.

The NBC show, which stars Jack Klugman, is the American version of "Home To Roost." Miss Bennett, a Briton, plays the same role in both shows, as Enid Tompkins the housekeeper. The NBC series will be on Wednesday nights against the hit serial "Dynasty" this season.

"It's actually much easier to do comedy here," she said. "There are more comedy roles for women here. In England I suppose it's chauvinism. The women who are funny have to be strange or a bit grotesque. A lot of people thought I was miscast in England."

"I found that after playing here and going back, my role in England was very narrow. Here, it's broadened out and is more interesting to do. A show like 'The Golden Girls' could never be made in England."

Her role as Enid in England was the first time she'd ever done comedy on television. "I'd done lots of comedy in the theater and wanted to do some on television," she said. "I'd always played intelligent, dressed-up parts. I'd never played anyone lower class in the theater. The director of 'Home To Roost' was a friend and I went along with him to interview for the part."

She isn't sure how she got the role here. "But I think Jack saw the tape of the English show and liked what I did. But they did decide to have an English housekeeper and I think it plays very well against Jack, who is very New Yorkish."

As a matter of fact, the show this season is taking on a New York tone. Miss Bennett, Klugman, who plays Henry Willows, and John Stamos, who plays the prodigal son, recently went to New York to film the title scenes. When the show made its debut in the spring, location was unclear.

Miss Bennett is here to tape 13 shows and possibly 22 for the season. She recently completed seven shows in England, which is all they do for a season.

"We have a much different working schedule in England," she said. "We don't get a day off. We rehearse in London and we travel to Yorkshire to tape it. Photographers to help find children

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 1,200 posters of missing children are being sent to members of the Professional School Photographers Association to aid in the search for the youngsters.

The 25-by-38-inch posters will be mailed to school photographers and laboratories across the country.

Now You're Cookin'

With fresh vegetables and fruits abundant, it would be hard to let summer pass by without trying some new recipes. Here are some unusual salad recipes that are easy and quick to prepare.

CHEESE AND FRUIT KABOBS

- 1-10 oz. package of extra sharp natural cheddar cheese, cubed
- 1/2 cup strawberry slices
- 1 banana, sliced
- 2 kiwis, peeled and sliced
- 1/4 cup green grapes
- 1 pineapple

On wooden skewers arrange cheese, strawberries, bananas, kiwis, and grapes to form kabobs. Insert kabob skewers into pineapple and serve with assorted crackers if desired. Makes six servings.

Nutritional tip: Kabobs are good source of vitamin C and calcium.

ITALIAN SPINACH SALAD

- 1 qt. torn spinach
- 4 crisply cooked bacon slices, crumbled
- 1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese
- 1/3 cup Italian dressing
- 2 hard-boiled eggs, chopped

Combine spinach, bacon and parmesan cheese. Add dressing, toss lightly. Top with eggs. Makes four servings.

Nutritional tip: Italian spinach salad is a good source of iron and calcium, plus each serving provides 100 percent of the recommended allowance of vitamin A.

CATALINA CHEF SALAD

- 1 1/2 qts. torn romaine lettuce
- 2 medium tomatoes, sliced
- 1 medium green pepper, cut into strips

- 2 hard-boiled eggs, sliced
- 1/2 lb. cooked chicken or turkey, cut into strips
- 1/4 cup chopped cucumber
- 1/2 cup catalina dressing

On lettuce-covered salad plates, arrange tomatoes, peppers, eggs, chicken and cucumbers. Serve with catalina dressing. Makes four servings.

Nutritional tip: This salad is a good source of iron, protein, vitamins A and C, and several B vitamins.

CHEDDAR-FRUIT LAYERED SALAD

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 tbs. honey
- 1 1/2 cups shredded sharp natural cheddar cheese
- 1 qt. shredded lettuce
- 3 cups peach slices
- 3 cups strawberry slices
- 3 cups grapes

Combine mayonnaise, sour cream, and honey; mix well and chill. Combine 1 cup shredded cheddar and lettuce.

Toss lightly. In 2 1/2 qt. serving bowl, layer half of lettuce mixture, peaches, remaining lettuce mixture, strawberries and grapes; sprinkle with remaining cheese. Serve with mayonnaise mixture. Makes eight servings.

Nutritional tip: This recipe has 100 percent of the recommended allowance of vitamin C in each serving. The cheese also provides a good source of calcium, vitamin A, and riboflavin.

CAULIFLOWER SALAD

- 4 cups thinly sliced raw cauliflower
- 1 cup very coarsely chopped pitted ripe olives
- 3/4 cup coarsely chopped green pepper
- 1/2 cup chopped pimento
- 1/2 cup chopped onion

- Dressing:
- 1/2 cup salad or olive oil
 - 3 T. lemon juice
 - 3 T. wine vinegar
 - 2 t. salt
 - 1/2 t. sugar
 - 1/4 t. pepper
 - Crisp salad greens

In medium bowl, combine cauliflower, olives, green pepper, pimento and onion.

Make dressing: In small bowl, combine salad oil, lemon juice, vinegar, salt, sugar and pepper; beat with rotary beater until well blended. Pour over cauliflower mixture.

Refrigerate, covered, until well chilled—4 hours or overnight. To serve: Spoon salad into bowl lined with salad greens; toss just before serving.

ANTI PASTO

- 2 (4 oz.) cans tiny mushrooms buttons (sliced)
- 1 (14 oz.) can artichoke hearts (chopped)

- 1 tsp. seasoned salt
- 1 tsp. garlic salt
- 1 tsp. onion salt
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 tsp. accent
- 1 tsp. seasoned pepper
- 1 tsp. regular salt

Pour this mixture over the chopped ingredients and serve as an appetizer on Melba toast or crackers. Will keep in refrigerator for two to three weeks.

SPAGHETTIE AND VEGETABLE SALAD

- 1/2 pkg. spaghetti (small)
- 6 sticks chopped celery
- 1 can pitted black olives (chopped)
- 2 bunches green onions (chopped)
- 1 jar pimentos (chopped)
- 1 bell pepper (chopped)
- 1 pt. real mayonnaise
- 4 T. oil
- 3 T. accent meat tenderizer
- 3 T. lemon juice

Cook noodles and rinse. Combine last three ingredients and pour over noodles. Set aside while chopping vegetables. Combine vegetables with noodles and mayonnaise. Best served after refrigerating several hours.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD

- 1 large can crushed pineapple (juice too)
- 3 large bananas sliced
- 1 c. broken pecans

Mix all ingredients together—grease Bundt pan with mayonnaise. Place in freezer over night. Can be kept frozen 2-3 weeks if desired.

HIGH TECH DRILLING

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP)—Oil companies are studying three-dimensional subsurface structures in an effort to take the risk out of drilling for oil.

Getting a 3-D picture requires lots of data to be processed, and Phillips Petroleum says it has developed its own software for a supercomputer that can handle the volume.

The long-term goal of geophysicists is to locate oil by computer so that oil is found every time a well is drilled.

THINGS AREN'T THE SAME

NEW YORK (AP)—In the 1930s, when they said "The Street," they meant 52nd Street in New York City.

From the East River to the Hudson River, the two-mile stretch, also known as "Swing Street," offered jazz, comedy and shows with beautiful girls.

Today, 52nd is very serious and very tall. It has corporate headquarters buildings, luxury condominiums and offices for the high and mighty. In the last five years, 11 buildings have been completed or begun there.

Advice given to students

NEW YORK (AP)—Students who juggle school work and a job can find it a valuable learning experience and not a chore, says a high school guidance counselor.

"Working after school does not necessarily mean a student's grades have to suffer," says Sheila Orner, of Townsend Harris High School here.

But students do have to make the commitment to do well at both, giving school work top priority, she adds.

She offers this advice for students who work after school:

— Use "free" periods and lunch time for studying.

— Make an arrangement with someone at your job to cover for you when there's something urgent at school.

— Establish a good working relationship with the boss and let him or her know how you're doing at school.

