City okays test holes

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

In an effort to boost the city's water supply, the Hereford City Commission accepted the low bid Monday night to drill two test holes for water in the 100 block of Avenue C and at 15th Street and Avenue H.

The commission awarded the bid to Water Industries for $4,680. The other bid was from Wall & Sons Drilling Inc., which bid $5,130 for the two test holes.

"We're not overly optimistic about hitting water on Avenue C, but if we do hit water there, that's where we're gonna need it the most," said City Manager Darwin McGill.

McGill stated that the heaviest concentration of water is located around Avenue C and the current water wells in that area are not pumping water at a sufficient rate.

"We currently have 28 wells feeding off the Ogalalla Aquifer and they're all shallow wells. We hope to tap into the Santa Rosa Aquifer at Avenue C and produce a second water source. But, of course, the Santa Rosa is much deeper so that means we must drill deeper," stated McGill.

If the 900-foot test hole at Avenue C taps into enough water, the city could save a considerable amount of money because the water lines already exist from the current water wells and installation would be unnecessary, McGill added.

The commissioners also awarded a used bulldozer bid to West Texas Equipment Company for $44,000.

The $55,000 allotted for a sanitation truck in this year's budget will instead be spent of the used bulldozer, said McGill.

Yellowhouse Machinery Company also submitted a $60,950 bid.

The Hereford Police Department can expect new blue uniforms soon after the commission awarded a $7,134.50 bid to Daco in Lubbock to furnish the uniforms.

The price includes three complete changes with one extra shirt and the uniforms will be replaced as they wear out.

The department currently wears green uniforms which the officers pay for themselves out of a monthly allowance from the city.

The commissioners also voted to change a motel, motor court, motor lodge or tourist court zone at Avenue A and Grand Avenue to a restricted commercial retail district.

"If anyone (in the surrounding area within 200 feet) were objecting to the change, I think I'd probably decline changing it," stated Commissioner Bud Eades. However, 20 letters were sent to surrounding residents, and no protests were voiced.

The commissioners also changed a multi-family, apartment or condominium district at 511 W. Fifth St. to a restricted commercial retail district, and five buildings in the 600 block of 13th Street were condemned.

Rains hit, and miss, area

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

There's still no drought in Deaf Smith County, but people are getting their buckets-full of rains at different times in the area.

Saturday, it looked like a deluge was headed for Hereford, but it never showed up. Instead, the storm spent its rain in the western half of the county, with Hereford getting just a trace.

Monday, a narrow line of storms moved from northwest to southeast, and Hereford was in their path, getting .96 inch of official rain at KPAN, the National Weather Service reporting station for Hereford.

Some folks missed out on Monday's rain altogether.

"It didn't rain a bit out here Monday," an unidentified person at the county barn at Bootleg said. "But we got an inch and a half Saturday afternoon when y'all didn't get anything in town."

Officially, Hereford picked up a trace Saturday.

Monday, the storms began moving through the city shortly after 3 p.m. The rain was heavy for a few minutes, then would slack to a sprinkle, then pour again for a few minutes. That cycle was repeated for about two hours.

Northwest Grain at Milo Center reported 1.2 inch of rain Monday. A spokesman there said he drove "a few miles west and it didn't rain much, and about halfway between here (Milo Center) and Hereford, they were cultivating."

At Easter Grain, 10 miles south of Hereford, the rain was heavier:

1.9 inch on Monday evening.

East of town, at Dawn, the rain was lighter. J.E. McCabe said they received .30 inch Monday night, and another .10 inch this morning.

Forecasts are calling for a 50-50 chance of thunderstorms tonight, with locally heavy rains possible. A cold front slowly pushing its way through the region and an adequate moisture supply are the rain-causing factors, NWS officials said.

The moment of truth

John David Bryant begins to cringe just as his seat falls out from under him at the dunking board at last week's Hereford Lions Club summer carnival. Bryant, the club's carnival chairman, had promised to ride the board if the club could come up with a large enough donation. Those proceeds, along with other carnival proceeds, will go to help local Lions Club projects.

Richards barbecues Bush

ATLANTA (AP) — Democratic keynoter Ann Richards drew laurels — and laughter — for a speech that used an easy, homey tone and wicked humor to talk about what the Democrats can do for American families and what the Republicans have not.

"This Republican administration treats us as if we were pieces of a puzzle that can't fit together," the Texas state treasurer said in her Monday night speech that departed in style and tone from the traditional stemwinder that opens political conventions.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, whose Democratic keynote address four years ago propelled him to hero status in the Democratic Party, called Ms. Richards' effort "great," adding: "She lit their fuse tonight."

Ms. Richards, who is Texas' state treasurer and a 54-year-old divorced mother of four grown children, saved her most pointed quips for Vice President George Bush, the GOP presidential nominee-to-be.

The Omni audience interrupted the speech at least 50 times with applause and laughs. Afterward, delegates said they were taking their favorite Richards' lines home with them.

"George Bush is going to live for a long, long time with a silver foot in his mouth. That one will stick," said delegate Florence Peterson of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The "silver foot" line, an instant classic among delegates, was interrupted twice in the midst of it and ended with a roaring response from delighted delegates.

"Poor George," Ms. Richards said, grinning broadly. "He can't help it. He was born with a silver foot in his mouth."

Bush was barbecued early and often by the treasurer from the state where he has a Houston hotel suite (See RICHARDS, Page 2)

Perot waging war for Medicaid contract

DALLAS (AP) — Billionaire H. Ross Perot is waging a bidding war for a lucrative Medicaid contract, taking on the company he founded and steered to a huge share of the automated health services market.

