Reagan jilted on Contra aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — House rejection of President Reagan's request for $36.2 million in new aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels left the president's bitterly debated Central America policy in shambles today.

Despite a lobbying blitz by Reagan, the House rejected further military support for the insurgents by a 219-211 vote Wednesday night. In doing so, it dismissed the president's argument that only the Contras could prevent creation of a communist stronghold in Central America.

House Democrats who handed Reagan the stinging defeat said they would support alternative humanitarian aid for the Contras but would no longer finance warfare in a region that is now seeking peace.

As Contra leader Adolfo Calero looked down glumly from the crowded visitors' gallery, Democrats leaped to their feet and burst into cheers when their victory was assured.

The Senate planned to decide later today whether to take up a similar Reagan aid request, but the House action was legally sufficient to cut off any further assistance past Feb. 29 for the Contra forces seeking to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government in Managua.

The White House expressed disappointment that the House "did not vote to keep pressure on the Sandinistas during the peace process" and said it would begin consultations about the future of the resistance.

Calero said his forces have enough arms to last about two months and enough food for a month. "We will press on with our last breath," he said.

However, he added that the Contras still "look forward to getting aid" from the United States.

Democratic leaders were jubilant. "Today's vote is the end of a chapter," said House Majority Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif. "The Contra policy is the past."

Toward the end of 11 hours of emotional floor debate, Speaker Jim Wright of Texas appealed for a "no" vote on Contra aid in favor of support for diplomatic efforts by Central American leaders to arrange their own peace settlement.

"Mr. Reagan did not come to Washington to preside over Central America," Wright said.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., drew cheers from outgunned conservative GOP partisans when he declared that "the

Mayors begin task force

Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher and mayors from four other Panhandle communities have formed a task force in an effort to give West Texas, the South Plains and the Panhandle areas more attention in the state legislature.

Fisher, task force chairman, said the task force was created at a mayors' meeting before the scheduled Texas Municipal League meeting Jan. 21 in Amarillo.

"We feel like this is an area that has been overlooked (in the state legislature)," said Fisher. "We would like to see more money used for community development, highways and this sort of thing."

The task force wants to hire a lobbyist to represent the 104-county area which includes El Paso, Abilene, San Angelo, Lubbock and Amarillo, as well as hundreds of small communities.

According to Texas Municipal League (TML), this 104-county area represents 41 percent of the counties in Texas, yet it only represents 18 percent of the state House of Representatives and 19 percent of the state Senate.

Spearman Mayor Ralph Blodgett, another task force member, is a former TML president, and he said hiring a lobbyist for the area could be very effective.

"If you have a good lobbyist that understands the art of compromise and has good credibility, he can do a lot of good," said Blodgett. "We need someone who understands (the difference between) a frivolous request and something that really matters."

The something that really matters, according to Blodgett, is a seat on the governor's horse racing committee.

"Most of the members will be from east and south Texas, so we've got to get someone from this area on the board," said Blodgett.

The dollar amount required to hire a qualified lobbyist may be steep—up to $300,000 a year, said Blodgett—but Fisher said the money shouldn't be a factor since the lobbyist would represent the many municipalities in this area that would contribute to his salary.

But Blodgett said a lobbyist isn't the sole answer to the problem.

"We hurt ourselves by not having any continuity in the Senate in Austin," said Blodgett. "We have to have a long-term senator who can gain some credibility for this area—someone who knows the legislators and the governor and someone who can get some things done."

This 104-county area of North and West Texas has 41 percent of the state's counties, but only 18 percent of the representation in the state house and senate. The task force will try to strengthen the representation of the area in Austin.

A 12-county southeastern corridor is the most populated and best represented area of the state.

The current U.S. sugar program is coming under criticism in the media, and most of the information for the articles and editorials is coming from a half-dozen sugar-using companies.

An editorial in last Saturday's Amarillo Globe-News is typical of the one-sided attacks on the domestic sugar industry, claiming the "cozy arrangement" enacted by Congress causes American consumers to pay $3 billion more for their annual food bill, and also is costly to the "impoverished countries of the Caribbean Basin that rely on sugar exports."

There are at least two sides to the issue, points out the U.S. Beet Sugar Association, which claims the big sugar-using companies have initiated an all-out campaign to destroy the U.S. beet sugar industry. Chief lobbyists against the current government sugar program are large users of sugar such as the makers of Coke, Hershey's and Jell-O, according to Dave Carter, president of beet sugar association.

"Users claim the differential price between U.S. and the world price amounts to a 'cost' to American consumers of $3 billion annually," says Carter. "Using these phony numbers, the folks who would simply pocket any savings on the price they pay for sugar—if history is a guide—have misled the media into reporting that the $3 billion translates into about $100 annually for a family of four." Carter adds that the association's mathematics reflect that American consumers have "saved" a billion dollars over the past year.

The government program creates no surpluses, provides the product to the consumers at a reasonable price, requires minimal government outlays and allows for sugar imports at the same rate paid to domestic growers, said Carter.

According to the Sugar Information Bureau in Washington, D.C., sugar prices without a government program fluctuated from 65 cents per pound for raw sugar in 1974, down to less than 10 cents in 1976-78 and up to 42 cents in 1980.

Thirty-nine sugarcane mills and sugarbeet processing plants closed during that period and there has been little incentive for capital investment in the industry since, SIB stated. The current government program was introduced in 1981 and extended five years in 1985. The Sugar Act was mandated in 1986 to operate at no cost to the American taxpayer, except for clerical fees, and the minimum loan rate for the commodity was set at 18 cents per pound.

However, sugar is a foreign relations tool and U.S. policy guarantees a percentage of sugar imports be purchased from developing nations such as the Philippines, the Dominican Republic and Haiti. Critics of the sugar program say the economies of these countries are determined by the amount of sugar the U.S. purchases.

But Carter said U.S. foreign relations shouldn't rest on the backs of American beet and cane growers. He adds that world-wide oversupply of the commodity has led to a policy in almost every sugar-producing country of protecting consumers and producers—so there is no free, supply-demand oriented trade.

Some of the editorials against the sugar program use broad generalities, announcing that U.S. sugar prices are three times that of the rest of the world. Actually, says Carter, the U.S. support price is about 21 cents per pound and world prices were above 10 cents last week, not counting freight and other costs to get world sugar to a refinery.

The large sugar users "parade in the guise of consumers," but their connection with household sugar consumers parallels a newspaper's kinship with a local school penmanship class due to the fact they both buy ink, states Carter.

Most of the 60 pounds of sugar consumer per capita in the U.S. is in the form of prepared food and drink, according to the SIB. But the price of those products doesn't reflect a downward movement in sugar prices.

Bill Cleavinger, Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association president from Deaf Smith County, says the Texas Panhandle beet industry contributes at least $30 million to the local economy, but that the industry would be in trouble without the sugar program.

Kennedy is unanimous pick

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anthony M. Kennedy will join the Supreme Court in two weeks and is likely to play a pivotal role in deciding crucial issues confronting the sharply divided justices.

The 51-year-old federal appeals court judge, unanimously confirmed by the Senate on Wednesday, will not have to wait long for his baptismal fire.

He is scheduled to be sworn in Feb. 18 at the court building. Five days later he will participate with the other eight justices in hearing arguments on a highly controversial subject — whether private clubs may be forced to admit women and racial minorities.

Kennedy, criticized during his Senate confirmation hearings for his own past membership in such clubs, has not tipped his hand on how he views the case or such frequently recurring issues as abortion regulation, affirmative action and church-state relations.

But there is little doubt that his vote often will prove decisive this term and in the years ahead. Kennedy will fill a vacancy created seven months ago by the retirement of Justice Lewis F. Powell, a moderate conservative and often a swing vote in closely watched cases.

The absence of a ninth justice for more than half of the court's 1987-88 terms has caused important deadlocks.

For example, the court split 4-4 in December on whether a state may require some teen-agers seeking abortions to wait 24 hours after telling their parents or a judge about their decision before having the operations.

By the same vote last month, the justices divided over an affirmative action plan designed to promote more blacks and Hispanics in New York City's police department.

