Citizens would take 'bold action' for ED, survey says

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A majority of Deaf Smith County residents feel the same way about a number of issues: We want economic development as long as the quality of life and rural way of life are left intact; we're looking for more training to improve our job situation; and we're willing to give a day of our pay to help pay for economic development efforts.

Those are the major points brought out in a county-wide survey conducted by the Department of Rural Sociology at Texas A&M University for the Economic Development Strategy Council. Dr. Steve Murdock of TAMU presented the survey during a public meeting Thursday at the county library in Hereford.

Murdock also reviewed a trend analysis for Hereford and Deaf Smith County, and Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner, EDSC executive director, reviewed the basic goals of the upcoming Strategic Plan for Economic Development that should be prepared, in draft form, by May 6.

The survey, begun in March, included 210 persons telephoned at random by TAMU personnel to provide EDSC with information on economic development preferences, attitudes and perceptions.

Of the 210 completed surveys, 68 were with Hispanics and 138 were with Anglos—roughly the same as the present makeup of the county's population.

"What we know now is there is widespread support for economic development among the community," Murdock said. "People recognize that the last five years were difficult but there is an interesting optimism that the next five years will show improvement. They have a kind of optimism you don't always find. There is a high degree of consensus about where to go.

When the big hand is on . . .

Dr. Steve Murdock of Texas A&M University points out facts on an overhead projection during an Economic Development Strategy Council meeting Thursday in Hereford. The facts came from a county-wide survey recently completed by TAMU.

"Generally, the survey indicates there is a need for job creation and an improvement of the economic base. People don't want much population growth (the median 'desired' population for the county would be about 21,500), so they want more, and better, jobs for the existing labor force.

"A majority would like to see us grow on the existing agriculture base, and there is a willingness to accept a large array of economic development projects," Murdock continued. "There is willingness to support incentives for new business and support for existing businesses.

"The survey also indicates a high level of people wanting to improve themselves with training, and a surprising number of people would be willing to travel out of town, to Canyon and Amarillo, for that training."

The willingness to support new business—and to help expand existing enterprises—goes to "fairly bold actions," Murdock said. "We don't see many people supporting things like a temporary reduction in taxes for a business wanting to come in or for existing businesses to expand."

The "bold" steps included 60 percent of the respondents saying they would give one day's pay to fund economic development efforts. 53 percent, however, said they would not give one week's pay to an ED effort.

The survey results showed a homogenous desire for the same things in basically the same amounts—little difference was shown between desires of Anglos and Hispanics, farmers and businessmen, property owners and renters, rich and poor.

POWs will visit Saturday

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A group of about 50 former Italian prisoners of war will visit Hereford Saturday—the first time many of them have been in the area since their internment over 40 years ago at the Hereford Prisoner of War Camp during World War II.

The group was expected to arrive today in Amarillo, where they will spend the night and be hosted at a reception Saturday at the Hilton Inn.

Later Saturday morning, they will travel by bus from Amarillo to Summerfield, eight miles southwest of Hereford where many of the men were marched from a train to the camp site.

At 2:30 p.m. Saturday, the former prisoners will gather at one of the last remaining structures associated with the camp—a chapel the prisoners built to commemorate fellow Italians who died at the camp.

At the chapel (two miles south on F.M. 1005 from the intersection of U.S. 385 and F.M. 1055, then one mile west along an unpaved county road, if you're going from Hereford), the group will be officially welcomed, and there will be a short program.

The group will then go on tours and shown where various buildings were at the camp.

At 5:30 p.m. Saturday, the group will go to the Hereford American Legion Post for visitation. At 6:30 p.m., the group will be treated to a Texas-style barbecue catered by Gaison's BBQ of Hereford.

Saturday

10 a.m.—Reception and news conference, Hilton Inn, Amarillo

2:30 p.m.—Arrive at chapel area. Introduction and remarks by Grant Hanna, Italian spokesmen, Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher, Castro County Historical Commission President Teeny Bowden; tour of remnants of compound area; caravan to U.S. 385 to historical marker commemorating camp and chapel.

4:30 p.m.—Free time at American Legion Hall.

5:30 p.m.—Refreshments and visitation.

6:30 p.m.—Dinner and program, including presentation of colors by Civil Air Patrol, welcome by Fisher, County Judge Tom Simons, Chamber executive vice president Mike Carr, and Clara Vick of the CCHC; remarks and presentations by Italians; presentations by Charles Schlabs.

