DSGH to take bond bids tonight

The Deaf Smith Hospital District is expected to accept a bid tonight for $1.5 million in general obligation bonds and hire Gary Moore as the new Deaf Smith General Hospital administrator when it meets tonight at 7 o'clock at DSGH.

Moore, currently administrator at the hospital in Electra, was offered the job at DSGH after the board was courted by a professional management group and interviewed another potential candidate. Moore was offered the job after the board turned down the management deal.

The board has negotiated some aspects of Moore's employment and is expected to finish those negotiations tonight.

Several bids are expected for the DSGH bonds, ending a more-than-a-year effort to obtain some new financing for the hospital.

Some of the bonds are earmarked to pay off loans to Hereford State Bank, First National Bank and Ed Barrett, while the majority will be used to finance improvements at DSGH.

It is expected, by DSGH and bond officials, that DSGH will have to repay the bonds in 10-15 years, with an expected interest rate of 7½-8 percent.

DSGH has received a B-AA bond rating from Moody's.

The board will have to tie up some legal loose ends before the bond sale is final, but should have the bond proceeds in mid-January.

Northeast braces for winter storm

By The Associated Press

The Northeast braced today for the arrival of a deadly winter storm that has turned highways into parking lots and packed airports with stranded travelers as it plodded across the Plains and Midwest.

The snow tapered off in the Midwest after the storm, blamed for at least 12 deaths, moved east. In six hours overnight, the storm dropped 2 inches of snow on Cleveland and Toledo, Ohio, and Binghamton, Buffalo and Elmira, N.Y.

The storm, which hit the Colorado foothills with up to 34 inches of snow, reached New England today with strong winds, the National Weather Service said. It extended from Michigan to West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware.

"It's blowing pretty good now," police dispatcher Shelley Haynes said on Nantucket Island, Mass., where 8 inches was expected. "They're putting the chains on the cruisers now."

Forty-five trucks began salting and plowing streets in Cleveland before the morning rush hour, while Akron mobilized 32 salt trucks and crews were plowing major streets in Toledo.

Meanwhile, a new Pacific storm blustered into the Northwest, and flooding continued unabated in the South.

The foul weather Monday frustrated holiday travelers, unless they happened to be in Miami, where the 83-degree high tied a record for the date.

"Traffic's moving all right now, but a lot of people are getting stuck on hills," said Kirk Binder, a Kalamazoo, Mich., service station employee taking dozens of tow calls. "We get more business this way. I like this stuff."

Other disruptions included temporary power outages in the Chicago area — between 6 and 12 inches hit northern Illinois — and several Iowa cities: rural mail undelivered around Rockford, Ill., and cancellation of greyhound racing in Waterloo, Iowa.

Heavy snow in Denver and Chicago created a large backup of flights all over the West, said San Francisco International Airport spokesman Ron Wilson.

Some passengers were diverted from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, where snow fell at a rate of more than 1 inch an hour, to Milwaukee's Mitchell Field, only to be delayed when flights were suspended to clear runways.

Denver's Stapleton International Airport, which reopened Monday after closing for seven hours during a blizzard Sunday, struggled to catch up with a passenger backlog.

Still sticky

Six killed in spree

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A man's wife and five other relatives were missing and feared dead today after a rampage in which police said he shot to death or suffocated seven people, including five family members and a woman who had spurned his advances.

Crews planned today to search a half-acre pond 200 feet from the home where R. Gene Simmons Sr.'s son, daughter, their spouses, and a grandchild were found Monday amid Christmas decorations and unopened presents, police said.

Simmons, 47, of Dover, surrendered to police after a 45-minute shooting spree through a law office and three former workplaces Monday in which two people were killed and four others wounded, officials said. He faced a bond hearing today on two counts of capital murder and four of attempted capital murder.

The bodies of the family members were found at Simmons' home about 15 miles north of Russellville after the rampage, but charges had not been filed in the deaths. Pope County Sheriff Jim Bolin said Simmons is the only suspect.

Authorities would not speculate on a motive.

After his arrest, Simmons would not speak, Bolin said.

At least six family members were missing, Bolin said. "I fear they may be dead. I feel that if they weren't, they would have contacted us by now."

Sheriff's Lt. Jay Winters identified them as Simmons' wife, three daughters aged 7, 13 and 17, and a 15-year-old son. Bolin said at least one and perhaps three grandchildren also were missing.

Police gave this account of the rampage through this town of 14,000 people about 70 miles northwest of Little Rock:

The first victim Monday was legal secretary Kathy Kendrick, 24, shot to death at her desk. The gunman then killed J.D. Chaffin, 33, and wounded Rusty Taylor, 38, a former employer of Simmons', at Taylor Oil Co. At Sinclair Mini-Mart, also owned by Taylor, he wounded manager David Salyer, 38, and employee Roberta Woolery, 46. Simmons then went to Woodline Motor Freight, and wounded office manager Joyce Butts, 35.

Woodline president Robert Wood said Ms. Kendrick had spurned Simmons' more than a year ago, when both worked at the trucking company. "That's all I can best figure, that's what started most of it," Wood said.

Ms. Kendrick reported the advances to Ms. Butts, the office manager, "and at that point everything did stop," Wood said.

He said that Simmons entered the trucking company Monday "from a side door next to the desk where Ms. Butts used to sit. When he came in and found out she wasn't working there, he made it a point to look around. He found her."

Simmons quit the convenience store Dec. 18, said Winters. It was not known why Simmons quit, he said.

The five people in Simmons' house may have been dead since Saturday night or Sunday morning, Bolin said. The adults were wearing overcoats, indicating they were killed soon after arriving, he said.

Autopsies were pending and their names were not released.

Ms. Woolery was treated and released and Taylor was in satisfactory condition today at St. Mary's Medical Center here. Ms. Butts was in critical condition at Baptist Medical Center in Little Rock, where Salyer was in satisfactory condition.

Hart gets matching funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just 14 days after re-entering the 1988 presidential race, Gary Hart is in line for a possible $1 million in federal funds and almost-guaranteed spots on primary ballots in two key states.

The Federal Election Commission certified Hart on Monday for federal matching funds for his resurrected Democratic campaign, opening the door for what aides said will be more than $1 million from the U.S. Treasury.

That 60-FEC decision also removed an obstacle to Hart's place in the South Dakota primary. Only candidates qualifying for federal funds can be on the ballot in the early test Feb. 23.

In Illinois on Monday, Hart supporters gathered nearly double the 3,000 signatures needed to win a place on that state's March 15 primary ballot.

"Illinois is the first one where it took a monumental effort with signatures," Hart campaign manager Sue Casey said. "It was not reasonable for us to hope that this could have been accomplished in this period of time."

While Hart's campaign was clearing those hurdles, snow and rough winter weather kept Hart off the campaign trail. Hart canceled a trip to Sioux City, Iowa, on Monday and a trip to Nebraska today.

Casey said Hart would try to reschedule the Iowa trip for Monday next week, when the first transfer of matching funds is due from the Treasury.

A first installment of $100,000 will go to pay for plane tickets, office rent and telephones in Denver and New Hampshire, she said.

That is just a start, said Bernie Schneider, a Newport Beach, Calif., attorney working for the Hart campaign.

"We're working on close to $1 million" more to be submitted to qualify for matching money on Jan. 11, he said.

The million-dollar total would be a combination of money raised before Hart withdrew in May and funds raised since Dec. 15.

Casey said the campaign hopes $500,000 or more in matching money will be available to the campaign by the end of January.

