Board gives Moore support

After being dismissed for a "lack of confidence" in his abilities by Deaf Smith General Hospital Administrator Gary Moore, former Director of Nursing Gerry Hollinger is awaiting a negotiation of benefits and a letter of recommendation before submitting a letter of resignation.

Hollinger, who could not be reached this morning, told the Amarillo Daily News that his resignation was "based on if they meet my requests."

"I appreciate all the support I've received because it makes me feel things I've accomplished the last 13 years have been worthwhile," Hollinger said. "It is going to be very hard to leave this community. DSGH is a good hospital and I only see good things for it in the future."

Moore told the Brand this morning that he said "lack of confidence" instead of "lack of competence" at Wednesday night's board meeting in citing a reason for Hollinger's termination.

"There are some substantial problems in the nursing department and I didn't feel Gerry could correct them after being a part of them for 13 years," Moore said Wednesday night.

"I think Gerry is an excellent nurse and especially an excellent trauma nurse," Moore said this morning.

Meanwhile, the board gave Moore its support today in "an open letter to the citizens of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District."

The letter says:

"For the past six months the primary effort of the board of directors had to be the issuance of bonds for the conversion of short-term debt to long-term debt. It was a long and very difficult process. The original attempts which consumed a year or more were unsuccessful. About six months ago the process began again. Much credit for the success of the issuance of the bonds should go to Pat McGinty, Phillis Morrison, and E.T. Manning. If these efforts had not succeeded all of our other objectives and goals would have been of no consequence."

The letter goes on to say:

"Our primary goal has been the resolution of financial problems. We are and will remain a caring and a patient-oriented institution with continuation of all present services.

If prudent fiscal policies prove inadequate to keep our hospital solvent, then it will be necessary for the community to bear an increased tax burden.

"The administrative policy decisions Mr. (Gary) Moore (hospital administrator) has made in the time he has been here have been made in the best interests of the hospital's continued operation. These policy decisions are the results of careful, thoughtful input of many people. They will be constantly reviewed and adjusted as necessary. These policies have the full support of the board."

No pattern in home violence

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

"Where's the glue. I know I left it here somewhere," a woman says as she scatters the desk drawer contents on the linoleum. She spots the white bottle and quickly twists open the cap, hurrying to mend her husband's Wisconsin souvenir plate she dropped before he returns from work.

She knows time is of the essence. If he finds it shattered, he's liable to have one of his tirades—slapping her or pitching things across the room.

This woman is living the life so many other women have experienced and relayed to Juliann Thompson, director of Hereford's Rape Crisis-Domestic Violence Center, since it opened last May.

Thompson says the women don't fit any particular demographics, but a common bond between abused wives is no access to money.

"Usually the husband has the bank account, the credit cards and the house in his name," said Thompson. "That means the wives can't get their hands on any money. They're trapped."

In walks the Rape Crisis-Domestic Violence Center to spring that trap. "I've served 126 abuse victims since we opened, and I've put about 52 women in shelters where they can stay up to 30 days. We'll put the women's children up too."

The shelter in Amarillo is open 24 hours per day where women receive counseling and comfort from those in the same boat.

"Anything the women need is there," said Thompson. "We provide support groups that offer help in stress management, legal services, a personal development program and tips on how to land a job. But the best part about the shelter is the common bond women feel with each other. It's like going off to college—you develop friendships that last a lifetime."

Thompson said the shelter also offers a drug abuse program since 80 percent to 85 percent of the domestic violence cases revolve around the men abusing drugs.

But despite the physical and emotional relief the center provides, many women refuse to take the outstretched hand.

Women don't pack their bags for fear that leaving will worsen the violence, shame that she's a failure, or believing she's too dependent upon her husband to leave, Thompson said.

"Many times the women have married at a young age and he's never allowed her to work outside the home," said Thompson. "It takes a lot of courage to get on the phone and say you need help."

There is an avenue of retaliation through the courts, said Thompson, but many women cower from pressing charges because they are, in essence, throwing their bread and butter out the door.

"The woman is afraid that if she presses charges, he will be in jail and she won't have the support she needs. She thinks that even though the situation is bad, he does provide clothes on her

"I let them make the decision to press charges. I tell them how it can help the situation and they take it from there. But once they press charges, the district attorney's office won't drop them," said Thompson, citing that most women regret pressing charges and attempt to have them dropped.

Thompson has five volunteers who help with crisis intervention. These volunteers have 30 hours of training in listening skills and in other facets of helping a domestic violence victim.

"Usually, battered women have

"I'm not as knowledgeable about the rape program as I am about the domestic violence program," said Thompson, "but, then again, we don't have as many rape cases in Hereford as we do domestic violence cases."

Thompson said that in the few rape cases she has handled, the women commonly say "Why didn't I fight harder" and will place the blame on themselves.

"I just try to get the women back in touch with reality. She may have made some poor choices like walking alone at night or not checking her car before getting in, but the man does not have the right to rape, and that's what I try to get across," said Thompson.

