Super Tuesday races set with final filings nouncements Monday have assured Deaf Smith County residents of contested races for two county offices, the 31st State Senatorial District seat, and the U.S. Representative seat for the 19th Congressional

Only four county offices are up for election this year, and two will be contested. Sheriff Joe Brown drew a republican challenger when Ted Langgood, a captain with the Hereford Police Department, filed Monday. The crowded race for County Commissioner, Precinct 1, drew two more candidates-a Democrat and a Republican. Unopposed for reelection are Democrats Nell Miller, tax assessor-collector, and Langgood, 32, has been with the HPD for almost 10 years. He said he had been encouraged by several Hereford citizens to run for sheriff. "I feel there is a definite need for some progressive administrative changes at the sheriff's office," stated Langgood.

Gloria Salinas Hubner, local businesswoman, became the fourth Democrat to file for the Precinct 1 commissioner's seat Monday. Kim Blackwell, distributor for a regional newspaper, also filed Monday on the Republican ticket and will be unopposed in the primary elections. Incumbent Commissioner Bill Bradly will be opposed in the Demo primary by Lupe Chavez, John Stribling Jr. Combest in 1986 after winning the and Hubner.

The first balloting this year is set for March 8-the "Super Tuesday" presidential preference primaries for the Republican, Democratic and other political parties. Primary runoffs, if necessary, will be held April 12. With the earlier primaries, city and school elections have been moved to May 7.

Gerald McCathern, Hereford farmer and businessman, filed Monday as a Demo candidate for the 19th the general election. McCathern

CSF helps many; sets all-time record

Caring residents of Hereford and Deaf Smith County helped the 1987 edition of the Christmas Stocking Fund set a new all-time record for contributions to the charity.

Total contributions to the program, which operates to assist the community's less fortunate during the holiday season, reached the $13,600 plateau, easily eclipsing the old record of $10,600 set during the 1986 campaign.

"The sharing of the community's school youngsters was a typical example of the outpouring of concern expressed through CSF this season. Students from throughout the community and several churches carried out food drives in the week just before Christmas. The abundance of canned goods collected in these efforts was incredible. It took CSF volunteers nearly two hours to sort through all the donated canned goods and get them in order for use in food baskets. The abundance of donated canned goods helped extend food assistance from CSF by nearly a third this season," said a spokesman for the Stocking Fund.

The spokesman pointed out that food assistance administered by CSF was extended to 67 families, which included a total of 135 adults and 264 children.

By serving as a clearing house to coordinate efforts of other charities, CSF also referred another 37 families for food or other assistance from civic clubs, church groups and individuals.

"A big portion of CSF assistance is extended in the form of vouchers for the purchase of clothing and blankets for families in need. This season, clothing assistance was extended to some 83 families that included 154 adults and 306 children," said the CSF spokesman.

GLORIA HUBNER

Assistance with payment of utility bills, including balances on natural gas, electricity and water, was extended to 38 needy families. In some instances, this utility assistance made the difference in needy families having heat, light or water during the cold weather that has gripped the area recently.

Medical assistance was extended in some 11 cases. This medical assistance for the most part involved payment of bills for needed medication. There were also a few payments on doctor or hospital bills, and for special medical clothing.

CSF also coordinated assistance from a local civic group that will help a young child receive the medical attention she requires from the Scottish Rites Hospital.

A number of senior citizens in need were also singled out for assistance from the Stocking Fund. Aid to these seniors ranged from basic food baskets to a hand with medical concerns, clothing, or help with utility

"Over 200 needy families applied for assistance from the Stocking Fund this season. While it was impossible to extend assistance to everyone who filed, the volunteers administering the program did their best to see that the most help possible was extended to the maximum number of applicants," said the CSF

CSF also got help from local businesses and individuals in carrying on its administrative functions. A local west-side grocer filled a huge bill of staple goods for the project at reduced cost while a local meat retailer gave the project a bargain on turkeys distributed in the food baskets. A vacant building was placed at the disposal of CSF for a week, to serve as the warehouse and distribution point for food assistance. and electricity was provided free of charge at the building by a local utility firm.

"We had a veritable army of volunteers on hand to assist with delivery of food baskets on Dec. 23, and their can-do attitude helped us get the assistance packages out in near-record time. The Hereford Key Club pitched in with the willingness they always show for these kind of projects, and CSF made good use of their assistance," said the CSF spokesman.

"The Stocking Fund's anonymous committee wishes to extend its heartfelt thanks to the people of Hereford and Deaf Smith County who took it upon themselves to express the special goodwill of the holiday season to some of the community's less fortunate.

"The fact CSF reached a new record during some tough economic times is a great testimony to the generosity of caring people within our community. The directors of the Stocking Fund have been truly blessed to have served in this fine effort," said the spokesman.

McCathern added that "it is evil when honest, hard-working West Texans lose their homes, businesses, savings and farms because of failing governmental policies. That is why I am running, because things are wrong-seriously wrong, and our present congressman doesn't seem concerned." The Hereford Democrat said he was concerned that the U.S. has become the largest debtor nation in the world, that the budget deficit is over $200 billion annually, and that this nation will import $180 billion more products than it exports.

"If they feel they are worse off than they were four years ago, and if they are dissatisfied with the present economic conditions in West Texas, then I urge them to support me, because when I am elected, I will be leading the battle for constructive policy changes."

Doggett seeking court seat

Sen. Lloyd Doggett is back in Simon of Illinois, and Hart. politics, and all major Republican and Democratic presidential candidates have filed in time for Texas' March 8 primary elections.

