Smithee will keep fighting income tax

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

State Rep. John Smithee said Tuesday that Texans will have to fight harder than ever if they want to avoid a state income tax, and may have a chance to decide that in an election soon.

Smithee was the featured speaker at the annual meeting of the Deaf Smith County Extension Program Council, where several county residents were honored for assisting the Extension Service in a variety of programs.

Smithee, of Amarillo, represents Deaf Smith and Randall counties in the state legislature, and will be seeking that seat for the third time in November.

"The Select Committee on Tax Equity is looking at the tax structure in Texas," Smithee told a crowd of about 40 persons. "They are going to make recommendations for restructuring the state tax codes. My biggest fear is that we will have a state income tax."

"A lot of legislators are committed to having a state income tax, and you hear more and more about a state income tax. I have sponsored legislation in each session I've been in Austin to ban a state income tax unless it's approved by Texas voters. That has passed the House, but we can't get it through the Senate."

Smithee said Texans are already taxed enough—the sales tax is up to eight percent in some cities, and Smithee says that's as high as the sales tax should go. Pointing to new taxes and occupation taxes, he said "the state has figured just about every way it can to get dollars out of Texans."

He recommended cutting more from the state's budget, and to make those cuts in administration and not in services. "Five percent can come out of the dugout and not hurt anybody," Smithee said. The representative said the cuts could go as deep as 20 percent and not effect "the level of service. There's a lot of padding built in to those budgets."

On other points, Smithee said: "It appears something will be done on insurance regulations on farm trucks. We will get some more exemptions for agricultural trucks. It wasn't the intention of the legislature to hurt agriculture, and a lot of these regulations are unreasonable."

"Tort reform was much adieu about very little. What we passed in the last session won't have much impact."

"We have one of the highest rates in the nation for workers' compensation, yet have some of the lowest benefits. Everyone says they're not making any money in the insurance business. We have to find some solutions."

Drake is Woman of the Year

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

Betty Drake, past president of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, received the 1987 Outstanding Woman of the Year Award Tuesday night at the organization's annual installation.

Drake, who served as president in 1985, was chosen based upon her service to the Women's Division and to the community in 1987.

Drake also is a past vice president of the Women's Division and was a member of the board of directors during that time. She was active with the Christmas Tree Ceremony Committee, the Membership Committee, the Welcome Committee, Animal Action, and Little Miss Hereford and Miss Hereford.

Included with her list of services to Women's Division, Drake has served 12 years with the Camp Fire Board of Directors, and has served two terms as president. In 1986 she received the Luther Halsey Gulick Award, the highest award in Camp Fire, for her service as a key administrator and volunteer for Camp Fire. Along with the Luther Halsey Gulick Award, she was awarded the Wakan Award for her services to youth and the Shawneque Award for outstanding council leadership.

During her 12-year service with Camp Fire, Drake was vice chairman of Zone 12 which extends into Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas, and she taught Indian lore at the Camp Fire yearly camp for several years. She also has initiated training sessions for Camp Fire leaders.

Drake is a member of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame Board of Directors and was co-chairwoman for the Rhinestone Roundup and the Glitz.

Drake and her husband, Lee, have lived in Hereford for 29 years. She is a receptionist at Family Medical Clinic and is a member of First Baptist Church in Hereford.

BETTY DRAKE

Past Outstanding Women of the Year include Helen Langley, 1986; Lajean Henry, 1985; Mary Herring, 1984; Margaret Formby, 1983; Carrell Ann Simmons, 1982; Leatrus Clark, 1981; Georgia Sparks, 1980; Virginia Adams, 1979; Susie McGee, 1978; Sherry Hoover, 1977; Inez Albright, 1976; Lavon Nieman, 1975; Wynell Robinson, 1974; Violet Reinauer, 1973; Katherine Kester, 1972; and Irene McKinster, 1971.

To receive the award, one must be a member of the Women's Division, and anyone in the community may submit a name.

Oil slick moving downriver

Thousands of Pittsburgh-area residents lined up at water tanks and braced for what could be weeks of sponge baths, TV dinners and dirty clothes, as towns in Ohio and West Virginia prepared for the million-gallon oil slick headed their way.

In Pennsylvania alone, the oil spill on the Monongahela River has left 15,000 people without tap water, resulted in 1,000 layoffs and canceled classes for 20,000 students.

"This morning, I showered, shaved and washed in two cups of water. I've never done that before," William Banks, 57, said Tuesday night while waiting to fill a tub and buckets from a tank set up at a Robinson Township fire hall.

"You don't realize what you have until it's gone and you miss it," said Jack Carney, 47, assistant chief for the Forest Grove Volunteer Fire Department.

The crisis began Saturday night when an Ashland Oil Co. diesel fuel tank collapsed 27 miles upstream from Pittsburgh.

About 3.5 million gallons of the oil gushed out, and an estimated 1 million gallons flowed over a dike into the Monongahela.

Ashland Chairman John Hall acknowledged Tuesday the tank was built without written permits and did not undergo standard tests. But he said there was as yet no proof those failures caused the accident.

