Medeles trial for police assault begins

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A 78-year-old Hereford man whose jailing was the subject of a week-long protest by a group led by farm labor activist Jesus Moya will go to trial today in 222nd District Court in Hereford on charges of aggravated assault of a police officer.

Manuel Medeles was arrested May 4 for the alleged assault of Sgt. Sammy Sanchez of the Hereford Police Department. Also charged in the incident was Medeles' daughter, Lisa Lopez, 19.

Jury selection began today at 9:30 a.m., with testimony expected to begin this afternoon. The trial is expected to last until Friday.

The Hereford Fire Department, according to reports, received a fire call at 8:52 a.m. last May 4. When firemen arrived at the scene Medeles was burning trash in his front yard.

Firemen attempted to explain to Medeles that the practice was against city ordinance, but, according to Fire Marshal Jay Spain at the time of the incident, Medeles apparently did not understand the request.

Firemen requested a bilingual officer come to the home and explain the law to Medeles in Spanish.

Sanchez answered the call. "I explained in Spanish that he needed to put the fire out," Sanchez said in a May 5 interview. "He refused and accused me of being prejudiced."

Sanchez then tried to get members of Medeles' family to help explain the seriousness of the situation.

"I asked them to influence him to put out the fire and encourage him to cooperate so he wouldn't be arrested."

Eyewitnesses, including Brand staff writer Debe Graves, saw Medeles hit Sanchez in the stomach. "After he hit me I turned and tried to restrain him," Sanchez said. "Then his daughter came at me from behind."

Lopez also struck Sanchez before the pair were subdued by firemen.

The pair was later indicted by a Deaf Smith County Grand Jury on the assault charge, and made $5,000 bond each. Later, however, their bond was revoked by E-Z Bail Bond of Amarillo "because Lopez would not cooperate with attorneys," said Tina Gonzales of E-Z Bail Bond.

Moya, family members and others then began a week-long demonstration that included two candlelight vigils while the pair was in jail. Moya said the pair was re-jailed only because Medeles was a member of Moya's International Farm Workers Union.

"This man has been involved with the farm union for years," Moya said, "and he has been very active and loud in our demonstrations. I think this was a form of retaliation against him."

Moya also said he was unaware that the pair's bond had been revoked by the bonding company.

A week later, the pair again made bond and have remained free.

¿Como se llama?

His name is Loper, and he's part of Herb Vogel's herd

By DEBE GRAVES

Where can you find Emmylou, Reba, Jessica Hahn and Brooke Shields all together? Maybe The Oprah Winfrey Show, since she is also present? Wrong. They're at stables just outside of Hereford.

What are such famous women doing together in Hereford? The answer is less than obvious. These are not the original bearers of such famous names, but a herd of female llamas named in honor of newsmaking women.

Herb Vogel is the owner of the llamas and it is his sense of humor which is displayed in the naming of his pets. For instance, Sue Ellen is a gentle llama who affectionately greets her owner with a soft sound similar to a clearing of the sinuses.

Vogel's pet project came about as the result of 4-H projects his sons outgrew. "They needed stables for horses they raised as 4-H projects," Vogel said. When the boys left home and the horses were gone, Vogel decided to make use of the stables by indulging an interest of his own.

"I had the place and I just decided to buy me a few llamas because they are cute, good pets and kind of exotic," Vogel said.

Eighteen months later, Vogel's herd of llamas totals 13 females and two males. This is no passing interest for Vogel, who can identify all of the pets by name. A llama weighs 25 to 30 pounds at birth and cost varies from $8,000 to $20,000 apiece for females and $15,000 to $30,000 apiece for stud males.

Vogel said he is building a herd for future sales. "I have seen champions go for $50,000 to $80,000," Vogel said. "In fact I just had three of my females bred by high-powered studs in Montana last week."

He describes his pets as "loving, cuddly" animals and claims they are not hard to maintain. "They eat hay, oats and grain," he said, with the average animal eating "three or four pounds of hay and a couple of pounds of grain" a day.

Originally from South America, the llama belongs to the same animal family as the camel and, like its cousin, has a stomach with three compartments and are used as pack animals.

As a pack animal, a mature llama can carry 80 to 90 pounds for an average of 20 miles a day for up to three weeks. Though people in the Andes use the llama as a source of meat and as their only efficient means of transportation in mountainous terrain, the animal is also valued for its long, fine-haired fleece.

"Their wool sells for $2 to $3 an ounce compared to an average 10 to 35 cents per ounce of sheep wool," Vogel said.