— Try to find a job that would allow you to study while working, like babysitter, or receptionist.

— If you commute, use that time to study and get organized. — Try to find a job with structured hours so you can get home to study at about the same time every day. Try not to work past 8 p.m. on weeknights. A set study schedule is important — and so is proper rest.

Reservations for the seminars should be made in advance due to limited seating. For more information contact Lajeane Henry at the Pants Cage at 364-4680.

Texas energy analysts cautious about OPEC

HOUSTON (AP) — A jump in the price of oil and prospects for curtailed OPEC production probably won't be immediate antidotes for ailing U.S. energy exploration and production companies, industry analysts said Tuesday.

"It might be prudent to wait a little bit," said John Matson, managing partner of the Houston-based Pace Energy Consultants. "There is not a real warm feeling about the history of OPEC."

Previous attempts recently by the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to limit their own oil production in the hopes of raising prices have failed.

On Tuesday, OPEC, formally endorsed a temporary two-month agreement to curtail production to about 16.7 million barrels a day, down from the current reported level of 20.5 million barrels.

Reaction on energy markets was quick.

Contracts for September delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, moved as high as $16.50 a 42-gallon barrel before dropping back to $15.02 at the close of trading. Still, that marked a $1.73 per-barrel gain over Monday's $13.29 close, which itself was up $1.74 from Friday.

September contracts for refined products were also sharply higher.

Unleaded gasoline closed at 41 cents per gallon, up from Monday's 36.88-cent close, while heating oil closed at 42.79 cents per gallon, compared with 38.33 cents Monday.

But what the industry really needs to see is some stability, analysts said.

"There's no reason now to do anything," Matson said, referring to exploration firms. "If oil went to $20 and stayed there for a year — maybe."

"I think they want to see prices sustained in the long timeframe and not subject to the violent rapid moves of this year," said James L. Cochrane, senior vice president at Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc.

"I think if we're able to have price and production stability for the rest of this year, toward the end of the year you can get people more enthusiastic about spending money on exploration," he said. "Right now, what I'm finding to be true, people are very unsettled on the unpredictability and rapid movement in price."

Dale Steffes, an independent analyst based in Houston, said the OPEC decision was better news for energy exploration companies — but not good enough.

"The thing they need to see is stability," Steffes said. "This two months doesn't show that yet. We need two years."

The Hughes Tool Co. rig count, the industry yardstick of domestic activity, showed a slight increase this week, up five from a week ago to 721. But that was nearly a third of the 1,911 rigs working at this time a year ago.

"To have a significant upturn, you need to have stable oil prices at a reasonable level, and there's no indication of that, yet," said J.C. Kerridge, Jr., a Hughes vice president.

Tony Proffitt, a spokesman for the Texas comptroller's office, which collects taxes and issues the official estimates of state government revenue and deficits, also downplayed the OPEC moves.

"It won't have any immediate effect on anything," he said. "It may tend to drive up the Texas oil prices near our year average (used for the deficit estimate), which was in the $15 range. But this is just a temporary agreement and only good for a couple of months. Normally, we would be seeing oil coming up in the fall, anyway."

Steffes predicted the financial community would lead the charge toward price stability.

"The financial community has a lot of problems and one more they don't need is instability in the energy world," he said. "Today the energy market looks at 60 days as long term and bankers don't like that."

"If you're lending to the industry, you're in there with your customer," Cochrane said. "And it's awfully difficult when price goes from $30 to $10."

All insects on planet serve purpose in nature

LUBBOCK — All things have a reason for being—even the creepy crawly insects of our nightmares.

Texas Tech University entomology President Harlan G. Thorvilson said all insects, no matter how big a pest they may be to humans, serve some purpose in the earth's ecological scheme.

"Nature is a hard taskmaster," Thorvilson said. "All species either fit in or they disappear. I know that's kind of hard to appreciate when a cockroach crawls across the dinner table."

Thorvilson said even cockroaches have a place in nature's food chain. Besides recycling man-made waste, roaches are a vital part of the diets of other animals.

"Insects like grasshoppers, grubs and termites are a part of some people's diets," Thorvilson said. "As the world food shortage grows, more people may be forced to look to insects as a protein supplement either for their livestock or for themselves."

The insects humans consider pests are really those that are competing with us for food and shelter.

"The squash bug is a perfect example," Thorvilson said. "They are in direct competition with humans for food. As long as there is a food source, the squash bug will utilize it. It's when the competition becomes too great, that the insect becomes a pest and humans seek to do something about reducing their numbers."

Thorvilson said many insects are obviously beneficial to humans. The honey bee is a prime example, he said. Not only does it produce honey, it is a vital link in the pollination of flowers, crops and other plants.

Many insects help keep the pest population under control by feeding on those bugs that are harmful.

"The point of a lot of the work entomologists do is to find ways to control those insects that are harmful while supporting those that are helpful," he said.

Thorvilson said it is probably impossible for humans to destroy a species of insect, no matter how big a pest it is.

"Even if we could destroy a whole species, I'm not sure we would want to because we really can't know how that would affect the ecological balance," he said.

"Everything has a reason for being here. In the case of the mosquito or roach, I know those benefits are hidden. But just because we cannot see a benefit or understand it, that is no reason to assume there is no purpose for being."

Thorvilson said while people in this society have been conditioned to be repulsed by insects, they still find them fascinating.

"You can even see that fascination in current coming strips," Thorvilson said. "Even though people may not like roaches, they will laugh at their antics in a comic strip. It's almost like graveyard humor. Cartoonist Gary Larson, who draws 'The Far Side' comics, is a good example. He started out to be an entomologist and uses insects in his humor."

Videos used to enrich, reinforce lesson

In today's visually-oriented world, as many teachers see it, one picture is worth more than a thousand words.

"What youngsters see, they are more likely to retain, and the fact is that today's kids are very sophisticated in their viewing habits," says Martha Dixon, educational media supervisor for Florida's Hillsborough County public school district.

Videos used in her schools are not intended to entertain but to enrich and reinforce the lesson being taught by the teacher, Ms. Dixon adds.

For example, she explains, a video that tells the story of Anne Frank provides an important lesson in the dangers of discrimination. By using the accompanying work sheets, students examine their own attitudes about prejudice and answer questions posed by the teacher.

According to a recent survey, nearly 80 percent of the nation's 81,513 public schools had at least one video cassette recorder (VCR) in the 1985-86 school year, up 10 percent from 1984-85 and 40 percent from 1983-84.

"Fueled by the same consumer demand that spawned the computer revolution, schools have propelled the VCR into No. 1 status as THE education technology," says William Reider, a media services specialist in the Baltimore County public schools.

The increasing acceptance of videos in education also is spurring the growth of such technological developments as interactive video—the mating of videodiscs and microcomputers — a new concept allowing students to stop action to focus on a particular facet of the lesson and call up print information.

Sweetens opposition coffer with $10,000 lump

Holly issues statement against dump

Holly Sugar Corporation this week announced its complete disapproval and opposition to a nuclear waste repository being placed in Deaf Smith County, saying it is "concerned both with possible injury to the local and regional community and potential deterioration of its operations in Hereford, Texas."

In conjunction with the announcement, Holly presented a $10,000 check to the Nuclear Waste Task Force, headquartered in Dimmitt, to combat the repository site here. Dennis Printz, Holly's ag manager in Hereford, presented the check to Delbert Devin, president of the task force.

In the first formal policy statement issued by corporate headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colo., Holly officials say the company could be impacted in at least two major ways if a repository were placed in Deaf Smith County:

"First, viable agricultural acres would be retired and Holly's contracted acres would diminish. Second, Holly would lose market share due to consumer nuclear phobia."

Holly's operations would be impacted by the selection of Deaf Smith County because an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 acres would be acquired by the federal government, explains the statement. It is assumed that all acquired acreage would be retired from active agricultural production, therefore fewer sugarbeets would be available for processing at the Hereford plant.

