Hunters phlocking in for pheasants

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

By land or air, literally thousands of hunters are expected to flock to Deaf Smith County this weekend for the Saturday morning opening of pheasant hunting season. Though the bird population has been down the past two years, experts say the population has rebounded and they are expecting heavy hunting activity.

Hunters have made reservations from all over Texas and from as far away as Birmingham, Ala., and are expected to begin pouring into Hereford today. During pheasant season, many of the roads leading into town will be packed with pick-ups and four-wheel-drive vehicles and Hereford Municipal Airport will be busy as the hunters migrate to the county, one of the largest in the U.S., which has 973,000 acres of agriculture land, 600,000 of which are currently under cultivation and prime for pheasants.

It is this agricultural use of land which offers hunters a vast amount of coverage for hunting and which provides a haven for pheasant, with the exception of hunting season which will last through 27, according to Michael Carr of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Annually the chamber provides a free service of matching hunters with landowners who wish to lease land for the hunt. "We have had 10,000 hunters on each opening weekend during the last five years," Carr said. Prior to 1982 there were no records kept on the number of hunters, he said.

Earlier this month, the money-making tradition appeared to be in trouble as the chamber office had (See PHEASANT, Page 2)

Medeles is guilty; gets 2-year probation

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A nine-woman, three-man jury Thursday found 78-year-old Manuel Medeles guilty of aggravated assault of a police officer in connection with a May 4 incident in Hereford.

Medeles was given a two-year probation sentence and fined $500 and court costs. The 222nd District Court jury took exactly 30 minutes to find Medeles guilty, then took 40 minutes to decide the punishment.

"I think it was an appropriate verdict," said District Attorney Roland Saul. "I don't argue with what a jury thinks."

"I felt he'd done it (committed the assault). I think the evidence showed he did it, and after the evidence was in, I didn't see how there could be much doubt."

Saul did not specifically suggest that Medeles be given probation, but did refer to it many times during his closing arguments after the jury had found Medeles guilty of assaulting Hereford Police Det. Sammy Sanchez in an incident at Medeles' home on Knight Street.

Sanchez, Medeles, and Cristina Solis, Medeles' daughter-in-law, testified Thursday morning in the trial. Sanchez corroborated the testimony given Wednesday afternoon by three other witnesses that Medeles hit Sanchez after Sanchez and others had tried to explain that burning trash in an open container is a violation of city ordinance and the man could be arrested if he did not put out the fire.

Sanchez testified that the Hereford Fire Department, which had received a call on a fire "of undetermined source" on May 4, had requested that a Spanish-speaking officer come to the home.

Sanchez said he told the man he was a police officer, and said he told Medeles that he needed to put out the fire or be cited for burning trash.

Sanchez said he then turned to three Medeles family members who were standing in the home's doorway to ask them to help explain, and was struck "by something" by Medeles.

Solis said that she saw Sanchez and Animal Control Officer Butch (See TRIAL, Page 2)

WDIC gets partial okay

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The State Nuclear Waste Programs Office, after earlier approving the concept while giving an okay to the 1988 work plan of the Waste Deposit Impact Committee, has postponed allowing $42,000 for a study of possible socioeconomic impacts from efforts to site a nuclear waste repository in Deaf Smith County.

Allowed by the state, and okayed by WDIC at its regular December meeting Thursday, were contracts for $150,000 to Texas Tech University for a comprehensive local Geotechnical and Environmental Monitoring Plan, a $20,000 proposal from Gerald McCathern of Hereford to study possible agricultural impacts, and a monthly newsletter for WDIC and other interested persons for $22,500.

The $42,000 study, which would have been prepared by Dr. Steve Murdock of Texas A&M University, "is probably one of the most important studies of the group," said WDIC Executive Director Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner.

He said Auburn Mitchell, the new director of the state NWPO, told him in a telephone conversation late Thursday that the study might be a duplication of state efforts and wanted to re-assess the need for the (See WDIC, Page 2)

Clothing among many local needs

Good shoes and warm clothing are something many of us take for granted, and yet these simple items could make all the difference in brightening the Christmas season for some of Hereford's needy this Yule season.

Mr. B is 64, lives alone, and must make-do on total income and assistance of just $128 a month. That doesn't go far. Mr. B suffers from a handicap, as well.

He's asking Hereford's Christmas Stocking Fund for help with some clothing—and especially, shoes.

Mrs. R. and her husband are parents of a son and daughter, ages 15 and 16. While he works at a local business, his hours are often limited by the weather. Mrs. R. had to undergo a mastectomy for breast cancer earlier this year, and now she's taking expensive prescription medication. She also needs special clothing during her recovery, but can't afford it.

"The open hearts of Deaf Smith County residents can make a difference in these cases and many other equally deserving ones," says a Christmas Stocking Fund spokesman.

"The amount of help CSF is able to extend to Hereford's less fortunate this holiday season will be in direct proportion to the way our community, as a whole, supports the Christmas Stocking Fund. Right now, we have only a few days left in which to collect cash contributions to CSF. While there are over 200 needy families we're aware of within the community, CSF assistance can only go as far as our funding allows," said the spokesman.

The Stocking Fund is administered by an anonymous committee of 15 volunteers from throughout the community. CSF is not affiliated with any other organization.

Tax-deductible contributions to the Christmas Stocking Fund may be left at The Hereford Brand, 313 North Lee, or mailed to CSF c/o The Brand at Box 673, Hereford.

Donors wishing to remain anonymous should so designate their contributions.

After several practice sessions, the employees of a large company invited the fire chief to time them in a drill. With the ringing of the alarm, the 600 employees evacuated the building in 4 minutes and 10 seconds.

Everyone was proud and pleased, until the buzzer sounded that afternoon for quitting time and someone timed that evacuation. This time the building was cleared in 2 minutes flat!

Deaf Smith General Hospital has arrived at a momentous crossroads and we don't envy the county hospital board's job in choosing the right road to take.

The hospital board is currently interviewing applicants for the hospital administrator's job and, at the same time, studying the possibility of contracting with a management firm to operate the hospital.

At first glance, it doesn't sound feasible to pay a hospital management team $117,500 a year for its services, when the firm says the hospital will still have to hire an administrator and a certified public accountant. It seems the board could find a qualified administrator and a business manager and not be out the added expense of a management team.