All of Vogel's herd are halter-broke and he plans to make a showing at the Houston and Fort Worth stock shows this spring. In the meantime, he is just enjoying his hobby-cum-vocation.

Gorbachev meets with reps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev met with senior congressional leaders at the Soviet Embassy today in advance of new summit talks with President Reagan expected to focus on the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

The Soviet leader told lawmakers in an ornate embassy salon that ordinary citizens in both their countries favor improved relations.

"If that is not perceived properly, this process will not have the necessary impetus," Gorbachev said of the drive for arms control agreements and other examples of superpower cooperation.

"It will develop in a painful way, and that should not be the case," said the general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party.

Gorbachev declared that the United States and Soviet Union should congratulate one another on the signing Tuesday of a treaty to ban intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

"I have familiarized myself with the initial reaction in the world and I can see that it has had major repercussions in the world," he said, seated he sat across a long table from House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and a handful of other Democratic and Republican congressional leaders.

Gorbachev invited the House and Senate leaders to the embassy after his hopes of addressing a joint meeting of Congress were scotched by conservatives. Several of his congressional critics threatened a demonstration on the House floor if the Soviet leader appeared.

Some of the legislators said in advance they would question Gorbachev about human rights and Afghanistan.

Senators who sat across from Gorbachev will help decide the fate of the missile ban treaty when the Senate votes on ratification next spring. And the Soviet leader was expected to address the issue of ratification.

"Now, as soon as the press leaves us alone we can talk to one another," Gorbachev said. Moments later, television cameras were shut down and the session was closed.

The meeting at the Soviet Embassy comes a day after Gorbachev and President Reagan signed a treaty to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear missiles. Senate leaders predicted the chamber would endorse the accord by mid-April.

"We should explore matters directly related to this treaty," said Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif., "things the Soviet Union can do to enhance, rather than endanger, ratification prospects."

Cranston said that included discussion of issues such as human rights and the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan. House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, said he also planned to ask that the Soviets cut off aid to Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista regime, since the United States is considering the same with regard to the anti-Sandinista Contras.

"Both of us might make a contribution to peace in Central America," said Wright.

Today's meeting with Gorbachev was designed to replace a canceled visit by Gorbachev to Capitol Hill, where he had been invited to speak to a joint meeting of the House and Senate. Conservative objections scuttled that plan.

As Reagan and Gorbachev signed the intermediate nuclear forces, or INF, treaty, members of both parties in the Senate were predicting it would win the two-thirds majority needed for ratification. But questions focused on the kinds of reservations, understandings or amendments that might be added on the Senate floor.

Cranston said he counts some 50 senators in favor of the treaty and from 10 to 23 "inclined to oppose it." Conservative lawmakers are likely to seek changes in the document, linking approval to Soviet compliance with this or previous arms control accords, or to understandings about what the U.S. side will require in future talks about conventional force balances in Europe.

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., called the document "a potential Trojan horse," saying it could open the door to more sweeping nuclear arms reductions that would leave the United States vulnerable.

Another skeptic, Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., said he sees lack of an enforcement clause in case of Soviet treaty violations as a serious deficiency.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., whose Armed Services Committee will hold hearings on the treaty next year, called it "a psychological breakthrough" in U.S.-Soviet relations. While the treaty's military significance is minimal, he said, it sets important precedents for future talks on conventional arms and long-range nuclear forces.

Besides Wright and Cranston, the embassy delegation included Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.; Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.; Minority Whip Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.; and House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash.; Majority Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif.; Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill.; and Minority Whip Trent Lott, R-Miss.

Over 200 families and individuals have applied for assistance from the Christmas Stocking Fund this holiday season.

Stories from some senior citizen applicants tell of this need:

Mrs. F is a 62-year-old widow who lives alone. She has just moved into different quarters after her old ramshackle home was condemned by the city in October. Hampered by poor eyesight, she does sewing in her home as her sole source of income. She doesn't draw any Social Security because her late husband didn't pay enough into the program to qualify her for benefits. Mrs. F could stand some help with food and bills this Christmas.

Mrs. T, at 64, is also a widow, and lives alone. She receives a small sum in Social Security widow's benefits each month, but that check is no match for the substantial prescription drug bills she faces because she must take medication for treatment of a heart condition. On a fixed income, Mrs. T is having a difficult time.

A bedridden patient in a local care center is yet another example of the widely-varied need in the community. This patient's total Social Security income goes to the home for her care, but she needs special items neither her SS check or Medicare will purchase. This patient's mother has to buy the health care items for her daughter out of her own small Social Security check. As a result, this mother and daughter are having difficulty this Christmas season, and the medical care items for December and January can't be paid for.