In 1985, Holly contracted more than 37,000 acres of sugarbeets near Hereford. "Hundreds, if not thousands, of these acres would be lost if Deaf Smith were selected. Holly cannot at this time determine if it could replace these acres with additional acreage elsewhere."

Corporate officials say this could cause a 10 to 15 percent reduction in the Hereford plant operation and added "If operation profitability were thereby threatened, Holly would necessarily consider plant closure."

Holly also sees the threat of consumer "nuclear phobia," the reluctance by consumers to purchase food stuffs, part of which may have been manufactured near a contaminated area.

"It makes no difference whether the danger is real or illusory. Sugar is a food and food ingredient and consumer suspicion that it has been contaminated anywhere will impact sales everywhere," the statement reports.

Holly says it has expressed misgivings and disapproval of the nuclear waste repository since 1983. It points out that the region including Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming and South Dakota would be directly affected if the Ogallala aquifer should become contaminated.

Holly points out that the Texas Department of Agriculture's December 1985 report, "Economic Effects of a High-Level Nuclear Waste Repository," suggests that limited benefits would be derived from a repository, but indicates that the overall impact would be unfavorable.

"Holly embraces this report and urges all to examine it," according to the policy statement.

"Complete divestment by Holly of its Hereford holdings, which is a real possibility, would catalyze an economic downturn for the area," concludes the report.

"In 1984, the dollar input by Holly at Hereford totaled more than $40 million. Thus, Holly's total economic effect upon the local community is between $170 and $270 million," estimates the company. This figure is based upon material purchases, wages and taxes paid by Holly, and multiplied by a variable factor between four and seven.

Three plans for revenue before special session

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's tax plan played to a mixed reaction in the Legislature, but it drew a definite thumbs down from the man who matters most when it comes to raising taxes.

Speaker Gib Lewis, in whose chamber any tax bill must start, said he would prefer parimutuel gambling or a lottery if the state really needs more money. But Lewis is convinced the budget crisis can be solved with budget cuts.

"That's the approach we'll take here, trying to stay within the available revenue that we have and balance the budget," he said after White opened the special session Wednesday by calling for spending cuts and a temporary tax hike.

White wants to raise the state sales tax from the current 4½ percent to 5½ percent. Under his plan, it would go back to 4½ percent on Sept. 1, 1987.

"I'm still holding firm," Lewis said. "No new taxes. We can balance the budget without any tax increase."

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, said White's decision to push a tax proposal "took a lot of courage in light of the fact that the House has taken such a strong position in opposition to any taxes."

"I think we're going to make the cuts, resolve the cash flow problem and go home," said Schlueter, in whose committee any tax bill must begin.

The tax plan appeared to win more positive reception in the Senate, where Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has proposed a tax-and-cut plan that includes permanently raising the sales tax to 5 percent.

"I like it," Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said of White's plan. "You can't balance the budget with the kind of shortfall we have by just cuts."

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Grant Jones, D-Abilene, said Texans would prefer a tax hike to the program cuts it would take to solve the crisis.

"Texas is not a big-spending state. We're near the bottom on any sort of comparison you want to make," he said.

Hobby would not critique the White plan, saying only, "The process is under way and in a few weeks it will produce a good result."

White's tax talk pleased House members who have other revenue measures in mind. Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said, "It offers me the opportunity to lay out a horse racing bill."

Asked if he would allow the House to consider such a bill if sufficient support was shown, Lewis said, "You bet."

"I favor pari-mutuel. I'm a little softer on lottery than probably some are. But I'm for giving the chamber an opportunity to vote on either one of those proposals," Lewis said.

Several lawmakers are pushing bills that would allow voters to decide in November whether to legalize parimutuel wagering or a state lottery.

On the House side, pro-tax hike sentiment came from members who fear the budget ax could fall heavily on their constituents. Rep. Juan Hinojosa, D-McAllen, said the 5½ percent sales tax should be approved permanently.

Several House members said the Recent moisture's timing excellent for area cropland

By SPEEDY NIEMAN

Light showers Wednesday night, accompanied by plenty of lightning and wind, left 47 of an inch of moisture in Hereford but the rainfall was spotted around the county.

Added to the showers of Saturday and Sunday nights, KPAN Radio recorded more than an inch of rain. However, some areas of the county received as much as 3 inches of rain over the past five days. "The rain was excellent and the timing couldn't have been better," according to John Fuston, ASCS manager in Hereford. While most of the rains were spotted, Fuston said much of the county has benefitted from the moisture.

The county's corn, milo and sugarbeet crops are looking good, according to Fuston. Because of the early rains, some of the crops will be coming off a little later than usual. The year's rainfall has totalled 11.43 inches at KPAN, the official weather station here. More than half of that was recorded in June, when 5.96 fell in Hereford.

Some hail was reported Saturday night, especially in the city and in the north central and northwest part of the county. The hail damage to crops was minimal, according to Fuston, and like the rainfalls, the hail was spotted.

The county had a good yield of potatoes and onions, said Fuston. Prices were generally good on potatoes but the market on onions dropped at the end of the harvest season. "With good fall weather and some good prices on commodities, it could be a good ag year," said Fuston.

Heavier hail damage was reported in northern Castro County last Saturday night, and a tornado caused more than $75,000 worth of damage at the Dimmitt Municipal Airport. The twister destroyed a private hangar at the airport and damaged a pickup parked in the hangar. Two airplanes received heavy damage.

Police arrest two

Hereford City police arrested an adult for driving while intoxicated and having no proof of insurance. Another subject was arrested for public intoxication.

Police also heard reports Wednesday of harassing phone calls, criminal mischief, a bike theft in the 200 block of Fuller, a prowler in the alley between Star and Ave. J, and a bike theft in the 500 block of Willow.

Police also heard a report of $600 worth of vandalism being done to a car.

If you consider the cost of irrigating crops, watering lawns and gardens, the rainfall over the weekend and Wednesday night might well be worth a million dollars. The timing was good—some of the crops were beginning to hurt from a lack of moisture, and the showers provided a break in the heat wave.

Hereford's Town & Country Jubilee starts a week-long round of activities Saturday with the Greg Black Memorial 10K and 2-Mile Run. A special ceremony Sunday at 2 p.m. will include the laying of the cornerstone at the new city fire station. All next week, merchants will be offering bargains during "Jubilee Sales Days."

Special activities then jump to next Thursday when the Jubilee Square Dance will be staged that night in front of the State Farm Insurance office on Main Street. A number of activities are scheduled the following Friday and Saturday, so watch the paper for details!

To no one's surprise, the Hereford City Commission's proposal to pass an ordinance regulating garage sales and charging a fee has stirred up a controversy among many citizens of the community. Two letters to the editor, criticizing the city plan can be found on Page 2 of today's paper.

Did you hear about the couple from the northeast driving on the Interstate when a highway patrolman stopped their motor home for speeding?

The wife, who was hard of hearing, was sitting in the back with her knitting. She had a habit of asking her husband to repeat everything that was said.

The patrolman's first remark was, "Did you know you were going 70 miles an hour?"

The wife tugged at her husband's sleeve and asked, "What'd he say?" Patiently, her husband repeated the patrolman's remark. Trying to be kind as he wrote the ticket, the trooper remarked about the nice motor home. Again the wife asked what the trooper said.

"Said we had a nice rig," the husband repeated. Then the patrolman asked to see the man's driver license and the wife asked, "What'd he say?" Again the husband repeated the question.

Then the patrolman remarked, "I see you're from Cleveland. I've been there. In fact, the ugliest woman I ever dated in my life was from Cleveland."

The wife asked, "What'd he say?" Said the husband, "He said he thinks he knows you!"

USDA says drought hardly will affect this year's food prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heat wave and drought that are gripping the Southeast this summer will have little effect on food prices this year, says an Agriculture Department economist.

Ralph Parlett of the department's Economic Research Service said he expects retail food prices to average 2 percent to 3 percent higher than last year, which would be the case even if there had not been a drought.

Not even the prices of poultry, hit hard this summer, are expected to gain more than 3 percent from last year.

