Land battle brews among Walcott board

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

A battle over ownership of the land on which Walcott School rests is brewing among the school's board of trustees.

The land involved is 14 acres which were deeded to the school district by Mrs. N.A. Brown and Sons with the provision the land be used for school purposes. Under current contracts, which began in 1961 and were added to in 1980, the land would revert back to the Brown family should it no longer be used for a public school.

In what was a surprise move to trustees, Ernest Brown, a member of the family which deeded the land to the school, and his son, Dennis, Superintendent Bill McLaughlin introduced an attorney, Chuck Hester of Canyon, to board members and recommended he be retained to advise the board on legalities concerning ownership of the land and a possible conflict of interest on the part of having the Browns seated on the board which governs the school.

In a four-to-three vote the trustees agreed to retain the attorney who said his fee will be $100 an hour.

Hester said his review of contracts related to the land confirm the land would revert to the Brown family should the school close and added that it is unusual for a public school to rest on privately-owned property. He advised the board of three potential problems:

"A survey shows various school buildings and improvements are not limited to the boundaries of the 14 acres and are, in fact, partially on land which the Brown family has not deeded to the school.

"As the contract currently stands, improvements, such as the gymnasium and other buildings which would be impossible to move, would become property of the Browns should the school close.

"With a vested interest in the land on which the school rests, the Browns cannot vote on matters before the board concerning improvements without creating a conflict of interest.

A member of the Brown family in the audience asked why the action was necessary. "Why would want to buy land you've already got? We can't take it from you as long as the school is here so what is the problem?" she asked.

The problem, several of the board members said, is the need to have clear title to the land because of the improvements and because of possible future problems.

Trustee Dan Hall said the Brown family's ownership of the land has bothered him since he was a "kid" and one of the Brown boys bragged that someday the school would close and his family would be parking their tractors in the gym.

Ernest Brown said that suggestion was silly. "This school building will never be used as a barn," he said. "I care too much about the school and the community. That is why my family gave the land in the first place."

Dennis Brown questioned McLaughlin about information packets, concerning the land issue, which were provided to all board members other than himself and his father. McLaughlin responded that the packets were not prepared when he delivered the agenda for the meeting to the two Browns but that he then picked the packets up and managed to get them to the other board members.

Bobby Hammock, in the audience, said, "I find it totally difficult to believe the family who gave this land would take it back. This is a slap in the face to the people that loaned the land in the first place."

In a rapid-fire exchange of dialogue, Trustee Jim Bob Perrin asked, "Why can't we buy the land?"

Mrs. Brown answered, "Its not for sale."

No problem, said the attorney, if the board can't buy the land they have the option of declaring eminent domain and condemning the land to take it.

"Can you legally break this contract between my grandmother and the school?" asked Dennis Brown.

"In the event negotiations are unsuccessful it will be within the power of the board to vote to instigate condemnation procedures," Hester said.

Brown started to raise another question when McLaughlin interrupted with, "Is he allowed to talk at this meeting? Isn't it a conflict of interest for him to talk?"

Hester explained the conflict involves only voting and not discussion.

Mike Brumley said he could see why the board would be concerned about possible future problems and might want to own the land but added he could also see the other side. "I see some people generous enough to have seen a need in the community and met it and Bill (McLaughlin), I'm sorely disappointed in the way you have handled this. It stinks."

McLaughlin defended himself, saying he had contacted the Browns and asked them to donate or sell the land and they refused; however, various members of the Brown family present stated that the superintendent only contacted Ernest, by telephone, and made no effort to address the other partners in the land.

In a four-to-three vote the board decided to contract another land survey to determine the extent, if any, of encroachment and then move forward from that point.

"I'd just like to say you've sure started in to waste the taxpayers money that was so hard to get in reserve," Ernest Brown said.

"If you'd have come to me and said, 'We've got a problem,' it would have been resolved but you came down here and stomped the sap out of me and I'm going to fight back. . . . You bring a lawyer up here and, boy, you're ready for war. This is a slap in the face."

Susan Perrin, who conducted the meeting, said that she agreed with the presence of the attorney because of the legalities involved and that the problem isn't what is going to happen to the school now but what will happen in the future. "Things change," she said and added that she believes that future security for the school may rest on who owns the land on which it sits.

CSF kicks off fundraising today

Hereford's Christmas Stocking Fund, a holiday charity that works to alleviate some of the hunger and need facing the community's less fortunate, kicks off its 1987 fundraising efforts today.

This year's campaign comes on the heels of the record 1986 program that saw donations to CSF reach an all-time high of $10,626. The sharing of Hereford residents during the holiday season last year helped make the holidays brighter for 130 households and 638 individuals.

The committee of 15 anonymous individuals who administer CSF in Hereford are hoping for a new high in community holiday giving this year.

"Amidst the plenty of the Thanksgiving holiday, and as we look forward to the joyous Christmas season that's rapidly approaching, we need to pause a moment to reflect on the fact that there are those within our community who are less fortunate than ourselves, who are in need of our caring and sharing," said a CSF spokesman.

The Stocking Fund is now collecting cash donations to help in making this Christmas brighter for Hereford's needy.

At present, the CSF committee has already been made aware of some 90 needy local families.

There are many different stories of need in the applications flowing into the CSF program. Here's a typical example:

A father of three children, ages five, nine, and 12, is afflicted with leukemia. While the dread disease is in remission at this time, he has been unable to find a job. This man and his wife must make frequent trips to Houston in order for him to undergo medical treatment. He must also purchase expensive drugs to treat his illness.

The man's parents also live with the family and a total of seven people get by on what the man's wife brings home in pay from work in a cafeteria.

Ironically, the family didn't qualify for food stamps, because their car—a 1984 Chevy, was "too good of a vehicle" for them to qualify, yet the wife says she must have a dependable vehicle in order to take her husband to Houston for the medical treatments.

This ill father is asking CSF for assistance in the form of coats for his children, food, and possibly some help with his prescription drug bills.

Cases like this are the reason CSF functions in Hereford. CSF is not affiliated with any other group, and is strictly a non-profit charity.

At this time of plenty, holiday joy, and gift-giving, CSF asks that Hereford's needy be remembered.—Even "small" contributions make a big difference.

A list of contributors to CSF will be regularly published in The Brand. Donors who prefer to remain anonymous should designate so when making their contribution.

The Hereford Brand is again serving as collection agent for the tax-deductible contributions. Donations can be hand-delivered to The Brand offices at 313 North Lee Street, or mailed to: Christmas Stocking fund, c/o The Hereford Brand, Box 673, Hereford.

Among early contributors to CSF are:

Hereford Brand	$200
Stagner-Orsburn	$100
James W. Witherspoon	$100
Emily Suggs	$100
Hereford Lions Club	$25
Lavon and Speedy Nieman	$50

Fisher says PCBAN, paper not finished

The chairman of Panhandle Citizens for a Better Amarillo Newspaper, Paul Engler of Dumas, said Tuesday that the "management and owners of the Amarillo Globe-News have been responsive in addressing our concerns," but Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher, a member of the PCBAN executive committee said he Amarillo newspaper has not yet gone far enough.