Doggett, now an Austin lawyer, surprised many Democrats by filing Monday as a candidate for the party's nomination for Place 1 on the Texas Supreme Court.

Former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado was the last major Democratic presidential candidate to file. His campaign paid the $4,000 fee a few hours before the 6 p.m. Monday filing deadline.

Former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont also filed Monday to fill the slate of Republican presidential candidates. The GOP requires its presidential candidates to file by submitting petitions with at least 5,000 signatures.

Doggett was immediately criticized by another candidate in the Place 1 Supreme Court race, former Congressman Jack Hightower.

"I have been talking to Texas voters about my candidacy since June 1. Doggett's hasty decision somewhat deprives the electorate of an opportunity to thorougly examine his credentials and reason for seeking the Democratic nomination." Hightower said.

But Doggett said voters know him well after his 11-year Texas Senate career and his unsuccessful 1984 bid for the U.S. Senate.

"My campaign rests on my record and one word - fairness. I expect to act as a judge that will assure justice and fairness for every Texan, regardless of social status or economic condition," Doggett said.

Doggett, 41, served in the Texas Senate from 1973 to 1984. In 1984, he won a bitter Democratic primary for U.S. Senate over then-U.S. Rep. Kent Hance and former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, but lost the general election to Republican Phil Gramm.

Texas has joined about a dozen other states in participating in the "Super Tuesday" regional presidential primary this year. Texas is the largest state taking part in the super primary and will send the thirdlargest delegations to both party national conventions this summer.

GOP presidential candidates who filed were Vice President George Bush, Pat Robertson, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, and du Pont.

Democratic presidential can-didates filing included Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, Rep. Richard

A major ice storm is possible across North Texas, the National Weather Service said in issuing winter storm watches for a vast area of North Texas and West Texas.

A winter storm watch is in effect tonight and Wednesday for the Panhandle, South Plains, Permian Basin, Concho Valley and western portions of North Texas. And a winter storm watch is in effect for central portions of North Texas Wednesday, when the ice storm is possible.

The National Weather Service issued a special statement to residents of North Texas, urging them to stockpile heating fuel and food and be prepared to use emergency systems such as lanterns for light in case of power outages.

"Unless things change, thjis one (winter storm) looks dangerous,' the NWS' Fort Worth office said in a statement issued early today.

The storm could approach the scale of the ice storm that paralyzed a vast area of North Texas on New Year's Eve 1978 and Jan. 1, 1979, forecaster said. In that storm, more than two inches of ice coated much of an area across North Texas from Gatesville to Paris.

Forecaster said the ice storm vould result if precipitation from the storm passes through warmer air near the ground and then freezes as it strikes the ground and any exposed across the High Plains, Permian Basin and Concho Valley. It was mostly cloudy across the greater part of the state except in the central sections where clear to partly cloudy skies prevailed.

The winter weather is being triggered by high pressure that is conti-

Forecasts called for snow flurries mixed with occasional freezing rain or drizzle in West Texas east of the mountains through tonight.

There is a chance of snow over northwest portions of North Texas tonight and for freezing rain over southwest and central portions of North Texas.

Now that football season is finally over, it's time for political season.

The season is now open on politicians, especially so in a leap year. A leap year means we get to elect a president and, fortunately, we get to elect a BRAND NEW PRESIDENT this year!

I know many of you, those of you who have been wallowing in the splendor of Reagonomics, are sad to see this administration pass. Just look at all of the benefits we have enjoyed in this area.

The price of corn used to be over $4 a bushel. Now it's a buck-fifty. The price of a barrel of oil used to be $35. Now it's $16.

About the only thing that has gone right for this area has been a little something for sugar producers, stopping subsidizing foreign producers, and now Ronnie is gonna screw us out of the last bit of profitability left in farming.

Politics are a lot different now than they were 10 years ago in Texas, and most certainly different than they were when I moved to Texas, almost 23 years ago.

Back in 1965, you could count all of the Republicans in Texas on one hand, and that included Allan Shivers. Now, the majority of Northwest Texas is represented in Congress by Republicans-something that was unthinkable and thought impossible even 10 years ago.

The most interesting race in this area is one, unfortunately, we won't be able to vote in-the race of representative in District 13.

Everyone from Bill Sarpalius to Felix the Cat is running for that seat, and it should be a heck of a mess from now until Super Tuesday.

The good part is that we only have to put up with two months of all of the

The bad part is, it's a heckuva long time from March until November, and we'll have to put up with eight month's worth of garbage from the successful candidates.

Predictions for the upcoming races:

-Bill Sarpalius win the Demo primary for Dist. 13, then get stomped by whoever wins the Republican primary and retire from politics forever;

-Rotsa ruck, Gerald McCathern, but I don't know if Larry Combest is even remotely beatable. 'Course, ya never know . .

-- Gary Hart will debate Pat Robertson. Wonder what the issues might be?

-George Bush will have an affair in an effort to improve his image. After making the now-mandatory public confession, he will win the Republican nomination and, in an effort to change his errant ways, will name Robertson as his running mate.

-- Ted Kennedy will win the Democratic presidential nomination and select Joe Biden for his running

-Rev. Jesse Jackson, trying to nail down the minority vote after being spurned by the Democrats, will form a third party and name Jesus Moya as his running mate. Jesus will run his campaign from combined offices at the Texas Migrant Council and Texas Rural Legal Aid offices in Hereford.

