Governors want water cleaned up

By MICHAEL HIRSH
Associated Press Writer

With summer already spoiled for thousands of beach-goers, New York and New Jersey announced cradle-to-grave accounting of infectious medical waste to help curb debris that has washed ashore from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

"We will no longer tolerate the careless, unsupervised and often just outrageous way these wastes are being handled," New Jersey Gov. Tom Kean said Wednesday at a crowded shipboard news conference in New York Harbor.

In North Carolina, meanwhile, 40 Marines landed on 26 miles of beaches this week for the unheroic task of clearing bags of medical and other waste dumped by Navy vessels offshore.

Officials were investigating whether the dumping was illegal. CBS News reported Wednesday that the ships were outside the 25-mile legal trash-dumping limit. Medical refuse, however, is usually held for incineration in port, said Navy spokesman Lt. John Lloyd.

"Right now we don't know if there were any violations," Lloyd said. "We really don't know how it happened. We know we're responsible for it. We're just trying to find out how it got ashore."

Blood-stained syringes, blood bags, bandages, vials of drugs and other medical debris, including dead rodents, have closed numerous beaches this summer in New York and New Jersey, and alarmed officials in other Atlantic coastal states like Florida and South Carolina.

"In my 10 years here I've never seen anything like this wash up," said Police Chief Jack E. Lilienthal in Charleston, S.C., close to where a syringe and plunger without a needle and a medical glove were found Wednesday.

In Cleveland, hundreds of syringes, many blood-stained, have been found during the past week on public and private beaches along Lake Erie. Richard L. Shank, director of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, called the problem "disgusting and heinous," and said direct dumping in the lake was illegal.

The waste accounting plan launched by New York and New Jersey, which goes into effect immediately, was announced following a month-long rash of beach closings in both states due to medical waste and raw sewage in the water.

"The purpose is to say to people, we will watch you with the intent of catching and prosecuting you if this waste is not disposed of properly," said New York Gov. Mario Cuomo.

As part of the plan, hospitals and other facilities that generate medical waste, transport it or dispose of it will be required to fill out forms at each step of the process.

The hospital will then keep the final form on file for the state, providing a record of the waste from inception to disposal. If the hospital does not receive the form within seven days of disposal, the state must be notified.

"We are powerless no longer as needles and bandages wash up on our beaches," said Kean. "We will be able to punish the people who have been turning so many holidays into horror stories."

Beach attendance has been down significantly in both states due to the pollutions, officials have said.

Kean and Cuomo acknowledged the new "manifest system" did not carry any stricter penalties for illegal dumpers — it simply would make it easier to catch them.

Steven Romalewski, Long Island toxics campaign coordinator for the New York Public Interest Group, criticized the plan as "too little, too late."

"If the governor is making a stab at solving the medical waste problem, this is a pathetic effort," said Romalewski, whose group wants more legislative action. "The people of New York should not accept this."

Syringes, vials of drugs and other medical debris have also washed ashore from the Gulf of Mexico onto beaches in Florida's Panhandle during the past several weeks, especially in recent days because of Tropical Storm Beryl, authorities said Wednesday.

Bountiful garden

Georgia Auckerman looks over the bounty at the Hereford Community Garden. Harvest has already begun on some of the vegetables, and will continue on some items through October.

Garden going, growing great

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Needy Hereford residents have been picky about the Hereford Community Garden.

Georgia Auckerman is happy that they are.

If you have to identify a "founder" for the garden idea, it's Auckerman. She says a lot of people and organizations have helped make the garden grow.

Now she's seeing the fruits and vegetables of a summer's labor go to people who need the food. Fears of vandalism, not enough help and lack of materials have vanished.

"I've thought about a pilot project like this for a long time, but the Stewardship for the Earth Committee (at San Jose Catholic Church) put it together," Auckerman told the Hereford Lions Club on Wednesday.

"This just seemed like a natural sort of thing for Hereford because so many people in the community are involved in farming or gardening."

Once the garden idea was planted last spring, committee members and volunteers pitched in with drip irrigation lines, preparing the 60 foot-by-120 foot plot, getting the seed, and doing other work necessary for the garden.

The drip irrigation line was provided at cost. The city indirectly donated the water (it can't give the water away, but appropriated money to the project to pay that cost). Most of the seed was donated by local seed companies. Much of the volunteer labor was done by hand.

The problems have been few. "We planted too much spinach," Auckerman said. "We had trouble giving it away: Most of it went to Westgate (Nursing Home)." There have been a few squash bugs and a worm or two in the corn, but not many insect problems.

"Of course this is the first year this land has been broken out. The insect and disease problems might increase next year," Auckerman said. "But we have had a very bountiful harvest."

Some of the produce has gone to clients of Panhandle Community Services. "This has been a unique opportunity for them to help themselves instead of getting direct services," Auckerman said. "When given an opportunity to help themselves, people benefit in a much broader sense."

Auckerman expects the harvest to continue through late fall, with more corn, tomatoes, squash, blackeyed peas, carrots and cantaloupe to come. Persons who need produce from the garden should contact Auckerman, Panhandle Community Services, or the rectory at San Jose Catholic Church.

"We've had a few people come out here and pick who weren't affiliated with anyone or referred to us. No one's picked more than they need. It's just gone great," Auckerman said.

Bush denies Reagan manipulation

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

Vice President George Bush denied President Reagan is manipulating policies and appointments to sway the fall elections, saying "it's just that time of the year" for such charges. Democrat Michael Dukakis defended a decade-old decision to delay cleanup of Boston Harbor, one of the nation's filthiest.

