

County judge's race in runoff spotlight

DEMPSEY ALEXANDER

A hotly-contested county judge's race, a Precinct 4 county commission struggle and several statewide races will draw Democratic and Republican voters back to the polls Saturday in the party runoff elections.

Success could well depend on which candidate gets most of his supporters back to the polls for the runoff. A total of 4,146 county voters turned out in the primary elections, but political observers are not expecting near that many for the runoffs. Deaf Smith County has an estimated 8,800 registered voters and just 47 percent of them showed up for the primaries.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Democrats will vote in 12 polling places, the same as in the primary, and the voting precinct is listed on the voter registration cards. All Republican voting precincts will vote at La Plata School.

Both local races are on the Democratic ballot—the countywide judge's race and the Precinct 4 commissioner's race. The justice of peace office will be on the ballot, but incumbent O.K. Neal resigned after the primary election. That leaves Johnnie Turrentine as a shoo-in for the post.

Tom Simons, 42, longtime KPAN Radio newsman, and Dempsey Alexander, 58, retired school administrator are vying for the county judge's seat which is being vacated by Glen Nelson. For the winner, it is tantamount to election since there is no GOP foe in November.

The other local race is for Precinct 4, only, where incumbent James Voyles is challenged by Johnny Latham. Voyles drew 328 votes to Latham's 322 in the primary, while two other candidates had a total of 204. The winner still has to face Republican nominee Ronnie Hathaway in the November general election.

In the JP primary race, challenger Turrentine led Neal by 66 votes in a three-candidate field. Turrentine had 1,409; Neal 1,343 and Ruben Gutierrez had 876. Neal resigned too late for his name to be omitted from the runoff ballots. Turrentine has been appointed to fill out Neal's term this year.

Other Demo runoff races on the ballot include those for Railroad Commissioner, Justice of the Supreme Court, Places 1, 2 and 4; and Judge, Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 1. On the Republican ballot are Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, Commissioner of General Land Office and Railroad Commissioner.

The Democratic polling places are: (1) Bull Barn, (2) Commissioner's courtroom, (3) Zinser residence, (4) Simms Community Center, (5) Hereford Community Center, (6) Ford School, (7) Dawn Community Building, (8) Walcott

Saudi arms sale approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan narrowly saved his plan to sell weapons to Saudi Arabia from a Senate defeat by dropping Stinger missiles from the package and then appealing to Congress to not embarrass him before the world.

Some senators said those two factors were the major reasons why the Senate barely failed Thursday to override Reagan's veto of a congressional resolution blocking the sale. The override vote was 66-34, one short of the two-thirds required for a successful veto override. The vote means Reagan can go ahead with the reduced package of $265 million worth of Sidewinder air-to-air missiles and Harpoon anti-ship missiles. The weapons will be delivered starting in 1989.

The Saudis originally wanted $1.1 billion worth of planes, tanks and missiles, but the request was scaled back to a package of missiles when congressional opposition arose.

Last month, the package was reduced again, with the Stinger anti-aircraft weapons dropped from the deal after both the Republican-controlled Senate and Democratic-run House voted by overwhelming margins to bar the sale. Congress has never blocked a major arms sale.

Reagan vetoed the disapproval resolution and then lobbied hard to sustain his veto, capping his effort with a breakfast meeting at the White House hours before the vote Thursday. About 75 senators attended. Needing to win in only one chamber, he concentrated on the Senate. The House will not vote now.

Eight senators switched from opposing Reagan last month to support. Reagan also picked up the votes of four senators who were absent last month. On the override motion, 42 Democrats and 24 Republicans supported it, while 29 Republicans and five Democrats stood with Reagan.

One of the eight switches was Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., who

State officials expecting only 10 percent turnout

AUSTIN (AP) — Only about 10 percent of Texas voters will go to the polls Saturday to settle Democratic and Republican runoff races, state election officials say.

Secretary of State Myra McDaniel issued a forecast Thursday saying 6 percent, or 477,000 voters, will cast ballots in the Democratic runoffs, while 4 percent, or 318,000, will vote in the GOP races.

"Election records indicate that a statewide Republican runoff has not occurred in recent history," Ms. McDaniel noted.

With neither party holding a gubernatorial runoff, most other campaigns were low-profile and marked by what party officials said was voter confusion over some candidates' names.

David Davidson, a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, said he hadn't seen his opponent, Aaron Bullock. Davidson, 47, is a non-denominational minister from Gonzales who is establishing himself as a management consultant in Austin.

Bullock, 41, is a Houston-area lawyer whose only prior political experience was as a precinct chairman.

Much of the attention since the May 3 primary focused on the Democratic runoffs for the Supreme Court.

In the Place 1 race, veteran state Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas faces San Antonio appeals court judge Shirley Butts. Incumbent Justice Robert Campbell faces 3rd Court of Appeals Judge Jim Brady for the

Rotary names exchange students

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Wade Gentry, 17, will be spending an unusual senior year as a foreign Rotary exchange student. He may not be foreign to Hereford people but attending a high school in Grevenbroich, Germany will make him a foreigner to them.

WADE GENTRY

Gentry, sponsored by the Hereford Rotary Club, will be leaving the latter part of July for Germany.

Another high school student, Pete Bowles will also be a Rotary Exchange student as soon as information is available on his host family and departure time.

He has had trouble getting a response from the host family due to the mail strike in Finland.

Bowles just completed his sophomore year at Hereford High School and will spend his junior year there in Finland.

Bowles' requirements to get credit in Finland include a special course in Finnish which is a considerably harder language to learn than German.

Studying chemistry, English, the German language and trigonometry, Gentry might be required to take a second foreign language and said it possibly may be French.

The 17-year-old will be living with three different families for four months at a time to complete his senior year as an exchange student.

Gentry will be required to speak in German language at his school, at German Rotary Clubs, and German events conducted by the Grevenbroich Chamber of Commerce.

"I will live their lifestyle," explained Gentry, "I'll eat their foods and I'll be required to prepare an American meal for the host families."

Joachim Hahn, an engineer, his wife and three sons, ages 11, 14, and 17, the grandparents, and a Rodesian Ridgeback Lion hunting dog will host Gentry's first visit of four months.

Gentry plans to find out a lot of history from the German point of view while visiting with the grandfather. He is also looking forward to a visit with the oldest son who has just returned from a year in Australia. The son was also a student on the Rotary Scholarship Exchange.

Gentry is presently self-employed mowing lawns, working at Croford Automotive, and doing other odd jobs to earn approximately $600 for his round-trip fare alone. He added that he "wanted a little spending money for 'toys,'" and grinned, apparently excited about the German consumer market.

Mike Carr of the Hereford Chamber of Commerce is preparing an information packet about Hereford and Deaf Smith County to be distributed by the boys to host families and Rotary Clubs in Germany and Finland.

The Hereford Rotary Club will also sponsor two other foreign exchange students from overseas. One of the students, a young man, is from West Germany and the other student will be a girl from Finland.

The Rotary Club is in the process of finding host families upon their arrival in the fall.

Anti-dump group meets in Amarillo

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

AMARILLO - A group consisting of over 100 concerned residents heard evidence Thursday night in a second floor room of the Amarillo Public Library, that the state of Texas has just begun its fight against a nuclear waste facility being located in Deaf Smith County.

Steve Frishman, director of the governor's office on nuclear waste projects, told the group that the state has recently filed three lawsuits against the Department of Energy, pointing out that the process the DOE used in selecting the sites, is totally against the nuclear waste policy act approved by congress in 1980.

"If the DOE would have followed the nuclear waste policy act they would have found that the Deaf Smith site is totally inappropriate for a waste site. We are not saying that there is no place in Texas that is appropriate, but they only asked about this site," said Frishman. "The methodology used by the DOE does not represent a sound technological program, nor does it comply with the intent of the act."

"The best insurance we have against any damage being done is if congress puts a halt to the program now, before any more testing be done. Congress should instruct the DOE to start over and screen the entire nation, not a political screen, but a technological screen. The test should not exclude an entire portion of the nation because of political reasons," Frishman added, pointing out that the three sites chosen for site characterization are all located in the western portion of the United States.