-At least one-half of the money needed to pay off the federal deficit. a half-trillion dollars, will be spent on political advertising.

-The newspapers of Texas will get about $1.50 of that advertising.

NASA has more delays

WASHINGTON (AP) - NASA of- ped aft sections for the first flight by ficials say it may be as late as mid-August before America's astronauts again fly into space.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Monday that the puzzling breakup of a rocket nozzle part during a test may add six weeks to 10 weeks to the delay in getting the shuttle Discovery off the ground.

That could push the resumption of shuttle flights into mid-August, 21/2 years after an explosion destroyed the shuttle Challenger and killed its crew of seven.

NASA at first hoped to be able to fly again in the summer of 1987. But the complexity of redesigning the shuttle booster rocket caused that first-launch date to slip steadily - to February this year and then to June

The new failure has pushed that liftoff target even farther into the distance. A full-scale test firing of the redesigned booster on Dec. 23 was considered a success until engineers found pieces of an 8-footdiameter "boot ring" inside the nozzle and on the ground outside.

The industry magazine Aviation Week and Space Technology said in its Jan. 4 edition that the most optimistic launch date is September and that shipment of the aft rocket segments to the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla., has been delayed until March 24 at the earliest.

Five months is required to prepare a shuttle for flight after the booster rocket segments arrive by rail at Canaveral.

Morton Thiokol Inc., which builds the rockets in Utah, was to have shiprail last Saturday, but the shipment was delayed. David Drachlis, a NASA spokesman at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., said that if everything goes well, the shipment might take place in the latter half of February.

The boot ring, 2 inches thick and 7 inches wide, was used for the first time in the December test. The ring attaches a flexible boot that allows the rocket nozzle to swivel in flight.

"At this point, we know we are not going to use the component," said Sara Keegan, a NASA spokeswoman. She said it wasn't certain whether a version of the ring that had withstood an earlier full-scale firing will be ased instead.

Of the delay caused by the latest problem, Ms. Keegan said, "Our best guess is somewhere in the area of six to 10 weeks. That's our best assessment of what the problem is going to entail."

John Thomas, an official at the Marshall Space Flight Center, said through a spokesman that the delay will be held to the six-week to 10-week range if the earlier design of the boot ring is used and everything else remains on schedule.

Thomas was in charge of redesigning the shuttle booster rocket after the January 1986 Challenger explo-

Morton Thiokol officials said close examination of the test-fired booster rocket showed no failures other than that in the rocket's nozzle. Company spokesman Rocky Raab said engineers picking apart the solid-fuel motor Monday found that the rocket's case-to-nozzle joint worked as designed, preventing gases from escaping.

Failure of a rubber-like O-ring seal in one of Challenger's booster joints was blamed by a presidential commission for leaking super-hot gases that ignited the explosion which destroyed the spacecraft.

In another development, an internal report by NASA safety experts concluded the space agency still lacks the skilled engineers, clear guidelines or leadership to ensure the safety of manned spaceflight, The Atlanta Journal-Constitution reported in today's editions.

George Rodney, NASA's new associate administrator for safety, reliability, maintainability and quality assurance, requested the study.

Davises have no agreement, Priscilla says

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A much-publicized $5 million settlement agreed to between Priscilla Davis and her ex-husband, T. Cullen Davis in a wrongful death suit, is no longer a settlement, Priscilla Davis says.

The announcement of the nonsettlement came Monday night during a meeting of the Fort worth chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

Priscilla Davis, who spoke at the meeting about her plans to write a book and sell a screenplay about her life, said the settlement is off because Davis and his lawyers broached the agreement by announcing details of the settlement to the news media.

The settlement had been in a personal injury and wrongful death suit Priscilla Davis had filed against her ex-husband in connection with the shootings at the Davis mansion Aug. 2, 1976.

A man dressed in black shot to death Andrea Wilborn, 12, Priscilla's daughter from a previous marriage and Stan Farr, a former Texas Christian Unviersity basketball player, who was identified as Priscilla's lover.

Wounded in the shooting spree were Priscilla Davis and a houseguest, Gus "Bubba" Gavrel.

Davis, once considered one of the world's wealthiest men, later filed for bankruptcy and was relieved of $850 million in debts in bankruptcy court last Dec. 2.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The legendary ham 'n' eggs breakfast is gradually giving way to lighter fare among many health-conscious Americans, and Agriculture Department experts say the trend is hurting poultry producers.

"Americans are reducing their consumption of eggs, pulling down egg prices," economist Jack S. Ross says. "A recent report by a government-sponsored panel of health specialists recommends that doctors monitor their adult patients' cholesterol level and prescribe corrective diets for risk cases."

Ross continued: "If doctors heed this report, there is no doubt it will hurt demand for high-cholesterol long-run decline in egg consumption."

Older Americans in the 50-plus age group are the greatest consumers of eggs, he said. They were brought up by parents who often ate eggs for breakfast.

But younger people, the babyboomers, consume fewer eggs, probably as a matter of preference, Ross said. Therefore egg consumption is expected to decline in the future.

The U.S. per capita consumption of eggs was around 251 eggs last year and could dip to 246 eggs, on the average, in 1988. Since 1975, when the average dropped to 276, per capita egg consumption has been at the foods, contributing further to the lowest levels since USDA began keeping records in 1909.

Ross said wholesale egg prices this year may average 59 cents to 65 cents a dozen for Grade A large eggs in cartons on the New York City market, compared with an estimated 62 cents last year.