"Poultry prices are going to be stronger than we thought, probably," Parlett said Wednesday in an interview. "Some of it has to do with the drought, but demand for poultry is really high right now, particularly with pork supplies down."

The Southeast produces about 40 percent of the nation's broilers, or young chickens used for cooking. There have been higher-than-usual death losses among them because of high temperatures this summer.

"Most of the problem is not from death losses," Parlett said. "They're not gaining weight. With the hot weather, you can't force (the birds) to eat, so you get a 3½-pound bird instead of a 4-pound bird, so that cuts production."

But there have been serious death losses to poultry flocks, he said. And there has been a loss of fertility among breeder flocks, which reduces the hatch of new chicks.

From southern Pennsylvania to northern Florida, arid weather and relentlessly hot temperatures have joined forces to cause $2.3 billion in farm losses.

Parlett, one of the Agriculture Department's leading experts on food costs and prices, said he has been besieged by questioners who think that all the poultry in the Southeast has died, leaving nothing for the rest of the year. That's not the case, he said.

"You're talking maybe four months' worth of problem, with 40 percent of the production, maybe through September," Parlett said. "Also, that's only 3.2 percent of the CPI."

Parlett referred to the 3.2 percent poultry share of the government's Consumer Price Index for food bought at grocery stores. Poultry

Driver killed 9 youths injured

PUTNAM, Texas (AP) — After an early exit from a state tournament at Waco and an outing at Six Flags Over Texas, members of the Pecos Little League baseball team were on their way home when tragedy struck in a construction zone on Interstate 20.

One of two Chevrolet Suburbans carrying the 14-member squad of 11- and 12-year-olds overturned about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in a construction zone on Interstate 20, killing the 41-year-old driver and injuring nine youths, one seriously.

The accident occurred just west of Putnam, 35 miles east of Abilene, the Texas Department of Public Safety said. The team's destination, Pecos, is also on I-20, about 250 miles southwest of Abilene.

DPS trooper Bill Russell said Chano Prieto was driving through a well-marked construction zone on the westbound lanes of I-20 when the vehicle drifted off the road.

Prieto lost control of the vehicle when he tried to jerk the vehicle back onto the highway, Russell said. He was thrown from the vehicle, which rolled over at least twice, the officer said.

The vehicle came to rest right side up on the eastbound lane after cutting two chunks out of the road, Russell said.

Lupe Garcia, president of the Little League in Pecos, told the Pecos Enterprise in an interview that a league official, traveling in the other vehicle, said a tire blew out on the car Prieto was driving.

The most seriously injured passenger appeared to be Chano Prieto Jr., 16, the victim's son. He was treated at a hospital in Cisco, then transferred to Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene. Early today, a hospital spokeswoman said the youth was in serious condition with "closed head injuries."

Authorities say alien beaten

PRESIDIO, Texas (AP) — Investigation into the July 24 beating of an illegal alien by three heavily armed men has failed to link the attack with a controversial paramilitary group that patrolled to stop aliens and drugs from crossing the Mexican border, officials say.

Presidio County deputies arrested three Odessa men near the border six days later. But Chief Deputy Gary Brown said the men denied affiliation with Civilian Materiel Assistance, the paramilitary group. They have not been charged in connection with the beating.

A farmer spotted three heavily armed men wearing army fatigues traveling along the U.S.-Mexico border outside Presidio, Brown said. According to the farmer, they had an assortment of weapons, including an AR-15 semi-automatic rifle, pistols and knives, he said.

"They fit the description of the three men who beat up the man, but that has not been proved, and they haven't been charged with assault," Brown said Tuesday. "It has not been determined what these men were doing along the border."

They were charged with unlawfully carrying weapons, Brown said.

Chief selling McFadden T-shirts

BIG SANDY, Texas (AP) — Upshur County Sheriff Dale Jewkes said he is uneasy about Big Sandy Police Chief Richard Lingle's poster and T-shirt promotion to commemorate last month's search for an escaped murder suspect.

"That's in poor taste," Jewkes said Wednesday. "I don't know what the reason behind it is. I just don't think a law officer should do that. I think it's commercializing."

Lingle says the souvenirs will thank the more than 300 law officers who helped capture Jerry Walter McFadden, commonly known by his self-proclaimed nickname "Animal."

McFadden, a convicted sex offender, is charged with killing a Hawkins teen-ager who disappeared during a lake outing earlier this year. Two friends who accompanied her on the trip also were found slain.

McFadden escaped July 9 from the Upshur County Jail in Gilmer after overpowering two guards and taking a third hostage. About 50 hours later, he was apprehended without resistance in a vacant house in nearby Big Sandy. The hostage escaped unharmed.

Big Sandy is in the southwest corner of Upshur County, about 15 miles southwest of Gilmer.

Under the headings, "I Survived the Big Sandy Manhunt" and "Texas' Largest — The Big Sandy Manhunt," the drawings show helicopters, police cars, tactical officers, canine patrols and mounted officers. It also lists 59 police agencies involved in the search.

Lingle said the $3 posters and $5 transfers are "great gifts and souvenirs" and a "very limited offer." After immediately selling 37 of the first 100 transfers he ordered, he placed an order for another 100, Lingle said.

Soviet acrobats defect to U.S.

MIAMI (AP) — A husband and wife tightrope team defected from the Soviet circus in Buenos Aires and arrived in Miami today.

"We are happy. We are happy ... very happy to be here," Bertalina Cazakova said in broken English.

"We are artists of the high-wire circus. We hope luck in America," the woman said shortly before an unmarked blue U.S. government car sped the couple away from Miami International Airport.

Nikolai Nikolaski and Ms. Cazakova performed with the circus for 10 years, getting a long-awaited chance to defect when the circus made its annual trip to Argentina, a U.S. official who requested anonymity said Wednesday in Buenos Aires.

The circus' tour in Buenos Aires, which began about three weeks ago, was the couple's first trip outside a Soviet bloc nation, the official said.

The performers left Argentina Wednesday night on Eastern Airlines Flight 10, which touched down at 6 a.m. EDT today.

"The embassy put them on in B.A.," said Eastern flight Capt. Charles Hodgson.

Memos not much ammunition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are still searching for hard evidence to renew a challenge to William H. Rehnquist's nomination as chief justice, after a week-long battle over confidential Nixon administration documents.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., the ranking minority member on the Senate Judiciary Committee, said Rehnquist would not be called back to testify before the panel unless there is some important new development.

"If there is nothing startling, that's it," he told reporters Wednesday.

By late Wednesday, Democrats said they had not completed their examination of the papers, memos written by Rehnquist as a Nixon administration lawyer from 1969 to 1971. But none of the Democrats had made comments indicating that they had found information in the documents that would be damaging to the chief justice-designate.

The committee, meanwhile, concluded two days of low-key hearings on President Reagan's nomination of Antonin Scalia, a federal appeals court judge, to the Supreme Court.

Oh-punning night held...

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn was definitely on the menu. So were Honeymoon Salad (lettuce alone) and a special dessert called Pudding You On.

The occasion was the first Chicago-area dinner of the International Save the Pun Foundation, which met Wednesday night in the back room of Schuljen's Restaurant & Saloon.

It was an evening for devotees of "the lowest form of wit" to go public without scolding glances from long-suffering spouses.

It was also recruiting night for membership in the Toronto-based foundation, whose Chairman of the Report calculates advantages of walking upstairs

BOSTON (AP) — What would happen if a man climbed 5,000 stairs — about the same as sauntering to the top of the Empire State Building three times — each week for 45 years?

The answer, if a pair of calculator-wielding doctors can be believed, is that he might live an extra 2½ years. That's an additional four seconds of waking life for each step taken.

Actually, the doctors who came up with those figures don't take them entirely seriously. But they do believe their computations contain a sober message about the health benefits of exercise.

Drs. Brent G. Petty and David M. Herrington of Johns Hopkins University outlined the statistics in a letter in today's New England Journal of Medicine. Theirs was one of several commenting on a major study on exercise and health published in the journal last spring.