Electronic Data Systems won the contract in 1976, helping to establish its reputation nationwide. The contract, which expires August 1989, is being contested for the first time since EDS won it after an often publicly bitter battle with Bradford National Corp. in the early 1980s.

J. Livingston Kosberg, chairman of the board of the Texas Human Services Department, said that the department had not expected another qualified bidder and had begun negotiating with EDS on the financial terms of the pact, until Perot Systems Corp. entered the picture.

"We certainly will be there and will bid," EDS spokesman Roger Still said. "We look at this as a competitor and will treat them as a competitor."

"These are two giants fighting it out, and we just don't want to get hit by a flying missile," said Donald Kelley, deputy commissioner for Texas' health-care services. "This is strictly a win-lose situation. Somebody is going to win, and somebody is going to lose."

Under the pact — EDS assumes data-processing and administrative responsibility for more than $800 million in the state's Medicaid program — EDS could net close to $7 million depending in part on performance.

Perot founded EDS in 1962 and sold the firm to GM in 1984. In December 1986, after highly-publicized conflict between Perot and GM, Perot and three other top EDS executives left the computer services company when GM agreed to pay them $850 million.

that he calls home.

"I am delighted to be here with you this evening because after listening to George Bush all these years I figured you needed to know what a real Texas accent sounds like," Ms. Richards, who plans a 1990 race for Texas governor, said in an opening line that quickly got the crowd on its feet.

Ms. Richards was emotional, too. She talked about a woman from Lorena, Texas who had written her a letter that complained that life has become difficult despite a family income of about $50,000.

"I believe people like us have been forgotten in America," the mother of three said in her letter.

"Of course you believe you're being forgotten. Because you have been," Ms. Richards said, blaming the Reagan administration.

She excited both major factions at the convention by heaping praise on presidential nominee-to-be Michael Dukakis and runner-up Jesse Jackson.

The "Jesse, Jesse" chant rang out after Ms. Richards called him "a leader and a teacher who can open our hearts and minds and stir our very souls."

Dukakis backers chanted "Duke, Duke," when Ms. Richards said the best traditions of straight-talking Democrats "live today in Michael Dukakis."

And she had warm words for another Texan, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Dukakis' designated running mate. "He knows how to bring us together by region, by economics, by example," she said of Bentsen. "And he's already beaten George Bush once."

Bentsen defeated Bush in a 1970 U.S. Senate race.

Cease-fire agreeable for Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of an end to the Iran-Iraq war is raising the possibility that the United States will be able to reduce its military presence in the Persian Gulf, administration officials say.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater alluded to that possibility Monday after Iran agreed to accept a United Nations resolution calling for a cease-fire in its eight-year war with Iraq.

"We have always said that as hostilities end and as the war ends, we were willing to consider a withdrawal," Fitzwater told reporters in Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is on a weeklong vacation.

Undersecretary of State Michael Armacost spoke in a similar vein last week when he said the U.S. presence will revert to more "normal and traditional levels" as tensions in the area abate.

It was just a year ago this week that the U.S. Navy began escorting Kuwaiti tankers operating as American flag vessels in the gulf, the key element of what has been a substantial U.S. military buildup in the waterway.

According to official figures, the number of U.S. military personnel in the region has increased from 2,000 to more than 15,000, while Navy ships now total 27, compared with six less than three years ago.

The deployment has stirred intense controversy in Congress and elsewhere, particularly after the extensive loss of lives in two instances of mistaken identity. When an Iraqi jet fired on the USS Stark in May 1987, 37 U.S. servicemen were killed. And 290 passengers died on July 3 when a U.S. warship shot down an Iranian civilian aircraft.

As a show of regret, Iraq offered to pay compensation following the Stark incident, and the United States did the same after the downing of the Iranian plane.

The American commitment to the gulf has been costly in other ways. The deployment has forced the United States to postpone ship overhauls and to reduce some forces normally assigned elsewhere, including Western Europe.

Both Fitzwater and State Department deputy spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley called the Iranian acceptance of the U.N. resolution a "major breakthrough" that opens the way for an end to what has been the longest running large-scale war of the 20th century.

They also said the Iranian decision could restore stability to the gulf region.

But Fitzwater said U.S. officials "don't have a reading with any real definition" on Iran's intentions, and he cautioned that ending the war "is not going to occur overnight."

An end to the conflict would remove one of three impediments to a more normal relationship between the United States and Iran.

First Abilene Bankshares reports 7 percent rise in earnings over '87

First Abilene Bankshares, Inc. reported consolidated earnings of $1,289,588 for the quarter ended June 30, 1988, a 7 percent increase compared to the second quarter last year.

The Abilene-based holding company is the parent company of First National Bank of Abilene, Bank of Commerce of Abilene, Hereford State Bank of Hereford, First National Bank of Sweetwater, and Eastland National Bank, Eastland.

Earnings for the six-month period ended June 30, 1988, were $2,503,871, slightly below the year-to-date earnings of $2,509,582 realized in the same period in 1987. Earnings per share in the second quarter of this year were 60 cents, up 9 percent over the 55 cents recorded in the second quarter of 1987, and were $1.16 per share for the six-month period ended June 30, 1988—up almost 2 percent compared to a year ago.

In comparing the reporting periods, Kenneth T. Murphy, chief executive officer, stated that reduced provisions for loan losses accounted principally for the improved quarterly earnings comparison.

OLD AND ALONE

How do you get to be old and alone? Maybe like this...