"All of these cases paint in vivid detail the reason the Christmas Stocking Fund is at work in Hereford again this holiday season. We ask the more fortunate within our community to remember at this special season of caring and sharing that there are those less fortunate among us who could use a helping hand," said a Stocking Fund spokeswoman.

"We really have less than two weeks to accumulate the funds necessary for CSF to extend help to as many of the community's needy as possible. Our committee has already been made aware of special needs on the part of over 200 families here. We're working against a December 23 deadline, when assistance packages will be delivered, so we're hopeful Deaf Smith County residents won't wait to share this Christmas season," said the spokeswoman.

Tax-deductible donations to CSF may be made at the offices of The Hereford Brand, 313 N. Lee, or mailed to CSF c/o The Brand at Box 673, Hereford.

The Brand will publish listings of contributors on a regular basis.

Study says

Crop insurer overpaid nearly a third of loss claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Crop Insurance Corp. has overpaid farmers by as much as 31 percent in settling claims for losses, according to a report by the General Accounting Office.

Some of the overpayments involved errors that "were so obvious as to appear to have been intentional," the report said. Fourteen of the claims were referred to the Agriculture Department's inspector general for further investigation.

The GAO, an investigative agency of Congress, said it reviewed $9.4 million in claims handled by private "reinsured" companies in 1984-85. It found about $3 million were overpayments.

Investigators said the errors identified were "so consistent and frequent" that the overpayments are indicative of a nationwide problem with insurance obtained through the USDA agency.

The GAO report was sent recently to Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., chairman of a House subcommittee on conservation, credit and rural development.

Recommendations included tighter internal controls by the FCIC and an improved system to recover overpayments. The agency replied that it already had begun to tighten its procedures and that a system for recovering overpayments was in place.

As to GAO's assertion that some of the claims were "so egregious as to suggest willful attempts to defraud," the agency said the charges were not supported by the report's findings.

"That individual agents, producers, loss adjusters and company management would engage in such programmatic and geographically disparate fraud is unlikely," the agency said in its statement. "We did discover, prior to the GAO findings, a pattern of procedural neglect which characterized the operations of one company which led to a temporary suspension and continues to require specific monitoring."

Before a new law in 1980, federal crop insurance was sold and serviced primarily by the agency itself. Currently, FCIC relies heavily on private reinsured companies, which sell and service crop insurance under their own names and adjust losses when a claim is made.

The agency also uses master marketers who sell and service policies directly on FCIC's behalf. The agency, however, is responsible for all losses and for adjusting claims on the policies sold.

Investigators said they reviewed 134 claims totaling $9.4 million, which were adjusted by the private reinsured companies. Of those, 127 or 95 percent were adjusted incorrectly. The incorrect claims included 113 overpayments of $3 million, and 14 underpayments of about $32,000. About 63 percent of the over-payments were for $10,000 or more.

The GAO also reviewed 37 claims adjusted by FCIC employees involving policies handled by master marketers. Of those, 23 claims, or 62 percent, contained procedural errors. But the net overpayments totaled only about $19,000 or 1.1 percent of the $1.7 million in indemnities paid.

Under the 1980 law, the insurance program is supposed to be actuarially sound, with income from farmers' premiums covering indemnities, or payments for losses.

"While FCIC has increased the scope of the program and the involvement of private companies, for fiscal years 1982-1986, indemnity payments have exceeded premium income by about $1 billion," the report said. "Total indemnity payments have amounted to about $3 billion."

Kids go week without television

WHITE SETTLEMENT, Texas (AP) — More than a week without television was like a day without sunshine for some fifth-graders when their teacher pulled the plug to stimulate their creativity and get them interested in other things.

But the students, as a result of the experiment, became more attentive in class, handed in unprecedented numbers of extra-credit assignments, romped outdoors, and rediscovered household pets, said teacher Lisa Baker, who had withheld TV.

However, Ricky Shelhorse confessed to his diary that he wanted to die at the beginning of his week without television. The 70 North Elementary School pupils strained to refrain from watching a single television program.

The video-starved students, at 12:44 p.m. Monday, chanted "TEE-vee, TEE-vee," as the 25-year-old teacher turned on the tube.

The teacher said she organized the mass abstinence to stir the students out of a passive existence, promote reading, stimulate creativity and imagination, and to give families a chance to get reacquainted.

"Kids have been writing that they've had better family ties," said Ms. Baker. "That makes me feel good. But then some of them also said their family was right on the edge. They were about sick of each other."

Family members had also been asked to join in the experiment. Students wrote of their experiences in a journal, revealing siblings fought more and one mother stormed out of the house while her husband guarded the tube and turned up the volume.