"This was a tongue-in-cheek response to the article, but I think the message is one that has some validity for the average person," Herrington said. "If people wanted to take this letter as encouragement to walk rather than ride elevators at work, I would be very pleased."

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Elaine Young of Tool; a foster son, Kenneth Shelly of Dale City, Va.; two brothers, Woodrow of Lorenzo and Ray of Plainview; four sisters, Bernice Noble of Amarillo, and Irene Coe, Opal Davis and Mary Koonce, all of Plainview; and three grandchildren.

ANNIE LOU CARAWAY

Feb. 16, 1896-Aug. 7, 1986

Annie Lou Caraway, 90, died today at Deaf Smith General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services are pending under the direction of Rix Funeral Home.

Caraway was a resident of Westgate Nursing Home and the aunt of J.W. (Jap) Dickerson.

Bored, John S. Crosbie, defines "full member" as "one who has eaten recently."

Crosbie couldn't attend and sent his regrets at missing such "an august occasion." He suggested subsequent dinners be held in September.

Almost all 60 guests began groaning uncontrollably as soon as the evening kicked off, but no one suspected food poisoning.

A physician, Dr. Steven Adams, was too busy listening to how the dermatologist built up his practice from scratch to pay attention to the pained faces of his fellow diners.

A waiter strode in occasionally to page "Miss Ann S. Thesis," "Mr. Darryl Lict," and "Ms. Connie Sewer."

Joyce Heitler explained how her patronage of a dollar-a-visit dental clinic gave her buck teeth, and how her parochial school frowned on improper fractions.

Magically materializing a rubber chicken ("Don't pullet!" yelled someone in the audience), she explained how hens were used to trap traitors during the American Revolution ("Chicken, catch a Tory!").

The guest speaker was Chicago attorney Harvey C. Gordon, author of "PUNishment — The Art of Punning, or How to Lose Friends and Antagonize People," who hobbled in with a broken foot.

"Hasn't it healed?" asked a friend at another table.

"I used to be in acting, but I wasn't very good," Gordon said. "This is the first time I've spent 10 weeks in the same cast. I asked the doctor for pain-killers, but they were all in vein."

After the dinner, Gordon, 39, said he had been indulging in wordplay as long as he could remember, but his true pun proclivities didn't emerge until a trip to Europe as a college student.

"We visited the capitals of Europe, and got into what we called 'capital punishment,'" he recalled. "We talked about the Paris-ites in Paris, and went on to Moscow, where we visited Lenin's Tomb. That's apparently a very big thing for the Russians, but to me it was just another Communist plot."

SESSION

prospects for compromise seem dim. Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, noted that White, Hobby and Lewis are offering different plans.

"I have an old rule, being an old timer, you need to have those three people agree on a program. Those three people have not reached agreement on a program. So that starts you off on a very, very slow pace," he said.

House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, whose committee is working on budget cuts, said White's tax bill is close to dead.

"We are going to have to have some major arm-twisting to ever get it out of this House," he said before his committee went to work on what he called "hatcheting and butchering."

Hobby, Lewis and several lawmakers said they were impressed with White's speech, even if they did not agree with his plan.

But Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Richardson, said it sounded like politics to him.

Renumbering 25-Mile Ave.

Dear editor:

I would like to state a few facts in support of my idea to rename 25 Mile Ave. While it may be true this street is the only one the world so named, it is also true that both the name and numbering system are very confusing. The name is frequently confused with Miles Ave. So confusing is the numbering system that it is very difficult to explain where a particular address is on South 25 Mile Ave.

The point of origin of South 25 Mile Ave. must be at the intersection of Park Ave., because that's where North 25 Mile Ave. begins. North 25 Mile Ave. is numbered correctly with the street numbers getting progressively larger as one proceeds north; that is, the 100 block is closest to Park Ave. and the 600 Block is at the intersection of 15th st.

But South 25 Mile Ave. begins at Park Ave. proceeding south, with the numbers beginning at 900 and diminishing to 100 at the intersection of Hwy. 385 and Hwy. 60.

What logic is there to that? I know why it was done that way; because the numbered streets intersecting with 25 Mile Ave., dictated the reverse numbering system. But it still makes for a very awkward numbering system.

The 100 block of 25 Mile Ave. should be nearest to Park Ave., and progressively getting larger as one goes south on 25 Mile Ave. That's not to say that we would have to change a street name with such great historical significance and worldwide uniqueness, but I would think it worthy of consideration to correct the illogical numbering system and at the same time rename the street to something reflecting pride in our city or our state heritage.

Out of line on garage sales

Dear editor:

With due respect for the powers that be, I now feel the City Commissioners and the Mayor and the City Manager and the city attorney have all stepped way out of line on the garage sale issue.

In the first place, no constitutional law, state or federal, that I know of permits the interference in the free exchange of personal property, or the resale of said personal property (junk) by any state or federal law or local or city ordinance. I recommend Mr. Langley check the constitutionality before he spends too much time on the writing of such a law.

Secondly, I don't see what the garage sales are hurting. They permit a one-on-one exchange between friends and neighbors. Also they cut down, at least to a small degree, on garbage removal. Besides, look at all the nice want ads the paper gets to sell.

Or am I missing the real point? Is it just possible that the city commissioners are now taxing everything they can to the limit they can, and are desperate for another source of income?

Garbage! I recommend the commissioners hold a garage sale of their own and see how much fun it is. Who knows, they might even come up with a genuine reason for banning the sales completely, though I can't think of a possible reason why.

Thank you,
Oyd Ellerd

Don't tax garage sales

Dear editor:

I received many comments for my recent letter on Home town businesses. Many said I had, quote, "Hit the nail on the head."

Just as I was calming myself about our town's changing progress...I read where the city commissioners want a piece of the pie on our garage sales.

The economy of the nation is strangling from too much meddling now. There are too many laws, too many regulations, and too many tax actions. Everyone is unhappy with the legislators for wanting to control and tax everything.

Hey, guys, we have enough from the state and federal governments without you charging us for our garage sales. For some of us, garage sales mean school clothes for the kids. I came from a less fortunate family and as I look back, garage sales would have been a God-send in those days. Come to think of it, they still are.

So don't mess with Hereford—we are having enough problems. Just say, for instance, I have a garage sale and sell $50 worth of junk and give you a $10 fee. That, my friends, is a 20 percent tax!

Contratulations, city commissioners, you have joined the big league!

Track club tribute

Dear editor:

I would like to express my appreciation to all the many parents and individuals who have made the Hereford Track Club a success this summer.

I would like to personally thank Carolyn Rieves, Angela Roddy, Vincent Brown, and James Perkins for working with the 90 young men and women every morning, Monday-Friday.

The Track Club sent 35 athletes to the State Meet in San Antonio last Friday and Saturday. Twenty-one out of those 35 placed in the top 8 in their event. All 35 athletes represented Hereford very well.

Thanks to the many parents who helped take bids to all the track meets this summer. Special thanks to Ed and Charlene Sanders, and Greg and Kay Banner.

There are so many people to thank, that spent their time and money on this program, I wish I could list them all, but I hope everyone in the community stays behind and supports this program, because it is a good summer program for our kids.

Thank you again for all your help.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago I had an operation that helped me feel a lot better about my looks. In fact, it changed my personality. I used to be very quiet and introverted, but the surgery made me feel so good about myself that I became much more outgoing and sociable.

I was born with a receding chin. It bothered me more and more as time went on. An operation, called an osteotomy, pulled my chin out and put my face and profile into the proper aesthetic balance.

When I see people with severely receding chins, I'm sorely tempted to tell them that I once had the same problem and decided to do something about it. But I'm afraid to say anything for fear I might hurt someone's feelings.

Will you please let these people know that help is available? Many techniques have been perfected in the last 15 years.

Urge them to make an appointment with a good oral surgeon. Thank you.—ONE WHO DID AND IS EVER-SO-MUCH HAPPIER

DEAR ONE: Thank you for writing a letter that may help a great many people feel better about their appearance.

