Girl, 4, dies in house fire Monday

By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

Four-year-old Monique Black died Monday morning when a fire erupted from a faulty wall heater at a home at 107 Cooper in Hereford.

Her aunt and uncle, Alice and Dennis Adams, were treated at Deaf Smith General Hospital for cuts to their legs suffered when they were escaping from the house.

Five other persons, including Bubba Clayton, Mary Jones, Monique's mother Cynthia, and Cynthia's other two children, Chris, 3, and Michael, three months, escaped without injury.

"Everyone else went out of the house through windows," explained Fire Marshal Jay Spain. "She (Cynthia) decided to go out through the living room."

"It was an intuition thing," Spain explained. "She always came and went through the front door, and, in a moment of panic, she knew that was the way out of the house. Unfortunately, that was the fire room. She only made it halfway through the living room."

The fire was discovered at 2:30 a.m. by Patrolman Kirk Spain of the Hereford Police Department. Kirk Spain originally thought smoke was coming from Winn's Department Store, just north of the house. When Kirk Spain drove around to the rear of the store, he saw the house engulfed in flames

'Kirk approached one of the men at the front of the house and asked him if everyone was out," Jay Spain said. "The man told him a little girl was inside, and Kirk tried to knock down the fire with the fire extinguisher in his patrol car."

That effort, however, was futile.

"He'd hit the fire with his fire extinguisher, but it would only go down for a second," Jay Spain said. Kirk Spain also tried to use a water hose to make entry to the house, but the flames were too high. The living room's ceiling also collapsed, hampering rescue efforts.

"The mother (Cynthia) got the two little ones out with her through a window in the bedroom where they were sleeping," Spain said. "The girl (Monique) just took off for the living room.'

According to Jay Spain, a leaky valve on a wall heater was the fire source. Enough gas had leaked from the valve to begin the blaze, which quickly spread through the living

"I just feel physically sick about this." said Mark Armor, owner of the house. "We had put this heater in about three years ago for safety reasons." Armor, who owns other rent properties, said he would check all of the heaters at his other houses

Although the home's residents claimed there was no smoke detector, fire dpartment video tapes clearly showed the remains of a smoke detector in the living room.

'We had just put a new smoke detector in there a few months ago, and I had checked it about three months ago," Armor said. "It tested just fine three months ago. I used to go over there to collect the rent, and I would usually check the smoke detector when I was there. I haven't been over there the last two months because they brought the rent to me.

"We put in new smoke detectors a few months back because the old ones took too much of a charge off the battery, meaning it wouldn't last as long. We put in new ones that didn't take so much from the bat-

"I did all of this (the new heater, the upgraded smoke detector) just to prevent this type of thing from happening. I am just sick."

Most of the items in the home were destroyed by fire or ruined by water from fire department units which were at the scene within three minutes of the time of Kirk Spain's

'Kirk said it seemed like an hour and a half for us to get there," Jay Spain said. "He was trying so many things to get in there. He reported the fire at 2:30 a.m., and we were there at 2:33."

Jay Spain was still shaken by the tragedy Monday morning, seven hours after the fire.

You just can't understand how things like this happen," Jay Spain said. "It's bad enough when it's an older person, but when it's a child it is very, very hard to understand."

Graveside services for Monique were held this afternoon in West Park Cemetery with Rev. William Johnson and Rev. Jim Scott officiating. Burial followed by Rix Funeral Directors.

She was born in Fort Worth and moved to Hereford three years ago. She was a member of Mount Zion Baptist Church.

Survivors include her mother, Cynthia; her brother, Michael; her sister Kricynthia; and her grandparents, Dorothy Black of Mexia and Alvin Black of Fort Worth.

Senate candidate County takes bid wants responsi

By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

Calling for increased "fiduciary responsibility" by the federal Republican government, senatorial candidate Wes Gilbreath of Houston brought his campaign to Hereford during a Monday whistle-stop tour of the Panhandle.

Speaking to a small group at the Hereford State Bank, Gilbreath, a 59-year-old grandfather who has featured his children and grandchildren in early campaign advertising, said the country has "spent itself into Chapter 11 (reorganization bankruptcy), but we can still work our way out of it. It just takes dedicated people that know what the bottom line is about."

Calling upon his long background as an accountant and working with several non-profit foundations and organizations, Gilbreath said he had "the knowhow to handle billions of dollars. Fiduciary responsibility is what we need in Washington."