But six children decided not to join their 70 classmates.

"I'd rather not torture myself," said 11-year-old Quentin Solomon. "I'm just hooked on it."

Ms. Baker's students, at the beginning of the week, hummed a funeral dirge to a television set veiled in black. Ms. Baker printed contracts and told students how to keep a diary. She said the experiment, even if unsuccessful, would show students how important television was to their lives.

"It was frightening," she said. "I told the kids to begin with, 'I'm not down on TV. It can do some good things. It can be educational.' But I think that they are consumed by it and they fall into the temptation to just sit."

One mother pasted a sign over the family's main television that said, "Go outside and play." Some said they realized that watching too much television had made them miss out on family life while others said they missed their favorite programs.

One fifth-grader found a way to comply without pain. "I taped every show I liked," said Sandy Davis.

Fired employee center of crash investigation

CAYUCOS, Calif. (AP) — The investigation of the Pacific Southwest jetliner crash that killed all 43 aboard has focused on a fired airline employee who may have been carrying out a murder-suicide mission.

FBI agents Tuesday concentrated on the hunt for a weapon possibly smuggled aboard PSA Flight 1771 by David A. Burke, whose former boss also was on Monday's flight.

Burke, 35, had worked 14 years for USAir, which owns PSA, but recently was fired as a customer service agent at Los Angeles International Airport.

"We're looking for a weapon, and hopefully if there's one we'll find it," said FBI special agent in charge Richard Bretzing.

No weapon was found when the search was halted Tuesday.

Bretzing and other investigators declined comment on an ABC News report that Burke smuggled a .44-caliber Magnum onto the jetliner, whose crew reported gunfire and smoke in the cockpit just before Monday's fiery crash.

"It appears at this point — and has yet to be substantiated — that it was a criminal act on board that caused the craft to come down," said Bretzing.

ABC, citing a confidential government source, also said authorities found a suicide note or recording left by Burke.

After learning his former boss, 48-year-old Raymond F. Thomson, would be on the Los Angeles to San Francisco flight, Burke bought a one-way ticket and smuggled a gun and six rounds of ammunition aboard, using his airline badge to avoid security checks, ABC said.

Moments later, witnesses saw the flaming four-engine BAe-146 jet streak in a nose dive into the green, oak-studded hills of a cattle ranch 175 miles northwest of Los Angeles. Wreckage and bodies were scattered over 20 acres.

Patricia A. Goldman, head of the National Transportation Safety

Board's investigation, said Tuesday night her agency was coordinating the probe with the FBI. She declined to reveal any details.

Unless bullets pierced a control cable, aviation experts said, it was unlikely gunfire inside an airliner would result in a crash.

"Any kind of penetration of the fuselage might result in depressurization, but there's no reason to think that it would cause this kind of accident," said George Dahlman, a spokesman for the jet's manufacturer, British Aerospace, at its American headquarters near Washington, D.C.

Richard H. Wood, a private aircraft accident investigator and director of the University of Southern California's Aviation Safety Program, said the two pilots could have been shot.

FBI agents late Tuesday searched Burke's Long Beach condominium, where they earlier talked with a woman and girl.

After two hours, agents left with two cardboard boxes and a metal briefcase. They refused to describe what they had found.

USAir spokeswoman Nancy Vaughan said Burke had turned in his airline identification after being fired for stealing airline money.

Friends and relatives in Rochester, N.Y., where Burke lived 14 years, said he had as many as 11 children but had never married.

Burke had been investigated in Rochester for alleged cocaine trafficking and car theft, but was not charged in either case, the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle reported today.

X-ray and metal-detection equipment at the Los Angeles International boarding area were operating properly Monday, said PSA spokesman Bruce Nelson.

However, tests by the Federal Aviation Administration this year found security-system effectiveness at airports varied widely and Los Angeles ranked in the bottom seven of the nation's 28 biggest airports.

PSA spokeswoman Margery Craig said the airline allows employees to bypass metal detectors by showing badges, but she didn't know whether the arrangement included USAir employees boarding PSA aircraft.

There were no reports of mechanical problems with the plane since the airline took delivery in 1984.

Clements touting development

AUSTIN (AP) — Both the United States and Mexico stand to gain from economic development programs that will be discussed at a border governor's meeting this week, Gov. Bill Clements says.

"Our regions are irrevocably linked," Clements said. "It is only natural that we work together in harmony to pursue common goals and find solutions to common problems."

Clements said he is especially interested in the "maquiladora" twin-plant concept, but that the agenda also will be open to questions on the environment, academics, drug problems, energy or any other issues the governors wish to discuss.