"My name is Peter Leftalone. I used to have a little house with a fine vegetable garden. I worked in my garden and visited with my friends down the road.

"Sometimes I'd get a letter from my daughter in Illinois. Once she came to see me on her vacation. She has little kids now and can't get away much.

"I took sick and they put me in a hospital. The doctor said I had to go to a nursing home because my arm and leg don't work too well anymore.

"He got a place for me a long way from my home. I never went that far before, but they said it was the only place they could find.

"I like it when someone comes to visit me; that don't happen too often. I miss my friends; they cared about me. I don't have no one to play checkers with. I beat everyone here and they won't play no more.

"My name is Susie Livelong. I lived with my daughter 'till she got sick and I had to go to a nursing home. I can't see very well anymore, but I can still get around with a walker on days I feel good.

"My daughter doesn't drive, but a neighbor brings her here to see me once in a while. I miss her, she was all the family I had left. I have some good, new friends here.

"We like to sit and talk or sometimes watch the soap operas. We like it when someone comes to visit or has a party for us. We do things together, but it is better if someone from outside comes to do it with us. That's why I like the Bingo game.

The media has recently turned its attention to the problems of the aged. We read about it in newspapers and magazines, see it on television. Do we really neglect the elderly and the infirm?

Some people don't, but most of us do. No matter how well we provide for their physical needs, we too often deprive them of that most important need, the warmth and affection of family and friends.

Licensed nursing homes are required to provide a recreation program for their residents.

What nursing homes need more of are individual volunteers who will come on a regular weekly or monthly basis; someone to be a friend to be depended upon.

Everyone thinks that they will never be Peter Leftalone or Susie Livelong, but it could easily be us or someone dear to us. Would you give some small part of your life to enrich that of others?

We need you if you can play a game of Chinese checkers or dominoes.

We need you if you like to read the Bible aloud.

We need you if you like to play music, even if it is recorded. We need you if you like to talk, even if the person you're talking to can't answer you easily.

If you have time you want to share, call us, 364-3815.

SAFE, COLD STORAGE

NEW YORK (AP) — Have you ever wondered how to store important papers safely when away on a trip?

Family Circle magazine suggests you put your papers in a metal box with paper towels under the lid to absorb moisture. Then, place the box in the refrigerator. In a severe fire, the refrigerator is usually the one item in the house that is not totally destroyed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In response to the letter from "Dead End Deal," about seeing a married man, may I offer this additional bit of counsel:

Don't date a man who is married to his dead wife's family.

My husband and I were best friends with a neighbor couple for several years. I lost my husband and was alone for 27 months. Then the neighbor's wife died.

After a while, he and I started to see one another. It was wonderful to have company again. We were compatible in so many ways. But unfortunately, he was married to his in-laws.

Many of the same rules apply as the ones you listed for women who go with married men. I'm sure they will sound familiar:

1. Never make plans to be with him on holidays. He must be with his in-laws because that's the way it always was.

2. Never plan to go out on Friday night. That was "their night" and he can't seem to break the habit.

3. Don't let his in-laws know that you are dating him steadily. They wouldn't approve. They believe the memory of their daughter should sustain him forever.

4. Don't go out with anyone else. Stay free in case he wants to see you.

5. He warns you not to get serious, even though you are as intimate as if you were married. He calls several times a day.

6. Don't be surprised when he dumps you for someone who is "more like his wife." It just happened to me.—Nowhere and Boiling in Maryland

DEAR BOILING: What an O. Henry ending! Thanks for the short course.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old girl who needs to find out if I am overly modest, crazy or what.

My father is an avid tennis player. Whenever he returns from a tennis game, he heads for the boiler room to take off his sweaty clothes. He then comes upstairs stark naked and walks through the living room.

He often stops to ask me questions such as, "How was your day?" or "What have you planned for this evening?" His nakedness embarrasses me and I can't deal with it. Is this normal for a 43-year-old father? He seems to think so, although I don't.

I am the youngest child and the only girl in the family. Mom has seen this and has asked Dad to please wrap a towel around himself. He refuses.

I wish you would print this letter so I can put it on the refrigerator and let him know how much this bothers me. Thank you.—Waiting for a Cover-up in N.Y.

DEAR WAITING: Your father's exhibitionism indicates that he has a real problem and your mother's indifference is nothing short of infuriating.

You shouldn't have to put up with this garbage. If you are old enough to register disgust, you surely can find the courage to say, "Dad, I hate it when you run around in front of me naked. Cut it out."

If he continues to behave like a creep, walk immediately into another room and freeze him out for several days. He'll get the message.

Do you have questions about sex, but nobody you can talk to about them? Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," will give you the answers you need. To receive a copy, send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Combat drought by planting drought tolerant plants

A drought can be tough on gardeners and homeowners because it can ravage those prize landscape plants and turn an otherwise lush area into a desert scene.

One way to combat this year's drought as well as to prepare for others that are sure to follow is to plant drought tolerant native plants.

"Plants accustomed to growing in dry conditions with little care can really be a 'lifesaver' during a year such as the one we are currently experiencing," said Doug Welsh, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Not only do these plants fit in well in the landscape but they take the pressure off watering. And in severe situations when water rationing is imposed, these plants will not be lost."

Such plants as lantana, sand verbena and cenizo (Texas sage) fit in well in a home or business landscape without a lot of fuss and bother, Welsh said. Many native plants are as showy as the more popular exotic plants, flowering throughout much of the year, even in the hot summer. These plants will withstand extreme conditions such as the current drought and, even during more normal years, will not demand the attention that other plants do.