Hall said the company will pay for cleanup and some related costs. The work is expected to cost millions. The hardships quickly were spreading downstream. East Liverpool, Ohio, closed its Ohio River intakes Tuesday after oil was detected and began using a 36-hour reserve supply for 30,000 residents.

The oil was expected to hit Wheeling, W.Va., 87 miles downstream from Pittsburgh, by this afternoon. Crews there rigged two pipelines across the Ohio River to keep the water flowing to 42,000 residents.

"This is all experimental. We won't know how it works until we're spreading downstream. East Liverpool, Ohio, closed its Ohio River intakes Tuesday after oil was detected and began using a 36-hour reserve supply for 30,000 residents.

Storm tightens icy grip

Snow, freezing rain and sub-freezing temperatures were spreading across northern sections of Texas, prompting the homeless to seek shelter and sending residents to grocery stores to stock up for a winter storm.

The snow and freezing rain was widespread over northern portions of West Texas and was to spread eastward today and Thursday, forecasters said.

The winter weather was expected to stick around the state for a time with forecasters indicating that rain and sleet could remain in North Texas and West Texas through the weekend.

The 900-bed Dallas Life Foundation hasn't had a full house yet this winter, said the Rev. Ray Bailey, but "I expect this week we'll fill up."

The city has asked residents to call the police if they see anyone sleeping outside so police can take the people to a shelter. The city also said it would open municipal recreation centers if local shelters filled up.

"If the shelters reach capacity, we don't want anybody not being able to get in out of the elements," said Lisa Saemann, chairwoman of the city's Human Services Commission.

And the Salvation Army planned to distribute sleeping bags to those who refused to go to crowded shelters.

The cold weather Tuesday iced up streets in Lubbock and Amarillo. Police in Amarillo reported 50 minor traffic accidents and an Amarillo couple was seriously injured in a traffic accident on an icy overpass near the city.

Forecasters said as much as four inches of snow could fall in the Panhandle by this morning, accompanied by temperatures in the mid-teens.

"Have you ever poured water over oil and had to run through it?" said Department of Public Safety trooper Jerry Burgdorf, describing road conditions around Amarillo. "It is super slick. We're basically having an ice storm."

Travel on Interstate 27, which links Amarillo and Lubbock, was slowed to 40-45 mph, but speeds were much slower on city streets, Burgdorf said.

Conditions were foggy and misty, which further hampered traffic and cut visibility to less than a mile in some areas, the National Weather Service said.

The Amarillo International Airport remained open Tuesday but planes were being de-iced and some early flights were cancelled.

As that freezing rain and sleet headed toward Dallas-Fort Worth, shoppers there stocked up on canned goods, mild, bread, fruit and stew meat.

"When we get weather like this, the bread and milk sales just go outrageous," said Dennis Evans, assistant director of a Tom Thumb grocery store in Dallas. "I can't get enough bread right now."

Dallas officials said they are more prepared for the coming storm than they were for the ice storm which hit the city in January of 1979.

That storm left one-quarter of Dallas without electricity, caused $5 million in damage and was responsible for at least six deaths.

A spokesman for Dallas-based TU Electric said Tuesday that most of the downed power lines nine years ago were felled by tree limbs covered with up to 2 inches of ice. A rigorous tree-trimming program has since been put in place, and utility officials are confident it would prevent extensive damage to power lines, said spokesman Jim Lawrence.

Dallas road workers on Tuesday checked and repaired equipment, including about 150 chain saws and 105 dump trucks, said Ron Shindoll, the city's assistant division manager for street services.

He said 23 sanding crews were to go on stand-by late Tuesday, with all other crews joining them early Wednesday morning.

"That should give the crews enough time to get some roads clear before rush hour hits," he said. The trucks will concentrate on overpasses, thoroughfares and bus routes, Shindoll said.

"As we can, we will sand some trouble spots in residential areas. But first, we'll try to get the areas that affect the most people."

Rain and sleet could continue through Sunday in North and West Texas, the weather service said. Temperatures will remain cold with highs in the 30s and lows in the 20s through Sunday.

South Texas should be cloudy and cold Friday with a chance of rain. Clouds will decrease during the weekend but temperatures will remain cold. High temperatures this weekend should reach the 40s and 50s while lows should be in the 20s and 30s.

Hereford Bull

By SPEEDY NIEMAN

The feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says you can't turn back the clock, but you can wind it up again.

The one thing that most of us do better than anyone else is read our own handwriting.

People who have not packed up and moved a few times don't know what they're missing!

This subject came to mind when we helped our son, Steve, and his family move to Lubbock over the weekend. Lavon and I are experienced movers. In our 36 years of married life, we've moved 11 times, purchased 9 houses and sold 8. That's not a record, but it's a pretty good average!

Moving is no fun, especially the packing, loading and the unloading and unpacking. It helps to have friends and, in Steve's case, young, muscular friends. Three or four young men helped Steve load the truck in Hereford, and three friends in Lubbock showed up to help unload. (One of them was Mike Mayberry, former Hereford resident.)

It also helps to have parents who are able to pitch in at moving time. My parents were always around to help us move and they had an idea where to put some of the junk when we unpacked the boxes.