Also, court sources say the justices have delayed action on at least a dozen cases until the vacancy is filled.

For example, the justices have yet to act on an appeal involving mandatory drug testing for some federal employees, a case they first discussed in private before the term began in October.

Union leaders are challenging the power of the U.S. Customs Service to require urine samples for those seeking drug enforcement jobs. If the court agrees to hear their appeal, it would set the stage for a major ruling on drug testing for public employees.

In a case involving church-state relations, the court announced in December it will consider killing a lawsuit that seeks to strip the Roman Catholic Church of its tax-exempt status because of the church's anti-abortion lobbying.

Kennedy will take his seat on the court in time to hear arguments in that case and participate in a ruling expected to be announced by July.

Kennedy's confirmation by a 97-0 vote in the Senate climaxed a bitter struggle that began when President Reagan named Robert H. Bork last July to succeed Powell.

Opponents branded Bork a right-wing extremist and he was rejected by the Senate. Reagan's second choice, Douglas H. Ginsburg, withdrew after admitting he smoked marijuana while a law school professor.

Reagan unquestionably has placed his imprint on the high court. Besides Kennedy, he has appointed Justices Sandra Day O'Connor and Antonin Scalia and promoted William H. Rehnquist to chief justice.

But the question remains whether the president will succeed in forging a conservative consensus on crucial issues that Bork's nomination was intended to guarantee.

Kennedy's 12-year record as a federal judge is extensive. But as the nominee himself testified, he is not guided by an overarching ideology.

He has been reluctant to expand legal protections for women, racial minorities and homosexuals. But his tone has been moderate and there is ample evidence of a man willing to approach difficult issues with an open mind.

Mecham closer to ouster

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gov. Evan Mecham's admission that he may have told an official not to cooperate in an investigation of an alleged death threat moves the governor closer to impeachment, a legislative leader says.

The Republican governor, who spent 5½ hours testifying Wednesday before a House impeachment committee, contended that committee Chairman Jim Skelly was "reaching" in questioning whether Mecham has obstructed justice.

"I don't think I've broken any law" or obstructed justice, Mecham said. "Mr. Skelly, your case is weak. ... I have said the truth today. Every word I have said has been true."

The panel is investigating a $350,000 campaign loan, and allegations that Mecham diverted $80,000 in state funds to his auto dealership, and tried to block investigation of an alleged death threat against a former aide.

Skelly, a Republican, said he considered Mecham's testimony "very damaging," and the House could decide by the end of the week whether to impeach Mecham.

The first-term governor also faces a May 17 recall election and a March 9 criminal trial on felony charges of concealing the $350,000 loan. He was expected to conclude his testimony today. No other witnesses are scheduled.

Skelly said he did not know if there were enough votes to impeach

Mecham but added, "I suspect if there's no great refutation of the testimony we've gotten thus far, that the votes are there."

It takes 31 votes to impeach in the 60-member House and 20 votes to convict in the 30-member Senate.

"I think the votes are here," Republican Rep. Jim Hartdegen said after hearing Mecham testify. "Thirty-five plus."

Other lawmakers' predictions ranged from 33 to 50 votes, and some said much would depend on whether the Legislature formed a single impeachment resolution or broke it down into individual issues.

A three-part approach would allow lawmakers from districts where voters are divided to split their votes and say they sided with the governor on some issues while opposing him on others.

"A lot of us would like to be able to split our votes, and I'm one of them," said Rep. Bill English, a Republican. "Politically, you're wrong whatever you do, so politically, you might as well vote your conscience."

Wednesday morning, Mecham denied the testimony of Public Safety Director Ralph Milstead, who said the governor told him not to cooperate with Attorney General Bob Corbin's investigation of an alleged death threat by a state official against Donna Carlson, a former legislative liaison.

Conservatives upset networks ignored plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Live television or no live television, President Reagan's power to make a speech and bring pressure on Congress isn't what it used to be.

White House conservatives are furious with the three major television networks for not carrying live the president's last-minute plea this week for new aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

But even if ABC, NBC and CBS had joined Cable News Network in setting aside time for the Oval Office broadcast Tuesday night, would it have made a difference?

Many think not. "Presidents have to realize they can only use that weapon as a reinforcing tool when they have a great deal of momentum going," said Joe Foote, chairman of the Radio-Television Department of Southern Illinois University, who is writing a book on the subject.

"Clearly on an issue where the American people are divided at best and probably antagonistic toward him, it will accomplish nothing," Foote said in an interview.

Effective or not, addresses to the nation have long been a major weapon in the arsenal of presidents.

When J. William Fulbright was in the Senate, he unsuccessfully sought legislation to give Congress a right of reply, saying the televised presidential address was the equivalent of a constitutional amendment in terms of presidential power.

He still thinks so. "The efforts of the Congress and so on to rejoin, they don't get the attention; they don't have the audience and only a few professionals pay any attention to them," Fulbright said in an interview Wednesday.

A study by Foote, however, shows the advantage may be declining. Throughout the Reagan presidency, Foote found, the share of the television audience that tunes in to the president has been declining steadily, largely because cable television has made more channels available to many viewers.

Aside from the impact of cable television and the decision of networks on some occasions not to carry the speeches, there is considerable evidence that the impact of Reagan's addresses to the nation is weakening.

Foote was working as an aide on Capitol Hill in August 1981 when Reagan made a speech on behalf of his economic policies, which had run into temporary setbacks in Congress.

"I can personally vouch for staying four hours that night doing nothing but answer the telephone from irate constituents," he said. "He had touched a nerve and they were calling in, and it was a magical moment for him."

In contrast, Reagan appealed to the public last July 15 for changes in the budget process, saying, "Believe me, if Congress won't see the light, I know you can make them feel the heat."

Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., told The New York Times that his office received two telephone calls, both from people who disagreed with the president. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., got one, to his Milwaukee office, from a constituent also opposed to the president.

Speaker of the House Jim Wright of Texas said his Fort Worth office received two calls, both from people opposed to Reagan, and his Capitol office logged 10, six in favor of the president and four opposed.

"We saw no light and got no heat," said Lautenberg.

Surrogacy centers not worried ruling will discontinue business

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Operators of surrogacy centers say the state Supreme Court's landmark ruling in the Baby M case won't put them out of business, but opponents hailed it as a major blow to the practice of paying women to bear children.

Politicians, legal scholars and an attorney in the case said Wednesday's decision, which equated surrogacy for profit with illegal baby-selling, shows that state statutes don't apply to the practice.

"It puts the burden back to the legislatures" to regulate it, said Lori Andrews, a researcher with the American Bar Association. "In the meantime, it continues to leave hundreds of people participating in these arrangements in a legal vacuum."

"If I were running a surrogate-mother agency, I'd find something else to do in a hurry," said Angela R. Holder, a professor of pediatrics law at the Yale University Medical School.

Steven C. Litz, director of Surrogate Mothers Inc. in Indiana, said, "I've always told and still tell my clients that the contracts are probably unenforceable, and the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision confirms that."

"But whether the contracts are enforceable or not just isn't that important because first of all, in 99 percent of the cases everything works fine," he said.

However, Ms. Holder said that if other state courts follow the lead of the New Jersey court, the first state supreme court to rule on a broken surrogacy contract, lawyers who arrange such contracts would be unable to obtain malpractice insurance.

The court's 7-0 decision overruled all but the custody decision of a lower court judge in invalidating the $10,000 contract between Mary Beth Whitehead-Gould and William Stern and his wife, Elizabeth.

"This is the sale of a child, or, at the very least, the sale of a mother's right to her child, the only mitigating factor being that one of the purchasers is the father," Chief Justice Robert N. Wilentz wrote in the decision.

The court said the contract "creates, it is based upon, principles that are directly contrary to the objectives of our laws."

"It guarantees the separation of a child from its mother; it looks to adoption regardless of suitability; it totally ignores the child; it takes the child from the mother regardless of her wishes and her maternal fitness; and it does all of this, it accomplishes all of its goals, through the use of money," said the court.