"A low-maintenance landscape can look good without a lot of care," said Welsh. "That's its forte. Now is a good time to consider such a landscape, and county extension agents in several counties have demonstration sites established for public viewing."

Further information on native Texas plants and low-maintenance landscaping is available at any county extension office or from Welsh, Department of Horticultural Sciences, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843; phone 409-845-7341.

14-15 stars fall, 10-0

The Hereford Babe Ruth 14 and 15-year-old all-stars had a tough afternoon Saturday when they could only manage three singles off Plainview pitching in a 10-0 loss in the finals of the district tournament. The game ended after five innings because of the 10-run rule. Plainview advances to the West Texas state tournament in Canyon, which begins July 23.

Hereford's only hits were second inning singles by Joe Riojas and Petey Colvin, and a third inning single by Amado Lopez. Hereford loaded the bases on walks in the first inning, but left all three runners on base.

In the fourth and fifth innings, Hereford failed to get any runners on base.

Plainview had nine hits against three Hereford pitchers. Gilbert

Gutierrez and David Juarez each hit bases-empty home runs.

Pitchers for Hereford were Max Mungia, Joel Gaytan and Richard Rodriguez. Gaytan had four strikeouts.

Hereford committed five errors in the game.

Dotson dumps Rangers, 7-2

NEW YORK AP) — Richard Dotson spent his free time watching the movies and he found it both enjoyable and educational.

"The first thing we did was go back and look at the films," said Dotson, 8-3, who earned his first victory since June 13 Monday night in the New York Yankees 7-2 triumph over the Texas Rangers.

By winning, the Yankees stayed one game behind the Detroit Tigers, 12-3 winners over the Seattle Mariners, in the American League Eastern race.

In other AL scores, it was Oakland 7, Cleveland 2; Boston 6, Minnesota 5; Milwaukee 6, Kansas City 1; Detroit 12, Seattle 3; and Toronto 12, California 2.

Dotson was activated Monday from the 15-day disabled list, having been sidelined with a slight groin pull.

"Basically, I am using my lower body a lot more. I was just kind of rotating my shoulders sideways," said Dotson, who worked with Yankees pitching coach Stan Williams during his stretch on the disabled list.

"When you have one or two bad outings in a row, you don't need to solicit their help. They come right to you," said Dotson, when asked if he sought Williams' advice.

New York jumped away to a 5-0 lead against Paul Kilgus, 7-9, in the first inning on five hits — three of them doubles — and a walk.

"The five runs definitely helped. I was pumped up. I was a little excited," said Dotson, who missed two starts by going on the DL on July 1.

Dotson said he worked his regular preparations while disabled.

"It (the injury) was never anything that severe. It just came at a time when they had a roster move to make and with that kind of an injury it pays to be careful," said Dotson.

"He has added velocity and he was getting his breaking ball across. That's the hardest I've seen him throw all year," said Yankees manager Lou Pinella. Despite the 5-0 lead, Dotson struggled, throwing 99 pitches on a hot, humid night before being relieved by Neil Allen in the sixth inning. Dotson stranded two Rangers in the second, another in the third, and escaped a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the fifth.

Luis Aguayo bare-handed Scott Fletcher's bunt down the third base line in time to force Steve Buechele at the plate, and Dotson then struck out Ruben Sierra.

Pete Incaviglia's 17th homer opened the sixth and when Buechele doubled with two out, Allen relieved Dotson.

"No matter how much you work, it's not the same as throwing on the side," said Dotson, who last pitched June 29.

"We kept battling back. We had a few opportunities to cash in," said Texas manager Bobby Valentine, whose club left 11 runners aboard while collecting 10 hits and three walks against three Yankee pitchers.

SporTalking

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Through the past 10 years in which I have continuously watched sports events, in college sports information work and in newspaper journalism, I have come to a conclusion that there are two types of officials.

One kind is the official who does his job in such a way that you do not notice him or think about him. The other kind is the attention seeker, the type of official that showcases himself yelling out calls loud or talking back at athletes, coaches and fans.

The silent official may not make every call correct in the minds of the athletes, coaches and fans, but at least he does not distract from the athletic competition in the long run.

But the other type of official, I say, has some mental problems, self-esteem or self-confidence problems. He has to seek attention and get it to feel good about himself.

That is a faulty foundation to try to build self-confidence on. The attention seeking official thinks so much on ways to showcase himself, that inevitably he does not concentrate on the game as he should.

As a result, not only does the attention seeker usually do a worse job of officiating than the silent one, but also, coaches, athletes and fans have less and less respect for him.

The Kids Inc. baseball, softball and T-ball leagues are a great community program for hundreds of boys and girls. But when there are umpires who are attention seekers, it destroys the purpose of the leagues.

As several parents of Kids Inc. participants have said to me, the league games are for the boys and girls, not for umpires to show off in.

Too many people, in all kinds of jobs or professions, conduct themselves in such a way that they must think that they will gain the respect of other people through the use of their mouths — rather than doing their work silently and letting the work speak for itself.

And this problem exists with referees and umpires as well. Those with poor self-images, who may even have inferiority complexes, tend to use their mouths more than their minds in officiating athletic events.

It's a strange mental makeup when a person has an inferiority complex and carries on in egotistical ways. Egotism and an inferiority complex cannot be classified as opposites — because they are often found in the same person, and sadly enough, found often in the same referee or umpire.

A sports official who has both egotism and an inferiority complex often gets wrapped up in the idea that he is an authority figure at an athletic event.

