Eichner tells committee

Hereford without help for impacts

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Deaf Smith County and its taxing entities are confronted with the activities of the nuclear waste program "without assistance to potential impacts", and this has created an uncertainty over economic activity in the community, according to Phillip Niekzielski-Eichner, executive director of the Waste Deposit Impact Committee of Deaf Smith County.

Eichner testified before the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs in Washington, D.C., Friday, directing the congressmen's attention to the needs of the local community and affected landowners in regards to any changes in the Nuclear Waste Policy Act.

Due to time constraints, Eichner said he summarized his testimony with eight points of the WDIC policy statement. The full written testimony will be on record, however. The summary by Eichner included:

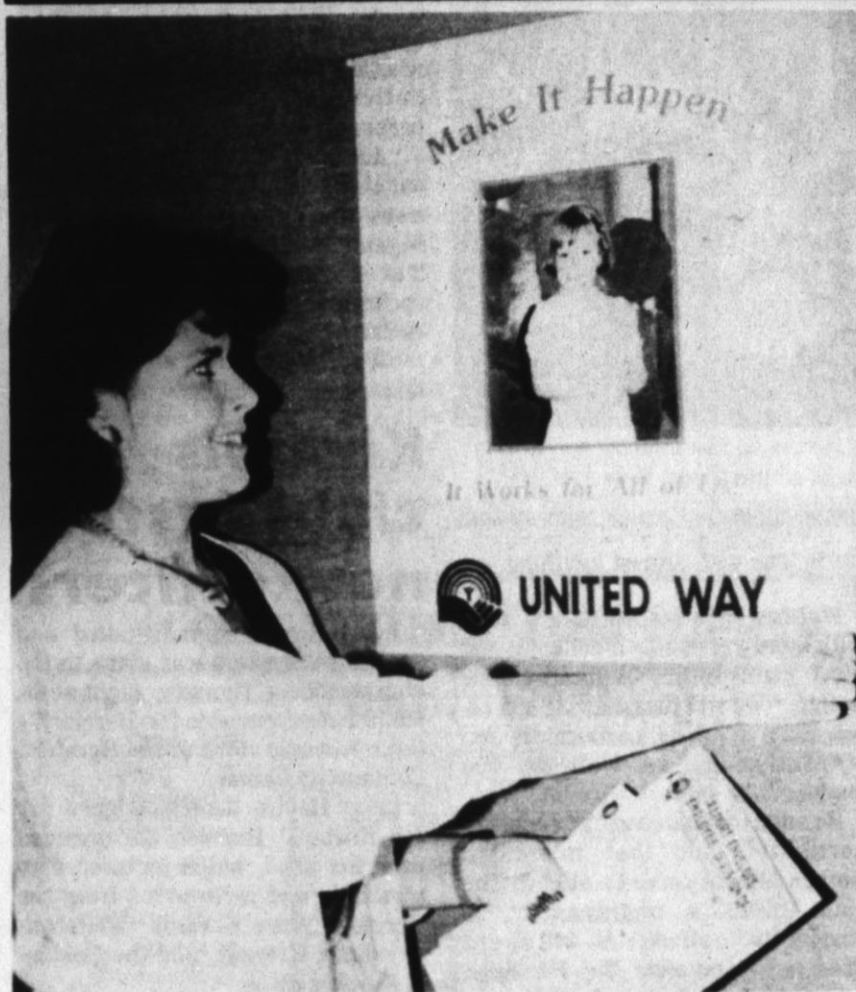

(1) The Waste Deposit Impact Committee has clear standing to represent and protect the interests of all Deaf Smith County local governments and citizenry; (2) The county is the number one producing agricultural community in the state, which is number two in the country; (3) Protection of the public health and safety and the environment is the WDIC's highest priority consideration; (4) Legitimate rights of participation and oversight need to be statutorily and financially accorded to local situs communities; (5) Impact assistance needs to be made available during site characterization and all legitimate affected parties made whole for damages they may incur; (6) Payments equal to taxes should be extended to special taxing districts; (7) Special consideration should be given to land acquisition issues; and (8) A moratorium is preferred over sequential characterization, with the program review conducted by a representative and exceptionally well qualified commission.

Eichner reported a wide range of representatives appeared before the House committee, including governmental, industry, environmental and public utility representatives. Three local governmental units testified—the city of Las Vegas, Nev.; WDIC and the Tri-County Repository Assessment Commission. Delbert Devin testified for the latter group, representing Castro, Parmer and Swisher counties.

"It seemed evident to me that there was widespread support among those testifying for a moratorium," Eichner reported Friday evening. "The utility representatives were less supportive of a moratorium, perhaps feeling that it would stall the program. They expressed an opinion that the problem was in management, not in the process."

In his written testimony, Eichner said that in order "to be effective in conveying local concerns regarding NWPA issues, it is important to clarify the nature of the community within which the candidate site is located," Eichner told the group. He (See WDIC, Page 2A)

CAP seeks new beginning

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

Hereford's Civil Air Patrol, long abandoned, is reorganizing as a cadet-oriented squadron, according to Captain Anne Clyde.

Clyde, who is squadron commander, is very optimistic about the contributions the CAP squadron can make to the community.

"Right now we have 15 members, including a certified flight instructor, a physician, a registered nurse and an attorney," Clyde said. "I always hear there is nothing for the teens in this community to do. Well, here is a group of people interested in helping out."

How can CAP assist teens? According to Clyde, the program offers a series of special activities which includes trips to airfields, orientation flights and flight training and foreign exchange programs for international summer adventures.

CAP is a non-profit organization which serves as an auxiliary of the United States Air Force and, though the cadet program is exciting, not all of CAP is fun and games.

Organized in 1941 as part of the U.S. Office of Civilian Defense, the courageous efforts of CAP members benefitted the country during World War II.

CAP members flew more than 24 million miles on coastal patrol, summoned help for 91 ships in distress and 363 survivors of submarine attacks.

CAP members today are actively involved in air search and rescue missions. These missions are called "saves" when the victims survive and are successfully located.

"You don't have to be a pilot or even ride in a plane to assist CAP with search and rescue," Clyde said. Once a downed airplane is spotted, people in all-terrain vehicles or on foot are often required to enter the area to aid the victims, she explains.

CAP is a family project for Clyde. She met her husband, David, a lieutenant colonel, at a CAP function and both have children who have participated in successful CAP search and rescue missions.

According to CAP literature, in the last five years CAP crews have been involved in more than 5,500 search and rescue or other emergency service missions. With a total of more than 92,000 hours of flight time, these missions yielded 2,500 locations of the missing objects and 425 lives saved.

To successfully assist in a rescue mission the CAP crews must be well trained.

Night life Deputies have lonely jobs

By DEBE GRAVES

Loneliness. Next to potential danger, if any word could describe the work hours of a sheriff's deputy, that word would be loneliness.

Once the heroes of the West, deputies no longer hold the unwavering adoration of the populace. In fact, one deputy with the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's department says many people, including other law officers, laugh at the deputies and do not consider them "real" law enforcement officers.

"Yes, we do get real bullets for our guns," he says. The deputies are trained with extensive hours in law enforcement. In this area, some train through the Panhandle Regional Law Enforcement Academy and through Amarillo College.

Deputies enforce the law in unincorporated areas of the county. Riding alone in a patrol car through hours of patrolling desolate roads can be lonely, boring and dangerous. "Our backup may be 40 miles away, so officer safety becomes a priority and it becomes very important that you know exactly where you are at all times so you can call for help and give the right location," Deputy Robin Ruland said.

To combat the loneliness the deputies often talk with one another over C.B. radios or take along a member of the Sheriff's Reserve Officers to accompany them as they drive, literally, hundreds of miles a night.

Reserve officers, Ruland says there are currently 26 of them, must ride in pairs or with a deputy. They are volunteers who assist the eight field deputies who patrol the county.

County patrol is a major portion of a deputy's job.

"I have put 300 miles on my car in one night of county patrol," Deputy Jimmy Hudgens said.

While on patrol the men (there are currently no women field officers though there are some women reserves) search outlying buildings for break-ins, check parked cars for people who might be ill or injured, pull over suspicious vehicles for possible violations and assist other law enforcement agencies.

"We can take calls throughout the county but do not take city calls unless the city requests we assist," Ruland said. The deputies also assist Highway Patrol officers with traffic control and accidents.

It is not uncommon for the deputies to spread out and search county roads for vehicles or persons thought to be dangerous or in danger.