Gilbreath filed late-Jan. 4, the last day for filing-but began a media blitz first, including television commercials in 18 Texas

"I included my children and grandchildren because we are responsible for their future," Gilbreath said. "Each child born today is saddled with an interest bill of $2,000 a year, and that's just the interest due on our foriegn debt.

It's OK to be in the candy store, you just can't eat all of the candy. We've got to have some respon-

Gilbreath also said he would increase his media blitz, with future commercials dealing more with "the issues." Gilbreath admitted he was "a little in the dark" when he tried to answer a question on the farm program, "but I have staff people who are looking at that and all of the issues. I will have the answers-the answers that we need."

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners voted 2-1 Monday to award the county's fuel bid to the lowest bidder, First National Fuel in Hereford, despite a commissioner's misgivings about the fuel's past performance.

Commissioner Bill Bradly, who voted against the measure, said, "We had this fuel three years ago, and we some trouble with it then." Bradly refused to comment on what the trouble was.

Commissioners Johnny Latham and Troy Don Moore voted for the measure and Commissioner Austin Rose was absent.

First National Fuel's bid of .0335 per gallon ranked lower than five other bids submitted by the following: Centergas (Texaco)-.034; Blakely Oil Company-.0359; Womble Oil Company-.0389 for gasoline and .0414 for diesel; Goodin Fuels, Inc., -. 047; and Tip Top Oil Company - .05.

The county's current contract with Blakely Oil Company will expire in April, ushering in the contract with First National Fuel effective until Sept. 30, 1989.

In a preliminary budget discussion, Alex Schroeter, county auditor, stated that based on present figures compiled from each department, the county budget will increase by $250,000 over last year's budget, including a 5-to-10 percent salary increase for some county employees.

"These figures are preliminary to figuring out the budget for next year," said Schroeter. "I'm going to go through the budget and delete all the pay raises for now and see what we come up with."

Commissioners will begin meeting with the department heads in March, said County Judge Tom Simons, where all budget requests will be evaluated.

Commissioners also proposed changes in the budget such as replacing court-appointed attorneys with a public defender and creating a contingency fund for precinct equip-

Concerning a maintenance agreement on the county's computer system, the commissioners decided to waive the agreement in lieu of a rider in the county's insurance policy which will cover maintenance costs.

"Other counties and other entities weren't too sold on these agreements," said David Ruland, county clerk. "They all signed on initially because they were afraid of the high cost to repair their computers, but they eventually dropped it because they didn't use it that much."

In other matters, the commissioners voted to pay Panhandle Community Services $325 per year to administer the Emergency Nutrition-(See COUNTY, Page 2)

lowa showing not to faze Texas campaign

DALLAS (AP) - The victory by Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole in Iowa's presidential caucuses and Pat Robertson's surprising finish does not mean that the expected battle between Robertson and Vice President George Bush for Texas' delegates will be any less intense, Robertson's chief Texas campaign official says.

Near-final returns gave 37 percent of the GOP vote to Dole, 25 percent for Robertson and 19 percent for Bush. Further behind were New York Sen. Jack Kemp with 11 percent and former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont with 7 percent.

"This is going to affect not only the Texas campaign but all campaigns," said Richie Martin, director of the Robertson campaign in Texas.

"It's the de-throning of Bush. He was to a certain extent the king of the mountain, especially in Texas, and this shows he can be beaten. I think that's going to be reverberated in Texas," Martin said in the Dallas campaign headquarters of the former television evangelist.

"I think it's going to be Bush and Robertson in Texas in spite of what Dole just did. As far as Dole's organization in Texas, I just haven't seen it so far," Martin said.

In the Democratic caucuses, with about three-fourths of the vote tallied, U.S. Rep. Richard Gephardt led with 27 percent, followed by Illinois Sen. Paul Simon with 24 percent and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis with 21 percent.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson had 11 percent, former Arizona Gov. Bruce -Babbitt 9 percent, and Gary Hart 1 percent.

The candidates vie again next week in New Hampshire's first-inthe-nation primaries.

Bush's finishing third behind Robertson was a surprise, but Robertson is the kind of candidate who fares strongest in a caucus situation rather than in a primary, said former U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, co-chairman of Bush's campaign in "This is the first major step out of the blocks, but we've always had a campaign that's national in scope as opposed to the regional appeal that Dole used in Iowa. I look forward to next week in New Hampshire as well as to March 8 in Texas and the South," Loeffler said.