On the other hand, the management firm claims it can save DSGH $291,000 the first year and increase those savings up to $488,000 by the third year. Those claims almost sound too good to be true, so you can understand why the board is considering the plan.

The hospital board has a difficult task, and the decisions made by the directors will affect the health care capabilities of this community. We don't want to lose our hospital, so the next steps have to be right!

Threatening note found in airliner wreckage

CAYUCOS, Calif. (AP) — A fired airline employee scribbled a vengeful note on an airsickness bag informing his ex-supervisor that he would get no mercy aboard a doomed Pacific Southwest Airlines flight, authorities said.

"Hi Ray, I think it's sort of ironical that we end up like this," read the unsigned message, which authorities said Thursday was written by David Burke to Raymond Thomson. "I asked for some leniency for my family, remember. Well I got none and you'll get none."

Investigators found the message amid the debris on a central California hillside where Pacific Southwest Airlines Flight 1771 crashed Monday, said Richard Bretzing, special agent in charge of the FBI in Los Angeles.

A .44-caliber Magnum pistol found Wednesday at the crash site was linked on Thursday to Burke.

"We have arrived at the point where we have the suspect we believe is responsible," Bretzing said. "Were he still alive we have more than sufficient evidence to charge him."

Officials also said evidence indicates an explosion as well as gunfire may have destroyed the plane as it crashed while bound from Los Angeles to San Francisco, killing all 43 aboard.

He also said a part of Burke's body had been located and had been identified through a fingerprint check. Burke, 35, worked 14 years for USAir, parent company of PSA.

Citizens hear program

An informative program on bilingual education highlighted a meeting Thursday night of the Concerned Citizens of Deaf Smith County. The open meeting was held at the Community Center.

One of the main points of the program, said Supt. Charles Greenawalt, was to "show parents what a bilingual program is all about." He said too many parents do not have enough information about the program. Other school officials on the program were Ophelia Echevarria, district coordinator of the bilingual program; Corky Lockmiller, coordinator of special programs, and John Poindexter, principal at Aikman Elementary School.

About 50 persons attended the meeting. The program included a 35-minute videotape about the local program.

Greenawalt explained that students must qualify for the bilingual program through testing. Both languages are taught, with the ratio of English to Spanish taught varying. If a student is found to be Spanish dominant in his language, classes are taught in Spanish except for 45 minutes of English per day. If he is English dominant, the hours are reversed.

TRIAL

Trevino try to explain to Medeles what the problem was with the fire. She said that, after Sanchez came up to Medeles, she went inside the house to attend her young child and did not see Medeles strike Sanchez.

Medeles refuted most of the testimony that had been given earlier, saying that neither Trevino nor Sanchez identified who they were or in what capacity they were acting. Medeles, speaking through an interpreter, said "I did not know Sanchez was a police officer because I did not know him. He had no uniform, no badge." He also said he did not remember what Sanchez told him when he first approached him, and he said he did not hit Sanchez. "He used force on me because he didn't give me time to do anything," Medeles said. Medeles said he was surprised by all of the people at the scene—"I had not seen such a scandal over something that wasn't going anywhere."

Medeles denied that he scuffled with Sanchez while he was being led away from the scene, and denied that he kicked Sanchez while he was being placed into a patrol car.

"Yes, he is lying" was the answer he gave each time when Saul asked him about testimony given earlier by Jay Spain, Trevino and Sanchez that

Lawmakers praise summit progress, press for action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators of both parties say Soviet deeds are needed to back up the sweet talk that marked the three-day summit meeting of President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"There's now a better relationship between our two leaders and that's always helpful, but in the final analysis, we have to base our actions on Soviet deeds, not words," Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Thursday night after the summit ended.

Nunn's comments were echoed by other senators, along with general praise for the new treaty eliminating medium-range nuclear missiles.

"Overall, it was a positive summit," said Sen. John Warner, R-Va., an observer at ongoing U.S.-Soviet arms talks. "The good news was the treaty, but the bad is the failure by the Soviets to come to grips in a more substantive way with some of the issues that divide us."

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said: "It was a really positive step, even with all the hype. But I think we need to look at it in perspective. There's been a cold war going on for years. This is a thaw, but there's still ice between us."

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said: "Certainly, in the history of the world, the three days were well spent. But it was more transitional than specific."

Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., one of the legislators who met with Gorbachev, called the Soviet leader "one tough cookie."

"Anytime you have two world leaders like that talking, that's progress," said Simpson. "I don't care what they're talking about."

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, termed the summit "a good, positive" step. "I hope it leads to better relations, but we need to see some actions now," he said.

There was some criticism from Republican conservatives, who have been unhappy with Reagan because of his dealings with the Soviets.

"I'm a skeptic about summits and this one has done nothing to change that," said Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo. "Matters of this importance shouldn't be decided in euphoria, but in the cold, clear light of reality."

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, was another Gorbachev critic. "He's been here and he's gone and I'm glad he's gone," McClure said. "I want to see some real substance of change and not all this flowery rhetoric we've had."

Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., another senator skeptical of the treaty, called the summit a success even though he said he'd hoped for more progress on human rights and regional issues.

"That shows the old Soviet Union and the new Soviet Union," said Quayle. "We're dealing with the same Soviet Union we've been dealing with for the past 70 years."

previously a critic of Reagan's arms control policies, said the treaty is important because it came from an administration which had criticized previous treaties.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., a moderate Republican and long-time arms control advocate, said the summit laid the foundation for future discussions on reduction of long-range weapons. "I hope we can conclude the treaty in this president's term," he said. "If not, at least it will be down the road for the next president."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said: "I don't really think there's euphoria over the summit. But there is a feeling of hope, of some significant progress."

Some Senate conservatives, however, are skeptical that the verification procedures are airtight or that defense of Western Europe would be just as secure without the protection of the 429 U.S. missiles to be scrapped.

Reagan briefs Congress leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is filling in congressional leaders today on his summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and his plans to go to Moscow for Round IV next year to pursue an arms-destruction agreement going far beyond the treaty signed here.

A U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the three days of talks produced an understanding that a treaty for the destruction of strategic weapons would be verified with on-site and short-notice inspection, overcoming a potential barrier to agreement.