During one recent call deputies were told that a man had phoned his family in Amarillo and advised them he had taken a bottle of pills and driven his car "about 40 miles from Amarillo".

With a vehicle description in hand the deputies quickly patrolled as Deaf Smith County roads that the (See NIGHTLIFE, Page 2A)

Every man, or woman, who has ever seriously endangered the peace of their neighborhood blessing a dead lawnmower with colorful curses should take interest in a new class Amarillo College is offering in Hereford. The class in small engine repair is on AC's fall adult vocational course list and will begin Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Joe Walters will instruct the class, which will be limited to 15 students, in his shop, Wheels & Things, located at 211 South 25 Mile Ave., in Hereford.

A former farmer, Walters says his love of tinkering with engines began as a 13-year-old when he became interested in flying model airplanes.

"I built model airplanes until I was 35 or 40 years old and then I discovered motorcycles," he said with a laugh. His interest in motorcycles then led him into racing.

"I've raced cycles and cars, and I loved it, but I'm getting to old and brittle for that kind of fun," he said.

Though Walters has done many of the fun things he had set as goals, including the racing, one thing he always wanted to do has eluded him. Until now.

Police investigate robbery attempt

Police are searching for three Hispanic males believed to have been involved in an attempted robbery Friday at Northwest Elementary School in Hereford, according to reports from the Hereford Police Department.

A man was walking toward his car in the school's parking lot when three men approached him and demanded his money. The victim attempted to get away, and one of the would-be robbers pulled a knife from his pocket and sliced the man's jacket.

The victim was then knocked to the ground and kicked. Police said the man was bruised and hand minor injuries. No money was taken.

Other offenses reported by police Friday included juveniles fighting in the 400 block of Ave. G; criminal mischief, with $450 in damages done to a vehicle, on Ave. J; two family disturbances; and an assault by threat in the 200 block of Whiteface.

Four persons were arrested by police on warrants issued after Thursday's grand jury session. The arrests included a man, 30, for delivery of a controlled substance; two men, ages 29 and 33, for delivery of a controlled substance and criminal solicitation; and a 21-year-old man for second offense of no liability insurance, no driver's license, running a stop sign, and a warrant for failure to appear on an earlier charge.

Police issued 15 citations Friday and investigated one minor accident.

Brand stops color comics

The Hereford Brand is discontinuing the pre-print colored comic section in Sunday's issue, effective today.

Increasing production costs, including a hike in the cost of newsprint on Sept. 1, led to the decision. "We were faced with the alternatives of increasing subscription rates or advertising rates, neither of which we felt would be appropriate at this time," said Publisher O.G. Nieman.

"The depressed economy of the past year was also a factor in the change, added the publisher. The daily black-and-white comic strips will continue to be published.

JOE WALTERS... realizing a goal

now Amarillo College is giving me that opportunity," he said. Walters' interest in model airplanes and then in motorcycles provided a natural progression into learning the mechanics of engines. "I've always been interested in mechanical things and so I learned to tear engines down and rebuild them," he says. Five years ago Walters gave up farming and began bringing home the family bacon by following his interest in the mechanics of small engines. "I opened my first shop in Friona, but moved the business to Hereford three years ago," he said. Though Walters sells motorcycles, lawn mowers, and string trimmers in his shop, the business has been built upon his ability to repair these items.

"Lawn mowers provide the basic, small engine principles used in other equipment. More lawn mowers are ruined by lack of maintenance than for any other reason. It would not hurt anyone who mows lawns to learn the principles we will be teaching in the class," he said.

Repairing lawn mower engines is not all Walters' students will learn. The small engine class will also get hands-on experience in 2- and 4-cycle engines, chainsaw engines, string trimmer engines and motorcycle engines because, according to Walters, if you understand the principles of one small engine you understand them all.

"I have always been interested in the 'why' of things. I believe if you understand why something works you will be able to logically tear it down and put it back together. That holds true with almost anything you do."

Walters says his class will start with theory of engine mechanics and move on to basics of small engine design. "We will disassemble and reassemble ignitions, carburetors and transmissions as well as the engines," he said.

He adds that his class is "equal opportunity" and that interested women are welcome to attend. The class needs a minimum of 10 students to be offered. AC will award those who complete the 7½ week course with 45 hours of continuing education credits.

Classes will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. and, though plans are to begin on Tuesday, Walters says AC is very flexible about the schedule and has given him until September 29 to sign up the needed quota.

Cost for the class is $45 per person and enrollment is available at Wheels & Things.

evaluations on our grid search practice runs and we work hard to make sure we pass those evaluations," Clyde said.

Aerospace education is another goal of the CAP squadrons. In 30 years the program has sponsored about 4,000 aerospace education workshops for teachers and education officials. Nearly 200,000 educators have been trained to teach aerospace education courses in their schools as a result of the CAP program.

"We have been told that Hereford's John Claypool has the longest continuous aerospace education program in Texas," Clyde said. The Hereford CAP squadron will be making services in curriculum planning available for teachers, such as Claypool, so that Hereford students will have the opportunity to study air and space programs.

CAP's cadet program ties in closely with the education program: its goal is to inspire the youths to take part in special programs which will aid them in developing the knowledge, skills and attitudes needed to understand the impact of air and space operations on society.

These goals are accomplished through a mixture of challenging activities and studies. Cadets work their way through a series of 15 achievements. As they progress through the steps they earn increases in rank, ribbons and certificates and become eligible for nationally sponsored activities and academic scholarships.

"We desperately need adults to join our CAP squadron to supervise trips and projects for the cadets and to have mission capability should we be needed for search and rescue," Clyde said.

Texas National Guard increases battle against drugs

The Texas Army National Guard's help in fighting the war on drug and alien-smuggling is increasing as the battlefield continues to expand, officials say.

The troops aren't exactly on the front line of this war and don't want to be, said spokesmen for federal agencies that benefit from the Guard's troops and supplies.

But the limited help has whetted other agencies' appetites for more Guard tactical support, although questions have been raised about whether the Guard's new role is detrimental to its military preparedness.

"Actually, in some cases it helps our readiness. We don't do any missions that would take away from regular training missions," said Texas Army National Guard spokesman Maj. Ed Komandosky of Austin.

"We feel that it's an obligation. last month to operate low-altitude radar to aid in the war on aerial importation of illegal drugs.

Each summer since 1985, Texas Army National Guard pilots, in cooperation with the Department of Public Safety, have patrolled East Texas forests searching for marijuana fields. About a year ago, the Guard's role was expanded to include more activity with federal agencies, in tasks such as construction and road building, to aid the interdiction effort.

After all, we're citizens, too, and we try to be good citizens," Komandosky said Wednesday.

As part of routine training exercises in the past few months, Texas Guard units have built an office for the U.S. Border Patrol in El Paso, flown sorties to watch for aerial smugglers and marijuana crops and paved part of a West Texas highway that soon will have a new immigration and drug checkpoint.

In Arizona, Guard units from Utah, Missouri, Wisconsin and Arizona were dispatched to desert outposts.

"We have had significant assistance from the National Guard in a number of areas — not in an enforcement posture, but in support," said Alan Eliason of El Paso, director of Operation Alliance, which coordinates the federal war against drug-smuggling.

Kiwanis clubs install new officers

New officers were installed and special recognition was given to top club members Thursday night at installation ceremonies for Hereford's three Kiwanis clubs at the Hereford Community Center.

Lloyd Hayes, lieutenant governor for Kiwanis' Division 33, presided over the affair, which included club members and their wives from the Hereford Noon Kiwanis, Whiteface Breakfast Kiwanis, and the Golden-K Kiwanis clubs.

Honored as "Workhorses of the Year," for their efforts in community work, were Larry Pennington, Noon Kiwanis; Jim Ward, Whiteface Breakfast Kiwanis; and Al Daniels, Golden-K Kiwanis.

Outgoing officers presented pins to the inductees at the ceremony.

pointed out that Texas is the second most agriculturally productive state in the country when measured by cash receipts from crops and livestock.

"Far from the barren wasteland of the early cowboy movies, the Panhandle region represents the best of agriculture today," said Eichner.

He also explained that WDIC was created by the various governmental entities to coordinate the study of the potential high level waste repository program impacts on the community and to secure appropriate impact mitigations. In addition, he said the committee has taken on the responsibility of local oversight and monitoring of the technical work performed should site characterization and repository development proceed in the county.

"From its inception, the WDIC has not taken a position regarding the implementation of the NWPA, its designated role being limited to protect the interests of the community," said Eichner. He added that this "pragmatic position does not imply community or governmental acceptance of the program."