"As far as I'm concerned, they have not satisfactorily expressed their regrets for the unfairly slanted series of articles written about Hereford which materially damaged our community," Fisher said this morning. "We want some type of assurance that this same type of misleading journalism will not recur to Hereford or other communities or institutions in the Panhandle."

"To that end, we hope to meet with the newspaper management, in Hereford, in the very near future."

PCBAN was formed after an eight-day, 38-story series entitled "Hereford and the Hispanics" appeared in the Amarillo newspaper. Widespread dissatisfaction with the series spread from Hereford to throughout the Panhandle and has led to several merchants discontinuing Tuesday advertising in the newspaper and widespread subscription cancellation.

At a PCBAN rally Monday, Engler outlined a seven-point plan to Globe-News management that was addressed, in part, by Group Manager Carl Cannon Tuesday. Fisher said the newspaper "agreed to work toward and budget money to improve their newspaper" during a meeting Tuesday between two members of the PCBAN executive committee and top management of the newspaper.

"They were willing to address most of our requests," Fisher said, "such as striving for journalistic excellence, appointing interested Panhandle residents to an Editors' Forum with access to the editorial page, and commissioning an area-wide survey by an independent firm to get the feeling of area residents in order to strengthen their service to the readers. They have already made some change in their management in Amarillo."

For farmers

Thanksgiving a turkey

AUSTIN (AP) — Thanksgiving feasts may be a good deal for consumers, but farmers won't find it all that rewarding, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says.

Farmers will net less than 8 cents of the total per-serving price for Thanksgiving dinner this year, and they will lose money supplying some items, a Texas Department of Agriculture report says.

"In some cases, it costs farmers twice as much to produce a commodity as they receive for that commodity," Hightower said Tuesday.

"You don't need a degree in finance from SMU to know that means slim pickings at the Thanksgiving table for the people who produce our agricultural bounty."

According to the department's latest price survey, the average Texas retail price for an 11-item Thanksgiving dinner is $2.52. Texas farmers' net return for those items is 7.7 cents.

The 11 items and their average prices per serving were turkey, 53.3 cents; stuffing, 19.8 cents; rice, 5.6 cents; corn on the cob, 11.1 cents; let-

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government's attempt to reduce the flow of red ink is getting off to a rocky start in the new fiscal year with a giant $30.7 billion imbalance for October.

The shortfall between government revenues and spending for the first month in the 1988 fiscal year was 21.6 percent higher than the same month a year ago and was much worse than many economists had been expecting.

It was particularly bad news for the Reagan administration and congressional budget negotiators who have been working to come up with a credible deficit reduction package aimed at calming financial market jitters following the big plunge in stock prices last month.

The negotiators reached agreement Friday on a package aimed at trimming the deficit for this fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, by $30.2 billion.

But even with these cuts, the Congressional Budget Office says the deficit will still rise above the $148 billion deficit for the 1987 fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30.

CBO analysts are forecasting a deficit for the current fiscal year of around $150 billion, and some private economists said even this estimate is likely to be far too optimistic.

The problem is that the government had a boost in cutting the red ink last year from an unexpected $28 billion in higher tax receipts triggered by the overhaul of the tax law. That increase will not be available this time around.

In addition, many economists are reducing their forecasts for overall economic growth because of the shock to consumer confidence caused by the collapse of the stock market. Lower growth will mean lower government tax revenues and higher government spending on such things as unemployment benefits.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, said he had been predicting a 1988 deficit of around $175 billion, even with the reductions approved by the administration and congressional leaders. But he said this figure could swell to $200 billion if the recession he is predicting for next year is worse than anticipated.

Economists blamed higher-than-expected government spending in a number of areas for the October shortfall, suggesting that agencies may have held back on spending in September to make the 1987 deficit figure look even better.

In one case, the Defense Department did just that under orders from Congress. The government "saved" nearly $3 billion by changing the pay day for 2.1 million active duty military personnel from the last day of the month to the first day of the month.

Instead of getting paid on Sept. 30, members of the armed forces had to wait until Oct. 1, providing a painless way for budget writers to appear to reduce defense spending for 1987 without actually having done so.

That's a sleight-of-hand won't be available for budget writers this time around.

The package of deficit reduction measures that the administration and congressional negotiators have agreed to still must be approved by Congress before they can go into effect.

Until that approval takes place, a package of $23 billion in automatic spending cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman law is in effect, starting last Friday.

Newsmakers find special meaning in Thanksgiving

By The Associated Press

Linda Despot is thankful for her share of a $46 million lottery, former hostage David Jacobsen is thankful for his freedom, and Jessica McClure's parents are giving thanks for having their little girl home alive.

Across America, people prepared for Thursday's Thanksgiving holiday by recalling the year's harvest of publicized troubles and personal triumphs.

"I thank the Lord for all the blessings he has given me in all aspects of my life," said Clara Escobedo de Martinez, a Mexican-American living in Brownsville, Texas, who last week at 96 became the oldest undocumented alien to receive amnesty under the new immigration law. "We receive blessings without deserving them."

"I am very thankful for my freedom," said Jacobsen, 56, of Huntington Beach, Calif., who had been held hostage in Lebanon for 17 months. "I consider myself a lucky man to be able to have spent six months with my father before he died at age 93 ... because I got home in time for the birth of my two wonderful grandsons ... (and) to have been able to devote the past year to lobbying on behalf of my friends who remain hostages."

"I am very thankful and grateful for the support of my family, and also for the many, many other PWAs (people with AIDS) I've grown to know and love," said Tom Antonik, 31, who was diagnosed in May with the fatal disease and has since become a board member of the New York chapter of the National Association of People with AIDS.

"It sounds very odd to say I feel fortunate for this situation, but I don't think I would trade this experience for the world. I've grown tremendously."

"I'll be thankful for my baby, because I had one last year and she didn't live. So I'll really be thankful for my baby," said Edith Vaughn, 18, of Gary, Ind., who lives in a home for pregnant adolescents with her 3-week-old daughter, Kanisha.

"We know we'll have (a happy Thanksgiving)," said Chip McClure, whose 19-month-old daughter, Jessica, was released less than a week ago from the hospital where she recuperated after being trapped for 58 hours in an abandoned well in Midland, Texas.

"Thanks to the grace of God and some heroic men, we've got our baby back."

"First of all I'm thankful for my health, because you go through things like this and there's no guarantee that you don't develop an ulcer," Muriel Siebert, who owns New York discount brokerage house, said of the October stock market crash. "I'm thankful that I have a very good staff that was able to hold the hands of a lot of investors."