"Production costs likely will be a little higher than 1987's 62-cents-perdozen average," he said. "Hence, the outlook for the industry is not bright."

Ross noted that the egg industry can expand output fairly quickly when prices go up. Producers operating below capacity can increase production rapidly by keeping older hens longer through forced molting.

Since 1980, annual production of table-type eggs has been around 5.2 billion dozen, and little change is expected in 1988, he said.

Even though egg prices have been weak since last spring, the industry shows no inclination to curtail production," he said.

Only about 1,800 producers own flocks of more than 10,000 laying hens, compared with approximately 6,000 commercial owners a decade ago, Ross said. The trend will continue toward fewer and larger egg producers as stronger operations buy out inefficient and financially pressed operations, he said.

Meanwhile, another USDA official is emphasizing the bargains now

Thousands of people jammed omeless shelters as an "arctic outbreak" of icy air and wind-whipped snow knifed into the Northeast today and continued to grip the nation's midsection, breaking records for electricity usage. Western states, meanwhile, braced for a new storm after snow squalls on Monday piled up to 14 inches of snow on higher elevations of Oregon, California, Nevada and parts of

Utah. A storm that dumped up to 8 inches of snow on the Atlantic states headed offshore, but little relief from iceslickened roads was in sight as windchill as cold as minus 70 degrees were predicted for the rest of the

"Some areas in the East Coast are saying this is going to be the coldest ince '78. It's the coldest I've seen it in the last three years," said Dan McCarthy, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo. Since Saturday, at least four eaths were blamed on the weather. Temperatures plunged below zero across Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Iowa. The lowest temperature in the nation this morning was 25 below zero in Huron, S.D., and Warroad, Minn., slightly above Monday's low of 31 below in West Yellowstone, Mont.

However, with winds gusting to 30 mph, it felt as cold as 64 below zero at Rochester, Minn., and 59 below at Mason City, Iowa. "It's just an arctic outbreak," said

Greg Dickey, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Chicago. "We have a large area of arctic air that's been seeping down from the upper reaches of North America."

Homeless people normally satisfied with heating grates and makeshift cardboard roofs swiftly crowded shelters in Chicago, Detroit, New York, Dallas, Des Moines, Minneapolis and Indianapolis.

"We're pretty full up," desk clerk Ernie Boling said about the Lighthouse Mission in downtown Indianapolis. "We have 55 beds in the back and 20 on the floor, and we're all full."

Police in New York City declared a cold weather emergency, meaning they could transport the homeless to the city's 26 shelters.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I heard something today that made my hair stand on end. I hope you will deal with it in your column because it is a symptom of a problem that warrants deep concern.

Last October, the teacher of a fourth-grade class asked her students to write a short essay on what they would like to do most to celebrate Halloween. Eighty percent of her 9-year-olds expressed the wish to "kill somebody."

Where do children get such ideas? I believe it is fair to say that they get them from movies and TV.

What are we going to do about this love of violence among the young? Frankly, it scrares me to death. I am - Concerned in California

DEAR FRIEND: And I have been Concerned in Chicago for a long

It does no good to scream at the movie makers and TV producers. Apparently there is a big demand for violence and they are going to give the people what they want.

The responsibility falls on the shoulders of parents. They must set up hard and fast guidelines about what their young children can watch. A no-nonsense approach can cut down on about 70 percent of the garbage that comes into our living rooms. Easy? No. but it is a battle that parents must win.

One thing is certain. When I goof it's a beaut.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Mom died six months ago. A few weeks after the funeral Dad told us kids that he and Mom didn't have a very good sex life and that they hadn't made love more than four times in the past five years. They were married nearly 45 years so we didn't think that was so

Three months ago Dad started to take out some nice women. We were happy that he was able to enjoy himself again. But after six or seven respectable dates, he started to go DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please, with real young chicks, about the same age as his daughters. Now he is dating girls in their 20s.

Dad is sweet but very naive for a man who is 70. We are afraid these young women are working him for money and gifts. He resents it when we tell him that he is being taken advantage of. If our mother saw these women she would turn over in her grave. Please tell him, Ann.-Alabama

DEAR ALABAMA: Your dad didn't ask for any advice so I won't give him any. My comments are for you. By this time your father knows how you feel. You've made your point, so cool it. It's dangerous to generalize but girls in their 20s who would date a 70-year-old deserve to have their motives questioned. I hope Grampa wakes up soon.

Woman of the Year to be named tonight

The highlight of the Women's Division's quarterly meeting, set at 7:30 p.m. today at the Hereford Community Center, will be the naming of the Woman of the Year.

Also, during the event, installation of officers will be conducted. All women holding membership in the organization are encouraged to at-who is trying to do something about the problem.

"Ironically, a complimentary report card note from the child's teacher may further cloud the situation," says Glenn Hogen, a former public school teacher, assistant principal and superintendent.

'Saying that your child is 'well behaved and quiet in the classroom' may actually indicate that the child is trying to be inconspicuous to avoid being called upon to answer a question or do a math problem."

Contrasting with the too-quiet child, but with similar problems, Hogen says, is the loud, aggressive student who is trying to cover up for a poor performance in school. In causing disturbances, these voungsters believe notoriety is nearly as good as fame.

"In both cases," he explains, "the problem is usually one of low selfesteem and the need to gain attention."

Most public school teachers do a very creditable job, but nearly 60 percent of America's school children are in need of some kind of supplementary education, says Hogen, who is vice president of education for some 300 Sylvan Learning Centers in the United States and Canada.

