FSLIC sues 24 for $119 million

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

Twenty-four defendants, including some current and former Hereford residents, have been named in a suit filed by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation in U.S. District Court in Amarillo, seeking over $119 million in compensatory damages on behalf of depositors and creditors of Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association of Hereford.

The 62-page document gives a detailed account of the events which led to the Nov. 22, 1985 receivership of Hi-Plains by the FSLIC, when the Federal Home Loan Bank Board determined the S&L - under the leadership of James Gentry, Paul Moore, T.L. Welker and W.W. "Doc" Taylor - was insolvent.

The purpose of the suit is to "recover damages for losses incurred by Hi-Plains as a result of the breaches of fiduciary duties, breaches of statutory duties, breaches of contractual duties, negligence, gross negligence, and conspiracy of the persons and entities described as defendants."

24 former Hi-Plains S&L directors, officers

The suit alleges many of the defendants were officers, directors, or both, of Hi-Plains "who failed to exercise due care and diligence in the management and administration of Hi-Plains's affairs and ... who sought to obtain personal profit from their positions as directors or officers."

Other defendants, the suit says, were professional persons who failed to act with the degree of care, skill and competence that persons of their profession should exercise. Still other defendants were persons who "profited by aiding and abetting officers and directors ... in violating fiduciary duties and by acting in concert with the professional persons."

The suit purports each of the defendants participated in one or more transactions involving Taylor or Welker of which the cumulative effect has been the insolvency of Hi-Plains.

Defendants include Gentry, who was at various times a director, president and shareholder of Hi-Plains.

The Dallas-based Welker is also named a defendant as is his wife Dale, son Tom, and step-daughter Gail Anne Williams.

Former directors named in the suit include R.C. Hoelscher and Bernard Roberson of Hereford, Michael Alexander Wallace of Dallas County, Moore of Victoria County and James Sims of Dimmitt.

Oleta Golden, also of Dimmitt, is named as a defendant because of her representative capacity as executrix of the H.W. Golden estate, as is Zelma Ilene Osborn, of Parmer County, in her role as executrix of the Sloan H. Osborn estate.

Lawrence Clayton Smith and his wife, Carolyn, are named as defendants. Smith, who lives in Hays County, was president of SunWest Group which developed commercial property in Austin with funds obtained directly and indirectly from Hi-Plains.

Michael Abel, also from Hays County, is named a defendant for his involvement with SunWest as are Winston McIntosh and Dowe Gullatt, both of Travis County.

Cushman & Wakefield of Texas, Inc., is named a defendant as are its appraisers, William Murphy and Louis Hester, both of Harris County.

Rule & Company, Inc., of Missouri and its president, Thomas Rule, are named as defendants for their role as appraisers for Hi-Plains and its subsidiary, Welker Financial.

C.S. Mullinax, of Dallas County, and his company, Appraisal Brokerage and Consulting Company, are the final defendants in the suit.

The suit lists 20 claims for relief and gives extensive detail of a civil conspiracy, in the buyout of stock by Welker, and of real estate transactions which, over a period of three years, led to the loss, sustained by Hi-Plains, of over $119 million.

The 20th claim for relief, against all of the defendants, calls for "recision, for an accounting, for restitution of money had and received, and for setting aside of fraudulent transfers."

The suit claims all of the officers and directors are personally liable for making illegal loan transactions and that the transactions should be voided.

"All of the defendants have received money and property as a result of the illegal and ultra vires loan transactions," the suit says. "In equity and good conscience, the defendants should not be permitted to retain this money or property."

Additionally, the suit states the belief that some of the defendants have transferred money and property among themselves with "the intent and effect of defrauding their creditors" and says, "Defendants should be required to account and to make restitution and disgorge all money and property and benefits received by them as a result of the actions alleged in the complaint, no matter what form that money or property or benefits has now taken, and all transfer of property by the defendants should be set aside by the court."

FSLIC requests a jury trial and seeks prejudgment interest on the money plus punitive and exemplary damages "as the court may deem just and proper" as well as attorneys' fees and costs incurred in the litigation.

The suit was filed Nov. 20.

Christmas looks bleak for family

Loss of a loved one is a grief made all-the-more intense when the loss comes at a time when all those around you are celebrating the approach of Christmas.

For 62-year-old Mrs. C, this Christmas season is a time of difficult transition. Recently widowed, Mrs. C lives alone. She has no job, no family to help support her, and though she's applied for Social Security, that assistance will be a while in coming. All this means no money for groceries, or to pay her bills.

Under these bleak circumstances, Mrs. C. faces a dismal Christmas, but she's hoping Hereford's Christmas Stocking Fund will be able to help her with food, clothing, and utility bills.

Such real cases of need within the community are the reason for the efforts of the Christmas Stocking Fund.

CSF is now accepting cash contributions from Deaf Smith County residents to help brighten the Yule season for some of the community's less fortunate.

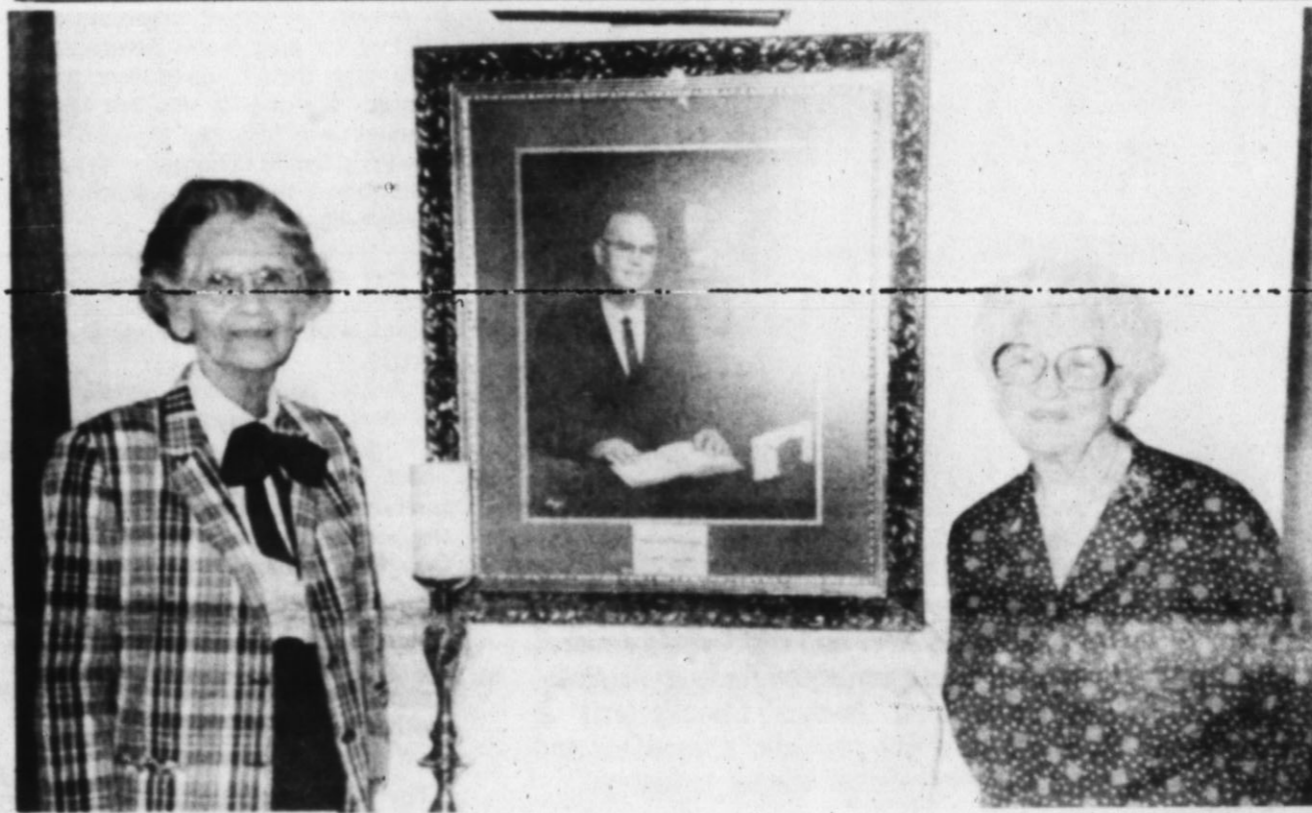

CSF is a charity not associated with any other organization, and is administered by a committee of 15 anonymous individuals from all walks of life within the community.

"CSF has been made aware of almost 200 families who stand in need this holiday season, but the assistance CSF is able to give will only stretch as far as our community is willing to extend its helping hand," says a spokeswoman for CSF.

"CSF frequently gives assistance in the form of food, clothing and help with special problems, but the program is limited to the amount our residents donate each year. We soon must begin the difficult process of choosing which families will be

In Remembrance

Oneita Davidson, left, takes a moment to pause with friend, Eunice Petersen, and view the portrait of her late husband, Rev. Don Davidson, which hangs in King's Manor Methodist Home in Hereford. Encouraged by the interest and hard work of a committee headed by Petersen, Davidson founded the home in 1962.

King's Manor is 25 years old

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

The year was 1962 and members of the First Methodist Church of Hereford, under the guidance of Rev. Don Davidson, had just finished building a new sanctuary. In addition to his pastoral duties, Davidson served the church conference as director of the Golden Cross, whose purpose was to help less fortunate people who could not take care of themselves.

Eventually, the demands of Davidson's 28 years as a pastor led him away from Hereford - but his dream brought him back.

It was Eunice Petersen, a clerk at the draft board, who first suggested that the Business and Professional Women's Club of Hereford consider housing for the homeless as a project. "The 22 members of the club wanted a project and I took the idea to them," she said. Petersen was appointed to chair a committee of three (Sue James and Ellen Carter were the other members) to research the suggestion.

"It didn't take the three of us long to decide we didn't know enough to make a decision about who needed the housing or how to go about building the project, so we asked 15 men in town to help us research," she said. At some point, young lawyer Ernest Langley suggested the Methodist Church might be interested in getting involved with the project, from that suggestion King's Manor Methodist Home, Inc., was born, 25 years ago.

Residents and staff of King's Manor will be hosting an open house from 3 to 5 p.m. today to celebrate the anniversary of the facility. Among the guests will be Petersen and the wife of the founder, Oneita Davidson.

Both now make their home in the facility they worked to build. "As conference director of the Golden Cross, Don attended Hospital and Homes meetings all over," Mrs. Davidson said. "He met administrators at these meetings and got interested in the operation of the facilities. He knew there was not a similar facility in the Northwest Conference and he told me he felt a direct calling from God to build a retirement home in the Northwest Texas Conference area."

Davidson felt called to build the retirement center, but he met opposition from the ruling cabinet of the church. "The idea had been tried and had failed elsewhere due to overextensions, and so the cabinet couldn't see taking on another project as big as that," Mrs. Davidson said.

She still doesn't know how her husband brought the cabinet around to agree to the project, but he did. In 1960, he left the pastorate and moved to Abilene, where he established a base to search out an area to build

Three file for election

Three persons have announced their intention to seek office, subject to the March "Super Tuesday" Democratic primary, including two incumbents.

Political newcomer Lupe Chavez, head of the Juvenile Probation Department in Deaf Smith County, will run for the Precinct 1 county commission seat currently held by Bill Bradley.

Sheriff Joe Brown and Tax Assessor-Collector Nell Miller will seek re-election.

Chavez, who said rebuilding roads will be his top priority, has lived in Hereford for almost five years. He holds a bachelor of arts degree in law enforcement, and was on the Tulia Police Department for 1½ years before moving to Hereford. A veteran of the Vietnam War, he is a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, and serves on the boards of the Red Cross, Cancer Society and Lions Club, and is head of the Chemical People Task Force.

Brown, who entered law enforcement here in 1972 with the Hereford Police Department, was appointed sheriff in 1983 to replace Travis McPherson, and was elected over two opponents in 1984.

He is active in Lions, Big Brothers-Big Sisters, and St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Miller has served in her post since 1961.

KING'S MANOR

the retirement home of which he dreamed.

Davidson began taking his wife to meetings where they learned more about design and set-up of similar facilities. Prepared with more extensive knowledge of how to accomplish his goal, Davidson came full circle in his search for a town to house a Methodist-sponsored retirement home.

"In his search he came across the interest of the Business and Professional Women's Club in Hereford," Mrs. Davidson said.

But Hereford was not the only town interested in claiming the proposed facility.

Towns all over the conference met with the minister in an attempt to procure the facility. Keeping in mind the expense of construction and operations, Davidson issued a challenge.

"He told us whoever raised $100,000 quickest would get the site," Petersen said. "We raised it in 10 days."

That, the ladies admit, was a lot of money to entrust on a proposed venture, but "Mr. Davidson met with us and he spoke so glowingly that we knew he could do it (complete the project) sure as the world," Petersen said.

Nora Gillis, now a resident of Westgate Nursing Home which is an extension of King's Manor, donated a 13-acre site for the retirement center. According to Petersen, half of the land was eventually sold off to help with finances.

Mrs. Davidson said her husband was asked many times why he chose

Hereford over Lubbock or one of the larger cities in the conference. "His answer was, 'None of them offered me $100,000 and 13 acres of land.'"

In 1962, the Davidsons moved to Lazbuddie where they pastored a church for three years while building King's Manor. During that time, Davidson continued traveling through the conference taking surveys and building interest, in the project, within the area.

Under his direction, the community project took shape and in March, 1962, construction of the first building officially began with groundbreaking ceremonies. Seven months later, on Oct. 7, the first staff members moved into the building, which consisted of 20 apartments.

"Mrs. Ola Davis and her assistant, Anna Blake, were the first to move in," Petersen said. "The apartments had been carpeted but no furniture had arrived, so she and Anna slept on the floor that night." Davis, who was hostess for the facility, now resides in Westgate.

On Oct. 11, Ida Wilcox, from Panhandle, was the first resident to move into the retirement facility, according to Petersen.

On Dec. 9, 1962, over 1,000 area residents attended an open house to view the facility.

Mrs. Davidson said her husband's dream was to provide a retirement facility where elderly, but healthy, people could enjoy one another's company and have their needs met. According to Chaplain Lanny Wheeler, the intent of the founder has been maintained at King's Manor.

Clift making MIA walk

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Thomas Clift was a man with a mission on April 9, 1966.

He was a member of the Fifth Special Forces, the elite of the U.S. Army, when his group was ambushed by the Vietnamese.