No great successes on other issues were claimed by Reagan or by Gorbachev. Reagan could report only "some very limited movement" on human rights and no deal for ending the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Gorbachev, before flying off to meet with Soviet bloc leaders in East Berlin, promised to "work hard" to have a treaty ready for signing in Moscow next year to reduce sharply strategic weapons delivered by bombers, submarines or intercontinental bombers.

Such a meeting would be the fourth Reagan-Gorbachev summit and would come just before America went through the process of picking the candidates who will compete to become Reagan's successor.

Reagan sent Secretary of State George P. Shultz on a NATO swing to sell to allies the treaty calling for the destruction of all medium-and shorter-range missiles held by both sides.

Meantime, the president wasted no time going to work to make sure no tide of conservative opposition to the accord arises to kill it if two-thirds of the Senate vote against ratification.

"I believe this treaty represents a landmark in post-war history," Reagan said in a nationally broadcast address Thursday night a few hours after winding up his talks with Gorbachev.

Both its abolition of an entire category of nuclear weapons — those with a range of 315 miles to 3,125 miles — and intrusive inspection arrangements are unprecedented.

"That is why I believe this treaty will not only lessen the threat of war but can also speed along a process that may someday remove that threat entirely," Reagan said in his speech from the Oval Office.

more requests for land than they had land to lease; however, a call for land went out and the chamber now has signed up around two dozen landowners representing over 20,000 acres of land.

So far, Carr said, the chamber has connected numerous hunting parties with landowners and as of today, were still taking reservations for the spots still open.

With hunts leasing for $100-to-$200 per gun per day, the pheasant season has been a profitable venture for landowners, but they are not the only money-makers during the season as motel rooms are booked early, and restaurants schedule special sunrise breakfasts for the hungry hunters.

Breakfasts will be available at Caisson House, Dairy Queen, McDonald's, Pizza Mill, Ranch House and Sirloin Stockade Saturday. Also, The Dawn Lions, Easter Lions and V.F.W. Post 4818 are planning fund-raising meals during opening weekend.

Though the biggest surge of hunters traditionally occurs on opening weekend, Carr stresses that weather conditions and a bird populace, which Game Warden Chuck Cosper said is better than the area has had in three years, will provide great hunting for the full season.

Carr adds that as one of the largest producers of grain products, the county also attracts a large amount of duck and geese. "We are in the flyway zone between South Texas and Canada and, with our grain fields and ponds, the hunting is good for pheasant, duck and geese," he said.

Again this year, all hunters must have a license. For hunters under 17, or 65 or older, or certain disabled veterans, a Special Resident Hunting License is available. All other hunters must have a Resident Hunting, Combination Hunting and Fishing, Non-Resident Small Game Hunting, or Non-Resident General Hunting license. A new license this year is a Non-Resident Five-Day License, which is $25.

Hunters 17 or over should have either a driver's license or state-issued identification card on their person while hunting, along with the license.

local study. After a phone conversation with Mitchell this morning, Eichner said he felt confident the state office would "re-visit the issue in January."

The state expects its study to be ready, in at least draft form, sometime in January.

"I think they will sit down at the table with all parties after they receive their own study."

If the study were done locally, the information could be used for many purposes other than possible impact mitigations because it would be a detailed study of Deaf Smith County's schools, cities, and way of life.

The study currently being prepared by the state includes only two days of research in Hereford and the county.

"This local study could be a model for work for the state," Eichner said. "It would look at what we need to do to satisfy community needs, plus look at what the state, local groups and Department of Energy are all doing and tell us what we need to do."

"Somehow the state perceives it's already being done, that the ACIR study is a duplication."

The TTU study will include a thorough review of the Site Characterization Plan, due for release Jan. 8. A TTU group will work with WDIC to "make sure our conclusions are valid," Eichner said, "and to give us some quality assurance there and make sure we meet our local needs."

The TTU plan would also continue to give WDIC oversight over DOE activities even if a bill, recently passed by the U.S. Senate, becomes law and a site other than Deaf Smith County is chosen for concentrated site characterization.

McCathern's contract calls for him to do a detailed study on possible agricultural impacts arising from the nuclear waste program. The study will entail a complete database on the ag economy, a history of local agriculture, and other ag-related issues.

The newsletter contract is with Zachary McWethy of Hereford, and includes monthly newsletters, as well as all preparation, printing and postage costs.

Eichner also updated the WDIC board on legislative developments, saying he expected a conference on differences between the Senate-passed bill and a bill currently pending in the House.

Medeles had hit Sanchez in the stomach with his fist and kicked him in the shins.

"He knew or had been informed that Sammy Sanchez was a police officer," Saul told the jury in his closing argument. "The only real question is whether he knew that... and he had been informed. Kirk Spain and Sammy Sanchez both said Sanchez identified himself. Mr. Medeles says he doesn't remember that part of the conversation."

"All of this started over a man burning wood in a barrel," defense attorney David Martinez of Lubbock said in his closing statements. "Is it required that everyone in Hereford has to know who the detectives are here? Look at the pictures (taken by Brand staff writer Debe Graves) and see if you see any badges. You would have been as bewildered as he was."

"He started a little fire to keep warm. The question is whether you are going to extend the law to the point where a man 78 years old who has never been arrested is convicted of aggravated assault."

The jury could have found Medeles guilty of lesser counts of assault by offensive contact, or assault by causing bodily injury, or acquitted Medeles.

Tasting bee set Saturday at Wishes

A tasting bee, sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society, will be conducted from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Saturday at Wishes in Sugarland Mall.

The public will have the opportunity to sample various foods prepared by ACS volunteers using recipes from local residents which were published in a special cookbook. Some of the dishes that will be available to taste include desserts, casseroles, meats, pastries, etc. The American Cancer Society cookbook was published several months ago and is currently on sale for $8 per copy from local ACS board members. Cookbook purchases are tax deductible, according to Kee Ruland, Hereford ACS board president.

Additional features of the cookbook include kitchen hints, a special memorial section, and a list of the seven cancer warning signals.

EMMAUS, Pa. (AP) — Though the average family is getting smaller, their new homes are not shrinking to follow that trend, reports Practical Homeowner magazine.

The floorplans of new homes have not been compressed, according to the National Association of Home Builders, although the average family size was 2.67 people in 1986, compared with 2.76 in 1980, the publication notes.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Three years ago my husband told me that he was impotent. He even made a doctor's appointment to lend validity to his story which I found difficult to believe. "Tom" is 68 and keeps saying I should accept his "limitations." I now know that he is impotent only with me.