"Texas is certainly going to make its own decision. We're strong in New Hampshire, and we're strong as horse riders in Texas," Loeffler said.

The director of Dole's Texas campaign was ecstatic Monday night and said Dole supporters were intent on delivering a win in Texas.

"The mood is elevated, I've got to tell you that," said John Stevens, regional political director for Dole's campaign in Texas and Oklahoma.

"Everybody is real excited. All of our faith in our candidate and his message is being reinforced tonight and it's going to go on from here," Stevens said from Dole campaign headquarters in Dallas, where he said about 100 people had gathered and more Dole supporters were streaming in.

"Because this is his home state, Bush has had widespread support here, but we've felt all along that it was shallow," Stevens said.

"These numbers in Iowa are well above landslide proportions, and I see the potential for mass erosion of support for Bush in Texas because people now have a reason to go for someone else. The myth has been shattered that because Bush is the State Republican chairman George Strake said he still thinks Bush will do well in Texas.

"I think this is the opening game of the season, but not the most important," Strake said from his home in Houston.

"Everyone likes to win," he said. "I'm sure Gephardt and Dole are pleased and I congratulate them. But would say the main ball game will be March 8."

Strake said he was not surprised by Dole's strong showing but was "a little bit surprised" that Bush, who calls Houston home, came in third behind Robertson.

Strake said the scandal involving alleged forged petitions among GOP presidential candidates will not have any effect on the state's March 8

On the Democratic side, state Democratic chairman Bob Slagle of Sherman said the Iowa caucus results are "not real meaningful" since Gephardt, Simon and Dukakis were bunched so closely together.

"It sounds like it's good news for Gephardt. I don't know what it means for Simon. It doesn't mean anything for Dukakis because he's going to carry the dickens out of New Hampshire," Slagle said.

"I'm sure it means Gephardt will continue to be able to raise money,"

Slagle said.

Like others, Slagle regarded Bush's third-place finish a setback for the vice president.

"I think he had better try to answer questions on his role in the Iranian-Contra deal, because those are pretty tough numbers for him," Slagle said.

Town wants nickname

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - New Orleans has Mardi Gras, Boston has St. Patrick's Day and the small town of Anthony wants similar fame as the Leap Year Capital of the World.

Anthony, a town of 8,000 that straddles the Texas-New Mexico border 16 miles north of El Paso, already bills itself "The Best Little Town in Two States." The slogan is right there on a sign along Interstate 10.

Residents hope that someday, the town may be famous for its Feb. 29 celebrations as the "Leap Year Capital of the World."

It's a pretty hefty title, but Mary Ann Brown - who was born Feb. 29, 1932, - said town leaders had to seize the opportunity when they had the

"We just voted arbitrarily to name this as the leap year capital of the world because no one else has," she said Monday, a week after the Anthony Chamber of Commerce claimed the title. The vote was unanimous except for one abstention.

It all started when Mrs. Brown and her neighbor across the street, Birdie Lewis, noted at the chamber meeting they were both Leap Year Day babies, though Mrs. Lewis refused to divulge on which Feb. 29 she was born. They noted that Anthony native Laurie Larock, who has since moved to California, also was Senate Finance Committee. Boulter, who faces three other Republicans bidding to unseat Bentsen, told reporters Monday that times will continue to be tough on oil and gas producers unless legislative action is taken.

"Our lenders have very little confidence in the industry so that loans are hard to come by," Boulter said. The real loser is not just the giant that invests money in wells and tries to put deals together and drill, but also the loser is people whose livelihoods are dependent on the oil million spent on exploratory and marginal wells and decontrol of

"He (Bentsen) talks a good game for the domestic petroleum industry but he hasn't done one thing,' Boulter said.

An aide for Bentsen said Boulter's comments missed the mark.

"The fact is that the Finance Committee has taken many actions at the behest of Sen. Bentsen, both as chairman of the finance committee and before he was chairman, to try to encourage domestic energy production in this country," said Bentsen aide Jack DeVore.

"The letter demonstrates, certainly in the case of the repeal of the windfall profits tax, that the chairman of the Finance Committee has already acted on that," said DeVore, noting that such a provision was included in an omnibus trade bill, now in conference committee.

