Williams stumbles over amendment; race growing close

DALLAS (AP) - Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams fielded many questions during two television interviews, but it was the one he couldn't answer that caused a stir.

Williams stumbled Tuesday when asked about the proposed constitutional amendment on next week's ballot that deals with Senate confirmation of appointments by a governor. The GOP candidate did not know what the amendment would do.

Democrat Ann Richards quickly said Williams' confusion bolstered her argument that Williams' isn't qualified to be governor. "This job is no place for on-the-job training, she said.

"Being the governor of Texas is not something that you just take as a crown to some other career," she said, adding that she voted for the measure. "Frankly, I am extremely surprised that someone who has set out to be governor of Texas would not even understand the constitutional amendment on the ballot," Richards

Meanwhile, a new poll published in today's editions of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram showed a close race. Williams had a 45 percent to 41 percent lead with 14 percent undecided according to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Gallup Texas

The survey showed that Richards has gained among those saying they are likely to vote. Each candidate had the support of 44 percent of that group, but Williams had a 10-point lead in a previous Star-Telegram Gallup Poll two weeks ago.

The telephone poll of 1,005 registered voters was conducted

Williams' stumble over the constitutional amendment came during an on-camera session with reporters at KERA-TV studios in Dallas. Williams said he was unfamiliar with the amendment, the only one on the ballot, and was unclear how he had voted on it.

Williams was interviewed for about 30 minutes by moderator Bob Ray Sanders and other Texas journalists. Panelist Wayne Slater of The Dallas Morning News asked Williams for his position on the amendment, Proposition 1.

'Now Prop. 1 is which, excuse me?" Williams asked.

Slater noted it was the only one on the ballot and dealt with when

November is going to be a busy month around Hereford, according to the activities already scheduled on the community calendar. A number of holiday "open house" programs are planned by local businesses Nov. 11. The Senior Citizen Association will hold its first Festival of Trees Nov. 15-18; The Brand will publish its annual Christmas Shopping edition Nov. 18; the annual Christmas Lighting Ceremony at the courthouse square is set Nov. 23, and the Chamber Fun Breakfast is scheduled Nov. 29.

And, that doesn't count the Thanksgiving holiday and other parties which will be held prior to Christmas!

The month gets underway, too, with the Herd's last regular-season home football game this Friday night against Amarillo Caprock. The Whitefaces end the regular season Nov. 9 at Borger and need to win both remaining games to assure themselves of a playoff berth. Be at the stadium Friday night to support the Ann, is it harmful to my son to see his sister scantily clad and nude, or is it beneficial to him, as Wanda seems to think? What, if anything, should I do or say? Thanks for your thoughts. -- D.R., Hartford, Conn.

DEAR HART: A 16-year-old boy these days knows darned well what a woman's body looks like. Wanda is out of line, and you should have no hesitation about setting her straight.

I suspect that your daughter may be feeling a bit unsure of herself and is testing her wow-power on her kid brother. You should make it abundantly clear that you will not tolerate any more nudity, seminudity or provocative shenanigans around the house and I urge you to be plenty tough about it.

How to cope with baby blues

The birth of a baby is a joyous dress each day so you feel better occasion for parents. But for many women, the initial excitement of motherhood is dampened by bouts of the blues. Mild postpartum blues, or baby blues, affect about 70 percent of women after childbirth. These feelings of sadness, anxiety and anger usually occur two to three days after delivery and subside within one to two weeks. Some women-about 10 percentsuffer from a more severe condition called postpartum depression, which lasts longer and is more intense than the blues. Postpartum depression often requires special counseling and

It is not really known why some women experience changing moods and behaviors following childbirth difficult time. Sometimes the doctor and others do not. One factor that may contribute to depression is the change in hormones following birth. The levels of the female hormones estrogen and progesterone drop sharply, which may contribute to depression, just as hormone changes before menstrual periods can cause moodiness.

Another factor in the development of depression or the blues is difficulty adjusting to a new lifestyle, especially when a woman has little support from a partner, relative or friends. Sometimes disappointment or disillusionment when another begins to face the reality of day-to-day mothering may contribute to depression. Feelings of doubt about a pregnancy and feelings of loss of freedom or of an old identity can also play a role.