The Legion hall is already decorated for the occasion, with clippings of news articles, pictures, and samples of the handwork created by the Italians while they were held at the Hereford facility. There will be an exchange of gifts, including a scrapbook prepared by the Castro County Historical Commission, which received a Distinguished Service Award from the Texas Historical Commission for their preservation work at the chapel.

The Castro County group (the camp was actually in Castro County) will be selling souvenirs—strands of barbed wire that was used at the camp, decorated with yellow ribbons—for $10 to help defray the expense of their preservation efforts. Hereford organizers will be selling 20-page booklets filled with pictures and stories about the camp. Proceeds from those sales (they are asking for a $10 minimum donation) will help defray meal expenses.

Sunday, the group will attend Mass at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger—the site of some of the group's most renowned handwork.

The church was almost new when the prisoners were brought to Hereford, and nine of the Italians painted beautiful murals on the church's interior.

Sunday evening, the group will be feted at the Harvey Artho home, south of Wildorado.

Police classes scheduled here

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

From couch potatoes to college graduates, for the first time people of all interests may join the law enforcement ranks with a Hereford police academy in May.

Vernon Hope, investigator for the district attorney's office and one of the academy class instructors, said this is the first time the six-month training session has been offered here to anyone besides reserve deputies.

"This gives more people the opportunity to get into law enforcement," said Hope. "Out of the nine signed up for the course, four are civilians. We've had people from water companies, beef packers and even one housewife join up. It's just a good career to get into because there are always going to be criminals."

The 430-hour course (May 31 - Nov.

17) will touch on the basics such as traffic directing and control, use of force, the U.S. Constitution, emergency medical care, arrest, search and seizure, and interviewing and interrogation.

Three women and six men have already signed up, but Hope said he lacks one more to have a class.

The Hereford academy will be a boon to prospective certified police officers in this area because one formerly had to travel to Amarillo College for the necessary training.

"Here, a person can hold down a full-time job and go to school four hours a night, five days a week. At Amarillo College, you would have to go eight hours during the day," said Hope.

The course will be in the Fullwood Building in downtown Hereford and costs $495 including individual instruction, textbooks and ammunition. The police department will supply the weapons.

Illustrating how to use weapons properly is one of Hope's bigger concerns.

"I'd rather people come into this course without ever having used a gun because they've probably learned how to use them wrong. Anyone can point a gun and pull the trigger, but we want to show them how to use them safely," Hope said.

The six-month course is now a requirement for employment as a peace officer — police departments in the past could hire an untrained person and later send the officer to school.

"One of the reasons this is required is because a small police department would hire a person, pay for their certification while paying their salary, then the officer would leave for a larger department," said Hope. "This way, the police departments won't be out so much money."

Along with a commitment to the public, being a police officer takes determination, said Hope, which many people don't have.

"You have to put up with a lot of abuse," said Hope, who has been in law enforcement 19 years. "Being a police officer is definitely not an easy job, but it's rewarding if you like to do it."

Along with Hope, police Sgt. Randy Williams will teach the class.

For those interested in the class, contact Hope at the District Attorney's office at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse or Williams at the Hereford Police Department. Registration deadline is May 19.

Realtors plan Sunday activities

Members of the hereford Board of Realtors will hold Open House at several locations across Hereford on Sunday as part of American Home Week activities.

The nationwide celebration is aimed at reminding citizens of their constitutional freedom to own property and the need to protect the rights that come with this ownership, according to Don Tardy, Hereford Board of Realtors president.

"Because of the constitutional guarantees of the right of private property ownership, we want to remind the people of Hereford of those rights and we want everyone to realize how valuable home ownership is," Tardy said.

Because property owners pay taxes, they care about what happens to our schools, streets, sewers, trees and parks. They want adequate police and fire protection. They care about the quality of life for their families.

"It's really no different for people who own businesses here," Tardy added.

The Hereford Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,860 boards across America that comprise the National Association of Realtors, involving more than 750,000 members.

Persons attending Sunday's open house activities may also register for a drawing to be held Sunday.

The suspect is believed to now live in Lubbock.

Nine citations were issued.

Saturday will be sunny, with a high of 75. South wind will be 5 to 15 mph.

Lubbock leaders visit Hereford

Hereford business and civic leaders met with representatives of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce for a luncheon meeting Thursday at the Hereford Country Club.

"We think it is important for us to go out and meet people in the area so we are able to put faces with names," said Grey Lewis, a Lubbock chamber executive, who pointed out that the region would "have to work hard together on legislative issues that will effect all of us."