Radiation undetected so far in foods from 15 plants where radiation found

WASHINGTON (AP) - No radiation has been found so far in samples of soft drinks, baby formula, beer and other food and cosmetic products from 15 plants where microscopic particles of radioactive polonium leaked from a widely used industrial device, officials say.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Food and Drug Administration ordered testing of product samples from the plants over the weekend in an escalating investigation of the widespread failure of airgun-like devices manufactured by 3M Corp. to eliminate static elec-

With some 2,000 of the 3M devices in use among 500 companies in the food, beverage, pharmaceutical and cosmetic industries, the list of plants where leaks of radioactive polonium occurred "will continue to grow,"

So far, officials have uncovered leaked radioactivity in excess of NRC reporting guidelines at 25 plants, 15 of them involving food, beverage, pharmaceutical or cosmetic products.

Production was stopped over the weekend and remained halted Monday at Coca-Cola plants in Arizona, South Carolina and Florida, at a Block Drugs dental products plant in New Jersey and at two Ross Laboratories baby formula plants in Arizona and Virginia.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest the letter from the woman who felt that she had been discriminated against because of her epilepsy. She signed herself, "High Tech Problem in San Jose."

I would like to call your attention to a national organization that deals specifically with this type of problem. It is the Epilepsy Foundation of America, 4351 Garden City Dr., Landover, Md. 20785. The toll-free telephone number is (800) EFA-1000. There are local affiliates throughout the United States that offer advocacy counseling to people who have been fired, demoted, etc., because of this disorder. On Long Island, the Epilepsy Foundation of Nassau County has provided assistance in many such cases

It is a sad commentary in this day and age of heightened awareness that people with epilepsy are still plagued by age-old myths and misconceptions. In this woman's case, four years of exemplary service were ignored because of a single seizure. Statistics show that she may not have another seizure for four more years (or maybe forever), but her once-promising career is now marred by this single experience.

Thank you for helping us educate the public.-Harmon Putter, Ph.D., Executive Director, Epilepsy Center, Garden City, N.Y.

DEAR H.P.: I have received hundreds of letters from people who decry the widepsread ignorance of this disorder. They asked me to emphasize the fact that the majority of people with epilepsy are employable and most cases can be controlled with proper medication.

Thank you for sending on the address and phone number so my readers can obtain informaton and guidance. I have seen the material and it is excellent.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I plan to be married in August of 1988. My fiance (Dan) and I are making plans for the wedding and we have hit a snag. If ever I needed advice from Ann Landers it is now.

My closest friend in the whole world is a guy named Scott. We grew up together and he has stood by me through thick and thin. I have decided that Scott should be my maid of honor. When I told Dan that Scott was my choice he said it was a ridiculous idea and that people would think I was nuts. We talked a long time and I explained that Scott really deserved the honor. Finally, Dan said it would be OK with him, but I should expect a lot of criticism.

The wedding is going to be semiformal. Dan and I plan to have four attendants each. We both want it to be a memorable event. Please tell me if you think my idea is too far out.-Seeking Help in Nebraska

DEAR SEEKING: I am a strong believer in people doing their own thing, but there are certain traditions that should be respected if for no other reason than to acknowledge the sanctity of the occasion.

Moore explained information about her background and then entertained members discussing her hobby, the art of Scherenschnitte. She told of the growth and development of this art of scissor-cutting in China, Germany, Switzerland, Poland, Denmark and the Pennsylvania Dutch era in the United States.

As examples of this work from these countries were passed to members for them to examine, Moore highlighted respected practitioners of this art form and explained how she received information and patterns from all over the world. In closing, she shared many examples of her own contemporary designs.

Latin American reserves are falling at an accelerating rate - $1.5 billion in 1985 and $8 billion in 1986 according to the Inter-American Development Bank. In 1986, a new and substantial decline in the terms of trade, the scant growth of the developed countries and the expansive domestic market policies followed by some countries caused the trade surplus of Latin America to shrink to little more than half the 1985 figure while imports went up.

"Consumer groups noticed that many baby foods had quite a bit of salt and sugar in them, and it was believed that the foods were seasoned that way because they tasted better to the mother," explained Hater. "Nutritionalists advised manufacturers of baby food to reduce the food's sugar and salt content so that a liking for salty and sugary foods was not developed at such an early age."