"Millions of perfectly normal, bright children have gaps in their learning skills," he adds. "Perhaps it's caused by being home ill on the day their class began studying fractions, or by simply being afraid to tackle a new subject in the environment of a large class of kids they regard as overwhelming competitors."

Hogen has developed and supervises for the learning centers a curriculum he describes as the basis for lifelong positive learning habits. After diagnostic tests, individualized instruction programs are created for

Tutors may aid school students

Under the programs, students attend one- or two-hour after-school sessions each week where the student-to-teacher ratio is never higher than 3-to-1.

"A three-member class encourages a rapport between a student and teacher that can't be gained in any other way," Hogen says, adding that such a low ratio allows a degree of personalized teaching not possible in the typical school system.

"Children reach study comprehension levels at different ages. We work with each child according to his or her ability. Averages and other statistics don't mean all that much.

"What counts is helping each child attain his or her optimum performance, without competing against 35 or 40 other kids, all with different achievement levels."

Another serious problem facing educators is the faltering reading ability of many students, according to Stanley Frank, who says "a shocking 20 percent of all our school children are significantly behind their grade level in reading."

There are a million children between ages 12 and 17 who cannot read above the third-grade level, says Frank, chairman of the American Learning Corp., a subsidiary of Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc., which operates a national network of more than 100 after-school remedial reading centers.

Parents can help children get an early start on reading skills by reading to their preschool youngsters, even if only for 15 minutes a day, according to Frank. Just hearing the sound of a friendly voice reciting simple nursery rhymes can mark the beginning of a love for reading, he explains.

As the child grows older, Frank says, parents can stimulate reading by pointing out printed words seen outside the house, such as on street signs, billboards, trucks and packages in supermarkets.

Other suggestions include: - Encourage hobbies of all types and buy books that relate to them. Establish a regular family reading hour where the parents take turns reading aloud from books that were enjoyable to them as children. Obtain a library card for the child and help him or her bring home several books for reading aloud.

WOMEN ASK DR. LAMB

Incontinence BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 39 years of age, not overweight and walk three miles at least three times a week. My problem is that I urinate when I sneeze. I sing in church and I can barely finish a song before I've wet. The problem has existed for the past eight years and is getting worse.

About five years ago I was diagnosed as having stress incontinence and told to do the Kegel exercises. I have after a fashion, but I need some relief. My doctor told me the surgery had many complications.

I do not feel that my case is mild. It's serious to me because I am experiencing embarrassment and irritation. Pads won't help because the urination is heavy at times. I have actually been singing in church and urine just ran down my legs.

DEAR READER: Why not see another doctor for a second opinion? The surgery is done frequently without complications. The results depend a lot on how badly the anatomy is deranged. Kegel exercises to strengthen the pelvic muscles do help in mild cases, but eventually, surgery is often necessary.

The basic problem is a weakening of the pelvic muscles that support the urethra and the bladder. As the structures fall down, the mechanism to close the bladder does not work and a woman loses urine. Anything that increases the pressure above the bladder will cause further dislocation of the urethra and bladder. When a woman laughs or sneezes she may have a leakage problem. Standing up makes it worse. That is why you notice it while singing.

There are some medicines that can be tried that increase the tone of the urethra and help prevent stress incontinence. These include Ephedrine and Ornade. Other women are helped by Impramine, Tofranil and Janimine. Estrogen deficiency causes tissues to shrink and increases the problem. But I doubt that is a factor at your age.

There is even an inflatable cuff that can be implanted around the urethra to control urine flow as desired, so there are several options. See Special

Potato is an ideal mixer

By Aileen Claire

The versatile potato blends well with fruits and vegetables. One-dish meals fit into busy schedules, especially if they can be prepared ahead and reheated. Cabbage and cheese combine in a well-seasoned casserole that is just right for supper, while a special stew gets added flavor from prunes and apples.

POTATO-CABBAGE CASSEROLE

1½ pounds potatoes (3 large), unpeeled and washed

½ pound bacon, cut into 2-inch stripe

1 cup sliced onion
2 tablespoons flour

½ teaspoon dried leaf thyme, crumbled

½ teaspoon salt

1½ cups (12-ounce can) beer
(non-alcoholic optional)

½ cup milk

6 cups finely shredded cabbage
(1½ pounds)

1 cup shredded Swiss cheese
(¼ pound)

Steam potatoes in 1 inch of boiling water for 30 to 40 minutes, until tender. Slice, unpeeled, into 1/4-inch-thick slices

In large skillet, cook bacon until crisp; set aside. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons bacon fat.

In same skillet with fat, saute onion until golden; stir in flour, thyme and salt. Gradually add beer and milk; stir over low heat until mixture boils and thickens.

In 3-quart casserole dish, layer half the cabbage, potatoes, bacon, cheese and sauce. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Cover. Bake in a 375-degree oven for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake 15 minutes longer, until cabbage is tender. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

and washed, cut in large chunks

1 pound cooked ham, cut in large cubes

1/2 pound pitted prunes
2 red apples, cored, cut in

Myths about mental health, aging exist

Old age isn't a time of mental illness. Yet, if you believe many of the common myths about again, it would certainly appear to be so.

"Accepting a stereotype of generally poor mental health among the elderly often causes us to deal ineffectively with elderly parents and family members we care about," says Dr. Judith Warren, a gerontology specialist.

