Beating the summer heat

These kids may not make the Olympics in 1996, 2000, 2004 or whenever, but they sure look like they are having fun in these scenes shot Thursday at the Dameron Park Pool diving board. The pool is home to dozens of kids every afternoon who are trying to beat the summer heat

Mother reports children recovering from injuries

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Two Hereford youth who were seriously injured in a traffic accident Monday remained in critical condition in Amarillo this morning, but their mother said the two are showing progress in their recoveries.

Susan Owens said her children, Ronni Jo, 18, and Jimmy, 12, "are doing better than expected" following the accident Monday night.

The accident occurred at about 7:23 p.m. Monday, when a pickup truck in the northbound lanes of U.S. 385 just south of U.S. 60.

The two were transported to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where they remain in the Intensive Care Unit this morning.

"They're just progressing and doing well and we expect to bring them home," Mrs. Owens said in a telephone interview from the ICU waiting room. "We just don't know when."

Mrs. Owens said the outpouring of support from Hereford in the family's time of trouble has been incredible.

"We appreciate the prayers and the phone calls and the visits," she said. "Although both young people have shown progress since their accident,

Mrs. Owens said neither one had regained consciousness as of this morning.

Jimmy is a little more conscious than Ronni Jo is. They're pulling him up out of his sedation a little sooner than they are her," she said.

Jimmy's mother said, is suffering from a head injury and a broken arm and, earlier this week, underwent "very successful" facial reconstruction surgery.

Ronni Jo is suffering from a broken leg, a head injury and a broken vertebra that did not cause any spinal column or nerve damage.

"They think she has a bruised heart or contusion of the heart," Mrs. Owens continued, adding that an initial test was negative, but that further tests will be done today.

Ronni Jo, who graduated in May from Hereford High School, had planned to attend Amarillo College in the fall.

For now, however, "We're just taking it one day at a time."

Mrs. Owens, whose voice broke from emotion several times during the conversation, repeatedly emphasized her joy at the local support.

"We're very grateful for the prayers and the town of Hereford," she said. "Keep praying."

Two sentenced to 10-year prison terms in robbery

Two young men who confessed to holding up a convenience store in 1992 were sentenced Thursday to serve 10 years each in prison.

Testimony in the punishment phase in the case of Ramon Murillo Jr., 18, and Richard A. Hernandez, 20, began Monday in 222nd District Court but was recessed until Thursday and concluded Thursday morning.

The pair had entered guilty pleas to aggravated robbery last April, but sentencing was delayed until this week.

District Judge David Wesley Gulley, in pronouncing the sentences, observed that "each of you confessed your guilt and admitted that you used a gun."

The judge said he took into account the "suffering" the clerk on duty in the store at the time of the holdup may endure for the "rest of his life."

Hernandez furnished the gun, the judge reminded, and he "may be more culpable but Murillo brandished the gun and repeatedly taunted and terrorized the clerk."

Judge Gulley pointed out the range of punishment for the offense is from deferred adjudication probation to five to 99 years, or life, in prison and a $10,000.

"No other options are available because it was armed robbery, with a deadly weapon," said Judge Gulley.

He sympathized with the families of the pair. But, he said, "some people seem to think that everyone should get one free bite of the apple, but not in this case... it was a heinous crime, armed robbery."

Murillo and Hernandez allegedly entered the convenience store in the early hours of Aug. 12, 1992, and demanded money from the cash register.

When they left the store, with about $50, they were spotted by a customer who took down the car's license number and reported it to police.

About an hour later, the car stopped at a convenience store in Vega where officers on a coffee break saw the young men and arrested them. A juvenile also was in the car and was taken in custody.

The defendants must serve one-fourth of their sentences. In any case, each must serve no less than two years.

Judge Gulley set bond at $20,000 for each defendant, pending appeal, if they choose to appeal the sentences.

West Texas towns targets for voting-rights lawsuits

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - West Texas towns and school districts have become the latest targets of a group seeking better representation for minorities.

The League of United Latin American Citizens filed a flurry of lawsuits in recent weeks to force election changes in several cities surrounding Lubbock.

The new cases are part of LULAC's statewide voting rights battle that is shifting somewhat from large cities.

"We don't want the towns to think we've forgotten about them," said Rolando Rios, the San Antonio attorney who handles LULAC's voting rights cases. "Many of them have asked for our help."

LULAC has initiated legal proceedings in recent weeks against the at-large method of elections in school districts in Andrews, Bovina, Dumas, Hale Center, Lockney, Lorenzo, Morton and Spur.

LULAC filed lawsuits against many of those cities, too, hoping new election lines could be drawn before May 1994 voting.

Most entities will avoid prolonged fights and opt to draw plans for single-member districts, Rios said. LULAC and others contend single-member districts are more fair than at-large representation.

Most boards and councils - especially in small towns - need only a little prodding to change their election system, he said.

"If LULAC would have presented us with a plan, I don't think there would have been any problem with us adopting it," said Morton Mayor Ray Lewis.

"We are trying to make sure that we have election systems that are fair to everyone in the community," Rios said.

FBI head half-way through term Sessions to resign; does not plan to leave office yet

WASHINGTON (AP) - Embattled FBI Director William Sessions has agreed to resign, but is demanding he remain at his post until a successor is in place, a process that could take months, administration officials and sources close to Sessions say.

The demand has complicated the negotiations over when and under what circumstances Sessions leaves as FBI head, although his 10-year term is only half completed. The director's future became clouded when a Justice Department report in January accused him of ethical misconduct, including misuse of FBI transportation.

Administration officials have made clear in recent weeks that Sessions will be replaced.

The Justice Department has not responded to Sessions' latest conditions under which he would be willing to depart.

If Sessions were allowed to remain until a successor were chosen and confirmed by the Senate, he likely would not depart for months. The Senate Judiciary Committee already has a busy schedule, including consideration of Ruth Bader Ginsburg's nomination to the Supreme Court.