This approach was advised because studies have shown that humans have a natural liking for

As member of Houston Rockets

Sleepy Floyd has great expectations

HOUSTON (AP) - Sleepy Floyd dazzled fans with a triple double soon after joining Houston, and although not all his performances have been quite as spectacular the Rockets' new guard says he has great expectations.

"I want to provide proof that the Houston Rockets got the right guard," Floyd said recently. "It's a compliment that this ball club thought so highly of me and felt I was the missing piece in their puzzle."

The Rockets were decimated at the guard position by drug incidents involving John Lucas, Louis Lloyd and Mitchell Wiggins the last two

Floyd, obtained in a trade Dec. 12 that sent Ralph Sampson to Golden State, scored his first triple double with 23 points, a career high 13 rebounds and 10 assists against Denver on Dec. 19. He has averaged 15 points and six assists per game, and shot 41 percent from the field in 22 games with the Rockets.

"Floyd's ability will lift us beyond what we, as a ball club, could have accomplished if we had taken a stand pat approach," said Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson.

"The best thing about him is that he is going to make our other players better, once he has had time to familiarize himself with all the individual styles and techniques."

The Rockets, who went into the NBA All-Star break with a threegame winning streak, resume play Tuesday night in the Summit against the Boston Celtics.

All the pieces of the Rockets puzzle aren't together, but Floyd thinks the team is getting there.

"It's a big transition," he said. "At Golden State, I knew the players and the plays like the back of my hand. I'm anxious to walk on the court as a Rocket and have that same knowledge. That's when it will really be fun.

Floyd realizes much of the expectations are on him but he welcomes the attention.

"Sure, there's pressure, but I want that type of pressure," he said. "We have the personnel here to win a championship. I couldn't have asked for a better situation."

Floyd, 27, was a first-round draft pick of the New Jersey Nets in 1982 but was traded to the Warriors after 43 games.

"Trades are part of our business," he said. "It doesn't mean you can't play. When a trade happens, it's because two teams are looking to find the right parts. I didn't leave

New Jersey with any ill feelings." The Rockets return to play with a 25-17 record and they've won 14 of their last 20 games. Houston trails division-leading Dallas by 21/2

"The first couple of weeks after the All-Star break will be extremely important," Floyd said. "That will show us what direction we're headed in. I fully expect this team to take

Texas Tech researchers say care givers perpetuate sex stereotypes

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - According to a child development specialist, child-care givers may subconsciously send signals to children that perpetuate stereotypes.

Marilyn McCormick, director of the child development center at Texas Tech University, said that teachers frequently are not aware of the choices they offer children, but videotapes of teachers in their classrooms often reveal such behavior.

"They (teachers) are surprised when they see the tape played back of themselves," she said. "They see the subtle indication of (stereotypes) - automatically handling the truck to Johnny and automatically giving Susie a pat on the back that sends her toward the kitchen sink."

Ms. McCormick also said many teachers assume that, by nature, boys are active and girls are quiet. However, she said, teachers encourage boys to be active by giving attention to them when they are rowdy. She said girls receive attention when they demurely ask questions. "We are not saying there aren't inborn sex differences," Ms. McCormick said, "but a lot of what we do continues the (stereotypes).'

However, Ms. McCormick said, some role playing is normal for preschoolers, she said that at the age of 3 and 4, children recognize they are either male or female. As a result, they go through a period of heightened expression of exaggerated male or female characteristics. "We definitely don't try to change that," Ms. McCormick said, "but we try to make sure that we give both boys and girls a choice and that we don't subtly continue programming them twoard one or the other."

Ms. McCormick said the staff at the center offers children their choice of play areas. "Children need to be encouraged through their environment to reach toward their potential," she said. "We try not to have an already programmed idea of what that needs to look like for each Mr. Farmer-

According to Dr. Gwendolyn Sorell, assistant professor of human development and family studies, certain steps can be taken to alleviate sexism. Technologically advanced countries, she said, are in a better position to diminish sexism because women are able to participate in productive work. Groups confronting the issues of equality in employment, discrimination in the work place and child care will all help counter sexism, she said.

Ms. Sorell said that schools and families also should work to change their attitudes. She cited research that showed teachers have different expectations for children. Girls who failed, she said, were comforted and told that they had done their best. Boys, on the other hand, were told to not accept defeat, but go back and try again.