If you find you are feeling sad or moody in the days or weeks following childbirth, there are some things you can do to help lift your spirits. First, be sure to take good care of yourself. Get enough rest, and shower and domestic violence affects older, primarily married women, 60 percent of women battered by their husbands say the violence began while they were dating their future husbands, says the Family Research Laboratory of the University of New Hampshire.

*How to stop violence before becoming a victim

Approximately one-third of all women under 20 experience violence in their dating relationships, according to a study conducted by Family Services of Philadelphia, a counseling center.

"Women should look for the warning signs of future violence while they're dating," says bebi Cain, spokesperson for the National Domestic Violence Hotline, which is funded by the SHELTER ATD-

"If their partners exhibit clusters of certain behaviors, they should proceed with caution before becoming more involved."

According to research compiled for a free booklet entitled "SHELTER AIDS'S Guide to Safe Relationships," studies have shown that abusive men commonly:

*Show extreme jealousy and possessiveness

*Switch from charm to anger without warning *Blame others for their actions

*Attempt to control partner's behavior

*Withdraw love, money or approval as punishment

*Undermine their partner's feelings or accomplishments

*Isolate their partners from friends and family

*May also have a problem with drugs or alcohol

Dr. Richard Gelles, sociology professor at the University of Rhode Island and author of "Intimate Violence," found that up to 67 percent of dating relationships involved some form of violence. According to referrals to over 1,200 domestic Gelles, the most common forms of violence shelters nationwide, as well abuse include pushes, slaps and as crisis intervention, advocacy and shoves-although victims may also other information.

Although many people believe that experience punches, kicks and beatings, sometimes quite severe.

'The saddest aspect of courtship violence is its acceptability," says Gelles. "Although moonlight cruises, flirtations and the first kiss are all part of the American way of dating, unfortunately, so are hitting, beating and abuse."

Fortunately, some women can see signs of their partner's abusive behavior while dating and escape before the wedding bells, preventing further trauma from occurring after they are married.

According to Dr. Angela Browne, a social psychologist and researcher at the University of New Hampshire's Family Research Laboratory, among a group of women who had killed their abusive partners, "in almost every case, the onset of physical warning signs present in the first stages of courtship.

Cain concurs with these findings. "One thing that almost everyone agrees on is that violence and abusive behavior only gets worse," says Cain. "Many women believe that, somehow, if they're patient, things will get better. But we've seen that violence only escalates in severity and frequency over time."

Herd breezes by Tornadoes in playoff

Hitting a Drooke brek brick wall

Brooke Seiver, left, and Brek Binder of the Hereford Lady Whitefaces get in the way of Kechia Mason's (34) spike attempt while Jayme Moore comes up from the back row for a possible dig during Tuesday's 14-16, 15-5, 15-6 win over Lamesa in a Class 4A Bi-District playoff at Lubbock.

By SAM WALLER Sports Editor

LUBBOCK--The third time proved to be the charm for the Hereford Lady Whiteface volleyball team Tuesday as the Herd picked up the first playoff win in school history over Lamesa in a Class 4A Bi-District match at Coronado High School.

The Lady Whitefaces bounced back from a first game that lived up to expectations of a meeting between the state's No. 1 (Lamesa) and No. 4 teams for a surprisingly easy 14-16, 15-5, 15-6 win in their third playoff appearance.

Lady Whiteface coach Brenda Reeh said getting the win was of more importance than knocking off the topranked Golden Tornadoes.

"Definitely it was getting that first playoff win," Reeh said. "When you get to this point in the season rankings don't mean very much, and I think we proved that.

"I think this is a major accomplishment for our program because this is the third time we've made the playoffs. Now we've advanced and I think that could give us the confidence we need to go even farther in the playoffs.

Reeh added that the key to the victory was how well the here executed its game plan.

"I think we executed our game plan to a tee," she said. "We felt we had to intimidate their big hitters and to do that we had to block well. We were able to keep getting a hand on their spikes and then were able to dig the ball out and keep it in play. By the third game I think we had them pretty frustrated and they started hitting the ball long or into the net.'

Reeh said the Tors hit the ball as hard, if not harder, than anyone the Hereford front line was able to handle the shots.

They hit it hard," she said but they hit it low to the net. All we had to do was get our hands up. They never outreached us the entire match. It doesn't matter how hard you hit it if you can't get it past the blockers."

Hereford was led at the service line by Brek Binder with 13 points while Shantel Cornelius and Robin White each served for 11.