Lewis also pointed out how economic development would be more regional in nature in the future. Those same themes were highlighted by Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher, who said the Panhandle League of Mayors is the foundation block for more equitable representation in Austin for the 104 counties west of Interstate 35.

"We have 18 representatives in Austin for that western region, while Houston alone has 17 representatives," Fisher said. "That's not quite fair. We want to eventually have all of the counties in the western section of Texas involved in our efforts. With the help of consultants and lobbyists in Austin, we can see that our needs are better taken care of."

Top ripped off jet in flight; 60 injured, 1 may be dead

KAHULUI, Hawaii (AP) — A mysterious explosion ripped open an Aloha Airline jet "like a convertible" at 24,000 feet, injuring 60 people and apparently tossing a flight attendant to her death before the pilot landed safely.

The Boeing 737, with one engine aflame and about 15 to 20 feet of its cabin exposed, flew for 25 miles after the blast and made an emergency landing at Kahului Airport at 2 p.m. Thursday (8 p.m. EDT), airline officials said.

A passenger, Alice Godwin of Boulder City, Nev., said she had put on a life jacket and put her head between her knees. "I sang all the hymns I knew," she said. "That kept me busy."

Mark Eberly, a ramp supervisor at the airport, said he dropped to his knees in shock as he watched the plane land with one of its engines smoking and a section of the top missing. "I saw hair flying in the wind and arms dangling," he said.

Craig Nichols of Pocatello, Idaho, said after the plane came to a stop, he saw "some really mangled people (passengers)," including one with an arm almost severed.

"It looked like a normal landing with the whole top of the plane gone," he said, adding that the damage began behind the cockpit, "clear down to the windows," and extended to the rear.

"It looked like a convertible," said Joe Ronderos of Los Angeles.

"It was like somebody had peeled off a layer of skin. You could just see all the passengers sitting there," said George Harvey, area coordinator for the Federal Aviation Administration in Honolulu.

The cause of the blast was unknown Thursday night, said Kevin Morigatsu, a spokesman for the state Department of Transportation.

The National Transportation Safety Board was sending investigators to the scene and FBI agents were sent from Honolulu to determine whether the blast was caused by a bomb, said FBI spokesman Robert Heather.

At a news conference in Honolulu, Maurice Myers, president of Aloha Airlines, said the explosion occurred in the front of the passenger section, where nothing is stored.

Myers cited the "extraordinary performance" of pilot Robert L.

Schornteimer in bringing the plane in safely.

Sixty people were taken to Maui Memorial Hospital and 12 were admitted, two in critical condition and four serious, said Dr. Charles Mitchell, emergency room director. Injuries included burns, bruises and cuts, he said.

The missing flight attendant, identified as Clarabelle B. Lansing of Honolulu, was probably either ejected by the blast or blown out of the plane by the wind, said Clifford Hue, another FAA area manager.

The U.S. Coast Guard mounted a search.

The explosion occurred southeast of Maui while the plane was at an altitude of 24,000 feet, the airline said. It said the 110-mile flight from Hilo on Hawaii Island to Kahului carried 89 passengers, five crew members and an air traffic controller from Hilo Airport.

Passengers reported hearing an explosion in the forward part of the plane, apparently around the first-class section, said assistant hospital administrator Alan Lee.

Senate vote nixes amnesty extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief author of the nation's landmark immigration law says illegal aliens better apply for amnesty by next Wednesday's deadline, because a Senate vote has ended any chance for an extension.

"This is it," Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said Thursday night after helping to kill a plan that would have moved the deadline to Nov. 30. "This extraordinary act of grace will end May 4 when we are in recess."

Those who sought to move the date back nearly seven months were defeated when they tried to end debate by opponents of the extension. Only 40 votes could be mustered to end the budding filibuster, and 60 were needed.

With the Senate adjourning today until May 9, supporters of the extension have no chance to try to pick up another 20 votes.

Even if the extension had passed Congress, Sen. Phil Gramm,

R-Texas, said President Reagan would have vetoed the bill as suggested by Commissioner Alan C. Nelson of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The House passed the amnesty extension April 21 by a 213-201 vote, indicating that a veto would have been sustained there. A two-thirds vote is needed for an override.

Simpson was the chief sponsor of the 1986 law passed to control years of massive illegal immigration to the United States. The measure had two main portions: legalization for illegal aliens who came to the United States before Jan. 1, 1982 and have lived here continually since then; and financial penalties for employers who knowingly hired illegal residents.