What often results from this is that he tries to dominate the game with his supposed authority, and then the game is not athletic competition, but a showcase for such a referee or umpire.

Mr. Football Official, Mr. Basketball Referee and Mr. Baseball Umpire, would you please take a moment and sincerely analyze yourself? Analyze the way you act or conduct yourself when officiating games.

If you realize that you are being an attention seeker, if you try to showcase yourself at the expense of the athletes and their fans, then make a resolution that you will do all you can to officiate games in the ways that you will be less noticed, ways in which you aim to do the job in the best and most correct way, without calling attention to yourself.

I say "Thank you" to the officials who do their job without showcasing themselves. When there are problems at games that have to be brought under control, you are the ones that can do it. The other kind of officials are those who create problems instead of solve them.

MONTREAL (AP) — Bryn Smith said he felt he paid the price for having the longest All-Star break of any Montreal Expo.

Smith made his first start in 11 days and showed the effects of his inactivity as he and Montreal lost 6-1 to the Houston Astros.

In other National League games, it was Los Angeles 1, St. Louis 0; Cincinnati 2, New York 1; Chicago 8, San Francisco 3; and Atlanta won the first game of a doubleheader with Philadelphia, 9-8 in 11 innings, before dropping the nightcap, 4-1.

Smith, 6-6, lasted only five innings, allowing five hits and five runs as he became the last starter in the rotation to see action since the break.

DALLAS COWBOYS—Waived Chase Brown, wide receiver; Ray Coleman, defensive lineman; Eric Johnson, defensive tackle; Jim Miller, safety; Steven Clark, safety; Archie Harris, offensive tackle, and Scott Johnson, defensive end.

DENVER BRONCOS—Waived Jim Hendley, center; Arnold Brown, Leonard Jones and Tyrone Davis, defensive backs; Jim Kmet, defensive end; Scott Wilson, defensive lineman; Bryan Riggs, Dan McMillen, Thomas Aldridge and Wes Keene, linebackers; Emil Slovacek, Paul Kiser, Richard Marks and Woody Myers, offensive linemen; Cary Cooper, punter; Bryan Barker and David Croteau, placekickers; Geoff Torretta, quarterback; Channing Williams, Jon Kelley, Mike Marquez and Sean Sanders, running backs; Chris Waltman, Fred Davis, Mike Sargent and Troy Cooke, tight ends, and Chuck Scales, David Miles and Victor Moore, wide receivers.

HOUSTON OILERS—Signed Tracey Eaton, safety; David Vienne, center, and Jethro Franklin, defensive end. Reached agreement with Eric Fairs and Johnny Meads, linebackers.

"I don't write in the rotation, and I don't want to second guess anyone," said an upset Smith, who yielded just one earned run. "But I like to get the ball every five days. This time I got it on the second five days."

While Smith dug himself into a hole by allowing four first-inning runs, the Expos weren't helping matters any by providing him with feeble offensive support.

The Expos, who have now scored only 12 runs in five games in the second half, had their chances against Astros starter Joaquin Andujar, 1-4, but left seven men on base against him in his six innings of work.

The victory for Andujar, who spent the first six weeks of the season on the disabled list with rib and knee injuries, was his first since July 2, 1987, while he was with Oakland.

"Andujar was definitely hittable tonight, but we didn't get to him," said Expo manager Buck Rodgers.

"We gave away the game tonight."

"He went as far as he could go tonight, but he got the job done," Houston manager Hal Lanier said of Andujar's six innings. "With him healthy and in the rotation and with Danny Darwin in the bullpen, we're a much stronger club."

Meat loaf's again on the menu

(AUSTIN)—Folks who swore by mashed potatoes and gravy while others were diving into duck-topped pizza and blackened anything have at last been vindicated. Home cookin' is back in style. Whether it's boredom with the unconventional or a hankering for the table mother used to set, the food of middle America is coming back with a vengeance. Food magazines sing its praises, trendy restaurants serve it, and new cookbooks tell young brides how to fix it.

Meat loaf is among the dishes on the comeback trail. As down-to-earth American as Texas brisket and New York hot dogs, it is also inexpensive and versatile—a boon as always for families on a budget. A meat loaf containing one pound of ground beef will serve four people generously.

Cooks can prevent meat loaf from turning boring by varying optional ingredients in the basic meat mixture. They can also add eye appeal by modifying the look of the dish. Meat loaf baked in a ring mold becomes an attractive centerpiece when surrounded by oven-roasted potatoes and heaped with vegetables.

Carol Guthrie, Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) home economist, has these tips for making light, tasty meat loaves:

Use lean or extra lean ground beef to limit fat content and shrinkage. Three ounces of cooked lean beef contain 15.9 grams of fat while three ounces of extra-lean have 13.72 grams. Equal proportions of beef, veal and pork also yield a flavorful loaf.

For a tender, juicy meat loaf, mix the egg, liquid, crumbs and seasonings in a bowl. Then crumble in the meat and mix lightly until well combined. Overmixing will result in a compact loaf. When shaping the meat, handle the mixture only as much as necessary. Individual meat loaves cut cooking time. Ideal for singles, they can be frozen for future meals.

A few gratings of carrot add flavor, color and nutritional value to meat loaf. A draping of bacon gives a nice, smokey flavor.

Here are a few new meat loaf recipes to expand the cook's repertoire. Indian Meat Loaf, which substitutes cornmeal for bread crumbs, contains cream style corn and canned tomatoes. For a firmer loaf, use whole kernel corn instead of cream style.