Sessions' demand that he remain as director during the interim period is widely viewed as a ploy to keep the FBI's No. 2 official, Deputy Director Floyd Clarke, from heading the agency, even temporarily as acting director.

Sessions and his wife, Alice, have complained publicly about Clarke's loyalty and Mrs. Sessions has alleged that Clarke was part of a group of longtime FBI officials who were trying to oust her husband.

Sessions has waged a dogged campaign to keep his job ever since a report by the Justice Department's Office of Professional Responsibility accused him of ethical improprieties, all of which he has denied.

The ethics report accused Sessions, among other things, of misusing government airplanes and cars for personal trips; having a taxpayer-paid fence built at his home that did not meet security needs; using a "sham" to avoid paying taxes on his chauffeured transportation to and from work; and using his office to get a sweetheart deal on a home mortgage.

Sessions has met with Attorney General Janet Reno three times to discuss his future, most recently on Monday, while his representatives have been meeting with other Justice Department officials.

Throughout the talks, Sessions has argued he must be exonerated of the allegations against him in return for his resignation. Then came the added demand that he be allowed to stay while a successor is confirmed.

The New York Times first reported the new demand in today's editions, saying the new condition has caused negotiations between Sessions and the Clinton administration to break down.

But a source close to Sessions denied that the discussions were at an impasse because while the Justice Department had not accepted the demand, it had not rejected it either.

The Times said FBI officials feared that Sessions, by remaining a lame-duck director for weeks or months, would lose whatever remained of his credibility and could not halt drift within the agency.

Sessions has completed 51 years of his 10-year term. President Reagan appointed him in November 1987 and only Clinton has the power to fire him. The president has said he was awaiting a review of the situation by Reno before he makes any decision.

A hearing on a motion by the state to terminate rights of the unknown parents of a baby found in an incinerator last March was continued Thursday in 222nd District Court.

Judge David Wesley Gulley set July 14 for the hearing to resume but said he will not rule on termination of parental rights until a later date.

Custody of the infant, called Deaf Smith Baby Jane, is with the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services on a temporary basis. She is in foster care outside Deaf Smith County.

TDP&RS has petitioned the court for managing conservatorship of the infant, found by workers at an animal clinic incinerator on March 18. She was treated at Deaf Smith General Hospital, then at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo before being placed in foster care.

After Judge Gulley has ruled on the state's motion for conservatorship, TDP&RS may begin adoption procedures.

Investigators from the sheriff's department have been unable to turn up any positive information on parents of the baby. A legal notice also has been published in an attempt to locate the mother and father.

Ethics law called 'good legislation'

Governor counters concerns about school trustees

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers and the governor's staff are countering concerns about a new conflict-of-interest law that the Texas Association of School Boards says might put many trustees' posts in jeopardy.

"It's a good piece of legislation," said Chuck McDonald, spokesman for Gov. Ann Richards.

The measure "addresses two very specific problems that were occurring with school boards around the state," McDonald said Thursday. He cited board members seeking positions with school districts, and districts contracting with trustee-owned companies.

The school board group has said thousands of trustees might find their positions threatened because of their jobs or stock holdings under the new law.

The group is looking at options for overturning the measure or narrowing its potential effect, said Margaret LaMontagne, director of governmental relations for the association.

Lawmakers have said they didn't intend for the measure to be as broad as some say it may be interpreted.

The law prohibits trustees from soliciting employment with their school district until their term is up or they resign and a successor is picked.

And in a provision that has drawn concern, it says a school board may not contract with a business in which a trustee, or a trustee's spouse, has a "significant interest."

The board must wait until the trustee's term expires, or the trustee has resigned and a successor been chosen.

The measure could be interpreted to mean that if someone serves on a school board and his or her spouse owns enough stock in a computer company, the school district could not contract with that company, Ms. LaMontagne said.

The association also has said if a trustee works for the local telephone company, the school district could be prohibited from doing business with it.

In another example, a question could be raised where a school board member also is editor of the county's only newspaper, because districts must publish competitive bidding and tax notices, Ms. LaMontagne said.

"Potentially thousands of school board members may be affected by this provision," she said.

But she added, "As far as we can tell, they (lawmakers) didn't intend to pass anything that had this much of a broad-brush effect."

While school board members shouldn't rush into resigning, Ms. LaMontagne said, her group is advising school boards not to enter into significant contracts with businesses in question while the matter is pending.

But a sponsor of the law said the school board group is overreacting. "I think they're stretching their imagination," said Rep. Jerry Johnson, D-Nacogdoches. "I don't think it's going to affect but a very few" board members.

The provision was added by Rep. Ciro Rodriguez, Johnson said, to "clean up any undesirable deals where school board members were getting the big end of the stick on selling to schools."

Rodriguez, D-San Antonio, said, "I don't see why they're upset about good ethics." He said the provision is meant to address those who may get a direct benefit from a contract, such as a commission.

McDonald, Richards' spokesman, suggested that a school board could decide in individual cases what constitutes a significant interest.

"It could be addressed without these mass resignations that they suggest will take place," McDonald said.

The Texas Education Agency plans to ask for a legal opinion from the state attorney general about the law, said agency spokeswoman Della May Moore.