There were nine men who were killed in the ambush. Clift, a robust 5-10, 185 pounds, suffered a seemingly worse fate.

He was tortured in Cambodia, Laos and North Vietnam. He kept his life only because "of my Catholic upbringing. I thought of the Lord nailed to the cross and Him saying, 'Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do.'"

Clift was finally freed from Dogpach, his North Vietnamese prison home, in 1973.

He promised the 227 American prisoners he left behind he would do what he could to get them back home. Now, he and 12 other former POW's are walking across America to plea for support to find out where, or what happened to, American soldiers are in Southeast Asia.

Clift, who has been walking for three years on a mostly hand-to-mouth existence helped along by a VFW, American Legion, Amvets or other organization along the way, wants Americans to write their Congressmen, and urge "Ma and Pa who live 1,000 miles away to write," to plead for a Presidential Commission to find out about the fellow soldiers he left behind.

Toting a ragged, thumbed-through-a-thousand-times copy of November's Life magazine that detailed the American soldiers that have been practically proven to be alive in Southeast Asia, a change of clothes and a Bible, Clift has walked almost 5,000 miles, from his home in Oregon to the east coast and back across. He'll meet his 11 fellow walkers in Denver in February, and they will all head back for home from there. He plans to be back home in 1990. Over two more years of walking, marching for a cause.

Over and over, Clift detailed his promise to his fellow prisoners, that he would do whatever he could to get them home.

"They all said they had heard that before," Clift said. "I want to follow up on my promise. I am doing everything I can to get them home."

For 7½ years, Clift endured what he knows those POW's are still going through. He firmly believes most or all of them are still alive—"When you have the will to live, you can stay alive."

But his friends, his fellow prisoners, are still there. Clift believes they are human pawns in a chess game started by President Richard Nixon in 1973 that has continued today with intermittent moves by the U.S. and the Vietnamese.

Nixon promised $3.4 billion to help with Vietnam's reconstruction in return for the POW's. Nixon then backed out of the offer.

Clift said the most help has come during the Ronald Reagan presidency, but more needs to be done before the POW's will see American soil.

"Reagan is the one president who has done something," Clift said. "He sent a group led by Gen. John Vessey to Hanoi in August to talk, and is sending a second group to Laos to talk to them. The delegation to Hanoi has done more than any prior group."

"What we need, though, is a presidential commission, to see what needs to be done, and then do it."

Clift said there are several specific Congressmen to write: Sen. Bob Packwood (R-Ore.), Rep. G.V. Montgomery (D-Miss.), and Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt (R-Ark.); and the House Veterans Affairs Committee, at 335 Cannon HOB, Washington, 20515.

Meanwhile, Clift is walking down a long road, hoping that his former fellow prisoners will be waiting at the end.

His confident they are waiting for him.

"A mercenary raid in 1982 came back with more than 500 photos of POW's," Clift said. He also points to computer-enhanced photos taken on a space shuttle mission in 1982, eyewitness reports from refugees and a Korean prisoner released in 1980, as evidence there are still POW's in Southeast Asia.

"God is really the only one who can decide what can happen," Clift said.

helped, within the constraints of our budget.

"We're hoping the people of Hereford won't delay in making their CSF donations, as we have only about two more weeks to collect funds before we must begin assembling our assistance packages," says the spokeswoman.

Last year, Deaf Smith County residents set a new record in CSF giving to the tune of $10,626, and CSF committee members are hopeful yet another record will be broken this year.

The CSF program is working against a Dec. 23 deadline, when assistance packages are scheduled to be delivered.

Donations to CSF may be left at the offices of The Hereford Brand, 313

North Lee, or mailed to CSF c/o The Brand at Box 673, Hereford.

Anonymous donations should be so designated.

"We are committed to the holistic approach to care," he said. "We recognize our responsibility to care for the total person including the physical, psychological, social and spiritual needs."

Today, King's Manor is a non-profit retirement home with 33 resident rooms, a hostess room, 19 cottages, four houses, a chaplain house and a nursing care facility (Westgate) which currently houses 64 residents.

Remodeling is under way at Westgate with the completed installations of secure care and nursing call systems, a renovated dining room, increased lighting in the halls and the current remodeling of 24 resident rooms. Costs of the renovations are covered under the $250,000 donation willed to King's Manor by the late Mrs. J. Paul Craig, of Amarillo.

"Mrs. Craig became acquainted with King's Manor through a friend who resides in Westgate," Director Joyce Lyons said. "She restricted the use of the money to use one-half for remodeling Westgate, and to use the remainder to subsidize care for residents who cannot afford to pay the full cost."

King's Manor and Westgate each have an activity director who plans diversional activities for residents. Among activities are church services, transportation for shopping, a beauty shop, art and craft workshops, recreation activities and visits from local church and civic groups.

Sitting in the plush-office of the latest addition to the building, the entrance and administrative area on the west side, Petersen looked up with a sparkle in her eye "Of course the whole bunch of us didn't have any idea of how big the scope of this project would be."

Turning to Mrs. Davidson, she fingered a file containing clippings and a vast number of letters she received during the search for the project.

"I wouldn't take the world for having worked on this project. And the people of the area have been so good. I can just see them, yet, bringing in sides of beef and groceries . . ."

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I began using DES in 1954 following a hysterectomy and removal of my ovaries. The doctor said to take it until I'm 75. I'm still taking it.

Three years ago I slipped on icy cement stairs and fell. The doctor in the emergency room said, had it not been for the estrogen therapy over the years, I'd have broken my back in at least two places. Is DES the same kind of estrogen given today for osteoporosis?

DEAR READER: Yes, diethylstilbesterol (DES) is a synthetic estrogen. It was one of the first estrogenic medicines that could be swallowed without being destroyed by digestion. That meant women could take DES and not have to take shots. It preceded birth control pills and many other estrogen compounds used today. Natural estrogen is destroyed by digestion.

Because it has the action of other estrogen compounds, DES certainly would improve your absorption of calcium and help to protect against the bone loss associated with the menopause or the removal of your ovaries.

TV accountability?

It may strike some of us as unusual that a group of people should stage a rally in Amarillo to protest how the Amarillo Globe-News does its job while nothing of the sort ever happened regarding how any of the Amarillo television stations do their job.

The Globe-News has been accused of "negative reporting." Yet on the very week of the protest meeting KVII-TV in Amarillo aired an investigative reporting segment by Chris Bell charging Iowa Beef Packers, one of Amarillo's largest employers, of violating numerous safety standards. The television station relied upon testimony of one IBP employee, admitted that no other IBP employee would back him up, and ignored the IBP response that a recent OSHA inspection had given the company a clean bill of health.

Surely here was an opportunity for Paul Engels and Boone Pickens to mount a protest rally against this television station for doing a hatchet job on Iowa Beef Packers, a large employer whose payroll and tax values mean a great deal to Amarillo and its future. Yet these people are strangely silent.

The broadcast media toot their own horn constantly telling the world how important they are. Yet in the final analysis it is the print media, primarily the newspapers of this country, which provide most of the solid information this nation needs to govern itself.

The Globe-News was criticized but the critics overlooked the role of that newspaper in conducting the Empty Stocking Fund at Christmas, for the editorial effort supporting the Supercollider, for its unflinching support of the United Way and many other campaigns.

Newspaper advertising is a valuable community service. The classified columns are the first place to turn to when we want to find a job, rent an apartment, or sell an item. People take the service provided by a newspaper for granted but it is truly unique.

A television news story is measured in seconds and the message is fleeting. People who want to be truly informed read a newspaper to find out what the television announcer failed to read.

The Amarillo Globe-News flunked the test of editorial fairness in its Hispanic series in Hereford and no doubt the management will learn something from this failure and the resulting furor.

But the widespread protest among Globe-News readers merely serves to point out that it is the newspaper that counts when people want to be truly and fairly informed. The broadcast people entertain.

Federal prison scrutiny

For years, Texas has been under a court order from U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice to relieve overcrowding in its state prisons. Justice and the rest of those in the federal justice system should look at their own back yard.

The federal prison system was built to hold 28,000 prisoners. There are 44,000 inmates in federal penitentiaries, and the figure is rising.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, recently addressed the problem, calling for three- or four-month military-style incarceration for first-time offenders rather than long stints behind bars.

Perhaps Texans and others wouldn't resent federal pressure from judges and others as much if they would try harder to keep their own house in order.

Still a bad idea

Like the proverbial bad penny, the crackpot scheme to require all polls to close simultaneously on presidential election days has reappeared in Congress. A bill to that effect, approved by the House of Representatives, now goes to the Senate that killed a similar measure in 1986. We hope the senators have the wisdom to do so again this year.

Favorite whipping boy

Following the conclusion of last weekend's Latin American summit in Acapulco, there was no question as to who everybody's favorite whipping boy was: Uncle Sam.

... The summiters committed themselves to take steps necessary to bring Cuba back into the Organization of American States as swiftly as possible — ending an isolation that began in 1961 as the result of a U.S.-backed move.

Of course there were the usual calls on Latin America's creditors in the United States and the other industrialized democracies to show patience and restraint in dealing with those countries' enormous foreign debts. There was talk of economic colonialism on the part of the United States, pinning the blame on what ails Latin America on the rich old Uncle.

So it went. Certainly the Latin American statesmen are correct to insist that the recovery of their nations is very much in the interest of America and the West. But the Latin Americans have a little tidying up of their own to do, as regards corruption, mismanagement and political instability in their own houses. ...

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek comes up with an unlikely idea this week.

Dear editor: Million-dollar football players, the man who paid $54 million for a painting, or the one who paid $5 million for a Bible, or the one who just paid $9 million for a 1931 automobile, or the one who borrowed $40 million from a Savings & Loan Company that's now bankrupt, might be able to afford to live in Japan, but I don't see how most Japanese can.

According to an article I read at half-time in a game where a million-dollar quarterback had already thrown four interceptions and his million-dollar linesmen had let him get sacked five times, a rib roast in Japan sells for $168 per pound.

Of course there are cheaper cuts. You can get a sirloin steak for $101 a pound. Or a cantaloupe for $35. Or an apple for $3.70. A quarter of a ham goes for $95.

You can eat all this in an apartment that rents for $7,400 a month.

Now about those meat prices. I've been thinking, has anybody considered what the street price of an American steer would be in Japan?

Of course I'm not suggesting that we start smuggling butcher calves into Japan, but I was just thinking, if the world's dope smugglers run out of dope, it looks like there might be an opportunity in beef. So far, there's no law against raising cattle.

I've got this Jersey steer out here, wonder what its street price would be in Japan?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

"PROFESSIONAL DRIFTERS"

"Idleness is a fearful cause of dishonesty. Some persons seem to have no object in life, but simply to live in idleness. ... The idler does not return to society what he has received from it. If you do not render society an equivalent for what you receive from it, there is something wrong with you. All such become parasites upon society."

—J.W. Lowber, Dallas Morning News, June 21, 1893.

"Dishonesty often leads to pauperism. Starting into business, men sometimes do little dishonest things to make a dollar. One dishonest act leads to another, and the public soon loses respect for them."

"And all the time the public is losing respect for them they are losing respect for themselves. They get into trouble. They become disgusted and have no confidence in anyone. They lose courage and go to the bad, and consequently burden the public as sores to society the rest of their lives."

—C.T. Paul, Dallas Morning News, July 24, 1909.

TODAY'S INSIGHT: When we put together what J.W. Lowber and C.T. Paul stated, we can conclude that idleness is a cause of dishonesty and that dishonesty, in turn, causes more idleness.

Lowber referred to people becoming parasites upon society. I once heard a speaker, M. Russell Ballard, Jr. refer to another type of people as "professional drifters."

Ballard noted that the "professional drifters" travel from city to city, making up stories of hardships or financial problems. They then prey on the kindness and unselfishness of church ministers and directors of charity organizations, to get enough money or food during their time in each city.

Such people make it harder, sometimes, for charity organizations and church officials to determine who is definitely in need. C.T. Paul pointed out that it is hard to correct the problem in adults who have become set in their dishonest ways, but added that the long-range cure for the problem begins in the home where parents train their children in ideals of honesty and work. He said:

"So train the mind of the child and impress it with the ideas of honesty, of right and wrong, and of the great beyond that it becomes accustomed to thinking about the value of the good and beautiful things in life, and in after years, when the trials and ordeals of mature life come upon them, the desire and ambition to be a good man or woman will in a great measure overcome the temptation to be bad."

The Penultimate Word

PROPER RECOURSE

I am sure we are all tired of hearing about the big deal with the Amarillo News. I did not intend to say anything about this issue ever again. I came up with a question I think is vital to our world. Please forgive one more word on the subject.

It has become evident that the efforts used to get our point across were not proper. The Panhandle Press Association said we were trying to suppress the news. Many other papers around the state blasted us for infringing on the freedom of the press. The Amarillo paper has been full of letters to the editor about how unfair and dumb we are. Molly Ivins, that paragon of slam, wrote about us once again and called us the boil of the Panhandle.

Okay, let's say this was not proper recourse. My question is what is proper recourse? Forget the Amarillo paper. If a newspaper is incompetent, or is slanting the news, or is not printing the news, what recourse is proper for a community to pursue? I talked to several people in the news business and asked them about proper recourse. I did not get many ideas. One said we could start another newspaper. One suggested law suits like the one Jerry Falwell just won. None could come up with practical ideas about what is the proper way to make a protest against the press. Everyone seems to know how it should not be done. I want to know what is the right way.

Now, I am for the freedom of the press. But freedom without recourse is not freedom, it is an invitation to tyranny. There must be checks and balances. There must be responsibility. There must be accountability. In the reporting of news these vital ingredients are too often in short supply. Every effort to demand them is met with a pious cry about freedom of the press.

There is a system of checks and balances in radio and television without too much of an infringement on their freedom. The FCC demands that they give equal time for opposing views. They are not so much governed as they are held responsible. Why is the printed word exempt?

I know this sounds like more government intervention and the last thing we need is more government intervening in any area. The idea would be for the press to govern itself. So far there is not much evidence that they intend to do so. If they were serious about their mess they would have long ago done something about the sensation rags peddling lies in super markets.

It would be to the advantage of the press to take the question of recourse seriously. If they continue as they are the day will come when we just no longer believe anything they print. We may still buy the newspaper in order to have comics to read and some kind of thing to stick our face into at breakfast so we will not have to talk to our mates, but the real purpose of the press will be dead. Free and dead is still dead.