The mental part of moving can be both sad and exciting. It's kind of sad to pull up roots and leave good friends. Usually, however, the move is being made for a new job and, hopefully, advancement in a career. And, while you hate to leave good friends, it opens the door on opportunities to meet and make new friends.

People who have lived in one town all their lives are lucky in some ways but there are advantages, too, in living in different communities. I'm not ready to make another move after 16 years in Hereford, but I value the friends and experiences gained from residing in other places.

As we start 1988 in Hereford and Deaf Smith County, one primary goal should be to stress the hustlin' attitude and the spirit of cooperation in the months ahead.

Some folks expect the worst, and it usually happens. Others expect the best, and they make it happen. Norman Vincent Peale suggests that those who expect the best tend, like a magnet, to attract the best.

We ran across the Optimist Club philosophy and it has some good points for consideration as we start the new year:

—Be so strong that nothing can disturb your peace of mind.

—Talk health, happiness, and prosperity to every person you meet.

—Make all your friends feel there is something worthwhile in them.

—Look at the sunny side of everything.

—Think only of the best, work for the best, and expect only the best.

—Be just as enthusiastic about the successes of others as you are about your own.

—Forget the mistakes of the past and press on to the future.

—Have a cheerful countenance.

—Be too large for worry, too noble for anger, too strong for fear, and too happy to permit the presence of trouble.

Have a happy New Year, and remember we each make a choice. We can be part of the problem, or part of the solution.

Local Roundup

Icy weather causes mishaps

The Hereford Police Department reported three minor accidents Tuesday and arrested a 20-year-old man for assault.

Seven citations were issued. Offenses and assaults were a renter dispute; theft of a battery in the 300 block of Bradley; an elderly person having mental problems tried to hit his wife with an object; suspicious person in the 500 block of Juniper; assault by threat in the Buena Vista area; and a prowler in the 100 block of Apache.

Sugar Beet meeting set

The annual banquet of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association has been scheduled for Jan. 16, in the Bull Barn, it was announced today by James Witherspoon, executive secretary.

Featured speaker for the event will be Wayne Humphries, one of the nation's top speakers. Tickets for the banquet are now available at $7.50 each.

Winter storm warning

A winter storm warning is in effect through tonight, and Hereford may pick up one to three inches more of snow before daybreak Thursday.

Some of the snow tonight could be heavy, with a low near 10. Southeast wind will be 10 to 15 mph.

Thursday will be cloudy, with a 20 percent chance of snow. Less than one inch of additional accumulation is expected Thursday, with a high near 20. Northeast wind will be 10 to 15 mph.

This morning's low at KPAN was 12 after a high Tuesday of 29. KPAN recorded .05 inch of precipitation from the snow and ice at 7 a.m. today.

For Women's Division Officers installed

The Women's Division installed five women as officers for 1988 at the organization's quarterly meeting Tuesday night at the Hereford Community Center.

New officers are Lori Hall, treasurer; Carla Vasek, membership vice president; Barbara Yavornik, first vice president; Sue Malamen, president; and Betty Taylor, parliamentarian.

LaJean Henry, who installed the officers, said, "Synchronized hands, organized hands—these are the hands that have built the Women's Division and will sustain the Women's Division," referring to the new officers' responsibilities.

Highlighting the program, a teary eyed Betty Drake accepted the organization's Outstanding Woman of the Year Award from last year's recipient, Helen Langley, who cited Drake's contributions to the Women's Division as a past president and to the community as a major contributor to the Camp Fire organization.

Also receiving recognition were outgoing board directors JoAnn Hill and Billie Hopson. The 1988 board will include the newly-installed officers and Addie Cunningham, Helen Eades and Betty Taylor. Taylor, last year's president, received a plaque from Malamen for her work with the Women's Division.

Committee chairwomen named for 1988 are Betty Volkman, Animal Action Committee; Carol Kelley, Blood Bank Committee; Keith Ann Gearm, Christmas Carousel Committee; Anita Hampton, Christmas Lighting Contest Committee; Janice Carr, Christmas Tree Ceremony Committee; Norma Coffey, Finance and Budget Committee; Bettye Owen, Welcome Committee;

Barbara Allen, Fine Arts Committee; Patti Farmer, Little Miss Hereford Pageant Committee; Donna West, Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant Committee; Olivia Denning, Membership Committee; Lanette Leasure, Public Affairs and Publicity Committee; Barbara Yavornik, Decorations Committee; Peggie Fox, Telephone Committee; Ruth Newsom, Tour Committee; and Teresa Munoz, Town and Country Jubilee Committee. Committees not listing chairwomen are the Beautification Committee and the Beauty Spot of the Month Committee.

Austin gets Sematech

DALLAS (AP) — Texas beat out 11 other states in the race to land a semiconductor research center when the Sematech consortium chose Austin for its multimillion-dollar facility, officials say.

Directors of Sematech, a consortium of computer companies whose goal is world leadership in semiconductor technology by 1993, selected the Lone Star State's capital city Tuesday night after meeting in Dallas, Texas officials confirmed.