The aliens were given a one-year period, through May 4, to apply for temporary residency and start down the longer road toward permanent residency and citizenship.

Meeting

The trend analysis, which was reviewed April 21 by the EDSC and its advisory council, was designed to "sketch historical facts and future patterns of the area," Murdock said as he guided the group through reams of data showing the differences between Deaf Smith County and the other 25 counties in the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, and the differences between Hereford and similar-sized cities in the region.

The trend simply shows the erosion of most economic sectors in the county while agriculture has remained strong. Deaf Smith County was the state's leading county in cash receipts in agriculture—the county alone accounted for 343 percent of all agricultural sales in Texas in 1986.

"Agriculture has fluctuated from time to time," Murdock said. "And if you chart those fluctuations against the whole economy, you get similar patterns."

While livestock sales carried the county to the top of the agriculture heap, crops have decreased. Many other sectors of the economy have decreased, too. Examples include:

- 31 manufacturing enterprises in 1977, down to 24 in 1984;
- 213 retail establishments at the 1967 peak, with 210 in 1977. By 1985, there were only 125 retail establishments;
- There were 165 service establishments in 1977, with only 114 in 1985.

Per income capita for the county was toward the bottom of the PRPC list, and Hereford's per capita income of $7,800 a year was second-lowest, only ahead of Dalhart.

Although the county continued to grow through 1980 (to 21,165), that growth was "natural": the number of births over the number of deaths. "Your population would have declined because of the outmigration if not for the natural growth," Murdock said.

"The trend analysis suggests to me some evident things. If you look at the decline in manufacturing, retail and service, you need some kind of economic development activity. If you want growth, or even stability, you need a program. If you do nothing, just let things evolve, you will have continued declines in population and in employment. On the positive side, if you create activity approximating what you had in the 1970s, you would have very rapid growth."

Eichner gave a brief review of the basic goals that have evolved from input by more than 300 county residents in various interest group and advisory meetings.

- The economic development goals include:
- Diversify the agricultural economic base;
 - Assist current businesses, from cattle to manufacturing, to stay strong and grow;
 - Broaden the industrial base by diversifying into compatible non-agricultural related light manufacturing industries;

- Revitalize the retail sector.
- Increase available financing for business expansions and new ventures.

Quality of life goals include:

- Establish initiatives that promote a progressive and unified community with positive relations between all residents, including Anglos and Hispanics, townspeople and farmers;
- Establish programs that promote strong community and parental commitment to excellence in youth education and implement a comprehensive program for adult learning;

First City Bancorp. may be forced to pay $400 million more

HOUSTON (AP) — First City Bancorporation of Texas Inc., recipient of $1.6 billion federally assisted bank rescue last week, may have to pay up to $400 million to satisfy claims concerning an affiliate bank that was closed, the Houston Chronicle reported.

Early last week, A. Robert Abboud, who became First City's chairman and chief officer following the bailout, was trying to wrap up the rescue and to secure $500 million in private financing to recapitalize First City.

To ease the fears of jittery investors, Abboud asked regulators to close the McAllen State Bank because of a reported $400 million in legal claims pending against the bank, the newspaper reported Thursday.

State Banking Commissioner Kenneth Littlefield obliged and declared McAllen — an institution with $590 million in assets and one of First City's 59 banks — insolvent on April 19. Deposits and assets were transferred to First City National Bank of Houston, and the McAllen operation was reopened as a branch office of the Houston bank.

The insolvency declaration appeared to wipe out the legal claims and to calm investor anxieties, the newspaper said. On the following day, Abboud completed the bailout transaction, complete with a $970 million infusion from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

But some of the estimated 25 businesses and individuals who had lawsuits pending against McAllen have protested, saying they will continue to pursue their claims against First City.

CRIMESTOPPERS

The Hereford Police Department is investigating a case of criminal mischief that took place in the 100 block of Avenue E. Two vehicles that were parked in a driveway had obscene words spray painted on them. This took place on April 24 between 2 a.m. and 8 a.m.

Anyone giving information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person(s) responsible for the crime of the week will receive a $300 reward. Anyone having information may contact the Deaf Smith County Crime Stoppers at 364-2583 or 364-CLUE.

Any information regarding a crime may be given on the Clue Line. Anyone giving information leading to the arrest and indictment in a felony case may be eligible for a reward of up to $300. The caller may remain anonymous.