We are both retired and have separate bedrooms. That was his idea and now I know why. Our bedroom windows are large and low. Tom insists that we lock our bedroom doors at night as protection against burglars and rapists. I realize now that he didn't want me walking into his room and surprising him.

Last night he thought I was asleep. (I am on medication and should have been asleep for some time). I decided not to take the sleeping pill and read instead.

Suddenly I heard a noise and saw a woman coming into our yard. She went straight to my husband's open bedroom window and climbed in.

I will spare you the details of what happened next. It was someone I knew. She lives only a block away.

They don't know I saw them and I am undecided as to what I should do. I'd appreciate some counsel.—Betrayed in Cincinnati

DEAR B. IN CIN.: Wait until you have calmed down, then pick a quiet moment to tell your husband what you saw.

Let him know that you will not tolerate such blatantly insulting behavior, and unless he promises that there will be no more of it and agrees to go for joint counseling he should pack his bags.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are having a battle over his paternal grandmother's funeral and she isn't even dead yet. "Grandma" is 86 years old and in poor health.

Two years ago my husband and I went up north for the funeral of his maternal grandfather. We traveled by plane to save time and had to borrow $500 to make the trip. Money is very tight these days, and we are still paying that loan.

I have told my husband that when his grandmother passes, he can attend the funeral alone because I am not going. He has been yelling about this ever since. I don't know what's right anymore. Can you tell me?—Guilt Tripped in Colorado

DEAR TRIPPED: Since the trip would create a financial hardship on the family and you are still paying back the loan for the last funeral, I believe your husband should accept your decision to stay home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from "Bloomington, Ind." about her husband's beer drinking prompted me to write.

I am the daughter of a man who drank only beer. He started with a six-pack on the weekend and ended with a case a day.

As time went on he did less work and more drinking. Money got tight. Mom went to work to take care of the bills. Dad never took part in school or church activities, just sat home with his beer.

When he got drunk he became mean and abusive. His words were stabbing to the soul. He used to pass out on the floor while Mom was at work, and we just stepped over him because he was too heavy to lift and put in bed.

I wish that Bloomington woman the best of luck. If she thinks beer drinkers aren't alcoholics she'll need it.—Been There in Idaho

DEAR IDAHO: I've said repeatedly that some alcoholics drink nothing but beer. I hope the woman in Bloomington gets the message. Her husband needs A.A. and she needs Al-Anon.

This is one of the special pre-Christmas services being held in First UMC, and will be followed on Dec. 20 by the children's musical in the evening. Last Sunday an annual program, Hanging of the Greens, was held as the Christmas tree was lighted and other decorations placed in the sanctuary. Youth of the church made a caroling tour of the city that evening.

Mission Yearbook-Peng Cuian is a seminary student at the Nanjing Theological Seminary in mainland China. He says, "In the past, whenever I heard the term 'missionary' I would think of 'imperialists' and other negative images. But when I was in Green Lake, Wisconsin, I saw a black wooden chair with Chinese characters for peace carved on its back. People there told me that for all these years they had this chair placed facing east, so they would not forget to pray for China. The former missionaries there were very happy to see us seminary students. With deep emotion and tears they held our hands and said in no-so-fluent Chinese: 'Thank God! China is my home!' Please pray for the Chinese seminary, its students, and the rebirth of the Church in China."

FIRST CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

The public is invited to a two-part musical entitled "From The Cradle To The Cross" at 7 p.m. Saturday through Monday at the church. It is free of charge.

Written and directed by Jeff Love, the musical depicts the creation and the fall of mankind leading to the need and purpose of the life of Jesus. Darren Dye for West Texas State University orchestrated the musical and the sound tracks were recorded in Hereford at Sound Stage One Studios.

The performance deals with the reasons of Christmas and redemption as portrayed by the 50-voice choir in a song entitled "Redeeming Love." The sanctuary will be transformed into a heaven type setting and the sanctuary choir will be the great angelic host. The audience will seem as though they are experiencing the events that will be taking place through atmosphere and props. The program will be aided with over 25 theatrical lights.

Before entering the sanctuary, the public will be walking among live sheep, donkeys and llamas in a setting depicting a busy marketplace in Jerusalem where merchants will be peddling their wares.

Mary and Joseph, portrayed by Susie Merrick and Jim Haile, will perform a love song and Baby Jesus will be played by Rebecca Hilton and Teel Merrick.

Performing as shepherds will be Brian Stanaland, Shannon Wilburn and Terry Huffaker. The three kings will be played by David Combs, Glenn Phibbs, and David Burns.

Musical planned

More than 50 life-size marionettes will be featured during the Hereford Community Concert Association's musical set for 8 p.m. Saturday in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Staged by the internationally-renowned Broadway Marionettes, "A Christmas Carol" retells the classic Dickens tale.

27 denied INS amnesty

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service says he has recommended that amnesty be denied to 27 people who unknowingly used fraudulent documents to qualify for temporary resident status amnesty under the immigration reform act.

The documents were provided by three people who were indicted this week in El Paso on charges they sold fictitious rental receipts and letters from employers to allow people to qualify for amnesty.

District INS director Al Giugni said Wednesday that an investigation began when processors at the INS Legalization Center in El Paso noticed that at least 27 applicants used what appeared to be fraudulent documents.

They were applying for amnesty from deportation under the farm-worker provision of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986.

Under that law, farmworkers can get amnesty if they have worked in the United States at least 90 days between May 1, 1985, and May 1, 1986. Farmworkers who get amnesty can eventually apply for U.S. citizenship.

"The 27 persons were given temporary resident status, but we have recommended to the regional office that amnesty be denied," he said.

Giugni said the 27 people were unaware that they were using fraudulent documents when they applied for amnesty, but they still face deportation under the law.

"Some of them we may not be able to locate. If the three are found guilty, then we will wait until the 27 people come in to renew their temporary cards," he said. "Then we will probably deport them."

Indicted were Tomas Reyes Esparza Sr., 54, a farm-labor contractor, Carmen Palacios, 21, his secretary, and Martha Cruz, 24, an El Paso notary public.

Giugni said the investigation took four months to complete.