Preparations for the Republican National Convention in New Orleans moved into higher gear, with more hammering on the giant red, white and blue podium in the Superdome. Work on the lengthy and conservative party platform also went on late Wednesday to wrap up the details in advance of Monday's opening gavel.

Bush spends more time in Washington today working on his acceptance speech, to be delivered a week from tonight. He and his family will have lunch with President and Nancy Reagan at the White House for a rare gathering of both couples.

Bush was also attending a gathering of the National Black Americans for Bush, one of several ethnically oriented groups in the Bush campaign.

At several campaign appearances before black audiences, he has hinted that he would enforce civil rights more aggressively than the Reagan administration has done.

Dukakis was heading out on a two-day campaign trip to big states he needs to win in November. After speaking on leadership in New York City, the Massachusetts governor goes to New Jersey, Connecticut, Virginia and Florida.

The Democratic presidential nominee helped to break ground Wednesday for a new sewage plant to help clean up Boston Harbor, a $6 billion undertaking that is also the largest public works undertaking in Massachusetts history.

In response to Republicans who had pummeled him for deciding in his first term as governor to delay efforts to end the pollution problems there, Dukakis said: "Nobody could really tell us what to do to clean up this place. There were very respected people, experts in the field, who disagreed."

Bush campaign manager Lee Atwater nonetheless added another slam on Wednesday, saying: "If it takes the governor of Massachusetts 11 years to clean up his own harbor,

Hereford man indicted in Lubbock

A 31-year-old Hereford man was indicted this week by a Lubbock County grand jury for aggravated assault in connection with an incident in Lubbock in July.

Julian Zamora Chavarria Jr. was indicted for sexually assaulting a 13-year-old girl in a Lubbock motel. He was arrested by Hereford police on a Lubbock warrant two days after the alleged assault. He later posted a $20,000 bond. No trial date has been set.

Slight shower chance

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Locally heavy rains are possible, with a low of 65. South winds will be 5-15 mph.

Friday will be partly cloudy and warm with a less than 20 percent chance of isolated afternoon thunderstorms. The high will be 92, with south winds 10-20 mph.

This morning's low at KPAN was 65 after a high Wednesday of 89.

Car dealership vandalized

Four vehicles were severely scratched Monday or Tuesday at Whiteface Ford, 201 W. First St., with damages estimated at $1,500. Police have no suspects.

Hereford police recovered a $90 rifle and a $35 BB gun stolen Aug. 9 from the 600 block of Stanton Street. A 7-year-old boy and two

An orange and yellow Suzuki Quadrunner valued at $1,800 was stolen from the 300 block of Cherokee St. The all-terrain vehicle was on a trailer in the back yard.

The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department reported a vehicle fire at 15th Street and Progressive Road and three minor accidents were reported.

13-year-old boys surrendered the guns Wednesday but no charges were filed.

Gaston's, a clothing store at Sugarland Mall, reported that on Tuesday night a burglary was attempted after the store's manager noticed that a panel above the cash register was misplaced and dirt was on the floor.

City to spray Friday

The City of Hereford will spray for flies and mosquitoes by plane Friday morning, weather permitting.

In case of inclement weather, the spraying will be held on the next fair-weather morning.

Persons affected by the spray should take necessary precautions.

HATAB hearing postponed

The public hearing that had been scheduled for Friday evening by the Hereford Area Tax Abatement has been postponed.

HATAB Chairman Johnny Latham said that a quorum could not be present for the joint meeting of the Hereford city commission, school board, and Deaf Smith County commissioners. Latham said the meeting would be held at a later date.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

You might think this idea is full of it, but the Japanese have sold a thousand of 'em, and that's success enough for them to sell it to us — that's U.S.

It's the paperless toilet. No, it does not use corn cobs. Instead, it kind of works like a bidet. Instead of water coming just from the bottom, though, it also shoots water from the sides into, I suppose, all the appropriate places.

It also uses hot air to keep the seat warm and to dry you off after you've been watered. After you've been dried, it sprays you with a little fragrance. For most of you men, I don't know if you can shut the spray off or just have to expect a few strange looks. Some of you guys may not mind. There are also people who are allergic to things like that, and your sit-down is not a good place to have a rash.

The paperless toilet wasn't invented by the Japanese. It's a time-honored tradition in American gas stations and in national parks.

A bunch of Japanese tourists were probably visiting the Grand Canyon. Seeing all of that nature made nature call. Some man or woman had to go back to the Visitor's Center and discovered the latest money-saving move by Congress: No paper in the restrooms.

Translated from Japanese, this person said "!!$?&+—!!" In Japanese, that means "Manure farmer." I understand that is the strongest name you can call someone in the Japanese language.

This planted the idea in their minds. We've known there were paperless toilets for a long time, but the Japanese are making money on this long-time American tradition.

I don't know if the thing is adjustable. Not everyone perches on the throne the same way. You're not seated the same way each time. Sometimes you're in a hurry. Does the machine make adjustments, or are you just going to get flooded no matter your posture. Perhaps you need to put your book, magazine or newspaper atop your head so you will sit up straight as the toilet does its thing.

And what if you're a male and it's No. 1 time. I know how surprised I'd be if I were just standing there, flushed the thing, and water, hot air, and Strawberry Fields Forever began flowing from the machine.

There are too many kinks. I'll be squeezing the Charmin for a few years more.

Demos say Republicans giving in to politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are accusing the Republican White House of yielding to election-year politics by brushing aside efforts to obtain a broad bipartisan consensus on aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Senate Republicans contend they did not vote for a Democratic Contra aid plan because it did not represent a truly bipartisan approach, and could not guarantee aid would reach the Contras inside Nicaragua.