Holly taking Imperial deal

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Officials of Holly Sugar Corp. and Imperial Sugar say they have agreed for Imperial to take over Holly.

Holly is a Colorado Springs-based processor, which has a plant in Hereford. Imperial is a sugar producer based in Sugar Land.

The new agreement calls for Imperial to launch a tender offer within five business days for 747,000 shares of Holly common stock—about two-thirds of the company's common stock. The offer will be for $105 a share, or about $78.5 million.

In exchange for the remaining one-third of Holly's stock, Imperial will issue stock equal to about 25 percent of the combined company.

That is a new tack for Imperial. The company's stock is closely-held by only a few individuals.

Holly's stock closed trading Tuesday at almost $84 a share, up considerably from its close on Dec. 23.

The latest offer for Holly's holdings came after Plum Associates backed down on its $95-a-share offer made in September. Plum, citing "changed market conditions," reduced its offer to $85 a share and allowed Holly to seek offers from other buyers.

If Holly accepts the sweeter deal from Imperial, based in Sugar Land, it must pay Plum a $900,000 break up fee.

The latest plan to buy Holly stock is the newest twist in several attempts to either buy out Holly or take the company private.

This summer, a mostly-Holly-management group led by then-Chairman of the Board Michael Buschbaum attempted to buy Holly's outstanding shares, but that attempt fell through after Buschbaum reported that he and his family had received several death threats.

Then came a battle between Plum, a Melville, N.Y. group led by Peter Harvey, and Imperial to buy out the company's stock. Plum apparently had the sweetest deal, at $95 a share, this fall.

That offer was made, however, before the Oct. 19 stock market collapse. After the collapse, Plum began seeking changes in its tender offer for Holly stock.

Imperial then re-entered the scene.

HPD seeking armed robbers

Two female convenience store clerks were robbed, but unharmed, in Hereford Sunday and Monday. The Sun Country Store, located at 618 Ave. K, was robbed at 9 p.m. Sunday by a man armed with a knife. The Allsup's store located at 900 E. Park, was robbed by a man, who was possibly armed, at 9:58 p.m. on Monday.

driving while intoxicated, unsafe backing, shoplifting, no liability insurance, public intoxication and on warrants from DPS.

Four minor accidents were reported and 30 citations were issued. A major accident which was reported proved to be a false alarm. Stolen signs were recovered at the Hereford High Stadium.

Assault was reported in the 600 block of West Second, the intersection of Second and Main Streets and assault by threat was reported on West U.S. 60.

Officers responded to a report of shots fired in the 400 block of George and to domestic problems in the 400 block of Ave. G, the 200 block of Ave. A and the 100 block of Ave. D.

Runaway juveniles were reported from the Greentop Apartments. Selling beer to a minor was reported at Taylor Oil Co.

Rivera Produce Co. reported a theft and burglaries were reported in the 400 block of Thirteenth, on East U.S. 60 and in the 900 block of S. Miles. A prowler was reported in the 100 block of Alamo.

Other offenses reported include harassment in the 200 block of Funston, a purse stolen from the Allsup's located at Fifteenth and Ave. H and a door latch broken at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The Hereford Fire Department rescued a man whose finger was stuck in the gas tank of his vehicle. The man caught his finger inside the tank when he tried to put regular gas inside his "unleaded" vehicle. The man's hand was removed from the tank by cutting away the metal neck of the gas tank.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken in the robberies which are still under investigation. The Sun Country robber was described as a "very thin" Hispanic male, approximately 24-26 years-old, 5-feet, 7-inches tall, with black hair, brown eyes and wearing a white cap.

The Allsup's robber was also described as a Hispanic male, approximately 18-years-old, 5-feet, 4-inches tall weighing 110 pounds. He was described as having brown eyes, black shoulder-length hair and a light beard. He was clothed in jeans and wore a white cap with the word "Bakery" printed on the cap.

The driver of a hit-and-run vehicle was one of seven arrests made over the weekend by officers of the Hereford Police Department. Other arrests were made on charges of said the commission approved Hart's "threshold submission" after receiving a letter from the former Colorado senator dated Dec. 19, declaring officially that he is back in the race.

Dimmitt woman places third in national Maid of Cotton

DALLAS (AP) — Angela Herbert of Phoenix, Ariz., a 21-year-old senior at Arizona State University, was crowned Monday night as the 1988 Maid of Cotton.

Ms. Herbert, who earlier had been named the Arizona Maid of Cotton, will make her first public appearance at the Cotton Bowl Parade on New Year's Day.

She was one of 19 finalists from nine cotton-producing states out of about 200 original contestants. A blonde, she is a major in political science and history. As Maid of Cotton, she gets a $10,000 scholarship and a $10,000 all-cotton wardrobe. She will tour the United States, the Far East and Europe over the next six months representing the cotton industry and helping to promote the sale of U.S. cotton.

First runner-up was Glennys Cowles, 22, of Memphis, Tenn., a senior fashion design major at the University of Mississippi.

Second runner-up was Tricia Touchstone, 21, of Dimmitt, Texas, a senior restaurant and hotel management major at Texas Tech. She was the South Plains Maid of Cotton, one of three regional contests whose winners automatically qualified as finalists.

The 1988 Maid of Cotton was selected at the Majestic Theater in downtown Dallas Monday night. The women were judged on communication skills, poise, personality, and appearance during 2½ days of strucured events that included prepared speeches, question and answer sessions at several functions, and the Monday night selection.

Applicants had to be at least 5-foot, 5 inches tall, never married, between 19 and 25 year old, of attractive appearance, and able to model and wear cotton clothes.

City water supply declared safe

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — Water pumps for the city of Marshall were turned back on after the government's test of the water in Caddo Lake, the source of the city's drinking water, showed it free of contamination.

The test results were announced Monday night as emergency crews battled one last fire and continued repair work at the site of a weekend derailment, which occurred when rain-weakened culverts collapsed, officials said.

Pumps at the lake had been shut off after a train loaded with chemicals derailed Saturday afternoon about five miles northwest of Marshall, triggering explosions and a fire that shot 300 feet into the air and spilling chemicals into a creek that eventually leads to Caddo Lake.

The city was down to about 20 hours worth of water reserves Monday afternoon.

Water samples were flown to Fort Worth early Monday afternoon and after thorough testing, Marshall public works director Cecil Forester reported that no level of contamination had been found.

Union Pacific Railroad spokesman Tom LaHood of Omaha, Neb., told

The Associated Press earlier Monday that preliminary studies by the Environmental Protection Agency indicated only a trace of chemicals in the water and no danger.

Clean-up efforts continued Monday and a train loaded with ties, rails and other equipment was parked in Woodlawn, ready for track repairs once the remaining tank cars are removed from the track.

"The track won't be fixed until late Tuesday at the earliest," LaHood said. "They are pulling the cars out one at a time and transloading the remaining product from rail cars to trucks and hauling them out."

He said workmen were attempting to extinguish the last fire with foam.

The train's four crewmen were injured, but all walked away from the wreck, Union Pacific spokesman Alex Tice said. A brakeman was released from Marshall Memorial Hospital, and the other three crewmen still were in the hospital for observation and tests, he said.

Some 50 residents within a mile to the north and northwest of the derailment were evacuated, primarily because of threat of fire in the heavily wooded area, but only one family was kept away from their home Sunday night, officials said.