She says one of the greatest myths is that the incidence of serious mental illness increases with age.

"It's true that if you count the number of adults who are mentally ill and grow old, the rates of mental disorders will rise steadily and peak in the oldest age group," notes Warren. "However, when the one-year rates of new episodes of mental illness are counted, the rates are lowest after age 65."

In other words, a mentally healthy adult is likely to be a mentally healthy elder. While the older adult may have to cope with more life stresses than at earlier ages, the aging process itself doe snot lead to serious mental illness, she emphasizes.

"Many people also think that confusion and memoryloss in the elderly must be due to inevitable and irreversible brain disease." "While it's true that confusion is a symptom of Alzheimer's disease, stroke and brain tumors, they can treatable conditions."

According to the specialist, acute reactions to fever, medication interactions, high blood pressure or anemia can produce confusion which may be reversed with treatment.

also result from less serious,

"Assuming that poor mental health is a natural part of old age, means family members may not seek professional help when it could greatly contribute to the quality of life for both the elder and the rest of the family," cautions Warren.

POTATO-CORN SOUP

cupe chicken broth
cups diced, pared potatoes

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE

I am a retired Marine who has been working in the trucking industry for several years, driving an 18-wheeler around the country. In my shaving kit, I always carry the following coins: a roll of quarters, dimes and nickels ($17), for emergencies. If I get to a loading point and get delayed, I always have coins to operate the vending machines.

If I have a roadside emergency, I have coins for the pay telephones.

When my wife and I take short trips together, she also keeps a roll of quarters, dimes and nickels in her makeup kit for emergencies. (You know a woman is not going to let her makeup get too far away from her!)

A few coins can sure brighten up your day when you are temporarily stranded. — Harold Broadstreet, Dimmitt, Texas

First district victory after three defeats

Herd varsity scores 66-53 win over Pampa

By GARY CHRISTENSEN Sports Editor

Hereford High School swept Pampa in three boys' basketball games on Saturday in Hereford, including a 66-53 victory over Pampa in the varsity contest.

In other games, the HHS junior varsity team scored a 74-49 win, and the HHS sophomore team beat Pampa 64-33.

Saturday's win for the Herd varsity was that team's first District 1-4A victory against three defeats. Overall, the varsity has a 6-11 record.

Season records for the other Whiteface teams are 8-3 for the junior varsity and 3-9 for the sophomores.

Today, the Hereford varsity hosts Lubbock Dunbar in a district game at 8 p.m. at the La Plata gym. The junior varsity game is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the HHS gym. Later this week, the junior varsity team will play in the Dalhart tournament Thursday through Saturday.

The next game for the Hereford sophomore team is on Thursday at Plainview, at 6:30 p.m. On Saturday, the sophomores will play in the Canyon tournament.

Two scoring spurts by the Whiteface varsity boys on Saturday were a key to defeating Pampa 66-53. Hereford outscored Pampa 8-2 in the last minute and a half of the first quarter for a 19-12 lead.

Pampa scored the first five points of the second quarter to move within two points of Hereford, 19-17, but the rest of the quarter belonged to the Whitefaces. Hereford scored 19 points compared to just two by the Harvesters, and held a 38-19 halftime lead.

The closest that Pampa could get to the Herd in the second half was eight points, 52-44, with 6:32 left in the game. Hereford's biggest lead of the second half was 21 points, 47-26, after Brad Smith made a field goal and free throw for a three-point play.

Rodney McCracken poured in 26 points to lead the Whitefaces. Kevin Hansen, who was named to the alltournament team in the Clovis Holiday Tournament, scored 17 points and led the Herd in three statistical categories - 11 rebounds, seven steals and seven assists. McCracken had three steals.

Marcus Brown added nine points and had four assists. Other HHS scorers included Ross Torres with six points and Smith with five points.

The Whitefaces hit 28 of 59 shots from the field.

"It helped us to finally play at home. We had played 17 games, and the only game at home was Dimmitt," Hereford Coach Mike Fields said.

'When we got on that roll, the crowd kept us going. Before when we have done that, the crowd was against us because we were on the road.

"On Wednesday, when we lost to Midland Lee on that last-second shot, it was a tough loss. But I felt our players came back from that loss real well against Pampa," Fields continues.

'It was real important for district.

We haven't lost at home in district, so if you can win district games at home it will keep you in the district race, because it's an even district.

"The playoff teams will be the ones that can win on the road. We have only five road games left. We're still in it if we can get on a roll."

Junior varsity team members Todd Schroeder and Jason Scott each scored 20 points to lead Hereford over Pampa 74-49. Schroeder hit eight of 12 shots from the field and Scott made nine of 17 shots, with each individual hitting a three-point

Roger McCracken added eight points, Adolfo Martinez scored seven points, and Stuart Mitts had six Hereford jumped out to a 19-2 lead in the first quarter, and held a 24-9 lead when the period ended. Hereford then held a 43-24 halftime lead en route to the 74-49 victory. McCracken and Scott each grabbed 10 rebounds, Keith Brown had five rebounds and Mitts had four rebounds. Schroeder was the leader in steals with six and in assists with

The Hereford sophomores scored 21 points from three-point goal territory in defeating Pampa 64-33. Matt Smith, Jason Walterscheid, and Chad Schroeder each scored two three-point goals, and Russell Backus hit one three-point shot.

Backus was high scorer for Hereford with 13 points, and Chuck Lemons was also in double figures with 11 points. Schroeder scored eight points, and Walterscheid and Matt Smith each had six points.