No Republicans joined the majority when the Senate voted 49-47 on Wednesday to approve a Democratic proposal to provide the Contras with $27 million in non-lethal "humanitarian" aid after Oct. 1 and to set the stage for a second vote on the possible resumption of $16.3 million in stockpiled military aid later in the year.

"I'm sick and tired of a White House that has no steel in its guts," Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., declared moments after the vote.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., one of the strongest and most consistent Democratic supporters of Contra aid, said that after the defeat of a rival GOP proposal, the Democratic plan offered the only possibility that military aid to the Contras ever will be resumed by the current Congress.

He contended that after the Senate voted 57-49 to defeat the aid amendment offered by Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, a "one-line letter" from Reagan endorsing the Democratic plan would have been enough to secure widespread Republican support.

Reparations 'lift burden'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new law authorizing reparations for Japanese-Americans interned during World War II helps lift "an unjust burden of shame" borne by 120,000 loyal citizens for four decades, says a congressman who was among those incarcerated.

"Today is a moment of great emotion for me, a day when hopes and dreams have become reality," said Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., as President Reagan signed the bill Wednesday.

The bill authorizes tax-free payments of $20,000 to each of the approximately 60,000 surviving veterans of wartime camps, many of whom spent three years in internment.

The Japanese-Americans were rounded up and sent to the camps under an order issued by President Franklin D. Roosevelt after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, on Dec. 7, 1941, plunged the United States into World War II. Many Japanese-Americans lobbied for the legislation for years. It finally cleared Congress by a 257-156 vote in the House on Aug. 4.

Reagan originally objected to some features of the bill, saying it would be too costly, but he backed the final version which calls for a fund of $1.2 billion, with appropriations in any one year limited to $500 million. Legislation providing the actual money must still be enacted.

In signing the bill, Reagan said, "What is most important in this bill has less to do with property than with honor. For here we admit a wrong. Here we reaffirm our commitment as a nation to equal justice under the law."

Mineta, who as a child of 10 was taken to an internment camp in Wyoming, said, "Today the unjust burden of shame which 120,000 loyal Americans have carried for 46 painful years has at long last been lifted."

Many of the 250 Japanese-Americans who attended the signing ceremony said it is the principle of the bill, not the money, that matters.

Among them were six members of one family — now scattered in California, Georgia and Oregon — who were taken from a farm near Stockton, Calif., to an internment camp at Rohr, Ark.

Dr. Walter Emori, now 47 and an arthritis specialist in Medford, Ore., was 3 when the family was interned.

"We see this as a healing process which says the country recognizes that a wrong was being done and in one small way perhaps is trying to make amends for this," Emori said.

"In general, the Japanese-American people who went to camp recognize that it was an awful, hysterical, grim time in American history, and although we all feel badly that we had to go and that we were rounded up and not only had our personal belongings but our civil liberties taken away from us, it's kind of understandable as to why this should happen," he said.

Obituary

ANTHONY BROWN
Aug. 10, 1988

Anthony H. Brown, 81, of Hereford died at 2:20 p.m. Wednesday in Deaf Smith General Hospital after a brief illness.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Wesley United Methodist Church with the Rev. Derrell Evins, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Gililand-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Brown was born in Clyde and moved to Hereford in the 1920s. He moved permanently to Hereford in 1943 from Albuquerque, N.M. while working for Santa Fe Railroad. He married Fannie Bell Smithers in March of 1962 in Clovis, N.M. He was a farmer and custom harvester and a member of Wesley United Methodist Church and the Hereford Masonic Lodge.

Survivors include his wife; five sons, Glenn and Robert, both of Tucson, Ariz., Franklin of El Paso, Charlie of Albuquerque and Gerald of Phoenix, Ariz.; two daughters, Betty Singer of Amarillo and Virginia Dickson of Odessa; a brother, Carl of Lubbock; a sister, Annie Noble of Albuquerque; 22 grandchildren; and 23 great-grandchildren.

Legislators like prison plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative leaders have approved most of Gov. Bill Clements' emergency plan for easing crowding in state prisons and county jails, including construction of five trusty camps for the Texas Department of Corrections.

But the Legislative Budget Board on Wednesday balked at Clements' proposal that would turn the old Bexar County Jail into a facility that could hold parole violators. The board also voted down Clements' request for additional funds for the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

The decisions came as the 10-member board utilized the state's new budget execution authority for the first time. Under the system, a governor can make budget transfer recommendations when the Legislature is not in session. The LBB, which includes five senators and five House members, then acts on the recommendations.

The system was approved by Texas voters in 1985 and implemented by the 1987 Legislature.

Most of the funds approved Wednesday, including $9.2 million for the trusty camps, were transferred from agency budgets set by the 1987 Legislature.

Also Wednesday, the board approved the transfer of $31.7 million that the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation will use to meet standards set in the settlement of lawsuits challenging the way the agency runs its state schools and state hospitals.

LBB members also approved Clements' proposals for increased funds for the Adult Probation Commission and Board of Pardons and Paroles. The probation commission will get $2 million to use for additional employees and increased use of electronic monitoring of probationers. The money was transferred from funds appropriated for other probation purposes, but not spent.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: From time to time you have printed letters from readers who were taken in by quacks. It is easy to understand how desperate people can fall prey to these charlatans. When the prognosis is bad they are willing to try anything.

The recent Mayo Clinic Health Letter gives some excellent guidelines. I hope you will find space in your column to print them.—Sioux Falls

DEAR S.F.: Thanks for thinking of me. It's another example of the excellent material put out by the Mayo Foundation in Rochester, Minn.

The Language of Quackery
When you hear about a product, be wary of hype words such as: secret, proven, revolutionary, ancient, foreign, miracle, overnight and breakthrough. Glowing testimonials from patients reinforce the concept.