Thompson stated that 75 percent of all rapists are known to the victim. He could be a date, a friend, relative, co-worker or neighbor.

Some tips to avoid rape include:

- Think about what you would do in a dangerous situation right now and don't wait until you find yourself in a rape situation;
- Don't let a stranger into your home. If someone needs to use the phone, make the call yourself;
- When dressing, keep the blinds or curtains closed;
- When moving, or if you lost your keys, replace all tumblers in your present locks and make sure to have one-inch dead bolt locks installed;
- Have your house keys ready before getting out of your car.

Thompson said if a woman is raped and wants to press charges, a state bill enacted Jan. 1 will lessen the embarrassment if the charge becomes public.

"The bill states that a sexual assault victim can use a pseudonym on any police records on through the trial process. Usually "pseudonym" is used instead of her name on the documents," said Thompson.

The new law should increase the amount of rapes accounted for since only one out of 10 rapes are reported, said Thompson.

Even though Thompson has not come across many rape victims, she has already witnessed 126 domestic violence cases in less than a year and more are sure to come.

"We've got to liberate women. You just don't marry Prince Charming and live happily ever after. You have to have self-confidence that the husband won't be there constantly and that you can handle things on your own. And in the same process, you must raise your children to be nonviolent. I really believe in this process."

"It takes a lot of courage to get on the phone and say you need help." - Juliann Thompson back, food on the table and a roof over her head," stated Thompson.

Options available include a protective order which prohibits family violence, communicating with the victim or nearing the victim's home or place of employment; a temporary restraining order (requested by a lawyer as part of a divorce) which protects the woman but no criminal penalties are issued for violating the order; and a peace bond which requires the threatening person to post money guaranteeing good behavior if the woman has been threatened.

been sheltered their whole lives and aren't articulate, so it takes a while to get to the root of the problem," said Thompson. "These volunteers accompany the women to the district attorney's office and they tend to help in drawing out the information needed to press charges."

Thompson added that the Rape Crisis-Domestic Violence Center does imply that the center is there for rape victims, too, even though the rape program is not as well gelled as the domestic violence program.

Delegates decided differently

AUSTIN (AP) — Add one more difference to the traditional divisions between Texas Democrats and Republicans — the way they choose their national convention delegates.

Those delegates are Super Tuesday's grand prize. For each party, Texas will choose more delegates than any other state taking part in the March 8 super primary.

But the two parties handle this important business differently. They will dole out different numbers of delegates to their presidential candidates through different systems. And Democrats won't finish the job until June.

Texas Republicans will send 111 delegates to the GOP National Convention in New Orleans this summer. Democrats will send 197 delegates to their party's convention in Atlanta.

For Republicans, results of the primary election will determine how many delegates each presidential candidates wins.

Democrats will use a complicated two-track system relying on both the Super Tuesday primary results and their traditional chain of precinct caucuses, county and state conventions.

"We are the only state in the nation that has the dual track," said Jim Boynton, primary director for the Texas Democratic Party.

The primary election results will determine the allocation to candidates of 119 of the state's 197

Democratic delegates. Another 14 delegate spots automatically go to such party officials as Texas members of the Democratic National Committee.

The remaining one-third of the Texas delegates — totaling 64 — won't be awarded to candidates until June.

That division will be roughly proportional to the support each candidate turns out in the more than

Downtown shop plans announced

Plans for a new downtown shopping area, called The Atrium, were announced this week by Doug Manning, owner and developer of the facility which will ultimately house five business establishments.

The Atrium will be located at Main and 5th Street, and remodeling is already underway in the building formerly occupied by Thriftway and Piggly Wiggly. Manning said he hopes to have the opening of the shopping facility by mid-April.

Three retail businesses have already contracted for space in The Atrium, including Wishes and The Pants Cage. The third firm is not ready to announce its re-location. There are two openings at this time, according to Manning, although preliminary negotiations have started for one spot. Manning's offices, In-Sight Books, are also located in the rear of the building. He said some of the occupants are hoping a sandwich shop will take one of the remaining spots.

"I think the facility will help revitalize the downtown retail business area," said Manning. "We feel it may also help attract more retail firms to locate in the downtown area."

The building will have a "mini-mall" layout with shop spaces ranging from 2,000 square feet of floor space down to 750 square feet. The building contains approximately 10,500 square feet of floor space. The main entrance will be from the north parking area, and the entry will be designed as an atrium and providing access to all the shops in the building.

Ten killed, 8 burned in helicopter crash

CHICO, Texas (AP) — An Army helicopter nosedived into a cow pasture and skidded about 75 feet before it broke apart in a sheet of fire, killing 10 men and seriously burning eight others, authorities and witnesses said.

Two soldiers leaped about 35 feet to the ground from the burning twin-rotor CH-47D Chinook before it crashed about 50 miles from Fort Worth on Thursday, said state Department of Public Safety Sgt. Robert Rankin. One of the soldiers died.

The other soldier said that a fire had broken out at the back of the helicopter based at Fort Sill, Okla., and that those aboard had tried to move to the front to get away from the flames, Rankin said.