Eichner said the provisions of the NWPA make clear the Congressional intent that impacts attributed to the carrying out of the act's directives were to be mitigated either by program design or by direct assistance. "These assurances have been made in general, but they have not been borne out when tested in specific instances," he testified.

"For example, DOE has advised local governments that impact mitigation assistance is limited to the repository development and does not include site characterization, potentially a $1 billion enterprise in and of itself."

The WDIC director noted that even the "perceived opportunity" for substantial improvements to the local economy have been elusive. "As uncertainty has settled over the Nuclear Waste Program, investors are reluctant to commit to projects which would help the community be more competitive in attracting transfers as new residents through the development of new homes and apartments."

Eichner added that not all impacts can be mitigated. "As an unwanted intrusion into a primarily agrarian community, many perceive the program's industrial and highly hazardous nature as a threat to the community's historical identity, its economic liability, and its way of life."

He added that others have looked for opportunity from a situation in which they feel they have no control. "This polarization has resulted in divisiveness, animosity and stress. While these and other social impacts may be expected in this situation, they should not go unacknowledged, nor unmeasured as is DOE's intent as expressed in its socioeconomic monitoring and mitigation plan."

Of the three candidate sites, Eichner pointed out that Deaf Smith is the only one which would require acquisition of private land. He said that WDIC requests that Congress give special consideration to this unique circumstance by establishing the following directives: (1) Any purchase or leases negotiated should begin with a baseline value, substantially greater than ag land value, that recognizes the rarity and uniqueness of the property as determined by the DOE selection process; (2) Current owners or their heirs should be given a first right to re-purchase the fully reclaimed land at its market value should the repository be located elsewhere; (3) Any other potential federal use of the characterization site should be prohibited; and (4) Farm owners and operators currently using land to be leased should be made whole for lost or foregone income or property damage incurred by characterization.

Seniors who graduate this school year are called the Class of '88. Those who start kindergarten this year will finish their public school education in the year 2000.

Seniors of '00?

Speaking of school, the first day can be traumatic for a kindergarten pupil, even with reassurances from parents and a smile from the teacher. Marshall Day, in The Seminole Sentinel, tells about such an event:

"My name is Donald and I don't know anything. I have new underwear, a new sweater, a loose tooth and I didn't sleep last night. I'm worried.

"What if the school bus jerks after I get on and I lose my balance and my pants rip and everyone laughs?

"What if I have to go to the bathroom before we get to school?

What if a bell rings and everyone goes into a door and a man yells, 'Where do you belong?' and I don't know?"

"What if my shoestring comes untied and someone notices and says, 'We'll all watch while you tie it.'"

"What if the trays in the cafeteria are too tall for me to reach?

What if my loose tooth wants to come out when we're supposed to have our heads down and be quiet?"

"What if the teacher tells the class to go to the bathroom and I can't go? What if I splash water on my name tag and my name disappears and no one will know who I am?"

"What if wind blows all the important papers out of my hand that I'm supposed to take home? What if I mispronounce my last name and everyone laughs?"

WEATHER FORECAST

It is going to be a hum-dinger of a winter, at least in Ohio. I met a beekeeper there. I made a mistake and asked him about his bees. He told me more than I ever wanted to know. I am not sure I want to know that much about anything, much less bees. He told me the winter was going to be rough. He knows because the bees have made more honey than ever before. Usually there are thirty pounds of harvestable honey in a hive in Ohio. This year his hives have ninety pounds of harvestable honey. The bees know.

I remember when we did not have weather reports every night. I remember when we did not know what the weather was going to do in the next hour, much less the next month. Oh, once in a while an old timer would tell us it was going to rain. He knew because his joints hurt. Usually he was right. Usually it did not matter. I do not know why we are so interested in what the weather is going to do, anyhow, we can't do a great deal about it. I use to get all kinds of request to change the weather. It seems we think preachers have some sort of control in that area. I always told folks I was in sales, not management.

We really lived pretty well without weather forecasts. If we wanted to know the prospects of rain we looked at the sky. If there was a storm we got all of the women and children into the cellar and all of the men stood out in the rain to watch the storm, just like God intended. If it snowed we were always surprised. I miss being surprised by snow. Somehow a snowstorm is just not the same when it has been predicted for a week. Wind is suppose to catch us with clothes hanging on the line. Of course, no one has a clothes line any more, but that does not mean we aren't supposed to have one.

I get amused at the weather reporters. They have a hard job. It isn't easy making a weather report last fifteen minutes without boring us to death. It must stretch them pretty thin. Every summer they report on how hot it is, like this is the first time it has ever been hot. The winter sees them playing the same game with cold. One would think it had never gotten down to freezing in Michigan ever before.

I just laugh and flip the channel. I know we are going to have a rough winter—the bees in Ohio told me so. That is enough information. Now I am going to sit back and be surprised by a snow.

Bork hearings timely

How appropriate that the Senate Judiciary Committee should begin its hearings on the nomination of Judge Robert Bork for the Supreme court this ... 200th anniversary of the Constitution by the state delegations in Philadelphia. The Bork hearings provide the nation with a dramatic civics lesson about what the Constitution means, and how it has survived all these years as the nation's basic charter.

The composition of the Supreme Court has a lot to do with how well the Constitution serves the people — and what the Constitution is construed to mean. For that reason, the Bork nomination is extremely important. A strict constructionist of conservative philosophical and ideological bent, Bork could tip the court majority on many vital social issues. The appeals court judge is 60; given reasonably good health, he could serve 20 or more years, and contribute to changing the direction of the American government.

... The Bork hearings are, in short, a primer on American government, how it has evolved, and where it may go in the future.

At the end of the exercise, odds are Bork will be confirmed — and that, once confirmed, he will occasionally confound both supporters and critics with subsequent decisions. Meanwhile, the hearings amount to a great debate — or at least, the greatest one going at the moment — on the Constitution and its past, present and future.

Abatement value

If anyone doubts that tax abatement is an effective way for governmental entities to attract new businesses, we refer them to the recent example of the J.C. Penney Co. and the city of Plano.

The J.C. Penney Co. plans to move its headquarters from New York City to Plano, a suburb of Dallas. Although tax abatement was not a condition for Plano to receive his juicy economic plum (4,000 jobs), the city did tell J.C. Penney that it would make a good-faith effort to reduce its taxes. The result was a tax abatement deal that seems to have benefitted both parties.

If the proposal is approved, Penney would receive a 25 percent annual tax break for 15 years ...

Taxing entities in Southeast Texas probably won't be offering any deals of this magnitude, but the principle remains the same. In the highly competitive arena of attracting new businesses, tax abatement can be a powerful marketing advantage for cities, counties and school districts...

Elections still three years away

State Treasurer Ann Richards is right: No one has been ordained as the Democratic candidate in the next Texas gubernatorial election. Because Richards is well-qualified and has considerable support, she should be weighing such a race.

Attorney General Jim Mattox is wrong: A Richards candidacy would not be a bad thing for her or for the party. When it comes to qualified candidates, the more the better. The voters should have a choice.

Mattox, of course, is already in the race, whether he has officially announced it or not. From his standpoint, he naturally would prefer to be unopposed.

But we are talking about 1990, three years hence. Richards is also right that the talk about a governor's race is premature. Officeholders priming themselves to run in 1990 have a lot of other business that should occupy their energies in the meantime.

... Running for governor is becoming akin to running for president: The wearing process threatens to consume the candidates and the electorate long before it is time to vote.

The more the merrier, yes. But there is plenty of time, and other fish to fry.

Don't reward incompetence

By RICHARD L. LESHER,

President

WASHINGTON — In 1945, labor unions represented nearly 36 percent of the private sector workforce; today less than 18 percent. Twenty years ago, unions represented nearly 80 percent of construction workers; today less than 30 percent.

It is no great secret why the unions have fallen from favor with workers. As the American economy has come of age, workers have become more sophisticated about economics and our country's need to compete in the world marketplace. They recognize that the traditional antagonism between management and labor will no longer serve their interests; that we are all in this together and must learn to cooperate.

But the unions remain oblivious to this change. To paraphrase Tallyrand, they have learned nothing and forgotten nothing. They still demand restrictive work rules and exorbitant pay increases unrelated to advances in productivity. Most important, they remain determined to foster bitterness and distrust between management and labor.

Because of their intransigence, the unions have steadily lost favor with the rank and file. If the unions were wise, they would adapt to changing conditions and attitudes and broaden their appeal to modern workers with more enlightened policies. Instead, they are trying to browbeat Congress into changing labor laws to coerce more workers into union ranks.