Bennett outlines his back-to-basics curriculum, outstanding schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Education William J. Bennett today presented his vision of an ideal high school in which every American teen-ager would take 36 required courses, from algebra and art history to science and Western civilization.

Bennett invoked a personal hero to name both his report and his fictional school: "James Madison High School: A Curriculum for American Students."

Bennett stressed that the "school" has real-world models, and he appended the report with capsule descriptions of seven high schools that practice what he preaches.

Bennett would have all teen-agers take four years of English, with four year-long literature courses; three years each of science, math and social studies; two years of foreign language; two years of physical education; and one semester each of art and music history.

"Even by the standards of most other industrialized nations, American education is more comprehensive, more prolonged and more democratic," Bennett wrote. "But, too often, it is also less rigorous and less productive."

Bennett's department has no authority to mandate curricula to any of the nation's 21,000 public and private high schools, which enroll some 12 million students.

But Bennett touted his ideal as "the kind of basic program most Americans want for their schools."

Scott D. Thomson, executive director of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, said, "I think it makes a lot of good sense. The better schools in the country already offer the kind of curriculum that he's talking about."

Too often students can fill their schedules with "junk food" electives," Thomson said. But he questioned the omission of business or vocational courses from Bennett's core.

Gordon Cawelti, executive director of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, said Bennett's proposal reflects "the kind of education a lot of students now are receiving in upper middle-class suburbs."

Thomson said 25 percent to 30 percent of U.S. high schools now offer a curriculum like Bennett's. Cawelti said that "at best" 10 percent of students pursue such a course.

Bennett denied his regimen would be too much for disadvantaged students or minorities to handle. It is aimed at "the students we have, not for an imaginary class of teen-age wizards," Bennett said.

The seven schools profiled in the report as examples of curricular excellence are: A. Philip Randolph Campus High School on the grounds of City College of New York in Harlem; CAL High School, in Latimer, Iowa, a small, rural school serving the towns of Coulter, Alexander and Latimer; James A. Garfield High School in Los Angeles, famed for its Hispanic students' scores on calculus advanced placement exams; Shawnee Mission South High School in Kansas; Portland High School in Maine; Xavier Prep School in New Orleans, an all-black Catholic school for girls; and Wayland High School in Wayland, Mass.

Help delayed for cracked jet

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Help for an Eastern Airlines jetliner that nearly lost its tail in a hard landing was delayed because the pilot interrupted radio communications when he shut down electrical power to prevent a fire, a Pensacola Regional Airport spokesman said.

Fire equipment reached the scene in three minutes, within acceptable limits, once it was realized there was a problem. The plane landed late Sunday night in a foggy rain and then failed to taxi to the terminal, airport spokesman Carlton Proctor said Monday.

Proctor said it remained unclear exactly how much time elapsed, but firefighters arrived three minutes after they were notified.

Escambia County Emergency Medical Services records show a call for help was received at 11:47 p.m. CST, while airport and Federal Aviation Administration officials said the plane landed at 11:40 p.m.

Passenger Carolyn Fleming said she walked about half of the mile-long distance to the airport terminal before rescue trucks arrived at the disabled DC-9. The jetliner was sitting on the end of the runway, its fuselage cracked open nearly all the way around its mid-section and its tail section dragging on the pavement.

"If that plane had started burning they couldn't have saved us," said Ms. Fleming, one of 105 people aboard the twin-engine jet.

A fire may have been prevented by the pilot's move to switch off all power, Proctor said.

Ms. Fleming said a flight attendant who walked with her through a driving rain suggested the downpour also may have helped avoid disaster by preventing sparks from flying as the plane dragged its drooping tail nearly 7,000 feet down the runway.

Most of the passengers had made it to the terminal before a baggage truck from Delta Air Lines began picking people up, Ms. Fleming said.

Virginia Sanchez, a spokeswoman at Eastern's Miami headquarters, said she had no information on how long it took to get help to the plane.

Karen M. Ceremsak, an Eastern spokeswoman in Pensacola, said the pilot is a 20-year veteran of the carrier, but she declined to identify him.

Officials also had no word on what may have caused the accident. An investigative team from the National Transportation Safety Board spent most of the day at the accident scene.

Three people were slightly injured as passengers and crew used emergency chutes to leave the plane. The injured were treated and released from emergency rooms at two local hospitals, authorities said. Their names were not released.

Proctor said airport officials had been told it would be late Monday night before efforts to remove the aircraft from the runway could begin.

Growers hope citrus crop not harmed

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Citrus growers on the outskirts of the Phoenix metropolitan area say they think their crops escaped major damage during the weekend's cold snap but warn that prices will probably rise because of more extensive damage to California's crop.

Frost began forming around 11 p.m. Saturday and lingered until morning, but growers said that they believe they were able to protect their crops from the cold that night and that Sunday night's temperatures weren't nearly as bad.

Citrus trees are damaged when temperatures fall below 28 degrees for durations of four hours or more. Growers, however, can keep groves warm by running wind machines to circulate cold air away from the groves and by running warm water through irrigation canals to produce a warming steam in the area.

"We did okay last night," Russ Poe, manager of Allied Citrus Exchange in Phoenix, said Monday.

Cosmonaut returns to Earth

MOSCOW (AP) — Yuri Romanenko, who set the world's space endurance record at nearly 11 months, returned to earth today along with two other cosmonauts aboard a Soyuz space capsule, the Tass news agency said.

"The descent capsule of the Soyuz TM-3 spaceship soft-landed in the designated area in Soviet territory, near the town of Arkalyk," about 1,240 miles southeast of Moscow.

It said nothing about the condition of the cosmonauts.

Space officials said they want to study Romanenko's physical condition to find out how long man can live unimpaired in weightlessness. His condition could determine whether man could spend the three years it would take with today's rockets to make a round-trip voyage to Mars, they said.

Returning with Romanenko from the Mir orbiting space complex were flight engineer Alexander Alexandrov and test pilot Anatoly Levchenko.

Cosmonauts Vladimir Titov and Musa Manarov remained on board the Mir space station to continue a yearlong flight that would break Romanenko's record of 326 days in space. Levchenko flew Titov and Manarov to the station Wednesday.

Romanenko has been in space since Feb. 6. He traveled to the Mir space station with Alexander Laveikin, but Laveikin became ill and was replaced in July by Alexandrov.

Tass said the cosmonauts conducted final experiments Monday on growing crystals of vegetable protein. The results were to be brought to Earth.

Other space missions are planned for the Mir complex while Titov and Manarov are aboard, including a joint Soviet-Bulgarian mission.

Tass said Romanenko's wife, Alevtina, had taken their two sons to Arkalyk, a city in north-central Kazakhstan, for the landing. Tass said the families of Romanenko, Alexandrov and Levchenko were taking small decorated trees to Kazakhstan to celebrate the New Year with the cosmonauts.

During Romanenko's flight, Soviet scientists launched and successfully linked the Kvant orbiting laboratory with the space station.

Kvant was launched March 31 and the Soviets made an unsuccessful attempt to dock April 5. The two crafts were linked mechanically in a second attempt on April 9, but an obstruction prevented complete docking.

Romanenko and Laveikin made a 3 hour 40 minute space walk April 11 to remove the obstruction and finish linking the space station with the orbiting laboratory.

Cosmonauts have carried on a variety of experiments in astronomy and biology in the Kvant laboratory.

Romanenko's 326 days in space surpass previous space endurance records by almost three months.

Wax on produce not harmful

Which would you choose—a bright, shiny orange or one with a dull matte finish?