An official announcement from the Santa Clara, Calif.-based group was to come today in Austin, but Gov. Bill Clements was notified Tuesday night that Texas topped the intense competition from other states, Clements spokesman Reggie Bashur said.

"Governor Clements has worked day and night to bring Sematech to Texas," Bashur said. "Sematech represents jobs, substantial investment and a cutting-edge technology. This is a tremendous shot in the arm for the Texas economy."

Sematech intends to spend $250 SLICK forced to use it," said Nancy Vapner, assistant city manager.

Jeanne Ison, a spokeswoman for the Ohio River Sanitation Commission in Cincinnati, estimated the oil could reach Huntington, W.Va., by next Tuesday. From its head in downtown Pittsburgh to Huntington, the Ohio provides drinking water for about 327,000 people, according to Ms. Ison.

So far, up to 50,000 customers of Western Pennsylvania Water Co. have escaped a loss of water but have had to cope with low pressure. They, too, were urged to conserve.

"Conservation by the people is the key to this situation over the next several days," Pennsylvania Gov. Robert P. Casey said.

To help relieve the problem near Pittsburgh, crews scrambled Tuesday to jury-rig auxiliary water supplies. Officials hoped to restore service to most residents today.

"This won't fulfill all the needs, but it will help people get their homes and houses back in order," said Allegheny County Commissioner Tom Foerster.

Parents hoped it will get the schools back in order, too. The unexpected extension of students' holiday break was expected to continue today.

At least one nursing home, heated by steam, has been forced to move elderly patients to an adjacent gas-heated building. Mobay Corp., Pepsi Cola Bottling Co., Calgon Corp. and smaller businesses have closed, laying off 1,000 people. Other employers are considering curtailing operations.

West Penn serves 750,000 people in Allegheny and Washington counties in Pennsylvania by drawing water from two Monongahela River intakes. One had to be closed because of the oil, cutting off 35 million gallons daily. That left the other inlet to pump 53 million gallons.

Only the removal of oil from the Monongahela will end West Penn's woes, authorities said. As of Tuesday, crews had vacuumed an estimated 100,000 gallons of fuel from the Monongahela and upper Ohio.

"This is going to go for several more weeks. This is not a short-term problem," said Ray Germann, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency.

million annually for the next six years in an attempt to improve semiconductor manufacturing techniques. Semiconductors are the heart of computers, electronic consumer products and contemporary military weapons systems.

Half of Sematech's budget will come from government, with the semiconductor industry contributing the other half. The facility also nets Austin at least 800 jobs, officials said.

"From my understanding, it's a right-away kind of deal," Pike Powers, who led the Austin Chamber of Commerce's recruitment effort, said Tuesday night. "They want to be operational as soon as possible."

In an attempt to lure Sematech, Austin offered a $62 million package that included the vacant Data General plant in southeast Austin for immediate move-in as well as a site at the University of Texas' Balcones Research Park for later use.

Nevertheless, Austin had been seen as the race's dark horse when pitted against big-dollar bids from other states. Sites in Massachusetts — which had offered a $200 million loan to lure the project — Phoenix and North Carolina had been considered front-runners.

The 13-member board had also considered sites in New Mexico, New York, California, Colorado, Wisconsin, Oregon, Florida and Missouri.

None of the board members returned The Associated Press' calls Tuesday night, and Sematech spokeswoman Jeanne Locke said she could not confirm the site choice when reached at her California office.

"I'm extremely disappointed," New Mexico Gov. Garrey Carruthers said. "We had a facility at Sandia (National Laboratories) that was the best in the world. I wish that they had taken that opportunity."

"We're having a conference with companies that did and did not choose New Mexico later this month," he added. "We need to identify our strengths and weaknesses and explain to New Mexicans why we always seem to be a bridesmaid and never a bride."

Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, who fought to lure the research center to a site in Westborough, had no immediate comment.

Sematech stands for Semiconductor Manufacturing Technology, and the group will focus on upgrading the equipment and processes that produce chips, rather than the designs of the chips themselves.

Among the backers of Sematech are computer makers like IBM, chip makers like Dallas-based Texas Instruments Inc., and makers of chip-making equipment such as Perkin-Elmer Corp.

"I think its going to be another feather in our cap," Austin Mayor Frank Cooksey said. "Certainly with regard to the information industry, it's going to accentuate our status as a world-class center for information technology."

"I'm very delighted that everyone worked together on this and we were able to achieve this victory for Austin and for the state of Texas," he added.

"Now that we've got Sematech, we're shooting for the 'super collider,'" said Bashur, referring to the multimillion-dollar federal research project that will probe the building blocks of matter.

Texas is one of several states competing for that project.

Bob Inman, former head of Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp., another high-tech consortium lured to Austin in 1982, said that "from my experience in getting MCC started, Austin is a splendid location."

"It has a strong university, good talent to recruit, a good quality of life and it is easy to recruit people to come here," he said. "It's a reaffirmation that it's a superb location for research. The key to that is clearly the University of Texas at Austin."

Inman resigned from MCC in 1986 to become head of a defense electronics holding company.