Clements, the governors of New Mexico, Arizona and California, plus the governors of the six Mexican states which share the border, will open talks Thursday at Las Cruces, N.M.

The presidents of both nations have approved of the border governor meetings, Clements said.

"All of the present border governors, both U.S. and the Mexico side, are enthusiastic, and I mean that, about reinstating this forum," said Clements, who helped organize border governor meetings during his first term.

Letter to the Editor

Dear editor:

"The condition of my bank account makes it almost impossible to send the check your office has requested.

My financial condition is due to federal laws, brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws, and outlaws.

I am compelled to pay income tax, property tax, business tax, amusement tax, head tax, gastax, food tax, excise tax, sewer tax, sales tax, and transportation tax.

I need a business license, car license, operator's license, truck license, trailer license, marriage license, and dog license—and even if I go fishing, then I would need a fishing license, a boat license and a fee permit to launch my boat.

For my own safety I am required to carry insurance for life, death, health, accident, fire, property, liability, earthquake, tornado, old age and unemployment and that's before you count wind, hail and lightning.

My business is so governed that it is no easy matter to find out who owns it. I am inspected, expected, suspected, disrespected, rejected, dejected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commanded, and compelled until I provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every need or desire or hope of the human race.

Simply because I refuse to donate to something or another, I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up, held down and robbed.

I can tell you honestly, that except for a miracle that happened this morning, I could not enclose this check. But the wolf that comes to my door just had pups in my garage. I sold the pups and here is your money."

"Author unknown."
Sincerely in Humor,

Theater arts classes to present play Saturday

The Hereford High School theater arts classes will present their play, entitled "The Night of January the 16th," on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Community center Ballroom.

Dealing tersely with a famous murder trial, the play follows American court procedure accurately and realistically, making it educational as well as entertaining. The jury is selected directly from the audience, rendering an honest, though unplanned verdict.

Tickets are $3. There will also be a Sunday afternoon performance in the Community Center at 2:30 p.m.

Dimmitt gets past Hereford varsity boys

Whitefaces lose hard-fought contest 59-51

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

A third quarter spurt by the visiting Dimmitt team proved to be the difference in the game Tuesday night when the Hereford Whiteface varsity boys lost their home opener of the 1987-88 season, 59-51.

The loss dropped the Herd to 2-5 for the season. Hereford plays Snyder Thursday at 7 p.m. in the first-round of a tournament in Denver City.

Tuesday's junior varsity game was also a close one, with Dimmitt getting past Hereford 44-40. It was the second defeat of the season for Hereford against five victories.

The HHS junior varsity's next game will be at Dumas on Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

Hereford and Dimmitt, in the varsity contest, battled to a 23-23 halftime tie. Hereford did not lead at any time in the first half, but the score was tied five times, including 13-13.

Dimmitt's biggest leads in the first half were seven points at 11-4 and six points at 19-13.

In the third quarter, Dimmitt scored seven points before Hereford's Rodney McCracken hit a pair of free throws with 4:26 left in the period. Half a minute later, McCracken scored a fast break layup and was fouled when attempting the shot. He made the free throw to cut Dimmitt's lead to 30-28.

Dimmitt then outscored Hereford 14-4 in the rest of the quarter for a 44-32 lead. The closest that the Whitefaces could get in the final period was seven points, first at 50-43 on a field goal by Brad Smith, and then at 52-45 when Kevin Hansen made two free throws.

After that, Dimmitt hit six of six free throws to maintain its lead.

"We played real hard, but we shot the ball poorly," Hereford Coach Mike Fields said.

"We played good on defense. They have (James) Alexander and (Warren) McDonald, who are two of the best outside players in the whole Panhandle.

"And we just couldn't stop them from scoring — but a lot of people haven't stopped them from scoring," Fields continues.

"I thought we showed some improvement from the first time we played them. We stayed with them until that stretch in the third quarter when they scored four or five times in a row.

"Our kids battled all the way to and end, and if you do that, you have a chance to win," Coach Fields adds.

Brad Smith led Hereford with 14 points, and Rodney McCracken scored 11 points. Smith also led the Whitefaces with nine rebounds, and McCracken and Kevin Hansen each had seven rebounds.

Hansen had six assists, and McCracken and Marcus Brown each had three steals.

Alexander and McDonald each scored 18 points for Dimmitt. Earlier this season, on Tuesday, Nov. 24, Hereford played at Dimmitt, losing by a final margin of 66-54.

The HHS junior varsity team suffered through a cold shooting second quarter and fell behind Dimmitt 30-17 in the 44-40 loss.