"We're thankful we don't have to work any more," said Ms. Despot, 37, a former bookkeeper from Hollidaysburg, Pa., and co-winner of $46 million in the Oct. 14 Pennsylvania lottery. "We're thankful that we can pay off our bills and get out of debt, get some of the worry and pressure off us."

"We have seen the splendor of our natural resources spread across the tables of the world, and we have seen the splendor of freedom coursing with new vigor through the channels of history," President Reagan said in his 1987 Thanksgiving Day proclamation.

"The cause for which we give thanks, for which so many of our citizens through the years have given their lives, has endured 200 years — a blessing to us and a light to all mankind."

"There is no way an atheist is going to thank God for anything," said Madalyn Murray O'Hair. "I think most atheists would say it's incumbent upon each of us to try to do something for ourselves and our families and the human community."

Jackson makes trademark trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — There he goes again. With a roar of jet engines, Jesse Jackson is off to another world trouble spot on the latest of his globetrotting excursions.

This week's destination is the Persian Gulf, the one region of the world where large numbers of U.S. forces are deployed in the midst of a war.

And it is the one place guaranteed to garner the media-wise Jackson maximum publicity as the early stages of the 1988 presidential race perk along — especially during the predictably slow-news Thanksgiving week.

From his pre-departure session with United Nations Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to his planned meetings with royalty in Jordan and Saudi Arabia, to his delivery of 600 pounds of Christmas gifts for the crew of a U.S. warship, Jackson's trip is designed to attract maximum public attention.

That's typical. Jackson's forays abroad are always arranged for the highest public visibility. Critics say Jackson is the ultimate grandstander, while his new campaign manager Gerald Austin admiringly describes him as "not just a candidate for president — he's an international personality."

However they are viewed, Jackson's trips to places like Syria,

Cuba and Nicaragua have become something of a trademark for him.

Whether this week's jaunt will help his presidential aspirations remains to be seen.

In a 1984 trip to Syria he stunned the political establishment by flying home with downed U.S. Navy pilot Lt. Robert Goodman, who had been released to Jackson by Syrian President Hafez Assad. That got Jackson an invitation to the White House, along with Goodman, where Jackson more or less upstaged President Reagan.

This first trip abroad in Jackson's 1988 campaign also echoes other 1984 excursions: his trip to Cuba to see President Fidel Castro, who then released some two dozen Americans from his jails; a jaunt to Nicaragua where he praised the leftist Sandinista government.

The day before his Tuesday departure, he raised another tantalizing possibility by saying he'd speak to people who might have information about the U.S. hostages kidnapped in Lebanon and also about British envoy Terry Waite.

Jackson so far has reserved judgment on what should be the U.S. strategy in the Persian Gulf.

Presumably all of the fact finding he does in the next week will be the emergence of a policy platform tuce, 8.8 cents; carrots, 9.8 cents; tomatoes, 18.4 cents; grapefruit, 15.9 cents; milk, 33.7 cents; pecan pie, 63 cents; and ice cream, 13.6 cents.

According to the department, farmers net money on seven of those items — corn, lettuce, carrots, tomatoes, grapefruit, milk and ice cream — with tomatoes netting the most at 2.8 cents for a 4-ounce serving.

"On four items — the turkey, stuffing, rice and pecan pies — Texas farmers will actually lose more than 2 cents per serving," Hightower said. "It doesn't add up to prosperity for the Texas farm economy."

Hightower noted that last month's Wall Street crash saw stock values drop $500 billion in value "in a single jolt heard 'round the world."

But the nation's farmers have seen American agriculture lose $441 billion in real value since 1981, Hightower said, and few people seem to have noticed.

"The truth is, we've lost 43,600 family farms in Texas since 1981. We're still losing them at a rate of 172 a week," he said.

TREATY

many, Britain, Italy and Belgium.

Hundreds of Soviet inspectors are to be sent to those bases in Western Europe to observe the dismantling and make sure the missiles are not illegally replaced over the next 10 years.

The Soviets agreed that 683 of their missiles, nearly all of which are aimed at Western Europe, will be scrapped and American inspectors will make verification checks in the Soviet Union.

Shultz said there would be an exchange of notes with each of the NATO countries to authorize the Soviet inspections. In Belgium, Lord Carrington, secretary-general of the Western alliance, said the agreement "is excellent news — the result which the alliance position and U.S. negotiating efforts were designed to achieve."

The deal was sealed Tuesday by Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze at the U.S. mission after two days of talks.

"All that remains is treaty language which others will be able to do," Shultz said. "We are very pleased that we have this agreement."

The treaty to scrap shorter- and medium-range missiles — those having a range of 315 miles to 3,125 miles — is the centerpiece for the Dec. 8-10 summit in Washington.

It is Reagan's first nuclear weapons accord after nearly seven years in the White House and the first since the 1979 Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, which Reagan has disavowed.

Among the unprecedented features is a system of short-notice inspection of sites where one side suspects the other is illegally hiding missiles.

The Americans will enter the Soviet Union through Moscow or Irkutsk, in the southeast, and the Soviets via Washington and San Francisco, U.S. officials said Tuesday night.

Already, a number of conservative Republican senators have lined up tentatively against the emerging treaty. Ratification requires the approval of 67 senators if all 100 vote. But Shultz expressed confidence the administration would win Senate approval.

Shultz said the treaty would force the Soviets to eliminate about 1,500 deployed warheads compared to about 350 on the U.S. side.

On a stopover in Denver, Reagan also predicted Senate ratification and said he and Gorbachev would discuss extending limitations to long-range missiles when they met.

At a separate Geneva news conference, Shevardnadze voiced hope "a political thaw is starting which may lead to a change in the political climate on our planet."

It took four meetings between Shultz and Shevardnadze over less than three months to work out the terms of the treaty. U.S. and Soviet negotiators also grappled with the accord for 2½ years.

Shultz outlined an inspection system that provides for 20 short-notice checks a year during the three years the missiles are to be destroyed.

The monitoring will continue over 10 more years, with 15 checks annually in the first five years and 10 checks annually in the last five.

A U.S. Navy communications ship anchored off the Sinai Peninsula was attacked in 1967 by Israeli torpedo boats and planes, and 34 American sailors died.

Among the cities hit hardest by the tornado system were Palestine, where twisters killed one person and injured 51 others, and Jacksonville, where two people died and 63 were injured.

Property damage in those two cities, in Anderson and Cherokee counties, exceeded that in all 22 other affected counties combined. In Palestine, more than 280 homes and businesses were damaged or destroyed, and 99 homes and 11 businesses in Jacksonville were destroyed or damaged.

The violent weather in Texas was part of a system of tornadoes, hail, flooding and windstorms that also struck parts of Mississippi and Louisiana.

Property Claims Services, a New York-based insurance trade organization, estimated that insured property losses will reach $10 million in Mississippi and $5 million in Louisiana.