Mushroom Meat Loaf is a firm loaf seasoned with barbecue sauce, catsup and Worcestershire sauce. Mexican Meat Loaf is the least traditional recipe. More like a casserole, it is a flavorful dish that will please fans of Tex-Mex food. The recipe yields two meat loaves.

INDIAN MEAT LOAF

- 1 1/2 lb. lean ground beef
- 1 (16 oz.) can whole tomatoes
- 1 (8 oz.) can cream-style corn
- 1/2 C. cornmeal
- 1/2 C. chopped celery
- 1/4 C. chopped onion
- 1/4 C. chopped green bell pepper
- 1 beaten egg
- 1 T. black pepper
- 2 tsp. salt

Combine all ingredients, mixing well. Press into a 9-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 1/2 hours or until done. Makes 6 servings.

MEXICAN MEAT LOAF

- 2 lb. lean ground beef
- 1 chopped med. onion
- 2 (8 oz.) jars taco sauce
- 1 (10 3/4 oz.) can cream of mushroom

- soup
- 1 (10 1/2 oz.) can chicken with rice soup
- 1 (6 oz.) can tomato paste
- 1 (4 oz.) can chopped green chiles
- 2 tsp. garlic salt
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Tortilla chips
- 1 C. shredded cheddar cheese

Brown meat with onion in large skillet. Add taco sauce, mushroom soup, chicken soup, tomato paste, green chiles, garlic salt, salt and pepper; mix well and bring to a boil. Break tortilla chips into pieces. Using two loaf pans, start with a layer of chips and add a layer of meat. Repeat using another layer of chips and ending with layer of meat. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Top with shredded cheese and bake 10 minutes more or until cheese is melted. Makes 2 loaves, 4-6 servings each.

MUSHROOM MEAT LOAF

- 1 lb. lean ground beef
- 1 sm. chopped onion
- 1/2 C. chopped fresh mushrooms
- 2 T. chopped green bell pepper
- 1/4 C. milk
- 1/4 C. crushed seasoned croutons
- 1 beaten egg
- 1 T. barbecue sauce
- 1 T. catsup
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- Dash pepper
- Dash Worcestershire sauce

Combine all ingredients, mixing well. Pack into buttered 8-inch loaf pan. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 1 hour or until done. Makes 4 servings.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — We've used this space many times to discuss the need for effective juvenile justice in Texas, because in the long run, only a good juvenile justice program will reduce crime and ease overcrowding in our adult prisons.

Now, it appears we're finally on the verge of having some very good news to report. The Senate Select Committee on the Juvenile Justice System, which we are privileged to co-chair, has been working since the first of the year to help construct a new program for problem youth. This past week, at the select committee's fifth meeting, the diverse elements of the new program began to come together.

There seems to be a growing consensus among members of the committee that an improved juvenile justice system must contain several key elements, including: * mandatory restitution by offenders. We must make juvenile offenders understand the cost of their actions. By requiring some form of restitution, the juvenile is forced to confront the consequences of his or her actions. * tough punishment for serious crimes. Right now, a juvenile committed to the Texas Youth Commission spends an average of six months in detention. For violent crimes the average sentence is 11 months. That's not long enough in some cases. We need to make chronic offenders realize they will serve time for their crimes.

* basic skills training for offenders. If we are to rehabilitate offenders, we must make them capable of surviving in the real world. Many juveniles turn to crime because they have no other vocational or interpersonal skills. If we teach them a trade and basic life management skills, juvenile offenders stand a much better chance of turning away from adult crime. * family involvement. As with adults, juveniles are more responsive to rehabilitation if their family is involved. A good juvenile program will include the family, and help the family work through any problems that contributed to the juvenile's delinquent behavior.

* substance abuse counseling. We can't overstate how much drug, alcohol and inhalant abuse contributes to delinquent behavior. If we keep kids from abusing these substances, crime will decline.

* better coordination with the schools. In most cases, teachers will be the first ones to notice a youth is at risk of becoming an offender. By working with the schools, the juvenile justice system can develop programs that reach those at-risk youths before they ever turn to crime and channel them toward more positive pursuits.

The list of suggested improvements could go on, but the direction we're heading is clear. We are doing everything we can to create a balanced juvenile justice system, one that provides both appropriate punishment for the offender and real rehabilitation services. There is little doubt that by our next meeting, we should have agreement on the individual elements of the program.

At that point, only one task remains. The committee must decide whether to recommend implementing the new program through the existing juvenile justice agencies or to recommend consolidating those agencies into a new, comprehensive agency.

We prefer creating a new agency. We think it is more economical to have all money for juvenile justice programs to be funneled through a single source, and we believe the existing system is too fragmented. At the same time, we recognize there are legitimate arguments for retaining the existing agency structure.

We plan to draft a proposal for combining the existing agencies and present it to the committee at our August meeting. We won't call for a resolution of the issue at that time, though. We would like to discuss at the meeting the pros and cons of changing the structure, then give committee members a month to consider the two alternatives before making final recommendations at a September meeting.

Regardless of the outcome of that particular battle, though, there can be no doubt we already have come a long way toward improving our juvenile justice system.

If you have any questions about the juvenile justice system, or other issues, please write us at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas, 78711.

SUPPRESSED ART WORKS

NEW YORK (AP) — An exhibition at Leningrad's Russian Museum this fall will put on show previously suppressed works done by Russian artists in the 1920s and '30s, side by side with works done at that time which continued in favor.