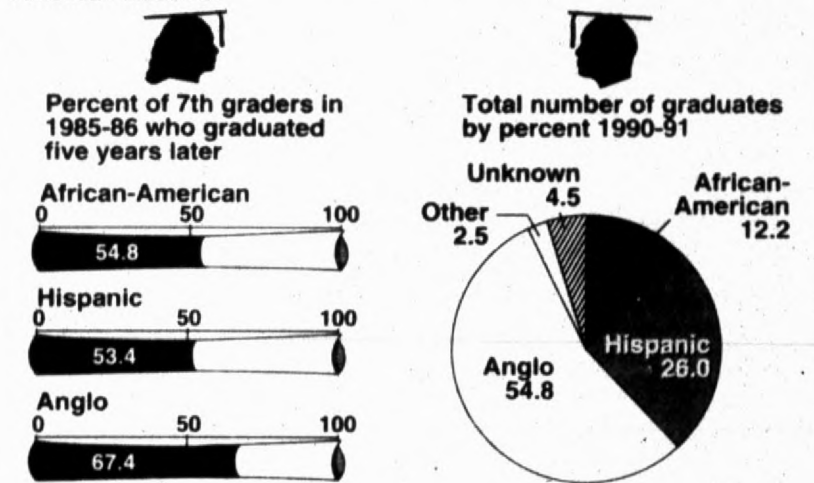

Besides such a request for clarification, other options could include a court challenge or asking Richards to call a special legislative session on the issue, Ms. LaMontagne said.

McDonald said he didn't think the governor would call a special session.

Lottery fever growing for $30 million jackpot in Saturday's drawing

The largest jackpot to date is $50 million, which holders of 14 tickets split in early May.

The numbers drawn Wednesday night were: 4, 16, 28, 30, 36, 37.

There were 144 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, which was worth $2,175 each. There were 9,682 tickets with four winning numbers, good for $116 apiece. And there were 194,407 tickets sold with three of six numbers, each worth an automatic $3.

Sharp said $12.7 million in tickets were sold from Sunday through Wednesday.

By The Associated Press
Things are reaching a feverish state again for the Lotto Texas game.

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers in Wednesday night's drawing, setting up a projected $30 million jackpot for Saturday.

"It looks like there will be fireworks for Saturday night's Lotto Texas drawing," State Comptroller John Sharp said Thursday. "Since nobody correctly matched all six numbers last night, the jackpot for Saturday, July 3, will be the second largest ever - $30 million."

Environmental assessment released

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and Mexico need to spend $4.2 billion dollars over the next 17 years to improve the environment along the Texas-Mexico border, according to a recent study commissioned by Gov. Ann Richards.

The governor's office released the environmental assessment just a day after a federal judge ruled that the Clinton administration must do a detailed analysis of the North American Trade Agreement on the environment.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey's ruling shouldn't be taken as proof that there's been little environmental review of the NAFTA, said Rep. Ron Coleman.

"The concept that we have never done an environmental study or that we're not ahead of the issue here is ridiculous. We are," the El Paso Democrat said Thursday. "Texas has done its job. Other border states have as well."

The study, done by private consultants, found that $4.2 billion in infrastructure improvements are needed along the Texas-Mexico border to meet current environmental needs and the added pressures of increased trade.

The two countries should spend $1.44 billion immediately and another $1.67 billion from 1996 to 2010, the report suggested. Of the $4.2 billion, the study identified almost $2.2 billion in needed Mexican spending and $2 billion in U.S. spending.

Gubernatorial spokesman Chuck McDonald said the study identifies the U.S. portion of the spending as predominately Federal, not state money. "The purpose of this ... was to see what's needed above and beyond what local entities would be spending," he said.

Getting Congress to allocate new funds isn't likely to be an easy task at a time when lawmakers are slashing deeply into existing spending.

Mexico already has earmarked $500 million for infrastructure improvements, McDonald noted.

The report said the biggest chunk of its suggested infrastructure improvements should be for wastewater treatment. The authors allocated $2.5 billion of the $4.2 billion total for wastewater improvements. The second-largest amount, $1.3 billion, would be to ensure adequate water supplies.

Coleman, McDonald and others suggested that Richey's ruling could be beneficial at a time when the administration is negotiating side agreements on the environment, labor and trade surges.

"The ruling is not going to kill NAFTA," Coleman said. "I think it will be helpful. It tells negotiators from both sides they are not going to be able to fudge on any of the environmental side agreements."

Environmental groups, which brought suit to force the environmental impact statement, said the ruling would elevate environmental concerns to the level of economic considerations. Administration officials said it interferes with their efforts to negotiate an environmental accord.

The administration is planning an expedited appeal of Richey's ruling, which triggered a process that may take months or years to complete.

Scout Councils to become one

The Texas Plains Girl Scout Council and Quivira Girl Scout Council have voted to unite as one council.

The action was taken last week at special meetings of the councils held in Amarillo and Pampa.

The vote created the Texas Plains Council, which will serve 17 counties: Armstrong, Carson, Collingsworth, Deaf Smith, Donley, Gray, Hall, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Moore, Oldham, Potter, Randall, Roberts, Swisher and Wheeler.

It will come into official existence on Oct. 1.

The move was the culmination of negotiations between the councils dating to October 1992, when the Quivira council's board of directors proposed the move to the Amarillo group.

"The last step is to submit the joint proposal to the national board of directors for approval, who will meet on Sept. 18. If the proposal is approved as expected, it will be official as of Oct. 1. This has been a long and arduous endeavor, but it has already brought many of us closer together. I know that this change will benefit all of the girls."

Political correctness at new low: 'Slow Children' signs removed

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) - Is it a sign of the times? The last word in political correctness?

"Slow Children" signs are falling by the wayside, not to mention from the roadside, across Massachusetts as state officials respond to complaints by offended motorists.

"They did?" gasped John Driscoll, an aide to state Rep. Robert Hawke, R-Gardner.

Driscoll said Hawke had just forwarded a letter of complaint about the signs from a Fitchburg State College professor. Hawke didn't take sides himself, Driscoll said, and had no idea that it would lead to such a sweeping change.

Local officials say they have heard complaints about sign phraseology for years.

"It's nothing new. ... And when a politician thinks they may get a few votes out of it they can't bring themselves to say no," said George Teso, who has overruled more than one trendy suggestion in the 24 years he has headed the city of Cambridge's traffic and sign department.