The estimate does not include damage insured under the National Flood Insurance Program.

James A. Douglass, manager of Texas Catastrophe Property Insurance Association, said he expects to receive 1,000 claims as a result of the severe weather in counties covered by his group.

The group was created by the Texas Legislature in 1971 to cover windstorm and hail damage for the 14 counties in the high-risk area along the Texas coast.

It provides insurance for property owners in the area and bills member companies for its losses, said Rick Gentry, spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute.

Boyd, Davis given awards

The Big Brother and Big Sister of the Year were announced at the Third Annual Big Brothers/Big Sisters Appreciation Dinner held Saturday evening in the First Baptist Church fellowship hall.

Bobby Boyd was selected as the Big Brother of the Year. He serves as big brother to Kevin Lindell, a senior at Hereford High School. The pair have been matched for over two years. Boyd enjoyed the football season watching Kevin's involvement as a Herd football team member. Kevin is also a member of the HHS orchestra.

The Big Sister of the Year is Jessie Ann Davis who is matched to Olga Cera, a sixth grader at West Central. Davis and Olga spend every Thursday afternoon together which includes a weekly visit to Deaf Smith County Library. They enjoy arts and crafts projects and made all of the table decorations for the annual appreciation dinner. They have also been matched for over two years.

Roger Eades, president of the board, gave the welcome at the dinner and the Rev. Ron Cook offered the invocation. The guest speaker was the Rev. J. Frank Peery of Adrian who spoke on "Being Thankful for All Things." Special music was presented by Bobby and Bera Boyd and Bill and Elva Devers.

The Board of Directors served as hosts for this year's fajita dinner which served approximately 100 people. Board officers include Eades, president; Margaret Bell, vice president; Jeff Brown, treasurer; and Wanda Cobb, secretary. Serving as board members are Terry Langehennig, Joyce Allred, Joyce Blasingame, June Owens, Bettye Owen, Mike Moon, Ted Taylor, Rev. Cook, David Alvarado, Mark Nicklaus, and James Self.

The first Labor Day parade in the United States was held Sept. 5, 1882, in New York City.

Cline presents program

Marie Cline gave an artistic demonstration of the ancient art of strudel making when members of L'Allegra Study Club met Nov. 19 in the home of Kay Lynn Caviness with Dee Anne Trotter serving as co-hostess.

Cline stated that the art is of Austrian origin dating back more than 500 years. Her grandfather was born in Austria and the art was passed on to her by her mother.

The club discussed plans for their upcoming Project Christmas Card fundraiser, and current correspondence was read and reports given by the standing committees.

Festival to be held

Wesley United Methodist Church will host their Seventh Annual Festival of Arts and Crafts Dec. 5 in the Community Center from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Booths are available at a cost of $15.

British statesman Sir Anthony Eden was born in 1897.

An orientation committee was chosen to brief the newer club members. This meeting will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 1, in the home of Loyce Lomas.

Jan Perrin was welcomed as a guest by the 22 members present. They were served refreshments of apple strudel and coffee.

Accent on Health

"High Risk" People Need Flu Vaccine

The coming of "flu season" is as inevitable as the longer nights and shorter days of winter.

Influenza, or flu, is a broad name for an almost constantly changing group of viruses infecting hundreds of thousands of people worldwide each year, usually during the colder months.

From late November through April in a normal year, as many as 20 percent of the Texas population may suffer from the disease, and some cases persist even in summer. Some 2,145 cases of flu or flu-like illnesses occurred in October alone, and October is considered a low-incidence month for flu.

Flu causes upper respiratory problems, fever, headache, and body aches, and can be complicated by stomach upset, diarrhea, and general malaise. Severe cases can lead to pneumonia, and can be fatal to persons with weakened conditions. For that reason, "high risk" individuals should be immunized each year against the disease, according to the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

There were 55 deaths from influenza in Texas last year.

The federal Centers for Disease Control have predicted that this year three, distinct strains of influenza will most likely threaten the U.S. TDH urges Texans to seek immunizations against the A-Taiwan, A-Leningrad, and B-Ann Arbor strains. The triple immunization is available in a single vaccine from physicians and some public health clinics.

Robert D. Crider, director of the TDH Immunization Division, said, "The people we most strongly advise to have their yearly flu shots are those who are 65 or older, people with chronic respiratory or heart problems, and children who may have weakened health."

Crider said that any age person, in any state of health, can be susceptible to the disease. "Last year, Texas was lucky not to have had a serious epidemic of A-Taiwan flu among college age students," he said. "A-Taiwan returned last year for the first time in about 35 years, and most young people had never been exposed to it before. We expected that unimmunized students, in the close quarters of classrooms during cold weather, would be especially hard hit by the flu. But as I said, we were lucky, the weather was mild, and no large outbreaks developed. This year, we might not be so fortunate—A-Taiwan is still with us."

Personal physicians are the best source of details on the types of vaccines recommended, as well as on individual treatment of flu's symptoms. In general, flu lasts for five to seven days, and doctors usually recommend bed rest, fluids, and sometimes prescribe drugs. Antiviral agents which are now available help protect against influenza-A, but must be administered on an ongoing basis. Immunization is still the best protection against influenza.

"Parents should always use caution in giving aspirin to children under 16," Crider added. The ingredients in aspirin have been linked to the development of Reye syndrome, a serious neurologic disorder which can strike young people during recovery from influenza or chicken pox.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

You once printed a recipe for a cocoa mix one could use to make a quick cup of hot chocolate. I loved it but have since misplaced the recipe. Could you please print it again? — Lucille Manning, Indianapolis, Ind.

I'd be delighted. For a basic mix for hot chocolate, blend together two cups of powdered milk, a dash of salt, one-fourth cup cocoa and one cup powdered sugar. You can use a sugar substitute, if desired.

For a richer-tasting mix, add one-third cup powdered non-dairy coffee creamer and/or a tablespoon or so of malted-milk powder.

As you see, this is a do-your-own-thing type recipe. At any rate, the mix is really good so give it a try. Then when you feel like a cup of quick hot chocolate, put approximately four tablespoons of the mix in a cup and fill with boiling water. Enjoy! — Heloise

TIME SAVER

Dear Heloise: Here is a good time saver and organizer for food shopping.

I've typed a shopping list with basic headlines such as dairy, fruits and meats, and basic products in those categories I usually buy each shopping trip such as milk, apples and ham. I then made copies so I will always have some on hand.

I put one on the refrigerator and we circle the items we need as they run out. (We've taped a pen to the fridge.) It saves a lot of time and we don't have to make another trip to the store because we have forgotten something. — J. Londre, Killeen, Texas

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I couldn't believe the letter from the woman who complained about people who misjudge the space on the bus and sit down on her leg. The fact that they do not apologize strikes her as a form of bigotry.