Residents raced to the scene, pulling casualties away from the raging grass fire sparked by the crash.

"Some of them were just sitting there screaming," said 17-year-old Dale Christopher, a Chico High School student who was among the first on the scene. "And they kept asking us 'Help us. Help us.' And then we'd say 'Help is on the way.' That's all we could do for them."

A three-person team of investigators from the Army Safety Center at Fort Rucker, Ala., was investigating the crash today.

The Chinook CH-47D has a history of problems and the Army grounded its entire fleet of 63 of the big transport helicopters for 1½ months in 1985 after an accident in Honduras injured eight soldiers.

Witnesses said the helicopter was tilted forward at a 45-degree angle, puffing smoke and descending rapidly when it crashed about 3:29 p.m., slicing through a power line.

"All of a sudden a little thin streak of smoke came out of it and there was a small explosion on the right side underneath it," said Joe Haworth, who was working at a nearby plant. "Then it put out a little more smoke and it flew straight for a ways, then parts went to coming out of it."

The craft skidded about 75 feet before breaking apart in a sheet of fire, said Wendell Berry Sr., 53, who watched the accident from his home a half-mile away.

Berry cut the seat belt away from a crewman strapped to the remains of the cockpit.

"There was only one guy still in the helicopter who was either the pilot or the co-pilot, and he was conscious," Berry said. "He was so conscious that when I cut his seatbelt he said, 'That feels better — thanks.'"

Jack Souther, 54, used a small fire extinguisher from his pickup truck to douse burning bodies. "The only thing I could do was put the fires out on the bodies. I went from body to body trying to put them out," he said.

The copter, carrying 13 passengers and five crew members, was returning to Fort Sill from Fort Hood in central Texas, Fort Sill spokesman Rick Brink said. He said the passengers probably were from Fort Hood, but officials could identify only two early today.

Of the 10 dead, six died at the scene, one died in Parkland Hospital in Dallas, one died in Bridgeport Hospital and another died early today at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio. Another soldier was found dead at the crash site after dark Thursday.

A spokesman at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio said early today that three soldiers who had been initially taken to Parkland Hospital late Thursday, were moved to the San Antonio facility at 4:30 a.m. (CST). One of the four soldiers died shortly after arrival at San Antonio, the spokesman said.

Three soldiers with head injuries and broken bones were in serious condition at Parkland early today, said hospital spokeswoman Paula Sears. Four others had been in critical condition with burns, she said.

Fort Hood soldiers Paul Stroud and Calvin Turner were in serious condition at Harris Methodist Hospital in Fort Worth early today, said spokeswoman Mandy Good.

The CH-47D, which has a troop capacity of 44, is a modernized version of earlier models of the Chinook, which was used in Vietnam.

In the Honduras accident, a transmission bearing failed on a CH-47D taxiing to a refueling depot. The failure caused one of the copter's main rotors to stop turning; the other rotor began hitting it and the helicopter tore itself apart.

The Chinook's main rotors mesh as they turn, and therefore must be synchronized.

Clements: more school funds useless

AUSTIN (AP) — Increasing state funding for public schools shouldn't be a main concern of a task force looking for ways to satisfy a court order, says Gov. Bill Clements.

"The question you must answer is not whether the state can pump more money into education. The question is whether the money now spent for education can be used more efficiently," Clements told the Select Committee on Education at a Thursday meeting.

State District Judge Harley Clark of Austin ruled last year that the school finance system is unconstitutional because it discriminates against students in districts that have low property wealth.

Public education programs are funded through local property taxes and money from the state and federal government.

The state is appealing Clark's decision to the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin.

The education committee, which includes citizens and lawmakers, met for the first time Wednesday. It was created to examine the school system, including finances, and report to the 1989 Legislature.

Among the preliminary options discussed for resolving the constitutional issue is consolidation of school districts, but Clements said that would be foolish.

"The people of Texas are very proud of the fact that they have independent school districts, and this idea that we're going to have some great big consolidation and we're going to centralize control in Austin is nonsense, in my opinion. The people of Texas are not going to stand for that," he said.

"Texans do not want their schools operated or controlled by the judiciary, or by a centralized state government control in Austin, and certainly not a federal control in Washington," Clements said.

The issue addressed by the committee will be a central part of the next regular legislative session, Clements said.

"Without question, public education funding and local control will represent the most important and sensitive issue in the next session of the Texas Legislature," he said.

'Amnistia' hoped to gain amnesty applications

MALLEN, Texas (AP) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service is singing the praises of its legalization program with a new record, "Amnistia."

INS employee Art Zuniga, who normally writes love songs and beer-drinking tunes for a country and western band, took his amnesty song into a recording studio Thursday.

"It's a vehicle to get the word across to all the people who haven't applied to let them know that they really should come out of hiding," said Zuniga, while taking a break Thursday at M.R. Recording Studio.

His Spanish song will be used in a stepped-up campaign the INS is using to lure applicants to its one-year program offering legal residency to certain aliens as the May 4 deadline approaches.