Angela Lamb of the Texas Department of Agriculture said that even a rumor of a repository located in Deaf Smith County could ruin farmers livelihood. "Food producers rely heavily on reputation, if that reputation is hurt, the farmers entire business is lost," said Lamb.

Lamb also stated that farmers

Contrary to reports published last week, the Democratic Party has not written off Congressional Districts 13 and 19 to the Republicans, State Demo Chairman Bob Slagle stated this week.

A Washington bureau reporter for the Lubbock Avalanche Journal quoted a source within the Democratic Party as saying that Rep. Larry Combest of Lubbock and Rep. Beau Boulter of Amarillo were too difficult to unseat. The article added that the Demos were targeting three other districts.

"Democratic challengers Gerald McCathern in the 19th District and Doug Seal in the 13th are looking to the American Agriculture Movement for support and advice because the Democratic Party is putting its resources elsewhere," stated the article.

Storms still roam state

By The Associated Press

Heavy thunderstorms that developed in North Central Texas early today washed out one bridge and prompted flooding advisories in an area reeling from rains that have struck during the past 12 days.

The National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning today for residents of Ellis and Navarro counties. And a flood watch area is bounded on the north by line from Clarksville through Quitman, Kaufman Granbury and Eastland and on the south by a line from Carthage through Rusk, Waco and Goldwithe.

The watch included the cities of Tyler, Longview, Corsicana, Waco, Comanche and Brownwood.

The Navarro County Sheriff's Department said that a bridge on State Highway 55 between Blooming Grove and Italy had just washed out.

Weather service radar indicated very heavy thunderstorms in northern Navarro and southern Ellis counties overnight. Movement of the storms was northeast around 10 mph.

Thunderstorms developed along a line from Comanche to east of Corsicana, with movement east northeast.

Statewide temperatures were mostly in the 70s over the eastern two-thirds of the state, with the 60s over the Panhandle and far west Texas. Extremes ranged from 79 at Laredo to 62 at Marfa.

Alien arrests total almost 500

FORT HOOD, Texas (AP) — Almost 500 illegal aliens have been taken into custody and sent on their way back to Mexico in raids this week by federal agents.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service arrested 65 undocumented workers in Killeen and at Fort Hood Thursday, INS spokesman Mario Ortiz said.

INS officials acknowledged many of the aliens may return to the area later, but the raids may discourage employers from hiring undocumented workers.

"We're trying to send a message — hire people from your own country, your own citizens," said Gary Renick, assistant INS district director for investigations in San Antonio.

On Thursday, 16 illegal aliens at Fort Hood were arrested between 7 and 11 a.m., fewer than immigration officials had expected.

Renick said many of the aliens may have stayed away because of publicity surrounding the earlier arrests. "They obviously knew we were in the area."

Apparently some Fort Hood contractors had been tipped off that the INS was coming to the military installation, he said.

Ortiz also attributed the poor Fort Hood roundup to the weather, saying recent rains have kept many construction workers off the job.

Later Thursday, agents arrested 49 more undocumented workers at small construction sites in Killeen. Many of the raids started with tips from the public, Ortiz said.

The Central Texas sweep was initiated by a request from Fort Hood military police, said Fort Hood spokesman Maj. George Creach.

PUC to review Bell case

AUSTIN (AP) — Fifteen months after Southwestern Bell asked for a rate hike, the Public Utility Commission is ready to start making decisions in the case today.

The commission had planned to rule on the $277 million increase request in February, but postponed a decision after it learned that PUC staff memos had fallen into the hands of Southwestern Bell officials.

So the commission threw out an examiner's recommendation for a $14.4 million hike and spent 15 weeks reading the 17,267-page record in the case, which was filed in March 1985.

The telephone company agreed to the delay. Royce Caldwell, Southwestern Bell vice president for revenues and public affairs in Texas, said the additional review would remove any "cloud" from the deliberations.

The $277 million rate hike sought by Southwestern Bell includes residential service increases of $1.50 to $2 a month. The initial request sought $323 million. The company later pared the request to $277 million.

PUC spokesman Bo Byers said the commission today would begin making issue-by-issue decisions on the complex case. The meeting might continue Saturday, he said.

After the decisions are made, it will take several days to calculate the rate hike, according to Byers. The total amount of the hike should be known by the end of next week.

On June 16, the commissioners will decide which rates should go up to cover any approved hike. The final vote in the overall case is set for June 23.

Unemployment benefits running out

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Oil workers who lost their jobs after the mid-January slump soon may lose another source of support when unemployment benefits reach the 26-week cutoff point, officials say.

Unemployment benefits have a 26-week limit. Those out of work since the slump first hit will be running out of benefits in late June or mid-July, said Ron Norris, Texas Employment Commission area manager in Odessa.

In April, the most recent month for which figures are available, 3,145 people filed new and continuing claims, but some may not have qualified, Norris said.

The number of people filing continued or beginning claims has steadily increased — from 924 in December, to 962 in January, 1,325 in February, 2,114 in March and 3,145 in April, Norris said.

Because the number of people attempting to collect jobless benefits is increasing, the number running out of benefits eventually will rise correspondingly, Norris said.

But he said most people don't stay on unemployment assistance 26 weeks. On the average, workers are on unemployment about eight weeks before they find work, move, exhaust their benefits or simply stop filing for them, he said.

After benefits run out, workers' alternatives are limited. "We would assume that they have checked into food stamps and other forms of assistance, which in Texas are pretty limited," he said. "After unemployment benefits run out, it gets pretty slim."

ELECTIONS

Place 2 nomination

The Place 3 runoff pits former state Rep. Jay Gibson of Odessa against Justice Raul Gonzalez, the first Mexican-American to serve on the Supreme Court, who hopes to become the first Hispanic elected statewide.

Democratic voters will choose a nominee for Place 1 on the Court of Criminal Appeals. Denton lawyer Rusty Duncan faces Dallas lawyer George Martinez, who also could become the first Hispanic elected statewide.

Republicans, too, have a candidate who might claim that honor. In the GOP runoff to challenge Democratic Attorney General Jim Mattox, San Antonio district judge Roy Barrera Jr. faces former Williamson County district attorney Ed Walsh.

Walsh, who switched from the Democratic Party to the GOP last year, has run on a strong law-and-order platform, although the attorney general deals mostly with civil cases.

Barrera, a judge since being appointed by former GOP Gov. Bill Clements in 1980, also emphasized a law-and-order theme.

In the Republican land commissioner's race, M.D. Anderson Jr., of Kemp, a dance hall operator, faces Grady T. Yarborough, a Tyler high school teacher. Anderson's name is the same as the Houston cancer hospital, while Yarborough's is similar to that of former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough.

Name confusion also marked the Democratic runoff for Railroad Commission, where Sen. John Sharp of Victoria faces Dallas oil and gas consultant P.S. "Sam" Ervin. Sharp said much of Ervin's primary vote came because of his name, which is similar to the late U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin, D-North Carolina, who chaired the televised Senate Watergate hearings.

Ervin's real name was Percival Strother Ervin, and Democratic Party officials ruled that he couldn't appear on the runoff ballot under the nickname Sam Ervin. The candidate went to court and changed his name to P.S. "Sam" Ervin, but ballots already were being printed, party officials said.

Republicans will decide a Railroad Commission race, with John Thomas Henderson of Austin, a perennial candidate, running against state Rep. Milton Fox of Houston, a petroleum engineer.

A runoff also is being held in the sprawling 21st Congressional District, where two Republicans seek the nomination to the U.S. House seat being vacated by Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt. Loeffler gave up the seat to make his unsuccessful bid for governor.

The contest pits former San Antonio city councilman Van Archer against Lamar Smith, a San Antonio lawyer and rancher.

Sesquicentennial event now heads for Guthrie

Train finds camping on ranch real thing

By ORVILLE HANCOCK

Fort Worth Star-Telegram
GUTHRIE, Texas (AP) — Just off the Caprock country of the Panhandle, some travelers in covered wagons sat looking at the purple sunset behind the red clay hills on the Pitchfork Ranch.