That whining letter really got to me. What actually happens when grossly obese people sit next to you at a concert or ball game, or in a bus or airplane, is that their bodies extend beyond their seating area into yours. When their love handles hang over into your space, they usurp the room you paid for.

This has happened to me several times and I don't recall a single instance when the fat person said, "I'm sorry."

One might argue that such an occurrence is nothing more than an inconvenience, but that is not always the case. On one occasion I attended a seminar and was forced to sit in an awkward position when a whale of a woman squished me into a corner. That squishing resulted in $120 worth of chiropractic treatment.

Please don't say I should have taken another seat. People were standing in the back of the hall and sitting on the floor.

Do I resent obese people who take part of the space I paid for? You bet I do. Your correspondent may consider it a form of bigotry, but I view myself as the victim rather than the other way around. So what's the solution, Ann? — Offended in Schenectady

DEAR OFFENDED: I have no solution but I ask that you be compassionate. Your inconvenience is temporary. The fat person is miserable a great deal of the time and must deal with problems that normal-size folks cannot even imagine.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 50 years old and own a business near Tupelo, Miss.

To make a long story short, I had an affair with a younger woman for all the reasons you write in your column. My wife found out and all hell broke loose.

We have three children, ages 7, 10, and 14. Rather than leave and take the children, my wife packed up the kids and their clothes and took them to my lover's house.

She told her, "Since you managed to get my husband I think you ought to have the kids, too." The woman was absolutely speechless.

After three weeks of dealing with the kids, my lover gave me an ultimatum, "Either the kids go or I go." My wife refuses to take the kids back until I give up my lover. Please help me with this mess. — Trouble in Tupelo

DEAR TUPELO: The kids belong at home with their mother and so do you. Tell your lover it's over.

Get some joint counseling. You both need it. Your wife did a terrible thing when she used those children as a club to knock you back in line. And you, sir, need to stop fooling around and start to behave like a family man.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I am asked if I work, I say, "Yes, I am a homemaker and I have four children." Often the next thing I hear is, "I mean, do you have a REAL job?"

If being the mother of four isn't a real job, Ann, what is? I cook meals and bake from scratch, clean house, sew costumes, balance the checkbook, provide taxi service and run a 24-hour-a-day counseling service for my family.

Although I receive no paycheck I am as fully employed as any professional.

Please, Ann Landers, print this for all homemakers who are asked this same stupid question. — Old-fashioned in Dothan, Ala.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Christmas will be here before we know it. I hope you will not run another one of those nasty diatribes against photocopied holiday newsletters. Millions of readers take your word as gospel.

My advice to people who don't like the newsy chronicles is throw them out! I, for one, enjoy them immensely. They show a great deal more thought than a Christmas card with a printed name at the bottom.

My husband and I have been sending holiday newsletters for years. If we get no response, we take that person off the list. Invariably we receive notes like this: "We missed your annual letter. We hope nothing is wrong. Please write and say you are OK."

I will be looking for this letter in your column mid-November, Ann. Please don't fail me. — Hayward, Calif., Reader

DEAR HAY: Many people feel as you do and over the years have written to say so. The letter below arrived in the same bag of mail with yours: DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print the enclosed soonest. It's one of my favorite columns and deserves to be seen again. Millions of readers will bless you. — Palo Alto Tribune Reader

DEAR PAL: Here it is, with full knowledge that an equal number of readers will be furious.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The season to be jolly is about to clutch us by the throat again. Permit me to comment on those unbearable Christmas letters from friends, relatives and people you never hear from any other time of the year. To put it simply, they are boring as hell!

I could manage very well without details of Uncle Herman's hemorrhoid operation and Aunt Hilda's stroke. It is OK if I don't know that cousin Jeff bought his wife Mildred an eight-foot living room sofa and that Peggy and Mark gave each other "his" and "hers" Cadillacs.

It seems inappropriate somehow to inform friends and family in a nationwide mailing that "Carol" is back with Alcoholics Anonymous and doing much better than last year when she backslid, drove straight through the garbage and smashed into the guest house.

The insensitivity of people who send those interminable brag sheets baffles me. They think nothing of reporting on the physical ailment of kinkfolk but they never mention their kids who are flunking in school or are strung out on drugs. No word about the business that is failing, the pain of early retirement or having to sell the second car. All we know is that they had a terrific time on the trip to the Orient and the Pope couldn't have been nicer when they had a semi-private audience last July. And of course we just LOVE hearing about their fantastic trips to Tahiti and the Bahamas—while we can't afford a weekend in Pebble Beach.

Please print this letter, Ann Landers. I've been writing it in my head for the last 12 years. This one is going to the post office no matter what. — San Diego.

DEAR SAN DIEGO: I doubt that you will discourage all but a few from sending those annual Christmas letters, but I'm willing to help you try.

Those who write those interminable chronicles firmly believe that 90 percent of the ones they receive are a crashing bore but theirs are utterly fascinating.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $2.50 plus a No. 10, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Los Ciboleros chapter DAR held its regular meeting in the east banquet room of the Hereford Community Center Thursday night.

Regent Violet Reinauer conducted the opening ritual with the assistance of the chaplain Lois Gilliland. Patricia Robinson led the group in the recitation of the pledge of allegiance, the American's Creed, and the preamble to the Constitution. Reinauer led the singing of the national anthem. All business was deferred until the December meeting.

Kathryn Ruga introduced the speaker of the evening, Captain Bob McManaway, chief of international training, Reese Air Force Base, Lubbock, who presented the program, "United in Defense of Our Country". A slide presentation on the 64th flying training wing, mission briefing, introduced the membership to the present day facilities and the modern Air Force at Reese Base.

Capt. McManaway stressed that the base was a self-contained city with 3,582 personnel living on the base; 906 officers, 1705 enlisted men, and 801 civilian employees. Along with the 3,549 dependents the Reese Air Force Base has a population of 6,831 men, women and children. Although Reese is a self-contained city, Captain McManaway stated that the base was truly integrated with Lubbock in all phases of living. Capt. McManaway is in charge of the foreign students training at Reese Air Force Base. Following the slide presentation a question and answer session was held with a very informative and interesting discussion on the status of the Air Force today.

Refreshments were served to membership by hostesses Helen Rose and Kathryn Ruga. Special guests were Captain McManaway and Jess Robinson.

Hearing aid for dogs now available

A&M only place in state for testing

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Hearing aids for dogs are now available through Texas A&M, whose College of Veterinary Medicine is the only place in the state where hearing loss in dogs can be tested.

Older dogs who have lost their hearing are now able to hear oncoming cars, imminent danger and their master's call — all of which may have been silenced before — says the only board-certified veterinary neurologist in the state, Dr. Patricia Luttgren.

"It's not all that uncommon for dogs to live well into their teens these days — thanks to advances in veterinary medicine," said Luttgren. "With the hearing aid, they can have a better quality of life because that human-animal contact is being maintained."