Hereford had a good team effort in rebounding and on defense. Twelve HHS players had two or more rebounds each, led by Tate Smith with 10, Jim Andrews with seven, and Lemons, Daniel Garcia, and Andrew Tijerina each with five.

On defense, Nate Williamson led Hereford with six steals. HEREFORD VARSITY: Rodney McCracken my Carter is presiding over the Oval Office in the sky.

The aroma of chili, meat loaf, macaroni and cheese and similar "heavy-duty fare" wafting from the galley announces that dinner is about to be served to Ronald Reagan.

Unless Nancy happens to be on board, in which case the menu takes a nutritious turn in the direction of crabmeat salad or a shrimp and avocado platter.

If the lettuce starts to wilt and the fresh milk runs out, you know that Air Force One has been out of the country too long.

Of course the big news for frequent fliers on presidential aircraft is that after all these years - 25 to be exact - the White House jet is about to expand to jumbo size.

Boeing's Wichita, Kan., plant is fitting out a 747 with a presidential bedroom and bathroom, an enlarged oval office, a 14-place conference room, an emergency medical center, 10 work stations for speech writers and aides, all the latest communications equipment and state-of-thespook-art decoding devices. Soon there even may be enough elbow room for a pool reporter to reach for

The first of two jumbos in the $250 million order will be delivered late in 1988, diplomatically just in time to taxi Ronnie and Nancy into retirement at the Santa Barbara ranch without the administration being accused of seeking more deluxe transportation. A back-up 747 will be ready a few months later.

The jumbos, 80 feet longer and three-times as roomy, can fly 8,000 miles without refueling, compared with the 7,000-mile range of the 707s they are replacing. They can land on shorter runways, cruise 40 mph faster at 640 mph, and accommodate 70 passengers and a crew of 23, compared with the current 47 passengers and 17 crew.

Although not as lavishly appointed as the gilt and bejeweled flying throne rooms of Arab oil sheiks, the jumbos destined for the huge hangars at Andrews Air Force Base represent a giant step in chief executive air travel since Franklin D. Roosevelt buckled his seat belt aboard the four-engine DC-4 called the Sacred Cow, the first presidential aircraft, or Harry Truman scared the daylights out of his womenfolk. Bess and Margaret, by having the pilot of his DC-6 buzz the White House while they were up on the roof watching an air show.

Air Force One, by the way, is not an airplane. Ever since Dwight Eisenhower's Super-Constellation. the Columbine II, almost got its control tower signals mixed up with an Eastern flight out of Washington, D.C., Air Force One has been the call sign of any Air Force plane with the president on board.

The big new presidential jets will have to log a couple of million miles before tracing in the changing skies of history the glorious and sometimes REie contrails drawn by the 707s they are replacing.

Tail No. 26,000 joined the SAM Fleet - Special Air Missions - on Oct. 12, 1962. This is the plane that took John F. Kennedy to Ireland for a typewriter without knocking the tea in the widow Ryan's thatched cot-cheese dip off the table. tage, to Berlin for his "Ich bin ein Berliner" speech.

On Nov. 22, 1963, it made the 13-minute hop from Carwell AFB, Fort Worth, to Love Field, Dallas, where a few hours later Kennedy's coffin was loaded into the tail section, now occupied by the press pool, while Lyndon Johnson in the forward cabin took the oath of office as the 36th president. The plane Kennedy loved, and which Jackie fitted out with fine bone china, made a low pass over Arlington Cemetery as his body was lowered into the grave. Aboard No. 26,000, Johnson became the first president to circle the globe; Richard Nixon reopened the People's Republic of China, visited Russia twice and had his pilot, Col. Ralph Albertazzie, slip Henry Kissinger into Paris 14 times for secret negotiations to end the war in Vietnam.

Gerald Ford got tangled up in an umbrella alighting at Salzberg, Austria and fell down the last four steps of Air Force One. He recovered with a nimble one-liner: "I'm sorry I tumbled in like this."

The press pool rarely gets to see Reagan on board, except to take photos from the aft staircase of Nancy and Ronnie, waving from the front steps, he with the right hand, she always with the left, two Hollywood pros who never block each other's camera angle.

There have been bomb scares in Berlin and Dublin, and recently, with Reagan aboard, a gasket in the galley blew out with a loud bang that set nerves on edge as the pilot quickly descended from 27,000 to 14,000

Air Force One gets called on for a little stunt flying when a president treats his guests to a closer look at Mount Rushmore or the Grand Ca-

Asked how Reagan was holding up during three low passes over the Air Force Academy while the cadets stood at attention, former spokesman Larry Speakes replied,

"Well, he hasn't thrown up yet."

George Reedy, LBJ's press chief, once banned from Air Force One a newsman who staggered aboard intoxicated, but the days of the harddrinking reporter vanished with the bourbon and poker sessions on the Ferdinand Magellan, FDR's private

"On the final leg, you might relax with a gin and tonic, but these mostly are fairly boring, work-intensive trips," says Terry Hunt, the AP

White House correspondent. It costs $7,615 an hour to keep Air Force One flying. The press pool pays its own way.

"We charge them the commercial coach rate, plus one dollar," says Billy Dale in the White House transportation office, who sends out the bills to the news organizations.

A few days in advance of Air Force One's arrival, two huge military cargo planes deliver the president's bubbletop limousine and a backup, four armored cars for the Secret Service, metal detectors for crowd surveillance, sometimes even a fire engine, and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of communications equipment, which in foreign climes is often cheaper to leave in place. A press charter, sometimes two, and the backup 707 fly in with the president's plane.