Reyes, Palacios and Cruz were indicted for allegedly selling fraudulent immigration documents for $2,290 to two undercover INS agents posing as farmworkers.

Reyes and Palacios were arrested Dec. 4 and appeared Monday before a federal magistrate. Palacios was released on $10,000 bond and Reyes was ordered held without bond in El Paso County Jail. Reyes is scheduled for arraignment and a bond hearing before U.S. Magistrate Philip Cole.

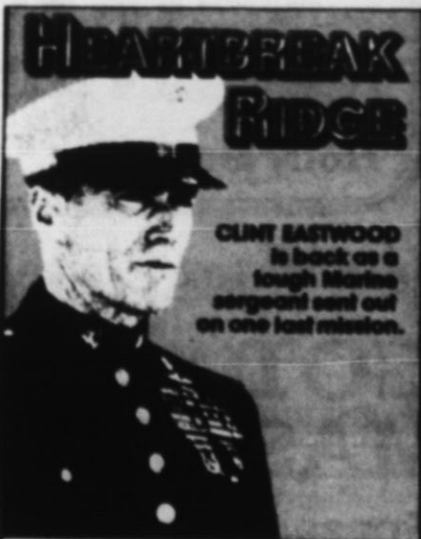

Cruz was arrested Tuesday and released on $10,000 bond.

The charges against the three include one count each of conspiring to obtain documents for temporary residence status by making false statements, and one count each of conspiring to obtain false INS documents while under oath.

Palacios is charged with a third count of making a false statement to federal officers.

Cruz is charged with two other counts involving false statements to obtain special agricultural worker status.

Each count carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

State judge, Pennzoil head criticize '60 Minutes' story

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas Supreme Court justice and the chairman of Pennzoil have criticized as slanted a "60 Minutes" story on campaign contributions to the Texas judiciary.

But Gov. Bill Clements, who has blasted the Supreme Court for not having a hearing on Texaco's $11 billion loss to Pennzoil, said Tuesday he thought the CBS weekly program's story, aired Sunday, was "very well done."

Connections exist between Texaco and "60 Minutes," said Justice William Kilgarlin and Pennzoil Chairman J. Hugh Liedtke in separate appearances. They noted that CBS chief executive officer Lawrence Tisch is involved with Texaco.

Tisch testified on behalf of Texaco in Houston state district court, where a jury awarded Pennzoil $11 billion because of Texaco's alleged interference in Pennzoil's planned merger with Getty Oil. The award was upheld by a state appeals court.

As a Getty board member, Tisch voted in favor of the Pennzoil merger plan, then later voted for Texaco's plan to acquire Getty.

"They ask us, 'Is justice for sale?' I'll paraphrase that. Was '60 Minutes' for sale?" Kilgarlin told the Society of Professional Journalists' local chapter.

The justice, who did not talk to "60 Minutes" for the story, said, "I think I came off well."

"Anything I would have said on my behalf in my defense would have ended up on the cutting-room floor. They make their mind up in advance what they want the direction of the program to be," Kilgarlin said of the program.

Kilgarlin has been admonished by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct for failing to warn briefing attorneys about taking trips financed by parties in cases and for soliciting money from attorneys and others to defend himself before a legislative committee and file a libel lawsuit on allegations against him.

Liedtke told the Rotary Club of Austin, "It's not the first time that they ('60 Minutes') have done that kind of reporting job ... What they don't like, they leave on the cutting-room floor and what they think that they can put together in a form that represents their viewpoint, they tend to bring forth."

Roy Brunett, CBS News spokesman for "60 Minutes," said, "We stand by our story. We believe it was a valid, fair and accurate report."

"Mr. Tisch's connection in no way plays into the considerations of '60 Minutes' as to what stories we pursue, develop and, finally, broadcast. Mr. Tisch has no input whatsoever as to the decisions of '60 Minutes,'" Brunett said.

Clements said the story was a good one.

"It certainly left our Texas judicial system in a bad light ... '60 Minutes' has said basically what I've been saying, and that is we have not been well-served by the Texas Supreme Court," Clements told a news conference.

Clements last week harshly criticized the court for deciding against hearing Texaco's appeal of the $11 billion judgment.

The court found no reversible error in the lower courts' rulings in the case. Texaco, which has gone into bankruptcy court, has said it will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Kilgarlin said, "When I went to law school, I was told that you decided cases based on the law and on the facts."

"Now Gov. Clements has added a third element ... I suppose based on what he has said, we are to decide cases on the law, the facts and how it affects the business economy in the state of Texas," Kilgarlin said.

The Texas Supreme Court does not have the authority to adjust the size of a lower court award, Kilgarlin noted. He said the court pondered the Texaco-Pennzoil case for four months.

"To say that we just refused to hear the case without study is a total misrepresentation of the facts. More study went in on that particular case by the Supreme Court (than) on any other application for writ of error that we've had since I've been on the court," he said.

Buffalo's Bennett hopes to haunt Indianapolis

Bills, Colts battle for AFC East supremacy

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

It will be a battle for AFC East supremacy to Buffalo's Cornelius Bennett. And maybe a little more.

On Sunday, Bennett and his fellow Bills journey to the Hoosier Dome to play the Indianapolis Colts, who lead the division by one game and could just about wrap up the title with a victory.

Bennett, who joined the Bills last month as part of the three-team Eric Dickerson trade, has been instrumental in Buffalo's defensive resurgence. He was the second player picked in this year's draft, but the Colts couldn't sign the All-America linebacker from Alabama. Now, he's hoping to haunt the Colts and lift the Bills into a tie for the division lead.

"I'd like to beat them only because they're in first place and we have to beat them for the playoffs," Bennett said. "I never played for them, I don't worry about them especially."

But the Colts certainly will pay special attention to Bennett. Coach Ron Meyer knows the kind of damage Bennett can do.

"He has the same ability as Lawrence Taylor or Andre Tippett to jar the ball out of your hands," Meyer says. "The thing about Cornelius is that he gets you out in space and then destroys you."

Bennett has 37 tackles and 3½ sacks in five games. His acquisition also allowed a switch of fellow rookie Shane Conlan from outside to inside linebacker. Conlan, the eighth overall selection out of Penn State, leads the Bills with 86 tackles.