Others on the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon Train scurried about, feeding and watering their horse after a hard trip over ranch roads through the hills on the 165,000-acre spread between Dickens and Guthrie.

The 10-mile, bone-jarring ride — part of it through drizzling rain — made a quiet camp away from the public a welcome respite for the wagon train folk. But there was harness mending to do, groceries to buy, feed to be restocked and a broken axle on the blacksmith's wagon to be fixed.

"This is what it is all about," one weary man said. "This is more like what our pioneering ancestors endured. We've seen an awful lot of blacktop."

The covered wagon train is making a 3,236-mile circle around Texas to celebrate the state's 150th birthday. It left Sulphur Springs on Jan. 2 and will end in Fort Worth on July 3. Most of the trip has been on paved roads, most of the campsites in or near towns.

Not here. The Pitchfork Ranch was one of the open-country camps on this section of the route late last week.

Early on this day, some teams were unable to climb a long hill and outriders had to tie their ropes to the stalled wagons to help pull them up the incline.

Families got out of the wagons and the outriders dismounted around them. All put their shoulders to the wheel and pushed. A wagon tongue broke and volunteers gathered to repair it.

Five rattlesnakes were killed along the trail. Near the campsite, the last obstacle of the day was the muddy bottom of the creek. All wagons made it across without incident. Lining the nearly dry stream were salt cedar, oaks, cottonwood, sycamore, hackberry, black bush and mesquite.

Wild turkeys were flushed along rolling hillsides and now and then a deer bounded into the brush. Coyotes slinked away from the crunching caravan but voiced their loneliness during the night.

Campfires smoldered early and sleep seemed all too short when the horses started neighing and the mules began braying at about 5 a.m. It was time to start stirring again.

Music drifted with the cooking smoke across the camp on the early morning stillness. The wagons were circled in a valley, surrounded by hills silhouetted by low clouds and a foggy haze.

Horses tied to wagons munched on sudan and coastal hay at first light. Early risers brought out lawn chairs from their campers to sit under awnings and watch the hillside scenes.

A camp dog made the rounds for breakfast scraps, stopping now and then to watch a horse wallow in the dust or sniff at a mule's heel. The small mongrel rubbed past the boots of men standing around in groups, talking about nothing in particular.

As the day brightened, new arrivals to join the wagon train started pulling into camp. The chroniclers and historians on the train inquired about the ranch's history.

Tacturn Pitchfork Ranch cowhands pieced together bits of information on the place's past, but a history book in a nearby museum gave a better account.

The Pitchfork Ranch, a 165,000-acre spread working 4,000 head of Hereford cattle, is managed by Jim Humphreys. It was put together by Eugene Williams and Dan Gardner, who operated it as a partnership for several years before it was incorporated in 1883. The Pitchfork brand was registered by Norman Savage in 1843, while Texas was still a republic.

This ranch is one of the few that still operates a chuckwagon pulled by mules from camp to camp for working cowhands during the fall and spring roundup and branding. There are 300 miles of fences and 100 windmills.

On the second day, the wagon train pulled out with 67 wagons and 256 horseback riders. It headed into Guthrie, on its way to another open camp on the historic Four Sixes ranch.

Donation Presented

Casey Daniel, president of Hereford Key Club, presents Betty Drake, president of Hereford Camp Fire Council, with a $300 donation, while Gary Phipps, one of the directors of the council, looks on. Phipps explained that the donation will help to defray camp expenses of approximately 75 campers who will be attending Camp Ma Kui Wa located near Taos, N.M. According to Drake, the campers will be leaving June 15 for a weeks stay and registrations are still being taken.

Twelve killed during April

during April

Capt. Bob Russell, District Supervisor of the Amarillo Highway Patrol District comprising of 31 counties said, "For the month of April, our troopers investigated seven fatal accidents, 70 personal injury accidents, and 79 property damage accidents. There were 12 persons killed and 105 persons injured in these accidents."

Sgt. Billy Don Scott of Hereford stated, "In Deaf Smith County, our troopers investigated two fatal accident(s), one personal injury accident(s), and two property damage accident (s) in the month of April."

from throughout the Panhandle could be affected by the recommendation for site characterization. "If buyers feel that there is an even slight chance of contamination, they will take their business some place else."

According to Lamb, the DOE's original assessment of the area did not include Holly Sugar, Arrowhead Mills, Frito Lay and over 1 million head of cattle, industries that provide hundreds of jobs for area residents. "The DOE said that a repository will supply the area with more jobs, but they do not take into consideration the fact that it may also eliminate even more jobs."

SAUDI

said he voted with Reagan because the Stingers were taken out of the package.

"I felt that was enough of a concession to make it a close call on my vote," Armstrong said. "It was a fairly close decision for me, but unless there is a clear-cut reason to vote against the president on a foreign policy issue, I tend to give him the benefit of the doubt. The prestige of the presidency is important."

Similar sentiments were voiced by Sens. J. James Exon, D-Neb., and Chic Hecht, R-Nev., two other switches who noted that Reagan's image abroad was on the line.

"That makes it a considerably different situation" than last month, Exon said.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Reagan's chief lieutenant in the fight, said later, "We knew going in we had 33 votes. We didn't know about the 34th."

That 34th vote was provided by Armstrong, Lugar said. "We had great hopes for him but we didn't know until the last minute."

But Lugar also said the Reagan camp had "a couple" of votes in reserve that could have been used had they been needed. He declined to name the senators.

In a written statement after the vote, Reagan said the Senate decision "confirms America's commitment to a security relationship that has served both the United States and Saudi Arabia well over the last 40 years."

The president argued that the sale was necessary to show U.S. support for moderate Arab states. Opponents argued that the Saudis have blocked U.S. efforts to broker an Arab-Israeli peace pact and have bankrolled Mideast terrorism.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., leader of the sale opponents, claimed victory after the vote because "the Saudis got far less weapons than they wanted," but admitted, "It wasn't a total victory."

BULL

Slagle countered by saying that the Republicans' lack of concern and sensitivity to the needs of the Texas High Plains and Panhandle "encourages me to believe the people of these districts are ready to elect hard-working farmers, McCathern and Seal, to represent them in Congress."

Targeting by the party means access to more money, more technical assistance and more contact with election professionals whose work is getting candidates into public office. The party is not turning its back on McCathern and Seal. They were in Washington recently at a two-day seminar hosted by the Democrats where they were coached in television and campaign techniques.

They did not, however, get a fundraiser hosted by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Jim Wright, as was the case with Greg Laughlin, who is trying to unseat Rep. Mac Sweeney.

In the article, McCathern was quoted: "I don't think the 19th district is for sale. The voters will look at the issues, not who has got the most money."

It's hard to be different when the majority is against you, but I feel it has made me stronger to be able to make my statement in my own way and risk ridicule. Please print this, I think it's worth it.—A MPLS, PUNK

DEAR MPLS PUNK: I respect your right to protest the evils in our society, but it seems to me that a purple Mohawk, a safety pin through the nose and a three-pound crucifix hanging from one ear are not going to solve the world's problems.

I suggest community service. There are dozens of things you can do. Volunteer to clean up the parks and the city's streets. Teach functional illiterates how to read and write. Drive elderly people to their doctor's appointments, spend time in homes for the elderly or in children's hospitals. Go work in a rehab center and help the handicapped. Read to the blind. In other words, instead of looking like a freak, do something constructive.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been living with the man I love for five years. I have a 9-year-old son from a previous marriage. We were happy until four months ago.

The problem is that his 23-year-old son (I'll call him Hal) came to live with us after his mother threw him out. I was able to put up with him for a while, but things have gotten out of hand. Hal's father found him a job and made him go to work after he lolled around the house for three weeks. During that time Hal could lie in bed all day and watch TV. When I came home from work he would wait for me to fix his dinner (after I cleaned his mess from lunch). This kid has an enormous appetite. Since he moved in our grocery bill has almost doubled. He makes a list of things he wants from the store and criticizes my cooking. Hal hits my son because he is jealous of the boy's relationship with his father.