Hereford was able to avoid the serving errors that plagued them in Saturday's district playoff against Dumas, having just four bad serves in 66 attempts for a .939 average. The team also produced seven aces in the

The Herd attack was led by Shantel Cornelius, who finished with a season-high 16 kills. Binder added seven kills for the Herd with Jennifer Hicks adding six and White four.

Cornelius said the Herd seemed to do better when matching Lamesa's hard-hitting attack rather than going with dinks and soft spikes.

"At the beginning we tried hitting hard," she said. "Then we tried dinking it across, but we got called for carrying, so we had to go back to the hard hits and they fell.'

Cornelius added that the win was something the entire program had worked to attain.

"This was really a team effort," she said, "and not from just the players and coaches. The trainers and managers are a part of it, too. They don't get a lot of notice, but they put in a lot of hard work and are just as much a part of the team as anyone on the floor.

The Hereford defense also had a hand in the win as the back row dug out 45 Lamesa spike attempts. Binder led with 10 digs while White had nine, Teresa Baker six and Jayme Moore and Cornelius five each.

Baker said having a hitter like Cornelius to practice against made a difference in handling Lamesa's

We get a lot of work against Herd has faced this year, but the Shantel in practice," she said, "and that made it easier. We just had to get down as low as we could to make sure we were under their hits.

"We're also more comfortable playing together back there now. We've been together long enough that things are starting to come together." (See SPIKERS, Page 5)

Johnson: Dallas could be better Pardee ready

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Jimmy Johnson has equaled Tom Landry's 1988 victory total but isn't boasting about it. In fact, the second-year coach for the Dallas Cowboys said the first half of the season should have been a lot better.

"Record-wise I would have liked to have seen us better, but I feel good about the team the way it is right now," Johnson said Tuesday. "We're not that far off."

The Cowboys finished the first eight games 3-5, including a 21-20 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday on a last-second touchdown pass by Randall Cunningham.

In Johnson's rookie season as coach in the NFL after national championship success at the University of Miami, he was 1-15.

The Cowboys travel to the Meadowlands to face the New York Jets on Sunday and Johnson is worried.

"It's important that we pick up the pace and not linger on the Eagles," Johnson said. "New York has the same record we have but they also have the fourth-best rushing team in the league. We're a bigger underdog to the Jets than we were the Eagles so the challenge is bigger."

Oddsmakers established the Jets, fresh off a come-from-behind 17-12 victory over the Houston Oilers in the Astrodome, as 4-point favorites.

Dallas was a field goal underdog to Philadelphia.

"The Jets are a very aggressive team," Johnson said. "I did not expect what I saw on tape. The Jets are good."

Johnson said before his sophomere season in the NFL started that he wouldn't be happy unless the Cowboys were over .500 when the season ended. He said the team can still make it with steady improve-

"I'd like for us to show a more what we can do offensively," Johnson said. "We've been inconsistent at times."

Dallas has the second-worst offense in the NFL with only 1,895 yards. Indianapolis is the worst with 1,771 yards.

"We've got a new system to a lot of players who weren't in quarterback school or training camp," Johnson said. "It's just a matter of getting them going. We had three motion penalties last week and they were all on players who weren't with us in quarterback school or training camp. All I know is that we are a much better football team right now then where we started this year.'

Dallas and the Jets play at 1 p.m. in Giants Stadium. The Cowboys have never lost to the Jets, holding a 4-0 record including a 38-24 victory in 1987 with replacement players during the strike.

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston against the Jets but it hasn't made him feel better this week.

Klingler takes SWC honor

Houston quarterback David Klingler is trying to follow in the footsteps of 1989 Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware in every way but one - he plans to return for his senior year with the Klingler watched from the sidelines last year as Ware's record season ended with a Heisman Trophy and a first-round selection by the Detroit Lions, although he had one year of college eligibility remaining.

"I've got more to come back for than Andre did," Klingler said. "We can go undefeated next year and we can play in a bowl."

NCAA probation will keep the Cougars out of a bowl game this year. Now it's Klingler who's setting the records, including last week when he threw seven touchdown passes and

HOUSTON (AP) - University of had 473 total yards in a 62-28 victory over two-time defending Southwest Conference champion Arkansas.

Ware also announced he would return for his senior before he was drafted by the Lions.