At issue is proposed legislation (H.R. 281 in the House; S 492 in the Senate) that would outlaw double-breasting, sometimes called dual shop operations. A dual shop is a company that operates both union and non-union operations in different places. Making dual shops illegal would require a company with one union contract to extend that contract to all of its employees.

The effect would be to force non-union construction workers now employed in many "open shop" firms to join unions in non Right-to-Work states, or to go through union hiring halls in Right-to-Work states. It would increase picketing and secondary boycotts; drive up construction costs, especially for commercial and industrial projects; deny contractors the flexibility they need to operate in different labor environments; decrease competition; destabilize labor relations and existing collective bargaining relationships; and dictate terms of existing and future labor contracts by injecting Congress into the collective bargaining process.

But perhaps the absolutely worst result of this ill-considered legislation would be to reward the unions for their incompetence. The world is changing and all of us — management, labor and unions — must change with it. Until the unions get their act together and come to terms with the 20th century, their ranks will continue to dissipate and rightly so. It would be morally wrong and economically suicidal for Congress to pull their irons out of the fire.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I hate to confuse the issue with facts, but it seems someone is under the assumption that the DOE and its contractors are in Hereford passing out "tax dollars."

The nuclear waste program is ostensibly funded by the Nuclear Waste Fund, created by the NWPA of 1982 with a surcharge on electricity sold in America by utilities which produce the power with nuclear plants.

THIS IS NOT TAX MONEY. It is the product of a 1 mill per kilowatt surcharge on the users of electricity from nuclear power plants.

Nuclear utilities were unable to solve the waste disposal problem for 30 years, so they convinced Congress a federally-run program would have more credibility and have a better chance of success. Congress still has control over when and where the money will be spent, but it is not tax money and has absolutely no bearing on the federal deficit.

Thank you for the diversity of opinions offered in The Hereford Brand, although it is sometimes difficult to distinguish news stories from editorials, which now occasionally appear on pages 1, 2, & 4.

A faithful reader,
Chip Formby
Box 1757

Dear Mr. Formby:

Thanks for your letter. We are always happy to publish letters with diversity of opinions, but far too many people do not take advantage of this form of freedom of speech.

We are surprised that a man in your position has difficulty distinguishing between news and editorials. Personal opinion columns and editorials are identified and occasionally are published on days other than Sunday.

Sincerely,
The Editor

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek is into football this week.

Dear editor:

If you want to get the most out of your television set for the next several months you need to like professional football. Unless, of course, the players strike.

You see, when one player finds out another player is making $8 million for four years, he gets mad because he's making only $6 million.

I don't know if professional football players read newspapers but if they do and they saw the article the other day about a TV star making $50 million a year, you can see what we're in for. Can the game afford $50 million dollar quarterbacks?

But what I started out to say is I notice the TV commentators are back in the broadcast booth getting in the way of the game. I think they're paid by the word, or how else explain their non-stop talking. On every play and between every play they have something to say. Sometimes they talk right through a play. They tell you what you've already seen, they tell you where the ball carrier or the tackler went to school. They tell you what a wrong play the quarterback has called and how many interceptions he threw year before last, or was it the year before that.

If you were sitting in the stands at a high school football game and the man in the seat in front of you turned around on every play and told you who the runner is, how much he weighs, what his folks do for a living and what his grade average is, you'd reach out and pull his hat down over his ears, or, if he's bigger than you, get up and move to another seat.

With televised games there's no escape. You can switch channels to another network but if you do you'll find a different set of commentators jabbering away.

Something ought to be done about this, but like Congress balancing the budget, nothing ever is.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

PROCRASTINATION-ITIS

"Most postponement creates a condition in which there develops a collision of duties."

—Bob Wear, Hereford Brand, April 10, 1983.

"Duty is a great word with a great and significant meaning. It is a command from conscience to 'work the works of righteousness.' Duty consists in doing those things which promote the welfare and happiness of humanity." (Dallas Morning News, Sept. 13, 1925.)

"Conscience is the voice of God in the soul of man and if listened to it becomes clearer and clearer. If disobeyed it finally fades away and disappears."

—Carl C. Gregory, Dallas Morning News, Dec. 1, 1924.

TODAY'S INSIGHT: When we are tempted to procrastinate our duties and responsibilities, we are, in reality, rejecting the conscience. The more that we put off our duties and responsibilities, the faster will the conscience fade away.

As the conscience or the voice of God disappears in our souls, the more unclear our thinking becomes. As a result of procrastination, not only do we eventually experience the "collision of duties" that Wear spoke of, but we are usually unable to think clearly in order to repair the damage from such a collision.

Thus we become inefficient in the performing of the duties, because we try to do them hurriedly. Without the guidance of God in our lives, we fail to fulfill our duties and responsibilities to the fullest.

"For with God nothing shall be impossible." (John 1:37.) And Christ said, "Without me ye can do nothing." (John 15:5.) Without God's guidance through the conscience, we find life impossible because of a state of mind that might be called "procrastination-itis" — the putting off of duties so frequently that the sense of responsibility is lost.

Farm and Ranch

Frankie Bezner

Local farmer's corn among tallest

HEREFORD(SPL)--Frankie Bezner grows some of the tallest corn in Texas smack in the middle of the world's largest herd of beef cattle, but not a kernel hits the feed troughs.

He grows food corn, a commodity that's sought from the four points of the globe to satisfy a giant appetite—a huge market that demands not only quantity, but quality in the highest degree.

"The Texas Panhandle grows

some of the highest quality food corn in the world," said Bezner, as he jumped an irrigation ditch. "We've got lots of sunshine and a long growing season here in the Panhandle which makes it one of the top places in the nation to grow corn if you've got the water."

Though corn production is not new to the Bezner family, this business of growing food corn is a relatively new niche in the 1,600-acre family farm. Preparing seed beds, planting and irrigation methods are all about the same as growing corn for grain, but there are some variances in the use of commercial fertilizers—the big differences, however, are in spraying for insects and in the hybrid plants which underwent extreme testing before being released for commercial production.

"I've planted Pioneer (R) brand hybrids ever since I first started raising food corn, and I don't think per acre (around 175 bushels per acre) with one field in 1986 averaging more than 14,000 pounds.

"We received a lot of rain right at the end of the season last year, and the corn really came on strong," he said, in accounting for the big acreage yields in 1986. "It looks like we're going to have a good average year in 1987."

In past years, Bezner has planted white corn on request from the food

"Before that, we had always planted corn for livestock silage, but I switched and never went back."

"Frito Lay has really been a blessing to the farmers in this area," said Bezner, as he showed where food corn has become a permanent part of his farming operation. "We used to grow silage for cattle, and that was okay at the time, but we're sure enjoying this food corn crop."

The Bezner family came to the Deaf Smith County area in 1922 when Frankie's grandfather, Louis Bezner, moved to Hereford from the small farming community of Lindsay, Texas, located about 4 miles west of Gainesville near the Red River.

Frank Bezner, Sr., bought the present farm from headquarters, four miles west of Hereford, in the late 1940s. Eight years ago, he retired, moved to Amarillo and leased the farm to his only son, Frank "Frankie" Bezner, Jr., who has six older sisters.

With the sprawling farmstead dotted with granaries, machine sheds and livestock shelters, Bezner also feeds a few calves on his farm on the west edge of his headquarters.

"I'm very fortunate to have the opportunity to farm a place like this," said Bezner, as he looked at the fields of tall corn.

'Growing food corn is the only game in town.'

there's anything better," said Bezner, as he counted 20 kernels to the circle on an ear of corn. "The average around here is 14 to 16 kernels, but we find a lot of twenties in our corn."

Though Bezner speaks frequently about being an "average" farmer, in 1986 he placed second in Texas and sixth in the nation in the annual National Corn Growers Contest in which one of his fields averaged out of 267 bushels per acre.

All of Bezner's food corn production is grown under contract with Frito Lay, Inc., which has a large corn handling facility here. However, the corn is shipped out to other points of the nation for processing and the manufacturing of corn products.

"I'll get $6 a hundred weight for one-half of my food corn production, with the remainder to average out at around $5.50 per hundred weight," said Bezner. "Half of the crop is priced on a sliding scale system based on commodity prices on the Chicago Board of Trade."

"There's also a 5 to 25 cent premium on the corn that has outstanding milling qualities."