"Fortunately, the city councilors can only request we look into something," Teso said. "If they had the chance, we'd probably have purple stop signs."

This week, Pittsfield Public Works Commissioner William J. Forestell declined a request from a city councilor that he replace the "Dead End" sign on a street that goes nowhere, because a constituent wanted something more upbeat.

"That's why there is a print of Custer's Last Stand on the wall of my office," said Forestell.

But Forestell had no qualms about dumping the "Slow Children" signs.

"Kids have laughed at them for generations," Forestell said, admitting he was one of the gigglers. "But you've got to be careful nowadays."

Sampras reaches Wimbledon final by beating Becker

By STEPHEN WILSON
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Pete Sampras, playing flawless grass-court tennis, took apart three-time champion Boris Becker in straight sets today to reach the Wimbledon final for the first time.

Riding a brilliant serve-and-volley game, Sampras swept to a suprisingly one-sided 7-6 (7-5), 6-4, 6-4 semifinal victory over the man who has virtually owned the Wimbledon Centre Court for nearly a decade.

The top-seeded Sampras will face the winner of the semifinal between No. 2 Stefan Edberg and No. 3 Jim Courier.

Showing no signs of the shoulder injury that nearly forced him to skip the tournament, Sampras served 12 aces and never lost serve during the entire match. He saved six break points, four in the first set and two in the last game.

The match ended in appropriate fashion - Sampras ripping a big serve down the middle and putting away a backhand volley.

Even though he was the top seed, Sampras was not the favorite to win the tournament or to beat the No. 4 Becker, who won here in 1985, 1986 and 1989 and was runner-up three times.

But Sampras put on the performance of a champion today, serving powerfully, volleying cleanly and returning well enough to break Becker twice.

Sampras' superiority had Becker muttering and screaming at himself in frustration. At one point in the second set, Becker lost his temper over a line call and shouted at chair umpire Wayne McKewen, "You have to watch a little bit. You've called them all wrong."

While Becker had 14 aces, his serve also let him down at crucial moments as he hit 12 double faults.

In the women's final Saturday, top-seeded Steffi Graf will face No. 8 Jana Novotna.

Novotna was a 6-4, 6-4 upset winner over Martina Navratilova Thursday, ruining her bid for a 10th title and raising questions about whether she will return next year.

"I'll be back," Navratilova told reporters after the match. "It wouldn't feel right to finish on this note."

Questions about retirement are inevitable these days for the 36-year-old Navratilova. Even though she insisted she has no plans to end her career, the notion did linger in her mind Thursday as she felt the match slipping away.

"Of course, so many thoughts are going through your head," she said. "Is this my last match on Centre Court? I told myself, 'No, it's not.' As I was walking away, I was definitely thinking it was not my last match."

Asked if she might change her mind about returning in 1994, Navratilova said, "It's a long year, but as of now I'm planning to be here."

With Navratilova eliminated, Saturday's women's final will be between Novotna and four-time champion Steffi Graf.

The men's semifinals were set for today, with top-seeded Pete Sampras against No. 4 Boris Becker and No. 2 Stefan Edberg vs. No. 3 Jim Courier. It's the first time since 1927 the four top seeds reached the final four.

Navratilova said she will continue playing as long as she has the desire and the talent.

Mavs' Mashburn has few limitations

By ARNIE STAPLETON
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Aha! Here's something Jamal Mashburn can't do! He doesn't know how to drive that new Ferrari he got from the multimillion-dollar tennis shoe deal he just signed.

"It's still in the garage right now. I have no clue how to drive a stick," acknowledged Mashburn, the Mavericks' top draft choice who will be asked to play three positions as Dallas tries to rebound from a disastrous 1992-93 season.

Standard drive may be foreign to Mashburn, but he certainly knows how to steer a basketball team in the right direction.

"I've done this before," said Mashburn, who helped return Kentucky's program to national prominence.

The 6-foot-8 Mashburn was an All-American last season after averaging 21 points, 8.4 rebounds and 3.6 assists while pacing Kentucky to the NCAA tournament's Final Four.

Only four years before, Kentucky was 13-19 and headed for NCAA probation under coach Eddie Sutton.

Rick Pitino, Sutton's replacement, recruited Mashburn from the New York City playgrounds. The big forward helped the Wildcats to records of 22-6, 29-7 and 30-4.

He was runnerup to Indiana's Calbert Cheaney for the John Wooden Award as the nation's top player last season. At 20, he left college a year early and was the fourth pick in the NBA draft.

Now Mashburn is being asked to help rebuild the Mavericks, who at 11-71 established a franchise low for victories, only two shy of the NBA record by the worst team in league history, the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers.

Mashburn will be teamed with last year's No. 4 pick, guard Jim Jackson of Ohio State.

Mashburn played for the USA Basketball Select Team which scrimmaged against the U.S. Olympic squad last summer, and he impressed Charles Barkley of the Phoenix Suns, the NBA's MVP this season.

"He's going to be hard to play against because he's so versatile," Barkley said. "He has the game of a forward, but the skills of a guard. He can beat you in a lot of different ways."

Rick Sund, Mavericks' vice president of basketball operations, said, "What I really like about Jamal is that he has the ability to play both forward positions, which will make it very good for us because the way the league is going there has been so much flexibility."

"For us to be very competitive in our target years - three or four years from now - we need to have a forward that you can count on getting 20 points a night, and we think Jamal has that capability," Sund said.

New Mavericks coach Quinn Buckner said he will see what kind of shooting guard the team might have in Mashburn.

"I don't care where I play. I'm just excited to be a part of rebuilding a team again," replied Mashburn. "When you go from the bottom to the top and you're a part of that and a big influence on that, then it's just great. And Kentucky and Dallas are about the same situation."

Mashburn is expected to seek a contract similar to Jackson's, about $20 million over six years. Both sides will try to seal a deal a lot quicker than last year, however, when Jackson missed the team's first 54 games in a contract holdout.