He is 6 feet tall, weighs 220 pounds, and is very immature for his age. I have no privacy because he has taken over my house.

Last week I blew up and told my boyfriend everything I felt about his son. Now he is not talking to me. I am part owner of this house and do not want to leave because of this intruder. Please give me some advice.—UNHAPPY AND

DESPERATE

DEAR U. AND D.: You say you do not want to leave because of "this intruder". If the house is part yours you should kick the lummo out and tell your boyfriend he can go with him unless he takes control of the situation and insists that his son shape up.

A 23-year-old is no "kid." I suggest joint counseling if your boyfriend wants to save the relationship. If he refuses you are better off without him.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage - What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Andorra

Tucked into the Pyrenees mountains between France and Spain, Andorra has enjoyed effective sovereignty since 1278. Officially a principality, it has two nominal co-princes to whom it pays annual tribute — the president of France and the Spanish bishop of Urgel. Actual government work is conducted by a 24-member council-general.

New officers elected during legion meeting

American Legion Auxiliary members met Tuesday evening with Pet Ott, second vice-president, presiding.

New officers for the year were elected. Beverly Jesko will serve as president; Clara Trowbridge, first vice-president; Ott, second vice-president; Troyce Hanna, secretary-treasurer; Lela Kemerer, chaplain; Ruth King, sergeant-at-arms, and Virginia Adams, reporter.

Several committee reports were heard. Hospital chairman, Beverly Jesko, and Lela Kemerer and June Koelzer went to the V.A. Medical Center for recreation and a party for the patients this past month.

Also, community service chairman Ott and George and Lela Kemerer and Ethel Logan went to King's Manor Retirement Home for a recreational party. It was announced that assistance is needed for these parties.

Delegates to the department convention in July were elected. They included Jesko, Ott, Hanna, Kemerer and Clara Trowbridge. Alternates are Ruth King, Koelzer, Brenda Dawson, Adams and Betty Jo Carlson.

Trowbridge reported on the contributions received from the recent auxiliary poppy day. Eleven workers helped collect money which is used for veterans' benefits, a third of which is sent to department headquarters.

Letters were read from the Gold Star Mothers thanking the auxiliary for the gifts and cards sent to them on Mother's Day.

After adjournment, the Legion joined the group for refreshments.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

(AMARILLO) - A series of 130 district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses has been scheduled in the United States during the summer of 1986.

Stanley Weigle, spokesman for the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society in New York, said 1,250,000 delegates are anticipated to attend the "Divine Peace" conventions scheduled in 65 different cities.

Weigle said the four-day conventions will begin June 12-15 and continue through August 14-17. The program will be presented in nine languages with a record 11 Spanish-language meetings this year.

In Amarillo, Frank Barr, convention spokesman, said the convention scheduled for the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum will be held June 12-15 with an anticipated attendance of 6000.

"Divine education promotes peace," Barr said. "The program will stress that a better understanding of the principles contained in the Bible is vital if genuine peace is to be achieved."

"Jehovah's Witnesses believe we are living in the last days," Barr continued. "The dramatic events we have witnessed in the world during this generation illustrate that God's kingdom by Christ will soon exercise its authority over all nations of the earth. It alone will bring a permanent peace," he said.

Barr said whole families attend the annual district meetings and that counsel presented during 19 hours of lectures, discussions, and dramas will highlight the need to reach for spiritual and not material gain in modern life.

JEROME HINES SETS MET OPERA RECORD

NEW YORK (AP) - Just prior to the third act of "Don Carlo" at the Metropolitan Opera on April 26, Jerome Hines received a proclamation from Gov. Thomas H. Kean of New Jersey, where the bass lives.

Hines was celebrating the 40th anniversary of his Met debut, singing the role of the Grand Inquisitor in "Don Carlo." Forty years ago he made his Met debut Nov. 21, 1946, as the Sergeant in "Boris Godunov."

Seven years later he sang the title role for the first time. It became one of his most noted portrayals.

By April 26, Hines had sung 594 performances of 45 roles at the Met. He sang Ramfis in "Aida" 61 times, Sarastro in "The Magic Flute" 45 times, Colline in "La Boheme" 36 times, Mephistopheles in "Faust" and Gurnemanz in "Parsifal" 30 times, and Boris 20 times.

Celebration evaluated by executive board members

The recent Mid-Plains Pioneer Days Celebration was evaluated when members of the association board met Monday evening at K-Bob's Steak House.

Inez Witherspoon, president, called the meeting to order and minutes of the celebration were read by Sona Schulz, secretary. She announced that there were 371 people who registered for the annual event.

Each committee gave reports and plans were made to have more publicity and pictures of next year's celebration.

A committee was appointed to revise and up-date the by-laws and the next Pioneer Celebration was set for May 23, 1987 at the Bull Barn.

Officers for this year are Witherspoon, president; Jerry Jackson, vice-president; and Schulz, secretary-treasurer.

DR. GOTT Varied forms of medication

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT - My father, 73, has been taking Cardilate for 15 years. For five years, he also has taken a medication to dilate his blood vessels. Is it possible for these medicines to be taken in a way that bypasses the stomach?

DEAR READER - Cardilate belongs to the class of nitrate drugs used to treat angina; it is not reported to cause chronic stomach problems. A blood-vessel dilating drug may cause upset stomach, however, so you might want to check with your father's doctor about this.

Nitrates are available as dermal patches, chewable tablets and in sublingual forms, as well as in the standard tablet form.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I tried to obtain estrogen-containing cream to combat facial hair. The pharmacist in my local drugstore had never heard of it. Is it sold over-the-counter or by prescription?

DEAR READER - Neither. Your pharmacist is correct. To my knowledge, no reputable drug company manufactures estrogen cream to combat facial hair. Estrogen cream for vaginal use is available by prescription and should be administered under medical supervision. Beware of unscrupulous con men who advertise hormone creams to do this and that. The products are fraudulent.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I eat ice all the time, four to five trays a day. I'm 42, 135 pounds, female, don't smoke and am happily married. I picked up the ice habit about two years ago. Will this cause any harm to my esophagus or stomach? Does it indicate the presence of a more serious problem, like iron deficiency or cancer?

DEAR READER - Some people enjoy crunching on an ice cube now and then, but five trays a day seems to be excessive. Your ice eating may be taking on the form of a compulsion. Pica is a condition characterized by a compulsive craving to eat certain non-food items, such as laundry starch, clay, dirt, chalk or ice. Pica may coexist with a dietary deficiency, so I urge you to see your doctor for a complete examination - and make sure you mention the ice habit.

In the South

'They ain't no fiction'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The South is a place and a state of mind, in the view of six Southern writers, but what makes a writer Southern is something else again.

"There is a mindset that the South is a dark and brooding land," said Ferol Sams, "a land of miasmas and magnolias and perverted sexual drives that most of us had never heard of until we went to World War II and met some Yankees."

Sams, a rural Georgia general practitioner who is best known for "Run With The Horsemen," joined Pat Conroy, Josephine Humphreys, Mary Hood, Richard Ford and Alan Cheuse on a panel at the American Booksellers Association convention last week.

"In the South, they ain't no fiction," Sams joked.

"The main problem is not making up stories to tell. Your main problem is to tone down the stories you want to tell so that an unsuspecting reader will believe you, then think that you are a great writer of fiction."

He described himself as "not a writer of literature but only a loyal recorder."

To prove it, he mentioned a few stories he has not had time to type up. These included one patient who complained of his head, saying it "just didn't seem necessary any more," another who asked for a prescription for Valium because her son had started smoking marijuana, still another — aged 82 — who fell down on a paved road and was struck by the kindness of strangers who "drove around me," and another whose wife had burned up in his house but even more tragically was wearing the family money belt.

"Every time I get up in the morning, I find 100 tales that I'd like to tell. So you see, there's really not much need in the South for fiction," he said.