The judges did not, however, rule out voluntary surrogacy.

Because the Baby M surrogacy contract is invalid, the court said, the case boiled down to a custody dispute.

The judges upheld Superior Court Judge Harvey R. Sorkow in awarding custody of the girl known in court papers as Baby M to Stern, noting the "doubtful" stability of the Whitehead home during last year's trial.

But they said Mrs. Whitehead-Gould is entitled to see her daughter, and directed a lower-court judge to set guidelines within three months. They also voided the adoption of the baby by Mrs. Stern.

The Sterns' attorney, Gary N. Skoloff, said the couple was surprised by the decision. He also said the ruling tells the New Jersey Legislature, "Now it's your job."

Jeremy Rifkin, a spokesman for The National Coalition Against Surrogacy, said the court has "acknowledged that women's bodies and wombs cannot be commercially rented or leased for nine months."

But Noel Keane, a Dearborn, Mich., attorney who operates the Infertility Center of New York, which arranged the surrogate contract in the case, said, "Unless surrogacy is banned nationwide, there may always be an avenue to do surrogate parenting."

TV ministries get stamp of credibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religious broadcasters soon will be issuing their own equivalent of a Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval in a bid to restore credibility to an industry shaken by the PTL scandal.

The National Religious Broadcasters voted 324-6 on Wednesday to make compliance with a new financial and fund-raising code of ethics a requirement for membership in the group and use of its seal of accreditation.

The plan is in large part a response to the PTL scandal, which forced Jim Bakker to resign as head of the ministry that supported an extravagant lifestyle for him and his wife, Tammy Fae.

Ben Armstrong, executive director of the religious broadcasters' group, said the ethics code is intended to reassure donors who support broadcast ministries.

"We feel this will cause people to realize that we have nothing to hide and that we are fully disclosing finances and eliminating possible family control of boards and showing to the public we have open books and open policy," Armstrong said.

The association has 1,350 members that produce about three-quarters of all religious programming in the United States.

To be certified, members will have to submit independent audits each year disclosing all sources of income and every expenditure. The requirements are less stringent for smaller ministries.

The ministries also must make all the information, except for salaries, available to the public.

Members also must have a board with at least five directors, the majority of whom are not related to the ministry's executives and not on the ministry staff. Smaller ministries are exempt from the requirement, Armstrong said.

The code requires members to keep fund-raising materials for a year and submit samples upon request to the association's Ethics and Financial Integrity Commission, which administers policy on ethics and financial responsibility.

The commission will draft guidelines that will be used to evaluate ministries for accreditation, including reasonable salary levels, said NRB spokeswoman Audrey Langdon. The basis of the guidelines will be the Internal Revenue Service's requirements for tax exemption and the traditional practices of most ministries, she said.

The NRB's board of directors adopted the code last September, but compliance has been voluntary.

Armstrong said some members opposed making the code mandatory because they feared the costs of complying with its requirements, including the financial audits, would be too burdensome for some ministries.

'Hi' best line says expert

NEW YORK (AP) — After years of searching for the perfect opening line, social science, in the person of a University of Alaska psychologist, has settled on the best conversational gambit with a stranger of the opposite sex: "Hi!"

In a poll of 650 men and 831 women, that simple yet effective greeting trounced the likes of "Come here often?" "Is that really your hair?" and "Didn't we meet in a previous life?"

Dr. Chris Kleinke of the University of Alaska asked his subjects, most of them members of the university community in Anchorage, to rate 200 opening lines on a scale of 1 to 7, 1 being excellent.

The buoyant "Hi!" shared the highest median rating — slightly above 5 — with more elaborate openers such as "I feel a little embarrassed about this, but I'd like to meet you" and "I don't have anybody to introduce me, but I'd really like to get to know you."

Despite all the anguish that has been put into the conjuring up of clever opening lines, Kleinke found that some of the best are the simplest, including, "That's a very pretty (fill in the blank)" and "You have really nice hair."

Mecham

"I didn't say that," Mecham said Wednesday morning. "I'm not going to tell Ralph Milstead what he can do and what he can't."

But in the afternoon, Mecham said: "I think I am justified in saying to him (Milstead), 'The attorney general I believe is out to hang me and I'm not going to help him,' and I very well could have said, 'You shouldn't help him either.' I think that would be very understandable."

Mecham testified that he was aware Ms. Carlson had been threatened, but he said that he did not know it was a death threat or that it could be construed as tampering with a grand jury witness.

Former state prison construction chief Lee Watkins is accused of threatening the life of Ms. Carlson, a grand jury witness regarding the $350,000 loan, in conversation with an aide. Watkins has denied the allegation. Ms. Carlson resigned as Mecham's legislative liaison a few weeks before the alleged threat was made.

Contra

issue of Nicaragua and Central America will not go away."

"If you vote this package down, you better be prepared to bear the consequences, and who among you is smart enough to predict the path (Nicaraguan President) Daniel Ortega will take you?"

On the final vote, a dozen Republicans joined 207 Democrats in voting against Contra aid, while 184 Republicans and 47 Democrats backed Reagan's request.

The crucial swing votes were cast by moderate Southern Democrats such as Rep. Dan Mica of Florida, who cast his first direct vote against Contra aid after seven years of backing the rebel cause.

"It's time to put the Sandinistas to the test once and for all," Mica said. "Daniel Ortega now is about to be put to the test. If he fails, this Congress will support military aid. I'd say he has maybe two months."

Reagan said his request for $36.2 million through June was mostly for humanitarian aid to the Contras, including food, clothing and medical supplies. Some critics, however, said that was misleading because the so-called humanitarian portion also included money for helicopters, jeeps and military communications equipment.

Of the total, $3.6 million was specifically for lethal military aid — mostly ammunition — which would have been held in escrow until March 31 pending cease-fire negotiations between the Sandinistas and the Contras.

In a bid to win support of wavering House members, Reagan agreed to give Congress a role in deciding whether to release combat aid to the Contras.

House Democratic leaders have promised to submit their alternate plan before month's end. They say it will provide strictly humanitarian assistance to the Contras, followed by economic development aid for Central-American countries that abide by a regional peace accord.

Prisoners microfilming unauthorized documents

AUSTIN (AP) — The practice of using prison inmates to microfilm records of former prisoners has stopped, but prisoners continue to copy other records, including those of juvenile offenders and probationers.

Agency officials say they will review whether any personal or sensitive information is being compromised by the microfilming. The Austin American-Statesman reported today.

The director of the Harris County adult probation office began an inquiry this week into whether its use of the Texas Department of Corrections microfilming center violates a federal court order prohibiting inmates from having access to sensitive information on other inmates.

Lawrence Coleman said he would take the matter to the committee of judges that oversees the office.

The office has a contract with the corrections department to microfilm the files of all offenders discharged from probation, about 20,000 people a year.

Coleman said having prisoners copy the files of revoked probationers who are serving prison terms might violate the court order.

"This is an area we'll definitely look into," Coleman said. "We'll have to do a total review."

Several hundred inmates at four prison units work on various microfilming and data-entry projects. Prison officials said they have more than 40 contracts with state agencies and city and county governments.

The microfilming industry at the prisons is thought to be one of the largest in the nation.

Ron Jackson, director of the Texas Youth Commission, said he will ask the agency's board to review the practice of having all files on discharged youths copied by inmates.

About 2,000 juveniles are committed to the Youth Commission each year, and about the same number are discharged. But, Jackson said, many end up in adult prisons in a few years. The files contain social histories, psychological information and school records.

"Those inmates are capable of doing anything," Jackson said. "Some of them are pretty smart. I assume inmates are smart enough to isolate a particular name and reuse it."

The criminal records of juveniles are confidential by law, and "in essence, we're losing confidentiality with inmates having access to them," Jackson said.

Brackenridge Hospital has sent the medical records of about 12,000 former patients to the prison system for microfilming in the past six months, said spokeswoman Marsha Walker.

Do not wash eggs at home

Consumers who wash eggs at home before using them are likely to do more harm than good.