To those who have the problem: The best way to select a competent oral surgeon is to ask someone who has had the operation and obtained good results. If you know of no such person, ask your dentist to recommend an oral surgeon if he (or she) will let you see some "before" and "after" photos of the patients he has operated on.

I have known people who were thrilled with the results of this surgery. Anyone who considers it should be prepared to be off work for at least two weeks, maybe three.

DEAR READERS: Although I was unable to place Dr. Dean S. Edell, author of "The Morning After Pill," hundreds of readers wrote to inform me that he is a popular radio and TV talk-show host in the San Francisco Bay area. Thanks again, Doc.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Tell me, do grown children have any right to advise parents on the handling of their finances?

I am a young mother of two who is watching my parents go through a crazy divorce. After 30 years they are selling the house and trying to be on a collision course with financial disaster.

We are a young, struggling family and have always taken care of ourselves. I am not concerned about an inheritance. There is nothing to inherit.

Both my parents have worked their whole adult lives for the government. They never saved a cent, always counted on their retirement. How are they going to survive on that?

My husband and I work hard and we want to be able to send our children to college. Now we are afraid we are going to be strapped by the foolish squandering of our parents. Are we being selfish to tell them, "You're on your own?"—VICTIMS OF MID-LIFE MADNESS

DEAR M.L.M.: If your parents should end up hungry, even if they spent their money in crazy ways, of course, you will feed them. It is your moral responsibility.

If they both have government pensions, I doubt that it will come to that. Meanwhile, have you considered asking them to sit down with you and a financial counselor of the bank where they do business and discuss the future? It might be a good idea to get some unbiased "out-of-house" counsel.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your return and 50 cents to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

The association was established in August of 1982 when property owners took ownership of Rest Lawn Memorial Park.

Students at the International YMCA training school in Springfield, Mass., played the first official game of basketball on Jan. 10, 1892. It was invented by Dr. James Naismith to provide indoor exercise between football and baseball seasons. A peach basket was used and the players had to use ladders to retrieve the ball after successful shots.

Sites will include Casey Jones Village, The Victorian Historical Village, The Parthenon, Upper Room, Hermitage, Gatlingburg's Great Smokey Mountain Craftsman Village and the Chatanooga Choo-Choo Complex.

Cost for the tour is $650 which includes hotel/motel accommodations, luggage handling and gratuities, admission to the Grand Ole Opry and Opryland. A $200 deposit received by

Watermelon, nutritious snacking

Looking for a way to beat the summer heat? Try some cool, moist and juicy Texas watermelons. The melons are a great tasting and nutritional snack, and can be varied in delicious summer recipes.

Texas watermelons are available until September. Texas is a major supplier of watermelons for the nation. In 1985, Texas was ranked second in the nation for the annual watermelon harvest.

Watermelon is an idea summer snack. It has a high water content, about 92 percent, and it is low in calories. At only 42 calories per cup, watermelon continues to gain in popularity. Watermelon is also an excellent source of vitamins A and C.

Selecting a watermelon is easier if it has been cut. Look for firm and fresh looking flesh, with good ripe color. White streaks and whitish seeds in a cut melon should be avoided. Most retailers will charge a little more for a cut melon, but this is a sure way of telling the maturity of a melon.

When buying a whole watermelon look for a smooth surface with a dull rather than shiny surface. The underside, or belly, of the watermelon should be a creamy white in color. Whole melons are most popular when chilled. It takes about 8 to 12 hours in the refrigerator to properly chill a melon. Whole watermelon can be stored in the refrigerator for about one week. After it has been cut, cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate.

To cool off during this hot Texas summer, try some cool watermelon recipes like Watermelon Ice Cream Pie and Fresh Watermelon Coolers. For free recipes on Texas watermelon write the Texas Department of Agriculture, 3652 N. Dixie Street, Odessa Texas 79762.

SKIN PROBLEMS

NEW YORK (AP) — Teen-agers aren't the only ones with skin problems. Skin disorders are problems for pets, too, according to a survey by the ALPO Pet Center. Of the 2,540 veterinarians responding, 90 percent said skin disorders were the most common reason why pets were brought to their offices for examination.

In addition, 55 percent of the vets reported an increase over the last few years in office visits due to dermatological disorders.

Think of it this way: Convertibles are just conventional autos that decided to go topless.

TODAY'S TRIVIA ANSWER: (a) As a result of Louis and Mary Leakey's excavations in East Africa starting in the 1930s, many scientists believe human evolution was centered in Africa.

Due to changing job market

Students switching majors

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's undergraduates are turning away from liberal arts for more lucrative majors such as business and engineering at least partly because of a huge rise in student indebtedness, a new study concludes.

The shift from liberal arts to career-related majors "has been attributed to a 'me generation' more preoccupied with self than with fellow man. But this may simply reflect the students' concern about their indebtedness and a hard-headed recognition that the job market is changing," said the survey released by The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Average indebtedness among students borrowing for college nearly quadrupled from 1975 to 1984, rising from $2,100 to $7,900 based on student responses and adjusted for inflation. During that decade, the proportion of undergraduates borrowing to pay for college rose from 11 percent to 30 percent.

"The high cost of college makes it necessary for students to depend increasingly on outside support, including loans, and there is some evidence that those with sizable debts tend to concentrate in fields where they can expect high starting salaries," it said.

Student debt has soared since the 1970s because of the rapid growth in federal student loan programs, the increasing tendency of colleges to make loans rather than scholarships or grants, and because tuitions have been rising faster than inflation for the past six years.

The Carnegie survey suggested that hard economic realities may be steering students into fields of study and, eventually, careers that are not their first choices.

Only about a third of those surveyed who said they expected careers in either engineering science or computer science, both of which offer relatively high starting salaries, said those were the fields they were most interested in.

Of the 19 percent who said they planned to enter business, only 47 percent said that was their first choice of careers.

By contrast, of the 2 percent who said they expected to enter the music field, 83 percent called music their first passion.

The Carnegie report includes data on student finances released for the first time from a national survey conducted in the spring of 1984 of 5,000 college students. The survey had a sampling error of about 3 percent.

"With students currently taking on $7,000 to $10,000 in loans during their college years, it is not surprising that the percentage of students who say they 'worry a great deal' about job prospects after graduation rose from 13 percent in 1975 to nearly 20 percent in 1984," said the report.

Comprehensive physicals advisable

SAN DIEGO, Calif., (AP) — Comprehensive physical examinations are advisable for students taking part in intramural or interscholastic athletics, according to Pediatric News.

The examinations should be performed every three to four years, with annual screenings focused on injuries that have occurred or changes in activity that may place the athlete at increased risk, the medical journal notes.

Commenting on a report by Dr. E.

Lee Rice of the University of California-San Diego School of Medicine, the publication says the suggestion is not intended to substitute for the routine annual health care complete screening.

Fire Dept. open house this Sunday

The new Hereford Fire Department will be holding its open house ceremonies this Sunday at 2 p.m.

Ceremonies will begin with a flag raising ceremony. Then Grand Lodge of Texas Grand Master Perry M. Parker of Port Arthur will be presiding over the cornerstone ceremony.

Following the laying of the cornerstone, firefighters and Chamber of Commerce members will perform a symbolic "cutting of the fire hose" ritual, in lieu of the traditional ribbon cutting.

Tours of the new station will be conducted following the activities. Hereford's new fire station was completed in early July and firefighters have been using the facility for just over a month. The 12,000 square foot station cost the city just over $350,000.

The fire station was built in the same location of the previous fire station. During demolition of the old station and construction of the new station, firefighters used the Fullwood Building at Lee and Third as their base.

The decision to build the new station came in late October of 1985 when the Hereford City Commission accepted a bid from High Plains Builders of Amarillo.

The old station was constructed in 1926 to be used as a creamery and feed store. The fire department moved into the building in 1970. At that time the building was to be a temporary home.