Hostility: Quacks often claim to fight against a "conspiracy of established physicians." They refuse to disclose their "secrets."

Bargains: A money-back guarantee or free-will donation may sound attractive, but it often amounts to robbery.

Cure-alls: Quacks frequently make grandiose claims that one product can treat a multitude of problems with no complications.

Loyalty: Many quacks encourage a cult-like following among their customers. Legitimate doctors invite trust but they do not claim to be the only healer.

Holistic: This concept emphasizes total health and emotional well-being. But it is vague, a frequent smoke screen for useless products.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our suburban neighborhood has a problem. One young couple up the street gets into heated arguments at least four times a week. They can be heard by people who live a block away in every direction.

We know that every couple has disagreements, but the screaming and name-calling is very unpleasant. This couple has become the neighborhood joke, although their squabbling is not funny. The wife sounds like an out-of-control shrew and the husband must be an idiot. They scream about money, the division of household chores, his golf schedule and her sex hang-ups. Their brawls are extremely embarrassing when we have guests. Also, when tempers flare we become concerned for the well-being of both of them. They could kill each other.

What do you suggest, Ann?—Enough Troubles of Our Own in Atlanta

DEAR ATLANTA: I suggest that you and your husband go over and tell them that their battling can be heard all over the neighborhood. Let them know that you want to be helpful. Suggest counseling to help them learn how to live together in peace.

If they are hostile and unresponsive, and the fighting continues, call the police. They can be arrested for disturbing the peace.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is a father obligated to pay for his daughter's second wedding? Her first wedding was four years ago and cost $14,000. The father is not rich, but he wants to do the right thing. You are going to decide.—Tulsa

DEAR TULSA: No, but more than money is involved. If the first wedding was lavish, the second one should be low-key. Two super nuptial bashes exceeds the limits of good taste.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Woman's Health

For many brand-new mothers, thinking about what kind of contraception to use may seem silly. After all, you do not have a period for a while after having a baby, especially if you breast-feed. But, as many new mothers know, it is possible to become pregnant before having a period, and even women who breast-feed their babies around the clock are not completely protected against pregnancy.

So, what choices are available? For women who are not breast-feeding their babies, who do not smoke and are under age 40, the birth control pill is a very effective contraceptive. If you breast-feed, the pill is not recommended because the hormones affect the amount and quality of breast milk your body will produce.

IUDs are again among the contraceptive choices for women. Generally, they are recommended for women who have sex with only one person and who no longer intend to have children.

Barrier methods such as the condom, diaphragm, sponge, and spermicides may be good either as a transition contraceptive or a long-term choice. Women who use diaphragms should have themselves checked and, if necessary, refitted after delivery because childbirth can change the size of the diaphragm needed. For women who breast-feed, barrier methods with spermicides provide an additional benefit; breast-feeding tends to decrease the amount of natural lubrication in the vagina, and the spermicides can help the dryness.

If you are sure that you do not want an more children, you may consider sterilization (tubal ligation) following your delivery. Reversing sterilization requires a more complex operation and is not always successful.

Another option is sterilization or a vasectomy for your partner. Vasectomies, like tubal ligations, should be considered only if you are sure you do not want any more children.

Before making up your mind, you may want to ask your doctor what he or she recommends.

Robinson pitches one-hitter

San Francisco cools off Astros, 5-0

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Two summaries of Hereford Whiteface football all-time series with the 1988 opponents were recently published, listing won-loss records, scoring records and other information.

Someone asked me about the all-time series with Canyon. I said that Hereford and Canyon have played 67 times in football history, with the series dead even at 33-33-1.

That is the longest series for the Whitefaces against any opponent in school history, as far as the number of games are concerned. That series will not continue the next two seasons, since Canyon is now in class 3A and is not on the Hereford schedule.

Hereford High School had played only nine other schools more than 20 times going into the 1988 season: Tulia (30-15-2 record), Dumas (16-21-0), Clovis (13-17-0), Plainview (10-19-1), Friona (25-0-0), Amarillo High (9-14-1), Phillips (4-18-2), Dalhart (13-6-3) and Dimmitt (14-7-0).

The all-time series with Canyon was one filled with streaks. Canyon won the first 10 games ever played between the two schools, from 1921 to 1926. Canyon's only other streak of at least four straight wins over Hereford was from 1956 to 1959.

Hereford won five in a row from 1939-41 and 1945-46. The Whitefaces dominated Canyon since 1965, winning 16 of 19 games, including 10 straight from 1965 to 1976 and six straight from 1979 to 1986. The lone tie game in the series was a scoreless battle in 1933.

The 67-game series has seen Hereford average 14.6 points per game and Canyon average 13.5 points. In games won by Hereford, the Whitefaces outscored Canyon by an average of 25.0 points to 6.9 points.

But in games won by the Eagle teams, Canyon outscored Hereford 10.1 to 2.2 points per contest.

The first telecast of an NFL game was in 1939 when NBC relayed a contest between the Brooklyn Dodgers and Eagles to the approximately 1,000 sets in the New York area.

The Cleveland Browns played in six consecutive National Football League title games, 1950-1955.

A substitute in college football, having reported to the officials, must take part in at least one play.

Hereford shut out Canyon 12 times, and Canyon blanked Hereford 17 times.

Two of the Whitefaces' highest scoring games against the Eagles took place in the 1940s — 40-12 in 1941 and 67-0 in 1945. Hereford defeated Canyon 46-0 in 1968 for the other 40-plus scoring effort.

Canyon's 10 straight wins over Hereford in the 1920s included a 49-0 victory in the first game played in 1921 and a 63-0 win in 1925. Also, Canyon scored a 46-13 win in 1956.