The Colts, 7-5, are 5-2 in the AFC East under the first tiebreaker for settling the division championship, and beat Buffalo in a game during the NFL players strike. Buffalo, 6-6, would have almost no chance to win the division if it loses Sunday.

Two other AFC East rivals, the New York Jets and New England Patriots, play Sunday. The Jets, 6-6, and the Patriots, 5-7, have each been weakened by injuries.

Miami, also 6-6 in the division, is at Philadelphia.

Minnesota, which is at Green Bay, can secure a wild-card spot with a victory if St. Louis loses at home to the New York Giants and the Los Angeles Rams are beaten by Atlanta.

San Francisco, which holds a one-game lead over New Orleans in the NFC West — both teams have clinched playoff berths — hosts Chicago, the NFC Central champ, on Monday night. The Saints are at home to Houston on Sunday.

The Oilers are in a three-way tie atop the AFC Central with Cleveland, which is at home against Cincinnati, and Pittsburgh, which visits San Diego. The Chargers are 8-4 and a half-game in back of first-place Denver in the AFC West.

Also Sunday, the Broncos play at Seattle, NFC East champion Washington entertains Dallas, while the Los Angeles Raiders are at Kansas City and Detroit plays at Tampa Bay.

The Patriots will be out of the AFC East race if they lose to the Jets, who need help in Indianapolis and a victory at Foxboro to climb back into a tie for the top spot. New England will have Steve Grogan back at quarterback and he always gives the Jets problems.

"I think he's got his fastball back," Patriots Coach Raymond Berry said of Grogan, who missed the first meeting with New York because of a pinched nerve in his neck. The Jets won that game 43-24.

The Jets probably will be without halfback Freeman McNeil, who pulled a hamstring in last Monday night's loss at Miami. They've also lost linebacker Lance Mehl and cornerback Russell Carter for the season after injuries against the Dolphins.

Even the best of NFL coaches make mistakes

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

On the New York Giants' 1986 Super Bowl highlight tape is a segment showing Coach Bill Parcells being bombarded with all kinds of information from the sidelines. Finally he yelled, "Shut up, let one guy talk at a time."

There were three demonstrations last weekend that, even in the best of times, the command posts of NFL teams are hardly smoothly functioning machines.

One involved Parcells and the Giants, another the New York Jets, who had 13 men on the field on a key defensive play against Miami Sunday night, and the third the Minnesota Vikings. The latter, overlooked in the dramatics of Chicago's last-minute victory, may have cost the Vikings the game every bit as much as their failure to score on four downs from the Bears' 2-yard line.

The key developments began with 6:04 left when the Vikings, holding a 24-23 lead, recovered a Mike Tomczak fumble at the Chicago 1. Minnesota failed on three running attempts, then elected to go for the touchdown rather than the field goal on fourth down. Darrin Nelson was thrown for a four-yard loss by Todd Bell.

That was thought to be the big mistake by Coach Jerry Burns in a game the Bears won 30-24 on Tomczak's 38-yard touchdown pass to Dennis Gentry.

But was it? After the goal line stand, Chicago moved the ball to their 36, then punted, giving the Vikings the ball at the Minnesota 29 with 1:53 left. Two running plays left the Vikings with a third-down-and-five situation.

On that play, Alfred Anderson ran up the middle and was stopped just short of a first down. The clock was stopped for a measurement, which showed the ball just short of a first down, and Minnesota lined up to

Ohio State group wants black grid coach

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State campus group says it will ask black athletes to boycott Ohio State football and basketball programs unless a black replaces fired head football coach Earle Bruce.

The Coalition Against Racism in Colleges and Universities called on Athletic Director James Jones to end what it called a racist practice of not hiring black coaches.

The group said it has several black candidates it would like to see get the job, particularly former Ohio State running back Archie Griffin, a two-time Heisman Trophy winner. Griffin is now an Ohio State assistant athletic director.

punt. The Vikings apparently forgot that the Bears hadn't used their last timeout. In fact, as the punting team lined up, referee Jim Tunney restarted the game clock and the 30-second clock.

Instead of letting the clock wind down, Greg Coleman punted with 25 seconds left on the play clock, giving the Bears the ball with 1:25 left at their own 40. Had Burns-Coleman allowed the clock to run, the Bears would have had less than a minute — and might therefore have eschewed the running play by Neal Anderson that gained 20 yards and put Chicago in position for the winning touchdown pass.

Parcells, who like his team is having an off year, may have forced the game with the Eagles into overtime because of a misunderstanding of the rules.

In the third quarter, the Giants, leading 7-6, had a second-and-goal on the Philadelphia four. Joe Morris ran to within six inches of the goal, but the Eagles were called for having 12 men on the field on the play. Parcells, thinking he had no option but to take the penalty, accepted it, thus setting up second and goal at the 2 instead of third and inches.

New York eventually had to settle for a field goal and the game went into overtime. The Giants eventually won 23-20.

Houston's Sampson is held scoreless

Rockets defeat Utah Jazz, 98-93

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Utah Jazz held Houston's Ralph Sampson scoreless for the second time in his 4-year NBA career but it didn't insure a victory.

Jim Petersen stepped in for Sampson with 14 points and 11 rebounds and hobbled guard Allen Leavell scored 20 points, had five steals and 8 assists, leading the Rockets to a 98-93 victory Thursday night.

Sampson, who had traded verbal barbs with Utah's Karl Malone the day before the game, was 0-for-6 from the field, had four turnovers in the first quarter and 3 rebounds to show for his 20 minutes.

Sampson was silent following the game, dressing quickly and leaving the Rockets' locker room.

Rockets Coach Bill Fitch had little more to say about Sampson's sub-par performance.

"It doesn't do me any good to say anything about tonight's game," Fitch said. "The only game for him I'm concerned about is our next game with the Bulls."

The verbal feud started Wednesday when Sampson was asked if Malone, who scored 32 and 35 points in two previous games against the Rockets, was an intimidator.

Sampson replied: "He ain't 7-4, so he can't intimidate too much."

Told about Sampson's comment, Malone replied "Akeem Olatunwo isn't 7-4, but he's three times more intimidating than Ralph."

Malone led the Jazz with 21 points and 8 rebounds but he wasn't adding fuel to the feud after the game.

"I wasn't intimidated, was he?" Malone asked. "I'm not showing a guy up. You don't kick a dog while he's down. I'm leaving it be. I'm a professional and he's a professional. It's not my place to assess someone."