Zuniga, 38, who grew up in the lower Rio Grande Valley in a family of farm workers, said he wrote the song because he understands people who come to this country seeking work.

"Well, my friend, the time has come for those who have lived a long time in the country inhabited by Americans," he sings in Spanish.

"Recently, a law was passed..." It continues to remind of the approaching deadline, "because this opportunity will not come again in your lifetime."

National closure tally at 28 Three more Texas banks shut down

By The Associated Press
Three Texas banks were closed by state and federal regulators, with depositors' accounts assumed by other banks, officials said.

The closures on Thursday brought the national tally of closed banks to 28 for the year, and 11 for the state of Texas, officials said.

The latest casualties were Harris County Bank-Houston, N.A., acquired by OMNIBANC South, N.A.; Collin County State Bank, acquired by Willow Bend National Bank of Plano; and American National Bank of Stafford, acquired by Park National Bank of Houston, regulators said.

The largest of the three banks closed Thursday was Harris County Bank-Houston, with assets of approximately $81 million.

In the case of Harris County Bank-Houston and American National Bank, liberal lending practices by former bank officers, and poor administration and supervision of the loan portfolio by senior management and the board of directors resulted in excessive problem loans and loan losses, said Robert J. Herrmann, senior deputy comptroller of bank supervision in the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency in Washington.

Harris County Bank-Houston came to the attention of federal regulators in 1984, while regulators became concerned about American National Bank in 1985, the comptroller's office said.

Commitments were obtained from the banks' board of directors to try to correct the banks' problems, the comptroller's office said. The bank boards' efforts were unsuccessful, however, as the depressed local economy led to continuing loan losses and further deterioration of the banks' condition, the comptroller's office said.

The Texas Department of Banking said the Collin County State Bank failed because of major losses "from loans on a variety of speculative real estate ventures and liberal lending practices."

"Current management was unable to reverse a rapid increase in non-performing loans which resulted in mounting operational losses and the ultimate insolvency of the institution," the banking department said in a statement.

Collin County State Bank, with total assets of $11.9 million, was closed Thursday by Kenneth Littlefield, state banking commissioner, and the FDIC was named receiver.

The bank's sole office was to reopen Friday as a branch of Willow Bend. Customers who had deposits at Collin County State Bank will automatically become depositors at Willow Bend, the FDIC said.

Willow Bend National Bank will assume about $11.9 million in 2,222 deposit accounts and will purchase all of the failed bank's assets at a discount of $3.2 million.

In the case of Harris County Bank-

Houston, the FDIC was appointed receiver after Herrmann declared it insolvent.

The FDIC's board of directors then arranged an insured deposit transfer because no acceptable bids were received for a purchase and assumption transfer transaction, said FDIC spokeswoman Caryl Austrian.

At the time of its closure, Harris County Bank-Houston had deposits of about $78.9 million in 16,500 accounts, including about $663,000 in 28 accounts that exceeded the federal deposit insurance limit of $100,000, Ms. Austrian said.

Uninsured depositors and other creditors would share proportionately with the FDIC proceeds realized by the liquidation of the bank's assets.

Administration over the transferred insured deposits was to be funded by an equivalent cash payment from the FDIC, Ms. Austrian said.

Man shoots nursing home residents

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — About 16 people gathered for a board meeting at a retirement home scrambled for cover when a former resident walked into the room and started shooting, authorities said.

The 79-year-old man, who apparently was disgruntled about being evicted, opened fire with a rifle Thursday, wounding four residents and sending a fifth into cardiac arrest, said Arlington police spokesman Dee Anderson.

Four people suffered minor gunshot wounds in the shooting at the Masonic Home for the Aged, he said.

A fifth person, Willie Joe Wright, 67, suffered a heart attack and was in critical condition at Arlington Memorial Hospital late Thursday, hospital officials said.

The man surrendered peacefully shortly after the shooting, Anderson said.

"Apparently, they had a board meeting and one former resident, who was apparently disgruntled, walked into the board room and started shooting" at the 15 to 16 people gathered there, Anderson said.

Officials at the man's current residence, the Arlington Villa retirement home, said they were shocked to hear of the shooting.

"He is a good resident, very congenial and sociable," said Arlington Villa administrator Gennie Pace.

Ms. Pace said the man had been admitted Dec. 1, 1987, to the Arlington Villa.

The man was being held late Thursday on investigative charges of attempted murder at Arlington City Jail, said Arlington police Officer Bob Westbrook.

Anderson said the suspect had lived at the Masonic home for three years, but was evicted in September 1987 for breaking rules.

Delegates

6,000 precinct caucuses to be held after the polls close on the night of March 8, officials said.

Those attending precinct caucuses elect delegates to county conventions, scheduled for later in March. The county conventions choose delegates to the state convention, where the last 64 delegates then will be allocated. One catch: the rules require a candidate to get above a threshold of 15 percent support at each level.

There's a method to this madness, Boynton said.

First, Texas Democrats traditionally have relied on the caucus-convention system, and this preserves it. Second, some Democrats for years have urged changing to a primary election, which Texas now has.