Candidates trade potshots

Republicans Bob Dole and George Bush traded potshots over who's best qualified to be president, while Democratic presidential contenders Paul Simon and Gary Hart suggested that the wealthiest Americans should shoulder a bigger share of the tax burden.

Two candidates who have been lagging in the polls — Democratic Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri and Republican Alexander M. Haig Jr. — criticized the political process rather than their rivals.

Gephardt said the campaign has become a "contest of images." Haig, the former secretary of state, railed at "political bosses" he says control the outcome of the Iowa caucuses.

Former television evangelist Pat Robertson, who riled autoworkers recently when he said productivity could be improved if they'd stop using drugs on the job, waved a red flag at federal workers, calling for cuts in their salaries and pensions.

Nearly all the candidates were campaigning in the important early states of Iowa and New Hampshire today, despite bone-chilling cold that gripped much of the nation.

Bush and Dole feuded over which of them has the best credentials to hold the nation's highest office.

"I'm not sure that being in Congress all your life is a part of the answer," Bush said in a pointed reference to Dole's 26 years in the House and Senate. "I think it may be part of the problem."

"So tell him to get off my back," the vice president told a National Press Club audience on Tuesday, after weeks of being twitted by Dole.

"I have a solid record of leadership and he doesn't," Dole shot back. "And it must be getting to him." He noted that Bush twice ran for the Senate, "so there must be some attraction in Congress."

The Bush-Dole sniping came as an Omaha television station's poll suggested the Kansas senator was piling up a lead in Iowa, which holds precinct caucuses on Feb. 8.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is considering reducing the number of Navy ships assigned to the Persian Gulf, but officials say the United States remains committed to protecting Kuwaiti tankers there.

Administration sources, speaking Tuesday on condition of anonymity, said the Navy has more ships than it needs to do the job in the gulf.

However, they also acknowledged that cost is a consideration. The Navy has said it is spending roughly $20 million a month above its normal operating expenses to station extra warships in the region.

One official said "the issue is tailoring your force to the job at hand now that you've had some experience."

"We are not changing the mission, nor are we reducing our commitment," the official added.

The Navy has 18 ships inside the Persian Gulf, seven in the Gulf of Oman or northern Arabian Sea and another eight nearby in the Indian Ocean.

One official said the first change would occur "shortly" and involve the withdrawal of the helicopter carrier Okinawa, which was sent to the gulf to serve as a base for RH-53D Sea Stallion mine-sweeping helicopters.

The job of hunting mines, however, has now been taken over by six American mine-sweeping ships and a number of similar vessels from NATO countries, meaning the choppers and Okinawa are not needed, the source said.

"I expect her to leave," the official said. "There's no need for her to be there now."

The timing of the next move has not been determined but likely will involve the battleship Iowa, which is patrolling in the Gulf of Oman and northern Arabian Sea, the sources said.

"We mustered a lot of power just in case," said one source, referring to the early build-up of American might in the region.

"The battleship was something to give the Iranians pause, and it was insurance because no one was sure what was going to flare up over there. We think the Iowa can come out. Not in the immediate future, but downstream."

Another official said the Navy would continue to keep an aircraft carrier in the northern Arabian Sea to provide air protection to convoys traveling in the Strait of Hormuz, further reducing the need for the battleship.

The Navy began building its presence in the region last summer when President Reagan agreed to extend U.S. military protection to 11 reflagged Kuwaiti tankers. Kuwait is an important ally of Iraq in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war and had seen its tankers become a special target of Iranian forces.

State begins voter sign-up

AUSTIN (AP) — A drive to register 1 million additional Texas voters in 1988 got a bipartisan boost at a Capitol rally.

Gov. Bill Clements, House Speaker Gib Lewis, Secretary of State Jack Rains and Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, were greeted by a jazz band's rendition of "When the Saints Go Marching In" as they entered the Senate chamber Tuesday.

Republicans Clements and Rains and Democrats Lewis and Blake, representing Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, delivered pep talks to volunteers supporting the voter registration drive.

Among a couple of hundred spectators were GOP state chairman George Strake and Democratic state chairman Bob Slagle.

"I think the roof may come in with Slagle and Strake side by side," Clements quipped.

Clements said Texas is 8 percentage points behind the national average in its number of registered voters.

"With the 'Super Tuesday' primaries (on March 8), we have an opportunity to force national political candidates to address Texas issues," he said. "Voter registration is the first step in the process of ensuring that those Texas concerns are, indeed, addressed."

Clements declared January as "Voter Registration Month," and said, "The bigger the turnout, the better we should all like it, and I certainly do."

"I'm embarrassed when I go to secretary of state conventions and have to acknowledge that we trail Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico (in voter registration) — that's an embarrassment," Rains said.

"But I don't think it's because Texans don't care," he said. "I think it's because Texans are younger and are more mobile. And because of those two facts, we're going to have catch Texans on the move. We're going to have to catch Texans at the workplace, at schools, at universities, wherever they are."

Rains agreed with Clements that increased voter registration would "force all presidential candidates to focus on Texas issues."

"The road to the White House runs through Texas," Rains said.