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

Unions should face reality

By Richard L. Leshner, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON—“All sinners belong in church,” AFL-CIO boss Lane Kirkland said, “and all unions belong in the AFL-CIO.”

Kirkland was referring to the Teamsters who now, after 20 years in the wilderness, are returning to the AFL-CIO fold. Kirkland's predecessor George Meany had kicked the Teamsters out primarily because of their alleged ties to organized crime. But then the AFL-CIO of 1957 was a powerful organization that could afford to be picky. In more recent years, the AFL-CIO has fallen on hard times.

The statistics are sobering. In the past 40 years, the percentage of the work force that is unionized has been nearly halved from 35 percent in 1945 to less than 18 percent today. In the first five years of this decade, the unions lost 3.1 million members, and the trend has continued since. Declining membership translates into fewer dollars and less political clout for the movement.

Reunion with the Teamsters will add about 1.7 million members to the ranks of the AFL-CIO and spur a major infusion of badly needed cash. Also, the Teamsters have a reputation for effectiveness as lobbyists in Congress and will presumably add their influence to that of the AFL-CIO. Obviously, Kirkland regards this move as a major breakthrough that augurs good things for the future of organized labor.

But with all due respect to Lane, I think he is barking up the wrong tree. Adding the Teamsters to the AFL-CIO will not add one new name to the ranks of organized labor, nor is it likely to enhance the reputation of the union movement.

In reaching out to the Teamsters, Kirkland is once again grasping at straws and turning a blind eye to the real source of his, and his movement's, troubles. Workers are walking away from unions in droves because the unions no longer represent them and speak to their needs. The old line union bosses are locked into the adversarial mentality they acquired a generation ago. They insist on regarding management as “the enemy” and demanding exorbitant wage hikes and restrictive work rules that deter efficiency and productivity.

The workers of today recognize, even as their unions do not, that the world has changed, that the old adversary mentality is a luxury our country can no longer afford. In this world of intense international competition, it is imperative that management and labor work together to increase productivity and that wage increases be based upon increases in productivity. Restrictive work rules have no place whatsoever.

Until the unions come to grip with this reality and develop a new approach to labor-management relations that emphasizes cooperation instead of confrontation, their power will continue to erode. Kirkland can juggle the numbers temporarily by inviting the Teamsters back in, but that tactic will only work once. Somewhere along the line the union brass will either have to wake up or watch their once-vital movement dissolve in desuetude.

High-tech toys not always educational

"High-tech" toys may be among the best-selling this Christmas, but they're not necessarily the most educational.

According to Sarah L. Anderson, a child development specialist, some of the best playthings for beginning the literacy process are those that children have been getting for generations.

"Babies need toys that are responsive to their actions," she says. "Those that squeak, honk, move and change are best."

Anderson suggests giving toddlers over 13 months old realistic looking toys like cars, dolls and dishes, that are small replicas of real objects.

"The smaller versions of real things help children to realize that one object can symbolize another and this is the foundation of literacy," explains the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

As children develop the ability to use symbols, the toy can look less and less like the real thing that is being represented. Youngsters between 3 and 4 are learning to pretend and toys that are not anything specific allow them to expand this skill.

"Children learn that they can make representations of their world and then change it. They can make it different at different times by, for example, using blocks as buildings one time and then for people or food another time," Anderson remarks.

"This is a magical time for youngsters and some of the things they like best are unrealistic characters like Mickey Mouse, a very popular figure with this age group."

The specialist says that toys which encourage the use of symbols through play help the child learn the connection between the real world and the abstract world of reading.

"Clothes for dress-up and acting out stories make an excellent gift for children of this age," she notes. "You can collect some old clothes, buy or sew costumes for roles like fire-fighter, police officer, cowgirl and doctor."

"Books, of course, are appropriate at any age, beginning with cloth or plastic books that babies can look at, handle and even chew and progressing through picture books and story books," Anderson emphasizes. "And it's especially important that parents read out loud to even the youngest children."

By proclamation of the president, Child Health Day is celebrated in the United States on the first Monday of October.

We have a good selection of biographies this week, beginning with Vivien, The Life of Vivien Leigh, by Alexander Walker. Vivien is an extraordinary picture of a unique and complex woman. As willful as she was beautiful, Vivien knew what she wanted, whether it was the roll of Scarlett or Lady Oliver, and got it. The achievement had its darker side at times, for she would become so immersed in her role that she became that character in real life.

While filming Ship Of Fools, Vivien found herself hammering co-star Lee Marvin's face with the very real and painful blows of her spiked heel. Playing Blanche DuBois actually "tipped her into madness." At times Vivien was consumed by devastating battles against tuberculosis, and manic-depression, which she sought to keep at bay through many love affairs. When Vivien Leigh died in 1967, the headline "Scarlett O'Hara is dead" was proclaimed around the world.

Fred Astaire: A Wonderful Life by Bill Adler is the story of an artist and entertainer whose achievements on stage, television and in movies created an American Legend. Fred Astaire made his debut in 1907 when, at the age of eight, he performed with his sister Adele. Fred Astaire was America's most popular dancer and to some, like George Balanchine, artistic director of the New York City Ballet, he was "the greatest dancer in the world."

Fred was not just a great dancer, but was a talented singer and dramatic actor. This book is the story of an eminently decent man. His charm and smile as well as his talent made him a beloved figure. He was unique and irreplaceable.

Rich Wiseman brings another superstar to us in Neil Diamond: Solitary Star. This is a story of how a guarded, insecure man launched a ferocious drive to stardom and made it. The picture of Neil Diamond that emerges is that of a driven loner. To many critics Diamond is cold, and occasionally abrasive; to his admirers, however, he is kind and generous without superstar airs. This unauthorized biography is about a Brooklyn-born singer, songwriter, performer and genuine music legend.

Helen Hays has written Loving Life, a companion volume to her popular bestseller Our Best Years. Helen Hays shares with her readers of all ages her singular insight, wisdom, opinions and inspiring advice on a wide variety of subjects. Outspoken, witty, and joyful reflections in Loving Life reveals Miss Hayes' zest for life, and her desire to share it with the world. "This is a work that will appeal to a broad and ageless audience simply because it speaks to a universal heart."

On the lighter side we have The Velvet Jungle, a novel by Julie Ellis. Centered on New York City's Seventh Ave., the fashion capital of America, Vanessa's story is a tale of indomitable courage, driving ambition, and captivating romance. You are taken inside the world of the rich and privileged in this story of Vanessa Conrad and the dreams that sustain her. Vanessa's rise from poverty and overwhelming personal loss, to wealth and fame in the world of international fashion and final fulfillment, is a story that will sweep you away.

Other titles coming out this week are:

Washington Wives by Maureen Dean;

Primary Target by Max Allan Collins;

Homeplace by Anne Rivers Siddons;

Tycoon: The Life of James Goldsmith by Geoffrey Wensell; and George C. Marshall: Statesman by Forrest C. Pogue.

Family film coming Dec. 17, is "Heidi" starring Shirley Temple. Please don't miss it.

High school grid playoff roundup

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

Cuero showed Friday night at Memorial Stadium in Austin why it was ranked No. 1 among Texas' Class 3A high school football teams this season.

In a battle of two unbeaten, untied teams, the Gobblers came from behind in the second half to crush the LaGrange Leopards 33-14 in their state quarterfinals playoff game behind Robert Strait, who rushed for 326 yards and three touchdowns on 32 carries.

With his performance, Strait becomes only the ninth high school player in state history to reach the 3,000-yard plateau. His current total is 3,066.

Cuero (14-0) advances to the semifinals next week against the winner of a Saturday night game in Huntsville between Cameron Yoe and Corrigan-Camden.

In the other 3A playoff games, Southlake Carroll won its 14th game without a loss by defeating previously unbeaten Gladewater 24-20 and McGregor improved to 13-0 by downing LaVega 12-6.

All four Class 3A playoff games are scheduled for Saturday.

In the only 4A playoff action Friday, Kerrville Tivy avenged its only loss of the season by defeating Schertz Clements, 27-7, at Alamo Stadium in San Antonio. It was Clements' first loss after 12 wins.

In Class 2A, New Deal kept its perfect record intact with a 21-7 victory over Abernathy, and Groveton overwhelmed Eustace 34-14.

Top-ranked Munday (14-0) beat No. 2-ranked and previously undefeated Paducah 17-14 in a key Class A playoff game. Wheeler beat Vega 21-7 to advance to next week's semifinals against Munday. Tenaha beat Wortham 7-6 and will play the winner of Saturday's game between Bremond and Flatonia.

In six-man football, Wellman and Lohn won berths in next week's championship game. Wellman beat Jayton 62-28 and Lohn eliminated Christoval 38-32.

Cuero, which defeated LaGrange 35-10 in last year's playoffs, trailed 14-12 at the half, but came out and dominated the second half behind Strait's 194 yards and a stingy defense.

LaGrange opened the scoring on the first possession after the opening kickoff on a 48-yard touchdown run by James Logan on a reverse with only 3:32 gone off the clock.

Strait brought the Gobblers back in the second quarter, capping an 88-yard drive with a 15-yard scamper around left end to make it 7-6. The Gobblers try for two was unsuccessful.

Cowboys host Falcons

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The staggering Dallas Cowboys hope they can victimize the NFL's worst offense and defense on Sunday.

The Atlanta Falcons, losers of six consecutive games and a 2-9 record, won't exactly be cowering when they come into Texas Stadium for the noon game.

They upset the Cowboys 37-35 last year, starting Dallas' slide out of the playoff picture.

Atlanta is last in points scored (14.9 per game) and last in points surrendered (29.8 per game).

Dallas Coach Tom Landry is treating them like they are the 1966 New York Giants.

"You wouldn't think they are that far down by looking at the films," Landry said. "They hustle and work and I don't see any let-up. They beat us last year. Everything is a toss-up for us."

Landry said any team with Gerald Riggs on it is dangerous.

"Riggs is one of the top runners in the business and we haven't been stopping the run too well lately," Landry said.

The Cowboys, who are 5-6 and a long shot for an NFC wild card berth, were 10-point favorites.

Steve Pelluer was to start at quarterback instead of Danny White, who continues to have problems from an injured wrist. Landry wishes he could use the quarterback on one of the halftime flag football teams, Roger Staubach.

"I think Danny has done as great a job as anybody could do following in Staubach's footsteps," Landry said. "Danny has always been a winner because he plays his heart out."

Dallas owns an 8-2 all-time series lead over the Falcons, who are coached by Marion Campbell.

Campbell said the losing streak is starting to wear on him and his team.

"We're in a tough situation," he said. "We play hard and work hard but nothing is happening for us."

Riggs needs only 82 yards to become the Falcons' career-leading rusher. He has 5,905 yards, trailing William Andrews' 5,986 steps.

"You can't say enough about Riggs," Campbell said. "He's just an exceptional player. We rely on him heavily. He just has tremendous ability."

The Cowboys will be trying to overcome a 44-38 overtime loss to Minnesota on Thanksgiving Day in which White threw two damaging interceptions.

"We're not rebuilding, we're trying to win," Landry said. "We'll be a stronger team next year if we can win our last four games."

The Cowboys are 16-3 in games after Thanksgiving.

Says Chicago must start its 'real season'

Bears' Ditka tired of close football games

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

No more two-point wins over the Bays, Tampa and Green.
No more two-point losses to Denver.
No more 14-point deficits to recover from.
No more goal-line fumbles by the Fridge.
"This is it, it's make it or break it," says Chicago Coach Mike Ditka, whose team begins its real season Sunday night in Minnesota.
"The big plan says no more losses."
If that's the big plan, it won't be easy.

The Vikings' regulars are 7-1, the same as the Bears and Minnesota beat Chicago 23-3 at the Metrodome last season. But Minnesota's strike team was 0-3, leaving the Vikes at 7-4 to Chicago's 9-2, meaning Minnesota needs a win Sunday, then some help to win the AFC Central.

That help may be there to foil Ditka's grand plan to finish at 13-2 and get all his playoff games in the frigid confines of Soldier Field. After the Vikings, the Bears must go to San Francisco for a game that could decide the NFC's home-field advantage, then play Seattle at home.

Ditka isn't particularly fond of where the string starts — indoors at the Metrodome, which he calls "the rollerdome" and "a roller rink."

The Bears will also be facing a rested team, which last played on Thanksgiving, beating Dallas 44-38 in overtime. Tommy Kramer, who picked the Bears apart in that 23-3 game last year, should be back at quarterback after bruising an arm and giving way to Wade Wilson in the second half at Texas Stadium.

In other games this weekend: Atlanta is at Dallas; Indianapolis at Cleveland; Kansas City at Cincinnati; the Los Angeles Rams at Detroit; Philadelphia at the New York Giants; San Diego at Houston; San Francisco at Green Bay; Seattle at Pittsburgh; Washington at St. Louis; Buffalo at the Los Angeles Raiders; New England at Denver and Tampa Bay at New Orleans.

The New York Jets are at Miami Monday night.

Indianapolis (6-5) at Cleveland (7-4)
The Cleveland Browns want to stop thinking about themselves and instead have set their sights on Eric Dickerson and the Indianapolis Colts Sunday in a meeting of NFL leaders.
"A week ago, people were asking if we considered ourselves one of the league's elite teams," Browns Coach Marty Schottenheimer said. "We're not."

The Browns were buttered up recently by San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh before their meeting Monday night. The 49ers won 38-24.

"I think what happened was, he set us up a little bit," Cleveland cornerback Hanford Dixon said. "He said he didn't know if any of his receivers would get open and he didn't know if they'd catch a pass, and the Browns are already in the Super Bowl and the Browns are the team to beat. I think his psychology worked."

The Browns say they will not fall for the same Walsh-style trick this time, although Indianapolis Coach Ron Meyer is lavishing praise on them.

"I would say they're the best team in the AFC," Meyer said.

The Browns' defense slipped from first in the NFL to third after the San Francisco game.

"The first thing we have to try and do is slow down No. 29 (Dickerson)," Schottenheimer said, "but you have to do more than that to beat the Colts."

Dickerson has run for more than 100 yards in four straight games. New York Jets (6-5) and Miami (5-6) (Monday Night)

The road to 6-6 continues here if Dan Marino can get his act together.

Marino was without a touchdown pass for the first time in 31 games in last week's 27-0 loss in Buffalo and was lifted in the fourth quarter.