And finally, by holding back allocation of 64 convention delegates, Texas Democrats remain players in the primary game long after March 8 has passed and the candidates have packed up and moved their campaigns to other states.

"There's still a big reason for them to pay attention to Texas after Super Tuesday," Boynton said, noting that the 64 delegates still up for grabs are more than the total awarded by many states. "Iowa and New Hampshire together only had about 70 delegates," he said.

Texas Republicans will base their delegate totals on the primary results, but their system still has some peculiarities.

Under the party's rules, if a candidate receives more than 50 percent of the vote within one of the state's 27 congressional districts, then that candidate wins all three delegates apportioned to that district. If no candidate receives a majority in a district, the one receiving the most gets two delegates and the second-place finisher gets one.

The 27 congressional districts account for 81 of the 111 delegates.

The remaining 30 at-large delegates will be awarded to the candidate receiving at least 50 percent of the vote statewide.

The newly organized Sunday school class of young people and adults, "Faithbuilders", is having a Lenten study, which concludes April 3, entitled "Come and Worship; The Risen Lord" written by the Rev. Stan Cosby. The class instructor is Brenda Evins. Anyone interested in participating in this study is invited to join the group which meets at 10 a.m. each Sunday until Easter.

The call to worship Sunday at 11 a.m. will be led by the choir performing "Beautiful Savior." Rev. Derrel Evins also has a special sermon each Sunday for the children through age 12. The Wesleyan Singers will sing "The Glory Land Way."

Choir practice is held at 6 p.m. each Sunday to prepare for the special Easter service. All members are encouraged to attend.

Sunday evening worship service begins at 7.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Rev. Bruce Kochsmeier's sermon for the regular 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service is titled "The Perfect Promise." The scripture lesson is Genesis 17:1-10, 15-19.

Something special and different is in store for both youth groups Sunday. Junior high youth will meet at 1:30 Liveoak at 5:30 p.m. with a "Mystery guest host". A video tape will be played and a supper will follow. Senior high youth will be at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. This group is asked to bring money for a movie and supper.

All Camp Fire members are asked to wear their uniforms to church in observance of Camp Fire Week which begins March 6.

There are new members classes being held at the church. Those in seventh grade and up will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday at 138 Liveoak and adults will meet at 7 p.m. each Wednesday at the church.

The study materials for the two Women's Circle Bible Studies are available in the church office. The study book for the Ephesians study will cost $4. The copies of the study on "Holy Sweat" are ready to be picked up; the book should be available in a few weeks. If you're interested in finding out more about either of these two studies see Nancy Kochsmeier.

The Scripture For Lunch Bunch continues to meet each Wednesday at noon to study the Sunday's scripture. This week's study is John 2:13-22. Bring a brown bag lunch.

Mission Yearbook: We are asked to pray for Cebu Community Hospital in the central Philippines, where the Gospel ministry of compassion is an on-going effort of love. In the words of one of the founders, "...the Church's healing ministry is not merely a means to an end. Nor is it justified alone as an expression of compassion. It is an expression of God's will for His creatures...The command 'go heal,' cannot for a single moment be isolated from the other commands, 'go preach,' 'go teach,' and 'go baptize.'" Please remember this ministry today in your prayers.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Officers were elected last week in United Methodist Men, with David Euler as president to succeed George Denton. Grant Hanna is the new vice-president, Terry Langehennig secretary-treasurer and Dan Higgins telephone chairman.

United Methodist Men meet for breakfast the second Sunday of each month, before Sunday School. They carry out a number of activities in the church, and invite all men to join the group.

Started with good attendance last Sunday, a series of Lenten Life and Learning programs will continue this week and through March 13 in First United Methodist Church. Classes were full in the first hour last week, so they will be held in larger rooms Sunday evening.

One class titled The Finishing Touch will be held by Lou Davis and Vicky Higgins in Ward Parlor, offering suggestions for fashion accessories and make-up to women. The other, Home Maintenance taught by John Bunch, will be in Fellowship Hall.

A snack supper will be served by the Family Life committee at 5:30 in Fellowship Hall, then a second study hour will begin at 6 o'clock. Adults and youth may choose between Bible study on Life and Times of Jesus, led by Margaret Bell, and People and Churches of the USSR with Kathryn Ruga as leader. Elementary age children will have another session on Life in Korea directed by Brad and Haeseung Park. Small children will have a story hour.

A short devotional and altar time will be conducted by Rev. Steve McElroy, pastor, at 7 p.m. to close the evening. The public is invited.

Crowd boos judges on Thomas' scoring

By STEVE WILSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Debi Thomas spoke diplomatically, but the judges' scoring sparked thunderous boos from the Winter Olympics crowd and the pungent comment, "It stinks," from her coach.

The judges flipped for Katarina Witt's Broadway boogie-woogie — blue feathers, soft shoe and "Hello, Dolly" — and scored her much higher on artistic merit after giving Thomas the edge on technical merit. Thomas performed as precisely as a surgeon, a profession she hopes to pursue. Witt showed the pizzazz of the actress she wants to be.