The device used for testing the type and degree of deafness in dogs is called an electrodiagnostic unit. Texas A&M has the only technology in the state that tests dogs for hearing disorders. The hearing aids themselves were developed last year at Auburn University.

Luttgren said testing for deafness is essential to find out if a dog has conduction deafness, which is helped by the hearing aid, or nerve deafness, which is not.

Luttgren places electrodes under the dog's skin by its ear over the part of the brain where hearing is perceived. By stimulating the ear with sound, an electrical pattern of that stimulation is recorded. Luttgren is then able to discern which ear is worse and what kind of deafness is involved.

When dogs get older, the ossicles — little bones in the middle ear that transmit vibrations — don't vibrate as well as they should. The hearing aid assists the ossicles by replacing the transmission that is being interrupted, she said.

Dog hearing aids are just like human hearing aids in that they have a volume control and the same electronics. The only difference is they have a long neck which is nestled in a contractable cylinder of foam that expands to fit in the dog's ear.

"That's the way we keep the cost down — human aids have to be fitted exactly to an individual's ear and bought individually — dog hearing aids can be purchased in bulk and fit any dog over five pounds — from Pekingese to German Shepherd — because the foam makes it fit exactly," Luttgren explained.

Hearing aids for dogs cost $250 plus tax, with batteries and foam the only replacement costs. The aids are manufactured in Port Huron, Mich., and can be obtained through Luttgren at Texas A&M's Small Animal Clinic. The basic exams and testing for deafness at Texas A&M range from $80 to $100.

In the same way babies are trained to accept hearing aids, dogs are also trained. Luttgren endorses a month-long, at-home training program to help dogs and owners adjust to the hearing device.

"It takes time for the dog to adjust to having the aid in his ear and to accept sounds he has not heard recently and make these sounds meaningful again," she cautioned.

When dogs first wear the hearing aid, all sounds will seem unnaturally loud.

In 1988 elections

Texas GOP eyes Supreme Court posts

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Republicans hope next year's elections will give them a chance to expand the GOP's presence on the Texas Supreme Court.

Last week, Gov. Bill Clements appointed a Houston district judge, Republican Thomas Phillips, as chief justice to succeed resigning Democrat John Hill, who will leave the court in January halfway through his six-year term.

Clements said the races for four seats on the court next year would be the most important on the ballot after the presidential race. Phillips said he will seek election next year.

At the same time, Democratic Party executive director Ed Martin said he looked forward to sending Phillips back to Houston after the November election.

Clements told the Austin American-Statesman that the problem with the court wasn't one of Republicans and Democrats, but that "under the present system, we have no alternative. If we're unhappy with the present system and its membership, the only thing we can do is run somebody in opposition."

John Weaver, executive director of the Texas GOP, outlined the theme the Republicans will pursue next year.

"Bringing back integrity to the court and bringing about some kind of economic stability to their decisions," he said.

The only sitting justice who might go unchallenged, Weaver said, is Justice Raul Gonzalez, regarded by some as the most conservative of the court's Democratic members.

It has been a difficult year for the Supreme Court:

— In June, the State Commission on Judicial Conduct publicly rebuked two justices — William Kilgarlin and C.L. Ray — for a variety of ethical offenses, mostly involving improper contacts with lawyers who had cases before the court. Both denied any wrongdoing, and Kilgarlin immediately announced for re-election.

— The television news program "60 Minutes" is preparing a story about the Texas judicial system and the Supreme Court. Several people have said they expect the program to bring unfavorable attention to the court.

— The Supreme Court Justice Committee, a private group that says it wants to restore integrity to the court, is trying to hire a firm to investigate some of the justices.

— The state's judicial system and the Supreme Court have been sharply criticized for the handling of the $11 billion Texaco-Pennzoil case. Texaco said it will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

— Several Texas news organizations have carried stories highlighting the large financial contributions made to Supreme Court election campaigns by lawyers and others with cases before the state's highest civil court.

— Chief Justice Hill, who campaigned for a system of appointing rather than electing judges, ran into opposition in the Legislature and from fellow justices. Justice Franklin Spears, for example, said Hill "goes his merry way and says, 'I am the Supreme Court.'"

Clements also has talked about integrity on the Supreme Court and the need to drop the partisan election system by which the justices now are chosen.

Clements said that during his recent trip to New York, business leaders there "were terribly concerned about the decisions and attitudes and the atmosphere of the Texas Supreme Court."

But Kilgarlin, a Democrat, retorted: "Is he going to try to reform the court like he did the SMU athletic department?"

Clements earlier this year admitted that, while chairman of the Southern Methodist University board of governors, he allowed illegal payments to football players to continue.

Record Van Gogh prices pose problem

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — The record prices being paid for works by Vincent van Gogh — who sold only one painting in his life — are posing potential security and insurance problems at the Van Gogh Museum.

Last week's New York sale of Van Gogh's "Irises" for $53.9 million set an art auction record and showed the art market's stability in the face of the world financial slump, according to European art experts.

But the sale put an unwelcome spotlight on the museum in Amsterdam, which has 205 Van Gogh paintings, the largest collection in the world, including the "Potato Eaters" and one of the "Sunflowers" series.

Although the museum refuses to comment officially on security matters, one highly-placed source at the facility said that "one of the great fears we have is that this whole thing will again bring ideas into people's heads."

In 1978 an unemployed Dutch artist slashed "La Berceuse," Van Gogh's portrait of a postman's wife. The vandal testified he attacked the painting because city officials rejected his request for financial aid.

The museum source also expressed concern over the effect of the high Van Gogh prices on loans for forthcoming exhibitions, since the museum is planning a 1990 centenary exhibition to mark the artist's death.

"It's just worrying that museums will be less flexible in organizing exhibitions because they will be facing higher costs," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The museum is planning to borrow 150 Van Gogh paintings worldwide in 1990, and museum director Ronald de Leeuw told The Associated Press that Dutch museums are seeking government help in insuring loans from other museums.

In a series of record-shattering sales that have realigned international art values, three Van Gogh paintings have sold for a total of $114 million since March.

The soaring financial success of Van Gogh's paintings are due in part to the poverty-stricken tragedy of his life, according to art market specialists.

"Van Gogh is essentially the public conception of what an artist is," said James Roundell, who supervised the sale of the "Sunflowers" at Christie's London auction house in March.

"There's something tremendously romantic about his whole lifestyle ... his moods, his suicide, sort of madness," Roundell said.

Van Gogh's artistic career lasted only 10 years, but during that time he produced about 850 paintings. About 50 of them are still in private hands, according to Roundell.

"There definitely are pictures out there that are at this point in time worth the sums that we saw paid in New York," said Roundell, director of the Impressionist and Modern Paintings Department at Christie's London.

Van Gogh was born in 1853 in the Dutch farming village of Groot Zundert, and after successive false starts at careers as an art dealer, language teacher, lay preacher and bookseller, he suffered a spiritual crisis that led him to seek personal consolation in drawing.