Reagan's five-day Caribbean trip in 1982 left the island of Barbados with virtually a brand new telephone

Frequent press travelers on Air Force One sometimes see Americans living abroad grow homesick, even tearful, at the sight of Air Force One rolling to a landing on an alien tar-

In one of those poetic moments that always surprised listeners, gruff Lyndon Johnson gave the view from the top of the stairs:

'My plane has landed on many continents. The wheels have never stopped and the door has never opened that I have not looked upon faces which would not liked to have traded citizenship with me."

AUSTIN (AP) - Bob Bullock money," he said. wants your vote, but he cannot tell you the exact date he wants you to cast it.

Bullock, state comptroller since 1975, is running for lieutenant governor in 1990. "I haven't looked it up," he said when asked the dates of the Democratic Primary or general election that year.

It's early - absurdly early, say some - but Bullock is running hard.

He has been traveling the state and forcing other would-be candidates to do something they say they aren't ready to do yet - think about the

"I'm interested and am going to keep the possibilities open. It would be too early for me" to get in the race now, said state Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, a potential Bullock opponent.

"The lieutenant governor's position is a race I would like to not rule out. Now it's just too premature to focus on that race," said Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, another potential candidate.

"Every member of the Senate has some secret aspiration to preside over the Senate," said Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth, who has not kept his aspiration a secret. He is widely considered the most probable of Bullock's poetential opponents.

But Parmer, like the others, seems perfectly happy to leave Bullock the lone candidate for many months, perhaps years.

"I don't think anybody is going to be able to sew up the nomination this early. You won't find people making firm commitments three years in advance," he said.

George Christian of Austin, a longtime Democratic Party activist and strategist, is not so sure about that. Bullock's early entry, at the least, could dictate who else gets in, he said.

"King Kong's already in the race." Christian said as he grazed the buffet at a Bullock Christmas party Bullock jumped into the race in September, shortly after longtime Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby announced he would not run for anything in 1990.

An October campaign survey confirmed what the candidate already knew - his name is known. Eightyeight percent of the 700 respondents said they had heard of him.

And 65 percent said "despite past personal problems ... (Bullock) had done a good job" as comptroller, said a survey memo, referring to Bullock's alcoholism and treatment

"You'd have to be a Ross Perot or an Earl Campbell to have better name ID," said one state senator who asked not to be identified. "But Parmer doesn't scare."

Parmer said Bullock's bignumbers name identification is no reason not to run against him.

"Anybody with the name recognition that Bullock has would be a formidable candidate, but name recognition is only one factor. Name recognition can be overcome by

By some estimates, it would take about $2 million for a lesser-known candidate to buy his name ID up to Bullock's level.

"That's the very thing that lots of us have been critical about," Bullock said. "Waiting to the last, wrapping them up, packaging them and selling them like a new box of soap that just hit the market. 'Buy Oxydol. It's new on the market. It's got bluing.'

"You're going to be looking at lots of Oxydol boxes."

Bullock's potential opponents note they may be faced with voting on another unpalatable tax bill in 1989, which would make a bid for statewide office difficult.

But Bullock said tax hikes don't help him either.

"I have to collect the taxes. You think that's any big joy?" he said.

"It's amazing that I've been able to have the job performance rating I have. Who likes a tax collector? You know what they like? They like somebody's who's fair and uses some common sense and that's something that's been exercised in this office,' he said.

The Texas Constitution could dictate who the other candidates will be. It bars legislators from seeking statewide offices for which they increased benefits. The lieutenant governor's salary ($600 a month, just like legislators') is set by the Constitution. But the Legislature can increase other benefits, such as retirement funds.

Edwards and Farabee, who both face re-election in 1988, could be barred from the 1990 lieutenant governor's race if the 1989 Legislature raises benefits. Parmer would not be barred because his Senate term ends

The complicated eligibility question is being researched by the Legislative Council at the request of unidentified senators.

Texas Republican Party Chairman George Strake said he is not co ed Bullock will be a candidate when the serious campaigning starts.

"I know Bob Bullock, and I don't put a whole lot of faith in what he announces he is going to do two years from now," Strake said, referring to Bullock's last early campaign announcement.

Shortly after Mark White was elected governor in 1982, Bullock said he would run in 1986. But when the serious campaigning began, the Bullock-for-governor campaign was a memory, victim of underwhelming financial support.

But Bullock says this time he is in the race to stay.

"He knows what he's doing," says a Bullock campaign brochure.

And what he's doing, even if he doesn't know the specific dates, is asking Texas Democrats to vote for him on March 13, 1990 and all Texans to vote for him on Nov. 6, 1990.

teface varsity falls to Pampa

The Hereford High School varsity is' basketball team had its pro-ms in the first half again Saturday night when they fell behind Pampa 35-18 in a District 1-4A loss, 52-43.

The loss dropped Hereford to 0-6 in district games and 5-14 for the season. Hereford's junior varsity team defeated Pampa 42-29 to improve its record to 3-9.

"The key for us is putting together a whole game, instead of a couple of quarters. If we do that and hit our shots, taking advantage of our opportunities, we'll do all right," Hereford

We'll have to shoot better from the free throw line, too," he adds.

In the third quarter, Hereford closed to within nine points, 37-28, on a basket by Stacy White with 2:02 left. Pampa held a 43-30 lead going into the fourth quarter.