The numbers added up to a slight lead by Thomas, of San Jose, Calif., over the world champion Witt of East Germany going into the free skating program Saturday night, with Liz Manley of Canada in third.

Any of them can win the gold. None of them wants to rile judges, but Thomas couldn't conceal her disappointment completely.

"Of course, I hoped to have higher marks," Thomas allowed after she received a 5.6, four 5.7s and four 5.8s for artistic merit. Witt got one 5.8 and the rest 5.9s.

The partisan, American flag-waving crowd of 19,000 was more

Adult volleyball tournaments set at Lazbuddie

A volleyball tournament for men's, women's and mixed teams has been scheduled for April 7-9 in Lazbuddie.

The tournament is being organized by the senior class of Lazbuddie High School and will be held at the high school gym. Entry deadline for the tournament is March 31.

A mixed volleyball team may consist of any number of women, but not more than three men. Entry fees are $30 per teams, to be payable to the Lazbuddie Senior Class.

Entry forms should be mailed to Rick Copp, P.O. Box 96, Lazbuddie, TX, 79053, or to Belinda Steinbock, Box 206, Lazbuddie, TX, 79053. For more information on the tournament, call 965-2152 in the daytime, or call Rick Copp at 965-2806 in the evening or Belinda Steinbock at 965-2474 in the evening.

vocal in its disapproval and Thomas' coach, Alex McGowan, was flat angry. In a departure from decorum, McGowan held his nose to show he thought the judging was a little smelly.

"It hurts me when I see her skating so well and she's dropped in artistic marks when they raise Katarina," he said later. "Katarina did skate well — I have no problem there — but I'm a little concerned it may happen again in the long program. No matter how well Debi skates, she will be dropped in the long."

The judges indeed appear to have drawn the lines between Thomas and Witt, but that could work to Thomas' advantage in the free skate as it did for fellow Californian Brian Boitano when he won the gold last Saturday.

Ties in scoring are broken by giving the nod to the better technical skater, the one who leaps higher, spins straighter and lands more lightly. Boitano held the technical advantage over Canadian Brian Orser, and Thomas hopes a similar advantage will enable her to hand Witt her first defeat in a long program since 1982.

There were no judgment calls on the giant slalom course, only sheer speed by an Italian who won a gold medal and a red Ferrari, and proclaimed with Muhammad Ali bravado, "I am the strongest in the world."

Alberto Tomba, 21 and cocky, certainly was the fastest skier on this warm, sunny day, whipping past the gates in 2 minutes, 6.37 seconds in two runs to earn the new sports car his father promised him if he won.

Tomba was more than a second faster than silver medalist Hubert Strolz of Austria, the Alpine combined champion, and more than two seconds faster than bronze medalist Pirmin Zurbriggen of Switzerland, the downhill winner.

All the training in women's figure skating didn't produce many surprises. More than two hours passed in the short program before the crowd got pumped up by a superb performance by Japan's Midori Ito. Although skating earlier than the top contenders, she produced high marks with an exuberant, smooth routine, then delighted the roaring crowd by waving joyfully in every direction.

Tragedy struck on Mount Allan for the second time when the Austrian ski team's doctor, Joerg Oberhammer, 47, died instantly when he was crushed by a snow-grooming machine after he collided with another skier.

Bradford MacDonald, 17, of Calgary, is still in a coma after skiing into a tree last week after working earlier that day as a photo messenger for The Associated Press.

The undefeated Soviets could clinch the hockey gold medal today when they play top-seeded Sweden.

The Americans beat Switzerland 8-4 to end the tournament in seventh place, the same spot they finished in 1984.

The Soviets boosted their medal-leading total to 25 with a sweep in the women's 20-kilometer cross-country race. Raisa Smetanina, who won the bronze, increased her Olympic career total to nine medals — more than any other woman.

East Germany remained second on the medal list with 17, followed by Switzerland with 11, Austria nine, Finland six.

West Germany, the Netherlands and Norway have five each, and Sweden, the United States and Canada have four each.

That's difficult to say because you are as different as your substantial number would imply! You are one of the 4,100 households we're invited to every evening. That's quite a few. According to the most recent census, our township has slightly less than 5000 households.

Your vocation is part of a broad spectrum as well — white collar, blue collar, owners, managers, cowboys, teachers, housewives, students and professional.

Yet, with all your individual complexities, your interest in local issues and news gives you and other readers a common bond which is separated only by your level of curiosity.

Knocked unconscious early in game UNLV wins without Basnight

By The Associated Press

Jarvis Basnight was knocked out in the opening minute by Pacific University but Nevada-Las Vegas won on points anyway.

Basnight, second in the NCAA in field goal percentage and the rebounding leader of the Runnin' Rebels, was knocked unconscious when Pacific's Holger Fuerst elbowed him under the backboard 49 seconds into Thursday night's game.

Without him, the eighth-ranked Runnin' Rebels broke a 30-30 tie late in the first half and went on to beat Pacific 77-61.