Today, eggs in supermarkets have already been cleaned properly and need no further washing, says Dr. Dave Mellor with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Improper detergents and improper temperatures coupled with inadequate monitoring of detergent or sanitizer levels have caused a lot of problems in the past, says Mellor, a poultry marketing specialist. Most problems occurred when eggs were washed by many people with small flocks and inadequate equipment. As the industry changed, washing was done at fewer and larger locations, and techniques and equipment for washing eggs were improved.

Dirt or stains on egg shells can damage interior contents, notes Mellor. So commercial egg producers use all the proper techniques and equipment to put top quality eggs in grocery cases. For instance, they use water at least 20 degrees F. warmer than egg contents to prevent any possible contamination of the egg's interior.

Poor washing practices can easily contaminate eggs. Thus Mellor advises consumers to avoid washing eggs before use and to rely on others to do the job properly before eggs are shipped to the supermarket.

Looking Over Map

Toujours Amis Study Club members, Donna Tidmore, at left, and Tricia Workman, study a city map in preparation for the American Heart Association's Heart Sunday, Feb. 7. Study club members as well as the Hereford High School Key Club and Keywanettes will be walking door-to-door Sunday afternoon in efforts to acquire donations for the local chapter of AHA. The workers will also be distributing information packets. Anyone who would like to make a donation but will be out of town Sunday should send a contribution after Feb. 7 in care of Jeff Brown at the Hereford State Bank. This year's goal is $5,000.

Snoring can be risky

Should you ignore your snore? According to the January issue of Texas Medicine, more than 43 million adults in the United States have a problem with snoring.

Snoring is more than an annoying noise, it can signal sleep apnea syndrome. Sleep apnea occurs as deep sleep begins, when tissues around the throat obstruct the airway and make normal breathing difficult. This causes a loud snore, which worsens until the air flow stops. Unable to get enough oxygen, the sufferer falls into a more shallow sleep or wakes up.

According to the official journal of the Texas Medical Association, this cycle may be repeated hundreds of times, causing a restless, sleepless night.

According to the authors, more than 70 percent of all snorers have some type of sleep apnea. Sleep apnea sufferers can be identified by a number of common symptoms including obesity, hypertension, and excessive daytime sleepiness.

Those affected have erratic personality changes including irritability, mood swings, compulsiveness, and depression, all closely related to lack of sleep. These symptoms contribute to a high rate of household, occupational, and automobile accidents, according to Dr. John R. McFarlane, Sr., Dr. Vernon Eugene Grove, Jr., Dr. John D. King, and

James S. Spector, all of Austin.

To combat this disorder, many sufferers turn to sedatives and alcohol to ease the snoring. These depressants only aggravate the disorder and make breathing more difficult. The combination of the disorder and drugs may even result in death.

However, many sleep apnea sufferers have found relief through tracheostomy, a surgical procedure in which a device is inserted into the airway to ease breathing. Another procedure, in which the airway is enlarged, has helped 90 percent of the patients to snore less and experience less daytime sleepiness. But, 40 percent of the patients may continue to suffer after the surgery.

The authors write that sleep apnea syndrome can be harmful to a person's health, both physically and emotionally. If snoring causes you to lose sleep, the Texas Medical Association suggests see your physician.

People believe if you hold the hair of a horse in your hand, nothing can harm you.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

I am sending on a stress diet that a friend dropped in my mailbox last week. It really lifted my spirits. I hope you will share it with your readers, Ann—Kitty L., Principal of S.S.E. School in Decatur, Ill.

DEAR KITTY: Thanks for a perfectly delightful bit of foolishness. It is sure to be the laugh of the day for a great many readers.

STRESS DIET

BREAKFAST

- 1/2 grapefruit
- 1 slice whole-wheat bread
- 8 oz. skim milk

LUNCH

- 4 oz. broiled chicken breast
- 1 cup steamed zucchini
- 1 Oreo cookie
- cup herb tea

MID-AFTERNOON SNACK

- Rest of the package of Oreo cookies
- One quart rocky road ice cream
- One jar hot fudge

DINNER

- Two loaves garlic bread
- Large pepperoni and mushroom pizza
- Pitcher of beer
- Three candy bars

Entire frozen cheesecake eaten directly from the freezer

DIET TIPS

1. If no one sees you eat it, it has no calories
2. If you drink a diet soda with a candy bar they will cancel each other out.
3. Calories don't count if you eat with someone and you both eat the same amount.
4. Food taken for medicinal purposes does not count. This includes hot chocolate, brandy, toast, Sara Lee chocolate cake.
5. If you fatten up everyone around you, you'll look thinner.
6. Snacks consumed in a movie do not count as they are part of the entertainment. For example: Milk Duds, popcorn with butter, red licorice and M&Ms.
7. Pieces of cookies contain no calories. The process of breaking causes a calorie leakage.
8. Late-night snacks have no calories. The refrigerator light is not strong enough for the calories to see their way into the calorie counter.

Abundant Life

PATIENT ENDURANCE

By Bob Wear

The Human Experience presents a constant challenge, or a series of challenges. This process is relentless, and may seem too much for us; but we must not let it be too much for us. We must face this reality with both the spirit and the action of 'patient endurance'—the spirit of never giving up. "Perpetual pushing and assurance put a difficulty out of countenance, and make a seeming impossibility give way."—J. Cillier. Of course, we know that, now and then, there may be an impossibility; however, all things essential to our well-being are possible.

As long as we are trying, in the light of the knowledge available to us, we are living. When, and if we do stop trying, we stop living. In our ongoing efforts we will experience a setback, now and then, but we must not be discouraged. To prevent this discouragement, we must maintain the very best sense of values, obtain all of the available help, and continue our very best efforts. We soon learn that trying and failing are essentials in meaningful endeavor. We actually discover what will work, many times, by learning what will not work. Much of what we do will be 'trial and error', and so we learn and we accomplish.

Edison gave the world the incandescent light, but his success came after many failures. One of his associates is reported to have said that it seemed a shame that they had wasted so much time and effort before succeeding. Mr. Edison replied that their time and effort had not been wasted, because each failure brought them one step nearer success. This is the spirit of 'patient endurance.'

If we refuse to try because of the possibility of failing or making a mistake, we have made the most hurtful mistake of all. Let us remember that "mistakes are made, we can't deny but only made by the folks who try."

Success in all we try is not necessary, but it is necessary that we keep trying. 'Patient endurance' is essential to abundant living.

After San Francisco was upset by Minnesota

49ers' Montana takes season in stride

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — It was an unlikely end to the San Francisco 49ers' season, being upset by the Minnesota Vikings while quarterback Joe Montana finished the game on the bench.

Montana, however, seems to have taken it all in stride.

"A lot of strange things happen in football," the 49ers' Pro Bowl quarterback said. "They say that's why the football's shaped that way."

"It takes some real funny bounces."

The 49ers had the NFL's best regular-season record, 13-2, and appeared destined for the Super Bowl.

But in their first playoff game, the 49ers were ambushed 36-24 by the Vikings, and San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh replaced Montana with Steve Young in the third quarter. However, Montana, in Hawaii to make his fifth Pro Bowl appearance Sunday, said he's not concerned with any possible quarterback controversy next season.

"I'm not even going to think about it," he said. "That's something for other people to worry about."

There has even been speculation that Montana, 31, might consider retiring, but he emphasized that he plans to return next year.

Some of his 49ers teammates said there's no doubt Montana is still the club's starting quarterback despite winding up the 1987 campaign on the sidelines.

"They (the Vikings) were teeing off on Joe pretty good," said San Francisco running back Roger Craig, a second-time NFL All-Star selection for the Pro Bowl.

"We put Steve in to try to spark some things. But Joe's still going to be the No. 1 quarterback."

"It was just one of those games. Minnesota played very well. "Still, we had the best regular-season record," Craig added, "so we've got nothing to be ashamed of. We can come back."

Record-setting wide receiver Jerry Rice, the only player to receive a unanimous vote from his peers around the league for the Pro Bowl this year, said he thinks the 49ers will come back strong.