That doesn't mean Marino won't be back for this one, but Coach Don Shula says the problems extend to the entire team.

The Jets have been nearly as erratic, pulling out last week's game against Cincinnati 27-20 when Barry Bennett blocked what could have been a game-losing field goal and Rich Miano returned it for a touchdown. If it's win one, lose one, this could be it.

Buffalo (6-5) at the Los Angeles Raiders (4-7)

Is this another game that will leave an AFC team at 6-6?

The answer may lie in what Cornelius Bennett can do against his stablemate in agent Richard Woods' clientele, Bo Jackson, whose 221-yard show in Seattle Monday night electrified the Seahawks and just about everyone else. In fact, Bennett and Jackson, who just began playing at midseason, may be the NFL's premier rookies by season's end.

If Bennett, Shane Conlan and the Coliseum's natural turf can neutralize Jackson and Bruce Smith can get to Marc Wilson, the edge goes to Buffalo — Wilson vs. Jim Kelly is a quarterback mismatch.

New England (5-6) at Denver (7-3-1)

This could end the 6-6 pattern. As John Elway blossoms for Denver, the Patriots' injury list keeps getting longer. There's spunk there — they battled back from three touchdowns behind to take Philadelphia into overtime before losing 34-31.

The Broncos are banged up, too — scratch Gerald Willhite and Steve Sewell from the offense and Dennis Smith from the defense for the rest of the year.

But John Elway has been a one-man team, playing the best quarterback of his career as Denver has won three straight to pull within half-a-game of San Diego.

Throwing primarily to "three amigos" — Mark Jackson, Vance Johnson and Ricky Nattiel — he has thrown for 986 yards and seven touchdowns in those three games. During that stretch, he's had two of his four best total yardage games ever.

San Diego (8-3) at Houston (6-5)

Both these upstarts have now lost two straight but the Chargers got a break when Seattle lost to the Raiders, so they're still in first place in the AFC West.

The Chargers get another break for this one — Warren Moon has a shoulder injury and may not start at quarterback for the Oilers, leaving things up to Brent Pease or Cody Carlson (Help!)

Seattle (7-4) at Pittsburgh (6-5)
Something named Bo Jackson happened to the Seahawks on their way to first place, so they go on the road needing to win to stay alive.

They should win in this one if the defense that was so flat against the Raiders comes to life against Mark Malone, master of the bounce pass.

San Francisco (9-2) at Green Bay (4-4-1)

Is this a trap for the 49ers, caught out in the cold with Cleveland behind and Chicago ahead?

Bill Walsh thinks it might be — in 1981, the year San Francisco won its first Super Bowl, it won a big game against Dallas, then had all kinds of trouble in Green Bay, barely eking out a 13-3 win.

Tampa Bay (4-7) at New Orleans (8-3)

It all fell apart for the Bucs when they blew a 28-3 fourth-quarter league in St. Louis three weeks back.

It could all come together this week for the Saints, who have won five in a row to assure themselves of their first .500 season. They could clinch a playoff berth this week, which would probably blow the top off the Superdome.

Ah, but then there's low-key coach Jim Mora.

Atlanta (2-9) at Dallas (5-6)

Dallas can still make the playoffs, but the Cowboys are really playing for next year, starting Steve Pelluer at quarterback to see if he can cut it. If not? Why not trade with the Colts for Gary Hogeboom?

The Falcons are playing out the string. Is there a Tim Brown in their future?

Kansas City (2-9) at Cincinnati (3-8)

Let's see, the Chiefs won with Bill Kenney at quarterback on Thanksgiving, so Frank Gansz has made Kenney the quarterback for the rest of the season. That probably kills their chances for the top draft pick.

As for the Bengals, Sam Wyche's game plan must include ways to lose in the fourth quarter. Last week's blocked field goal attempt that cost them the Jets' game was a new wrinkle in an old plot.

Philadelphia (5-6) at New York Giants (3-8)

Yes, the Giants could still make the playoffs if they win all their games and the abacus comes up the right way.

But they won't. "It's a very humbling game," says beleaguered Coach Bill Parcells.

The Giants won the first game 20-17 in Philadelphia. But they've lost four fourth-quarter leads, in part because they use the end of the game to experiment with their prevent offense and prevent defense.

The Eagles were up, then down for two games, then up and down last week, when they blew a 21-point fourth-quarter lead to New England, then won in overtime.

Washington (8-3) at St. Louis (5-6)
There's a quarterback controversy in Washington but none in St. Louis, where Neil Lomax is back to 1984 form after two dismal seasons. Jay Schroeder remains fit for the Redskins, but Doug Williams is ready and willing and Joe Gibbs is ready and willing to put him in.

This is no easy game for the Redskins, but they have one edge — the lame-duck Cards seem to be more at home on the road than before the empty seats in St. Louis.

Los Angeles Rams (4-7) at Detroit (2-9)

The Rams go for four in a row with Charles White playing the role of Eric Dickerson. It's hard to see how they won't win against a team that won't even have a real home advantage — empty seats don't make a lot of noise.

None of that means much to John Robinson.

Sunday in the Astrodome

It's opportunity day for Oilers, Chargers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Sunday is opportunity day in the Astrodome for the Houston Oilers and San Diego Chargers.

Both teams come into the noon CST kickoff with two-game losing streaks and needing victories to keep alive rare 1980s chances at the playoffs.

The Chargers, 8-3, have not made the playoffs since 1981 and the Oilers, 6-5, have been among the most-losing teams in the NFL this decade. They haven't reached the playoffs since 1980.

"We've got to realize what lies ahead of us and the opportunity that we have to get back to some real hard work and playing sound football again," Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts said.

The Oilers remain one game behind AFC Central division leader Cleveland despite their two-game skid.

The game may offer individual opportunity for Oilers backup quarterbacks Brent Pease and Cody Carlson, as starter Warren Moon is unable to play with a shoulder injury. Moon suffered the injury two weeks ago against Cleveland and still returned to complete 24 of 44 passes for 327 yards in a 51-27 loss to Indianapolis.

Moon, who has missed the last two games against San Diego because of injuries, rested the arm throughout the week, hoping he'll be able to play on Sunday. The Oilers beat the Chargers 37-35 in the Astrodome in 1985 on Tony Zendejas' field goal with two seconds to play.

The Chargers scored their first shutout in 106 games last year with a 27-0 victory over the Oilers. Moon missed the 1985 game with a hip pointer and sat out last year's contest with a thumb injury.

Pease guided the replacement Oilers to a 2-1 record during the NFL players strike while Carlson, a rookie third-round pick from Baylor, walked the picket line.

"I have to stay away from interceptions and put the ball in the receivers hands," Pease said. "I think the other players realize they'd have to do things to help me, and I'd have to adjust to them."

Carlson has not suited up since the strike ended and Pease would be the replacement should Moon be sidelined.

"I could be bitter about it and then it would affect me," Carlson said. "But I've got a situation that I can make the best of or let it get the best of me. I'm not bitter or mad at anybody. I've just got to get myself as ready to play as possible."

San Diego Coach Al Saunders decided last season it was time to give record-setting quarterback Dan Fouts and his favorite receiver, targets a late-career rest.

"Dan isn't as young as he once was and the receivers aren't as spry as they once were," Saunders said. "We had to do a little more to spread the offense around."

Saunders' tinkering worked so well that the Chargers will bring an 8-3 record, best in the American Football Conference, into Sunday's game.

Fouts, a 15-year veteran, is still getting his passes in the air and although Charlie Joiner has joined the coaching staff, Kellen Winslow and Wes Chandler are still catching them.

But the new Chargers are running more, playing better defense and on special teams, three areas Saunders wanted to concentrate on in his first full season as head coach.

The Chargers lead the AFC with 39 sacks.

"We're more aggressive on defense than in the past," Saunders said. "We don't lay back and allow people to move up and down the field on us like we once did. That carries over to special teams."

Lionel James leads the AFC with an average of 14.8 yards on 18 punt returns and Gary Anderson is fifth in the conference in kickoff returns with a 19.8 average.

Fouts completed 23 of 40 passes for 322 yards in last week's loss to Denver. It was the 50th 300-yard performance of his career.

It was San Diego's second consecutive loss after Seattle had snapped the Chargers' 8-game winning streak a week earlier. San Diego hadn't won eight games in a row since 1961.

"If you ask 10 different people you'll get 10 different answers (concerning two losses)," Fouts said. "We just didn't play as well as earlier and we played against two teams that were sky high for us."

The Oilers have suffered through a similar dilemma the past two weeks, losing to Cleveland and Indianapolis and giving up 91 points and 11 turnovers in the process.

"We have to be strong and turn it around," Oilers Coach Jerry Glanville said. "This season is by no means over for us. Even when we get behind, our team keeps fighting and fighting."

CAN L.A. REPEAT?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can the Los Angeles Lakers repeat as NBA champions for the 1987-88 season? The last 18 league champs have failed to do so.

Pat Riley, coach of the 1987 title team, was asked about the chances of winning again.

"Obviously we will have to avoid injuries and complacency," Riley replied. "But I would rather talk about things we will need to go all the way again this year. Three things: Individual performance, sacrifice and attitude. For us to repeat, we must have those things again this year."

HANDY TOOLS

NEW YORK (AP) — Even unhandymen (and women) need some tools.

One home improvement expert recommends that homeowners keep a small assortment of inexpensive tools for those annoying fix-it jobs common to most households.

A kit should include: a flexible, steel tape measure; a claw hammer; two medium sized screwdrivers (Phillips and flat-sided); an adjustable wrench, and long nose pliers.

Complete the kit with everyone's most essential and handy tool, a plumber's plunger.

'Undeliverable' IRS tax refunds includes local, area taxpayers

DALLAS — More than 3,356 North Texas taxpayers' names appear on the Internal Revenue Service's list of undeliverable refunds. The IRS is seeking to match up these taxpayers with the $1.6 million they are owed. "These taxpayers filed for refunds in 1986. We have processed and issued refund checks only to have them returned by the post office," said Terry Green, chief of the Dallas IRS Taxpayer Service operation. The refunds average $504 each.

Green said the most common reasons for a check being returned are lack of forwarding addresses, illegible handwriting, or name changes and deaths since the tax return was filed.

Names on the IRS refund list for Hereford and the area are listed below. If your name is listed, call the IRS at 1-800-424-1040 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays. You will be asked for your name, social security number, and expected amount of refund.

"Men between 45 and 54 shave the most often — 6.6 times a week," says Derek Coward of Gillette. "The clean shaven look is also maintaining its popularity at the office. Men who hold white collar jobs shave an average of 6.3 times a week."

YOUR EYES

EMERGENCY GLASSES

It's no fun to arrive at the office and find that you left your reading glasses at home. And what agony it is to have a frame break while you are driving your car to a business appointment, or are in a foreign country on vacation.

Anyone who can't read at least 20/60 at distance, or can't read or see small objects clearly close up, needs a spare pair of glasses. It makes sense to keep this pair...

- ...in the car dashboard compartment
- ...in the office desk
- ...at college, or in a suitcase when you are on a trip
- ...in the factory locker, or anywhere else you want them handy

The second pair may just be in a serviceable frame, but the leses should enable you to see your best and should reflect your latest prescription.

The "emergency pair" is also a must for contact lens wearers who can't see without their contacts. There's no need to be frantic when a lens tears or becomes uncomfortable.

Thinking Christmas convenience? Think Security!

Don't bet on market affordability

NEW YORK (AP) — The October drop in housing prices will be welcomed by some as an indication of greater affordability in that market. But those who think so would be wise not to bet on it.

Neither would it be wise to assume the decline is good news for those at the lower end of the housing scale, where repeated efforts to produce low-cost housing have been thwarted for decades.

To begin with, the 5.5 percent drop in the median price of new single-family homes — to $104,000 from a record high $110,000 in September — is skewed badly, since it results mainly from a modest deflation of upper-end prices.

But more importantly, factors not nearly as susceptible to economic ups and downs are involved in housing prices today. These factors are not as visible as, for instance, the cost of lumber. But they are equally or more important.

Moreover, they seem to be relentless. And many of them relate to land.

Generally speaking, the offending factors in land prices are identified as government, mainly local, and business, mainly suppliers of certain products. That is, the culprit seems to be bureaucracy, both corporate and business.

As a housing component, land accounted for 11 percent of the selling price in 1980. Today, after uninterrupted increases, it is close to 50 percent. Why, you ask, should that be so in a nation of more than 3 million square miles?

Most charitably, you might say the reason is location. For a great variety of reasons, mainly geographical and environmental, much of the land is not suitable for housing. And that which is suitable is also municipally governed.

For reasons sometimes sound but often indefensible, local governments impose a vast number of restraints on the use of land within their boundaries, mainly zoning restrictions and building code standards.

Some restrictions and standards might be considered by reasonable people to be necessary — for the protection of taxpayers, residents and potential buyers. Nobody wants air and water befoiled, for example.

But the motives behind some of the restrictions are debatable, ranging from the desire to maintain a town's character to outright attempts to retain high prices and to keep out what are deemed to be undesirable elements.

And some of the motives just don't stand up to scrutiny, such as insistence on dated construction techniques, old-fashioned building materials, oversized streets, and limitations on placement of underground facilities.

After surveying 87 communities, the General Accounting Office reported in 1978 that alternatives to existing standards could reduce new-home prices by 2 percent to 3 percent without jeopardizing the health and safety of buyers.

In 1984, a joint Department of Housing and Urban Development committee on affordable housing concluded that revisions to site development standards could reduce housing costs per unit as much as 15 percent.

And a 1985 report by the National Association of Home Builders suggested that sizable savings could be obtained by streamlining the zoning and subdivision process, thus lowering various costs attributable to land.

It said the zoning and subdivision process has become needlessly arduous "and marred by inconsistent ordinances, multiple public hearings, overlapping jurisdictions and inflexible, overly restrictive standards." Most of these add to the cost of a house before construction even begins. And most of them tend not to bend — for builders, buyers or the economic cycle.

Painter, circulator among new items

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — An open-pore foam paint applicator.

Manufacturer's claim — That it holds more paint and is easier to clean than non-open-pore foams ... that its structure consists of 12-sided, interconnecting cells that provide 97 percent void volume to hold paint ... that these cells allow cleansing solutions full access to the paint ... that the foam easily holds and releases water-based paints, yet at the same time absorbs oil, making it suitable for oil-based paints ... and that the applicator enables users to eliminate brush marks.