The Whitefaces' record against the Eagles at home was 19-17. In games played at Canyon, the Eagles hold a 16-14-1 lead in the series.

So there's a summary about the Hereford-Canyon football series. (Next question, please!)

A catch by a running back

Among the agenda items for offensive players at Wednesday morning's Hereford Whiteface football practice was passing to the running backs. Herd players are reviewing the basics and learning the plays in preparation for the 1988 season. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

HOUSTON (AP) — San Francisco's Don Robinson had command of every pitch in his arsenal but he made one mistake with his glove.

Robinson, pressed into starting duty by injuries, allowed only one infield hit and faced only 28 batters Wednesday night, leading the Giants to a 5-0 victory over Houston.

The lone hit off Robinson came in the first inning when Terry Puhl's single glanced off Robinson's glove. Robinson tried to field the ball but he said it hit the bottom of his glove.

"I asked Robby (second baseman Robby Thompson) if I let it go would it have been a hit and he said he had it all the way," Robinson said. "It was one of those I shouldn't have touched."

Robinson missed a chance at a no-hitter but he did just about everything else right, picking up his first complete game since Sept. 18, 1982 and his first shut out victory since Oct. 5, 1980.

Robinson, 4-2, picked Puhl off first base and then retired 13 straight hitters until Alex Trevino struck out in the sixth and reached base on Robinson's wild pitch.

"This game was one of the highlights of my career," Robinson said. "I was ahead of the majority of the hitters. The first pitch is always the most important."

Oldsmobile Scramble golf tourney set August 21

Just 10 days remain for golfers to sign up and prepare for the 1988 Oldsmobile Scramble, schedule Aug. 21 at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Mike Horton, golf course pro, said individuals with an established handicap based on accepted USGA methods are eligible to participate in the scramble. Winners advance to a sectional tournament in Odessa Sept. 12.

A team must have a minimum total handicap of 43. Only one member of the team may have a handicap of 9 or lower, but all four individuals may have handicaps higher than 9.

Handicaps established 10 days before the scramble will remain in effect for the entire Oldsmobile Scramble, including the sectional and national tournaments.

The winning team from the Hereford tournament will be joined by Horton for the sectional tournament. Each team qualifying for the national finals will be joined by a PGA Tour member.

This competition is known as the "National Division." Also, a new division in the Oldsmobile Scramble this year is a "Club Division."

The Club Division teams play on the same day as National Division teams. The winning team from the Club Division does not advance to the sectional and national finals, but all

The Astros committed two errors and allowed three unearned runs but Houston Manager Hal Lanier didn't make excuses.

Jim Deshaies, 8-9, simply got no run support.

"We didn't give Jim Deshaies any run support but there wasn't much we could do, Robinson still was the big factor," Lanier said.

"All you can do is take your hat off to Robinson and put it behind you."

The Giants got two unearned runs in the fourth inning when Joel

Youngblood reached base on third baseman Ken Caminiti's throwing error.

Candy Maldonado had two sacrifice flies and Will Clark drove in a run with a single.

Trevino was the only Astros base runner to reach second. He stole second base but Robinson struck out the next two hitters to end the inning.

"I could put the ball anywhere I wanted to, I had full command of all my pitches," Robinson said. "I've had better stuff in games and given up a lot of hits."

"The key for me tonight was I had command of all my pitches and I was ahead of the majority of the hitters."

Robinson had six saves in 39 appearances this season before injuries hit the Giants' starting staff.

"If I had my choice, I'd stay as a starter," Robinson said. "I think I'll be going back to the bull pen but now I know I can go nine."

"He had a good breaking ball and a good split finger and an 92-93 miles per hour fast ball," Giants Manager Roger Craig said. "He seems to get better as the game goes on. He's a big strong man."

Houston second baseman Bill Doran agreed Robinson got better as the game progressed.

"He's got a great fast ball and tonight he had good control of it," Doran said. "He was getting his breaking ball over and he just got better as the game went on."

Club Division entry fees remain at the local level for prizes.

Each individual on a Club Division team must have a handicap of 13 or higher. The four amateur players must have a combined total handicap of 70 or higher, and only one player may have a handicap of 13 to 16. Other team members must have a handicap of 17 or higher.

Entry fees are $20 for the Club Division and National Division, $50 for the sectional (National Division only) and $50 for the national tournament (National Division only).

A typical scramble format is used in the Oldsmobile Scramble. USGA stroke rules govern all competition, except with the use of the scramble format or of any local variations.

A pamphlet with all rules of the Oldsmobile Scramble is available at the Pro Shop at the golf course.

A new Oldsmobile will be awarded to the golfer who hits the first hole in one of the tournament on hole No. 3.

The national finals will be held at Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla., on Oct. 21-24.

Cowboys' receiver refuses more surgery

Sherrard may be released

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys president Tex Schramm said receiver Mike Sherrard's decision not to have further surgery to his right leg could mean he will be released from the team.

The Cowboys advised Sherrard, the Cowboys No. 1 draft pick in 1986, to have a metal rod inserted in the cavity of the shin bone, to help strengthen the leg while rehabilitating.

But Sherrard, 25, following the advice of his personal physician, Dr. Bert Mandelbaum, will try to mend the leg without the insertion of the rod, the Cowboys said Wednesday.

"Very simply, our doctors feel that his chance of the leg recovering with sufficient strength to play football is minimal, without the operation," Schramm said.

When asked if Sherrard was defying the club by not having the operation, Schramm said, "I can't use the word 'defying' when you're talking about somebody sticking a rod down your leg. That isn't the nicest thought to think of and I can see where he doesn't want to have another operation. But that's his decision."

Schramm said the odds of Sherrard playing without having the surgery are small.

"I'm just saying that the odds don't look good without the operation," he said.