Cheuse — a native of New Jersey who "mowed lawns and paid taxes in Tennessee for six years" to earn his credentials as a Southern writer — speculated that Southern writers could be "the least provincial of all American writers."

"We're all writing about worlds that are lost to us, things that have happened before and that we are translating into fiction," he said, drawing attention to the fabled "oral tradition" of the South as a possible explanation for the proliferation of Southern storytellers.

Josephine Humphreys, who wrote "Dreams of Sleep," said, "The job of writers is the task of experience, the opposite of grave diggers, digging up what normal people bury."

"We spend a lot of energy burying important things — things like pain and memory and love."

"In the South we succeed in burying more than most people. If there are more Southern writers, it is because we need them more."

And there is a related reason, she said.

"We need our story tellers and I think we realize that and understand why. We appreciate them more in the South."

Ford, whose most popular novel "The Sportswriter" is set in New Jersey, said, "You don't sit down to write a Southern novel."

He described the title of Southern writer as a stigma that artists try to avoid.

"It is a category, and categories art would like to throw away."

Struggling to make his point, he explained that a category is a shelter "that eventually shelters us from excellence."

"It's always more crowded inside the tent than outside of it," he said.

Every writer struggles to be "as responsible as you can be to your own talent."

"Literature is an illusion of life in our minds. Place, to me, exists only in the heart of my work."

Hood, acknowledged by other panelists as the most Southern of the panelists for her book of short stories "How Far She Went," disclaimed the title.

She said she has not even read Faulkner, although she has bought his complete works and promised the bibliophiles that she would pore over every word, for nothing else than not to be embarrassed any more when readers ask her, "Have you read ...?"

"One of my favorite Southern writers is (Anton) Chekhov. Another is (the Irish writer) Frank O'Connor," she said, explaining that the essence of Southern writing is "a sense of tradition in the land and the continuity of experience, telling the same stories over many generations."

She, too, had some Southern stories: those of Mama Red and the possum that drowned in the Brunswick stew, the blue refrigerator and the pig that was raised on store-bought bread — both of which are in her fiction and all of which she insists are true and demonstrable to anyone who would venture to her neck of the woods.

"It's all quite more wonderful than you could hope for," she said, not

On Permian Basin families

Oil industry woes take toll

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Dorenda Nuncio waited patiently in a packed Department of Human Services office in Odessa to find out if she, her husband and two daughters qualified for food stamps.

"If it weren't for my family helping me out, we probably would have starved to death by now," she said.

Her husband was laid off in March from his $300-a-week job as a roustabout for an oil field supply company. In late April, she applied for food stamps, then waited another two weeks before getting an appointment for an interview, Mrs. Nuncio, 25, said.

With two small children, she and her husband have discussed leaving the West Texas oil fields for greener pastures. But they sought work elsewhere when the oil patch economy took a downturn about three years ago.

"It didn't do us no good," Mrs. Nuncio said. "It just got us farther in debt. We've got too much invested. We can't really pick up and leave."

Area officials say the lines for food stamp assistance began growing last winter, when the price of oil plummeted. As trading on spot markets pushed oil from about $32 a barrel in December to less than $10 this spring, the wait for a simple interview for government assistance stretched from about a week to more than a month, officials say.

Although local law enforcement agencies cannot definitely peg a rise in the crime rate to the poor economy, they do speculate that unemployment has fed some of the statistics, the Odessa American reported in a nine-part series of stories on the area's oil woes.

In Odessa, for example, reported robberies almost doubled and thefts were up about 33 percent in early 1986 over the same period in 1985, officials said.

On the same day Mrs. Nuncio came to the Department of Human Services, Ray Calzadiaz also stood in line to apply for help.

Calzadiaz, a 38-year-old father of four, said his construction job had been cut back to two days a week. He is considering leaving the area.

"If this continues, I'm going to have to," Calzadiaz said.

Joan Morris, director of income assistance at the Human Services office, said that until recently a person could expect an interview about a week after applying.

"Right at this point, we're running at something over 30 days," Morris said.

The problem is oil prices, workers say. Oil was trading on spot markets at about $32 a barrel in December 1985. But as Saudi Arabia opened its spigots, the price of oil began to slide from its Jan. 15 level of $27 a barrel. On April 1, May oil futures traded on the New York Mercantile Exchange hit a low of $9.75.

Last week, the posted price of West Texas Intermediate Crude for delivery at Cushing, Okla., ranged from $13.10 to $15, while the spot price was pegged at $14.85.

Ms. Morris of the Human Services office said that as early as last year she began seeing the "long-term employed" coming through the doors.

In the wake of falling oil prices, she said, her department's 30 workers have been stretched to the limit. The state, meanwhile, has told her to expect autumn budget cuts, she said.

"I don't see how we could run with any fewer people that we have now."

TRAVEL BY THE NUMBERS

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Believe it or not, there's a method to the way roads are numbered in the United States and motorists can get a rough idea of their location by noting the highway numbers on a map.

The numbers indicate both the direction in which a highway runs and its location, according to Rand McNally's Road Atlas.

U.S. highways with even numbers run east and west, with lowest numbers in the North. For instance, U.S. 2 parallels the Canadian border, while U.S. 84 runs across the south and southwest. Odd-numbered U.S. highways run north and south with the lowest numbers in the East.

quite convincing her listeners that she was not a Southern writer.

"My fiction is definitely local to place and time and people. Truth is much more wonderful than anything you could invent, but no matter where I lived I would be writing about the people where I was."

Pat Conroy, author of "The Great Santini" and other books, said it was his "mother's deep-seated inferiority about herself" that inspired any Southernness in himself.

"She told me to, 'Remember who you are and where you came from and never be ashamed of any of us.'"

Even so, he said he never had a sense of himself as a Southern writer until he went to New York and encountered his agent.

The New Yorker said he had prepared for Conroy by buying a rocking chair and a store of bourbon for his protegee's use at moments of depression in "the big city."

As for being a Southern writer, he said, "I think I am one, but I couldn't tell you why. Mary Hood is one, and I couldn't tell you why either."

Named after the Outaouac (or Outaouais) Indian tribe, Ottawa was founded on the Ontario side of the Ottawa River, bordering with Quebec. The city was incorporated under its present name in 1855. It became the capital of the Canadian Confederation in 1867.

Considering what happened Thursday night

NBA needed boxing promoters

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is a composite of several Associated Press reports on the brawl that took place in Game 5 of the NBA championship series Thursday night.

HOUSTON (AP) — When Dr. Naismith scrambled up that rickety ladder at Springfield College with a peach basket tucked under his arm, the idea was to create a non-contact sport.

Nice try, doc. It did not quite succeed.

There was, for example, Thursday night's fifth game of the NBA finals between the Boston Celtics and Houston Rockets. They could have used boxing promoters Bob Arum and Don King to stage the brawl.

When Houston's Ralph Sampson, 7-foot-4 and 230 pounds' worth of heavyweight, was finished fighting Celtics' guards Jerry Sichting and Dennis Johnson and reserve center Bill Walton, he was thrown out of the game — and the Rockets were thrust into it.

Strangely, Sampson's ejection might have been the best thing that could have happened to Houston. Even though he was playing inspired basketball, the Rockets were not exactly dominating the game until he started throwing haymakers.

After he left, Houston played on a wave of adrenaline that turned the game around and made it a 111-96 Rockets' rout, sending the series back to Boston with the Celtics leading 3-2.

Had Houston Coach Bill Fitch seized the emotion of the moment with a stirring sideline speech to spur his team to victory?

"The speech was, 'There goes 25 points walking to the dressing room and everyone has to pick it up,'" Fitch said. "For the first time we turned up the meter and got the running game going. We played like there was no tomorrow."

And now there is. The Celtics learned what Denver and Los Angeles already know — fight with one of the Houston Rockets' Twin Towers and the other one is likely to deliver a knockout punch.

Enraged by the ejection of Sampson, the Rockets rallied around 7-0 Akeem Olujuwon and roared to their 111-96 victory, keeping the Rockets alive in the NBA title series.

Houston's victory returned the best-of-7 series to Boston on Sunday afternoon. Game 7 would also be in Boston, on Wednesday night.