"But Andre took care of his teammates because he knew that I was ready," Klingler said. "Right now we've got a lot of young (quarterback) talent and I'd like to give them a chance to sit back and learn for a couple of years the way I

Klingler set six NCAA records two weeks ago in a 44-17 victory over Southern Methodist and last week's seven touchdown passes tied the conference mark Ware set last year.

Klingler also tied an NCAA record with his sixth 400-yard passing performance of the season. He shares that mark with Ware and Brigham Young's Jim McMahon.

The same fanfare that followed Ware as the records mounted last season is starting to catch up with Klingler and the comparisons are starting to increase.

Klingler has completed 234 of 410 passes for 2,990 yards, 27 touchdowns and nine interceptions. Through seven games last year, Ware completed 221 of 354 passes for 2,936 yards, 30 touchdowns and 10 nterceptions.

"I'm not feeling the pressure from that yet," Klingler said. "We go to practice every day and go through the same routine we've done a million times. There's no pressure in that.

The way the line is blocking and the receivers are getting open, it takes away any pressure. All I have to do is throw the ball."

Texas A&M junior Kevin Smith won the defensive honor for the second time after intercepting two passes in a 41-15 victory over Rice, giving him a career theft total of 18. tying the SWC record shared by Southern Methodist's Russell Carter and Texas Christian's Ronald Fraley.

Smith returned both of his thefts against Rice for touchdowns of 35 and 78 yards, giving him a SWC record-tying three career touchdown interception returns, a mark held by Houston's Johnny Jackson and Cornelius Price.

Bart Jarratt completed 12 of 16 passes for 209 yards and four touchdowns, all to Greg Gartrell in a 35-0 victory over Wink. The touchdowns went for 44, 28, 11 and 49 yards.

Gartrell caught eight passes for 185 yards. He also picked off three interceptions as a defender. He returned one for a touchdown, but it was nullified by a penalty. Ervin Yates of Victoria scored on long-range touchdown runs of 45, 58, 66, 63 and gained 312 yards on 13 carries in a 33-7 victory over Corpus

Laredo Martin's Juan Bloomer caught 14 passes for 219 yards and touchdowns of 14 and 33 yards and sophomore quarterback Juan Esparza completed 29 of 46 passes for 375 yards and three touchdowns in a

26-21 victory over Eagle Pass. Arturo Padilla caught an 11-yard touchdown

In other outstanding performances: -Warren's Brian Balla had a four-touchdown performance in a 68-0 victory over Deweyville. He rushed 102 yards on seven carries and touchdowns of 12, 38 and 12 yards and returned an interception 40 yards for a touchdown.

-West Orange S'ark's Tim Allen scored on runs of 6, 13, 74, 1 and 6 yards and gained 208 yards on 20 carries in a 57-6 victory over Little Cypress-Mauriceville.

-Olton running back Duane Wilborn rushed 214 yards on 27 carries and scored on runs of 56 and 3 yards in a 36-0 victory over Lockney.

-Gruver's Dan McCloy had five 1-yard touchdown runs in a 34-15 victory over Memphis. He rushed for 166 yards on 42 carries.

Knight, O'Brien elected to hoops Hall of Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) -Although Indiana coach Bob Knight and former NBA commissioner Larry O'Brien said they didn't want to be a part of the basketball Hall of Fame, they were among 12 candidates nominated this year

O'Brien, who died on Sept. 27, withdrew his name from consideration last year in protest of the hall's secret elections.

Knight asked that he not be considered for renomination after he failed to be elected in 1987. At the time, he called it a "slap in the face."

Knight said through a spokesman being nominated again and would have no comment.

"if an individual is worthy of nomination to this prestigious honor, Houston 113-104. that person's name and qualifications honors committee.'

"The guts of it is that history should be reported in its true form," Kurland said. "Both these guys are deserving of being recognized under the standards of the Basketball Hall of Fame. I don't know how they are going to come out in the voting by the of Fame and would consider election honors committee, but they are a high honor, but I'm a guy who certainly deserving to be nominated. You can't deny history.'

To be elected to the hall, nominees need 18 votes from the honors committee in its balloting next spring. Enshrinement ceremonies are scheduled for May 13 in this city, where the game began nearly 100 years ago.

Renominated as players were Nate Archibald, Dave Cowens, Bob Lanier, John Kerr, Calvin Murphy and Nera White, a women's Amateur Athletic Union star.