Todd Schroeder was Hereford's high scorer with 16 points, and Stuart Mitts and Darren Nikkel each scored seven points.

Kyle Andrews led in rebounds with nine, and Schroeder had six rebounds. Schroeder also led Hereford in steals with five.

The rest of the schedule for the month of December for the HHS varsity and junior varsity includes games against District 1-4A on Dec. 15 (at Dumas), Dec. 18 (at Frenship), and Dec. 21 (at Canyon).

The Hereford junior varsity will play in the Bovina tournament on Dec. 17-19, and the varsity will play in the Clovis tournament on Dec. 28-30.

The Whiteface varsity, with a victory over Snyder on Thursday in the Denver City tournament, would advance to play the winner of a game between Lubbock Coronado and Denver City. Friday's winner's bracket game is scheduled for 8:30 p.m., while the losers of those two games play at 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Lady Whitefaces lose 1-4A opener

Nothing went right for the Lady Whitefaces after the first quarter Tuesday night, when Hereford lost its District 1-4A opener — and home opener — 70-29 to Levelland.

Hereford, which is 5-8 for the season, plays at home Friday against Berger, at 8 p.m. A junior varsity game will be played at 6:30 p.m. — with both games played at the La Plata gym.

Hereford's junior varsity lost to Levelland 42-32 on Tuesday and is 0-4 for the season.

The first quarter of Tuesday's varsity game saw Levelland hold a 16-11 lead. But in the rest of the game, Levelland outscored Hereford 54-18.

Hereford's leading scorers were Tricia Kahlich with six points and Stacy White with five points. Kahlich led in assists with four, and Carmen Brockman had six rebounds.

HHS junior varsity player Shea McGinty scored 17 points, but no other Lady Whiteface player scored more than two or three points in the 42-32 loss to Levelland.

Levelland held a 26-14 halftime lead. Hereford closed the gap to 34-28 in the third quarter.

McGinty also led in rebounds with eight. Poppy Richardson led in assists with four and also had four re-

YMCA wrestlers open 1987 season

Seven members of the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA Wrestling Club placed in the Spartan Open tournament last Saturday at the Amarillo Civic Center.

The top finish was a first place effort by Billy Bankston in the 120-pound class of Division V. Second place finishes were achieved by Jeremy Herberson in the 52-pound class of Division IV and Stacey Sanders in the 78-pound class of Division IV.

The other placings by YMCA Wrestling Club members were:

GATE INCREASE

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The turnstiles are spinning at an increasingly rapid pace for college baseball. The NCAA quotes the Collegiate Baseball newspaper to the effect that a new high in attendance was reached during the 1987 season.

The total turnout was clocked at 14,383,152 fans for college games. That was the third year in a row the record was broken. The University of Texas led with total attendance of 122,481 spectators. Mississippi State had the highest average attendance, 3,665 home fans per game.

Adam Perry, fourth in the 69-pound class of Division IV; Patrick Mejia, fourth in the 52-pound class of Division II; and Drew Radford, eighth in the 84-pound class of Division IV.

"Billy Bankston was our team's most outstanding wrestler in the tournament," said Coach Dan Odell of the YMCA Wrestling Club.

The next tournament for boys in the club will be on Saturday, Dec. 19 in Dumas. A club member who did not participate in the Spartan Open, Nathan Henderson, will wrestle in the 112-pound class of Division V.

Boys interested in joining the wrestling club may contact the YMCA at 364-6990, or visit a wrestling practice session from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday.

Local youth take top honors in food show

Twelve Deaf Smith County youth took top honors in the District 1 4-H Food Show held in Borger, Texas, on Saturday, Dec. 5.

Each of these youth earned first-place awards equivalent to blue ribbons in three divisions: senior, intermediate and junior, which each included four classes.

First place winners in the senior division were Jim Bret Campbell, Trisha Teel, Monica and Donna Grotegut. Jim Bret Campbell and Donna Grotegut received additional honors in being named in the "Top 4" high scores in the Nutritious Snacks and Vegetable food division and Jim Bret will serve as alternate to the state food show.

Junior winners were Larissa

Kleuskens, Keith Flood, Kinann Campbell and Ted Peaboddy. Intermediate first place winners were Jennifer Hicks, Wade Johnson, Pam Price and Lori Urbanczyk. Hicks and Johnson won "Top 4" honors with high scores in main dish and fruit & vegetable categories.

Dean Bradley, former home economic teacher served as a judge for the day long event.

The 4-H Food Show, sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Extension Homemakers Association, Morrison Milling Company, and the Borger Chamber of Commerce, seeks to help young people excel by learning how nutrition affects one's health throughout their life.