THE PRODUCT — A device that recirculates the rising warm air in a home and helps keep the temperature constant.

Manufacturer's claim — That this small device is mounted on the ceiling and equalizes floor-to-ceiling temperatures by directing downward a low-velocity, draft-free column of the warm air at the ceiling level ... that the product is made of impact-resistant plastic which can be painted ... that it is plugged into a 110-volt outlet and will equalize temperatures in rooms with ceiling heights up to 8 feet, with other models for rooms with higher ceilings ... and that it helps eliminate "hot spots" caused by improper circulation in air-conditioned rooms.

Manufacturer's claim — That the rigid foam backing on the mirrors enables the panels to be manufactured in 3/4-inch thicknesses ... that this makes them half the weight of conventional wall mirrors and six times stronger ... that the mirror panels come in stock sizes and can be installed with an ordinary screwdriver and hammer ... that they attach directly to gypsum walls, plywood or cement by means of a simple fastener, spindle and lock washer ... and that each mirror is finished with four coats of pure silver, two coats of copper and a protective baked-on epoxy.

(For more information on these products, write about the open-pore foam to Scotfoam Corp., 1500 Second St., Eddystone, PA 19013; about the warm air device to Stato Products, 139 Grand Ave., Johnson City, NY 13790; about the smoke alarm to Jameson Home Products, 2820 Thatcher Rd., Downers Grove, IL 60515; and about the mirror system to Mechanical Mirror Works, 230 Fifth Ave., New York, NY 10001.)

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much helpful information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $2 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

Garage sales are big

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — If garage sales were an enterprise, they probably would rank in the Fortune 500, says Stephen Soiffer of the University of Rochester.

Each year, there are between 6 and 9 million garage sales in the United States. The average sale brings $200 to the seller, says Soiffer, who has attended hundreds of sales and has written about this American phenomenon in academic journals.

Total revenues from garage sales are somewhere above $2 billion. Soiffer notes that garage sales are part of an underground, untaxed economy but are not subversive nor are they a replacement for shopping at retail stores.

THE PRODUCT — A direct-wire smoke alarm with a battery backup.

Manufacturer's claim — That the alarm offers dual AC-DC capability and maintains its power during a power outage with a 9-volt battery pickup ... that it features a bipolar dual ionization sensing chamber for early smoke detection and a preset sensitivity that helps reduce nuisance alarms ... that a continuous green indicator shows the unit is receiving AC power, while a blinking red indicator shows the detector is fully DC powered ... and that the alarm may be interconnected to as many as 18 units.

THE PRODUCT — A mirror wall system that facilitates do-it-yourself installations.

Sales potential is big buying incentive

By CHANGING TIMES—
The Kiplinger Magazine—
The American dream isn't merely being able to buy a house; it's also cashing in big when you sell. That means looking for the house with the greatest appreciation potential.

According to a study by the National Association of Realtors, bigger may be better — at least compared to a couple of years ago. The median price of a four-bedroom house bought in 1985 increased almost 18 percent by June 1987, when it rose to $122,800. During that same period, three-bedroom houses appreciated about 11 percent and two-bedroom houses appreciated 12 percent, although from 1986 to 1987 the three-bedroom house increased the most in value.

In general, the least expensive house in a neighborhood is often the best buy because the pricier homes elevate its worth. Just be sure it is of similar design and has the same number of bedrooms as the other homes on the block, says Jim Klopfenstein, immediate past president of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

Be wary of buying a house with unconventional architecture; it may make a statement about you but may not appeal to potential buyers.

Good signs of a prospering real estate market, Klopfenstein says, are homes selling in 90 to 120 days and actual sale prices that are 90 percent to 95 percent of asking prices. Of course, it helps if you happen to live in one of the hot spots or can move there. In that case your house may indeed be sitting on easy street.

The following are the 10 metro areas with the highest appreciation of median sales price of existing homes (information provided by the National Association of Realtors and the California Association of Realtors):

1986 price, 1987 price increase:
Providence $84,400, $109,800, 30.1 percent; Hartford $127,600, $157,000, 23.0 percent; Albany $73,300, $86,500, 18.0 percent; Washington, D.C. $102,800, $120,400, 17.1 percent; Detroit $57,500, $66,600, 15.8 percent; Philadelphia $73,600, $84,400, 14.7 percent; Jacksonville, Fla. $57,500, $65,800, 14.4 percent; New York $160,000, $183,000, 14.4 percent; Boston $156,200, $175,800, 12.5 percent; Anaheim, Calif. $149,400, $167,300, 12.0 percent.

Real estate that reaps riches, however, may also take a bite out of your paycheck. "U.S. Housing Markets," a publication of Lomas & Nettleton Co., an independent mortgage banker, conducted a housing affordability study that ranked 27 major metropolitan areas according to the percentage of average household income needed for the average conventional mortgage payment in 1986.

So while housing in the New York City area may be appreciating at a satisfactory clip, not many people can take advantage of it. New York is the least affordable housing market surveyed, with 37 percent of the relatively high average household income ($49,100) going for mortgage payments. Fewer than 15 percent of New York City households can manage the average monthly mortgage payment of $1,525.

Houses in the San Diego, Los Angeles and Boston areas, where more than 31 percent of the average paycheck goes to pay for mortgages, were only a tad more affordable.

At the other end of the scale, residents of St. Louis spent a mere 18 percent of their average salary ($42,700) on mortgage payments for the average home, priced at $80,900. Cleveland, Indianapolis and Kansas City were next in line as the most affordable housing markets.

And Detroit had the distinction of having the most affordable housing among the 10 largest cities.

Sandwiched between least and most affordable localities were Columbus, Ohio; Chicago; Houston; Atlanta; Dallas-Fort Worth; Baltimore; Seattle; and Washington, D.C. Even San Francisco was considered middling affordable because, although housing prices are astronomical, average household income ($51,500) is also very high.

Q.— What is the difference between common nails and box nails?
A.— These two types of nails are similar in many ways. The difference is that box nails are thinner and consequently less likely to split certain kinds of wood. On the other hand, their slimmess makes them more susceptible to bending when driven into hard lumber.

location save money if it is placed directly over the downstairs bathroom?

A.— Definitely. Ask your contractor whether the location you have chosen will be feasible.

Q.— I soon will be getting aluminum gutters for my house. There are none there at present and I have had trouble with rainwater flooding the area alongside the house. I intend to install them myself, but I have never worked with aluminum and if any cutting is necessary, how should the aluminum be cut. I am thinking about making a cut along the horizontal part of the gutter. Won't it bend if I try to cut it with a hacksaw — or should I use some other kind of saw?

A.— A hacksaw is fine for making such a cut. However, place a wood block inside the part to be cut. Then, when you cut through with a hacksaw, the wood will provide the necessary support. Go right through the metal and the wood. When you are through, the edges of the aluminum may be a bit rough. Smooth them out with a file.

Q.— I expect to put a dry well in my backyard to handle the rain that comes down two downspouts on that side of the house. My plan is to run underground piping from the bottom of the downspouts to the dry well. Should I use perforated pipe or solid pipe?

A.— By all means, use solid pipe. In some areas, you are not permitted to use perforated pipe or drain tile, as it is sometimes called. You should check with your local authorities to see what is allowed. If perforated pipe is permitted, it is usually when there is no septic tank on the ground.

Q.— I have been told that I can make my own flagstones, which I want to use on a long pathway at the rear of my house. Is it difficult and can a do-it-yourselfer handle it?

A.— It is not difficult and it is something most people can do even if they have had no experience with concrete. Make wooden forms about 2 inches deep. Brush on any kind of oil and set the whole thing on roofing paper. After this has been done, mix the concrete, either from scratch or with the ready-mixed kind that requires only adding water. Pour the mixture into the forms, wait two or three days and you are set to install the flagstones. They should be set into dug-out spaces which have been filled with 3 inches of gravel and 1 inch of sand.

Q.— Why do the pipes in my basement sweat and cause water to drip to the floor. Is there a way to prevent this?

A.— Cold water pipes in any house are likely to sweat when warm, moist air settles on them. It's condensation and is exactly what occurs on cold window panes. To prevent the pipes from this kind of sweating, wrap them in special tape made for the purpose or with some other kind of insulation. Since the warm, moist air will not condense on the tape or insulation, there will be no sweating or dripping.

Q.— The latch on our bedroom door doesn't fit into the strike plate attached to the jamb. It seems to be off only about an eighth of an inch. Can this be repaired or adjusted and will I be able to do it myself?

A.— A strike plate that fails to engage the latch by only a fraction of an inch can sometimes be repaired by filing the plate, but if the margin is more than that — even half an inch — the strike plate must be moved slightly. To do this, you may have to remove a tiny bit of the wood with a chisel. It's something you should be able to handle yourself.

Q.— Can I patch a hole in a screen which is about one inch square?

A.— Yes, but fiber glass mesh is a bit tougher than regular metal. You can buy little mending patches at your hardware store. If the hole is even smaller than one inch square, spreading some household cement across the opening will close the gap when the cement dries.

Q.— I am having my attic finished. Will choosing the attic bathroom's

CHECK YOUR INVESTMENT FOLIO NOW

It isn't smart to make investment decisions for tax reason only, but it is advisable to consider tax consequences when you make buy-and-sell or when-to-sell decisions. This year, long-term capital gains will be taxed at no more than 28 percent. Next year they will be taxed the same as ordinary income — and the effective rate will be 33 percent for those whose taxable income is between $71,900 and $107,000 (for couples; between $43,150 and $100,480 for singles). If you plan to sell, it may make sense to consider selling now.

Short term gains are something else. Because they're already taxed as ordinary income, it may pay to wait to cash them in until January 1, when your tax rate will be several points lower.

Both long- and short-term losses can be used to offset gains, or up to $3,000 of ordinary income dollar for dollar. One big reason to sell losers now is that the losses are worth more of a tax break this year than they will be next.

Elected to TCFA board

Milton Rudder, left, and Johnny Trotter, right, of Hereford, have been elected to three-year terms on the board of directors of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association. Rudder, of AzTx Cattle Company, serves on the TCFA Beef Promotion Committee and is an active member of the National Cattlemen's Association. Trotter, manager of Bar G Feedyard, is on the administrative board and serves as chairman of the finance committee of the First United Methodist Church, and is area chairman for the West Texas Rehabilitation Center's Cattlemen's Roundup for Crippled Children. The two were elected at the TCFA convention in Corpus Christi.

'88 could be good year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng says 1988 might be a pretty good year for farmers, but don't get the idea he's happy with everything that's been happening.

"I think farmers are playing it pretty close to their vests, and I wouldn't want to encourage them to go out and incur huge debts again," Lyng says. "It's not an easy game, and it varies a lot depending upon the commodity."

Lyng was asked Tuesday at a news conference about his optimistic talk a year ago that farmers might see their fortunes rebound after being crunched since the early 1980s by sagging land values and heavy debts.

"I guess I was probably wise enough to be pretty vague about quantifying that," he replied. "I feel pretty good about what's happened. There are still some problems out there. There's some individual farmers that are fighting the problem of excessive debt. ... It's a terrible time for farmers who are operating on a highly leveraged basis."

But, he added, "Things are improving. Land values are stabilizing. I think we have reason to be pleased with what's happened."

Farm exports are slowly improving as a result of subsidized sales of commodities under the Export Enhancement Program, or EEP, to meet foreign competition in selected overseas markets. Lyng said he would like to see those sales increase more vigorously without export subsidies.

"But we're going to keep going (with EEP) in order to get our share," Lyng said.

On another subject, Lyng said a U.S. proposal to end global farm subsidies over 10 years has received a good reception from a number of America's foreign trading partners.

"People I have talked to in Europe, both farm organization and government people, are much more favorably inclined to what we proposed than you would expect, considering the changes that would be necessary in their system," Lyng said.

Agricultural ministers who deal with the political problems involved in making such changes "are not enthusiastic supporters" of the U.S. no-subsidy proposal, Lyng said. The proposal was officially made in Geneva, Switzerland, last July under GATT, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

But even those foreign leaders are "beginning to see the need for something" and are showing "much greater concern" about existing farm programs, protectionism and subsidies, he said.

"We've done much better (with the U.S. proposal) than many people would have expected," Lyng said. "At least we've gotten far enough now that people believe that we're serious."

Support has been strongest among the Third World countries and Hungary, he said.

When the United States proposed to phase out agricultural subsidies on an international scale over 10 years — Lyng said it could be eight years, or 12, or some other timetable — many believed it was just an opening gambit in preparation for GATT talks and "that we didn't really believe we could have a world without subsidies and without trade barriers," he said.

Lyng also said he believes American farmers support the U.S. plan to de-subsidize global agriculture. There is some concern, but "generally speaking they believe that they can compete with farmers around the world," he said.

IRS ruling could help farmers

A new ruling by the Internal Revenue Service may allow grain farmers to refile their 1986 taxes and receive a refund if they used the PIK (payment-in-kind) and Roll procedure in 1985.

According to Dr. Wayne Hayenga, this ruling nullifies a previous interpretation of Revenue Ruling 87-17 that farmers, who used PIK certificates to redeem grain in storage, had to report it as a taxable event.

"The new rule says if a farmer uses the PIK and Roll procedure, he does not necessarily have to treat it as a taxable event," says Hayenga, an agricultural economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

If a farmer pays his loan to the Commodity Credit Corporation with PIK certificates, he may choose to include the face amount of the loan as income for that year, Hayenga says.

When the CCC loan is repaid, there is no gain or loss unless the commodity was sold for a value greater than the amount of the certificates.

If the loan is not included as income and the farmer uses the commodity certificate to repay the loan, he will file the income in the year the loan is repaid, Hayenga says.

"The amount of income the farmer includes that year is the amount the face of the loan exceeds the amount of the certificates," Hayenga says.

"When the commodity is sold, the farmer recognizes the gain for the full amount received on the sale."

Farmers who used the older ruling when they filed their 1986 taxes probably will need to file an amendment to their return using the new ruling, Hayenga says.

"They may be able to receive a refund of their 1986 taxes," he says.

Watch nutrients in cattle pastures

COLLEGE STATION — Cattle graze pastures all year long, but the nutrient composition changes with the seasons, and fall and winter diets are generally low in protein and usually inadequate for beef cattle, says Dr. Larry L. Boleman.