He had been working during the winter of 1879-80 as a missionary, but was fired after he gave away all his possessions to the miners he ministered to.

Van Gogh's sombre early work, like "Potato Eaters," depicted the poverty and hunger of the rural poor, and rejected the polished approach then taught in art academies.

At the same time, he became attracted to Japanese prints. He adopted their use of intense color for his later work, which has become immensely popular in Japan. A Japanese insurance company bought "Sunflowers."

Van Gogh's most famous work dates from that 27-month period, beginning in February 1888, when he was painted in southern France. It was there, in the town of Arles, that he did the "Sunflowers" series, as well as self-portraits and his "Starry Night," now in New York's Museum of Modern Art.

That period also produced "the Bridge at Trinquetaille," which sold in London for $20.24 million in June.

NEW YORK (AP) — A chimney blocked with soot, leaves or a bird's nest can lead to carbon monoxide build-up in the home, warns Health Magazine.

The colorless, odorless gas can go undetected and cause headaches, disorientation, lethargy or, in the worst case, a coma. The magazine suggests having your chimney checked and cleaned.

At Dimmitt Tuesday night

HHS girls' teams lose close games

Dimmitt's Sydelle McDonald hit the front end of a one-and-one free throw opportunity with 16 seconds left, then Dimmitt ran out the clock to defeat the Hereford Lady Whitefaces 45-44 Tuesday night in Dimmitt.

In the girls contest, each team had an opportunity to run away with the game, but instead kept it nip-and-tuck throughout the game, with neither team taking more than a five-point lead (Hereford jumped to a 25-20 lead early in the third quarter) in the game.

"We were not consistent on offense," said Hereford coach Frank Belcher. "We are going to be a great defensive team—we didn't get out of our man-to-man defense tonight, and we're going to work on that man defense until it is really great."

"Instead of being average at several defenses, we are going to be a great man-to-man team."

That inconsistency raised its ugly head early in the second half for the Lady Whitefaces after Carmen Brockman and Brandi Binder scored in the first 40 seconds of the quarter to stake Hereford to a five-point lead.

The rest of the quarter, however, was a disaster—Hereford had seven turnovers and were outscored 11-4 by the Bobbies, who led 31-29 after three periods.

Hereford was silent for a while on offense, going for over four minutes in the late third quarter and early fourth without scoring. The Lady Whitefaces began chipping back with six straight free throws by Brockman, Susan Bell and Stacy

White to close Dimmitt's lead to one, then Brockman gave Hereford the lead with three straight buckets in the fourth quarter, the last coming with 3:46 left.

Those were the last field goals of the night for Hereford, which added only two free throws by Tricia Kahlich in the last three minutes.

Dimmitt was faring no better, as Hereford shut out the Bobbies from the field in the last 2:33 of the game.

Hereford trailed 43-42 in the last 35 seconds when Kahlich stole the ball and drove for a layup. She was fouled on the drive by Dimmitt's Kristi Petty, but, after the layup attempt, Kahlich was assessed a technical foul by umpire Larry Pollard "for kneeing the Dimmitt girl—it might not have been intentional, but it was flagrant," Pollard said.

Kahlich hit her two free throws to give Hereford a 44-43 lead, but Petty hit one of two on the other end to tie the game with 23 seconds left.

Dimmitt inbounded the ball at mid-court and worked the ball on the perimeter for five seconds until Crystal Ball fouled McDonald.

Dimmitt hit the front-end shot, but missed the second. A mad scramble for the rebound ended up with a jump ball, and the possession was Dimmitt's. Dimmitt ran out the clock for the win.

"The technical didn't cost us the game," Belcher said. "That was just something where we got a little frustrated, but it didn't cost us the game. We just made too many offensive mistakes. 'I'm proud of our kids—they gave it all they had.'"

The junior varsity game saw Dimmitt win another close game over Hereford, 39-37. Hereford held a 27-24 lead at the end of the third quarter.

The record for points scored in an ABA game was set by Larry Miller of Carolina against Memphis. Miller, who never played in the NBA, posted 67 points in that game.

The first football used in college games in 1869 was a round, rubber Association ball.

In the first college football game between Rutgers and Princeton in 1869, there were 15 players on a side.

Leading scorers for Hereford were Susan Gage with seven points and Krystal Sims with six points.

Season records for the Hereford teams are 1-4 for the varsity and 0-2 for the junior varsity. The HHS varsity plays in the Amarillo Tournament on Friday and Saturday.

Next Tuesday, Hereford plays at Clovis, N.M. The junior varsity game is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. and the varsity game at 8 p.m.

McCracken drive

Hereford's Rodney McCracken drives past Dimmitt's James Alexander for a first-quarter basket Tuesday at Dimmitt. McCracken had 15 points for the Whitefaces, who fell to the Bobcats, 66-54.

Herd varsity boys lose 66-54

The Hereford Whiteface varsity boys' basketball team stayed with the Dimmitt Bobcats Tuesday at Dimmitt for most of three quarters, but saw the Bobcats suddenly blow the game open in the fourth quarter as Hereford suffered its first loss.

"We couldn't stop Dimmitt from scoring," said Hereford coach Mike Fields. "There was no question tonight they were the better team. They outshot us, outrebounded us, but we're going to keep our head up and get after them next time (Dec. 8, Hereford's home opener)."

"We shot rather poorly (21-of-53) tonight, and we just can't shoot that percentage against a good team and expect to win."

Dimmitt was up 32-21 at halftime, but hereford matted back to close the gap to 38-35, keyed by two three-pointers by Kevin Hansen. The offense went cold, though, after Marcus Brown's 12-foot jumper with 2:52 left in the third period, getting just one more basket the rest of the period as Dimmitt jumped to a 49-40 lead.

The Whitefaces never got closer than seven points the rest of the night, and saw Dimmitt jump to an 18-point lead, 66-48 with 1:43 left, before settling for the 12-point win.

"I'm proud we kept battling back," Fields said. "When you get down against a good team you have to be real lucky, and we got lucky for a while there."

"I think this was a good game for us because that's the kind of team, the kind of game, that will make you a better basketball team. There are not many places tougher to play than at Dimmitt, because you get a great crowd and a great opponent."

"We had a great crowd, though. Our people are super in the way they support us."

In the junior varsity game, Hereford's Todd Schroeder scored the only points of the overtime period and Hereford defeated Dimmitt 53-51.

Schroeder led Hereford with 16 points, and Kyle Andrews and Roger McCracken each scored 10 points. Dimmitt led at halftime, 29-22.