In addition to Knight, Jack Hartman, the winningest coach in Kansas State history, was nominated for the fourth time and Jack Ramsay, one of the most successful coaches in NBA history, for a second time.

The late Larry Fleisher, who founded the NBA Players Association in 1962, was the only new name on the list. In addition to O'Brien, the late Carol Eckman, who organized the Tuesday that he was unaware he was first national college tournament for women in 1969, was also nominated.

The names were announced at But Hall of Fame president Bob halftime of the NBA's Hall of Fame Kurland said the trustees decided that exhibition game between Detroit and Houston. The Pistons defeated O'Brien, whose long political will be submitted to the 24-member career included being an adviser to President Kennedy and national Democratic Party chairman, said before his death that he had tried unsuccessfully to make the election process public during his two terms as Hall of Fame president.

Kurland said Hall of Fame trustees decided to make some changes in the Hall of Fame voting at their meetings Tuesday, but the names of the honors committee and its vote will remain

The National League manager of the year will be announced today.

Torborg is the second White Sox manager to win the honor. La Russa got it with Chicago in 1983, the first year the award was given.

Until last year, no AL manager had won the award without winning a division championship. But Frank Robinson won last season after turning the Baltimore Orioles from a last-place team into a contender, and Torborg, who inspired his club this year with comparisons to the Orioles, did nearly the same thing.

"I don't like to set numerical goals, and I didn't do it in spring training," he said. "Instead, we talked about taking them one-by-one, playing each game like it was the World Series. We won on opening day at home, then won the next game in Milwaukee, and we started to believe we could do it."

Torborg, 49 next month, was hired by the White Sox after they went 71-90 under Jim Fregosi in 1988. In his first year with Chicago, Torborg's team slipped two games.

Torborg managed Cleveland for parts of the 1977-79 seasons, going 157-201 with the Indians. He was a coach for the New York Yankees for 10 years and spent 1988 as their bullpen coach.

Torborg was a catcher in the majors for 10 years, mostly with Los Angeles. He caught no-hitters by Sandy Koufax, Nolan Ryan and Bill Singer, one short of the major-league mark of four no-hitters caught by Ray

Last week, Torborg was selected the AP Manager of the Year for both leagues in voting by sportswriters and broadcasters.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have severe one else, or can you contact it from ing disease and my doctor advised exposure to weather — cold or wet? lung disease and my doctor advised me to get my flu shot each year. I understand that flu shots have some severe side effects, such as causing some people to have strokes. Will you please give me some information as to how dangerous flu shots might be

I have taken flu shots each year for the past five years and I have not had any problems from the shots that I know about. I'm 74 years old and now I am undecided as to whether I should continue to take flu shots or not.

Also, do you catch flu from some-

DEAR READER: Better get your flu shot. There are a very few people who are allergic to the shot and in the past there have been a few who developed some changes in the nerves to their body, but that is rare compared to the risk of getting the flu. You are definitely in the high-risk category because of both your lung disease and your age. Influenza and pneumonia caused 70,000 deaths in the United States in 1985 and in years when there is a flu epidemic, the death rate is even higher. The flu virus changes its characteristics each year so you need an annual flu shot.

I think everyone who does not have a medical contraindication to having flu shot should have one. Why? Because it is such a dangerous disease and the risk of the shot is minimal. Also, if the population at large were all vaccinated, the risk of an epidemic would be almost nil. The fewer cases that exist, the less likely that it can be spread. That would help prevent the influenza in a lot of people who are not well enough to withstand an episode of flu.

While the flu viruses may thrive in the viruses that cause it. It is a communicable disease. I have discussed flu, prevention and treatment along with the CDC recommendations for who needs a shot in Special Issue 34-08, Colds, Flu and Pneumonia, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/34-08, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908. You need your shot now to build up your immunity before the flu season strikes.

DEAR DR. LAMB: What is overbre-

cold weather, it is not the weather but athing alkalosis? My feet get numb, especially last summer when working in the garden, which I love to do. I feel dizzy at times. My hands also get numb like I had kept them in a certain position too long. I'd like to help myself without going through the pill mill. I am 77 years old and in good health, except for this problem. Could it be a sensitive nerve in the neck

DEAR READER: Your body has a very critical ratio of acid to base (alkali). It is maintained in part by the amount of carbonic acid in your body. Carbonic acid breaks down to water dioxide is exhaled from your lungs. If you overbreathe, called hyperventilation, you will break down too much carbonic acid and have too much alkali for the carbonic acid - called alkalosis. It can produce tingling in the hands, arms and numbness of the face. It can cause dizziness or even fainting. The best management when it occurs is to take only slow shallow breaths to allow the carbonic acid evel to buildup.