MOTOR OIL SALES RISE
(BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — More than 57 percent of the retailers surveyed in a study by Automotive Products Report said they expected strong motor oil sales this year compared with 1987.

Thirty percent of retail outlets plan to expand their inventory in 1988, a sector of the market that has grown over the last decade at the expense of service stations. The overall industry sales split is 90 percent through retail stores and 40 percent through service outlets.

HHS girls' golfers earn berth in state tournament

Hereford High School's girls' golf team qualified for the state tournament by placing second in the Region 1-4A tournament in Brownwood Thursday.

The state class 4A tournament will be played at the Jimmy Clay golf course in Austin on May 12-13.

Hereford, led by second place medalist Amy Coneway, shot a 367 Thursday for a two-round score of 752. That was 14 strokes behind regional champion Andrews' 738 score.

Hereford's first round score was 385 on Wednesday. The two rounds for Andrews were 374 and 364.

Coneway led the field after Wednesday's round with an 84. Coneway shot an 82 for a tournament total of 166, but Everman's Kim Jutt shot a 78 on Thursday. That gave Jutt a one-stroke advantage over Coneway for the regional medalist title with a score of 165. Jutt's first-round score was 87.

The top two teams and top two individuals in regional tournaments qualify for state golf tournaments.

"We didn't play very well on Wednesday. It was probably our worst round of the season," Hereford Coach Donnie O'Rand said.

"We came back and shot well Thursday. I'm pleased that we're going to state despite a bad round.

"I think we were a little nervous the first day. I think they were concentrating on scores more than playing. They relaxed the second round and played instead of looking at their scores. We're going to Austin!" Coach O'Rand added.

Brenda Martinez had the second best scores among the Hereford team members both days — shooting a 98 on Wednesday and an 89 on Thursday for a tournament score of 187. Naomi Grijalva had rounds of 100 and 93 for a 193 total, and her sister Melissa Grijalva shot rounds of 103 both days for a 206 total. Brenda Allen's rounds were 124 on Wednesday and 111 on Thursday for a two-round score of 235.

Hereford finished 28 strokes ahead of third place Graham, and Coneway was 12 strokes ahead of the third place medalist, Nikki Martin of Andrews.

Four groups seek to buy Dallas Cowboys

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Former quarterback Roger Staubach heads one of four groups interested in buying the Dallas Cowboys, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

But the strongest bid is from a Denver billionaire who has owned 20th Century Fox and oil companies, bought Kenny Rogers' house, and parted with Frank Sinatra.

Marvin Davis, 62, has been negotiating with Cowboys majority owner H.R. "Bum" Bright and may be a week away from completing a deal for purchase of the NFL team, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

The Dallas Times Herald reported today that that team sources told them that there were four groups, including Davis and the group headed by Staubach that are interested in buying the NFL team.

The sources told the newspaper that Davis has made the strongest bid.

Cowboys President Tex Schramm confirmed Thursday that Staubach, owner of a Dallas commercial real estate firm, helped organize a group that is interested in buying the Cowboys.

Schramm said Staubach introduced him to a Dallas businessman who was interested in heading a group that would include Staubach. Schramm declined to identify the businessman.

"My understanding was that Roger would have been part of the deal if it could be arranged," Schramm told the newspaper. "I have no idea where that deal stands right now with Bum."

Staubach was at a speaking engagement Thursday and could not be reached for comment, the newspaper reported.

Schramm said he has passed along to Bright about 20 inquiries he has received in the past four months from people interested in buying the team.

Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell, a friend of both Davis and Schramm, said he spoke to Davis last week about the Cowboys.

Modell says he made one point clear to Davis.

"Don't buy the team without Tex Schramm staying," he said. "I have a tremendous regard for Tex, and I've had so for 28 years. Nobody in their right mind should buy it unless Tex stays."

If an agreement is reached soon, Davis could be presented to other NFL owners for approval at either a specially called meeting or the next scheduled meeting May 24-25 in Florida.

Schramm said Thursday he will sell his three percent if necessary.

"I'm a very small fly in this whole thing and I'll go along with the wave," Schramm said. "I'll sell if I have to. The important thing is that our organization have stability."

Schramm said he has been in touch with Bright since published reports that Davis is near a deal to buy the team.

"Our operation will move on like it always has," Schramm said. "Life is life. We were fortunate that we had just one owner (Clint Murchison) in the first 25 years and had great success. Whatever Bum wants I'll be very happy for him. I've been pleased with Bum as an owner."