Leavell, playing despite a hip injury, was favorably assessed by the Rockets and Jazz: He supported Olatunwo, who scored 19 points, grabbed 14 rebounds and blocked 7 shots.

"Allen's defensive effort was as much a key as Akeem's blocked shots," Petersen said. "Allen's playing with an incredible heart rate right now. He's give up his body."

The Rockets trailed most of the game until they outscored the Jazz 10-2 during a fourth quarter surge to take the lead for good with 5:13 to play on a pair of free throws by Purvis Short.

"They got themselves in a hole a couple of times," Utah Coach Frank Layden said. "We blew a big lead when we didn't convert our offensive rebounds. They blocked some big shots."

"What I'm saying essentially, is they deserved to win. Coach Fitch went with his instincts and kept Sampson out. Pete just played a great game."

Malone didn't want to give the Rockets too much credit.

"The plays were there, we just bogged down," Malone said. "It wasn't a matter of them defending us well. We just rushed the plays. It's really frustrating cause we played hard."

Elsewhere, it was New York 113, Denver 97; Indiana 106, New Jersey 91; Chicago 111, Milwaukee 105; and the Los Angeles Clippers 113, Seattle 96.

NFLPA used violence, threat

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association illegally used violence, threats and coercion during their 24-day strike, according to a federal complaint approved by the nation's top labor law enforcer.

The complaint was authorized Thursday by Rosemary M. Collyer, general counsel of the National

Sports briefs

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A sports agent in Michigan has filed a lawsuit against New York Mets second baseman Wally Backman seeking more than $35,000 in fees and interest related to an agreement signed in 1981.

According to the lawsuit filed in Washington County Circuit Court in Hillsboro, Sports Stars International Inc. agreed to seek a contract for Backman with a professional baseball team.

The lawsuit says Sports Stars obtained a one-year contract for Backman with Doubleday Sports Inc., the owner of the Mets.

NEW YORK (AP) — Chad Hennings of the Air Force Academy was named to the 1987 GTE Academic All-America football team, one day after winning the Outland Trophy as the nation's top interior lineman.

The 260-pound defensive tackle heads a team that also includes Holy Cross quarterback Jeff Wiley and defensive back Chuck Cecil of Arizona. Also on the team were running backs Tom Frooman of The Citadel and Brad Muster of Stanford, and wide receivers Chuck Cutler of Brigham Young and Bruno Pietronob of McGill.

Labor Relations Board, following a two-month investigation into incidents on picket lines during the ill-fated strike.

Dave Parker, an NLRB spokesman, said the agency will likely issue the complaint next week, unless the players association settles the charges before then with the NFL Management Council and the National Right to Work Defense Fund.

The club owners council and the right-to-work group sought the complaint — the labor law equivalent of an indictment — after the 1,585 players represented by the union launched their strike in September.

Parker said the complaint's only proposed remedy is an order directing the union to cease and desist from using coercion as a tactic in trying to prevent replacement players from crossing picket lines. No monetary penalties or damages are sought, he said.

Noting that the strike ended in mid-October, both sides said they expected the charges to be settled before the formal complaint is filed.

"All we're asking is that the NFLPA make an official statement withdrawing threats made against replacement players and fans attending games," Marty Kaufmann, a spokesman for the right-to-work group, said.

Tim English, a lawyer for the players union, said such a statement is the usual remedy.

"We're confident that the case will be settled before there is any litigation," English said. "Each one of the incidents involved were relatively minor and they all occurred in the first few days of picketing or the first time there were games at the stadiums. We got them under control early and they did not continue."

Last week, Collyer's office also approved issuing a complaint seeking to require the owners to pay more than $20 million in wages and incentives to the striking players. The amount represents wages and incentives the players lost when they were barred from playing the Oct. 18-19 weekend after ending their strike.

That complaint has not been issued by the agency yet, although NLRB officials said they expect it soon.

Among the allegations cited Thursday were instances in which striking players or members of other unions supporting them waved shotguns, threw eggs, spit on fans and tried to block both fans and strikebreakers from entering stadiums.

Any union that establishes a picket line is accountable for violence that occurs on it, Collyer said. She also said the NFLPA took no "meaningful steps" immediately to halt the misconduct.

The cities where the alleged violations occurred were listed as Kansas City, Houston, Cincinnati, Denver, Washington and Philadelphia.

Collyer said there was insufficient evidence to conclude there were threats or coercion in connection with alleged picket line incidents in Miami, Los Angeles and Indianapolis.

Denver Nuggets at the right time — right after one of their biggest victories.

"They looked fatigued," said New York's Sidney Green, who scored nine points and grabbed a team-high 11 rebounds in the Knicks' 113-97 victory over Denver on Thursday night. "We just took advantage of the opportunity."

The Nuggets defeated the Boston Celtics on Wednesday night at Boston Garden — the first time a Midwest Division team had won on Boston's home court since Houston accomplished the feat on Nov. 18, 1981.

"We played hard, but we just didn't have it," Denver Coach Doug Moe said. The Nuggets, the NBA's top-scoring team at almost 119 points per game, were held to under 100 points for only the third time in 18 games this season.

Patrick Ewing scored 24 points and Bill Cartwright came off the bench to match his season-high with 23 points in New York's victory. Rookie guard Mark Jackson had 16 points and 16 assists.

Cartwright, with a three-point play and a baseline jumper, capped a 21-5 New York run in the fourth quarter that broke the game open.

Pacers 108, Nets 91

Chuck Person scored 18 points and Indiana limited New Jersey to four points in a six-minute second-half stretch as the Pacers spoiled Bob MacKinnon's debut as the Nets' interim head coach.

The loss was the 10th straight and 14th in 16 games this season for the Nets, who fired Coach Dave Wohl on Wednesday and put MacKinnon in charge for the second time in six years.

Mike Gminski led New Jersey with 24 points and 14 rebounds.

Clippers 113, SuperSonics 96

Mike Woodson scored 27 points as defense-minded Los Angeles defeated Seattle.

The Clippers, fifth in the NBA in team defense after finishing last a year ago, held Sonics' scoring leader Dale Ellis to a team-high 20 points.