One way to remove gender stereotypes, Ms. Sorell said, is to change language. "It (changing language) will not alleviate sexism, but it is an important place to begin change," she said. However, removing sexist language, she said, "does change the way you see the world and how you talk about it."

As an example of how powerful language can be, Ms. Sorell often presents an article that conjures a world in which the roles of men and women re reversed. The effect is achieved by changing the pronouns. "Almost without exception, the women thoroughly enjoy it, and the men are either stoic or quite offended," she said.

However, Dr. John Simonds, professor and director of child psychiatry at Texas Tech Health Sciences Center, disagrees about the role of changing language. He said he believes updating some school material is needed but that changing promouns can be superficial. "We live in a bisexual society and we have to accept that," he said. "I accept the differences, but I feel that they shouldn't be defined rigidly."

Simonds suggests parents separate traits from gender to avoid encouraging stereotypes. He said if a mother or father puts down a mate's behavior, the children will be encouraged to dislike the opposite sex.

For example, he said, if a mother condemns a father because he drinks, the daughter will have negative feelings about men instead of about drinking.

The child psychiatrist said parents can learn to be less rigid about their children's gender roles. "In parenting we should be striving toward teaching parents to help their children accept a wide range of normalcy and tolerance of roles," he Simonds gave an example of a family that bought a toy car for their little boy and a comb for their little girl. The girl questioned why she couldn't have the car and was told that only boys got toy cars. The girl then said she wanted to be a boy, Simonds said. "This 2-year-old picked up right away on the stereotyping that the parents had imposed on her, and then expressed her opposition to it," Simonds said.

Ms. Sorell agrees about the important role parents play in perpetuating stereotypes. She said fundamental change will not occur until parents change their attitudes and practices toward gender roles. "Parental influence remains strong all the way across the lifespan," she said. "(Parents are) the beginning of

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Philanthropist Armand Hammer is giving his $250 million art collections a permanent home by building a private museum alongside the headquarters of his company, Occidental

The 89-year-old chairman and chief executive officer of Occidental had said he would leave his collections to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, whose officials expressed disappointment when Hammer announced Thursday that he will build a $30 million private facili-

Hammer said his museum will be open to the public, will encourage scholarly study of art and may exchange works with the county museum for special exhibits.

"I have always said that I plan to leave these collections for the enjoyment of the people of Los Angeles and with the construction of this new art museum and cultural center, that will be assured," Hammer said.

DETROIT (AP) - Jazz great Lionel Hampton was honored as he prepared for his first concert appearance at Orchestra Hall since the reopening of the downtown landmark known as the Paradise Theater in the 1940s early '50s.

Percussionist Hampton, whose 45-year career has included performances with Louis Armstrong, Charlie Parker, Dizzy Gillespie and Benny Goodman, received the keys to the city during ceremonies Thurs-

Hampton's concert Saturday is to be taped and broadcast later this year as a public television special, 'Lionel Hampton: Back to Paradise." The Paradise Theater showcased him and performers including Gillespie, Duke Ellington, Lena Horne, Count Basie and Sarah Vaughn during the Big Band Era.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Roxanne Pulitzer signed copies of her book "The Prize Pulitzer" and got a preview of the hubbub she can expect during a planned national tour to promote her version of the scandal that rocked Palm Beach.

In the hour Pulitzer sat by the fiction shelves at Waldenbooks Wednesday, writing her name and smiling, perhaps 75 people paid $17.95 for her book. Many came to gawk or take pictures of a woman who aired society secrets during a divorce from newspaper heir Peter Pulitzer.

Some people in the crowd were more impressed than others.

"I have followed this divorce from the very beginning," said Patricia Moses as she squinted into the viewfinder of her camera.

"I've never even heard of the scandal that rocked Palm Beach," admitted John Morris of Riviera Beach as he frowned at the dust jacket. "They gave her a Pulitzer Prize for this?"

Pulitzer is scheduled to kick off her 25-city promotional tour Tuesday with appearances on "Donahue" and "Good Morning, America."

LONDON (AP) - "Death Wish" director Michael Winner says a burglar broke into his home at lunchtime, stole five watches and was maker's assistant.

Miss Seagrove, the 29-year-old star of the television series "A Woman of Substance," and Geoffrey Sebag-Montefiore jumped on the burglar on a busy London street and retrieved the typical rating of its sometime four watches, the 52-year-old director said. The burglar then broke free and fled with with the fifth watch worth more than $7,000, Winner said.