The voter registration drive has been criticized by some Democrats for allegedly concentrating on people who might be more likely to vote Republican, and Slagle was asked if he thought the effort was fair.

"I don't know, we'll see. The burden's on him (Rains) to be fair," Slagle said. "My daddy always taught me to give everybody the benefit of the doubt. I'll give him the benefit and see what he does."

Rains said the registration is being financed by private funds, and more than $100,000 has been received, with a goal of $250,000.

The registration deadline is Feb. 7. Rains said more than 100 television stations and more than 472 radio stations are carrying public service ads to encourage voter registration.

"We can't afford to fail," he said.

OBITUARY

CARL JOSEPH BEREND
January 1, 1988

Carl "Charlie" Joseph Berend, 78, of Hereford died Friday, Jan. 1, 1988. Rosary services were held Sunday evening at Gililand-Watson Rose Chapel. Services were held Monday afternoon in St. Anthony's Catholic Church with Father Cletus McGorry, pastor, officiating. Burial followed at Rest Lawn Memorial Park.

Mr. Berend was born March 10, 1909, at Pilot Point. He was married to Cecilia Mages in 1933 at Lindsey. She died in 1961. He moved to Deaf Smith County in 1951 from Amarillo. He was a farmer and rancher. He was a member of Knights of Columbus and Hereford Senior Citizens.

Survivors include his wife Hattie of the home; two sons, Raymond Berend and Phillip Berend, both of Hereford; three stepsons, Tommy Reiter and Ronnie Reiter, both of Hereford, and Glenn Reiter of Dallas; a daughter, Annette Albracht of Hereford; a stepdaughter, Nancy Paetzold of Hereford; two sisters, Leona Lehnertz of Bossier City, La., and Laura Haverkamp of Muenster; 21 grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be to St. Anthony's Catholic School.

Bowl-a-thon scheduled Jan. 30

The High Plains Epilepsy Association's 4th annual Bowl-A-Thon will be held Saturday, Jan. 30, 2:30 P.M. at the grand bowl, 2109 South Grand in Amarillo.
 Teams comprised of five bowlers will compete for trophies in various categories. Each team will solicit sponsors for a minimum of $50.00 per bowler. The funds raised by Deaf Smith County bowlers will help support medical services for High Plains Epilepsy Association clients in that county.

High Plain Epilepsy Association is a United Way Agency and has a branch office in Deaf Smith County at 3rd and Sampson. Agency services include medication assistance, physician referrals, employment assistance, school alert programs for students and teacher inservices, and individual and family counseling.

If you would like to organize a bowling team or make a donation, please call the Epilepsy Office at (806)372-3891 or locally, 364-0717. Ask for Janet Moody.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read and greatly appreciated the letters in your column regarding miscarriages and stillborn babies and decided to share my experience with you and your readers.

I am the mother of two wonderful daughters born 11 years apart. Between my two successful pregnancies, I had four miscarriages. When our youngest child was 23 months old, I gave birth to Siamese twin daughters who shared one heart. I had learned from a sonogram six months earlier that the babies were joined and was told that it would be best to have an abortion. After much prayer and soul-searching I decided to carry the babies to full term even though I had been told that they would die at birth.

My Siamese twin daughters lived two days. My husband arranged for a private burial. After I was released from the hospital we had a memorial service for friends and family.

I was amazed at how many people treated the incident as though our little girls had never been born or died. Their silence was terribly hurtful. I realized that many people didn't know what to say or do so they said and did nothing.

Now I would like to add to the discussion.

I come from a family of short females. While it is a slight inconvenience at times, we consider ourselves normal.

Last Sunday in church a woman who stood next to me said, "I never realized how short you are until today when I stood beside you."

A few days later I was introduced to a woman who said, "Boy, am I glad to meet you. It isn't often I am introduced to someone shorter than I am."

Upon meeting an acquaintance in the grocery, I heard, "You look shorter than ever. How do you find clothes that fit?"

I have a few friends who are shorter than I am. I would not think of calling this to their attention.

Please print my letter, Ann Landers. A lot of folks out there need educating.—Columbus

"Every single problem we have—economic, industrial, political, international, or what not—is a problem of morality. If this be true, then we can find permanent cure for our ills only by a process of improving our moral standards."

"The banishment of ignorance, the cultivation of appreciation of intelligence, the enthronement of self-control, the development of appreciation for the good, the beautiful, and the true, the elevation of our satisfactions, the broadening of our visions, the deepening of our interest in others, the better control of our emotions, and a higher regard for our obligations of every kind—these are the remedies that will quicken the pulse of our nature and restore color to her cheeks."

—J.A. Hill, The Prairie, Canyon, Texas, April 5, 1932.

"Sending someone else to do a good deed is marked up against you as a wasted opportunity."

—Bill Spottswood, Richardson Echo, Richardson, Texas, Dec. 18, 1925.

Please, Ann, pass along the word that silence is interpreted as a lack of interest or caring. I understand that it was an awkward time but a sympathy card would have meant so much. Even a note written weeks or months later helps bereaved families know that you understand their grief.

Please find room in your column for whatever part of this letter you feel will help people. It's an important message that needs to be repeated often.—Newark, Calif.