The average consumer will choose the shiny orange, which is one reason why more varieties of fruit and vegetables are being waxed before they reach the market.

Marilyn Haggard, a food marketing expert with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, says that over 20 varieties of fruits and vegetables, including apples, cucumbers, eggplants, citrus, sweet potatoes and tomatoes are waxed.

In spite of the fact that people like the look of waxed produce, we also get questions about its safety," says Haggard. "Like other food additives, food waxes made in the U.S. have been tested and found safe by the Food and Drug Administration."

According to the specialist, some of the most common food waxes produced in this country are carnauba, which is made from a type of palm leaf and petroleum-based waxes which contain the same ingredients as chewing gum bases.

"Some imported produce may be coated with a substance containing beef tallow, Haggard says, although tallow-based wax is not used on domestic produce.

"In addition to eye-appeal, the waxes have the advantage of reducing the loss of moisture and keeping the product from shriveling," she adds.

Washing will reduce, but often not completely remove food waxes, the specialist observes.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When our daughter was born 16 years ago, my husband and I began putting aside $5 a week for her college education. If we were short, we cut somewhere else. Although we went through some rough times we never once considered touching that money. When our two sons were born we upped the weekly contribution.

We now have $12,000 but that is nowhere near what is needed to put three kids through college. Recently we started to look for college aid. Guess what? We are not eligible. This puzzled us because most of our friends are in the same income bracket and they have received all kinds of grants and loans. We were told that the total income picture is reviewed and people who are in debt are considered "in need."

And how did these folks get into debt? They lived above their means, bought VCRs and new cars and took expensive vacations. Meanwhile, when our kids asked for luxuries they were told that college is more important. So while their friends were buying $300 prom dresses and driving their own cars, our children were told they couldn't have those things.

How can I explain to them that staying out of debt and saving money goes unrewarded? Our daughter has a 3.4 grade average and is in the top 20 percent of her class, but taht is not good enough for an academic scholarship.

Please help me make some sense out of this because, Ann Landers, I am — Baffled and Frustrated in Ohio

DEAR B AND F: Don't despair. Help is on the way. According to Joseph Re of Octameron Associates, which publishes educational reference books, students who have a grade average of B or above or have graduated in the upper third of their class have a good chance of getting academic aid.

Many scholarships are lying idle because people don't know they exist. "The A's and B's: Your Guide to Academic Scholarships" (10th edition, $5) lists nearly 1,200 colleges and 100,000 merit-based awards.

"Don't Miss Out: The Ambitious Student's Guide to Financial Aid"

(12th edition; $5) explains many other forms of financial aid.

I suggest that you write to Octameron Associates for both of these books. The address is Box 3437L, Alexandria, Va. 22302.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know that there are many good marriages out there, but lately there have been a lot of divorces among my neighbors, friends and colleagues. I am seriously contemplating getting married in a few months and am becoming increasingly apprehensive.

Last week the pastor of our church went to jail for having sex with a teenager. His wife is devastated. The congregation was shocked.

In August my boyfriend's parents' divorce was final. Last week a man I work with moved out on his wife of 36 years. This morning my cousin told me that she is divorcing her husband because he doesn't have enough education to hold a good job. (I wonder why she didn't realize this when she married him.)

What does all this mean, Ann? I didn't used to be like this. Is marriage going out of style? Please let me hear from you.—Cold Feet in South Dakota

DEAR FEET: Marriage is not going out of style, but the sad truth is that 50 percent of all marriages that take place today will end in divorce.

The reasons? Divorces are easier to get and are no longer considered scandalous. More women can support themselves and are able to get out of unhappy marriages. It is true, however, that too few couples view marriage as a lifetime commitment, and that is the principal cause.

Infant mortality high in United States

EDITOR'S NOTE — The United States is tied for last place among 20 industrialized nations ranked according to infant mortality rates. One of the reasons is that many pregnant women who don't qualify for Medicaid also can't afford proper prenatal care. Some congressmen are trying to mend what they perceive to be a hole in the government's safety net.

By JILL LAWRENCE Associated Press Writer

Respite care helps families

Families with a disabled or chronically ill member now have a resource for learning about available respite care, according to family life specialist Dr. Sarah L. Anderson.

Respite care is any type of relief care, ranging from a few hours break to intermittent custodial care for varying lengths of time, explains the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

"The continuous care required by a severely disabled child or an aged, infirm parent is physically and emotionally draining. Without some relief, the stress will take its toll on the family."

According to Anderson, The Texas Respite Resource Network (TRRN) has published a Directory of Texas respite and support service programs. It lists respite services available in Texas by location and includes information about types of services, clients and ages served, and fee schedules.

Families may write for a copy from the Texas Respite Resource Network, Children's Ambulatory Care Center, P.O. Box 7330, Station A, San Antonio, Texas 78285.

The wide variety of respite services available include care provided on an emergency basis or on a

WASHINGTON (AP) — Her husband made $5.25 an hour, too much to qualify for Medicaid assistance, so Alice Ice of Pikeville, Tenn., saw a doctor only twice while she was pregnant.

It wasn't enough. Her son was born nearly two months premature, at 3 pounds, 4 ounces. He spent five weeks in the intensive care unit.

Mrs. Ice, former manager of an engineering design firm, said her mother-in-law had scraped together periodic or regular basis either in the family's home on in out-of-home settings, Anderson remarks.

In-home respite caretakers may provide babysitting services, siter/companion services, homemaking services, attendant care or nursing services depending on the needs of the family and the age and level of disability.

The specialist says out-of-home care often includes day care centers for elders or the disabled.

"Respite care gives families time to relax away from continuous caretaking and to renew their energies," she says. "Temporary relief can also allow a family to maintain its stability in crisis situations and help them cope."

She points out that the disabled also need time-off from their families, and respite care may provide opportunities for new experiences and friends.

"Unfortunately, respite services are not available in all areas, although many communities are becoming aware of the need," notes Anderson. "Organizations and families interested in forming a coalition to establish respite services in their area can also obtain information and technical assistance from TRRN."

the money for her two checkups. As for the government, "there was no help when we needed it," she said in a letter to Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J.

"After Joshua was born, we finally received Medicaid to pay the almost $30,000 in medical expenses," Mrs. Ice wrote. "I will never understand how so-called well-educated, intelligent government officials in Washington can't get it through their heads! It is so much more inexpensive to help pregnant women receive proper prenatal care than it is to wait until the damage is done!"

Spurred by Bradley and others, Congress has started to broaden Medicaid coverage so that year by year, more low-income, uninsured pregnant women and young children become eligible. But the process is slow and the need is great.

Bradley, in an article on prenatal care in Woman's Day magazine, pointed out that the United States has slipped to a tie for last place among 20 industrialized nations ranked according to infant mortality. Thirty years ago it was ranked 6th.

"For the most part, these babies are not dying of incurable or esoteric diseases," Bradley said. "They are dying of poverty, ignorance and neglect. They are dying because they were born too small, to mothers too poor to afford the necessary prenatal care that should be every child's birthright."

Doctors recommend 13 prenatal visits during a pregnancy. The checkups help them detect and control hypertension, diabetes, iron deficiency and other conditions that increase the likelihood of premature, low-birthweight babies — babies weighing less than 5.5 pounds.

Such babies are far more likely than other infants to suffer from mental retardation, cerebral palsy, autism, epilepsy, chronic lung disease and growth and development problems.

"One of the most difficult aspects of my job is witnessing death and disability among infants and knowing that many of their conditions were preventable," Dr. Robert Cicco of Pittsburgh told a Senate subcommittee this fall.