Sherrard — who Schramm says will pay for his own rehabilitation costs — was unavailable for comment.

Sherrard originally broke his leg August 5, 1987, during a joint training camp practice session with the San Diego Chargers.

By kicking himself while running a pattern, Sherrard suffered a compound fracture of both bones in the leg. He refractured the leg in March while jogging on a Los Angeles-area beach. The second break involved only the tibia, the large, weight-bearing bone in the leg.

Schramm said the Cowboys have the option of releasing Sherrard, who would be paid $65,000 as directed in the league's injury protection benefits package. Sherrard is currently on the physically-unable-to-perform list. If he remains on that list when the season starts, the Cowboys would have to pay Sherrard his full salary, estimated in excess of $200,000.

Schramm said the club must now decide if it will release Sherrard, but said he has no specific timetable to reach a decision. "I'm going to look at it as we go along," he said.

"I'm very disappointed, because I believe in our doctors and the doctors that they talk to. And I'm willing to wait for Sherrard, if he's doing everything he can to make himself in condition to play football."

"It's a dice roll," Schramm said. "I can also walk away from the dice table."

The first man to gain 1,000 yards or more rushing in the NFL was Beattie Feathers of the Chicago Bears in 1934. He picked up 1,004 yards on the ground.

Fresh black-eyes 'Nectar from the Gods'

(AUSTIN) - When Marion Travis was growing up in Central Texas in the 1930s, a cousin from Dallas told her, "Northerners don't eat black-eyed peas. They call them cow feed."

"I was incredulous," she writes in The Melting Pot: Ethnic Cuisine In Texas, a cookbook published by the Intitute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio. "Fresh black-eyed peas, with hot cornbread, fresh garden tomatoes and fresh onions were among my favorite foods—in the same class with my Grandmother Brewer's crisply fried chicken and Blue Bird vanilla ice cream from the Palace of Sweets in Cameron."

Travis advises her readers to avoid dried black-eyed peas, the dehydrated version that comes in plastic bags and is available year-round. So does Barbara Robinson, an Austin resident who awaits fresh black-eyes with the relish most people reserve for garden-grown tomatoes.

Of fresh vs. dried, Robinson said, "They are two different vegetables. It's like fresh corn—nothing equals fresh corn. Black-eyes with plenty of young snap, and just a tad of salt pork the last 10 minutes of cooking, they're nectar from the gods."

Snaps, to the uninitiated, are the pods that contain the peas. Fresh pods are green and tender. The peas inside are a delicate green with a less prominent dark spot or eye than dried peas. Bigger, cream-colored peas that show up occasionally can be used or discarded. "We usually throw them out when we shell them," said Carol Guthrie, Texas Department of Agriculture home economist, another fan of fresh peas.

Fresh black-eyes don't require soaking before they are cooked, Guthrie said. Just rinse them in cold water. They are a good source of carbohydrates and contain protein, iron, calcium, and some B vitamins.

Now is the time to shop for blackeyes peas. Some supermarkets carry them, but the freshest ones are most likely to be found in farmers markets and roadside stands. There is some argument over how long to cook them. Some say 20 minutes in the pot will do it. Others prefer longer simmering to tenderize the peas. "The best rule of thumb if you haven't cooked fresh peas is to taste them," said Guthrie. You'll know when they're ready.

In the meantime, enjoy Marion Travis' recipe for cooking and eating black-eyed peas, reprinted from The Melting Pot.

BLACK-EYED PEAS, CORNBREAD, TOMATOES AND ONIONS

- 1 qt. fresh shelled black-eyed peas
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 T. fresh bacon drippings or 2 uncooked cured bacon slices
- Pan of hot cornbread
- 2 lg. firm, ripe tomatoes
- 4 onions, about 1 in. in diameter
- Salt and pepper to taste

Wash shelled peas thoroughly in a colander or a pan. There will be some delicate pea skins remaining, which is good. Pour all into a large saucepan and cover with water. This becomes the pot liquor. Add salt and ease in fresh bacon drippings or bacon. Do not use margarine, butter, salt pork, ham or other oily ingredients. Cook on high heat until they reach a rolling boil. Turn the heat down to a slow boil for 20 minutes or until tender. The pot liquor will be dark. The peas will be darkish green.

While the peas are cooking, make your best recipe of cornbread. Perfect this in advance. Good cornbread is essential to the quality of the meal. Slice tomatoes on a plate with onions. The onions should have green tops but do not have to be the tiny, mild onions often used in salads.

The layered feast should be arranged as follows: Serve your plate with several spoonfuls of hot blackeyed peas. Mound them into the center of your plate. Take a large piece of warm cornbread and crumble it quickly over the peas. It should have its stove heat when you begin eating. Do not butter your cornbread.

Place cool tomato slices to taste on top of the cornbread and slices of crisp, cool onion to taste on top of tomatoes. Immediately ladle out several spoonfuls of warm pot liquor onto the plate. Not too many. You are not making soup, just a good eating consistency. Take knife in one hand, fork in the other and cut-over and over.

This cuts up the tomatoes and onions, completes the cornbread crumbling and mixes the whole culinary marvel together. Dissimilarity in food textures, vegetable and bread temperatures and flavors makes this combination surpassingly delicious.

About 1,500 Cuban exiles launched the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba April 17, 1961, in an attempt to overthrow the government of Fidel Castro. The invasion failed and most of the survivors were captured.

Scales of justice tip against Garland fisherman

JEFFERSON, Texas (AP) — The scales of justice tipped against a Garland man accused of placing lead weights that tipped the scales and led to a prize-winning fish.