He said most production will average out at 10,000 pounds or more processors, but this year's crop is all yellow corn. However, the Pioneer Hybrid 3192 is a bright yellow kernel with a white cob.

"The food companies seem to really like the hybrid because of its high milling qualities, the yellow corn and white cob," he said.

"Growing food corn is the only game in town," the young farmer added, while showing that diversified farming is paying off in cash dividends. "I switched to food corn production in 1981 when Frito Lay asked me to plant a small patch of corn for insect testing."

KELLY'S WORKS ON PAPER

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A retrospective exhibition devoted exclusively to Ellsworth Kelly's works on paper opens at the Fort Worth Art Museum Sept. 13.

The exhibition, which closes Oct. 25, will include 164 objects, encompassing figure drawings, portraits, collages and photographs, many of which served as studies for paintings and sculpture.

Much of the material is from the artist's personal collection and has never been shown previously.

Quality Food Corn

New technician now at local SCS office

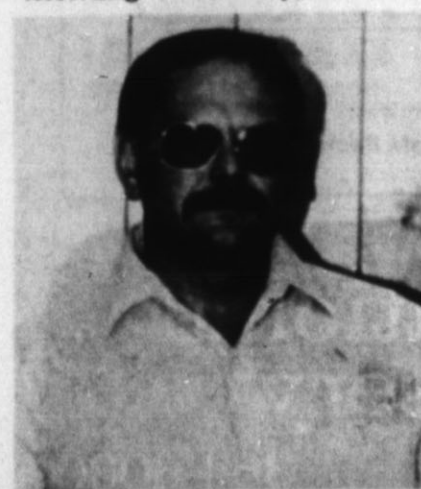

Arden Redelsperger began work Sept. 14 in the local office of the United States Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service.

According to Bob Perry, local SCS district conservationist, "Redelsperger will work as a technician handling irrigation pipe designs, waterways, diversions, ponds, and livestock water lines. He will replace Al Lee."

A native of Follett, Texas, Redelsperger graduated from West Texas State University. He worked in Follett's SCS field office part-time and was a farmer and rancher. His family includes his wife, Beverly, and two daughters, Joanna, age 12, and Deanna, age nine. They are members of the Baptist Church and moved to Hereford recently.

In addition to Perry and Redelsperger, other SCS office personnel include Jaime Neepner and Gail Thompson, soil conservationists; Patrick Reily, range conservationist; Toddie Flippo, SWCD technician; and Brenda Martinez, part-time technician.

Toxic gases should be approached with care. Proper respiratory protective equipment should be used to protect farmers from farm-related gases. Experts offer these suggestions for working around toxic gases. Choose the proper respirator for the job being performed. self-contained breathing devices are necessary if a farmer must work in manure pits, silos or any place where toxic gases can reach dangerous levels. In confined buildings, maintain continuous ventilation systems to prevent build-up of dangerous gases and dust. After filling a silo, do not enter for at least three weeks. If absolutely necessary, enter only after the silo has been ventilated with a silage blower for at least 30 minutes to dilute the gas. Keep children and other unauthorized people away from pesticide storage areas. If someone is overcome from toxic gases or substances, be certain to use backup respiratory equipment and call for emergency assistance.

Hereford led 30-0 at halftime

Herd rolls to 37-8 victory over Pampa

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The way that Friday night's District 1-4A game between Hereford and Pampa went in the first half, the Whitefaces were on track for what would have been the highest scoring game in many seasons. Hereford had 274 yards total of fense in the first half enroute to a 30-0 halftime lead over the Harvesters. The Whitefaces, playing their home opener of the 1987 season, went on to defeat Pampa 37-8.

The highest scoring game by Hereford in the 1980s has been a 49-0 win over Tascosa in 1982. The last time that the Whitefaces scored more than 50 points was in a 52-12 win over Dumas in 1976.

But after piling up the 30-0 halftime lead, Coach Don Cumpston played lots of substitute players, and the second half was a chance for those players to get some playing time.

The win gives Hereford a 1-0 district record and a 2-1 overall touchdown run, and Raymond Romo had a 29-yard run.

Tim Long kicked the extra point, and Hereford led 7-0 with 9:43 left in the first quarter.

Pampa fumbled and lost the ball in its first possession of the game. Neither team was then able to get a first down in its next possession.

The Whitefaces drove from their own 22-yard line for a touchdown late in the first quarter. Keith Brown, carrying the ball for the first time this season, dodged and darted for 31 yards for the touchdown with three seconds left in the quarter.

Long's extra point made the score 14-0.

Midway through the second quarter, Pampa threatened to score and sliced the Whiteface lead in half. Pampa had a first down at the HHS nine-yard line after Brad Abbott intercepted a Hereford pass and returned it 28 yards.

It came down to fourth down at the two-yard line for Pampa. Keith Brown stopped Pampa running back Brian McDonald for a two-yard loss, and Hereford took over possession of the ball.

Hereford failed to get a first down in that possession, and punted. Brown then intercepted a Pampa pass in the Harvesters' first down play.

Brown returned the interception 28 yards to the Pampa 48-yard line. Five plays later, Herd quarterback Jason Scott found Rodney McCracken in the end zone for a 27-yard touchdown pass with 3:10 left in the first half.

Tim Long continued his successful PAT kicking, and Hereford's lead stood at 21-0. Two minutes later, Hereford added two points to its total when Pampa had a snap from center go over the punter's head and into the end zone.

Pampa then had to punt from the 20, and Hereford's Pat Mercer returned the punt 25 yards to the Pampa 39. It took just one play to add to the HHS lead, with Fidencio Cantu record. Pampa is 0-1 in the district and 0-2 overall. Hereford plays at Frenship at 7:30 p.m. next Friday, and Pampa is host to Borger.

The Whitefaces needed just five plays to reach the end zone after receiving the game-opening kickoff. Kyle Andrews carried four times for 39 yards, including a 14-yard catching a pass from Jason Scott and working down along the sidelines for a 39-yard scoring play.

That touchdown was scored with 55 seconds left in the half. Long's PAT made the margin 30-0.

Hereford had 274 yards total offense compared to 69 for Pampa in the first half. Kyle Andrews had 78 yards rushing in 11 attempts in the half.

The second half had several turnovers, and each team scored one touchdown. Hereford's touchdown came in the third quarter and built the lead to 37-0.

Hereford began its first possession of the second half at the Pampa 36-yard line. With Glenn Parker carrying in each play except one, Hereford moved to the end zone in eight plays.

Parker scored with a one-yard run with 6:33 left in the third period, and Long added the PAT. Parker totaled 77 yards in 15 carries in the game, all in the second half.

There were two fumbles lost by Hereford in the second half, and Pampa turned the ball over twice -- one fumble and one pass interception. Hereford's Chris Bullard recovered the Pampa fumble and also intercepted the pass.

Harvester quarterback Dustin Miller scored with an 11-yard touchdown run with 4:16 left in the

Edwards, Hammond exchange vows

Susette Genevieve Edwards became the bride of Robert Orrin Hammond during Saturday, Sept. 12, during an early evening ceremony held in the Church of the Nazarene in Hereford. Rev. Bob Huffaker of the church officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis H. Edwards of 507 Willow Lane and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Hammond of 429 Centre.

The church was decorated with seven-branched candelabra entwined with greenery and a white bow. White bows marked the pews along the aisle. The bride's honor attendant was Sherry D. Welch of Canyon. Best man was Scott D. Veld of Lubbock. Niki Hammond served as candle lighter. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a tea-length dress featuring a long, straight-fitted bodice of satin with a Venice lace overlay. Fashioned with a drop waist, the dress featured a glass beaded flower-shaped applique on the hip. The skirt formed a gather at one hip and the dress was fashioned with long, cascading sleeves of lace. To complete her ensemble, she wore a headpiece of puffed lace which cascaded into a hip-length veil of Venice lace. Satin flowers and pearl droplets fell from the headpiece over each ear.

The bride's bouquet contained white roses, white and blue baby's breath, and streamers of white and blue ribbon.

The bride wore a diamond heart-shaped necklace and carried a 100-year-old lace-covered Bible. The bridesmaid wore a gown of baby blue flowered eyelet containing a soft blue cotton lining. Styled with a long-waisted top and a bow marking the hip, the dress flowed into a straight skirt. She wore blue flowers in her hair and carried a long-stemmed white rose accented with a blue bow.