The conditions are not only preventable, they are expensive. The Institute of Medicine has concluded that for every dollar spent on prenatal care, more than $3 would be saved on the low-birthweight infants who run up most of the $2.5 billion annual tab for neonatal intensive care.

And problems at birth often linger throughout a lifetime. Bradley poses the hypothetical case of Billy, born at 3.5 pounds, only 16 pounds and just starting to crawl at age 2. He has asthma, a hearing loss and possibly some brain damage.

"Because we would not support Billy at the beginning of his life, we may end up supporting him for the rest of his life," Bradley says.

Bradley asked the magazine's readers to fill out a coupon and mail it to him if they agreed that Medicaid, the government health program for the poor, should be expanded to cover more low-income, uninsured pregnant women. He has received more than 6,000 responses, many with letters attached.

They tell of unemployment, minimum-wage jobs and lack of insurance, of hospitals and doctors who refuse treatment unless patients put up hundreds of dollars up front, of babies born prematurely at 2 or 3 pounds and spending months in intensive care units, of a system that denies $400 for prenatal checkups but shells out the $14,000-plus it costs to care for the average low-birthweight baby.

The nation has made virtually no progress toward meeting goals set by the surgeon general to reduce the incidence of low-birthweight babies and increase early prenatal care by 1990. In 1985, as in 1980 when the goals were set, nearly 7 percent of live births were low-birthweight and 76 percent of pregnant women received first-trimester care. The goals are 5 percent and 90 percent, respectively.

Historically, Medicaid assistance has been tied to welfare eligibility levels set by the states. But, as one doctor testified recently on Capitol Hill, "the trouble with Medicaid is that far too few of the poor qualify."

That's because, in most states, the income required to get welfare is well below the federal poverty standard of $8,738 for a family of three. And half the states do not offer welfare at all to families with two parents, no matter how low the household income.

Under a law passed last year, states were allowed to extend Medicaid to all uninsured pregnant women and young children with incomes up to 100 percent of the federal poverty line — regardless of family status or welfare eligibility. Two — California and Minnesota — already were doing so and another 25 have decided to expand coverage as a result of the new law.

Bradley and Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., are trying to go even further this year by raising the eligibility level to 85 percent above the federal poverty line. Their plan would also require states to provide coverage of youngsters in low-income, uninsured two-parent families.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates the Bradley-Waxman proposal would add 79,000 pregnant women and 239,000 children under age 5 to the Medicaid roster in its first year. The cost to the federal government, which pays 50 to 80 percent of Medicaid costs, would be $65 million for the first full year of coverage.

Another part of this year's infant mortality initiative involves an extra $30 million for community and migrant health centers, specifically to curb infant deaths. The centers are intended for low-income areas with few physicians and high infant mortality rates.

The Reagan administration early this year proposed an $85 million plan to reduce infant mortality, but would have financed it by reducing outlays for Medicaid family planning services. The Office of Management and Budget has taken no position on the congressional initiative, which is buried in a much larger money bill.

An administration official contended recently that money is not a major factor in reducing infant mortality. "Money alone does not produce good outcomes," Robert Helms, assistant secretary of health and human service, told a House hearing. "How, what and when services are delivered is far more important."

Bradley disagrees, and the General Accounting Office reported at the same hearing that its research showed that lack of money was a major reason pregnant women received late prenatal care or none at all.

An Arkansas farm wife, pregnant and "absolutely broke" after two years of drought, wrote Bradley she simply hoped for the best when she discovered there was no prenatal care available to her through her county or state.

Twenty-eight weeks into the pregnancy, she went into labor for 47 minutes. Her daughter, born in a hospital emergency room, weighed 2 pounds, 4 ounces.

"After almost five months' hospitalization and thousands of dollars on Medicaid, we brought home a 4-pound, 11-ounce baby," the woman wrote. "If only I could have received a small amount of medical attention! Tragedy!"

In an interview, Bradley said the letters he received "vividly demonstrate the overwhelming need for this kind of care availability."

"Time after time these women ended up with low-birthweight babies or babies with problems because they could not get prenatal care, and the reason was because they couldn't come up with the $600 they needed to pay the doctor," Bradley said.

Winterize yourself with winter activity

Many Americans tend to think of winter as a time to hibernate. With the onset of cold weather people often become less active than they are during the warmer months. Without the opportunity to play tennis, water ski, go bicycling or participate in other outdoor activities, people can easily become sedentary. This change in activity level can also lead to poor eating habits — overeating and indulging in high-calorie, high-fat snack foods.

This is especially true during the holiday season from October to January, when the number of social activities increases. Family gatherings and religious celebrations often include snacks, big meals and edible gifts. Frequently the results are weight gain and a general sense of feeling unfit.

The American Heart Association suggests you keep up some form of fitness program and maintain your ideal weight during the winter months. In fact, exercise can be an effective way to control appetite. Do, however, check with a physician before starting a regular exercise program, particularly if your lifestyle has been sedentary.

During the winter months there are alternatives to the traditional outdoor activities. Many community colleges and local universities offer a variety of exercise and sports classes through adult education or continuing education departments, usually at a very low cost.

Often high school gymnasiums are open to the public at no charge evenings and weekends during the winter. YMCAs, YWCAs, boys' clubs, girls' clubs and community centers generally offer a variety of fitness, exercise and sports classes and activities at a range of fees depending on location.

Bowling can be an enjoyable indoor activity that helps improve coordination and muscle tone while also helping relieve tension. Bowling instruction is available at most bowling centers at little or no cost. Some bowling centers also offer aerobics and other exercise programs during the day in conjunction with league bowling.

Outside exercises like skating and walking are good choices during the cooler months, as long as appropriate clothing is worn. For indoor walking, shopping malls provide an economical alternative for a brisk walk without the cold weather elements. Remember to wear comfortable shoes. The key word is brisk — no window shopping.

Tonight with the Liberty Bowl

Big week of bowl games begins

By The Associated Press

In his 24 years as football coach of the Georgia Bulldogs, Vince Dooley has had his share of success. However, that doesn't include Arkansas in bowl competition.

Dooley will get a chance to redeem himself against the Razorbacks tonight when his Bulldogs meet Arkansas in the Liberty Bowl.

"Beating Arkansas would make my dreams pretty pleasant," said Dooley, whose Southeastern Conference-member Bulldogs dropped a 16-2 decision to the Razorbacks in the 1969 Sugar Bowl and lost 31-10 to Arkansas in the 1976 Cotton Bowl.

"I'd hate to get run over by Hogs three times in a row."

The Liberty Bowl marks the beginning of college football's season-ending splurge of bowl games which will finish this weekend. Included will be the national championship battle in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night between top-ranked Oklahoma and second-ranked Miami of Florida.

On Wednesday, Air Force and Arizona State will play in the Freedom Bowl, while Wyoming meets No. 18 Iowa in the Holiday Bowl.

Thursday's games will pit No. 9 South Carolina against No. 7 Louisiana State in the Gator Bowl and No. 19 Pittsburgh against Texas in the Bluebonnet.

Then comes New Year's Day when No. 13 Clemson takes on No. 20 Penn State in the Florida Citrus Bowl, No. 3 Florida State meets No. 5 Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl, No. 12 Notre Dame battles No. 15 Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl, No. 4 Syracuse plays No. 6 Auburn in the Sugar Bowl, No. 8 Michigan State faces No. 17 Southern Cal in the Rose Bowl and Oklahoma takes on Miami in the Orange Bowl.