"Once the grass has stopped growing and loses its green lush appearance it becomes coarse and fibrous," Boleman says.

Boleman, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says the crude protein content of the grass falls, and the forage becomes harder for cattle to digest.

Animals consuming diets low in protein lose their appetite, develop a rough appearance, become weak, possess lowered resistance to disease and overall growth, reproduction and calf weights are greatly reduced, Boleman adds.

"Some people think cattle can simply eat more to make up the needed nutrients," Boleman says. "Since the grass is slowly digested, consumption is lowered and the animal receives even less nutrients."

If protein is added to this type of diet, digestion will increase, and eventually the animal will eat more.

Protein supplements are available in many types and forms, such as cubes, cakes and liquids. Each will vary in nutrient composition and the producer should be aware of the protein amount.

"Since protein is required for growth and milk production," Boleman says, "the protein requirements for heifers and lactating cows are higher than for dry, pregnant cows."

Boleman says the amount of dry matter (energy), vitamins and protein are all to be considered when a deficiency occurs.

"When energy is low, some grain may be fed along with protein to make up the difference," he says.

Paying attention to DHI can make a big difference in dairy profits. All right. But what is DHI? It's Dairy Herd Improvement or Production Testing. Myers Owens, extension dairyman at South Dakota State University says, "Infact, (DHI) is more important than ever to have accurate production records to efficiently and effectively manage your herd." And Mr. Owens believes participating in DHI is one of the wisest investments a dairy producer can make. For example, in South Dakota, the state average production for cows on DHI is 3,000 pounds of milk higher than cows not on the test... a 14-fold return on investment. Or, on the bottom line, using $11.50 as a milk price, herds on DHI receive $322 more per cow a year... over paid testing. These DHI records provide the information needed to make good management decisions. DHI gives the dairyman accurate milk production and fat and non-fat components for each cow on test day and is used to calculate for the entire lactation period. With this information, dairymen can efficiently feed cows to maintain peak milk production while reducing feeds costs.

Holiday Tour of Homes scheduled today

Airy and spacious best describes the Raul Pesina residence at 108 Quince, one of the three homes to be featured on La Madre Mia Study Club's 17th annual Holiday Tour of Homes from 2-5 p.m. today. Sara Pesina, center, with the assistance of an interior decorator, selected all of the unique wallpaper and new furnishings for the home which was built in January. The house was designed with 10 ft. ceilings and indirect lighting and the patio area was built with a beamed ceiling and has a ceiling fan. Discussing the home tour are study club members, Beverly Lambert, at left, and Tricia Sims.

Refreshments of cookies, hot spiced tea, and coffee will be served by study club members at Deaf Smith County Museum during tour hours. The museum, as well as the three tour homes, will be decorated with a touch of Christmas. Tickets are priced at $2 per person and are available at the doors of the tour homes and the museum. Hereford Bucks will be given as a door prize. Those assisting with refreshments will be (from left) Nancy Paetzold, Mysedia Smith, Lucy Rogers and Bettye Owen. All tour hostesses will be attired in bright Christmas plaid taffeta vests and name badges.

The three bedroom home of Rick and Shavon Lloyd at 110 Redwood is decorated with accents of apricot and dusty blue and was built with double recessed ceilings and skylights, one of which is located in the large covered patio. A wet bar is also a feature of the house. For the tour, the home will display a large collection of Christmas folk art. In the master bedroom with Shavon Lloyd and her son, Landry, are club members (from left) Ruth Black and Georgia Sparks.

An old-fashioned Christmas will be the holiday theme of another tour home, the residence of Garth and Susie Merrick, three miles east of Hereford. An 18 ft. tree will be the focal point of the 1,200 ft. livingroom which has been added to the original mobile home. Beautiful antiques, as well as contemporary pieces, add to the feel of the "mountain" home which also features a running stream and walking bridge near the large covered patio area. Planning the event are (from left) Sharon Hodges, Merle Clark, hostesses, and Susie Merrick. According to this year's tour chairman Lavon Nieman, all proceeds from the tour will be used for various community projects.

In carrying out a Christmas motif, the church was decorated by Stella Vasilidis of Amarillo with holly berries and poinsettias.

Serving as her sister's honor attendant was Donna Crow of Hereford. Best man was the groom's father.

Bridesmaids were Vickie Purcell of Gainesville, the bride's sister; and Janae McSpadden and Kathy Ray, both of Amarillo.

Groomsmen were David Isaccs, Drew McSpadden, and William Rauh, all of Amarillo. Ushers were Ricky Deaton and Ricky Musick, both of Amarillo.

Serving as flower girl was Cresta Crow while Garrett Crow served as ring bearer. They are the children of Rick and Donna Crow. Candle lighters were Ricky Musick and Carol Musick.

The groom sang "He Has Chosen You For Me." Other vocalists were Annette Elms, who also served as accompanist; Carol Musick, Debra Raun, and Jimmie Gardner. Songs presented were "Evergreen" and "All Rise."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional white full-length satin dress trimmed with lace. The bodice of the dress was covered with beads and sequins and was further enhanced by princess-type sleeves of lace.

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a white hat accented with lace and sequin. A three tier fingertip length veil was attached to the hat via a pouf.

She carried a bouquet, trimmed in white feathery fur, containing red trumpet flowers and white flowers.

To fulfill bridal tradition, the bride wore, as something old, her grandmother's wedding band, which had also been worn by all her sisters. Serving as something new was her bridal attire; something borrowed was a handkerchief from her mother; something blue was a garter.

Bridal attendants wore emerald green tea-length dresses of taffeta enhanced with princess sleeves, all made by the bride's mother. Their hats were covered with holly and trimmed in white feathery fur.

A reception followed at the Quality Inn of Amarillo with Alyson Hughes of Amarillo presiding at the registry. Serving cake was Christi Smith and Renee Smith, both of whom also served punch and coffee. Others assisting included the groom's family.

A three-tier white wedding cake, decorated with red poinsettias and greenery, was served.

The bride wore a tea-length creme and pink print dress topped with a pink jacket as she and the groom left on a wedding trip to Santa Fe and Taos, N.M. The couple will be at home after Dec. 10 in Amarillo.

The bride is currently employed at Harrington Cancer Center of Amarillo as a radiation therapist. The bridegroom is employed at Color Tile of Amarillo as assistant manager.

American Legion Auxiliary holds meeting recently

The Hereford unit of the American Legion Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting recently in the Legion Hall. Beverly Jesko, president, opened the meeting with the opening ritual and welcomed members of the American Legion.

She presented Alice Gilleland, program chairman and introduced Nancy Kochsmeier. Kochsmeier gave two inspirational readings, "A Medley of Christmas Carols" that told the Christmas Story and a reading, "God's Trees" by Helen Frazer-Bower. This was a story of three trees growing on a mountainside with distinct wishes of what they wanted to be made into; none had their wishes granted, but each had become a greater object. One was hewn into rough pieces and put together to form the manger into which Jesus was laid; the second was made into a boat from which Jesus taught Peter to fish; and the third tree was cut and Christ's crucifixion cross was created. The Legion members returned to their business meeting and the auxiliary continued their meeting.

Gift Shop plans were discussed. The shop will open Monday morning in the Veteran's Hospital. Beverly Jesko will be in charge and members are urged to attend either day. This is the time gifts are given to the patients for their immediate families. Each is gift wrapped and may be mailed, all free of charge.

Members of the auxiliary cooked and helped serve 80 lb. of beans for the dedication barbecue for the V.A. Hospital.

Christmas plans were completed and refreshments were served to both Legion and Auxiliary by Carol Lohr and Ella Caudle.

The next meeting will be Jan. 6, 1988. Darwin McGill will be program speaker.

The Federal Communications Commission was created in 1934.

Santa to visit here Monday

Betty Drake is serving as chairman of this year's Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony set to begin at 6:30 p.m. Monday on the Deaf Smith County Courthouse lawn.

Assisting her are committee members: JoAnn Hill, Juanita Phillips, Janice Carr and Barbara Yavornik.

As in the past, Santa will be present to visit with children and other entertainment is planned.

CYANIDE USAGE

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The images that come to mind at the mention of cyanide often are those of contaminated food or drugs and the gas chamber.

The largest user of cyanide in the world, however, is the mining industry. Chemical industry experts estimate some 70 million pounds of sodium cyanide are used in U.S. mining every year, with between 75 and 90 percent of that being used to extract gold from ores.

Freeman, Waters united in marriage Saturday afternoon

During a candlelight ceremony, Arla Kay Freeman of Amarillo became the bride of Kenneth Don Waters of Canyon Saturday afternoon in Follett Chapel in Follett. Officiating was M.D. Methvin, pastor.

The bride's parents are Walker and Edna Freeman of Follett and the groom's parents are Donald and Carolyn Waters of Hereford.

The church was decorated by candelabra accented with greenery and cranberry and pink carnations, and placed at the altar and entrance of the church were pink poinsettias. The white unity candle was adorned with touches of cranberry and individual pews were marked by candles and greenery.

Traci Yeager of Claude was maid of honor and Robby Cook was best man.

Bridesmaids included Judy Waters of Amarillo, the groom's sister-in-law; Kandi Hollis of Balco, Okla.; the bride's cousin; and Kayla Freeman of Galena, Kan., the bride's sister-in-law. Groomsmen were Robby Cook of Hereford; Richard Waters of Amarillo and Dwayne Waters of Denton, both brothers of the groom; and Wayne Freeman of Galena, Kan., the bride's brother.

Escorting guests were Mike Grimsley of Woodward, Ok., brother-in-law of the groom; Steve Artho of Canyon; and Steve Bartels of Hereford.

Serving as flower girls were the bride's cousins, LaNelle Niebergall, daughter of Steve and Carol Niebergall of Showlot, Ariz., and Kylie Freeman, daughter of Mike and Shannon Freeman of Darrouzett. The groom's nephews were ring bearers: Luke Waters, son of Richard and Judy Waters of Amarillo and Ty Grimsley, son of Mike and Joan Grimsley of Woodward.

Lighting candles were the bride's cousins, Van Al Hollis of Balco, Ok. and Matt Freeman of Follett.

Musical selections for the ceremony... were "My Treasure," "That's The Way," "Theme From Ice Castles," and "The Wedding Song." Russell Ball of Balco was the featured vocalist and he was accompanied by Juanita Methvin of Follett playing the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal white bridal gown enhanced by silk and Venice lace. It featured a contoured bodice, Queen Anne neckline and basque waistline with jeweled lace motifs heavily encrusting the bodice and sheer over-the-shoulder yoke. The camelot sleeves were designed with deep English netting cuffs. The full skirt was adorned with lace motifs and see-through embroidered lace edged the skirt and chapel-length train.

The floor-length bridal illusion veil, created by the bride and the groom's mother, formed a halo effect and was sprinkled with seed pearls.

She carried a bouquet of cranberry, pink and white mini carnations entwined with baby's breath and accented by cranberries. She also carried her mother's Bible and a handkerchief made by the bride's great-grandmother. Her jewelry consisted of a string of pearls from the groom's mother.

The attendants wore designer tea-length dresses of cranberry satin fashioned with large puff sleeves and boat necklines. The dresses were adorned with bows at the backs and waistlines. The bodices were pleated softly to the waist. The flower girls' dresses were made identical to the attendants' dresses.

The groom's cousin, Lori Ingram of Denton invited guests to register at the reception held in the Follett Community Center.

Cake was served by the groom's sister-in-law, Stacy Waters of Denton, and Karla Shader of Canadian. Punch and coffee were poured by Jennifer Ingram of Denton and Trish Briscoe of Fort Worth, the groom's cousins. Also, assisting at the reception was the bride's aunt, Eva Hollis.

The three-tiered bridal cake, made by Patsy Ashpaugh of Laverne, Ok. was decorated with holly and accented with cranberry. It featured four walkway ladders leading from the top layer to the bottom layer decorated with holly.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the bride wore a Christmas plaid red, green and black dropped waisted ensemble accented with a white collar.

The couple will make their home at 807 Brown Road in Canyon.

The bride, a 1983 graduate of Follett High School, received her nursing degree from West Texas State University and is currently employed in the neonatal intensive care unit at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

The groom, a 1961 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated in 1966 from WTSU with a degree in agriculture. He is presently the manager of Prairie Sunrise Sales in Canyon.

Special wedding guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Neff of Vanderpool, Texas; and the groom's grandmother, Clara Briscoe of Denton. Other friends and relatives represented Oklahoma, Arizona, Denton, Fort Worth, Amarillo, Canyon and Hereford.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent

In many families using the same Christmas tree decorations year after year is a tradition. When it comes to Christmas tree lights, however, this could be an unsafe practice.

When you unpack stored tree lights take the time to check each set. Inspect the bulbs to make sure they operate and then remove the plug from the socket and inspect the wires. If you find cracked insulation, bare wires or cracked sockets, discard the lights, no matter how much you like them. They could be a fire hazard. Check the plug to make sure the connections are good. One way to tell without getting shock is to plug the set into the add-on connector of a second set of lights and plug that set into the connector of the first set.

All strings of lights are not the same. Lights may be wired in a series or in parallel circuits. If a bulb goes out on a series circuit, all the lights go off. In a two-wire parallel set, the remaining lights continue to burn when one burns out. If you have miniature Christmas tree lights on a parallel circuit, replace any burned out lamps with a bulb of the proper voltage size. Although the other lamps will continue to work if you don't replace burned out bulbs, they will be subjected to increase electrical power, shortened life and could become a fire hazard in your home.

When you decorate your tree, don't connect more than 200 miniature lights or more than 50 large lamps together through one string or cord. Large lamp sets should not be connected through miniature lamp sets and indoor lights shouldn't be used outdoors. Use extension cords that are capable of transmitting the current to the lights without overloading the cord, triggering circuit breakers or blowing protective fuses. A circuit breaker or fuse which blows when you connect the lights is signaling something is electrically wrong. Don't use that string of lights until you know the extent of the problem and can correct it. If you're in doubt, throw the set away.

If you're buying new miniature Christmas tree lights, look for certification on the package, such as an Underwriter's Laboratory or "UL" label, that shows the set meets the performance specifications of an independent testing laboratory. These sets will have passed a series of performance tests designed to eliminate hazards.

Once you put the lights on the tree, safety precautions are still necessary. Remember to always turn the lights off when you leave home or go to bed. This will help insure happy holidays.