A reception followed in the church's fellowship hall. Angie Graham of Floydada, served cake while Sherry D. Welch of Canyon served punch and coffee. An embossed satin cloth topped the reception table, which was accented with blue satin roses around the top. The silver punch bowl featured a large heart-shaped blue ice ring. The four-tier white and blue cake was highlighted with a white ceramic top as a fountain containing blue water was placed in the center.

The couple will be at home at 718 Thunderbird Apt. No. 7. The bride is a 1983 mid-term graduate of Hereford High School and is presently a student at Amarillo College. She is employed at Mechanical Techniques. The bridegroom is a 1982 graduate of HHS. She is a custom cutter for a local farmer.

Out-of-town guests included John and Pat Veld, Lawana and Cassie Padgett, Clois and Janice Noblett, all of Lubbock; Kevin Simms of Dallas; and the groom's sister-in-law, Sharon Hammond and children; Christin and Julie, all of Lubbock.

Gypsy theme used at meeting

Veleda Study Club met recently in the home of their 1986-87 President, Marjorie Lasiter, to enjoy their first meeting of the year which was a welcome back Gypsy party.

All members came dressed in appropriate costumes. Billie Martin, mother-in-law of member Norma Martin, was recognized as a special guest.

Ms. Lasiter, using a patriotic theme, installed the incoming officers. They are Suzanne Stevens-president; Ruth Fish-vice-president; Betty Gilbert-secretary; Audry Martin-treasurer; Norma Martin-historian; and Marjorie Lasiter, parliamentarian. Ruth Fish and Audry Martin were installed in absentia. Juanita Brown and Margaret stood as proxies.

Lasiter admonished the incoming president to always remember her responsibilities of being a guiding light, leading the club forward to achieve their aims & objectives. She was presented a small copper miniature symbolic of the Lady of Liberty in New York harbour who lights the way for all who pass her. The vice-president was reminded of her position whenever needed. Betty Gilbert, secretary received a miniature desk and was charged with keeping all records, reporting all club activities and being responsible for all correspondence. In keeping with the office, a cash register was given to Martin to indicate the treasurer's responsibility to account for all of the club's money, pay all bills and collect club dues. Norma Martin, as historian will pictorially record all activities of the club during the year. She received a liberty bell.

Yearbook member, Marcella Bradley, used a wheel of fortune to review meeting assignments and activities for the club year.

Finally, Marjorie Lasiter, using Psych Optics cube arrangements, told the fortunes of several club members.

The next meeting will be at the home of Norma Martin. She will also be in charge of the program.

In addition to the yearbook committee members, Marcella Bradley and Suzanne Stevens and the hostess, others present were Norma Walden, Margaret Zinser, Norma Martin, Juanita Brown and Betty Gilbert.

The Hereford Golden K Kiwanis Club celebrated the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution Thursday during a ceremony held at Gregg Park. Located at the intersection of West 4th and Highway 385 (25 Mile Avenue), the park received three trees, each in recognition of the three branches of government. District Judge Wes Gulley, top photo, commented on the Preamble.

Other dignitaries who spoke for the event included Judge Tom Simons, Ruth Newsom, Mayor Wes Fisher, Rev. Alby Cockrell, and June Nolen, descendant of the Gregg family. The Hereford Senior Citizens Choir, led by Jeff Love, bottom photo, sang patriotic songs. Old Glory was accompanied by four other flags, representing the U.S. Marines, Army, Air Force, and Coast Guard.

Hereford girl to compete

Dana Estrada, three-year-old daughter of Romulo D. Estrada and Hortencia Estrada of Hereford, has been selected to represent the state of Texas at the USA's Young Miss National Pageant.

The pageant will be staged during Easter weekend, 1988, in Atlanta, Georgia. She was chosen by the pageant's selection committee, who viewed thousands of resumes and photographs. Estrada's selection as a finalist enables her to compete in "the most prestigious youth competition in the nation," according to the pageant's chairman of the board, Wade F. Luther.

Grandparents of the youngster are Manuel and Ofelia Estrada and Alfredo and Maria Figueroa, all of Hereford.

"Panhandle Chamber Women Involved in Community Service" is the theme for the Regional Women's Division Conference for the Panhandle area Chambers of Commerce set from 9 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 26, at the Hereford Community center.

All members of area Women's Divisions are encouraged to attend the day's activities which will feature keynote speaker, Helen Rose. Tickets to the conference are priced at $15 per person if advance reservations are made at the Chamber office at 364-3333. Tickets will also be available at the door for $17.50 per person.

The morning session will consist of an executive committee meeting and welcome coffee, followed by tours of the Deaf Smith County Museum and the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

The Hereford Chamber Singers will be preparing and serving a luncheon at the Community Center after the tours. Entertainment during the luncheon will also be provided by the vocal group.

Welcome bags have been put together through donations made by Hereford merchants and will be given to each participant of this conference. Also, each participating town has been invited to bring a scrapbook. These will be judged and prizes awarded.

As president of the Deaf Smith County Women's Division, Betty Taylor will be conducting the executive committee meeting and will be presiding over the day's events. She has also served on the planning committee.

Others who have been preparing for the event are Georgia Sparks, chairman; Addie Cunningham, door prizes and welcome bags; Betty Drake, scrapbooks and prizes; Ruth Newsom, tours; Bettye Owen, welcome coffee; Sue Malaman, decorations; Peggie Fox, programs; and Lanette Leasure, publicity.

These yearly conferences have been held in Amarillo, Dumas, Borger, Spearman and Stratford. Muleshoe and Memphis have been scheduled for 1988 and 1989.

Women's Division members throughout the Panhandle will be represented at this conference and will be bringing items from their hometowns depicting their area, which will be given away in drawings as door prizes.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For the third time this month, I've read something in the news that has left me with an aching heart. I've never felt so helpless in my life. I need to say something to every parent in the country. You could provide me with that opportunity. Will you, Ann?—Heartbroken in Oshkosh

DEAR OSHKOSH: You bet I will. Here's your message. It's a good one.

Dear Mom and Dad: Were you the one who said: "No birth control for my child because it means I'm giving her (or him) permission to have sex?"

Did you tell your daughter, "If you get pregnant you will not be permitted to live in this house?"

Did you say to your son, "She's what??? Well, it's not your responsibility. She should have known to take care of herself?" "Are you sure it's yours?" Or "You really messed up. Don't ask us for help now?"

Have you ever said to your teenager: "I love you," or "If you need me I'll be there for you," or, "Let's talk about the problem and see if we can come up with the best possible solution?"

One more question. Was the newborn baby that was found dead, wrapped in newspaper and thrown in the garbage can, your grandchild?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently I accompanied my husband to his high school reunion. He ran into a single female friend at the registration desk and invited her to sit at our table.

"Melissa" and my husband chatted endlessly about their school days. I felt completely out of it. When he asked me if I minded if he danced with her I said, "Of course not." Later, they danced three more sets, leaving me at the table alone. I didn't know anyone and felt out of place.

We haven't been married long, Ann. His excessive attentiveness to Melissa upset me. When I told him so, he said, "She was alone and that is why I was so nice to her." I told him that while he was being "nice to her," I was alone and had a perfectly awful time.

Before the night was over my husband gave Melissa his business card, in case she couldn't remember how his last name was spelled. I interpreted this as an invitation for her to call him at his office and was furious. In all fairness I should tell you that I wasn't present when he gave her the card. He told me about it.

Please, Ann, correct me if I am wrong. Was my husband out of line or was I?—Reunions Can Be Trouble

DEAR TROUBLE: The fact that your husband told you about the business card suggests that no secret plans are in the hatching.

It was, however, thoughtless of those two to leave you alone while they danced four sets. Since it's water over the dam, you'd be wise to develop amnesia about that unfortunate event and never mention it again.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Four months ago my cousin lost her husband after a six-year illness. Her mother and sisters are shocked that she is dating again.

How long should a widow wait before going out with a man?—Brookline Query

DEAR BROOK: It used to be a year, but that "rule" went out with the buggy whip. The widow should decide for herself, based on how she feels. For some, six weeks is enough and for others it may take six years.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a No. 10, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Victorian plan goes modern

Double door entry directs you from porch to formal foyer entry with open rail stair up and convenient traffic pattern to all areas through central hall.

There is an enormous great room to the left, complete with fireplace, ash dump and gas jet. The full formal dining room is offset to the rear and there also is a breakfast area for informal meals. This area incorporates a bay with entrance to sun deck, washer and dryer area and access to double side-entry garage. The central kitchen includes excellent cabinet space, a shallow pantry and desk.