DEAR FRIEND: There is no acceptable excuse for family and friends who ignored the birth and death of your twins but I can understand their silence.

Since joined babies are extremely rare, they probably viewed the occurrence as bizarre and didn't know how to deal with it. When people are unsure about what to say or do they usually say and do nothing.

My condolences, however belated, and thanks for telling us your story.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you aired my pet gripe in your

DEAR COLUMBUS: Personal comments about height, weight, condition of skin, etc., are always unwelcome and in bad taste unless you are complimenting someone who has slimmed down or improved their appearance in some way. I, too, am pretty tired of hearing people say, "I thought you'd be taller."

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? Think you can handle them? For up-to-the-minute information on drugs, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $2.50 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

HHS head baseball coach to be honored

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

A honor coming to Hereford High School baseball Coach T.R. Sartor this month is, in his viewpoint, an honor for the entire 1987 Whiteface varsity team.

Sartor is one of 21 coaches who will be honored for their 1987 achievements on Sunday, Jan. 24 in the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame.

Also, 21 athletes and four teams will be honored — but in the eyes of Sartor, the Whitefaces are an honored team: "It ought to be 20 of us standing up there at the awards ceremony."

Coach Sartor directed the Whitefaces to a District 1-4A championship, a bi-district title, and a 22-5 season record in his first season as HHS head baseball coach. Hereford defeated Andrews in the bi-district playoffs and lost to Fort Worth Brewer in the regional playoffs.

"It's a great honor, but at the same time I say, you don't have the kind of season we had last year without having fine, fine athletes on the baseball team," Sartor said.

"Four or five of them are trying to play college baseball. When you have two pitchers who finish nearly every game they started, it makes it easy to coach," he continues. Those two pitchers were Keith Anderson and Bobby Medina, all-district team members who had a combined 20-3 record.

"I think more than anything else, the attitude that my players came out with last year was the most significant factor in the kind of season they had. They did everything they had to win.

"They didn't finish the game with clean uniforms. They were out their diving and doing everything a coach would ask them to do," Sartor adds.

The Whitefaces had a 7-3 non-district record before beginning district play, including the Dumas tournament championship and wins over all four high school teams from Amarillo.

Hereford was ranked 10th in the state poll after their first week of district games, and gradually climbed to third in the rankings, after five weeks of 1-4A contests.

Two consecutive district games were won in the bottom of the seventh inning — a 2-1 victory over top 10 ranked Canyon and a 4-3 win over Pampa.

An undefeated 1-4A title — 14-0 — was thwarted when Lubbock Estacado defeated the Herd 4-2 in the second-to-last district game.

The Whitefaces still won an undisputed district championship with a 13-1 record and headed into the playoffs with an overall mark of 20-4.

Weather interfered with the playoffs, forcing many postponements. Hereford's first bi-district game, scheduled on Tuesday, May 19 against Andrews, was postponed when a downpour hit the western part of Lubbock six minutes before game time.

The Whitefaces then beat Andrews 10-0 on Friday, May 22. Shortly after the game was over, the rains came again, and the next day, game two could not be played in Lubbock.

The Whiteface team headed for Andrews, but were directed to Hobbs, N.M., before arriving in Andrews because of rain and wet grounds there. Then they found out they could not play in Hobbs and headed to Eunice, N.M.

Canyon and Pecos were playing at Eunice in a 1-4A playoff game, but that series ended up tied 1-1 and those teams continued playing there. The Whitefaces were "on the road again," and headed to Jal, N.M., where they did find a field to play the game with Andrews.

The game began late Saturday night, and Hereford edged Andrews 7-6 to end a nightmare of a day.

But the weather nightmare continued, with the postponement of game one of the regional playoff series against Fort Worth Brewer. Since both schools had graduation exercises on Friday, May 29, the playoff series was shortened to a one-game playoff on May 30.

That forced the Whitefaces to go against a Brewer pitcher who eventually would set a state record for wins in one season. The Herd suffered a 5-1 defeat, but Sartor praises the HHS team members for not ever being quitters.

"They just had that special chemistry about them all season where they refused to lose — even in the seventh inning of the last game they still felt they could come back," Coach Sartor declares.

"They just never quit all season. I was real proud of them. I just wish we could have played Brewer in a best-of-three series."

Sartor, a graduate of the University of Texas with a degree in education and areas of emphasis in English and economics, began his coaching career at Red Oak, Texas. He was there for one year as the high school golf coach.

He then went to Kemp, Texas for two years. In his first year, he was head high school baseball coach and a junior high school football and basketball coach. In his second year, he was high school football defensive coordinator and junior varsity basketball coach as well as head baseball coach. The baseball records those years were 4-16 and 8-14.

Sartor was out of baseball coaching for one year, at Canton, Texas, where he was defensive line coach in football, junior varsity basketball coach and assistant track coach at the high school.

He experienced success as a baseball coach at Northwest High School in Justin, Texas for two years. Northwest had a 14-7 record under Sartor in his first year there and a 13-9 record in his second year.