Christmas musical to be performed

During the holiday season, the public is invited to experience life in Jerusalem the way Jesus might have during a multi-media presentation of "From The Cradle To The Cross" to be performed Dec. 12-14 at 7 p.m. in the First Church of the Nazarene.

Written and directed by Jeff Love, the two-part musical depicts the creation and the fall of mankind leading to the need and purpose of the life of Jesus. Darren Dye from West Texas State University orchestrated the musical and the sound tracks were recorded in Hereford at Sound Stage One Studios.

The performance deals with the reasons of Christmas and redemption as portrayed by the choir in a song entitled "Redeeming Love." The sanctuary will be transformed into a heaven type setting and the sanctuary choir will be the great angelic host. The audience will seem as though they are experiencing the events that will be taking place through atmosphere, props, etc. The program will be aided with over 25 theatrical lights.

Before entering the sanctuary, the public will be walking among life sheep, donkeys and llamas in a setting depicting a busy market place in Jerusalem where merchants will be peddling their wares.

Mary and Joseph, portrayed by Susie Merrick and Jim Haile, will perform a love song and Baby Jesus will be played by Rebecca Hilton and Teel Merrick.

Performing as shepherds will be Brian Stanaland, Shannon Wilbourn and Terry Huffacker. The three kings, David Combs, Glenn Phibbs and David Burns, will present gold, frankincense and myrrh and will explain the meaning of these gifts through song.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I commend you for your understanding of transvestism and the balanced advice you give to millions of males you take pleasure in cross-dressing.

There is, however, one piece missing from the equation that is not likely to be recognized by most psychologists or psychiatrists. I refer to reincarnation.

I specialize in past-life regression. One example of a cross-dresser of my acquaintance was a man who, in a previous life, was a woman whose life was filled with poverty and drudgery. She had only rags to wear and was very envious of the women who had garments of beautiful silks and satins.

Being reincarnated in the form of a male gave the poor woman an opportunity to satisfy the desire for finery she was denied in her previous life.

The influence of past lives is far more important than most people realize, Ann. Cross-dressers are a perfect example of this. Please help your readers understand reincarnation.—N.R. in Santa Monica

DEAR N.R.: I am not sure I understand it well enough to explain it to others. But if your explanation is correct, in a previous life I was an urchin, deprived of chocolate truffles, lemon souffle, butter cookies and banana cream pie.

Thank you for coming up with a respectable alibi for my gluttonous sweet tooth.

DEAR READERS: Here's my gem of the day: Middle age is when you've met so many people that every new person that you meet reminds you of someone else.—Ogden Nash

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm not a poet nor am I writer. I'm just someone who would give anything to change places with "Daisy" and all the other Navy wives whose husbands will be home in six short months.

I watched those ships leave. I stood on the boardwalk and cried until my eyes were swollen and I couldn't see anymore. Oh, how I envied the families and friends who were there to say goodbye. In six short months their loved ones will be back. They will be standing on the boardwalk again, and what a glorious reunion that will be!

The U.S. Navy and its great tradition: It means careers and planes and ship. It means commitment to the jobs they love so dearly. Yes, the Navy takes him away from you and you hate the Navy for it. But that is the life he chose, and now it is your life, too.

VA-65 on this cruise at least one master chief short. My darling died in an auto accident Sept. 17, 1987, just 12 days before that six-month cruise that I thought was going to be an eternity. You wives have to wait only six short months and your men will be back. How I wish my man was on that ship and all I had was six short months to mourn.—A Widow in Virginia Beach, Va.

DEAR VA.: Thanks for a letter that certainly puts things in perspective.

Considering that your husband died only a few months ago it must have taken a lot out of you to write. I offer my condolences along with my appreciation.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If Prince Charles and Princess Di wrote to you for advice about their troubled marriage, what would you say?—Inquisitive in Maine person who has asked me this question. Until they write to me, which is highly unlikely, I have no advice for them. Right now, it's all I can do to respond to the people who do write.

Everyone does drugs, right? Wrong. And today, more and more people are aware of the dangers involved. If you want to be in the know, too, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $2.50 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Authors begin second search

Austin - Phase two of the Texas Quilt Search, a massive effort to document the state's quilt heritage, has begun. The first phase, which focused on antique quilts made between 1836 and 1936, is featured in the book Lone Stars: A Legacy of Texas Quilts, 1836-1936.

The authors of Lone Stars are now conducting a second phase of the Search. This time they're seeking quilts made by Texans between 1936 and 1986.

Karey Bresenhan and Nancy Puentes are researching these contemporary Texas quilts for a companion volume to their award-winning book. Lone Stars II will also be published by the University of Texas Press.

"More than 3,500 quilts were discovered and documented during the first part of this project, which was conducted for the Texas Sesquicentennial," said the authors, who are cousins. "We anticipate fully that many quilts, perhaps more, will be discovered in the period covering the last 50 years of quilting in Texas."

They add that those 50 years have seen three wars, Texas' move from a rural to essentially an urban state, and the changing role of women and the family, and that they expect those changes to be reflected in the quiltmaker's art.

"Our state is one of the most active and exciting places to be for contemporary quiltmakers. There is a long-standing tradition of fine quilting here, as well as a very strong network of quilt guilds and quilt specialty shops. Furthermore, Houston is the home of both the America/International Quilt Association, the world's only international quilt organization, and International Quilt Festival, the world's fair of quilts, which annually brings the world's largest quilt show and sale to Texas. There is so much stimulation for quilters that we're sure to see some wonderful work," the authors said.

Quiltmakers, their families, or friends should send nonreturnable color photos or slides with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lone Stars II, 10885 Katy Freeway, Suite 968, Houston, Texas 77079. They will be sent a documentation form for completion on each quilt submitted. All photos, slides and documentation forms will become part of the information resources of the non-profit Texas Quilt Archives.

The authors' current book, Lone Stars: A Legacy of Texas Quilts, 1836-1936, is selling briskly, according to UT Press, which notes that it is available in book stores, quilt specialty shops, and some gift shops for Christmas giving. The hardcover versions is $24.95 plus tax, the softcover is $18.95 plus tax. Copies can also be ordered directly from UT Press by writing University of Texas Press, P.O. Box 7819, Austin, Texas 78713, or call toll free 1-800-252-3206.

EXHIBITS POPULAR

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Exhibits where companies can display and demonstrate products at a trade show are becoming more popular at Phillips Petroleum.

Mel Crader, director of exhibits, says with exhibits the sales people can reach more decision makers in a few days than in a month of direct sales calls. He says Phillips last year participated with booths at 140 shows, up from 65 in 1980.

Deck the halls with a replantable tree

By GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

Despite tough economic times, John Stribling hopes to earn a profit by selling homegrown living Christmas trees.

After growing several pine trees around his home, Stribling decided to try and grow them commercially. "I was looking for a way to make a little money in agriculture," he grinned. "I planted the first Afghanistan pine seedlings about seven years ago and now sell them as Christmas trees or for windbreak and landscaping purposes."

Several thousand vivid green pine trees grow on Stribling's eight acres south of Dawn. Stribling's farm, appropriately called the Dawn Tree Farm, features mostly Afghanistan pines, some of which are 12' feet tall. Unlike some varieties of pines, the Afghan pine does not have an overpowering scent unless the needles are crushed or the resin is disturbed. "I selected the Afghanistan pine since it is fast growing and acclimated to desert conditions and low rainfall," said Stribling. "These trees thrive best in arid climates with alkaline soils." Stribling visited with various tree specialists who dissuaded him, saying that Lubbock was the most northern area in which the trees would grow successfully.

Yet Dawn Tree Farm's 8-10,000 vibrant, healthy pines are proving the experts wrong. "I tried raising pines such as Scotch, pinon, and ponderosa but they grow too slowly. My worst disaster was planting 1,000 blue spruce; they all died within 7-10 days. Although we didn't have much luck the first year with the Afghan pines, now 90 percent of the seedlings live."

Six-inch Afghan pine seedlings from California arrive in a biodegradable pot via motor freight. The seedlings are then hand planted by Stribling and one employee using a special tube-like container which injects each seedling into the ground. Approximately 2,000 trees can be planted each day.

The trees are then row-watered eight to 10 times a year, similar to irrigating a milo field. The trees are fertilized in March to promote growth and again in the fall for good color and foliage. The pine needle moth seems to be the only insect to adversely affect the trees and Stribling has found an insecticide that controls the pest. Pine cones will be formed once the tree gets older.

According to Stribling, wife Daulma helps with the operation as does son Randy, a student at Texas Tech University. The twice-a-year precision work of trimming and shearing is handled by Randy, who got some helpful trimming pointers from a Las Cruces, N.M. man.

Shearing, done with a machete, corrects many growth problems as the trees mature, with the first shearing occurring when the trees are two to three years old. Such trimming is handled by Randy, who, according to Stribling, "has a better eye for shape than I do. The first few years we tried to sell the trees in the natural shape, but people wanted the sheared look, so that's what we're doing now."

Trees ranging in height from five-to-eight feet are dug from the ground by machine and potted for sale. Different colored ribbons top the trees, denoting different heights and price. Stribling will only be selling live trees this year, and although he sells a few to local nurseries, most of the trees go to individuals who will use them as Christmas trees and then replant them outside.

"I am now selling these pines principally as a Christmas trees; it's an added bonus if it survives outside," Stribling truthfully informs his customers. "Christmas is not the recommended time for transplanting, so I can't guarantee the survival of the trees. The trees are dormant in the field, we dig them up and put them in a 70-degree house and they come out of dormancy. Then they are planted back outside where it's five below and it's hard for them to survive that."

He noted that the best way to encourage tree survival is to keep it out of hot air flow when inside, keep the roots moist, transplant no deeper than the original soil, stake the tree from four directions and water lightly once a week. This year he is spraying them with a material designed to prevent moisture loss.

Stribling suggests that it might be helpful to leave the Christmas tree in the garage a few days, gradually allowing it to become accustomed to the cold once again. While early spring or fall is the best time to plant the trees, Stribling advises that planting the Christmas tree in January can yield successful results.

Rudder hosts Bay View Study Club's Tea

Bay View Study Club met Thursday, Dec. 3, at the home of Mrs. Milton Rudder, for their annual Christmas meeting. The theme of the meeting was "Christmas 1787 Tea."

The 20 members and one guest, Mrs. Lorena Ware, mother of Mrs. Kenneth Halbert, were served from a holiday table. The centerpiece was a grapevine swan, decorated with fresh spruce boughs and scattered displays of the fruits of Christmas and pine cones. Guests were served hot punch from a brass wassail bowl and coffee served from a silver English kettle. Other refreshments included: butter cookies, fruit tarts, smoked oysters, pecan halves, ginger cake, and fresh fruit with cranberries. The table was illuminated with lighted candles in oak barley-twist candle holders.

Under the Christmas tree, antique toys, representative of the era, were displayed and throughout the house porcelain dolls in vintage period costumes were on display.

Following refreshments, the president, Mrs. N.C. Hays, called the meeting to order. Donations to the Christmas Stocking Fund were collected. Mrs. Hays turned the meeting over to Helen Rose, who gave a program on "Christmas in 1787."

Rose spoke of the historical events of 1787: the Constitutional Convention and the Northwest Territory Ordinance. She told of customs and traditions celebrated in America that came with colonists from their native countries. She further described foods and decorations created to celebrate the season. Decorative items included nuts, fruits, greenery, dried flowers, decorated boxes, wooden craft items and needlework.

She noted that Christmas, then as now, was a time for worship, sharing, and joyous celebration.

Following the program, members visited and listened to tapes of early American holiday music. The meeting adjourned.

The lee, or sheltered side of a ship, comes from an Anglo-Saxon word referring to the side of a shed that was out of the wind, where a laborer would take his lunch.

Bound For Puerto Vallarta

Barbara Townsend of Hereford was the winner of a vacation trip for two given away at South Plains College's Homecoming recently in Levelland. She received trip tickets to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, from Texan cheerleader Becca Burnett. Looking on is her family Brian, Bethany, Brienna and husband Bill Townsend, and Joe Tubb, director of athletics at SPC. The trip, which includes roundtrip air fare and hotel accommodations for four days and three nights, was provided courtesy of International Tours of Levelland. The Townsends were participating in Parents Day at SPC where son, Brian, is a scholarship student. (SPC Photo)

Holiday planning gives more control

As the number of shopping days until Christmas decreases, it's easy to run out of money, as well as time.

"Christmas is the biggest spending season of the year, yet few families plan ahead for the added burden on their income," says Bonnie Piernot, a family economics specialist.

"A common strategy is to resort to credit spending for holiday expenses, although that may just postpone the financial problem until after the first of the year."

But it's not too late to evaluate your financial situation and gain some control over holiday spending, according to the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

"Figure out the amount of money you have available for holiday expenses, including money from paychecks you will receive between now and Christmas," she advises. "Then estimate your remaining expenses, including holiday food and entertaining, cards, decorations, party clothes, gifts and other costs."

If your estimated costs exceed available funds, Piernot suggests enlisting the entire family's help in curbing costs. Some options include establishing dollar limits for entertainment, clothing and holiday foods.

Since gifts are a major expense, she also advises setting dollar limits for each gift, making gifts and giving services, limiting gifts to certain members of the family or exchanging names to reduce the number of gifts.

"Once you know what gifts you plan to buy, go shopping with a list," says the specialist. "That will allow you to comparison shop for items at a specific amount and will reduce impulse buying."

"If you decide to use your credit cards, set limits on how much you'll charge, and keep track of credit purchases so you won't run up large bills that are difficult to pay off in a reasonable amount of time," cautions Piernot.

"Remember too, that the finance charges on any unpaid charge card balances will actually add to the cost of your gifts."

The home economist suggests keeping accurate records of all holiday expenses this year, so you'll have a good estimate of expenses for planning ahead next year.

Cosmetology exam set

LEVELLAND — South Plains College has announced testing dates next year for its one-year program in cosmetology, according to Carolyn Newkirk, program instructor.

Required pre-entrance exams for SPC's cosmetology program will be given Jan. 12 and Feb. 1988. Exams begin at 9 a.m. in the SPC Student Assistance Center, located on the third floor of the library. Fee is $5.

Graduates of the program receive a certificate of proficiency and are eligible to take the state board exams for licensure as a cosmetologist in Texas, said Mrs. Newkirk.

For more information, contact Mrs. Newkirk or the SPC counseling office at (806) 894-9611, ext. 387.