On Saturday, the Peach Bowl will send No. 16 Tennessee against Indiana, while Michigan plays Alabama in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Both the Bulldogs and the Razorbacks were knocked out of their respective conference races late in the season.

A 27-11 loss to Auburn put Georgia out of the Southeastern Conference hunt and Sugar Bowl race, while Arkansas missed out on the Southwest Conference title and a Cotton Bowl berth by losing to Texas A&M 14-0.

Against Arkansas, the 15th-ranked Bulldogs, 8-3, will face one of the country's best wishbone attacks. Ken Hatfield's Razorbacks, 9-3, totaled 3,196 yards rushing during the regular season.

The prime target for the Bulldog defense is Arkansas halfback James Rouse, who is only the third Razorback to rush for more than 1,000 yards during a season.

Both teams use the running game as their primary weapon, but the Bulldogs may be forced to the air by an Arkansas defense that ranks sixth in the nation against the rush.

Still, Hatfield said he is very aware of the running talents of Georgia quarterback James Jackson and Bulldog tailbacks Lars Tate and Rodney Hampton.

Jackson, who has rushed for 519 yards and three touchdowns and connected on 67 of 132 pass attempts for 1,026 yards and seven touchdowns, ranks only behind Herschel Walker and Zeke Bratkowski in the Bulldog career record book with 4,775 total yards. Tate became the fifth Bulldog in history to rush for more than 1,000 yards with 1,016 yards this season, while Hampton, only a freshman, gained 890 yards.

Both Iowa, 9-3, and Wyoming, 10-2, have big-play offenses. The Hawkeyes are led by quarterback Chuck Hartlieb, who completed 65.6 percent of his passes this year and is ranked third in the country in efficiency.

Returning to the Holiday Bowl for a second straight year, Iowa last year defeated San Diego State 39-38. As the Western Athletic Conference champion, Wyoming is riding a nine-game winning streak. In six of their 10 victories, the Cowboys have come from behind.

Air Force figures to be mostly ground-oriented in its Freedom Bowl matchup against Arizona State, 6-4-1.

Ranked second in the nation in rushing, the Falcons, 9-3, averaged 386.3 yards a game this season, almost six yards a carry. Sophomore Steve Letnich will play in place of quarterback Dee Dowis, who has a broken wrist. Arizona State's balanced rushing attack averaged more than 191 yards a game, led by tailback Darryl Harris, who finished the season with 855 yards.

Names in the News Futurists look at 1988

JERUSALEM (AP) — Oscar-winning actor Louis Gossett Jr. says he had been quite happy with his life before he met Cyndi James Reese, who plays an undercover police officer in the television serial "Days of Our Lives."

"Suddenly something like this happens and you realize how much you were missing all those years," Gossett was quoted as saying by publicist Barbara Barkay after he and Ms. Reese were married in a Christmas ceremony in the resort town of Herzlia, north of Tel Aviv.

Gossett, 50, has two sons: Satie, 13, from a previous marriage and Sharon, 10, whom he adopted three years ago.

Gossett, who won the 1982 Academy Award for his supporting role in "An Officer and a Gentleman," also played the late President Anwar Sadat of Egypt in a television miniseries.

The couple plans to return Sunday to Haifa, where Gossett will resume filming "Iron Eagle 2."

HEBER SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — It's been three months since little Timmy Box wandered from his grandparents' rural home into the rugged Ozark Mountains and was found three days later in a briar patch, little the worse for wear.

His family says the boy, who celebrated his third birthday Nov. 17, is doing fine but rarely talks about his "adventure in late September except to say he "went around and around." He also won't go outside by himself.

"He always wants me or someone else to come out with him," Timmy's grandfather, George Box, said recently. "And that's fine with me. I'm happy to have him around."

The boy had been living with his grandparents because his parents, Kenneth and Virginia Box, thought it would help Timmy's speech development. The parents neither hear nor speak.

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — Actor Peter O'Toole and his former companion, Karen Somerville, have agreed temporarily to take turns caring for their 4-year-old son, Loran, an attorney says.

Until September 1989, the boy will stay with his mother in Middletown for three months and then O'Toole will have him for three months, Ms. Somerville's attorney, Gary Newman, said recently.

If they fail to reach a permanent custody agreement by September 1989, Newman said, the two will return to Superior Court in Freehold.

O'Toole and Ms. Somerville met six years ago when Ms. Somerville was living in California.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music performers Bill Monroe, Ricky Skaggs, Riders in the Sky and the Whites will appear in Florida on the Grand Ole Opry's first road segment in 35 years, officials said.

The 30-minute segment of the famed country music radio show set for Jan. 1 in Tampa is part of the festivities for the Hall of Fame football bowl game, officials said Tuesday.

The remaining 3½ hours of the show will originate from Nashville's Grand Ole Opry House.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousand-story skyscrapers and a return of the blimp, rationed medical care and sale of "tuition futures" by colleges all could be part of America's destiny, according to the World Future Society.

The Bethesda, Md.-based group has summarized its predictions of the likely, possible and improbable, for both the near and long term, in "Outlook '88 and Beyond," a collection of the reports issued by the group during the past year.

Rapidly rising college costs could lead to the introduction of tuition futures, suggests the group which includes academicians, scientists and others whose work focuses on trends for the future.

Under such plans, parents would begin paying into a college fund for their child when the tot is as young as age 2, allowing them to pay for the future college education at the current tuition rate — and spreading the payments over more time.

Costs too will have a bearing on health, says the group, which projects that "expensive life-saving technologies may be rationed if younger Americans are unwilling to support massive health-care expenditures to keep alive the growing number of elderly in poor health."

Also possible is an increase in suicide among the elderly, according to the futurists. As this becomes more acceptable, elderly people in poor health may be able to apply for suicide licenses, the group says.

Death specialists may dispense potent drugs that kill painlessly, and special ceremonies may be created for these occasions, the futurists say.

This could occur at a time when the massive increase in the number of elderly means there will be an acute shortage of physicians trained in geriatrics, and thus health care for older Americans may often have to be provided by physician assistants and nurses.

All isn't negative on the health front, though, according to the futurists.

For example, they foresee a time when drugs will be available to help people with spinal cord injuries regain the use of paralyzed limbs. The drugs could replace chemical signals the brain could no longer transmit, thus stimulating the spinal cord to activate the muscles, the futurists say.

They also foresee increased surgical removal of plaque in the arteries to reduce the chance of stroke, correction of birth defects before birth, and a reduction in heart attacks.

At least one less-than-modern technology is likely to see a comeback — lighter-than-air craft, according to the futurists.

They look for increased use of balloons and blimps to provide disaster relief and to reach remote areas.

Thousand-story skyscrapers likely will become technically feasible, the group also says, with a proposed tower in Houston said to be able to grow a mile high. Other outlooks for the near and distant future, according to the annual assessment:

—Orchestral music may make a comeback as computers and synthesizers offer a less expensive substitute for hiring a full orchestra.

—Robots with computer brains could take over dangerous police jobs, such as quelling riots and rescuing hostages.

—Prospective lovers may sign dating contracts to deal with potential legal problems involving sexually transmissible diseases, pregnancy and abortion, ownership of property and financial compensation.

Scientists find 'sex' gene

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The ancient quest to understand the ultimate difference between the sexes may have been solved, according to scientists who report finding the gene that makes a man a man and a woman a woman.