After making a league-record 23 touchdown receptions and leading the NFL in scoring with 138 points, Rice was checked by the Vikings in the playoff loss.

"I think I just worked too hard the week before the game," Rice said. "I burned myself out during practice and didn't have anything left for the game."

"I just wasn't Jerry Rice in that game."

"I'm learning that you can't practice so hard every day, that you have to ease up so you'll have something left for Sunday."

The 49ers at the Pro Bowl, like most of the other players, certainly don't intend to burn themselves out during practice for Sunday's game.

"I'm headed down to the beach later to get one of those long boards, those huge surfboards," Montana said. "Those are the only kind I can stand up on."

Elks Hoop Shoot scheduled Saturday

The 16th annual Elks Hoop Shoot, a national free throw shooting contest for youth ages eight through 13, begins with local competition this Saturday at the Hereford High School gym.

The foul shot contest starts at 9 a.m., R.D. Holmes and Ray Reddinger of the Hereford Lodge No. 2269 announced.

More than three million boys and girls throughout the nation entered last year's Elk Hoop Shoot. Age divisions in the competition are eight to nine; 10 to 11; and 12 to 13.

Each contestant shoots 25 free throws. The boy and girl in each age group with the most free throws made advance through four rounds of competition to qualify for the national finals in Indianapolis, Ind.

The district competition is scheduled on Saturday, Feb. 13 in Hereford. Names of the national winners will be inscribed on the Elks national Hoop Shoot plaque, which is on permanent display in the Naismith Memorial Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

For more information on the Elks Hoop Shoot competition for Hereford, contact Holmes at 364-7140 or Reddinger at 364-4968.

Pankovits reaches contract agreement with Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros reached a contract settlement with utility man Jim Pankovits, leaving only right fielder Kevin Bass unsigned.

Pankovits, who filed for arbitration and was seeking $150,000 for the 1988 season, agreed to a split contract, in which he will be paid $150,000 if he remains with the Astros and $75,000 if he plays with the minor leagues, Astros General Manager Bill Wood said Wednesday.

The Astros had submitted a counter offer to Pankovits of $135,000. He earned $100,000 in 1987, when he batted .230 in only 61 major-league at bats with one home run.

The Pankovits signing leaves Bass as the club's only player still scheduled for salary arbitration later this month.

Bass, who could be eligible for free agency at the end of the upcoming season, has requested a salary of $930,000 for 1988. The Astros have countered with a salary offer of $730,000.

An arbitration hearing is set for Feb. 15 in New York, if an agreement is not reached by then.

Wood and Bass' agent have been negotiating a multi-year contract.

Bass, a 1986 All-Star, hit .284 last season and was second behind first baseman Glenn Davis with 19 home runs and 85 RBI. He also has 21 steals.

Carroll adjusts to new roles with Houston Rockets

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — It's been a season of adjustment for the Houston Rockets' Joe Barry Carroll.

Carroll started the first 14 games of the NBA season with the Golden State Warriors, where he was booed and carried the uncomplimentary nickname of "Joe Barely Cares."

Since coming to the Rockets Dec. 12 with Sleepy Floyd in exchange for Ralph Sampson, Carroll has shown that his stoic demeanor on the court doesn't reflect his desire.

Carroll's latest gem was Tuesday night when he scored 21 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and blocked five shots in Houston's 109-99 victory over Phoenix.

Carroll has had to adjust to his new role as a bench player and as a Rocket, and he must face the basket more in relief of Jim Petersen.

"When I came in (to Houston) I had to accept that I would be facing the basket more and playing against smaller guys," Carroll said. "It takes me out of my offense a little more because I have to shoot from different places."

But Carroll is learning.

He scored 16 points and got six rebounds in Friday's 108-92 victory over Midwest division-leading Dallas. His high for the year was 25 points and 13 rebounds against Detroit on Dec. 29.

"The past month has been like training camp for me," Carroll said. "I've had to get in a different kind of condition and coming off the bench has compounded the adjustment."

Carroll is slowly uncrating his jump shot.

"The adjustment is ongoing but we're getting better," he said. "I got in a few good jumpers from outside and I was passing the ball good."

Carroll hit seven straight points late in the fourth quarter after the Suns had pulled within one point of the Rockets.

"He did a great job on the offensive boards and got some good defensive rebounds," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said. "He played hard tonight. I'm glad he's on our team."

The Rockets host New Jersey today as Houston tries to gain ground on the Mavericks.

Robinson accustomed to leading way

By RONALD BLUM
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson is accustomed to leading the way.

He is the only player to win Most Valuable Player awards in both leagues.

He was the first black manager in baseball history.

He moved into the Baltimore Orioles' front office this winter, joining Hank Aaron as the only blacks to hold major executive jobs in baseball.

Now that Robinson is there, he wants others to follow.

"I'm trying to get them back into the game of baseball," Robinson said Wednesday. "I'm in a position nobody has been in before. The opportunity is there."

Only one black, Bill Lucas, has been general manager of a major-league team. Lucas held that post with the Atlanta Braves for three years before dying of a heart attack

Spinks-Tyson fight could gross $70 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Tyson and Michael Spinks figure to gross as much as $70 million when Tyson defends his undisputed heavyweight title in June, Spinks' adviser says.

Butch Lewis made that estimate Wednesday after negotiations were completed. He called the bout "the only fight in boxing ... the one everyone wanted to see."

Lewis figured the fight would make a net profit of nearly $40 million.

"We've agreed verbally," Lewis said, ending months of often-bitter negotiations. "We're now having the contract reduced to writing" and a signing is expected early next week.

The bout between the unbeaten fighters will be shown on closed-circuit television, but no site or date has been chosen, Lewis said.

Atlantic City and Las Vegas, Nev., were thought to be the leading contenders as the site.

"We're very interested in the fight," said Jack Burkam, vice president of marketing at the Las Vegas Hilton. "We've hosted most of Tyson's championship fights and we've hosted Spinks fights in the past. They were very successful for us."

Donald Trump, the New York real estate magnate and a hotel-casino owner in Atlantic City, has been involved some recent King promotions, most recently the Tyson-Holmes fight, held in the Atlantic City Convention Center, next to Trump Plaza.

Caesars Palace in Las Vegas was another potential site.

in 1979. Aaron is director of player development for the Braves and Robinson began this week as a special assistant to Orioles owner Edward Bennett Williams, the only major black appointment among baseball player personnel jobs this winter.

"There's a lot of jobs that have opened up and I thought baseball was ready to hire a black manager or general manager," Robinson said. "It hasn't happened in 40 years; it hasn't happened overnight."

Robinson, who was in New York for a promotional appearance, is one of a group of black former players called the Baseball Network that is attempting to get more black players into baseball jobs. The group, which includes Willie Stargell and Curt Flood, has met with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, hired an executive director and opened an office in Houston.

"We have a lot of communication. We exchange information," Robinson said of the discussions with Ueberroth. "He may call up the Baseball Network and say that there's a job that's available, let's say with the Cleveland Indians, and ask us for a list of names that we think are qualified and we'll pass it on."

Baseball's examination of its minority hiring practices began after Al Campanis, then the general manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said last April that blacks "lacked the necessities" to hold front office positions.

"Since the Campanis statement, it's opened up all the doors in baseball," Robinson said.

Yet, except for Robinson, no blacks have been named to high-profile positions.

"He has the knowledge. He knows the game," New York Yankees General Manager Lou Piniella said of Robinson. "He knows the players. He's been on the field."

And with experience off the field, Robinson hopes he one day will run a team.

"This will prepare me if a general manager's job opens up," Robinson said. "I could be considered for it."

But part of him still wants to return to the field, where he once managed the Cleveland Indians and San Francisco Giants.

"Certainly if a position came along managing a ballclub, if it was a situation I was comfortable with, I would go for it."

Our Best Friends Are Cutting Us To Pieces.

Our best friends don't always give us the best treatment. Typically, they invite us into their homes, read us like a book, take what they need from us, and put us aside to use again at their convenience.