David Lynd, 25, received a two-year probated prison sentence Wednesday in connection with an attempted felony theft charge stemming from the discovery of lead weights in his prize catch during the KYKX Big Bass Classic fishing tournament.

State District Judge Bill Porter said the sentence was the lightest that could be assessed for the heavy fish. State law provides for a maximum punishment of two to 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $5,000 for attempted felony theft.

Lynd, an unemployed beer salesman, showed no emotion after the guilty verdict and sentence were handed down, but he appeared shaken later and referred all questions about the case to his attorney, Jerry Biesel, of Dallas.

Biesel also declined comment, but Marion County Attorney Marion Hileman said after the two-day trial, "I can't conscientiously say I have any complaints with the decision they reached."

Mike Gatons, KYKX, vice president and general manager said he was "very satisfied with the jury verdict." Gatons said the jury sentence shows his radio station which hosts the bass tournament at Lake 'O The Pines each spring is committed to holding a "good and clean tournament."

Lynd took the stand as the only defense witness and denied placing four weights in his bass in a bid to win the tournament's first-place $105,000 prize.

Lynd denied buying the weights at a Garland K Mart store although game wardens found an itemized cash register receipt detailing the purchase in Lynd's fishing boat at Lake 'O The Pines after he was arrested May 1.

Biesel told jurors Lynd would not have placed the weights in the fish because he knew that the tournament judges would cut it open for inspection.

"He is no rocket scientist," Biesel told jurors, "but he isn't crazy."

Tournament officials disqualified Lynd's fish when they discovered four egg-shaped weights in the bass' belly on the second day of the tournament.

Lynd's fish weighed 7.64 pounds and lead the 6,000-plus field of contestants before being disallowed by tournament director, Richard Purdy.

The disqualification allowed Grand Prairie resident Jimmy Trent to claim the first-place prize with a 7.43 pounder.

Football officials' training sessions begin August 15

Training sessions for new football officials will begin on Aug. 15 at 6:30 p.m., before the regular 7 p.m. meeting of the Southwest Football Officials Association at First National Bank Building in Amarillo.

The training sessions will be held each Monday and will include viewing of films of 6-man and 11-man football officiating mechanics, attending live drills, observation of experienced officials, and a study of rules interpretations.

The 1988 Southwest Football Officials Association meetings will be held weekly until the first week of November. Rickey Keaton, chairman of recruiting, said, "The membership is dedicated to making the association a professional organization and training new members to become the best officials in the state."

Also, the Amarillo Chapter will sponsor a regional clinic for present and new members, at the Amarillo High School auditorium on Aug. 20 at 8 p.m. Dr. Bill Farney of the University Interscholastic League will be the featured speaker at the rules interpretations at 7 p.m.

Keaton said, "The rules interpretations meeting would be a good time for the press and new members to meet with coaches from area schools and discuss the upcoming season." Keaton encourages coaching staffs to attend this meeting.

Anyone interested in joining the officials association may contact Keaton at 358-3934 or Greg Boggs at 359-1768.

Salazar delivers game-winning single

Morris, Tigers beat Rangers, 2-1

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Detroit Tigers right-hander Jack Morris said he's pitching much better now that the opposing batter doesn't know what the next pitch is.

Morris gave up only four hits, struck out five and walked one in 8-plus innings Wednesday night in a 2-1 victory over the Texas Rangers that Luis Salazar delivered with an

Agriculture Softball League tourney schedule

Here is the schedule for Sunday's championship tournament of the Summer Agriculture Productive Softball League, to be played at the VFW field:

Game one: Holly Sugar vs. M.W. Carrot, 1 p.m.

Game two: Barrett-Fisher vs. DeBruyn, 2:15 p.m.

Game three: Winners of game one and game two, 3:30 p.m.

Game four: Losers of game one and game two, 4:45 p.m.

Game five: Loser of 3:30 p.m. game vs. winner of 4:45 p.m. game, 6 p.m.

Game six: Championship game, 7:15 p.m.

Game seven: Second championship game, if necessary, 8:30 p.m.

eight-inning RBI single.

"I know for a fact that I've been tipping off my pitches. Two people have told me of it. It makes a big difference when the hitter knows what you're throwing. I think I've gotten that taken care of," Morris said.

Morris retired 14 of the first 15 batters he faced and had a 1-hitter going until the sixth, when Texas gained a 1-1 tie on Jeff Kunkel's double and Pete O'Brien's single.

"He's been throwing bullets the last four games," said Anderson, whose Tigers opened up a 4-game lead atop the American League East.

"It wouldn't surprise me if he wins seven of his next nine starts. That's the kind of pitcher he is. When he gets going, look out. He'll be a big force for us."

Alan Trammell had three of the seven hits off Paul Kilgus, 9-10, who pitched the entire game for Texas.

Trammell doubled in the first inning. He singled and scored on Ray Knight's sacrifice fly for the Tigers' 1-0 lead in the fourth inning.

Then Trammell set the stage for Salazar's seventh game-winning RBI of the season by hitting a two-out single in the eighth that fell just in front of centerfielder Cecil Espy.

The ball bounced off Espy's glove, Trammell raced to second, and scored easily on Salazar's single to center.

"I just missed it. I stuck out my hand and missed it. I just misjudged it," Espy said.

Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine said Kilgus pitched well enough to win.

Kilgus scattered seven hits, walked three and struck out one.

"He had no problems. They couldn't hit the ball hard off him all night. He matched Morris pitch for pitch, almost," Valentine said of Kilgus.

"But Morris is a good pitcher. We had him going, but we couldn't put him away," Valentine said.

"They played good baseball. They'll get a couple of bloop, a walk, and come up with a run. I don't know if that's the ideal way to play the game, but that's how they're doing it, and they're good."