Gerald Paddio scored 18 points and Anthony Cook added 15 for the Runnin' Rebels. Stacey Augmon had 14 rebounds for Nevada-Las Vegas.

"I was very happy to get a win without Jarvis," Rebels Coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "Early in the game, we did not have anything going. We were absolutely horrible. Stacey Augmon was not there in the first half, but in the second half, his offensive rebounding made the difference."

Basnight, who makes 68.2 percent of his shots and averages 7.4 rebounds, was taken to Dameron Hospital in Stockton, Calif., with a concussion. He was released after the game but did not return to the arena.

Girls' basketball is highly competitive in West Texas

By WENDY E. LANE
Associated Press Writer

NAZARETH, Texas (AP) — Friday and Tuesday nights are prime time in this tiny Panhandle community, the time when residents pack the high school gym to cheer on the Swiftettes.

Girls' basketball is the game to watch in the Panhandle, which last year saw its teams win state championships in every class.

"These communities expect the girls to play, and the girls uphold the tradition," said Sudan coach Mike Martin. "It's not something that's just an avocation, it's almost a duty."

Sudan, Morton, Slaton, Levelland and Plainview took state titles in their respective classes last season.

"Last year at the state tournament we definitely proved that we (the Panhandle area) were dominating right now," said Nazareth coach Sandy Heiman. "I feel like we still have a lot of real strong teams up here."

While another five-class Panhandle sweep is unlikely this year, in regional semifinals Friday, the Panhandle's toughest competition will be the Panhandle.

In 1A, 27-5 Sudan's chances of repeating as champions will hinge on a victory over Nazareth, 30-2, in a regional final.

A win over Reagan County in 2A competition could pit Shallowater, 28-5, against Morton if 27-6 Morton defeats Wall.

Levelland, 32-1, must eliminate 29-3 Canyon to advance to the 4A state tourney.

Panhandle rivalries are fierce and often pit neighbor against neighbor.

During last week's Nazareth-Motley County Class 1A area playoff, Omega Leavitt, whose daughter Darla is a top Swiftette scorer, kept sneaking out to her car to listen a radio broadcast of a Happy-Crowell playoff.

Although she said her neighbor's kids attend Happy, there was no doubt where her sentiments lay, since district rival Happy would stand in the way of a trip to the state tourney.

"I do hope it's a close game, but I wouldn't mind if Crowell wins by about 40 points," she said.

Although the Nazareth High School student body is composed of just 77 students, the squad of 10 Swiftettes rarely plays a close game.

Nazareth pounded Bovina 119-10 in a district game in January, and in a bi-district playoff, outmanned Valley lost 97-25. Even though the Swiftettes were up 31-18 at halftime against Motley County and went on to win 66-42, spectators murmured their dismay at the tight contest.

In the past four seasons, Nazareth has compiled a 120-12 record, and won eight state titles in nine seasons ending with 1985.

Crowd support is important, too, and Martin said his Hornets, from a town of about 1,000, usually draws 300-400 spectators to away games. Some teams travel the wide open spaces in customized motor coaches.

Most coaches credit the Flying Queens of Wayland Baptist with fostering a competitive regional atmosphere for women's basketball, but say strong programs at Texas Tech, West Texas State and area junior colleges also help.

"They're all real competitive and when you've got that, it's going to strengthen your high schools," said Heiman, in her third year as Nazareth's head coach.

"A lot of moms were stars a few years ago and they pass the tradition along to their daughters," said Shallowater coach Chuck Darden. "It's part of a family thing."

For Panhandle teams that aren't in the top echelon, just making the playoffs is tough.

Said Darden: "Just to compete — not to win, but just to compete — you have to be good."

Mavericks defeat Rockets in OT on Harper's block

By The Associated Press

Sleepy Floyd was wide open for an 18-foot shot that would tie the game and send the Dallas Mavericks and Houston Rockets into overtime in a key Midwest Division NBA game.

But Derek Harper had different ideas. Harper prevailed with a block from behind with one second remaining to give the Mavericks a 106-108 victory Thursday night.

"Of course I was surprised that Derek got it," Floyd said. "It would have been a wide open shot."

Harper said he had to make the block because it was a special game.

"This was an extremely big contest for us," Harper said. "I hadn't been shooting well, and I had to make some kind of contribution."

It was the seventh victory in a row for the Mavericks, who now hold a four-game lead over the Rockets and Denver Nuggets.

"This was a big game for us. They knocked us sideways in our place three weeks ago, and we hadn't won here in seven tries," said Maverick coach John MacLeod.

"This was not a normal game. We needed to beat the Rockets here in Houston," said Maverick guard Roland Blackman, who lead all scorers with 29 points, including a 20-foot jump shot and free throw to provide the winning margin in the final minute of the game.

"At the end of the game, when you get the ball, it is important to do something positive," said Blackman.

The Rockets had two chances in the closing seconds to tie the game, but forward Rodney McCray missed a 10-foot jumpshot from the baseline with seven seconds left and following the free throw from Blackman, Harper blocked Floyd's shot.