Northwest won a bi-district title in Sartor's second season there. He was also the offensive line coach and defensive ends coach in football his first year at Northwest High School, and offensive coordinator in his second year.

Sartor is now in his fifth school year in Hereford. He was the assistant baseball coach for four years before becoming the head coach last year. He was tight end coach for the Whiteface football team his first year here and has since been the offensive backfield coach.

What is his outlook on the 1988 season?

"We lost six starters and both pitchers. We have three starters back and two of them were all-district performers, Rodney McCracken and Michael Phibbs," he said.

"That's a pretty good nucleus to work with. We should fill the fielding positions.

"The key for us will be our pitching, and we don't have a whole lot of varsity experience. How well those kids come along will tell how well we'll do.

"And also, I think the district is going to be real, real tough this year. Canyon, I think, graduated only two players, and Estacado has five or six starters back.

"Repeating the kind of performance we had last year will be a challenge that will require a lot of work and dedication from this year's players."

This is the second year in a row that an individual from Hereford is being honored in the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame. Hereford Whiteface running back and kicker Mark Artho received the "Big Play" award last year for his field goal that gave Hereford a last-second 9-7 victory over Cleburne in the 1986 class 4A area football playoffs.

Ask Dr. Lamb

BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB: Recently, my husband and I noticed a young man in our neighborhood go out dressed up as a woman. He really looked nice, but my husband was furious. He said that we don't need AIDS in our neighborhood or a perverted child molester. I told him the neighbor was probably a transvestite and that most of them are not gay and therefore, not in the high risk AIDS category. I also said that although he is different, cross-dressers are no more dangerous than Elvis impersonators. Please comment.

CROSS-DRESSING

Women often cross dress as men.

DEAR READER: You can't take generalizations and apply them to one individual. Many transvestites are married men and in some cases their wives buy their outfits for them. Some are not gay, but others are. There is a lot of cross-dressing. Whether it is acceptable or not depends on the society one is in.

Many women wear men's clothes and our society thinks nothing of it. Cross-dressing has nothing to do with child molestation.

Your husband's reaction suggests that he is not well informed and may have some psychological hang-ups. As you describe his reactions, it sounds as though he is a homophobe, having unreasonable fear of homosexuals. The cause for that unreasonable fear could be rather interesting. He may not be very secure in his own masculinity. Big muscles, chewing tobacco and womanizing do not mean a person is psychologically secure in his masculinity either.

If your neighbor is gay, that certainly does not mean he has AIDS. Even if he did, that does not mean that others in the neighborhood will get it unless they engage in sex with him or share needles with him. I doubt your husband plans to do either.

If he can cool down his prejudice long enough to learn some facts, he could benefit from reading Special Report 61, AIDS and Sex, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $1.00 for it to THE HEALTH LETTER, Dept 61, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. This is a very explicit report on sexual behavior in case that should bother you or other readers.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have read that tomatoes are possibly carcinogenic. Assuming that I have been consuming substances in veggies that can cause cancer, and been exposed to carcinogens in air and various recreational uses, is there any one thing I can do to inhibit the prediagnosed malignancy? What sort of restraint other than monk-like purity can I exercise? Is there some form of medical or herbal exorcism available?

Should we "just say no to saying no" and take a more relaxed approach to create a positive state for our immune system to thrive on?

DEAR READER: There is no evidence that tomatoes cause cancer. The fact that a food or other substance may cause some minor cell changes in some people is not evidence that it causes cancer. Many foods do cause some cell changes which have never been shown to actually progress to cancer.

There are no foods on the market that have been shown to really cause cancer. While questions have been raised about nitrates and nitrites as found in cured meats, not one case of cancer caused by using these foods has been reported.

My best advice based on what is known today is to eat a good diet of food you can buy in the grocery store. Avoid too much fat. Consume a reasonable amount of bulk. Get an adequate amount of vitamin A or beta-carotene — which is converted to vitamin A — as found in colored vegetables. Include foods that provide vitamin C, such as tomatoes, oranges and other vegetables and fruits. Avoid drugs, alcohol and tobacco.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 25 years old, 5 feet 10 and weigh 140 pounds. I run three miles every other day. After my two kids were born, I have not been able to lose my "belly." I am surprised I can't, because I've always been tall and skinny. I do weigh more now, but that's because I have more muscle.

I've read that doing sit-ups and other exercises does not help reduce

BEST ABDOMINAL EXERCISE

The best exercise to firm a relaxed abdomen is the voluntary contraction and relaxation of your abdominal muscles.

the pot belly. I exercise and am not fat. I need a nice waistline. Can you help?

DEAR READER: Sit-ups will help increase the strength of your abdominal muscles, mostly the upper area. But they have to be done right. You must do them with your knees bent or you will just be exercising the muscles that bend your hips. Leg lifts don't help much because they also tend to bend the hip joint and not use the abdominal muscles. They help some because a person tenses the abdominal muscles to support the extended leg. And you have to do leg lifts correctly for any results as well as to avoid straining your back.

You don't exercise your abdominal muscles much by walking or running on level turf either. The best, and most neglected exercise to strengthen those abdominal muscles, is the one that follows the old military command, "Suck in your gut."