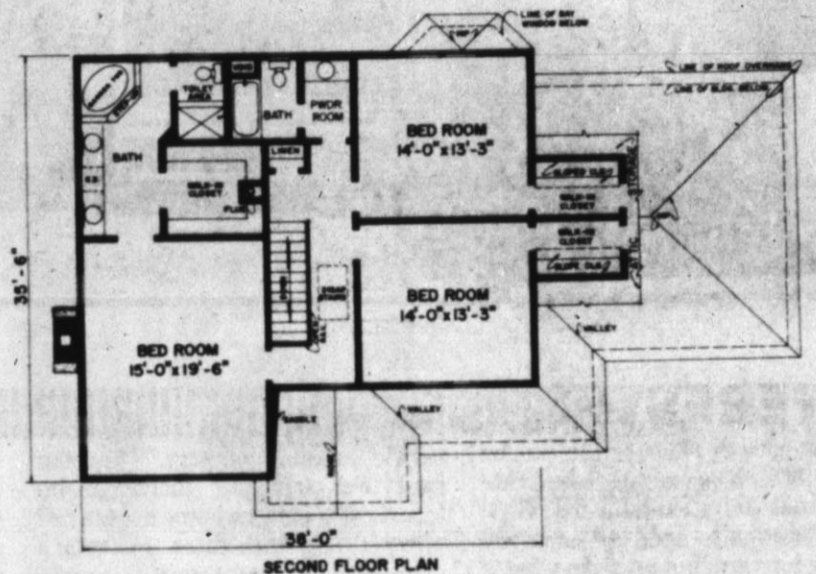

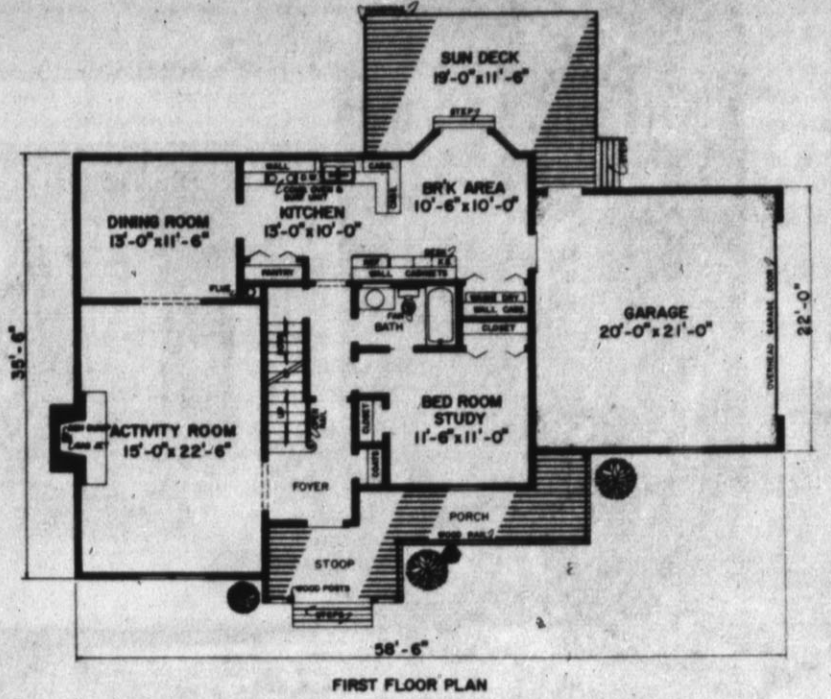

There is a bedroom or convalescent room on the main floor and a central full tub bath with vanity.

The second floor features a master bedroom suite, sized for the ultimate convenience. The bath boasts twin lavatory vanity, corner marble tub, commode area and separate shower stall along with an enormous walk-in closet. A central compartmented bath services the remaining two bedrooms and each is provided with a walk-in closet. Notice the disappearing stair in the upper central hall for access to attic storage.

Front wall changes to accomplish B front pictured are shown on actual working drawings.

The plan is number 2449B. It includes a total of 2,484 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet all FHA and VA requirements. For further information write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga 30345.

Interest rise could be problem

In spite of relatively low unemployment and strengthening consumer spending, rising interest rates will bring a distinct lull to the nation's economic growth, indicating the potential for an end to the expansion, according to analysts for the National Association of Realtors.

"There are real reasons for worry," said Dr. John A. Tuccillo, NAR's chief economist. In the association's September/October 1987 Outlook, Tuccillo listed four troublesome aspects of late 1987: an expected sluggish growth rate for the gross national product, which will depend heavily on consumer spending; a stubbornly negative trade balance; worries about increasing inflation; and the potential for a protracted auto workers strike, which would cut back production.

A broad mix of consumer spending, business fixed investments, net exports and inventory investments have pulled up the gross national product (the total value of the nation's goods and services) during the first and second quarter of this year. But with few "hot spots" in the economy, the NAR is predicting a 2.5

THE KITCHEN

Small kitchens can be revamped

Are you fed up with your small kitchen? Is it overcrowded when more than one person is in it? The kitchen of your dreams is probably a large one with more than enough storage area (if that's possible), acres of counter space, and built-in appliances.

"But don't be in such a hurry to start ripping out walls to achieve your dream kitchen," advises Don O'Connor, a custom designer. "Small kitchens aren't that difficult to improve. A competent designer can work wonders with a small room, often at a modest cost."

"One of the major things a good designer can do," says O'Connor, "is to utilize every available inch of wall space." A three-foot wide wall that might not be important in a large kitchen can be a decisive factor in a small one. Tall cabinets in such an area will hold more than eight feet of standard wall cabinetry.

"And you don't have to sacrifice special features in a small kitchen," says O'Connor. Instead of a full-size built-in lazy Susan, you can get a smaller one that provides the same convenience. One of the most popular storage cabinets is the pull-out pantry. If you have a small kitchen, why not consider either a wall or base version in place of the full-height one?

"Eliminate the soffit in order to accommodate taller wall cabinets." Just think of all the added space you can get by using 42-inch high cabinets instead of the standard 30-inch ones. In addition, the higher cabinets will open up the kitchen visually.

"By ignoring the tendency to center the sink under a window, a designer can provide a longer work area." It's more important to have uninterrupted counter space and more efficient cabinetry than to follow the conventional centering procedure. Here's where disregarding tradition can mean long term satisfaction for you.

"Many built-in appliances require additional space for installation. In a small kitchen," O'Connor says, "they may not be worth the sacrifice of this space." One refrigerator, Sub-Zero, builds in without needing extra width, but it's crucial to find out this sort of information before asking for a built-in appliance.

By incorporating these techniques into your kitchen, you'll make it more efficient and perhaps seem a bit more spacious. However, if you find you still need more space, you may have to "steal" it from an adjoining room.

THE HELGA PICTURES

BOSTON (AP) — "Andrew Wyeth: The Helga Pictures" will open at the Museum of Fine Arts Oct. 28.

The exhibition will present a suite of drawings and watercolors executed by the popular American artist during the period from 1971-85. The subject is a single model, Wyeth's neighbor Helga Testorf in Chadds Ford, Pa.

The exhibition will remain on view through Jan. 3, 1988.

percent growth rate for the second half of 1987. "The overall growth rate of the real (inflation-adjusted) GNP is just enough to keep the economy moving forward, but far from what is needed for a surge in economic expansion," Tuccillo said.

He said the $15 billion trade deficit reported for June—higher than most analysts had expected—had thwarted the recent stabilization of the value of the dollar against foreign currency. The dollar's continued decline could thus revive inflation fears among foreign investors in the U.S. capital markets.

The proliferation of foreign investors in the domestic capital market has heavily influenced interest rate movements of dollar-denominated investments, Tuccillo explained. The dollar's drop in value against foreign currency is cutting the value of U.S. bonds and mortgage-backed securities held by foreign investors.

"In exchange for holding an asset that could decline in value, foreign investors are demanding and getting higher real interest rates on their investments. These already high real interest rates pose a serious threat to the housing industry," Tuccillo said. For instance, mortgage interest rates paid by home buyers are affected by the rates of return demanded by investors who supply mortgage capital by buying mortgage-backed securities.

He noted that sales of homes, particularly new ones, had just begun to recover from the mortgage rate jump of last spring. "The April-May spike was set off by fears that the U.S. trade balance was deteriorating and that inflation would accelerate as a result. These fears proved groundless and markets calmed down. But now, we operate in a world where the dollar sneezes and the mortgage market catches cold," Tuccillo said.