The Mavericks were sparked off the bench by Roy Tarpley, who scored 18 points and grabbed 16 rebounds.

Guard Brad Davis scored 17 points in 20 minutes, including 11 in the fourth quarter as the Mavericks built an 11 point lead with 8:13 to play in the game.

"We did a good job the whole game," said Davis. "Putting distance between us and the Rockets was important."

"We needed a big rebounding effort tonight, because their big man really crashed the boards," said Tarpley.

The Rockets were led in scoring by Floyd and center Akeem Olajuwon with 22 and 20 points respectively. Olajuwon was critical of the team's performance.

"We were playing as individuals in the first two quarters tonight," he said. "We didn't play as a team. When you play teams like Dallas and L.A. (Lakers), you can't beat them if you're not playing a team game."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know a lot of people don't like it when you run a letter they have seen before, but certain things are worth repeating, and besides, not everyone sees every column every day. I am enclosing something you published in 1983 and I think you should run it every year. How about it?—A Faithful Fan

DEAR FAITHFUL: I won't promise to run it every year, but here it is for 1988.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am flat broke from overspending at Christmas. But I need to go shopping again soon because I am completely out of self-respect. I've said a few things I wish I could take back, and I am not feeling very good about myself.

I also want to exchange a carton of self-righteousness for an equal amount of humility. I hear it is less expensive and it wears better. And while I'm at it, I'm going to check on tolerance and see if there is any available in my size.

I must remember to try to match my patience with the little I have left. My neighbor is loaded with it, and it looks awfully good on her. I was told the same department has a repair shop for mending integrity. Mine has become frayed around the edges from too many short-cuts and too much compromising. If I don't get it refurbished soon, there won't be any left.

I almost forgot the most important thing of all—compassion. If I see some, no matter what the color, size or shape, I'm going to stock up heavily, regardless of the price. I have run out of it so many times and I always feel ashamed when it happens.

I don't know why it has taken so long to get around to shopping for these items. They don't cost nearly as much as some of the frivolous things I've bought on impulse and I'm sure to get a lot more satisfaction from them.

Yes, I am going shopping today and I can leave my credit cards and checkbook at home. The things I am looking for have no price tags.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A reader wrote to you recently, wanting to know more about "The Fighting Irish" and "the luck of the Irish." I have taught Irish-American history for several years and would like to enlighten that person and anyone else who is interested.

The expression "Fighting Irish" goes far back in history to when the Irish honored warriors in their culture. The expression came to the United States due to the large number of Irish soldiers who fought with George Washington (The estimate range from a third to a half of his regular troops.) It is not surprising that Notre Dame University adopted the name "The Fighting Irish" for their football team.

"The luck of the Irish" came from many examples. One goes back to Leadville Johnny Brown and his wife, the Unsinkable Molly. One day, by mistake, Johnny burned a small fortune in paper money. A short time later he discovered one of the richest iron ore mines in Colorado history. He called it "The luck of the Irish."

His wife, who survived the sinking of the Titanic (approximately 1,500 drowned in that disaster), attributed her good fortune to "Irish luck."

The Irish are a flamboyant and irrepressible people who enjoy celebrating life. They have added much to American culture. Bless them. - Rev. Kevin O'Neill Shanley, Carmelite Spiritual Center, Darien, Ill.

DEAR FRIEND: Thanks for a short course in Irish history. One reader wrote, "When someone says 'Irish' I think of policemen, politics, poetry and the president." Not bad.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Affected By Altitude
 BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB: For our vacation we spent two weeks in Mexico City. It was wonderful, but I was exhausted when we first arrived. My husband wanted to walk everywhere and see everything, but I simply could not. I had a headache and just felt like resting.
 After the first week, I felt much better and had regained some of my strength. I was not sick and did not have diarrhea. My husband said it was the altitude. I didn't notice being short of breath. Just how does altitude do this to you and what can I do to prevent it the next time we visit Mexico City?

 DEAR READER: Your fatigue may well have been from the altitude. Mexico City has an altitude of about 8,000 feet. There really is some decrease in the efficiency of delivering oxygen to the cells at those altitudes.
 Oxygen is delivered to your cells and your brain from the pressure of dissolved oxygen, called the oxygen tension, in the plasma, or the liquid portion of the blood. At sea level this is about 103 mm Hg and the pressure (tension) in your cells may be only 15. That difference in pressure forces oxygen into your oxygen-hungry cells.
 At 5,000 feet your oxygen tension is only 79 mm Hg; at 10,000 feet it is down to 61 mm Hg. That means there is less pressure to feed oxygen into your cells.
 Some people have a remarkable tolerance to altitude exposure. Others do not. Evidently your husband has a better tolerance than you do. You can't change how altitude affects your oxygen tension. But those who are in good physical condition from a regular exercise program seem to have a better tolerance to altitude.
 Also, not smoking and being free of any lung problems are important. The decreased ability to provide oxygen to the brain cells at altitude significantly decreases a person's tolerance to alcohol. That is because alcohol normally decreases the oxygenation of the brain.