A Davis spokeswoman said in New York there would be no comment on the reports.

Davis, whose fortune has been estimated at $1.45 billion, has among his holdings the Davis Oil Co. An avid sports fan, he has been active in attempts to attract a major league baseball team to Denver, but recently has spent more of his time in Los Angeles.

Bright and his partners paid $80 million for the team and Texas Stadium's assets in 1984. The Cowboys lost some $2 million in the strike-plagued 1987 season which was marked by the team's lowest attendance in decades. The stock market crash in October cost Bright an estimated $39 million in FirstRepublic Bank losses. He was the largest share holder.

The value of some of Bright's other holdings which include numerous savings and loans institutions have been diminished by hard times in Texas oil and real estate.

"I'm not going to comment on Bum's economic problems," Schramm said.

Schramm said he met Davis once in Cleveland and added "I don't know him."

A financially qualified out-of-state owner would cause no problems for Schramm, he said.

"It would be different but there would be no problems," Schramm said. "There would be no sympathy elsewhere in the league to move the team out of Dallas. I believe it would still take league approval."

Schramm said if there were a sale it could be consummated swiftly.

"There are no formal rules about a sale," he said. "After a certain period it could be done with a conference call or a special meeting."

Schramm said he was sorry the Cowboys hadn't had more success for Bright.

"And he learned one thing about strikes, they cost you money," Schramm said.

Bright owns 40 percent of team. He originally bought 17 percent but acquired 23 percent interest in the limited partnership. Two partners recently sold their five percent shares in the team and Republic-Bank holds that 10 percent.

Bright has not returned telephone calls since the sale reports surfaced.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Sally" was born into a family that carries a gene for dwarfism. Her parents are of normal size, but Sally and her sister are dwarfs. I am 5 feet, 2 inches. Sally comes up to my belt line.

As a child, Sally was not required to help with the housework. When she offered to do the dishes, she was told that it was not necessary. Sally longed to be treated like a normal person. She used to say, "Get me a stool, and let me put things away." She would hop upon a chair before anyone could keep her from helping and complete the job.

Sally taught for two years in parochial schools. The students adored her! She is now in her mid-30s, an energetic and intelligent young woman about whom I have never heard an uncomplimentary remark.

When she visits my home I place hangers on a doorknob for her convenience and I make sure that a child's chair is in the bathroom so she can reach the sink.

I have a number of handicapped friends and each one is very special. One brain-damaged young man, whose stammering makes him difficult to understand, gave me a rare compliment. He said, "You are re-one one o-o-f only th-three people who w-will l-listen to me."

Another handicapped friend is a victim of thalidomide, the drug given to expectant mothers many years ago. She was born without legs and her hands grew out of her elbows. This incredible woman is working her way through college.

Please, Ann, tell these people to hang in there. Urge your readers to give them the respect and understanding they deserve. They are incredibly courageous and not looking for extra privileges. They just want to be treated as equals. Thank you for printing this letter.—A Friend of Special People Everywhere(Ohio)

DEAR FRIEND: These individuals about whom you have written need more than respect and understanding. They need jobs. I urge all employers to hire individuals who are handicapped and, in the case of dwarfs, "different." Too often they are passed over when the truth is, they could do the job as well as or better than anyone else.

Statistics gathered by the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago show that the handicapped have an overall better record for performance and a lower rate of absenteeism than able-bodied employees. I urge all employers everywhere to give these people a break. In the long run, everyone benefits.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several years ago you printed the address of The Conscience Fund for individuals who failed to pay federal income taxes and now want to get straight with the government. You said they would not be prosecuted. I lost the address and need it now. Can you help?—Iowa Guilt

DEAR IOWA: The address is: Department of the Treasury, Financial Management Service, Liberty Center Building, Room 273, 401 14th St., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20227. "Getting straight" with Uncle Sam is a good move. The government needs the money and you need to sleep better at night.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is it possible for a Jew to become a Catholic priest? My friend says yes. I say, "No way."—A Query From Georgia

DEAR GEORGIA: You lose. In 1964, John Oesterreicher was born in Austria to Jewish parents. He became a convert to Catholicism, then a priest and a monsignor in 1963. He is the best-known example. There are others.

Do you have questions about sex, but nobody you can talk to about them? Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," will give you the answers you need. To receive a copy, send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (46 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562

Woodrow Wilson was elected president in 1912, defeating Progressive Republican Theodore Roosevelt and incumbent William Howard Taft, who had run on the regular G.O.P. ticket.