The Celtics easily won the first two games of the series in Boston Garden, where they have lost only once this season under their 15 championship flags that hang from the ceiling.

Houston, which lost in six games to Boston in the 1981 title series, also is marked by history — no team has ever come back from a 3-1 deficit in the championship series.

Thursday's victory marked the third time in the 1986 NBA playoffs that the Rockets have gathered around one Tower when the other was ejected from a game.

Sampson was sent to the dressing room with 9:40 to go in the second quarter following a bench-clearing fight that started between Sampson and Celtics guard Jerry Sichting.

With Sampson gone, the Rockets banded together as they have in the past.

Sampson was ejected one other time this season for fighting, in a regular season game in Denver for punching Bill Hanzlik.

Akeem Olujuwon, 7-0, the other half of the Rockets' twin towers, has been ejected twice in the playoffs, and Houston went on to win both games, to clinch the second round of the playoffs against Denver and to clinch the Western Conference title against Los Angeles.

"That was the turning point, with Sampson out. The Rockets really stepped up to another level," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "When Sampson went out we lost our intensity and the Rockets gained more intensity and took it to us."

Sampson's 12 points had helped Houston to a 34-33 lead, but when he left, the Rockets ran wild, rolling up a 58-47 halftime lead, and Boston never got closer.

With Sampson in the dressing room and reserve Jim Petersen in his place on the court, the Rockets outscored the Celtics 20-8 and never trailed again as a deafening capacity crowd of 16,016 roared its approval over Houston's last home game.

"We were not going to lose in front of our fans," said guard Robert Reid, who had 17 assists and 13 points. "I sat right here in 80-81 and heard that team celebrate the championship. I couldn't let that happen here again."

The halftime score was 58-47 and the Rockets stretched that to 86-65 entering the fourth quarter, as Houston outscored Boston in the third quarter for the first time in the series.

With Sampson gone, Olujuwon picked up the slack. He had 10 points before the fight, 22 afterward. He also finished with 14 rebounds and eight blocked shots, which tied Walton's nine-year-old championship series record.

"Maybe the team just got closer together," Olujuwon said. "When Ralph got kicked out we just had to win. We couldn't end our season here."

"We came out to show them that we could beat them good and not just by one point."

Petersen, and reserve guards Mitchell Wiggins and Allen Leavell also rose to the occasion.

"Pete (Petersen) rose up and played the game he's been dreaming about since he was a little kid," Fitch said. "Wiggins played some great defense and Leavell helped out too."

Petersen had six points and 12 rebounds as Houston outbounded the Celtics 56-37, Wiggins had 16 points and seven rebounds and Leavell had seven points and four assists.

Sampson, so often criticized for being too timid, went at it first with Sichting, 15 inches shorter at 6-1. There was a preliminary exchange of elbows followed by some big-league boxing.

"I don't even know why he hit me," Sichting said. "What could I do? I threw a couple of elbows and then he was punching everybody."

Johnson, at 6-4 a foot shorter than Sampson, came out of the scrap with a cut at the corner of his left eye.

"It was just an incident that happened," said Johnson. "Ralph hit me with a right. I finished the game OK. I got hit and I bled. I won't need major surgery."

The surgery was performed instead by the Rockets, now faced with playing the rest of the game without one of their most important weapons. Poor Houston. Surely, the roof was about to fall in on the Rockets.

Guess again. "Maybe we relaxed," Boston's Kevin McHale decided. "Maybe they got fired up. It's tough to say."

Shouldn't it have been easier for the Celtics, not having to cope with Sampson? Maybe, McHale thought, that was precisely the problem.

"It wasn't easier at all," he said. "They got more aggressive. They played much better after that. I don't know why we didn't react in an aggressive manner."

"I definitely don't think they are better without Ralph. I think, psychologically, we went down after the fight and they seemed to turn it up."

"I was trying to hold someone back," Sichting said, who described the punch from Sampson as "a little tap around the temple."

"I had no idea. I barely turned around."

Asked if he started it, Sichting replied: "I'm not that stupid, you know. He's got a long reach."

"We jotted a little before the foul. I think I said something about the elbow. There was a lot of yelling out there. Everybody was pushing and tugging."

Walton declined to comment on the fight.

"We just didn't do anything well tonight," he said.

Sampson said he regretted the incident. "I was very emotional during the game and I will continue to be emotional the rest of the series, but there won't be any more fights," he said in a statement after the game.

"I thought that a foul should have been called. I had to protect myself."

Then he made a promise.

"I was very emotional during the game and I will continue to be emotional for the rest of the series. But there won't be any more fights."

Dr. Naismith would be thrilled.

YMCA TAC track meet is Saturday

A TAC Junior Olympics track meet has been scheduled Saturday by the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

The meet, which will be held at Whiteface Stadium, starts at 9 a.m.

Tracksters who are registered with the West Texas chapter of The Athletic Congress this year may participate in the meet.

The meet will have six divisions for boys and girls. Those divisions are bantam, for entrants born 1976 and later; midget, for entrants born in 1974 and 1975; youth, for entrants born in 1972 and 1973; intermediate, for entrants born in 1970 and 1971; young men and young women, for entrants born in 1968 and 1969; and an open division, for entrants born in 1967 and before.

Weldon Knabe of the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA said the late entry fee is $3 per event. He adds that late entries will be accepted only to fill preliminary heats.

The longtime director of the FBI, J. Edgar Hoover, liked horse racing and attended races frequently. He even had a horse named for him.

Gehnnal Persson of Sweden won an equestrian gold medal in the 1948 Olympics but was disqualified because he was only a non-commissioned officer instead of holding a commission.

For more information on the track meet, call Knabe at the YMCA, 364-6990.

Yale head recommended as N.L. president

NEW YORK (AP) — A. Bartlett Giamatti, Yale University's retiring president, will be recommended by a three-member search committee for the presidency of the National League, according to a published report Friday.

Giamatti, who was considered for the baseball commissioner's post when Peter Ueberroth was selected two years ago, will be presented to the National League owners at a Monday meeting in New York, the New York Times reported in its Friday edition.

The Times, quoting an owner who preferred not to be named, said the recommendation of Giamatti, 46, will be unanimously ratified.

He would replace retiring National League head Chub Feeney, who is stepping down after 17 years on the job.

LET'S DO IT AGAIN

It has been five months since I filed for the office of County Judge. I have visited with many of you in your homes, during social gatherings, and at business meetings. I've tried to seek your feelings about the needs and concerns of our county. I will devote my time between now and January in preparation for the duties of the office.

It is a candidate's responsibility to conduct a campaign that is worthy of respect. It has been my aim to run my campaign with integrity, dignity, and honesty. I feel no need to retract or clarify any statement I have made. I have not mentioned my opponent or his course of conduct in any of my campaign correspondence. As long as it is fair and honest, it is his privilege to manage his own campaign.

My fifteen years with Hereford Independent School district ends with my retirement. I will leave the system with many fond memories. The only way HISD has been mentioned in my campaign is to indicate my employment and the accomplishments connected with the fulfillment of my job responsibilities. I have not involved the problems of HISD in my campaign, as has been stated by my opponent's campaign committee.

Your support, confidence, and votes on May 3 were deeply appreciated. I would consider it an honor to serve as your County Judge. With you help we can do it again on June 7.

Sincerely,
 ++++++ Dempsey Alexander ++++++

Trainer tries for 5th straight Belmont win

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't have as good a chance this year," says Woody Stephens, who will try to win a fifth straight Belmont Stakes Saturday with Danzig Connection.

But the Hall of Fame trainer is an optimist and he also says, "I don't really feel completely out of this race with this horse."

Danzig Connection is expected to be one of about 10 3-year-olds entered for the $350,000-added race over 1 1/2 miles at Belmont Park.

Another is Ferdinand, winner of the 1 1/4-mile Kentucky Derby, who finished second in the 1 3/16-mile Preakness.