It's a tough existence, but we don't mind. In fact, we like it. The news, editorials, and advertising coupons clipped from our pages provide our readers with knowledge, enlightenment, even an occasional 30¢ off on breakfast cereal. We're kind of flattered that people enjoy hanging onto bits and pieces of us - sometimes for years. That's something no other local advertising medium can offer.

So, although our friends keep cutting us to pieces, we'll keep showing up at their homes. Our only request: sharp scissors and a steady hand.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — Judicial reform at times seems like one of those ideas unique to regular sessions of the Legislature. Lawmakers come to town talking about the need to reform the judiciary, the media appropriately treats it as a "hot" topic, bills are filed, hearings conducted and then, ever so quietly, the issue dies only to be resurrected two years down the line.

Why no resolution to date? Well, for one thing, the issue has failed until recently to spark widespread interest outside the Capitol and legal community. People simply have considered other issues more pressing.

That's left the fighting largely up to the pro and anti-reform groups. The battle between these groups is plenty spirited, and that makes the issue controversial, at least within the walls of the Capitol. Without a public mandate directing the Legislature, though, the issue has gotten no farther than the hearing stage.

Really, the debate over the issue has left only one thing clear, and that is that the majority of people in this state do not want to give up their right to elect judges in some form or fashion.

So, to this point, the battle has been among three groups. There are those, of course, who see no reason for any change in the judicial selection process. For them, electing judges at all levels by the traditional two-party process works just fine.

A second group would like to do away with the partisan aspect of the elections. Those supporting

"Don't mistake your own shortcomings for government defects."
—E.V. White, Clarendon News, Clarendon, Texas, Sept. 17, 1936.

the non-partisan concept point to the 1980 and 1984 general elections when qualified Democratic judges were swept from office in the Reagan landslides and to the 1982 election when qualified Republican judges lost office in the Democratic landslide in Texas.

The third, and perhaps most vocal, group would like to see what they call merit selection of judges. Under this system, a bipartisan committee of attorneys, legislators and public members would submit five names to the governor each time a judicial post comes open. The governor then would nominate one of the five to fill the vacant post, and the Senate would confirm or reject the nominee.

Appointed judges, according to the merit selection plan, would serve a predetermined length of time before seeking another term in a "retention" election. Such an election would have voters cast ballots only on whether the judge should have another term. Any time a judge is rejected by voters, the merit selection process would begin again. At this point, proponents of merit selection call for the plan to apply only to appellate-level judges.

Each of the camps has its reasons for supporting its respective plan, but the public never seemed that interested in the various arguments. Beyond taking the traditional stance in favor of being allowed some type of ballot in judicial selections, the issue really hasn't appeared to be all that important to Texans.

Until now. Suddenly, the Texas judiciary is under fire around the nation, and people are beginning to question our judicial system a little more closely. At the heart of the controversy is the $11 billion award granted Penzoi by a Texas court in a lawsuit against Texaco. The award has been upheld by both the Court of Appeals and the Texas Supreme Court.

Texaco charges that Penzoi — legally — bought the award. Texaco attorneys note that Penzoi's counsel made generous campaign contributions to the trial judge, the appeals judges and many members of the Supreme Court. To be fair, it should be noted that during the trial Texaco declined to offer any evidence to rebut Penzoi's claim that $11 billion was a fair award.

Still, the heavy campaign contributions to most of the judges involved with the case taints Penzoi's award, even if it was fair. The judiciary's image further has been tainted by official reprimands against two Supreme Court justices and charges that special interests virtually control the Supreme Court.

The ethical questions that surround the state judiciary have been duly noted by the national media. In particular, "60 Minutes," the CBS newsmagazine, did a story that was highly critical of our judiciary.

What all this means, is that the stakes have increased in the judicial reform battle and that the general public is likely to be more concerned about the issue when the Legislature reconvenes next January. At least one of the candidates seeking a seat on the Supreme Court this year already has said he will limit his contributions to $5,000 per contributor.

It doesn't look like judicial reform will stay on the back burner much longer.

If you have any questions about judicial reform, or other issues, please write us at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas, 78711.

Sparks 4th quarter run

Adams leads Denver over Dallas 115-105

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Michael Adams, whose 3-pointers sparked a fourth-quarter run for Denver that secured the Nuggets' 115-105 win over Dallas, says he broke loose because the Mavericks were focusing on his teammates.

"They know I can shoot it, but I think they were concentrating on stopping some of the other guys on our team," Adams said after Wednesday night's victory, which brought the Nuggets to within three games of Dallas in the NBA's Midwest Division.

"Tonight I made some 3s (3-point shots) at times when we really needed it," Adams said. "Obviously anyone in this league can feel it when they get on a roll, but anytime I'm open I feel I can make it."

Adams had 21 points and attracted the attention of Dallas coach John MacLeod.

"Last time we played here Adams did the same thing — he made a lot of 3s," Dallas coach John MacLeod said.

The Mavericks, who did not lead after the end of the first quarter, were within 87-84 in the final period when Adams connected on a 3-point shot with seven minutes, 59 seconds left.

Alex English, Denver's leading scorer with 26 points, scored 12 seconds later. After Mark Aguirre scored for Dallas, Adams' 3-point basket at the 6:34 mark built a 95-86 lead for the Nuggets that Dallas never challenged.

Only seven Nuggets scored, but six had double figures. Jay Vincent, who keyed Denver in the first half, had 20 points, Fat Lever had 16, and Bill Hanzlik had 13.

Aguirre was the game's high scorer with 27. Roy Tartley added 21, Sam Perkins 18, and Derek Harper 16 for Dallas.

Denver coach Doug Moe also said he appreciated Adams' play.

"He's got the confidence and the freedom to shoot it and he doesn't take very many bad ones," Moe said. "He got our pace going tonight and we were able to get a lot of points off the fast break."

Adams played 41 minutes, was 3-for-7 on 3-point shots and had nine assists.

Brewers' Molitor receives baseball Hutch Award

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Paul Molitor, whose 39-game hitting streak during the 1987 season was the fourth longest in American League history, has been named the winner of baseball's Hutch Award.

Molitor led the American League in 1987 with 114 runs scored and 41 doubles and set a club record with 45 stolen bases. He hit .353, second in the league to Wade Boggs of Boston, in 118 games. He also had five triples, 16 home runs and 75 runs batted in.

The Milwaukee Brewers' standout was voted the award by a panel of major-league broadcasters and writers.

The award goes to a player who overcomes adversity. He "best exemplifies the character, dedication and competitive spirit of Fred Hutchinson."

Forward passes were not officially permitted in college football until the 1906 season.

The forward progress of the ball rule in college football was not instituted until 1916.

MacLeod said the Mavericks had too many turnovers — 20 to Denver's 11 — and said Vincent's play in the first half, when he came off the bench and hit 14 points, really hurt Dallas, too.

"Denver's playing very well at home and they're rested," he said.

"We just turned the ball over too often. We did some of that ourselves but you also have to credit the Denver defense for a large part of those turnovers," he said.

Moe also appreciated Denver's recent wins over the Los Angeles Lakers, Milwaukee and Atlanta — all at home.

"Beating Dallas certainly is nice and we've had a terrific home stand," he said. "But Dallas is going to be hard to catch the rest of the way."

Elsewhere, it was Boston 118, Indiana 103; Philadelphia 96, Golden State 84; Cleveland 107, Washington 106, and Utah 123, Sacramento 91.

Celtics 118, Pacers 103

Boston beat Indiana for the 23rd consecutive time at Boston Garden and won its 66th straight regular-season game at home against Eastern Conference opponents.

Kevin McHale scored 27 points and Larry Bird and Danny Ainge 21 apiece for the Celtics.

The Pacers, down 66-58 at the half after trailing by as many as 15 points, closed the deficit to 78-74 with less than four minutes to go in the third quarter. Ainge then triggered a 9-0 run with an 18-foot jumper and a 3-pointer, and Boston led by at least seven points the rest of the way.

The Pacers were led by Vern Fleming with 18 points.