Congress authorized the office of postmaster-general in 1789.

What Is A Town? A town is a group of people.

It is schools.

It is museums.

It is churches.

It is industry and jobs.

It is retail businesses.

They all have to work together. All must have the support of the people. Or there is no town.

Give your local businessman a chance to work with you on your business. You shouldn't spend your hard earned money with him unless his selection is adequate and his price competitive. But give him the first opportunity to make the sale.

The local businessman pays the highest percentage of local taxes. He most often is the civic leader who dedicates his time and talents to his town. He is contacted first for contributions to charitable projects. He provides jobs. Without his business firm you have no town.

Park Avenue Center filling void in family recreation

Tracy, Glenda Minson moved bowling alley here year ago; say community support vital

By ORVILLE HOWARD Special Feature Writer

Once in a great while there comes a couple like Tracy and Glenda Minson who stake it all on a single

The playing field is the agricultural hub of Hereford - the game is a family business in the form of family

The Minsons call it Park Avenue one of Hereford's newest business ventures which caters to the young and the old from all walks of life.

In addition to 10 bowling lanes and a professionally-designed, nine-hole minigolf course, the family-operated center is decked out with a sizable arcade for the young at heart, an automated basketball goal for confident sharpshooters and a special area of pool tables designed for both the beginners and back-stretching table

Though family entertainment is the name of the game at this Park Avenue center, the Minsons have tossed in a menu to take care of little hunger pains and thirsty palates. A fully-equipped restaurant fills much of the entrance lobby, a line of colorful dining tables at the rear of the bowling section allows spectator participation, sort of a mini-grandstand for non-players. The restaurant area is also furnished with a full-length snackbar but don't go looking for alcoholic beverages there's not any and there won't be any.

The Minsons opened Park Avenue Bowling exactly one year ago this month, and if business during the past year may be used as a yardstick, the Justin Minson .

Hereford's new business couple will be around for many seasons.

The first year was not what you'd Bowling and Miniature Golf Center, call great, but it was good when all things considered," said Tracy Minson, who owns and operates the bowling center with his wife, Glenda. "However, we have found out that there definitely is a need for both, vouth and adult entertainment in Hereford and we're trying to fill a part of that need."

In relating to the high mortality rate of new businesses in small towns, Minson went straight to the heart of the matter--"If Hereford people will patronize Hereford businesses, then Hereford will be in good shape economically for a long time to come."

Minson, however, didn't present a one-sided picture of local business:

"By the same measure, Hereford businesses, whether it's an entertainment center such as ours or a downtown retail store, must be

The Minsons are no strangers to family entertainment, having been in the bowling business for more than a decade. But their family roots are far removed from Hereford - Glenda comes from a pioneer farming family of Western Oklahoma and Tracy was reared in Phoenix where his father is in the construction business.

We had operated a bowling house down at Hobart, Ok., back in 1979 and in 1985 we moved it to Mangum, OK., which is the hometown of my wife. My wife's parents were the principal owners in both places and when the oil business in Oklahoma began to decline, we began looking for another Minson pointed out that making a permanent move from Mangum was no easy matter, with his wife having Players also have access to individual had family ties in Western Oklahoma dating back to Territorial days. But by 1988 the oilpatches were getting pretty patchy and dryland agriculture was taking a beating in the form of low commodity prices to the farmers - the two major industries of Western Oklahoma.

Minson and his wife first looked at Vernon, a rather prosperous agricultural town down south of the Red River, but then a friend in the carnival business told them of Hereford.

"As a matter of fact, we were just about ready to make a move to Vernon when our friend told how he thought we should take a look at Hereford before making a decision," said Minson, "And so we did."

During 1988, the Minson couple made numerous trips to Hereford in sizing up the economic atmosphere of the Deaf Smith County area. They talked very little and listened a lot -and they liked what they heard ... positive progress on the bottomline. But making a permanent move crosscountry with a family business takes a lot of grit and grind at the financial end. It also puts a pretty heavy burden on each member of the family. And in this case, it was Tracy, Glenda and their two sons, Shawn and Justin.