"The main difference between this station and the old station is about 59 years," said Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain.

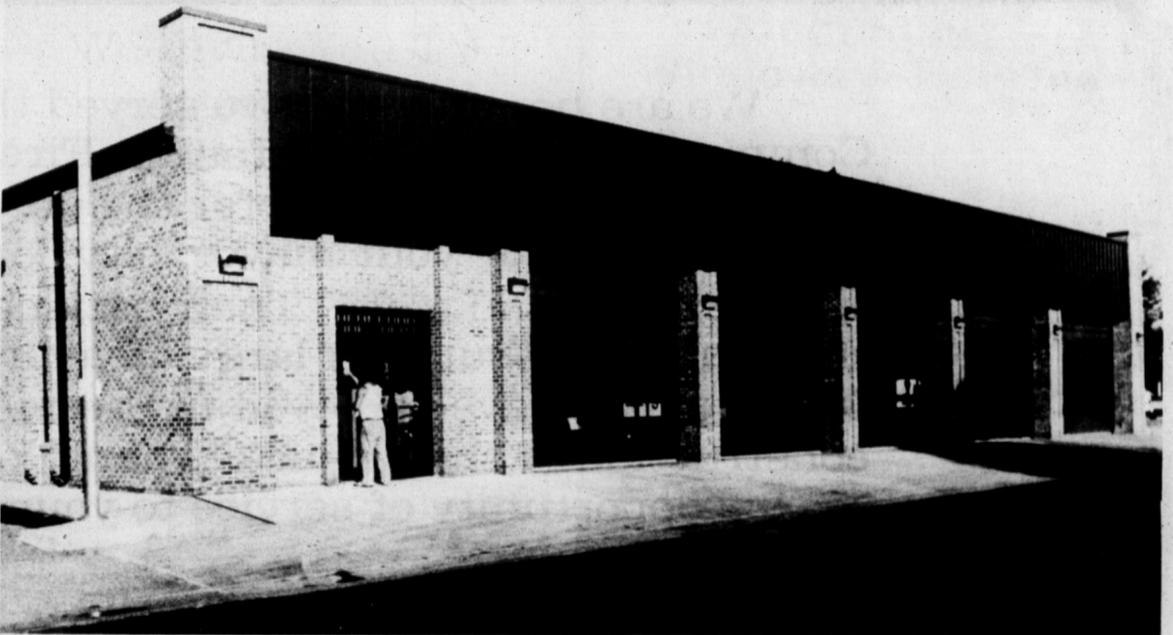

Spain added that the new station is equipped with maintenance rooms, areas to wash the trucks and equipment, meeting rooms, and recreation rooms which the old building did not have.

Firefighters used this building for 40 years

This building was used for 16 years

Open house for the new Hereford Fire Station will be this Sunday at 2 p.m.

Clashing clothes part of Buntz

NEW YORK (AP) — His wardrobe is a testament to clashing patterns and circus-clown ties. His policework ignores protocol and a few constitutional rights. Lt. Norman Buntz could never work on fashion-conscious "Miami Vice," but he's a perfect fit on the cop kenneled called "Hill Street Blues."

Buntz, played by Dennis Franz, was brought to "Hill Street" last year, its sixth season, to shake up the troops and television viewers alike. NBC and the producers felt the Emmy-winning series had become too predictable.

"It was clear that Buntz was designed to be a bad apple," Franz said in an interview. "He was described to me as the J.R. (Ewing) of 'Hill Street.' He was going to do things that were unacceptable to television audiences, and I was delighted."

Buntz was not a mean-spirited, crooked cop, as was Franz's earlier "Hill Street" character, Bad Sal Benedetto, who was pure swine and killed himself in the 1962-63 season. Buntz just goes by a different book than his fellow cops.

For instance, he once needed a reason for a drug search, so he grabbed a turkey and told the suspect that it was a cocaine-sniffing bird. When the guy started fleeing, Buntz had probable cause to search him.

"In all his bending of the law, the audience's sympathy is with Buntz," said John Litvack, co-executive producer on "Hill Street." "I hope everything he does causes smiles in the audience. He's not conceived or written as a fascist."

Last season, as the Buntz character was fleshed out, he became a bit more humane. Franz welcomed that — up to a point. "I don't want it to go too far," he said. "I don't want to be just another nice guy on the hill."

Perhaps because he was new, Buntz's antics seemed more engaging than the requisite weekly growling collar by Mick Belker or another militaristic assault by Lt. Howard Hunter. "I think all the characters are as quirky as ever," Franz said.

Franz has made a career out of playing sleazeballs. Director Brian De Palma used him in "Dressed to Kill" and "Body Double." De Palma was also considering him for the Al Capone role in "The Untouchables," Franz said.

Franz, soft-spoken and a quiet dresser in real life, played an oily character in "Psycho II," where he got to wear the abrasive ties and plaids he now sports on "Hill Street."

One measure of Buntz's acceptance is Franz's fan mail. Much of it comes from "strange women and cops," the actor said.

"They (the cops) can identify with Buntz. They send look-alike pictures and say this is our Norman Buntz. Some of them look pretty close."

His mail sometimes includes some useful props. "I get a lot of free gum and ugly ties," he said.

Record three grand slams hit in game

Rangers beat Orioles 13-11

By The Associated Press

Without ace reliever Don Aase, sidelined by a freak injury, not even a record-tying two grand slams in one inning were enough to produce a victory for the Baltimore Orioles.

The Texas Rangers, who also had a bases-loaded homer while contributing to a record three slams in one game, took the lead with six runs in the eighth inning and posted a 13-11 victory Wednesday night.

Steve Buechele, whose two-out error led to five unearned Baltimore runs during a nine-run fourth inning rally, touched off the winning outburst with his 15th homer.

Pete O'Brien's three-run homer, his 16th, one of six hits in the inning off Rich Bordi, 4-2, and Larry Parrish's two-run double off Nate Snell put the Rangers ahead.

Aase, who leads the major leagues with 28 saves, was unavailable in the bullpen after twisting his back while picking up one of his children earlier in the day.

"I was the official starter for both teams," Buechele said after the Rangers stormed into the clubhouse with a noisy outburst befitting a pennant-clinching victory. "I got them going, and I got us going."

"It was a big error, an enormous error," Buechele said of his two-out bobble which preceded Jim Dwyer's slam in the fourth, the second of the inning for the Orioles. "It weighs heavy on your mind, but you've got to shake it off and keep going."

The Rangers, who had lost 22 of 28 previous games in Memorial Stadium, took a 5-0 lead in the second off Ken Dixon when Toby Harrah hit his fifth career slam to touch off a 5-for-5 night that included three singles and a double.

Gary Ward's RBI single in the third made it 6-0 before the Orioles roared back and hit two slams in one inning for only the fifth time in major league history. The feat was last accomplished on April 12, 1980 by Cecil Cooper and Don Money of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Three consecutive walks by Bobby Witt preceded a slam by Larry Sheets, his 13th homer of the season and third in three games.

A single by Tom O'Malley finished Witt, and two walks by Jeff Russell loaded the bases again. After the error by Buechele allowed one run to score, Dwyer followed with his eighth homer to make it 9-6.

Lee Lacy's two-run homer, No. 11, made it 11-6 in the sixth, when the Orioles seemed only to be adding insult to injury. But the Rangers refused to fold.

The game started 73 minutes late because of a rain shower, with Baltimore catcher Rick Dempsey entertaining the crowd by singing three rock songs. Two fans cavorted on the tarp as Dempsey sang, and then were picked up by police as the fans booted.

Once started, the contest lasted three hours and 42 minutes, with 10 pitchers serving up 346 deliveries while walking 15 batters. The winner, Dale Mohorcic, 8-3, pitched only one inning.

There was also a knockdown pitch by Mike Mason, following Baltimore's second slam, which emptied both benches briefly, and a stray cat held up play by running on the field in the eighth.

For the Rangers, the day started with a meeting in Washington, D.C., with President Reagan for Manager Bobby Valentine and several of his players.