The NAR currently is predicting an inflation rate of about 3.9 percent for the second half of 1987. Tuccillo called the Federal Reserve Board's recent decision to raise the discount rate it charges banks and other financial institutions from 5.5 percent to 6.0 percent an attempt by Chairman Alan Greenspan to "establish his inflation-fighter credentials" by letting interest rates rise. Shortly after the discount rate from 8.25 percent to 8.75 percent and the Veterans Administration raised the interest rate charged for fixed-rate, 30-year loans it guarantees from 10.0 percent to 10.5 percent.

"We suffered a crippling interest rate spike in April and we are on the verge of one now," Tuccillo said. "Mortgage interest rates have been averaging well over 10.0 percent since late spring, and no longer show signs of declining below the 10.0 percent barrier in the foreseeable future... We have changed our forecast to reflect this stubborn pattern." The higher discount rate could cause the interest rate for fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages to exceed 11.0 percent by the end of the year, he said.

According to NAR analysts, the potential for higher real interest rates could require "significant adjustments" to the real estate predictions included in the association's latest economic outlook:

-Existing single-family homes likely will be sold at a pace of 3.559 million units during the third quarter of 1987 and likely will total 3.565 million units for the year.

-New single-family homes are expected to be sold at a pace of 665,000 during the third quarter of 1987 and are expected to total 685,000 for the year.

-The median existing single-family home price likely will be $86,500 for the third quarter, and likely will be $85,400 for all of 1987. The year's appreciation rate for existing single-family homes is expected to be about 6.4 percent.

During study club brunch

Noted artist presents program

Artist Pamela Kirk of Wimberly, Texas presented a special program when members of L'Allegra Study Club met Thursday for a brunch in the home of Mary Kay McQuigg as their opening meeting of the 1987-88 year.

Vice president Cathy Guseman presided over the business meeting in the absence of President Jody Skiles. New members, Mary McWhorter and Deanne Trotter, were welcomed. Also, new yearbooks were distributed and other business matters discussed.

Following the business session, club members viewed the speaker's artwork as she gave a synopsis of her and her husband's educational and career backgrounds. Her husband, Curtis Scott, is also a noted artist.

Pointing out several pieces of her art work, which concentrates on hand-crafted pottery and jewelry. Ms. Lueb discussed the different methods she utilizes to create her pottery pieces which are inspired by classical shapes and colors. She further emphasized that the metals and bead colors used in her intricate jewelry were inspired by the King Tut display which she saw in New York. Her love of folk tradition is reflected in both.

Ms. Kirk went on to say that while her husband is a multi-media artist, his main concentration is painting. Focusing on some of his work, she added that they were inspired by memories and impressions.

Anniversary reception plans made

Members of the Hereford Study Club gathered in the home of Mary Stoy Thursday for their first meeting of the 1987-88 club year. Dinner was served by the yearbook committee; Stoy, Elizabeth Cesar, Addie Cunningham and Gracie Shaw.

During the business session, minutes of the previous meeting were read and committee reports were heard. Also, members approved a contribution to the United Way Fund.

Plans for the club's 50th anniversary were presented by the anniversary committee: Willie Braddy, Gladys Setliff and Helen Spinks. The occasion will be celebrated with a tea to be held at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center from 3-5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 18. All former members of the club are cordially invited to attend.

Present at the meeting were Barbara Allen, Braddy, Morgan Cain, Cesar, Cunningham, Mildred Garrison, Betty Gilbert, Nedra Robinson, Setliff, Spinks, Stoy, Bessie Stoy, Inez Witherspoon and Joan Yarbro.

U.S. Constitution Honored

Bluebonnet School held an assembly Thursday in order to honor the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution. Youngsters in top photo discussed the historical document before approximately 400 peers while students dressed in sports-related garb led a cheer for the Constitution in bottom photo. Keynote speaker for the event was Mayor Wes Fisher.

Lyles chosen as artist of the month

Local artist Jean Lyles has been chosen as the Artist for September by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Her artwork will be on display there throughout this month.

Well known as a painter, teacher, and businesswoman, Lyles has been honored in many "one man" shows and has won ribbons and purchase awards in many juried competitions. She and her husband, Euman, own and run the Texas Gallery in Hereford.

Among her endeavors she's most enthusiastic about oils, acrylics and watercolors. Old houses, windmills, and flowers are often seen in her work.

She studied and gained her fun-Montreal passed from French to British control in 1760.

damental painting skills at West Texas State University. Her son, Charles, has also earned his own distinguished reputation as a painter.

The two of them have collaborated in writing and publishing, to date, 22 instruction books, which are distributed across the U.S. and Canada. She has also published dozens of pattern packets for both oils and acrylics.

Lyles also maintains regular weekly classes at Texas Gallery. Each summer she hosts a week-long seminar, this year attracting 50 students from five states. Such classes include oil, watercolor and folk art study, as well as fabric painting, gold leaf technique and glass painting.

SCHOLAR'S STUDIO

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Chinese Scholar's Studio: Artistic Life in the Late Ming Period, An Exhibition from the Shanghai Museum" will be seen at the Asia Society Oct. 15 through Jan. 3, 1988.

This show of Ming-period art, the result of a cultural collaboration between the People's Republic of China and the United States, comprises 130 objects from the Shanghai museum, including many which have never been exhibited or published outside China.

In addition to the paintings, calligraphies, bronzes and jades on view, a specially constructed and furnished room setting, approximating a Ming-era scholar-artist's studio, will illustrate the materials, methods and training of Ming-dynasty artists.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON

Special thanks to the uniformed volunteers group for the very special tiffany pin. Thanks, too, to the Field Service Manager, Paula Martin, and to Bill Jean, volunteer consultant for our territory for helping with the volunteer's meeting. The uniformed volunteers made plans for the Christmas toys program and several other projects.

Those attending the volunteer's meeting were Ruth King, Lottie Weitenberger, Alice Gilleland, Mildred Brown, Bert Brown, Dale Henson, Audine Dettman, Margaret Gomez, Leta Eubanks, Olivia Brown and guests Paula Martin and Bill Jean.

A CPR class will be held Tuesday, Sept. 29, 7:30 to 10 p.m. at the Red Cross office. The class will finish Thursday, Oct. 1, 7:30 to 10 p.m. at the Red Cross office. Call the Red Cross office for information about the class 364-3761.

The National American Red Cross has developed a back injury prevention course. The South Plains Regional chapter in Lubbock is implementing this program and is making instructor classes available to chapters and their volunteers in the Panhandle. The course is aimed at the problem of back injuries. The class will be held for those wishing to become instructors who have a health or physical fitness background, or are a physician, R.N., EMT, athletic trainer, or health educator. Call the Red Cross office here for further information about this class.

Special thanks to Lloyd Ames for getting a local story together about United Way Agencies. The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

Military men to be honored

U.S. veterans will be remembered with a giant parade that gets underway at 10:30 a.m., starting at 10th Street and heading south on Main Street to Wilson Street.

The event, sponsored jointly by the American Legion Post 671 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1789, is billed as Veterans Appreciation Day.

Entries for the parade are now sought and individuals or organizations should contact Bill Chowins, 273-3853, or Herman Jones, 274-5464.

Veterans and their families are invited to a 12:30 p.m. dinner at the American Legion Post near the Aluminum Dome.

CHILDHOOD OBESITY AND TELEVISION

Parents, do you know where your children are? If they're not in school, they're probably watching television. Many kids spend the same amount of time at both activities. If they're watching TV, there's a good chance they're snacking on something, maybe even something they saw in a commercial. Or they may ask you to buy the food they see on commercials.

According to the National Health Survey, childhood obesity is linked to the amount of time children spend watching TV. The time kids spend watching TV reduces playtime, when they could be doing something active, instead of sitting and watching. The things youngsters tend to eat while watching TV doesn't help either. They tend to eat what they see advertised, which isn't always the most nutritious food. Kids also see skinny models advertising these products and may think that if they eat the product, they will stay as skinny as the model.

Using these findings and taking in to account factors such as family size, socio-economic status, race, age, marital status, and parental obesity, the survey showed a 2 percent weight increase with each hour of TV watched in 12 to 17-year-olds. It also found that TV watching wasn't the best predictor of obesity for kids in this age group. Kids between the ages of 12 and 17 are more likely to be obese if they were obese between the ages of 6 and 11.

There are ways to prevent childhood obesity. Get your children interested in other things besides television. Encourage youngsters to use their imaginations and increase their physical activity. When they do watch TV, help your children cut down on how much they snack, and offer them nutritious food, not always the things they see advertised.