Jazz 123, Kings 91

Utah won its third straight game for the first time this season as Rickey Green scored 16 of his 18 points in the first half and Karl Malone finished with 25 points and 10 rebounds against Sacramento, which is 2-16 on the road.

Thurl Bailey added 22 points for the Jazz, while Reggie Theus led the Kings with 21.

Green came off the bench in the second period and hit his first eight shots, including five in the second quarter, as the Jazz pulled away to a 56-45 halftime lead.

Bailey scored 12 points and John Stockton added seven points and five assists as Utah outscored Sacramento 38-22 in the third period and took a 94-67 lead into the final quarter.

Cavaliers 107, Bullets 106

Cleveland won its fifth straight when Mark Price, hitting 90 percent of his free throws, missed his first attempt from the line with five seconds left, then made the second, lifting the Cavaliers over Washington.

After Price broke the tie, Tyrone Bogue took the Bullets' inbounds pass and raced the length of the court, but had his shot blocked by Craig Ehlo.

Elho's block was a team-record 16th by the Cavaliers, including nine by Hot Rod Williams, who also led the Cavaliers with 23 points.

Jeff Malone had 27 points to lead the Bullets.

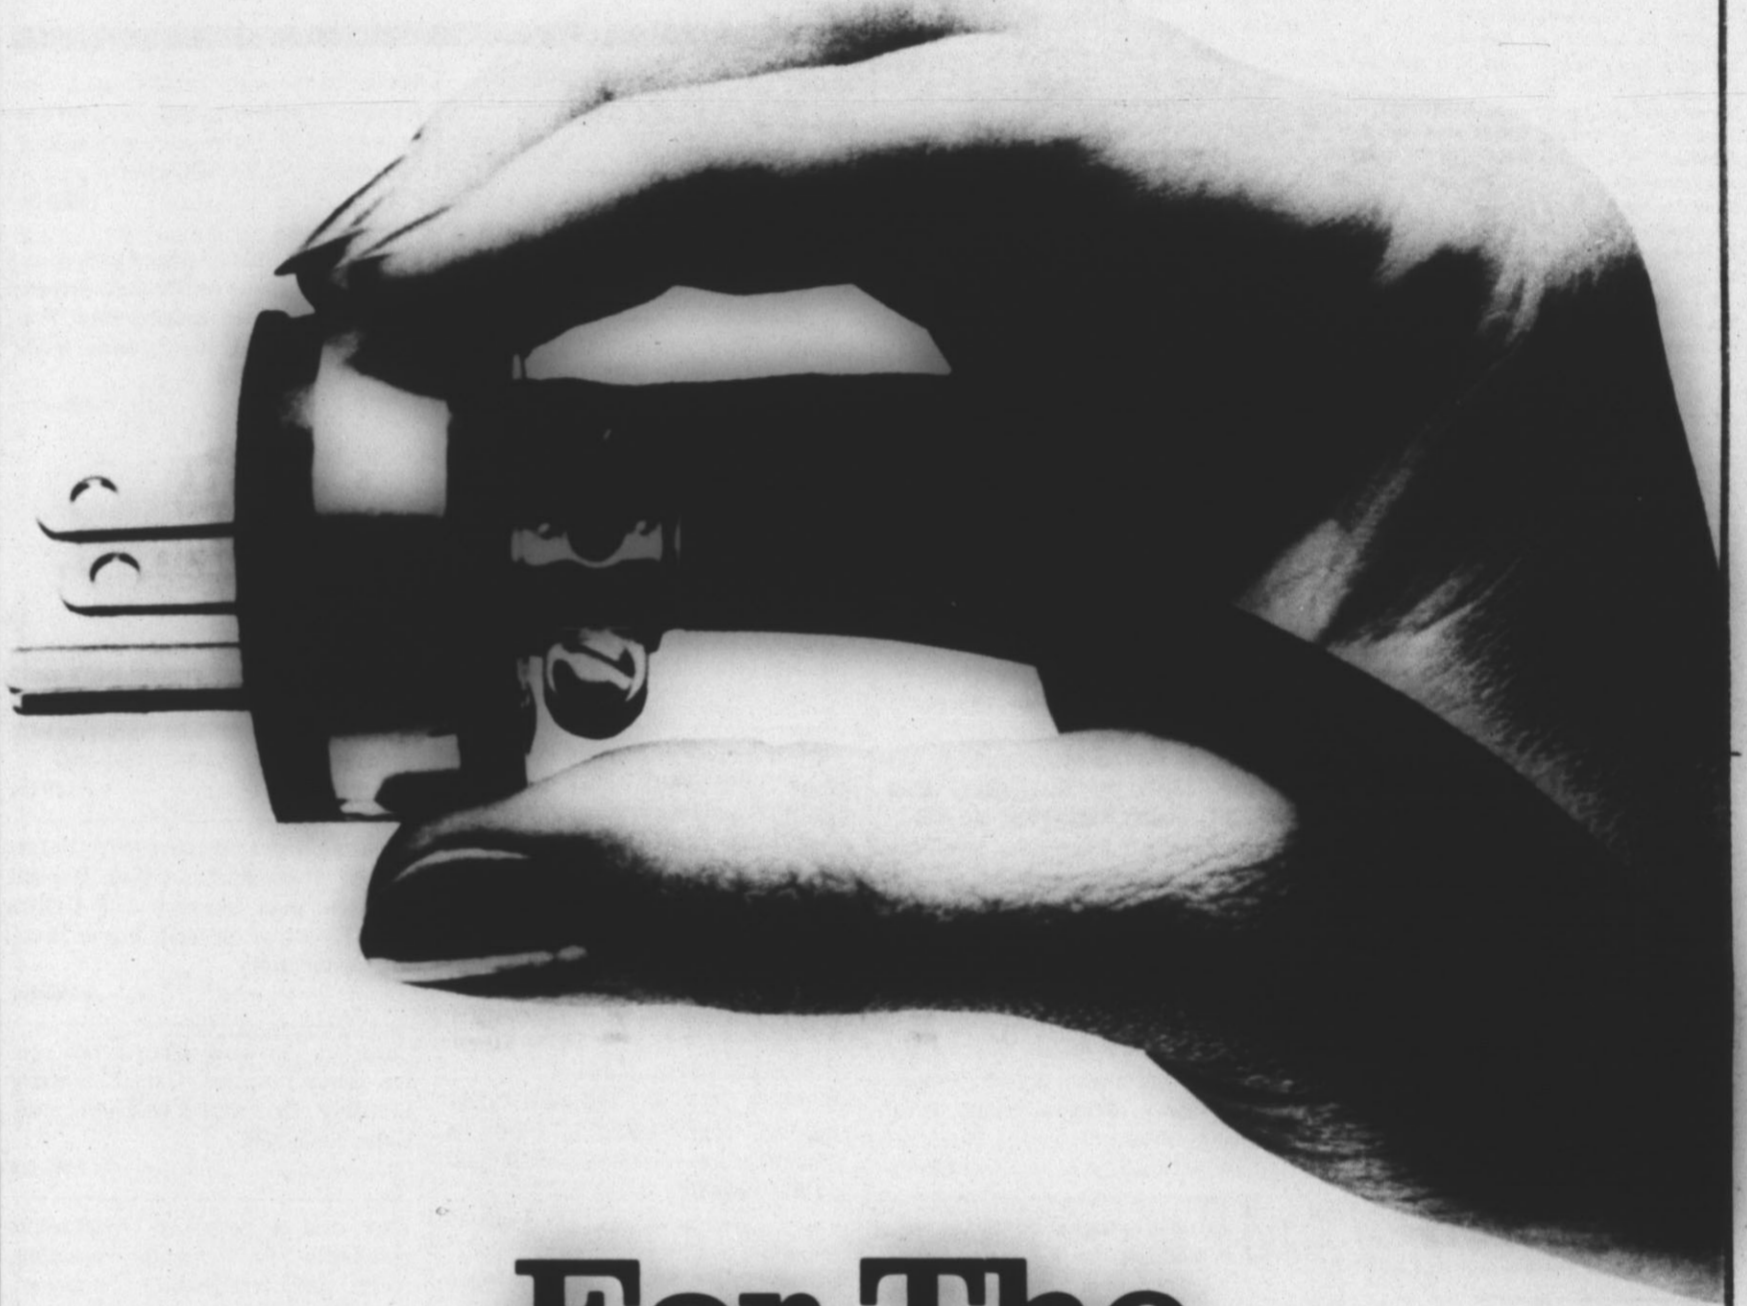

76ers 96, Warriors 84

Philadelphia handed Golden State its 21st road loss in 22 games as Charles Barkley scored 17 of his 21 points in the second half.