Among those missing from the 118th running of the Belmont, to be televised live by ABC at 5:38 p.m. EDT, is Snow Chief, who finished 11th as the favorite in the Kentucky Derby, then won the Preakness and 1 1/2-mile Jersey Derby. Snow Chief's owners had said he would start in the Belmont but the colt suffered some minor injuries in the Jersey Derby on Memorial Day and they decided to pass on the Belmont.

Stephens will try to stretch his record Belmont victory streak — two other trainers have won three straight — with a colt not nearly as battle-tested as his other winners.

Stephens, 72, won the race for the first time with Conquistador Cielo in 1982 and followed with victories by Caveat, Kentucky Derby winner Swale and Creme Fraiche.

Bill Shoemaker, Ferdinand's rider, will be seeking a sixth Belmont victory, while the colt's 73-year-old trainer, Charlie Whittingham, will be seeking his first with just his second starter. He finished ninth with Porterhouse in 1984.

"He's got to everything he needs to be a great horse," Whittingham said of the son of Nijinsky II, who is owned by Mrs. Howard B. Keck.

Should Ferdinand win, it would tie Shoemaker with James McLaughlin and Eddie Arcaro for the most winning rides in the Belmont. His five victories have been on Gallant Man, 1957; Sword Dancer, 1959; Jaipur, 1962; and Avatar, 1975.

Jockey Pat Day thinks Rampage can win Saturday's Belmont Stakes, but trainer Gary Thomas wishes the 1 1/2-mile race was a week later.

Rampage hasn't raced since finishing fourth in the 1 1/4-mile Kentucky Derby May 3 at Churchill Downs and the reason for the five-week layoff, Thomas said, was the rough trip the colt had in Derby.

Rampage was topped at least three times, Thomas said.

"When Shoemaker (riding winner Ferdinand) went through (a hole) Rampage had to stop. When they left the quarter pole, they were head to head. He got through and we didn't."

"He doing OK," Thomas said of his colt, who won the Arkansas Derby. "He had a hard trip, but he's coming back."

"I blew him out this morning a half mile and he's looking good, feeling good, and I think he's going to win on Saturday," Day said.

But, said Thomas, "If I had another week to get another race in him, everybody would feel better. That layoff is what it all boils down to."

However, Rampage was made the early 9-2 third choice in the field of 10 3-year-olds behind Ferdinand, 9-5, and Mogambo, 4-1.

The co-fourth early pick at 6-1 are Danzig Connection and Johns Treasure. Others entered Thursday were Personal Flag, Fobby Forbes, Parade Marshal, Bordeaux Bob and Imperious Spirit.

The field will be scale-weighted at 126 pounds and if 10 start, the purse will be $564,400, with $338,640 to the winner.

In 1890, the Preakness Stakes and Belmont Stakes were run on the same day at Morris Park in New York. They now form two-thirds of Racing's Triple Crown.

Houston's division lead is down to one game

Honeycutt, Dodgers nip Astros 1-0

By The Associated Press

While it's a little early in the season for any series to be considered crucial, the Los Angeles Dodgers believe their four-game set with the Houston Astros at Dodger Stadium is pretty important.

"They're just the team we want to be playing right now," second baseman Steve Sax of the Dodgers said after his team nipped the Astros 1-0 behind Rick Honeycutt's two-hit pitching over the first eight innings Thursday night. "It was a big win for Rick and a big shot in the arm for us."

Sax tripled to lead off the sixth inning and scored the game's only run when Ken Landreaux followed with a sacrifice fly. Honeycutt and reliever Ken Howell made the one-run lead stand up.

"Honeycutt pitched some game," Manager Tom Lasorda of the Dodgers said. "What makes it important is the fact that we're playing the league leaders. A sure way to gain ground is to beat the league leaders. You beat the Phillies, you might not gain any ground."

Honeycutt, 3-3, walked one and struck out a season-high seven before being replaced by Howell at the start of the ninth in the first game between the Dodgers and Astros this season.

Honeycutt, a 31-year-old left-hander, allowed only an infield single by Kevin Bass with one out if the fifth inning and a ground single up the middle by Phil Garner leading off the eighth.

Howell retired the Astros without a hit in the ninth to pick up his third save.

The victory moved the defending National League West champion Dodgers within 5 1/2 games of the eighth.

Men's slowpitch softball tourney set in Pampa

A men's slowpitch softball open tournament has been scheduled in Pampa on June 13-15.

The Pampa Umpire Association Annual Tournament has an entry deadline of June 10.

The entry fee is $100 per team. First, second, third and fourth place teams will receive team trophies, and individual trophies will also be awarded to all players on those top four teams.

To enter the tournament, or for more information, call Debbie at 665-9306, or call Holmes Sports and Gifts Center at 665-2631.

Harrison Dillard, a great hurdler of the late 1940s, failed to qualify for his specialty in the 1948 Olympics but then went out and won the gold medal in the 100-meter dash.

division-leading Astros. Houston leads second-place San Francisco by one game. Los Angeles is in fifth place.

Honeycutt, who doesn't have a complete game this year and had only one last season, admitted that taking him out of the game after eight innings was the right thing to do.

"I think I'm past the ego part of trying to complete games," he said. "I was losing it real quick. It's tough, a two-hitter, you really hate to come out. It's as good as I've thrown this year. You want to stay in. But the eighth inning took a lot out of me."

"We lost four games (in the standings to Houston) on the last road trip. We're playing the leaders for four games, we can make that ground up right away."

The losing pitcher was Houston starter Manny Hernandez, who blanked the Dodgers on one hit until the sixth in his major-league debut. The first hit off Hernandez was a line single to left by Sax with two outs in the third.

Hernandez went 5 2-3 innings, allowing only three hits while walking three and striking out one. Relievers Aurelio Lopez and Charlie Kerfeld held Los Angeles hitless the rest of the way for a combined three-hitter.

"He did a great job," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said of Hernandez. "I'm very pleased with it, and he should be pleased with it, too."

"Honeycutt pitched very well, too. We didn't have too many chances to score."

Said Hernandez, a 25-year-old right-hander: "This is the most exciting day of my life. This is the day I've been working for for seven years. I tried to keep the ball down and go right after the hitter."

Hernandez said the ball Sax hit for a triple was "a little up."

Honeycutt retired the first 13 Houston batters before Bass beat out a grounder to deep short with one out in the fifth for an infield single.

The Astros missed an opportunity to score in the sixth despite not getting a hit. Mark Bailey led off with a grounder that third baseman Bill Madlock misplayed for a two-base error, but Honeycutt pitched out of trouble.

First, he got Dickie Thon to ground to short. Then, he struck out Hernandez. Finally, after walking Bill Doran intentionally for his only free

After Garner singled in the eighth, Honeycutt struck out Bailey and retired Thon and pinch-hitter Jim Pankovits on forceouts.

In other National League games, Atlanta defeated San Diego 4-2, New York beat Pittsburgh 7-0, Philadelphia downed Montreal 7-3, and St. Louis held off Chicago 4-3. Braves 4, Padres 2

The Atlanta Braves' first triple play in eight years resulted in four outs. San Diego's Tony Gwynn, Kevin McReynolds and Leon Roberts were thrown out on the bases, and teammate Steve Garvey was thrown out of the game for arguing.

"It's unbelievable. I didn't say anything," said Garvey, ejected from a game for the first time in his 16-year major-league career. "I didn't realize I had been thrown out of the game until I was tossing the ball around the infield."

The Braves, with their triple play and a strong effort by pitcher Zane Smith, went on to beat San Diego 4-2 Thursday night.

With visiting Atlanta leading 2-1, Roberts led off the third inning with a single and took third on a single by Gwynn. McReynolds followed with a grounder back to Smith, who threw to second baseman Glenn Hubbard for a forceout.

Hubbard relayed to first baseman Bob Horner for the second out while Roberts broke for the plate. Horner threw to catcher Ozzie Virgil and Roberts slid under the tag but missed the plate. Virgil then tagged out Roberts.

Roberts, Padres' Manager Steve Boros and Garvey, who was the on-deck batter, began arguing with home plate umpire Charlie Williams. Moments later, Williams ejected Garvey.