The gene was located by Dr. David C. Page and colleagues at the Whitehead Institute for Biomedical Research of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology during a race between labs in several countries.

"People have been fascinated from the time of Aristotle about what controlled sex," said Dr. Robert Erickson of the University of Michigan. "To have finally probably found the gene that does it is the answer to a 2,000-year search."

If Page's theory is right, the gene acts as a sort of master regulator. It appears to start a chain reaction of hormones that eventually leads to development of a male.

The gene is on the Y chromosome, which is part of the inborn genetic library of men but not women. The researchers believe that a virtually identical gene determines sex in all other mammals.

"We think we have identified a single gene on the Y chromosome that is the sex-determining switch, and we think we can infer certain things about its mode of action," said Page.

While Page says he has assembled "a strong circumstantial case" that the gene really is the sex trigger, he cautioned that more work will be needed.

The discovery may someday provide new ways to treat infertility and problems of sexual development, but its greatest importance is the insight it provides into one of the basic questions of biology.

"Although it doesn't tell you anything that you've always wanted to know about the difference between men and women, it tells you how that difference was first laid down," said Nobel laureate David Baltimore, director of the Whitehead Institute.

Dr. Peter N. Goodfellow of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund in London, a competitor in the race to find the sex trigger, said he believes that Page almost certainly has located it.

For the first six weeks or so of development in the womb, all fetuses are sexually identical. Page believes that the newly discovered gene — called TDF, for testis-determining factor — rules whether they will grow testes or ovaries.

Every one is born with 46 strings of genes call chromosomes. Two of these, called X and Y, are the sex chromosomes. Women have two X chromosomes, while men have an X and a Y.

To find the sex trigger gene, the researchers studied about 60 XX males and XY females. These are "sex-reversed" people who appear to be exceptions to the rule. The XX males are sterile, but otherwise are physically normal men even though they have the XX chromosomes of women. XY females appear at birth to be ordinary girls but do not mature sexually and have the chromosomes of men.

Through a genetic mixup, the XX males actually carry a tiny bit of the Y chromosome on one of their X chromosomes. And the XY females are missing the same portion of their Y chromosome.

Page's research, published in today's issue of the journal Cell, set out to find the piece of Y chromosome that the XX men had and the XY females lacked. By analyzing the genes, he narrowed down the target to one snippet of genetic material.

Inside this stretch of genetic code, he believes there is one gene that is essential for maleness. Like other genes, it oversees production of a protein.

During its moment in the spotlight, no place looked better this year than Midland, Texas.

On Oct. 14, Jessica McClure fell into an abandoned well behind her home. Two days later, the 18-month old girl was freed.

It was 58 hours of excruciating drama, compelling in its simplicity. There was a job to do, and people pulled together to do it.

A country that couldn't balance its budget, couldn't compete in international commerce and couldn't figure out what happened to the stock market could still get a kid out of a hole in the ground.

But many others just plain wilted when the spotlight came their way: Jim Bakker, Gary Hart, Joseph Biden, Robert Bork, Douglas Ginsburg. Even that consummate trouper, Ronald Reagan, had some bad outings over the Iran-Contra affair, the Supreme Court and a nuclear arms treaty that was better received in the Kremlin than in parts of the Republican Party.

Others, after a few startled blinks, found the attention gratifying. Donna Rice became a hot property, Jessica Hahn bared body and soul, Fawn Hall got an agent, Oliver North collected stacks of telegrams.

At the Washington summit, there also was a little nudging and shoving for the spotlight, but for the most part President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev stressed teamwork as they met to sign a treaty eliminating a class of superpower nuclear weapons from Europe.

"Glasnost," Gorbachev's concept of "openness," entered the English language in 1987, and Reagan, who once believed there was no Russian word for "freedom," was delighted to find one for "verification."

"Doverly no proveryal" — trust but verify, he told Gorbachev over and over.

The face of hunger reappeared in Africa, where Ethiopia and other countries grappled again with acute food shortages. Floods in Bangladesh and earthquakes in Ecuador each killed more than 1,000 people.

Oscar Arias, the president of Costa Rica, won the Nobel Peace Prize for getting Nicaragua and other Central American countries to agree on a peace plan, though peace remained elusive.

Pope John Paul II returned to the United States, drawing smaller crowds on his second visit and facing blunt talk from his own bishops about the independence of American Catholics.

Kurt Waldheim found he could not return to the United States. The Justice Department barred the Austrian president and former U.N. secretary general because of his alleged wartime activities in the Nazi army.

But some of 1987's major events did not have identifiable faces to cue the public mood with a grin or a growl.

The stock market collapsed, for reasons still being investigated. On Oct. 19, "Black Monday," the Dow Jones average fell 508 points in a frenzy of trading. Computers dumped stocks faster than a broker could twitch, and an estimated $1 trillion in wealth worldwide simply disappeared.

In the aftermath of the crash, Reagan abruptly dropped his "make my day" opposition to tax increases and cut a deal with Congress on a package of deficit reductions.

That didn't sit well with his party's right wing, which was even more upset about the new treaty eliminating intermediate-range nuclear arms.

In the days before Gorbachev arrived for the summit, an exasperated president accused his critics of accepting the inevitability of nuclear war. Howard Phillips, chairman of the Conservative Caucus, responded that Reagan was "a useful idiot for Soviet propaganda."

American conservatives suspected that first lady Nancy Reagan was pushing her husband to carve himself a peacemaker's place in history.

Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson said his wife "has never suggested that I make an accommodation to the Soviet Union in order to win the Nobel Peace Prize." Robertson had the bad luck to take this potshot just as it was being announced that Mrs. Reagan faced surgery for breast cancer, but his candidacy survived.

On the Democratic side, Gary Hart waged an off-again, on-again campaign.

After being caught spending the weekend with a woman other than his wife, the ex-senator gave up the race May 8. But seven months later, as New Hampshire's primary neared, Hart jumped back into the crowded presidential field.

Sen. Joseph Biden dropped out of the Democratic race after some of his stirring oratory was traced to other politicians. Then another candidate, Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, parted company with a campaign aide caught leaking the truth about Biden's plagiarism.

With only 12 months to go to Election Day '88, the Los Angeles Times commissioned a poll that found readers were far more interested in the rescue of Jessica McClure than in the presidential race.

Polls said the damndest things. Another found that a big majority — 69 percent — was very concerned about the deficit. The solution, large majorities agreed, should not include either of the following: higher taxes or lower spending.

The year was marked by dozens of disasters, including the deaths of 389 in a Zambian barge sank and 180 in the sinking of an English Channel ferry. Plane crashes killed 180 in Warsaw, 159 aboard a South African airliner in the Indian Ocean, 156 in Detroit and 115 when a Korean jet disappeared over Burma, apparently in a terrorist act.

As the year's end drew near, a passenger ferry bound for Manila with 1,500 people aboard collided with an oil tanker. Both ships sank and initial reports said only about 30 people were rescued.

In California, a vengeful former airline employee was suspected of precipitating the crash of a Pacific Southwest Airlines flight that killed himself and 42 other people.

The 1987 story to vex the wisdom of Solomon was the Baby M custody case.

A judge decided the child belonged to its father, William Stern, who had hired Mary Beth Whitehead to bear his offspring. Mrs. Whitehead, who had started feeling like a mother instead of a hired hand, had battled to keep custody. As the case headed for appeal, she divorced her husband and married another man, by whom she again was pregnant.

In South Africa, 48-year-old Pat Anthony gave birth to triplets who were her own grandchildren: eggs taken from her daughter and inseminated by her son-in-law.