The exhibition of about 500 works will provide the first occasion in more than half a century that many abstract and stylized figurative works by such painters as Malevich, Kandinsky, Rodchenko and Filonov have been seen. In 1932, Soviet officials decreed they were counter to the nation's cultural goals and they were locked away in storerooms.

An accompanying book designed to serve as the exhibition's catalog, "Soviet Art of the 1920s-1930s: From the Russian Museum, Leningrad," will be published in 14 countries jointly by the Soviets and the American publisher Harry N. Abrams Inc., in English, Russian and German. According to Abrams' publisher Paul Gottlieb, "... this is the first time we have worked jointly with the Soviets on the creation and production of a book from the very inception of the project."

ADDRESS: 313 N. LEE

CLASSIFIED ADS
Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.80 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	.14	2.80
2 days per word	.24	4.80
3 days per word	.34	6.80
4 days per word	.44	8.80
5th day FREE

Ten days (2 free) is $16.80 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is $24.80 minimum; one month is $32.80 minimum.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.95 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALIS
Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

ARE YOU PUTTING ME ON?
MAKE THE CONNECTION FOR SAFETY!
A MESSAGE FROM THIS NEWSPAPER AND THE DPS TROOPERS

ASK DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB: I started bleeding and was in terrible pain. I was taken to the hospital and given every test possible, I'm sure. Diverticulosis was the answer. I watch my diet and take bran, but still think I need more fiber. I was told not to eat nuts, seeds or lettuce.

I take Mylanta II, Tagamet and about 20 pills. I'm also on oxygen. I do my own chores because I am a widow. It is very hard, but I do it. Please send me your report on diverticulosis.

DEAR READER: Obviously your doctor thinks you have more than diverticulosis. The Mylanta II and the Tagamet are both to control stomach acid. Antacids and Tagamet do not help diverticulosis, but do help acid indigestion problems. The oxygen suggests you have lung or heart problems as well.

Diverticulosis, pockets of the colon, is rather common. Often it does not cause a problem. But one of the complications that can occur is bleeding. That usually is a one-time affair. Of course, if you also have a peptic ulcer, you could have bled from it as well. Your doctor probably has a good idea of where the bleeding came from. Normally, it is suggested that patients use lots of bulk to help correct an irritable bowel that often is associated with diverticulosis. Bran, leafy vegetables and raw fruits all help. The old idea of a bland diet and avoiding seeds and leafy vegetables has been largely discarded with the understanding that a normally functioning colon requires bulk.

But you have other problems that are not defined in your letter. If you happen to have a stomach ulcer, your doctor may not want you to use too much "roughage." The roughage might irritate an underlying ulcer. So you need to listen to his advice and perhaps take a bulk former such as Metamucil or more bran if you need more bulk.

I'm sending you Special Report 94, About Diverticulosis: Pockets of the Colon, as you requested. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/94, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My mother had had what was called ileitis for over 16 years. I understand this is a disease of the small intestine. She had had years of pain and four operations, thousands of pills and is now diagnosed as Crohn's disease involving both intestines. She has had pain every day for 16 years. Do you have any information on this disease?

DEAR READER: It is an inflammatory disease of the digestive tract of unknown cause. The inflamed area causes thickening and constriction of the area involved. A frequent location of the inflammation is the end of the ileum — the last part of the small intestine — where it connects to the colon. It is also called ileitis or regional enteritis.

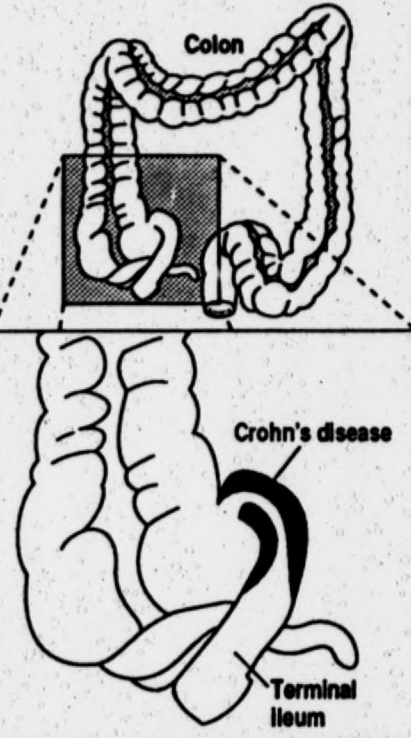

It may cause few symptoms, or, more often, it progresses to cause symptoms of bowel obstruction. It may cause pain in the right lower abdomen that resembles appendicitis. And it may cause mild diarrhea, from four to five stools a day. There are other signs of low-grade inflammation.

Surgery is sometimes necessary to relieve an obstruction. President Eisenhower had emergency surgery to relieve obstruction from regional enteritis when he was in office. Treatment is unsatisfactory and is mostly supportive to maintain nutrition and relieve pain. There is a familial tendency to having the disease. We need much more information before this disease can be managed better.

Ask Dr. Lamb

CROHN'S DISEASE

Crohn's disease commonly involves the junction of the ileum with the colon and may cause obstruction.

© 1988 North America Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have heard that repeated bathing of a baby three or four times a day will deplete the baby's energy. Is this true? If it is true, what effect would there be on an 18-year-old who soaks in a tub for hours?