Technology — not increases in land and labor — has played the major role in boosting agricultural production in Latin America in recent decades, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. In the 1970s, more than 40 percent of the growth in production was attributed to technological improvements; only about 15 percent resulted from increases in land and labor.

The Extension Homemaker Council's annual Christmas party and covered dish luncheon is scheduled at noon Monday in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Last year at Christmas I realized that my children had grown up and didn't care for a stocking stuffed with candy or toys.

This year I have decided to be more ingenious. I have saved or bought sample-size bottles of shampoo, after-shave and lotions.

The stockings will hold quite a few of these samples, so they won't be needing personal items for a while. — H.A., Abbeville, Ala.

What a great gift for college-age children who really are on limited budgets! If you want other great holiday ideas, I have prepared an eight-page pamphlet, Heloise's Holiday Hints. To get a copy send $2 and a legal-sized, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Heloise/Holiday, P.O. Box 19765, Irvine, Calif. 92713. — Heloise

TRAVEL SCAM

Dear Heloise: I want to warn other readers of one of the latest travel scams. I got caught!

Some "travel clubs" offer very inexpensive vacations or travel fares. They are sent to people either on postcards or sometimes people are notified by telephone.

When they go to pay for the trip or the vacation, their selection is unavailable and they try and talk you into more costly choices.

Please notice I said "some." Most travel clubs are reliable. — Betty Davis, Pueblo, Colo.

SINGLE LACE CURTAIN

Dear Heloise: At an auction this summer, I purchased a box containing numerous articles, among them a single lace curtain.

I needed a new tablecloth, so I put the single lace curtain on the table and it has worked well on the drop-leaf table, even when the leaves are up. — Jean Mungrave, Kenton, Ohio

HIDDEN KEY

Dear Heloise: Here's a hint that may be useful to anyone whose recreation involves a key-started "toy" or something (trailer, boat, cabin) that is locked when not in use.

I drive a race car that starts with a key, and occasionally I'd arrive at a race to discover I'd left the key at home. Yes, I have a spare along, but it's a big pain to dig it out from its "hidey-hole."

One day in an office-supply store, I came across a long key chain with a snap hook which is then put in a bag at the end where the zipper closes.

I haven't forgotten my keys in two years. This would also work for motorcyclists, boaters, some campers. It's just a device for making sure the key accompanies some larger but portable pieces of gear that always make the trip. — Rocket, Salina, Kan.

CHECKING

Dear Heloise: I learned a trick back in school. When I got up to leave the room I got into the habit of always glancing back to where I was sitting.

At times I have forgotten to pick up a book or pencil and once I left my purse. Now, I glance back at my car and house also.

No more car lights on or front door left open. — Lois Mansius, Toms River, N.J.

Vocational nursing exam dates set

LEVELLAND - Vocational nursing testing dates for 1988 have been announced at South Plains College.

Exams are scheduled at 9 a.m. in the SPC Student Assistance Center, located on the third floor of the library. Fee is $5.

For more information, contact SPC's vocational nursing program or counseling office at (806)894-9611, Ext. 387.

DIABETES DANGER

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Diabetes occurs in about 10 percent of all pregnant women, making it the single most common complication of pregnancy, according to Boehringer Mannheim Diagnostics.

Diabetes developed during pregnancy disappears after the baby is born in 98 percent of women, doctors say, but about 60 percent of women who have had diabetes during pregnancy and who are overweight will develop the disease again later in life.

For pregnant women with diabetes, attention to diet and daily monitoring of blood sugar levels are important, says Boehringer, a maker of devices for monitoring blood sugar levels.

TOOTH ENAMEL
NEW YORK (AP) - A new method of measuring the effects of foods on tooth enamel shows starch is just as harmful to teeth as sugar, according to AIMplus magazine.

Starch turns into sugar because of amylase, an enzyme found in the saliva, according to researcher Dr. Shelby Kashket at the Forsythe Center in Boston. And, since high starch foods, such as bread and crackers, tend to stick to the teeth, the enzyme has plenty of time to do its work. Bacteria then feed on the sugar, producing an acid which slowly dissolves the enamel.

Kashket hopes researchers will help discover why certain foods are harmful - at which point they can work with the food industry to help come up with alternatives.

Judy Collins says 'Trust Your Heart'

Judy Collins' message to the world this year must be "Trust Your Heart." She wrote a song with that title, put it on an album with that title and has published an autobiography with that title.

She also has made a TV commercial for the album. "I think we're doing a first," she says.

"I'm very excited. This is a new way of marketing which I understand is going to be standard operating procedure for many artists. The record store scene is so difficult for many of us who are not in rock 'n' roll."

Ruffles, her beige Persian, settles down next to the interviewer in Miss Collins' living room — where the commercial was shot — and begins an unusual-sounding purr. "Ruffles, the singing cat," Miss Collins says. "When he arrived we thought he had asthma. He didn't stay with me for the cameras; he missed his moment of stardom."

The album is on Gold Castle Records, distributed by PolyGram. "I was on Elektra for 24 years, ignored the last eight," Miss Collins says. "Most of my catalog is still in print, which is not bad after all these years."

From "A Maid of Constant Sorrow" in 1961 through "Home Again" in 1984, Miss Collins made 20 records for Elektra, six of them gold. In 1985 she cut an album titled "Amazing Grace," 16 songs, with orchestra, in England for English release only. Some of the cuts on it are on "Trust Your Heart."

She has sung folk, country, religious, Broadway, protest, pop and art songs. Hits have included "Send in the Clowns," "Both Sides Now," "Suzanne," "Someday Soon" and "Amazing Grace."

It makes her hard to pigeonhole but it also makes it hard for her to choose which songs should be singles.

"I thought 'The Rose' might surface as a single from this album and I wondered if 'Amazing Grace' might come out again as a single. I think we need it. The company seems enthusiastic about 'Day by Day.' I've remixed it from the version I did in London.

"We remixed 'Both Sides Now' before it was a hit. It was out about a year. We went back and made the bass louder and the instruments crisper and brought the voice forward. It was a hit. Maybe that's good luck for me.

"But I always was more concerned with the content and quality of songs and how they fit together than what would be hits. I still am.

"Most people would not try to sing 'Amazing Grace' with an a cappella choir behind them. Everybody had recorded 'Send in the Clowns' by the time I did. I sang it because I loved it. Think of it as a single? Never. The radio people picked that song (in 1975) from 'Judith.' I thought they'd like 'City of New Orleans' — something more up-tempo."

The book, published by Houghton Mifflin, uses the album cover photo from Miss Collins' "Hard Times for Lovers" LP of 1979. In it, she recounts some hard times with lovers and constant searching to understand herself.

She wrote it through 1985, despite a heavy touring schedule. It's a diary of what she thought about and remembered on certain days as the year went on.

She says, "I wrote non-stop. I did not censor. I allowed myself to write it all out and then made the decision about what incidents to take out. For me that's a very good way to work. I find if I censor myself, I'm not as productive.

"Certain things got re-thought and redone in nine drafts until finally there was some sense that I'd said the thing the way I'd wanted to say it," she says. "Dealing with my drinking I found difficult, without overemphasizing or diminishing its value in my life experience. That was one of my nine rewrite sections."

The singer says, "I think one should write an autobiography about every 15 years. I think the world is going fast enough now that this is possible. My songbook from 1969 was a biography of sorts. It had seven small chapters in it. The publisher found out it had sold 216,000 copies, which is quite good.

"Now I'm thinking there'll be a time to have something to say again. I think it's important to write if you're a writer. I do consider myself a writer who has worked in different forms in my lifetime. Now that I've got the history put together, I am very much thinking ahead to doing a small number of subjects in some depth."

She has started a novel. "I'm right now indulging in my second childhood, having a really good time, doing all the things I couldn't do when I was a teen-ager," she says. "I have much more energy now than when I was 20. I can do more, enjoy it more. It must be the hotshot vitamins Gloria Steinem suggested."

Her son, Clark Collin Taylor, described by Miss Collins as a "computer technology wizard," and his wife Alyson have a baby, Hollis Collins Taylor, born in October in St. Paul. She plans to visit as much as possible.

"It is en route for me to travel there on my way to and from very many places. Probably people will refer to her as Holly, which will make my sister Holly very happy," Miss Collins says.

She adds: "I'm not called the G word. We refer to her as my son's daughter."

Accent on Health

Use Caution Against Rabies

As the Texas population grows, so does the number of contacts people have with animals, both wild and tame. The Texas Department of Health (TDH) warns that pet owners by law should be sure their dogs and cats are vaccinated against rabies each year. Also, everyone should use special caution in contacts with wild animals.

Rabies occurs most often in the wild. Skunks and bats are the carriers in about 90 percent of confirmed rabies cases in Texas, but other mammals, such as raccoons, foxes, and coyotes may carry the virus. Unvaccinated pets most often are exposed to rabies through wild animal contacts.

TDH tests more than 10,000 animals per year for rabies. Between January and October, the agency's labs in Austin, Houston, San Antonio, and El Paso confirmed 376 cases. Although no human cases have been reported in 1987, the disease remains a continuing threat to people.

Dr. Foy V. MacCasland, chief of the TDH Bureau of Veterinary Public Health, said not only household pets, but also frequently handled livestock should be vaccinated annually.

He said, "People should avoid making pets of raccoons and other animals from the wild, since no approved vaccines are available for them." The same shots used to vaccinate dogs and cats may not be effective for other species. "By its very nature, a wild animal, sooner or later, is likely to bite or scratch its owner," he added.

Dr. MacCasland explained that animal control units in most areas are responsible both for enforcing vaccination laws and for removing sick or dangerous wild animals. However, he said, in rural areas, particularly those bordering Mexico, outbreaks of the disease are frequent.

The Eagle Pass area in Maverick County, for example, has had recurrent cases of rabies among domestic dogs for several years. Some 20 of all 26 confirmed cases of canine rabies in the state this year were in that county.

Dr. MacCasland explained that veterinarians and fur trappers, who may handle unvaccinated animals, usually take immunizations for themselves every two years. Cave explorers, who may encounter bats, also are advised to be immunized.

"The best advice for the ordinary citizen," he said, "is not to touch any animal that is not known to be vaccinated, and to report any sick wild animal to the local animal control unit." He added that parents should make it a point to teach their children these precautions.

A GRAND GESTURE

NEW YORK (AP) — There are more than 12,000 pieces and parts in a Steinway grand piano.

Virtually every one of them is made, shaped, inspected and finally assembled by hand. Birch, maple, poplar, spruce, sugar pine, rosewood, walnut, cherry and mahogany are each selected for their particular qualities and each serves a purpose in piano construction, the company said. One grand piano takes one year to complete.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Census, there were only 1,610 people living in Los Angeles, Calif., in 1850.

Astronaut Edward White became the first American to walk in space during the 1965 flight of Gemini 4.

Social Security

PEOPLE HAVE RESPONSIBILITY TO REPORT

People in the Amarillo area who get Social Security retirement, survivors, or disability benefits have an important responsibility to report any event that could have an effect on their continued eligibility or the amount of their checks, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, Tx. said recently.

Reports can be made by telephone, by mail, or in person. A report should include the name of the person about whom the report is being made, what is being reported, the date it happened, the person's address, the correct claim number under which benefits are being said (a Social Security number followed by a letter), and the person's signature if the report is by mail.

Everyone getting benefits should report:

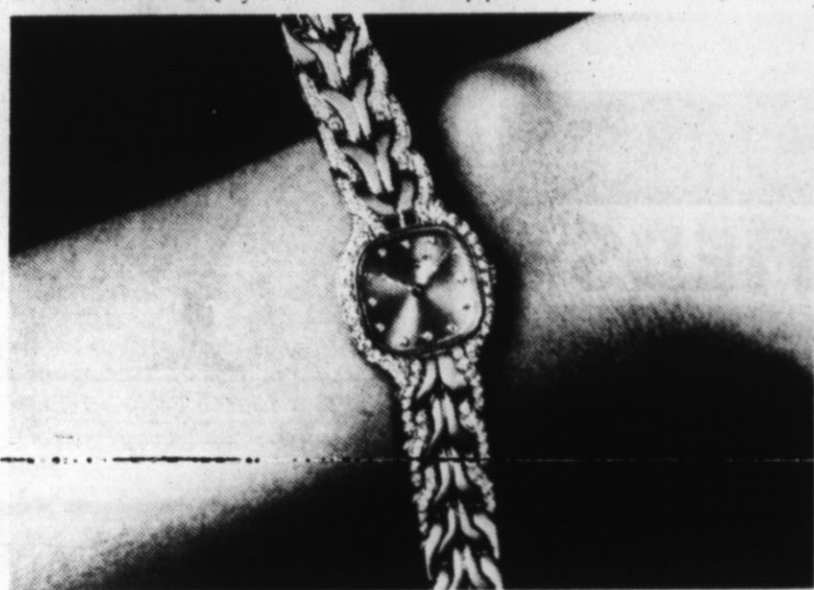

- Change of mailing address.
- Earnings over the annual limit.
- If the person goes outside the U.S.
- Imprisonment for a felony.
- Receipt of a pension based on work not covered by Social Security.

Dependents and survivors should report:

- Receipt of a Government pension.
- Divorce or annulment of marriage.
- Marriage.
- Adoption of child.
- Child leaves care of a parent.
- Child nearing 18 is disabled or full-time high school student.
- Change in school attendance for child 18-19.
- A person getting benefits because of disability should report:
 - Any change in condition.
 - Any return to work.
- Receipt of another disability check.
- Someone should report on behalf of a person who:
 - Becomes unable to manage his or her own funds.
 - Dies.

More information about reporting responsibilities can be obtained at the Amarillo Social Security office, located at 3601 W. 15th, Amarillo, Tx. The telephone number is (806)376-2241. The people there will be glad to answer any questions.

Canisters Displayed

Park Avenue Florist is among numerous Hereford businesses that are displaying Project Christmas Card canisters for the convenience of contributors Carmen Flood, a member of L'Allegra Study Club which is sponsoring the annual event, explains the purpose of the event to Terry Sparks. By donating the money normally spent on mailing local Christmas greetings and postage, residents will be aiding in the purchase of medical equipment for Deaf Smith General Hospital. Donors' names will be printed in a full-page holiday greeting in The Hereford Brand's special Christmas edition. Cash gifts must be made prior to the Dec. 18 deadline in order to run in the Dec. 24 edition of the paper.