"It was a day to remember, I'll guarantee that," Valentine said.

Dodgers defeat Astros 7-4

By The Associated Press

Courtesy of the Houston Astros, Len Matusek was the recipient of two pitches thrown out over the plate, just where a hitter likes them.

Matusek, not one to turn down two such delectable offerings, promptly deposited both pitches over the Dodger Stadium fences for home runs that powered the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 7-4 triumph Wednesday over the Astros.

With the victory, they pulled to within 5½ games of the National League West Division leaders.

"I'm not taking anything away from Len because he's a good hitter and he has the power to hit the ball out of the ballpark, but we just made entirely too many mistakes to him today," said Houston Manager Hal Lanier.

"We threw too many fastballs out over the plate where he likes the ball and where he can extend his arms."

The first mistake came with a man on in the second inning against Matt Keough, whose contract the Astros had purchased July 30 and who hadn't pitched since June 9 with the Chicago Cubs. Keough, 2-3, worked the first 3 2-3 innings. He allowed three hits and six walks and left with a 2-1 deficit.

Matusek, who underwent arthroscopic surgery on his right shoulder last January and didn't come off the disabled list until May 25, drove in three runs with his second three-hit game of the season. It was the first time he hit two homers in one game in his major-league career.

'Y' plans youth softball leagues

Youth softball leagues are being organized, with a registration deadline of Friday at 5 p.m.

Leagues planned are first grade, second grade third grade, fourth grade, fifth grade, and sixth grade.

Registration is according to each boy's or girl's grade in the 1986-87 school year. Not enough registration for three leagues may mean that fewer leagues will be organized.

Playing days will be on Mondays for first and second grade divisions, on Tuesdays for third and fourth grade divisions, and Thursdays for fifth and sixth grade divisions. Game times will be 6 p.m. and 7:10 p.m.

Registration fees are $5 for YMCA members and $10 for non-members of the YMCA.

Practice for the leagues begins on Monday, Aug. 11. The league season will be six weeks, with a single-elimination tournament for third, fourth, fifth and sixth grade divisions scheduled on Saturday, Sept. 27.

No tournament will be held for the first and second grade divisions.

For more information on the youth leagues, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

Over the last two years, our peers have judged our fresh, new and innovative advertising ideas as the best in the Panhandle of Texas.

THIS YEAR, THE VERDICT WAS THE SAME!

In advertising competition with other daily newspapers across the region, the Hereford Brand won honors in the use of graphics, layouts, special sections and copy writing.

THE POINT? Sure, we're patting ourselves on the back, but those same pats can turn your retail ideas into profitable retail sales. The next time you have a message to convey, pick the winning choice!

We reach thousands every day!

Fitness of feet often forgotten

By The Associated Press

Parents who want to help their children start off the school year on the right foot should pass on the three C's of foot care to the youngsters, says an orthopedic surgeon.

Heel-to-toe health is an often neglected part of total fitness for children, according to Dr. John Waller, a surgeon at New York's Lenox Hill Hospital.

Cleaning, caring and cushioning are the three C's, explains Waller, a member of Dr. Scholl's Foot Health Council.

In the cleaning category, he suggests that after bathing, feet should be dried thoroughly because the warm, moist areas between the toes are frequent sites of athlete's foot. Other suggestions include:

CARING — Toenails should be clipped straight across (never rounded) to avoid ingrown nails and socks changed every day to avoid foot odor. "Regular use of a foot deodorant powder or spray can also help prevent odor."

Feet should be examined regularly for signs of developing foot conditions. "Tender, red spots may be signs of a developing blister caused by friction between the skin and shoe, and the tender area should be covered with moleskin to prevent further friction."

CUSHIONING — Athletic shoes should be adequately cushioned to protect against foot stress. "After constant wear, the padding on the bottom of the shoes may thin out. Adding insoles to shoes can provide extra cushioning."

Shoes should be regularly checked for proper fit. During rapid periods of growth, which varies among children. "A child may need new shoes as often as every three months. There should be at least a half-inch of space between the end of the longest toe and the tip of the shoe. The sides of the shoe should be roomy enough for the sole of the foot to spread as a child takes a step."

Another foot specialist who recalls that back-to-school once meant new leather shoes and blisters from a painful two-week "break-in" period says sneakers are now the ideal shoe for children of all ages.

"The child's foot, especially the infant's, is not capable of good postural positioning on hard, flat, civilized walking surfaces," explains Herman Tax, a professor at the New York College of Podiatric Medicine.

The tops of the sneakers can be soft leather or nylon, says Tax, who is a children's footwear consultant to Reebok.

"It doesn't matter," he says. "All a foot needs in a shoe is the sole. The upper is only there to keep the sole on the foot, and all it has to do is ventilate and protect the foot from the elements."

Ways with Wine

by David Hutchins

ASSERT YOURSELF

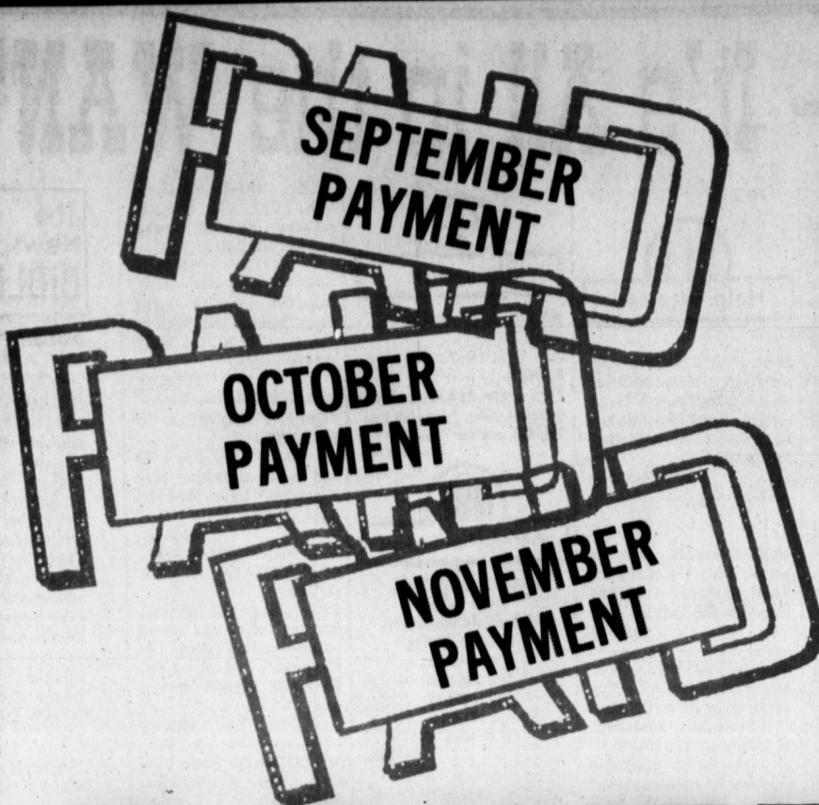

Assertive white wines, those with body, character and a mature bouquet, can stand up to flavorful entrees. Without food, such wines can be a bit much. Match them well with a savory dish which is rich in flavor and pale in color. For instance, any fine French dry white goes well with oysters, clams, lobster, smoked fish, scallops, frogs' legs, salmon, and snails. It complements prosciutto, hollandaise and other rich sauces, and hard Swiss cheese. Such wines include most good mature French Chardonnays and their equivalents from California. Or, try a Gewurztraminer, a Pouilly Fume, a fine white Graves, a Soave Classico, or a California Johannisberg Riesling.

We love to talk about wines at THE STORE so assert yourself and come on in and let us answer any questions you may have about them. We feature a fantastic selection of domestic and imported wines to suit every personal taste and budget requirement. Browse around through our shelves fully stocked with liquor, cordials, brandies, beer and wine. We're here at 400 N. 25 Mile. Call 364-7802. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

The wines mentioned above should be served slightly chiller 50 degrees - 55 degrees F.