DEAR READER: Frequent bathing, by that I mean several times a day, could wash away natural oils and contribute to dry skin problems. This is seen in older people who do not have so much natural skin oil and may itch because of it. The soap makes matters worse. Unless a baby is caused to be very active while bathing, and is tired from the effort, I don't think the bathing will cause a loss of energy. Now if a person, and that includes an adult or an 18-year-old, lies in the tub and soaks for hours, that will cause the body to lose water. The horizontal position is a major factor and the pressure of the water against the body adds to it. The dehydration that could result would make a person tired. Hot water that causes a person to sweat a great deal may also deplete the sodium level and cause fatigue.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

New traditional homemakers can win $10,000 in contest

If you are a busy homemaker keeping pace with career, family responsibilities, community activities and a multitude of personal interests, you are eligible to compete for the $10,000 grand prize in the frozen food industry's fourth annual search for "America's New Traditional Homemakers."

New Traditional Homemakers were identified through market research conducted by America's leading frozen food companies. These contemporary homemakers are active people with "traditional" values about eating right and serving good, nutritious meals. Yet their hectic lifestyles demand "new" solutions to meal planning, such as today's frozen foods.

A total of $10,000 will be awarded to one national winner, chosen from five $1,000 regional winners. These top winners will be selected from 60 state finalists (including the District of Columbia and two winners from California, Florida, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas), who will each receive a Revere Ware Micro-Fryer.

The first 4,000 entrants will receive a packet of cents-off coupons for a variety of frozen food products.

Many of the winners will also travel and make all expense paid promotional appearances to discuss their active lifestyles and the benefits frozen foods offer today's

People believe if you are a girl, don't whistle, or you will grow a beard.

homemakers.

The search, which runs through Oct. 31, is open to women and men 21 years of age and older. To obtain a nomination form, call the New Traditional Homemaker toll-free hotline at (800)272-8446, or write to: America's New Traditional Homemakers, c/o The American Frozen Food Institute (AFFI), P.O. Box 2412, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10163.

Entries may also be submitted by letter with a photograph of the nominee enclosed. The letter should state why the nominee is a New Traditional Homemaker, plus information about the nominee's family, personal interests, employment, education and community activities. The role of frozen foods in the nominee's household, in addition to favorite products, menu ideas and recipes, should also be noted.

All entries and photographs are non-returnable and must be postmarked by Oct. 31 to be eligible.

Nominees will be judged on the basis of how their lifestyles match up with New Traditional Homemakers, as well as their use of frozen foods and their communications skills. Judging will be conducted by representatives of the frozen food industry and participating sponsors. In the final judging, personal interviews will be required.

Last year, there were over 7,500 entries. Barbara Breier, a secretary from Pittsburgh, was the 1987 grand prize winner.

DAIRY FOOD SAFETY CHECKLIST

Consumers can keep milk and other dairy foods safe by taking the following steps:

- When shopping, examine containers for leaks or other damages.
- Check "sell-by" dates. Products generally can be used for a few days after the sell-by date if they have been properly stored.
- Pick up milk and other perishable dairy foods just before checking out of the store, especially in hot weather.
- Take products home immediately after purchase and refrigerate them as soon as possible.
- Refrigerate milk, cream, cottage cheese and similar products in their original containers. After opening, close containers tightly.
- Refrigerate cheese in its original wrap until opened. After opening, rewrap the cheese tightly in moisture-vapor wrap or place in airtight containers.
- Store dry milk and canned milk in a cool dry place. Once reconstituted, milk should be refrigerated. Once canned milk is opened, pour into a clean container and keep refrigerated.
- Use milk in the order purchased.
- Serve milk cold.

The word ye, in such expressions as "Ye Olde Shoppe," is pronounced like the word the. The letter y in Anglo-Saxon indicated the same th sound as apparent in the current spelling.

Window film can reduce air conditioning costs

Installing window film is a lot like putting a pair of sunglasses on your home to block the summer sun's heat and glare.

"Window film can increase your air conditioner's efficiency up to 65 percent so it will help lower utility bills," said Dr. Susan Quiring, a housing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

It has the extra advantage of blocking nearly all the ultraviolet rays, which protects your furnishings and curtains from fading too, she noted.

Quiring said there are several types of window film having special sun-control characteristics. The film costs about $10 to $35 per window, depending upon the type of film and size of the window. It will last up to 10 years with proper cleaning.

"But there are some disadvantages to window film. In the winter it will block solar heat from entering your house and helping to warm it," she said.

"Also consider window film a fairly permanent fixture. Once it's on, it is a difficult chore to remove the film. If you're not sure whether you like the looks of it, do one window and try it for a while before doing any others," said Quiring.

According to the specialist, installing the film is fairly easy. First make sure the window is absolutely clean by washing it several times. Any dirt or dust left on the window will be trapped under the film.

Cut the film about an inch larger than the window glass area. Wet the inside window surface using a spray bottle. Peel off the backing, wet the film's adhesive surface using a spray bottle. Peel off the backing, wet the film's adhesive surface and place it against the glass. Squeegee the film to force out the excess water and then cut the excess film overlap with a razor.

"Solar screens are another solution to the summer glare problem," said Quiring. "They're more expensive than film, especially if the windows aren't a standard size, but the solar shades can be removed in winter to let in sunlight."

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS

ATLANTA (AP) — Researchers supported by the Arthritis Foundation say they have isolated a gene that causes specific cells to attack the joints of laboratory animals.

The discovery may lead to new ways to treat arthritis, says the foundation.

People who have severe autoimmune diseases such as rheumatoid arthritis must often resort to drug therapy which shuts down almost all immune cells. But researchers at the Mayo Clinic are developing a technique that suppresses only those cells causing the problem, leaving the rest of the immune system intact to combat other infections.

Scientists feel they can begin clinical trials in humans within five years and hope these experiments will lead to improved treatments within the next 10 years.