Already, Mashburn is a rich athlete. Last month, he signed a five-year, $7.5 million endorsement deal with Fila, an athletic apparel company. It is believed to be the first time a college player has signed a contract before being drafted.

With the deal, negotiated by Pitino, came a signing bonus: the $183,000 Ferrari that's gathering dust in Mashburn's garage.

Pokes' Haley hurts back

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Charles Haley won't be carrying the Dallas Cowboys on his back this season.

Haley joins quarterback Troy Aikman with back injuries, suffered during offseason weight training.

The Cowboys announced Thursday that Haley is resting in his Gladys, Va., hometown after injuring his back while lifting weights on June 22. Haley suffered a lower back strain, officials said.

Aikman, who also injured his back lifting weights, is recuperating in Dallas following herniated disc surgery. He is scheduled to begin rehabilitation Monday in Los Angeles.

While the start of the season is in question for the Dallas quarterback, Haley, a defensive end, is expected to be ready for the start of training camp July 15.

Dr. William Hazel, an orthopedic surgeon at the Franklin Clinic in Herndon, Va., has examined Haley and said surgery would not be needed.

"I believe non-operative treatment is the best for him," Hazel said. "I wouldn't want to make a rash judgement on when he'll be ready to play, but at the rate he's progressing now, July 15 should be about right."

Cowboys head coach Jimmy Johnson downplayed the injury. "We don't want to totally discount anything, but we don't think this is anything of significance."

Chi Chi Helps

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - The veteran senior golfer, Chi Chi Rodriguez, often is called on by other players to coach them when their game is going bad.

Chi Chi ruefully observed: "I think I'm going to change my name to Nine-Juan-Juan. I'm like the rescue squad. Whenever someone needs help, they call for me."

A&M revokes scholarships of ineligible

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - The scholarships of seven Texas A&M players who have been declared ineligible for accepting improper payments from a booster were not renewed, football coach R.C. Slocum says.

Slocum told the Bryan-College Station Eagle Thursday that he will consider renewing the scholarship at the conclusion of the school's investigation into the matter, which he said should come before the start of the 1993 football season.

All of the players, including star running back Greg Hill, have admitted they were paid for work not done from Dallas booster Warren A. Gilbert Jr.

The other players included two other starters, wide receiver Brian Mitchell and linebacker Jessie Cox.

Reserves James Brooks, Billy Mitchell, Percy Singleton and Darius Smith also were declared ineligible.

Thursday was the NCAA deadline for annual renewal of scholarships.

The decision is not a declaration of guilt, Slocum said.

"What we're really trying to do is sort out the individual's involvement and how they responded throughout the investigation - the comments they made and how forthcoming they were."

"I've got no problem renewing the scholarships at the appropriate time, if, when everything is considered, it looks like that is the right thing to do," Slocum added. "I couldn't renew them all, and then go back in August and say I want to cancel this one and that one. You're already locked into them for the next year."

Slocum believes the university's investigation, which began last December, will be completed within the next two months.

"I have reason to believe we'll have this cleared up before the season, and at that time we'll act on the information we have," Slocum said.

Slocum said he told the players and their parents of his decision not to renew the scholarships on Wednesday.

Cards blow out Phillies, move closer to lead

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Two weeks ago, the Philadelphia Phillies were making a joke of the NL East race.

"They're not laughing now. This is the most embarrassing game I've ever been a part of, and I've been on some very bad teams, and I've been a very, very, very bad player before," Darren Daulton said after the St. Louis Cardinals romped past the Phillies 14-5 Thursday.

The Phillies led the division by 1 1/2 games on June 14. But after losing three of four in St. Louis, their lead was cut to 5 1/2 games over the Cardinals.

"I hope they feel like they're in a race," Cardinals starter Bob Tewksbury said. "Heck, yeah. If they don't think we can chase them down, they're doing us a favor."

Brian Jordan hit a grand slam and drove in five runs, Bernard Gilkey had his second straight four-hit game and Gregg Jefferies had three hits and drove in two runs. The Cardinals had their highest-scoring game of the season and won for the 10th time in 12 games.

In other games, Atlanta beat Colorado 4-0, Montreal defeated Pittsburgh 7-5, Houston downed Cincinnati 8-1 and Florida beat New York 7-5.

Mitchell on a fly ball with the bases loaded, two outs and the score tied at 1 in the fifth inning.

Luis Gonzalez homered and drove in two runs for the Astros. Jose Rijo (6-4) is 0-2 in seven starts since May 22.

Braves 4, Rockies 0

Tom Glavine needed only 93 pitches in a four-hitter that gave Atlanta its second sweep of the season, both against Colorado.

Glavine (10-3) walked none and struck out two in his second shutout of the season and 12th of his career. Only one Colorado runner reached second base.

Sid Bream and Greg Olson hit home runs off Armando Reynoso (5-4). The Braves swept the three-game series in Atlanta, and are 7-0 against the Rockies this year.

The Expos overcame a 3-0 deficit in the third on a two-run single by Frank Bolick, an RBI single by Moises Alou and a bases-loaded double by Laker.

Reliever Mel Rojas (4-6) pitched three scoreless innings and John Wetteland got his 17th save. Steve Cook (5-4) was the loser.

Marlins 7, Mets 5

Charlie Hough gave up a long home run to Dwight Gooden, but pitched Florida past New York. The Marlins averted their first sweep at home.

Hough (4-8) won for only the second time since the first week of the season. Bryan Harvey got his 23rd save.

Gooden (7-8) struck out a season-high nine and gave up 11 hits in going the distance. He also hit his seventh career home run, breaking the team record for pitchers set by Tom Seaver. Gooden connected after borrowing a bat from his nephew, Marlins third baseman Gary Sheffield.