"I had a good angle. I saw Bip (Roberts) dodge the catcher and his hand go across home plate so I thought it was a run," Garvey said. "Bip argued and I came out and showed him (Williams) where the hand went."

"I just showed him where the hand went across the plate. In the realm of what it takes to get thrown out of a game, I'm quite sure this is a bare minimum," Garvey said.

Williams said he tossed out Garvey because of the way he protested the call.

"He comes up and starts arguing about the play," Williams said. "I told him to get out of there. Then he starts drawing his pictures and showing me up. I couldn't care less about Garvey and what he feels and what he does. I've got to run a ballgame."

The triple play was the first for Atlanta since July 15, 1978, against Philadelphia. The Padres had not hit into a triple play since Aug. 23, 1982, versus Pittsburgh.

Mets 7, Pirates 0
Bob Ojeda pitched a five-hitter for his first NL shutout and George Foster kept up his home-run streak with a two-run blast that led visiting New York over Pittsburgh.

New York won for the ninth time in 10 games.

Phillies 7, Expos 3
Darren Daulton hit a three-run homer that capped a five-run first inning and Glenn Wilson added a two-run shot, powering Philadelphia over Montreal.

The Phillies won for the ninth time in 10 games and sent the host Expos to their fifth straight loss.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 3
Bob Forsch tied Hall of Famer Dizzy Dean for fifth place on the all-time St. Louis victory list, helped by a two-run triple by Andy Van Slyke and Ozzie Smith's two-run double, as the Cardinals topped visiting Chicago.

Forsch, 5-3, won his 134th career game — including an 18-8 lifetime mark against the Cubs.

The Cubs, who had not scored in 22 2-3 consecutive innings, got three runs in the eighth.

Obey traffic laws for safer vacation time

Major V.J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety said, "Texans are lucky, because they have better highways on which to travel to more enjoyable places. The Department would like to emphasize that vacation driving during the summer months is far more enjoyable when traffic laws are obeyed." Major Cawthon added, "It is much easier and less expensive to drive within the law."

When it is hot and the highways are crowded, fatigue and lack of alertness is a serious problem on long vacation trips. The motorist should stop every two hours to rest and never drive more than 10 hours a day.

During the hot summer months alcohol consumption will be on the increase. Traffic increases with added tourism and our highways can become more dangerous.

This year could be the greatest tourist season Texas has ever had; for the state visitor industry, you could call it a billion-dollar summer!

The Major reminds the Texas motorist to be alert, buckle up, and drive within the 55 mph speed limit. Plan your trip so that you have plenty of time to reach your destination and return in comfort and safety.

Texas calendar full

It's celebration time in Texas...And there's lost to celebrate.

Pleasure-loving Texans and visitors to the state will have no trouble locating celebrations this summer. All year long, Texans are having fairs, festivals, fiestas and fun events to mark the state's 150th birthday.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has just issued the Calendar of Texas Events for the months of June, July and August listing more than 800 opportunities to join in the myriad ways that Texans celebrate everything from classical music to cow-calling.

The Calendar is a guide to races, too: armadillos, crawfish, horses, drag boats, balloons, mules, river rafts, turtles, plus Olympics and fun runs for people. There'll be chicken-flying and frog-jumping contests, as well as a national soaring competition.

Many Texans obviously prefer their competitions of the gastronomic persuasion. Cookoffs will feature such Texas products as peaches, pinto beans, ice cream, barbecue, pasta, hamburgers, black-eyed peas, fajitas, oatmeal, and of course, chili. One chili competition (in Buffalo Gap) will feature "the world's largest" bowl of red.

There'll be Sesquicentennial pageants, arts shows and rodeos; vintage cars and vegetables, and dozens of other events proving it's celebration time in Texas!

Free individual copies of the slate of Texas summertime happenings are available at any Texas Tourist Bureau, or by writing Calendar of Texas Events, P.O. Box 5064, Austin 78763.

All thieves don't wear masks or carry guns. Driving with underinflated tires can rob you of about half a gallon of gas for every tank full. Not changing your air filter regularly will cut down efficiency by two gallons of gas for every tank full. Dirty spark plugs, a car badly out of tune, and a maladjusted carburetor can all combine to rob you of your hard earned dollars.

WORLD'S MOST SENSATIONAL JAILBREAK!

About that time King Herod moved against some of the believers, and killed the apostle James (John's brother). When Herod saw how much this pleased the Jewish leaders, he arrested Peter during the Passover celebration and imprisoned him, placing him under the guard of 16 soldiers. Herod's intention was to deliver Peter to the Jews for execution after the Passover. But earnest prayer was going up to God from the Church for his safety all the time he was in prison.

The night before he was to be executed, he was asleep, double-chained between two soldiers with others standing guard before the prison gate, when suddenly there was a light in the cell and an angel of the Lord stood beside Peter! The angel slapped him on the side to awaken him and said, "Quick! Get up!" And the chains fell off his wrists! Then the angel told him, "Get dressed and put on your shoes." And he did. "Now put on your coat and follow me!" the angel ordered.

So Peter left the cell, following the angel. But all the time he thought it was a dream or vision, and didn't believe it was really happening. They passed the first and second cell blocks and came to the iron gate to the street, and this opened to them of its own accord! So they passed through and walked along together for a block, and then the angel left him.

Peter finally realized what had happened! "It's really true!" he said to himself. "The Lord has sent His angel and saved me from Herod and from what the Jews were hoping to do to me!" Acts 12:1-11

Reward fund set-up to assist officers

HAWKINS, Texas - They were young, vibrant and intelligent.

Today, they are dead and the residents of the East Texas community of Hawkins are searching for answers.

In an effort to assist in finding the answers to who killed Suzanne Harrison, 18, Bryan Boone and Gena Lee Turner, both 20, the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council announced today it was joining forces with Wood County Crime Stoppers and the Upshur County Sheriff's Department.

A reward fund of up to $5,000 has been established by the Governor's Office and Wood County Crime Stoppers for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the offender or offenders in the tragic case.

In addition, the citizens of Hawkins have announced a $5,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the offenders.

Wood County law enforcement authorities said the three young people had gone to nearby Lake Hawkins to enjoy a warm Sunday. When they failed to return Sunday evening, Boone's brother grew concerned and went to search for them. He found their abandoned pickup at the lake. The truck was unlocked, the windows were open and inside the vehicle were the women's purses, undisturbed on the floorboard.

Miss Harrison's partially clad body was discovered at Barnwell Mountain Park, located about five miles north of Gilmer in neighboring Upshur County. The park is located on a steep, heavily wooded hill on State Road 155. The victim's body was about five or six feet down the side of the hill.

Detectives say Miss Harrison had been sexually assaulted, beaten with a blunt object and strangled.

The bodies of Boone and Miss Turner were discovered Saturday in a ditch beside FM 1649, north of Ore City and about a mile west of Barnwell Mountain Park. They both had been shot.

Investigator James Turner of the Wood County Sheriff's Office said it appears the three young people were abducted around 11:15 a.m. on Sunday, May 4.

Authorities are asking that anyone who might have seen the youngsters after that time to please contact Wood County Crime Stoppers at (214)763-2274, the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477, or the Upshur County Sheriff's Department at (214)843-2541.

In order to reach Barnwell Mountain Park from Lake Hawkins, the offender or offenders could have taken several routes—FM49 or 1796 to Gilmer, or State Highway 154 to Gilmer, or U.S. 80 to Big Sandy and then State Road 155 north to the park.

Citizens who might have observed a vehicle containing the three young people are urgently asked to come forward with this information. Investigators described Bryan Boone as a white male, 5-8, 160-170 pounds, with medium brown hair, hazel eyes, wearing a blue shirt and turquoise-colored shorts. Gena Turner was a white female, 5-2, 110 pounds, with long brown hair and brown eyes and was wearing a black top and black and white striped shorts. Suzanne Harrison was a white female, 5-4, 120 pounds, with long brown hair, green eyes and had on a red plow-over sweater and red shorts.