1988 Officers

Newly installed officers for 1988 of the County Extension Council were installed during Monday's luncheon at the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library. They include, from left, Mariellen Homfeld, recording secretary; Grace Covington, reporter; Sherrie Blackwell, corresponding secretary; Maudette Smith, vice-chairman; and Carol Odom, chairman. Not shown is Mary Carter, treasurer.

New officers installed by County Extension Council

The Deaf Smith County Extension Council met Monday for a noon luncheon in the Heritage Room of the Library for their Christmas luncheon and party.

Following the luncheon, Johnnie Messer, outgoing chairman, installed new officers for 1988. She used the theme of the "hub" and "spokes" of a wheel as the officers represented the hub, the members the spokes. The group was reminded that each part of the wheel, no matter how small, is very vital for the proper function of a wheel; and if an organization is to be a working group, each member must do her part.

Helen Caraway led the group in singing carols and games were played.

Beverly Harder, representing the county extension office, lit the hub. New officers installed were Carol Odom, chairman; Maudette Smith, vice chairman; Mary Carter, treasurer; Grace Covington, reporter; and Beverly Harder, family living chairman.

Guests and members present were: Bertha Dettman, Covington, Flora Homfeld, Mariellen Homfeld, Connie Fulgham, Martha Lueb, Toni Vaughn, Virginia Sumner, Smith, Messer, Naomi Brisendine, Nell Pope, Kate Bradley; Jewel Hargrave, Edith Hunter, Helen Caraway, Odom, Blackwell, Carrie Mae Doak, Lottie Wertemberger, Juanita Perrin, Winnie Wiseman, and Vernis Parsons.

Hunters' luncheon scheduled

Members of Simms Study Craft Club will be hosting a pheasant hunters' luncheon from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. Saturday at the Simms community building.

The cost of the meal, which will include chili, stew and homemade desserts, will be $5.

Annual tree lighting ceremony held Monday

The ninth annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony was held Monday night on the Deaf Smith County Courthouse lawn. Betty Taylor, president of the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, greeted approximately 100 boys and girls and their parents. Mrs. Claus (Sue Malamen) also welcomed those present.

The First Baptist Church Handbell Choir, under the direction of Archie Coplen, performed "Gentle Mary", "O Come All Ye Faithful," and "O Tannenbaum", as the official lighting of the community Christmas Tree commenced.

Santa Claus (Jerry Brock) appeared atop a Hereford Fire Department engine with lights and siren announcing his arrival. He greeted the boys and girls, received requests for Christmas gifts, and distributed candy canes to all of those present.

The idea for a community Christmas Tree and special lighting ceremony was conceived by the Women's Division in 1979 under the presidency of Margaret Formby. That year a three-and-a-half-foot Douglas Fir tree was planted in the southwest corner of the courthouse lawn with the consent of county commissioners, who also agreed to supply electricity for lighting of the tree. This year the tree is approximately nine feet tall and is adorned with new, big, red bows.

Through the years Santa has arrived in everything from a horse-drawn wagon to a three-wheeler—always delighting those present. A variety of community choirs and bands have also performed for the occasion.

The committee, chaired by Betty Drake, includes Joann Hill, Janice Carr, Barbara Yavornik, Mary Hamby and Juanita Phillips.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We plan on being away from home this winter. Are there any special precautions I need to take with my dishwasher?

I have just recently bought it and would hate for it to be ruined. — H.B., San Antonio, Texas

If you plan on leaving the dishwasher in an unheated home for the winter and there is a chance of freezing temperatures, you can call a qualified service technician. He will need to take steps to prevent it from freezing.

The fuses should be removed or the circuit breaker tripped to turn off the power to the dishwasher.

Another thing: Make sure the water supply is turned off and drain the inlet line, according to the use and care manual for your washer. — Heloise

Send a great hint to:
Heloise
P.O. Box 795000
San Antonio, Texas 78279

WIG

Dear Heloise: As everyone knows who wears a wig, synthetic hair isn't easy to comb with a plastic comb. I solved the problem with a pet comb. It is made of metal with the teeth about one-eighth inch apart. It makes the wig more attractive. — V.H., Poplar Bluff, Mo.

SMELLY SHOES

Dear Heloise: My husband is a resident doctor who often works in the hospital for 36 hours straight. When he takes his shoes off, it's enough to knock anyone out.

Nothing helped his odor problem until I once jokingly sprinkled some carpet and room deodorizer in his shoes. It wiped out the odor instantly and left a clean, fresh scent.