Sheffield hit two singles and scored twice. Rich Renteria added three hits and scored three times. Jeremy Burnitz and Chico Walker homered for the Mets.

Tigers lose tenth straight game

By The Associated Press

Coming home didn't make a bit of difference for the Detroit Tigers. If anything, they played worse.

Detroit's losing streak reached 10 games Thursday night when the Tigers made four errors in an 8-5 loss to the Texas Rangers. The Tigers, who led the AL East by two games on June 22, dropped 4 1/2 games behind first-place Toronto.

"Being home doesn't solve anything," Tigers manager Sparky Anderson said. "That has nothing to do with anything."

John Doherty (7-4) was tagged for eight runs and 10 hits in four-plus innings. Detroit has been outscored 80-31 during the slide, the club's worst since a 12-game losing streak in 1989.

"I've seen all of this before," said Lou Whitaker, a 17-year veteran. "It happens in baseball."

"We just need to win a game. Two weeks ago, we were the kings of the hill, and we were winning every series. Now, we can't even win a single game."

Dean Palmer hit a two-run triple in the fifth as Texas won for the fifth time in six games. Mike Schooler (1-0) won for the first time since last Sept. 1, allowing one run and four hits in three innings. Matt Whiteside got six outs for his first save.

"This was one of those games where you had to battle the whole way," Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy said. "We used every pitcher we had, except for Tom Henke, and he's pitched the last two nights."

Cecil Fielder hit a 440-foot, two-run homer in the third, his 20th home run of the season.

"The way we played doesn't bother me at all," Anderson said. "If they did this on purpose, that would bother me."

Athletics 6, Angels 3

Terry Steinbach homered and drove in four runs as Oakland won its third straight and completed its first sweep this season.

Bob Welch (6-6) won his second straight decision, giving up seven hits in six innings at the Oakland Coliseum. Edwin Nunez got six outs for his first save.

Steinbach's two-run homer in the third tied the score 3-3, and his RBI infield single in the fourth completed a three-run inning off Chuck Finley (9-6).

Mariners 6, Twins 1

Erik Hanson (6-6) broke a six-game losing streak, scattering eight hits in the Metrodome.

Willie Banks (5-5), George Tsamir and Carl Willis combined to give up five runs in the eighth, allowing Dave Magadan's run-scoring groundout, RBI singles to Ken Griffey Jr. and Jay Buhner, and Tino Martinez' two-run double.

Orioles 1, White Sox 0

Jamie Moyer (4-3) won his fourth consecutive decision by outpitching Jack McDowell (12-5), who lost despite throwing a three-hitter for his sixth complete game. McDowell retired his final 20 batters in order.

Moyer allowed four hits in eight innings, walked two and struck out one at Comiskey Park before Gregg Olson finished with a one-hit ninth for his 22nd save.

Mark McLemore hit a sacrifice fly in the third inning as Baltimore got its second straight shutout.

Canseco definitely out for year

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - First, it was the old ball-off-the-head trick for Texas Rangers right fielder Jose Canseco.

Then, he pitched. As it turns out, the pitching was a lot more painful.

Canseco said Thursday he is out for the season because of a torn ligament in his right elbow, which he injured during the May 29 pitching performance in Boston.

The slugger, following an examination by orthopedist Dr. James Andrews, also said the injury may hamper his future career.

Canseco said he wanted to "weigh the pros and cons" a day or two before deciding whether to have surgery or undergo rehabilitation in hopes of healing.

"I figured, being very positive, maybe it was a strained ligament and it would heal without surgery," said Canseco, who will make $4.1 million this year. "But it's a torn ligament."

The minimum recovery time for such an injury is six months to a year, so Canseco said this season is "definitely" out.

He added there was no guarantee the injury could be fixed even if he decided to have the operation. Asked whether his career may be over, the former Oakland A's star said: "Anything can happen."

But later Thursday when Canseco arrived at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, he was asked if he was contemplating retirement.

"I think it's a little early for that," Canseco responded. "No. No, I haven't thought about that at all."

Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy let Canseco, who pitched in high school, throw one inning in a 15-1 loss at Boston. The performance came just days after a ball bounced off Canseco's head and over the fence in Cleveland for a homer.

Canseco said he felt a "sharp pain" in his elbow on his second pitch.

He stayed in anyway, throwing 31 more times.

In observance of Independence Day, we will be closed on Monday July 5th. We will resume regular working hours on Tuesday July 6th. Have a Safe & Happy Holiday!

with Mel Phillips

The Fourth of July is the most popular weekend for heading to the lake and enjoying the great outdoors. But, be careful. The recent drowning at Lake Meredith brings to mind some important lessons that could save your life.

No. 1--Wearing a life jacket is like wearing a seat belt--when you need one, it's too late to start looking for it.

Survivors of boating accidents lament that everything occurs so fast, there is not time to open storage bins and search for the life jackets. Wear a PFD (Personal Floatation Device) any time the big motor is running. Professional anglers and skiers all wear PFD's and so should each member of your family.

No. 2--The wind is the enemy.

When you see whitecaps, even routine tasks can become dangerous. Running jug-lines is normally an easy job, but stopping and allowing even one wave to wash over the back of a boat can add hundreds of pounds in extra weight. Older boats can sink like a rock and although many newer rigs have some floatation, don't bet your life on it.

No. 3--Wear the correct size.

A child's size preserver will not support an adult, and an adult's life jacket can easily slip off a youngster during an emergency. The price of a PFD varies from $20 up to $75. Remember: A PFD is better than life insurance because it will save a life.

Looking for a good fishing lake that is not overcrowded with waterskiers and jet-skis? Lake Baylor and Lake Childress both located just off U.S. 287 north of Childress, offer a fishing oasis for anglers tired of weekend harassment by adolescents using daddy's boat.