In the spring of 1989, the Minsons decided to go for it all the way -- move the entire bowling center at Mangum some 200 miles to the west to Hereford. Unlike many businesses which can be packed up in boxes, bowling centers require a vast amount of mechanical and physical effort, along with moving large sections of

"It was quite a job getting it all here in good shape," recalled Minson. "As you well know, we first had to break it all down, move it cross-country then put it back together..a lot of work."

Minson first elected to locate at a local shopping mall but when leasing arrangements became bogged down in legal redtape, he changed his mind and picked the current location on West Park Avenue adjacent to a supermarket complex: "We really like it here on Park Avenue. It has easy access from all parts of town, lots of parking space for our customers and about 15,000 square feet under roof."

But picking the right location was just the first move....the second was dividing 15,000 square feet of floor space into an attractive entertainment center.

However, the Minson couple were fortunate enough to have a tight network of family ties--the Ken Reynolds from Glenda's side of the house on the bowling end and Bob Minson of Phoenix coming in on the construction end of the new venture.

'My Dad (Bob Minson) came out here from Phoenix and stayed for three months building the partitions and getting all of the bowling lanes set just right, said Minson, as he recalled the summer of 1989." "We wanted him to stay and help us run the business but he thought he needed to go back to Phoenix to his construction work."

The empty building on Park Avenue slowly took on new life during the summer of 1989. Bowling lanes came first, a fully-automated pin-setter system billed as the finest in the business. score-card readouts on overhead screens, allowing everyone in the playing team or restaurant area to easily see what each player has scored. In addition to the electronically-automated setting, scoring and return system, the entire player area has a Space Age look of the 1990s...los of chrome and polished vinyl.

Individual lockers are available for the frequent bowlers, located in the spacious visiting lobby directly behind the lanes. Immediately to the left of the main entrance, an arcade section beckons to the small-fry and a few adults who can't resist temptations of the video world ... everything from the "Turtles" who ride herd on law and order to the "Roadbuster" that takes players on spine-tingling rides in the fast lanes.

At the far side of the center, a minigolf course is strategically layed out in an elongated fairway that runs the full length of the bowling lanes. The golf course is completely partitioned from the bowling lanes, allowing for concentration for the serious-minded golfers.

The business offices of the business are located side-by-side with the restaurant service and cooking area, of the whole shebang.

Operating an entertainment center, such as the Minsons', sounds like a funfest holiday for the operators, but the surface side of the business is somewhat removed from the business side of bowling...long hours, tight management and lots of cash up front.

"We have to take in at least $10,000 every month for just maintenance and operating expenses," said Minson, pointing out that in essence, the first 10 grand every month goes right back

Operational equipment alone for the Park Avenue Bowling Center normally would cost in excess of $300,000, but as in the Minson case, the couple already owned about half of the investment as result of the past 10 years' in the business in Oklahoma. Thus, the move to Hereford took about another $150,000 to put the business in motion, a rather sizable stake for this young family coming straight off the banks of the Washita.

When I got out of high school in when I got out of high school in the 1970s, the oil boom was really moving good in Oklahoma so I left. Phoenix to go to work in the oilpatch," said Minson, in recalling his move to the Oklahoma oilfields. "I made some real good money working on the oil rigs and that's when I met Glenda."

Minson recalled how he stashed much of his oilpatch earnings into

savings and when the opportunity arose in every Main Street business in

We hated to move because that's where all of Glenda's folks had been for years and years, but we had to take an honest evaluation at our own family and do what was best for them. Hopefully, our move to Hereford will prove to have been a good one."

"It takes a lot of work and money to make something like this go, and we would like to say to the people of Hereford that we appreciate their participation to help us keep it in Hereford," Minson added. "We really like this size of town and we couldn't find a better spot than Hereford as far as the need is concerned."

Minson recalled how he and his wife in the beginning travelled "all over town looking for recreational facilities and we found that Hereford didn't have any except for the golf course and a small arcade.' Outside of private or membership clubs and the tax-supported school and outh centers, Minson said he found little or no entertainment for both, the youth and the adults in Hereford ... "We found a real need here and that's why we picked Hereford over Vernon."

But despite the so-called "need," Minson was fully aware of trackrecords of past bowling centers in the Hereford area, learning that there had been at least two bowling operations failed -- following the same financial route as ones in Friona and Dimmitt.