Paul Holt became the youngest heart transplant patient ever, receiving a new organ three hours after his birth at Loma Linda University Medical Center in California. The unknown heroes were the parents of Baby Gabrielle, a Canadian infant that developed without a brain but was carried to term to make organs available for transplants.

In the fight against the AIDS epidemic, researchers scored minor victories in 1987. Human testing began on a vaccine, and a drug treatment, AZT, went on sale. But it wasn't a cure, and more than 16,000 new cases were reported in the United States alone during the year, with thousands more worldwide.

The 200th anniversary of the Constitution passed with some practical lessons: the House-Senate hearings on the Iran-Contra affair and the debate over the nomination of Judge Robert Bork to the Supreme Court.

Reagan's nomination of Bork led to a great debate over the meaning and purposes of the Constitution, and the role of the courts in defining and protecting civil liberties. In another view, a mud-slinging lynch mob thwarted the will of the people.

Stung by defeat, the president promised to find another nominee "that they'll object to just as much."

Instead, he found Douglas Ginsburg, and the objections came from Republicans after the judge admitted to having sampled marijuana in earlier days.

The Iran-Contra committee's majority report concluded that a "cabal of zealots" had taken control of American foreign policy, dealing arms to Iran and using the profits — at least those that didn't find someone's pockets — to wage a forbidden war in Nicaragua.

There were many striking moments: Lt. Col. Oliver North lecturing the committee on patriotism; Adm. John Poindexter saying the buck stopped with him, not the commander in chief; retired Gen. Richard Secord explaining that 20 to 30 percent of the bucks stopped with him, because "this was a business, not a philanthropic undertaking."

Meanwhile, the American hostages in Lebanon, who inspired Washington's dealings with Iran, remained hostages. Terry Waite, the emissary of the Archbishop of Canterbury who sought to negotiate the hostages' release, became one himself.

As the war between Iran and Iraq dragged into its eighth year, the United States became more deeply involved in policing the Persian Gulf. A mistaken attack by an Iraqi fighter killed 37 sailors aboard the USS Stark on May 17. Reagan offered the nation's flag, and its protection, to Kuwaiti tankers, but attacks on shipping continued — more than 150 during the year.

War frustrated efforts to relieve hunger in Ethiopia, especially in the province of Eritrea where guerrillas attacked food convoys. In Central America, fighting sputtered on in El Salvador and Nicaragua despite the Central American peace plan.

In such war-weary corners of the globe, the superpower negotiations over nuclear weapons seemed beside the point.

"How welcome it would be if conventional weapons were treated with the same awe as the atom bomb," Arias said as he accepted the Peace Prize. "How welcome it would be if the killing of the many, little by little, every day, was considered just as outrageous as the killing of many all at once."

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My son will be receiving his college degree soon. I have saved all of the letters that he has written me the last four years and filed them in a loose-leaf notebook.

College students usually don't have time to keep a diary or even a reminder book. Now he will have a record of most of his experiences while going to college.

I hope that someday he will cherish this. — Kris, Buena Vista, Colo.

I'm sure he will! What a loving and considerate mom you are. Thanks so much for writing. — Heloise

CLIP CLOTHESPINS
Dear Heloise: We use the clip-type clothespins for many things besides the routine hanging of clothes on the clothesline.

They are easy to press open and easier than the twist-ties for small fingers to use.

They can be used to close bags — we twist the bag closed and then slip on a clothespin. They also work well on loaf of bread, buns, brown and powdered sugars, popcorn, donut bags. And these are just a few of the uses. — Diane Schlater, St. Paris, Ohio

OLD FUNNEL
Dear Heloise: Recently while cleaning out the garage I came across an old funnel and didn't want to throw it away.

Well, I repainted it and now I keep it in my kitchen for a handy twine holder. I placed the funnel over the ball of twine with the string strung through the spout.

Handy and recycled! — Betty Boswell, Memphis, Tenn.

FLAVORED WHIPPED CREAM
Dear Heloise: We love desserts in our home and I am always trying new things.

We enjoy cakes and pies with whipped cream on top of them. To make the whipped cream taste even better, I add a dash of cinnamon, nutmeg or allspice along with a little drop of vanilla.

It has a wonderful flavor! — R. R., Baton Rouge, La.

PLASTIC WRAP
Dear Heloise: I sure enjoy your household hints. Since I am always looking for ways to save money, I came across this idea.

When I was unwrapping single cheese slices, I noticed the plastic wrap that we all throw away. When I get ground beef I get a large amount and then make it into patties. I put the plastic from the cheese slices between the patties. They are just the right size. I use these instead of new plastic. Saves me a few pennies. — Oleta West, Boulder City, Nev.

Wild-card matchups attest to that fact

1987 NFL season was filled with surprises

By The Associated Press

That this was a year of surprises in the NFL is attested to by the quartet of teams playing on Sunday in the AFC and NFC wild-card games.

The Minnesota Vikings will travel to New Orleans to play the Saints, while the Seattle Seahawks will be in Houston to take on the Oilers.

New Orleans only finished second in its division, the NFC West, because the San Francisco 49ers have been awesome in recent weeks, finishing the regular season at 13-2. The Saints won their last nine games, finished with a 12-3 record — the first winning season in their 21-year history — and still came up with only a wild-card and the home field in the first round.

Jim Mora, the Saints' coach, said an emotional game on Sunday would not surprise him.

"It's the first playoff game in the history of this organization and the first time they (the Vikings) have been in the playoffs since 1982. There are 10 teams in the playoffs, and I would guess they'll all be emotional," he said. "The fact that it's a do-or-die situation — if they lose it, their season is over — may pick things up a little."

Minnesota made the playoffs despite losing its final regular-season game in overtime to the Washington Redskins and finishing at 8-7, second in the NFC Central, behind the Chicago Bears, 11-4.

To go any farther, the Vikings had to have help from the Dallas Cowboys on Sunday. They got it in the form of a 21-16 Dallas victory over St. Louis, which knocked the hopeful Cardinals out of postseason play.

On Saturday, after losing 27-24 to Washington, the Vikings left the field a broken, dejected team.

"Quite a few guys were outspoken about that we didn't deserve to be in the playoffs," Vikings quarterback Wade Wilson said after watching the Cardinals lose to Dallas on television. "But that was just some emotions going. I'm relieved and real excited."

The Vikings had one of the league's best records in non-strike games, 8-4. But its strike replacement team went 0-3 and the regular team lost three of its last four.

The Vikings needed the Cowboys to pick them up.

"They did us two favors," said Minnesota defensive coordinator Floyd Peters. "They lost to us (44-38 on Thanksgiving) and then they beat St. Louis for us. Thanks, Cowboys. It really is a crazy league."

Houston, playing in the tough AFC Central Division, began the season with few aspirations and, with a boost from a 2-1 replacement team during the early-season strike, made it to the playoffs for the first time since 1980.

The Oilers were 9-6, just behind division champion Cleveland, 10-5. Houston Coach Jerry Glanville didn't sleep much Sunday night after his team held off Cincinnati 21-17 to clinch its playoff berth.

Seattle also was 9-6 and second in its division, the AFC West, behind Denver, 10-4-1. But the Seahawks, unlike the other three wild-card teams, had every hope when the season began that they would not only be involved in post-season play, but would win their division.

Houston's victory and Seattle's 41-20 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs on Sunday cost the Seahawks the home-field in the first round and sent them limping into the playoffs.