Lake Childress has extremely clear water and offers plenty of hungry smaller black bass. Take a spinning rod and try out those new finesse lures. The bass are fewer but usually much bigger at nearby Lake Baylor. Waterdogs, Rat-L-Traps and Berkeley PowerWorms are just the ticket for catching and releasing trophy bass. These two lakes are my favorite spots on holidays. For some reason, the crowds of rowdies that flock to other area lakes bypass these two jewels. Camping, hookups and a kids playground are available.

Alcohol and water don't mix--Drinking and driving a car is dangerous. Toss in some wave action on a hot day and a drunk driving a boat is a disaster waiting to happen. A new state law allows game wardens to arrest drunks who drive boats.

Mel Phillips, winner of numerous awards for journalism and broadcasting, is an active member of the Texas Outdoor Writers Association. He is an avid hunter, tournament fisherman and host of a Wednesday evening outdoors show on KGNC TalkRadio 71.

WIMBLEDON

"Number one: is the heart still there?" she said. "Number two: do I still feel that I can win? I don't think I would play if I don't think I stand a chance to win. I'm not a glutton for punishment. I wouldn't play just to play and get to the round of 16 and look good for a while and then get blown out by somebody later on."

Despite the close score, Navratilova was essentially blown out by Novotna. The 24-year-old Czech, who beat Navratilova for the first time in eight meetings, controlled the match with an all-court game that kept her opponent on the defensive throughout.

"Age is not why I lost today and that's not why I can't win anymore, but it certainly makes things more difficult," Navratilova said. "Things just didn't click for me. I was on my heels the whole match."

Most people assumed Graf and Navratilova would meet in the final. Even Graf, who beat Conchita Martinez 7-6 (7-0), 6-3, said she regretted that she would not be facing her long-time rival.

"Yes, I'm kind of disappointed," Graf said. "She's somebody everybody treasures. We have always had exciting matches. We have both been in the finals so many times. Everybody was hoping for it, including myself a little bit, too."

Great Motto
PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) - Bill Roper, a famed coach of Princeton football in the long ago had a coaching motto which he used to fire up his squad.

It was: "A team that won't be beaten can't be beaten."
Roper coached at Princeton for 17 seasons and his teams won 89 games while losing 28.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: They buried my lover today. We were "together" for 25 years. I had no part in the funeral and no grieving with anyone except a friend in whom I confided.

I am married to a man I respect but do not love. My lover felt the same way about his wife. We decided to stay with our mates because of our families. My grief is deep, and my loss is beyond words. My life was a secret, and now my pain must be secret also. Guilt and pain are a terrible exchange for a few stolen moments.

Whatever relationship you have with your wife or husband, work at it, stick with it and get help if you need it, but don't get involved with a married person.

Fortunately for me, our secret died with him. Now I need to forgive myself. Tell your readers to remain faithful. I wish I had.--N.Y.

DEAR N.Y.: I can add nothing to what you have written except my condolences and my thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Americans have placed too much importance on material wealth and "getting somewhere," and it is taking its toll on relationships. Something has to give. I wrote a little fairy tale about this subject, based on my own life. Maybe your readers will enjoy it.

The Man Who Couldn't Stop Working

Once upon a time, there was a bright young man who decided to become rich and successful. So he studied very hard in college, got an M.B.A., and went to work in a prestigious firm.

Since most successful businessmen in the land had beautiful wives, he went out and got himself one. He bought his "Christina" a lovely home in the suburbs. In return for beautiful clothes and elegant jewels, she was a dutiful wife who devoted herself to their children. She never saw much of her rich, successful husband who worked long hours and stayed out late at night, sharing wine and expensive meals with potential clients in order to cultivate good connections. There were rumors that he was seen dining with attractive women in the business world.

Meanwhile, Christina was growing more lonely and disconnected. One day, after looking at the emptiness of her life, she decided to go back to college and have a career. After watching her husband, she knew she didn't want to be rich and successful. She was hungry for something much deeper and more meaningful.

Something in Christina awakened as she gained new knowledge. And lo and behold, one day in class, her eyes locked with those of a handsome man who was also looking for something that would give more meaning to his life. He was tired of the demands of the business world, and like our heroine, he wanted something deeper.

After a year of contemplation, Christina divorced her husband (who to this day remains baffled but busy) and married the nice man in her class. He became a good stepfather to her children, who were delighted to have a man to spend time with, and he always came home from work in time for a family dinner. They weren't rich, but they lived happily ever after. The End.--A Faithful Reader in Michigan

DEAR MICHIGAN: That's no fairy tale, honey, it's art imitating life.

Ann Landers' latest booklet, "Nuggets and Doozies," has everything from the outrageously funny to the poignantly insightful. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5 (this includes postage and handling) to: Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

The territory of Hong Kong gets its name from the transcription of the local pronunciation of the Peking dialect version of Xiang gang (a port of incense).

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

BERENICE---DAUGHTER OF KING HEROD!

THE ELDEST DAUGHTER OF HEROD AGRIPPA SEEMS TO HAVE DONE HER PART IN KEEPING ALIVE THE TRADITION OF VILLAINY FOR WHICH THE HEROD LINE WAS FAMOUS OR "INFAMOUS"! SHE WAS FIRST MARRIED TO MARCUS, SON OF ALEXANDRA THE HEAD MAGISTRATE OF THE JEWS IN ALEXANDRIA. AFTER AN EARLY DEATH OF "POOR" MARCUS SHE THEN HURRIEDLY MARRIED HER FATHER'S OWN BROTHER, HEROD CHALCIS, WHO SOON AFTERWARDS, ALSO DIED! THENCE, SHE WENT TO LIVE WITH HER BROTHER AGRIPPA AND THE SCANDAL THAT AROSE FROM THIS RELATIONSHIP EVEN THE HIGH-BORN BERENICE COULD NOT OVERCOME! SHE THEN TRIED TO ALLAY IT BY YET ANOTHER MARRIAGE TO POLEMO, KING OF CILICIA. BUT SHE SOON BECAME TIRED OF HIM AND DESERTING HIM, RETURNED TO HER BROTHER AGRIPPA. HER CLAIM TO RECOGNITION IN THE BIBLE, CAME WHEN AGRIPPA HEARD ST. PAUL'S DEFENSE (ACTS 25:23-26) WITH BERENICE AT HIS SIDE. SHE WOUND UP HER CAREER, FIRST BECOMING THE MISTRESS OF VESPASIAN, AND THEN HIS SON TITUS--WHO, WHEN HE BECAME ROMAN EMPEROR, DISCARDED HER!