"But for some reason, we still liked what we saw in Hereford and staked everything we had in this recreational center," Minson said, while voicing a positive attitude on the future Deaf Smith County Hub.

Minson said that during extensive interviews of the general Hereford population in 1988-89, they found that most Hereford residents were going to Amarillo or Clovis for their evening and night-time entertainment --"Hopefully, we can turn some of this around and keep some of the entertainment business in Hereford."

Park Avenue Bowling is open seven afternoons and evenings. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays are held open for the general walk-in bowlers, with only a couple or so league events scheduled on weekends. One of these is a youth league that plays on Sunday afternoons and a mixed-doubles scheduled for Sunday nights.

"We always keep plenty of room The easy pace of pool-shooters is for the occasional bowlers during the a world of its own, and so it is over at weekends," said Minson. "We schedule Park Avenue. An area designed most of the team events Monday especially for pool is located at the end through Thursday. We have three of the restaurant snack bar, equipped ladies' leagues which run through the with three tables and score tabulators. week, along with two men's leagues and two mixed leagues."

Saturday night is casino bowl, a time when colored pins are placed at with a walk-up customer service random in the line-up, with various counter pinpointed right in the middle colors representing various amounts colors representing various amounts of cash for the strike-busters..."This bowling for cash on Saturday night has worked very well--the players like it."

In less than a year, Park Avenue Bowl has become headquarters for eight adult leagues and one youth league. All leagues bowl on designated schedules during the evening and night-time hours, with most having a local business or company as sponsors. The end results are lots of fun, big trophies and tough competition in the fast lanes. As one example, Poarch Brothers, Inc., has two teams. Women run three to a team, men have five and mixed groups have four to a team. A player must be 18 to participate in the adult teams. Otherwise, there is no age limit to Park Avenue bowling. The charge is $1.90 per game for adults and $1.50 per game of this size.

for the youth. Just because Hereford leans heavily to the slower pace of country life in business don't take it for granted that this pace is the same in the fast lanes at Park Avenue Bowl...Minson says there's some mighty good bowlers coming out of the countryside.

John Elliott, who works at Sugarland Feedyard, is now holding the top individual game score at Park Avenue with a 299, only one point from a perfect score..."John is just a good ole boy who loves to bowl and I'm here to tell you he's a pretty sharp bowler."

Fred Morris, who farms about 30 miles northwest of Hereford, is now holding top place in a three-game scries with a total score of 747. Morris and his wife are frequent visitors to Park Avenue Bowl--"We get a lot of bowlers the feedyards and a number from Friona and Dimmitt."

customers are from middle-class income families-"most are working people who work all day and come out here and bowl at night ... really a great bunch of people."

The son of Joan and Bob Minson of Phoenix, Minson was born in St. Louis, Mo., but grew up in Arizona. He graduated from Tolleson High School in Phoenix in 1976 and a short time later moved to Oklahoma to join the oil boom.

A daughter of Ken and Lois Reynolds

the U.S. Air Force, but when her father retired, they returned to the family roots in Western Oklahoma. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlen Reynolds, still reside in Mangum where they have spent a lifetime in farming. He is still active in farming at the age of 84.

Minson pointed out that the breakeven point in the Hereford bowling operation is realistic only with owner participation..."You couldn't do it if you stayed home and let someone else run it...just wouldn't work in a town

But if you want to get out and go to work every day and enjoy working with the public, then it's a good life," said Glenda Minson, who works sideby-wide with Tracy in day-to-day operations. "We do it all, you know, like janitor work, bookkeeping and keeping the bowling machinery repaired and in good working condition. Shawn and Justin also help out a lot after school and on week-

In addition to the family participa-tion, the Minsons employee three extra persons. Theresa Medrano is in charge

Minson noted that the first year in Hereford has not been exactly a great ear -- "More like a good year. But I'm a survivor. We're here to offer safe, clean entertainment for the family from far out in the country, many from and that's exactly what Hereford will get as long as we're here."

"We had a few problems wi Minson said that most of his first opened but when folks found out that we won't stand for no nonsense, things levelled off real good," Minson

"I've heard lots of talk around town about how Hereford people need to shop Hereford, but I'm here to tell you it is a two-way street...Hereford businesses need to also work with the people in services and prices.

Using this concept of business as our guidelines, we're going to give of Mangum, Glenda followed her parents Hereford the best we have and all we across the world for some 22 years in want is their acceptance."