The HHS varsity boys, who have a 1-1 season record, play their next game on Monday at Amarillo High at 7:45 p.m. The Hereford junior varsity, 2-0 for the season, play Amarillo High at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

Local organization represented

St. Anthony's Women's Organization was represented by delegates, Pat Sinnacher, Marie Loerwald, and Romilda Friemel, Diocesan chairman of the Church Community Affairs Commission, at the annual fall convention of the Amarillo Diocesan Council of Catholic Women held at St. John's School in Borger on Nov. 20-21.

Mrs. Harvey Artho of Wildorado, president of the Diocesan Council, was the presiding officer. The theme, "Building Up the Body of Christ" was developed through workshops on building dwelling places for God: in your family, in your parish, with your youth, and with your senior parishioners. Workshop facilitators were Jim Rogers, director of Catholic Family Services in Amarillo; Father Ken Keller, associate pastor of St. Mary's Church in Amarillo; Don Pitts, counselor at Alamo Catholic High; Jordan Grooms, director officer of Christian Formation for diocese of Amarillo; and Father Jerry Stien, teacher at Alamo High.

award. Flora Exzell of Borger was the 1987 recipient; a banquet honoring the "Woman of the Year" was held on Friday evening.

Bishop Leroy T. Matthiesen delivered his message at the Saturday noon luncheon. The convention concluded following the business session.

There were 111 persons registered. The invitation to host the 1988 convention of the Amarillo Diocesan Council of Catholic Women issued by Matilda Baca of Friona, president of the Hereford deanery Council of Catholic Women, was accepted.

Marie Loerwald of Hereford, 1986 Diocesan Woman of the Year, participated in the award ceremony for the 1987 recipient of the coveted

Annual festival Dec. 5

The public is invited to the Seventh Annual Festival of Arts and Crafts, sponsored by the Wesley United Methodist Church, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5, at the Hereford Community Center.

The Jehovah's Witnesses do most of their work through three legal corporations: the Watch Tower and Tract Society of Pennsylvania, the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York Inc., and, in England, the International Bible Students Association. Membership in the United States is listed at more than 500,000.

Social Security

By Jim Talbot
Social Security Manager in Amarillo

To protect their Social Security earnings records, workers are urged to check the Social Security number and name shown on their stubs to make sure they are correct. Social Security officials reminded. They should also check the Social Security number on their Form W-2 they receive in January.

If a person discovers that the Social Security number on his or her pay stub or Form W-2 is different than that on his or her Social Security card, the error should be reported to the employer immediately.

The Form W-2 wage and tax statement is used by employers to report wages to the Social Security Administration where lifetime earnings records are maintained for each worker. The earnings records are the basis for benefits when a person retires, dies, or becomes disabled. A difference in a single digit can delay or prevent the earnings from being credited to the correct record.

Many female workers forget to change their names on their Social Security records when they change their names after they marry. Employers should not permit the employee to rely on his or her memory in checking the Form W-2 or pay records but should insist that the Social Security card is used. Very often the mistake in the employer records resulted from memory lapses, Social Security officials say.

When a mistake is reported to an employer, a corrected wage report should be sent to the Social Security Administration. The employee should also check with the Social Security office if it is necessary to change a name in Social Security records.

Employees should check earnings credited to their Social Security earnings records at least once every three years, especially if they change jobs frequently; such a form can be obtained from any SS office for this purpose.

Women's Health

DENTAL CARE DURING PREGNANCY
By George W. Morley, M.D.
President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Most pregnant women follow doctor's orders when it comes to diet, exercise, and rest. But, mothers-to-be should be just as careful with their dental health—visiting the dentist at least once during pregnancy to avoid serious tooth and gum problems.

During pregnancy, higher levels of the hormones estrogen and progesterone can make gums more likely to swell and bleed. This condition known as gingivitis, could lead to chronic gum disease and tooth loss if not treated. It can cause all or part of your gums to swell and become red. It may begin in the first trimester.

Gingivitis can become chronic as pregnancy advances, so that you may develop a disorder called "pregnancy tumor." More of a nuisance than a health risk, this "tumor" is a non-malignant growth of gum tissue that appears singly or in clumps and bleeds easily. Without proper oral hygiene, the tumor can become infected and painful.

If you don't treat the gingivitis, it can lead to the inflammation of tooth supporting tissues (periodontitis). Its symptoms include gum recession and changes in gum color, as well as a loosening of teeth. As an added tooth risk, pregnant women are more likely to eat frequent small meals, or to indulge in sugary snacks, which increases their chance for cavities. Whether pregnant or not, you know that frequent brushing helps prevent dental caries (cavities). It also reduces the spread of plaque, which particularly irritates gums during pregnancy.

Of course, the best treatment for any dental problem means prevention through good dental hygiene and proper diet. As soon as you know you are pregnant, have your dentist clean and check your teeth thoroughly. Avoid sugary snacks and instead eat the foods good for your teeth and your baby's. These include dairy foods for calcium, and fish and grains for phosphorus. Remember, it helps to brush and floss your teeth after every meal and snack.

Should you need any dental treatment during pregnancy, you should wait until the second trimester, after your baby is well developed. It's best to avoid unneeded x-rays, drugs, or tooth extractions, but any other treatment should be safe.

Taking good care of your teeth is important at any time during your life, but especially so during pregnancy. Keeping your teeth clean and gums healthy will pay long term dividends for you and your baby.

Newspaper Bible

DON'T ABUSE IT! DON'T LOSE IT! USE IT!

One of His disciples, John, told Him one day, "Teacher, we saw a man using Your name to cast out demons; but we told him not to, for he isn't one of our group."

"Don't forbid him!" Jesus said. "For no one doing miracles in My name will quickly turn against Me.

Anyone who isn't against us is for us. If anyone so much as gives you a cup of water because you are Christ's—I say this solemnly—he won't lose his reward.

But if someone causes one of these little ones who believe in Me to lose faith—it would be better for that man if a huge millstone were tied around his neck and he were thrown into the sea.

If your hand does wrong, cut it off. Better live forever with one hand than be thrown into the unquenchable fires of hell with two!

If your foot carries you toward evil, cut it off! Better be lame and live forever than have two feet that carry you to hell.

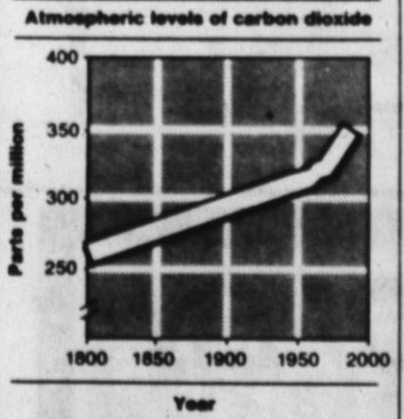

And if your eye is sinful, gouge it out. Better enter the Kingdom of God half blind than have two eyes and see the fires of hell.

Where the worm never dies, and the fire never goes out—

Where all are salted with fire. Good salt is worthless if it loses its saltiness; it can't season anything. So don't lose your flavor! Live in peace with each other."

Mark 9:38-50