Trailing by 15 points early in the fourth quarter, the Sonics cut the deficit to 86-77. But Los Angeles responded with a 12-3 run, capped by rookie Ken Norman's 20-footer and layin, to take a 96-80 cushion with 6:48 left. Norman had a career-high 14 points.

Bulls 111, Bucks 105

Chicago backup center Dave Corzine broke a 101-101 deadlock with 1:48 left on a driving layup and rookie guard Scottie Pippen followed with a 10-foot jumper to give the Bulls their triumph over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Michael Jordan scored 32 points for the Bulls.

Terry Cummings led the Bucks with 27 points.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a pleasant, easy way to solve the problem of how to keep hard-boiled eggs separate from fresh in the refrigerator.

Just use a felt-tip pen and put a happy face on the boiled eggs. Even if you're having a bad day, when you open the refrigerator and look at all those little happy faces smiling up at you, you'll be tempted to smile back. — Fran Altman, Portsmouth, N.H.

We can all use a smile, even if it comes from an egg.

Sure glad you wrote. Here's a big Heloise hug for you! — Heloise

NO WATER

Dear Heloise: Have you ever been left with no running water in your house? One morning, I awoke to find a main water line had broken in our yard. I was forced to find a water supply until the line could be fixed.

With breakfast to fix and the coffee not even started, I dreaded facing my sleepy-eyed family with the news. I came up with a brainstorm. I emptied all the ice-cube trays and melted down the ice in the microwave. By doing this, I was able to get enough water to make coffee and juice for breakfast. I saved the remaining water to brush our teeth and wash our faces.

Since this escapade, I have placed five plastic milk jugs filled with water in my freezer. Next time I will be better prepared. — Ann Thomas, Los Angeles, Calif.

You were certainly ingenious and have taught us all a lesson. We just never know how much we rely on such things until we don't have them. — Heloise

DRAINING FAT

Dear Heloise: I buy and eat a lot of yogurt. After I have eaten it, I wash the heavy plastic containers and save them.

Later, when I am draining the fat off of meat, I simply pour it into one of these containers. After it's cooled I can toss it into the garbage and forget about it possibly clogging up my drain. I put the lid on the container to make sure it does not spill out in the garbage, making an even bigger mess.

Just be sure the fat is cool enough before pouring. — Jodi Kiser, N. Versailles, Pa.

KEEPING PUNCH COOL

Dear Heloise: When I give parties, I always have a problem keeping the punch cold enough without adding so much ice that it weakens the taste.

I would be grateful if you might have a hint to remedy this problem. — Mrs. H. Bolton, Rogers, Texas

Here is a solution. Rinse out two or three colorful balloons well, then fill them with water (about 3-4 cups of water to each balloon). Place them in the freezer the day before the party.

When you put out the punch bowl, set the frozen balloons in the bottom and add the punch. The balloons will keep the punch cold and will not water it down. Also, they are very decorative. — Heloise

DEAR READERS:

Here are some hints I would like to share with those of you who make your children's school lunches.

I am sure you know how easily a child can become bored with a packed lunch every day, so here are some ideas I use to help solve those brown-bag blues.

Lunches are easier to prepare if I plan the menu in advance. Adding extras will make the experience fun.

For example, use decorated plastic bags and paper goods or brightly colored plastic ware when needed. Sometimes I even let my child design his own lunch bag the night before when I'm setting out preparations.

Some days you might include a funny picture or a joke for the day. And, when his week has gone really well, put in a slip of paper saying that a special activity that your child likes to do is planned for the weekend.

Putting a favorite treat in the lunch bag one day each week will keep anticipation going for little boys. For little girls, tie a pretty ribbon around the lunch bag to spruce it up. Mainly, keeping your child's lunch interesting and well-balanced will ensure that it's enjoyed. — Ruth Rozelle (Heloise's secretary and Winston's mom)

HINT BOOK

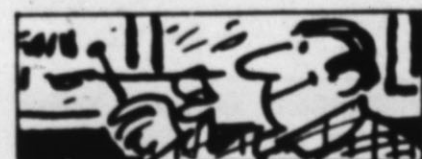

Dear Heloise: My grandmother and I both enjoy your hints. Unfortunately, her newspaper does not run the column, so I clip the many good hints.

I am making a book for her by pasting the hints in an old magazine, three or four per page.

On our next trip home, I plan to give her the "book" I've put together. She has done so many wonderful things for me, I'm glad I can do something in return.

I hope this hint can help brighten others' lives also. — Leah Ehrhardt, Rapid City, S.D.

You sure are thoughtful! Maybe if your grandmother will ask her paper, they will put the Heloise column in! — Heloise

AND WHAT ABOUT DIVORCE?

THEN He left Capernaum and went southward to the Judean borders and into the area east of the Jordan River. And as always there were the crowds; and as usual He taught them.

Some Pharisees came and asked Him, "Do you permit divorce?" Of course they were trying to trap Him.

"What did Moses say about divorce?" Jesus asked them. "He said it was all right," they replied. "He said that all a man has to do is write his wife a letter of dismissal."

"And why did he say that?" Jesus asked. "I'll tell you why—it was a concession to your hardhearted wickedness.

But it certainly isn't God's way. For from the very first He made man and woman to be joined together permanently in marriage; therefore a man is to leave his father and mother.

And he and his wife are united so that they are no longer two, but one.

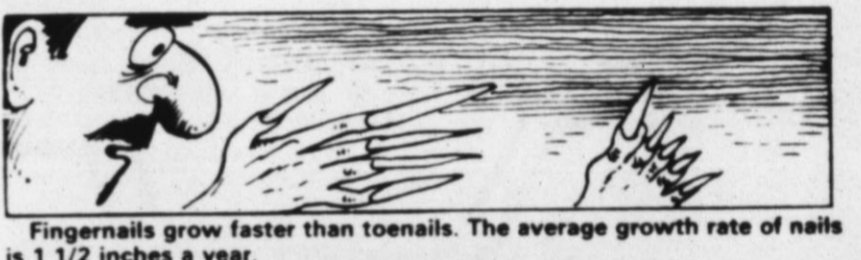

And no man may separate what God has joined together."

Later, when He was alone with His disciples in the house, they brought up the subject again.

He told them, "When a man divorces his wife to marry someone else, he commits adultery against her.

And if a wife divorces her husband and remarries, she, too, commits adultery."