Mississippi Valley welcomes sun; more disaster aid sought

By The Associated Press
A little sunshine illuminated some bright spots for beleaguered residents of the flooded upper Mississippi Valley: The Mississippi dropped six inches in Wisconsin and President Clinton promised to ask Congress for more disaster aid.

Still, the news was mostly bad Thursday for farmers and people who usually make their living along a 400-mile stretch of the Mississippi from St. Paul, Minn., to St. Louis that's expected to be closed for at least two weeks.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - U.S. Sen. Dianne Feinstein urged graduates of Stanford University not to accept the notion that America is in decline.

"The prediction that the next generation will live a lesser life than their parents is a threat but not a destiny unless we by our inaction make it so," Feinstein said during commencement exercises Sunday.

"You were not elected in order to preside over the downsizing of the American dream," the first-term senator told about 3,000 graduates.

Some of the bad news was in the weather forecast. Kelly Hooper of the National Weather Service in Dubuque, Iowa, predicted a chance of thunderstorms in the Mississippi River basin each day through early next week.

With the barge industry losing an estimated $1 million a day, Transportation Secretary Federico Pena today was to visit flooded areas north of St. Louis in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois, accompanied by representatives of the U.S. Coast Guard and the Army Corps of Engineers.

In Minnesota, Lee Nelson, president of Upper River Services, which operates six boats that position barges in Minneapolis-St. Paul ports, said he has temporarily laid off 30 workers.

And despite sandbagging efforts by volunteers and the National Guard up and down the river, water still was threatening or seeping into homes and businesses in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri.

Residents of a vulnerable Davenport, Iowa, neighborhood were advised to leave their homes as the rising river neared a record level set in 1965 and threatened a levee.

Thata Edler, who has lived in the area of about 300 residents for 40 years, was among those leaving. She insisted it was only temporary.

"I wouldn't move," she said. "This is my home. This is where I raised my kids. I'll be back. But it hurts. It hurts."

The river was to crest in Davenport at 22.3 feet Saturday, just a hair under the 22.5 feet it reached when the 1965 flood devastated the area. It stood at 21.3 feet Thursday - 6.3 feet above flood stage.

The river actually dropped six inches at Prairie du Chien, Wis., but city officials say it must come down another 2 feet before thousands of sandbags are removed and the cleanup can really begin.

In La Grange, Missouri, high water forced the relocation of the police department, the post office and fire department, as well as several businesses and homes, said police Chief James Tarpein.

Farmers were suffering the most from the flooding - expecting losses of hundreds of millions of dollars. Clinton promised Thursday to ask Congress for money to assist farmers whose corn, soybean and hay crops have been damaged. He also planned to tour eastern Iowa on Sunday.

Serbs, Croats demand big tolls for UN relief trucks

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - Serbs and Croats, who recently have joined forces in battle, are slowing the flow of food to Muslim civilians by demanding that U.N. relief trucks pay millions of dollars in tolls.

The Croat-Serb demands Thursday were made separately, but U.N. officials said they clearly were issued after the two factions consulted.

The demands were contained in letters from Bosnian Croat leader Mate Boban and Radovan Karadzic, his Bosnian Serb counterpart. "They are asking for a staggering amount," said Lt. Col. Patricia Purves, a U.N. spokeswoman.

Boban demanded $20 million for a convoy the size of the "Convoy of Joy," the 800-truck caravan that crossed Croat-held territory for Slavic Muslim-controlled Tuzla last month.

Bosnian Serbs issued more detailed demands - $1,500 for each tracked armored vehicle, $500 for a wheeled armored vehicle, $350 for a tractor trailer truck, $240 for a truck and $140 for a car.

A U.N. convoy headed for Sarajevo had to turn back Thursday at the Serbian border after Bosnian Serbs demanded exorbitant tolls, said Ron Redmond, Geneva-based spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

"We didn't pay," Redmond said. "It's outrageous because we also supply two Serbian communities in Bosnia."

Serb-Croat battlefield cooperation also grew Thursday. U.N. officials described instances of troops from both groups riding in the same vehicles as they moved toward towns and villages in central Bosnia held by the Muslim-dominated government.

Government-controlled Bosnian Radio reported joint Serb-Croat offensives against the northern towns of Zepce, Maglaj and Zavidovice.

Serb tanks also appeared to be moving uncontested through Bosnian Croat territory toward positions held by troops from the Muslim-led government.

To the east, Serb forces shelled the eastern Muslim enclave of Gorazde, a U.N.-declared "safe area." An official in Gorazde, Mustafa Kurtovic, said more than 250 tank rounds hit the town, killing four people.

At the outset of the 16-month-old war, Bosnian Croats and government troops jointly fought Serbs who rebelled over Bosnia's declaration of independence from Yugoslavia.

Some Croats and Serbs still fight alongside Muslims in the government army. But the Croat-Muslim alliance began to buckle months ago as the two sides started clashing over contested land.

The announcement two weeks ago of a Serb-Croat plan to partition Bosnia along ethnic lines and take the lion's share of territory for themselves left the Muslim-led Bosnian government the odd man out.

The toll demands appeared intended to further complicate the U.N. role in Bosnia and to pressure the beleaguered Bosnian government to accept the Serb-Croat plan, which it has steadfastly rejected.