Barkley, returning after missing two games with a sprained ankle, helped the 76ers win for only the second time in the last eight games.

Mike Giminski had 15 points and 13 rebounds for the 76ers, while Maurice Cheeks added 14 points and 11 assists. Ralph Sampson's 16 points led the Warriors, who shot only eight free throws in the game.

Now You're Cooking

BY GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

When it comes to cooking with wild mushrooms, Kay Lynn Caviness knows a great deal about the subject. "I went to a cooking school in Red River, N.M., a few years ago that focused entirely on wild mushrooms," she said. "The five-day school featured an Italian chef that taught us to identify and use various kinds of wild mushrooms. He took us out into the forest for mushroom identification and then prepared them for us. It was quite an experience."

The Italian chef, who has a restaurant in Taos, N.M., instilled in Caviness an appreciation of fine cuisine. "He showed us how using fresh herbs can really make a difference in food. He made a wild cream of mushroom soup using fresh ingredients and it is a taste that cannot be imitated."

When she is not in search of special ingredients, Caviness enjoys painting, tennis, snow skiing, and is proficient in the flute and piano. She is a member of L'Allegra Study Club and Hereford Music Study Club.

Born in Littlefield, Caviness and her family moved here in 1966 when she was an eighth grader. A 1970 graduate of Hereford High School, she went on to Texas Tech University where she got a degree in English and Latin in secondary education. "Everyone told me there would be a big demand for Latin teachers, but I soon found out it wasn't so," she said.

In 1972, she married her high school sweetheart, Brent, who is now manager of Caviness Packing Company. They are the parents of Lauren, age eight, and Spencer, age six, and they are members of First United Methodist Church. The active family also finds time to participate in their favorite sport: polo.

"Brent got interested in playing polo recently and we have made it a family event," she said. "We often went to Midland, Roswell, N.M., or San Patricio, N.M. to play, and attended the finals in Palm Springs, Calif., in October." Kay Lynn had to overcome her fear of horses as she took a riding and jumping class at West Texas State University.

But polo is not the only love the family shares. According to Caviness, taking pleasure in good food is a family affair. "We like spicy food like Italian and Mexican food. I enjoy trying new recipes and going to new restaurants and Brent is a good cook in his own right. He makes terrific Caesar salads, lobster, chicken fried steak, and cooks steaks outside on the grill."

Some of Kay Lynn's favorite recipes follow:

EASY CHICKEN DIVAN

2-10 oz. pkgs broccoli, frozen (or can use fresh)
2 c. sliced cooked chicken
2 cans condensed cream of chicken soup

1 c. mayonnaise
1 tsp. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. curry powder
1/2 c. shredded sharp cheese
1/2 c. soft bread crumbs
1 Tbsp. butter, melted
pimento strips
Cook broccoli, drain. Arrange in greased baking dish. Place chicken on top.

Combine soup, mayonnaise, lemon juice and curry; pour over chicken. Sprinkle with cheese. Combine crumbs and butter; sprinkle over all. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes. Trim with pimento strips.

SALSA DI BOLOGNESE (Spaghetti Meat Sauce)

1 1/2 lb. ground beef
1 onion
1 carrot
1 stalk celery
1/2 oz. dried mushrooms
1/2 glass of red wine
1 tsp. tomato puree
1 Tbsp. flour
1 pint of water or stock (beef base, as with a cube of Swiss Knorr Beef Base) fresh herbs: rosemary and sage Place chopped vegetables into hot oil, stir and cook until golden brown, 5-10 minutes. Add ground beef and cook until brown. Add tomato paste and fresh herbs to taste (if unavailable, used dried).

Pour in red wine, bring to boil and cook until wine has evaporated. Add enough water/stock to cover the meat in the pan. Bring to a boil and simmer until cooked.

More tomato may be added according to taste. Serve over spaghetti noodles.

CLAM CHOWDER

8 slices bacon, diced
3 large onions, sliced
4 potatoes, diced
3 8-oz. cans minced clams
About 2 qts. milk
Worcestershire sauce
butter,
salt & pepper to taste
Fry bacon and onions in saucepan until onions are soft but not brown. Add potatoes and clams; cover with milk. Add Worcestershire sauce, butter, salt, and pepper. Cover and simmer for two hours.

CARAMEL CHEESE CAKE

1 1/4 c. crushed graham crackers
1/4 c. granulated sugar
1/4 c. chopped pecans, toasted
1/4 c. butter, melted
3-8 oz. pkgs cream cheese, softened

1 c. packed brown sugar
5 1/3 oz. can (2/3 c.) evaporated milk
2 Tbsp. all-purpose flour
1 1/2 tsp. vanilla
3 eggs

1 c. pecan halves, toasted
In a small mixing bowl combine cracker crumbs, sugar, and chopped pecans. Stir in the melted butter. Press mixture over the bottom and 1 1/2" up sides of a 9" springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes.

Beat together cream cheese, 1 c. brown sugar, evaporated milk, flour, 1 1/2 tsp. vanilla. Add eggs; beat until just blended. Pour into baked crust. Bake in oven 350 degrees for 50-55 minutes. Cool in pan 30 minutes, loosen sides and remove rim from pan. Cool completely.

Add nuts on top and top with caramel topping, which follows:

CARAMEL TOPPING

1 c. dark corn syrup
1/4 c. cornstarch
2 Tbsp. brown sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
Combine corn syrup, cornstarch and brown sugar in saucepan. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla. Cool slightly. Spoon some of warm sauce over the nuts on cheesecake. Makes 12-16 servings.

Cholesterol education program to be offered

The American Heart Association, Texas Affiliate, launched a major cholesterol education program recently which will assist physicians in lowering their patients' cholesterol levels, thereby reducing one of the primary risk factors of coronary heart disease (CHD).

"The program is targeted to primary care physicians because of the importance of prevention and early detection of atherosclerosis," said Michael H. Crawford, M.D., president of the Texas Affiliate. "Of course, any physician who is concerned about the elevated level of serum cholesterol in Texas will be interested in the AHA's new program."

Crawford said that the American Heart Association has established target values for adult serum cholesterol levels that may indicate an individual's risk of having a heart attack. He added that serum cholesterol levels above 200 milligrams per deciliter were considered as being in a zone of accelerated risk.

The affiliate kicked off its program with this physician cholesterol education conference, designed to address concerns about the diagnosis and treatment of high serum cholesterol levels. The conference was held on Friday, January 22, 1988, in Austin at the Airport Marriott from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Topics included: current recommendations regarding the relationship of cholesterol to CHD; how to measure serum cholesterol levels; and how to treat patients with elevated cholesterol levels through diet and drug therapy.

"Participants received materials to assist them in implementing the recommendation and guidelines addressed in the conference," Crawford noted. "The new definition of elevated serum cholesterol level as being above 200 milligrams per deciliter, and the availability of high-risk patients more feasible for routine inclusion in a physician's practice," Crawford said.

He also pointed out that physicians need training in measuring and evaluating cholesterol measurements because results require expert interpretation. "A physician must also take into consideration the patient's other risk factors and any existing diseases," Crawford said. For example, smoking and heredity can further increase the risk of heart disease in a person with a high serum cholesterol level.

"The goal of the AHA is to get everyone's serum cholesterol down to 200 milligrams per deciliter," Crawford said. "One of the best ways we can do this is through physician education."

The ancient Chinese were the first people known to acquire more than one name. The Emperor Fushi is said to have decreed the use of family names, or surnames, about 2852 BC.