I now use it regularly. Now, not only is my husband happy but I'm sure his co-workers are too. — Christina P., Los Angeles, Calif.

FINGERNAIL POLISH

Dear Heloise: I have a super hint for your readers. I dropped something on my bathroom wash bowl and it left a chip mark on the porcelain. I could never touch it up because of the aqua color. Now with the crazy shades of nail polish on the market, I found the exact color.

My second bathroom wash bowl is white and the overflow was getting rusty so I used an emery board and got all the rust out and dried it real well and I used white nail polish and it looks great. — Carmel Bodine, Poland, Ohio

My expert plumber, my husband, David, says this is fine for a "Heloise quick fix," but it is only a temporary solution and will need to be repaired. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: I use this method to keep cut flowers fresher longer. I place a teaspoon of honey (for food) and a little white vinegar (prevents mold and bacteria) into the water.

People are always asking me for my method, since my cut flowers last a long time. — Netta B., Penrose, Colo.

GARLIC AND ELECTRICITY

GILROY, Calif. (AP) — A food processing plant is embarking on an unusual corporate diversification program — processing garlic and electricity, reports Energy User News.

The company is installing its own cogeneration project to provide all of its thermal requirements, including 190,000 pounds of steam per hour, according to the industry journal.

The steam is used for dehydrating garlic and onions, which are then packaged and sold as granulate or powder. The steam will also be used to power a generator which produces electricity.

During the May-December peak processing period when the plant operates 18 hours a day, all the electricity produced will be purchased by a local utility.

The cogeneration operation is expected to earn as much as $56 million in gross revenues from its sale of electricity.

WHAT WATERGATE?

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - "A generation of schoolchildren will learn nothing, or very little, about Watergate," says University of Rochester Education researcher Arthur Woodward.
 Woodward says he examined seven recently published and widely used fifth-grade social studies textbooks and found four of the seven contained no coverage of Watergate, two gave minimal reference to the crisis and only one provided an in-depth chronological account of events.
 Woodward says he fears these students will be mystified by allusions to the crisis that "reaffirmed the primacy and relevance of the Constitution."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Although I am sure a great many people have had this problem I have never seen it in your column. I am sure it's because it is difficult to express in printable language.

We have three children, 7, 5 and 3 years of age. We spend a great deal of time with our children, and there is no reason for them to feel neglected. They are all in bed by 8 o'clock. My wife and I turn in about 10:30. When we want to make love we lock the door.

Starting about a year ago the older ones who share a room started pounding on the door. They say they don't feel well or they are "lonesome" or they had a bad dream. Since our bedroom door is usually shut but not locked, they demand to know what we are doing in there and why the door is locked.

My wife insists that we open the door and attend to their needs. I believe she should not do this and have told her so. It is frustrating and annoying to be interrupted like that, and we never are able to pick up where we left off because I am out of sorts.

I never dreamed that I would end up writing to Ann Landers, but here I am with a problem I am unable to handle alone. Please help.—Anonymous in Racine, Wis.

DEAR RACINE: Your children are learning how to get what they want by being manipulative and demanding. There will be more of this sort of thing if you and your wife don't put an end to it at once.

The children should be told that your bedroom is a very private place, and when the door is locked it means private visiting is going on and they are not welcome. Explain that you respect their right not to be barged in on and that they should respect yours. Make it plain that if the house is on fire or they are really sick you want them to knock, but if they try to fool you the punishment will be swift and severe. Then keep your word.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a friend who is charming and intelligent, but she is extremely obese (over 300 pounds). Several weeks ago she broke one of my very good dining room chairs. It was very embarrassing. She never said a word about being sorry, nor did she mention paying for a replacement. (The chair was beyond repair.)

I need to know how to prevent her from breaking other chairs in my home without coming right out and saying, "Sorry, you can't sit there."

Tact is of the utmost importance. She is a dear person and I wouldn't hurt her for the world. Thanks for your help.—Without a Clue in Bloomsburg, Pa.

DEAR WITHOUT: Plan, in advance, which chair this friend will sit in. The moment she arrives lead her to the chair of your choice.

Should she be a dinner guest you need not feel uncomfortable about having a special chair on hand. Far better to subject her to this small embarrassment than to allow her to risk the chance of falling through a second chair in your home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What should be done when an invitation is received for a 50th wedding anniversary party and it says, "No Gifts, Please" and then someone starts a money tree?

The host and hostess are well-fixed financially and they do not need gifts at this stage of life. Please advise.—Florida Question

DEAR FLORIDA: Politely decline the invitation to participate in the money tree and forget it. No explanation is necessary.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs and drug use, Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," will give you the answers. Send $2.50 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.