"It says something about the state of Britain today when you cannot leave your French windows open with 12 people in the house without some burglar breaking in and stealing things," he said.

Miss Seagrove, who is of slight build, said: "When you have the full force of anger behind you, you don't worry about your size or what might happen. Although if he had had a shotgun I would have been off up the street and hiding under the nearest

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Bob Hope says he has a lot of thanks for the song "Thanks for the Memory."

The 84-year-old entertainer introduced the song in his first movie, "The Big Broadcast of 1938."

"It was the thing that saved me in pictures, that song," Hope said recently. "Damon Runyon, then one of the top newspapermen in the world, wrote a whole column about the song and how it was sung."

"Someone sent that column of Runyon's to the head of Paramount Pictures and the top man there said, 'Say, we ought to keep this boy.' And they did," said Hope, who will be honored Sunday at a Super Bowl pregame show in San Diego's Jack lurphy Stadium.

Asked if he has tired of "Memory,"

Hope said: "I love singing that song.

I don't end a show without it. Wherever I go, as soon as the audience hears those first notes, they recognize the song immediately - it seems to mean something to everybody, something special."

LONDON (AP) - Princess Anne was handed a packet containing condoms after delivering the opening speech at a world AIDS summit.

The 37-year-old princess was touring anti-AIDS publicity exhibits Tuesday when Dr. Gloria Ornelas, director of the National Information Center in Mexico, rushed up and thrust an information package containing condoms into her hands.

"You cannot come to an AIDS conference without receiving those," joked the princess' guide, Dr. Hilary Pickles, principle medical officer of Britain's Department of Health and Social Security.

The startled princess passed the gift to an aide.

NEW YORK (AP) - Garrick Utley is the new co-host of NBC's "Sunday Today," replacing Boyd Matson, who will become senior correspondent for the "Today" show. Maria Shriver remains as co-host.

Utlev had been serving as chief correspondent for the show. NBC on Tuesday also named Sid Feders executive producer of "Sunday Today." Feders has produced such NBC documentaries as "Life in the Fat Lane," "The Baby Business" chased and wrestled to the ground by and "God Is Not Elected." He actress Jenny Seagrove and the film-replaces Marty Ryan, who was doing double duty as executive producer of "Sunday Today" and "Today."

"Sunday Today" premiered last September, but its ratings have been in the 2.0-plus range, less than half rival, "CBS Sunday Morning." NBC moved "Sunday Today" to a later start time, 9 a.m. EST, so the shows now go head-to-head in several major markets.

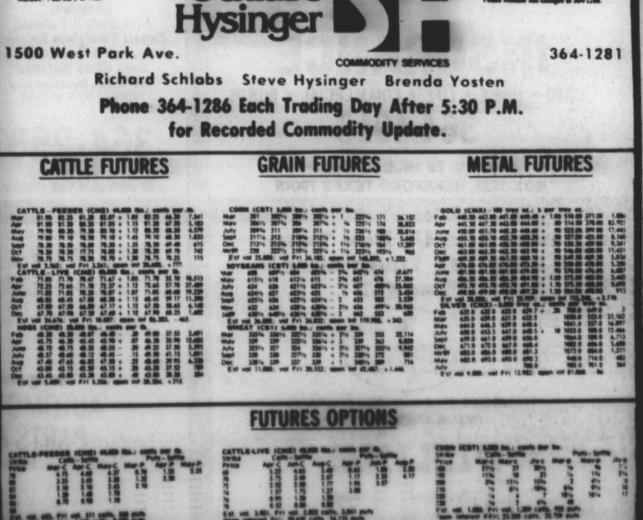

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Mr. Blackwell, the designer who created the annual "Ten Worst-Dressed List" and has had his ears restyled, says he'll be honored U.S. cosmetic surgeons for "outstanding contributions to the field."

Mr. Blackwell, who in 1985, told People magazine that his ears "stood out like open taxi doors until I had surgery," is to receive the American Academy of Cosmetic Surgery award Feb. 6, during the group's annual meeting here.

Mr. Blackwell said Tuesday that following his face lift in 1986, "I looked like an aging basset hound on a drunk, Edna Mae Oliver in drag. Now, thanks to cosmetic surgery, I have a reason to live, a whole new life. I have courage enough to have dreams and fantasies."