Kilgus said: "That's as good a game as I've thrown this year. Take away a couple of bloop, and I get the win."

Morris needed help from Guillermo Hernandez in the ninth after giving up a leadoff single to Curtis Wilkerson.

O'Brien sacrificed Wilkerson to second, and the Rangers had runners at first and third with one out when Ruben Sierra beat out an infield single.

But Hernandez struck out both Pete Incaviglia and pinch-hitter Bob Brower on fastballs to end the game and earn his fifth save.

On Sept. 7, 1987, pitcher Jeff Robinson of the Pirates tied a major league record by striking out the side in one inning on nine pitches.

Babe Ruth, primarily a slugger, made 200 or more base hits in a season three times.

Shop farmers markets for food, fun now

(AUSTIN) — Buying food at a farmers market is more like an outing than a weekly shopping chore. These outdoor markets are sociable places. Shoppers browse, trying to gauge the flavor of jewel-like beets and shiny zucchini with their eyes. Strangers or not, they talk to one another.

If someone liked the tomatoes last week, she's likely to tell the customer in line ahead of her how good they were. She may even offer a recipe in the rapid shorthand of such fleeting but friendly relationships. Farmers, too, always ready with a word, give shoppers their secrets on growing and cooking fresh vegetables.

Then there's the food itself—bright, healthy-looking produce picked the day before, fresh eggs, native honey glowing in jars.

"First and foremost it's fresh," said Donna Startz, president and board chairman of the Corpus Christi Farmers Market Association. "Nothing is over 24 hours old except for the melons and the grapefruit. For the money it's a better buy. It's either the same price or cheaper than in the grocery store, and because of its age there's less spoilage."

Mrs. George Green, Gonzales, who sells eggs with her husband in Austin and San Antonio, takes the eggs out of the cage Friday evening for a Saturday market. "When you buy a fresh egg," she said, "the yolk stands up high."

This is the sixth season that the Texas Department of Agriculture has assisted farmers markets in a program that has grown to 87 markets in 70 towns and cities. Most markets opened during May and early June. Those in the Panhandle began selling in late July.

Each market is managed and operated locally by producers in cooperation with local governments, Chamber of Commerce, Main Street projects, community organizations and Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension agents. This year producers in Fort Worth and San Antonio are accepting food stamps to make fresh fruit and vegetables more available to low-income and inner-city residents. Awaiting food stamp certification are markets in Waco, Beaumont, Amarillo, Lubbock, Plainview, Del Rio, Corpus Christi, Hillsboro, Tyler, Lufkin and Austin.

Paula De La Fuente, TDA farmers market coordinator, advises shoppers to arrive at farmers markets early to get the best selection. "Browse around, see what's available," she said. "Don't be afraid to try something different. The farmers are real open. They like to talk about how they grow a vegetable and how you can cook it."

Though produce in general will not vary greatly from market to market, regional and specialty food items give markets their own distinctive flavors. In El Paso shoppers can buy long green chiles and ahve them roasted on the spot. In Gonzales they can select fresh Amish bread a will as live chickens. Corsicana sells seedless red and purple table grapes and edible flowers. There are blueberries in East Texas, yellow tomatoes and hot Egyptian onions in Corpus Christi, sausage and quail in Amarillo. And in Eagle Pass—how about a live goat?

Organic produce is also being sold in some markets. One of the added shopping benefits, Startz says, is being able to ask the farmer how he grew his crop. "If you're interested in what chemicals are going on your food, you can find out from the guy who's standing there."

The produce looks so good at farmers market shoppers frequently can't resist buying a little extra. Here are two recipes to help them enjoy that garden-fresh overflow.

ZUCCHINI-TOMATO SKILLET

- 3 T. butter or margarine
- 2 T. brown sugar
- 2 T. prepared mustard
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 2 med. sliced zucchini
- 3 med. tomatoes

In large skillet over medium heat, heat butter, brown sugar, mustard and salt until butter is melted. Add zucchini slices; heat to boiling. Reduce heat to medium-low, cover and simmer 20 minutes or until zucchini is tender, basting occasionally with liquid in skillet. Slice tomatoes, then cut each slice in half. Tuck tomato slices among zucchini slices; heat through. Makes 6 servings.

GREEN BEANS AND PEPPER STRIPS

- 1 1/4 lb. fresh green beans
- 2 sliced green onions
- 2 T. olive oil
- 1 minced garlic clove
- 1 red or green bell pepper, cut into strips
- 1 tsp. dried marjoram
- 2 T. water
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. black pepper

Wash beans, trim ends and cut or snap into 1 1/2-inch pieces; set aside. In large skillet, saute green onions in hot oil 1 minute. Stir in green beans and remaining ingredients; bring to a boil. Cover, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

BLACK-EYED PEA SALAD

- 2 T. vegetable oil
- 3 T. red wine vinegar
- 1 chopped med. onion
- 1/2 C. minced fresh parsley
- 1 lg. crushed garlic clove
- 1 tsp. dried basil
- 1/2 tsp. dried oregano
- 1/4 tsp. dry mustard
- 1/4 tsp. black pepper
- 1/8 tsp. red pepper flakes (optional)
- 1/2 lb. fresh black-eyed peas, cooked
- Green pepper rings

In medium bowl, combine oil, vinegar, onion, parsley, garlic, basil, oregano, mustard, black pepper and red pepper. Pour dressing over warm, cooked peas, which have been placed in a large bowl. Toss the salad gently. Cover peas and refrigerate at least 8 hours or overnight, tossing once. To serve, line edge of a large platter with pepper rings. Heap peas in the middle. Makes 6 servings.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Fibroids BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 44 years old and facing a hysterectomy. My uterus is enlarged to the 16th-week size from fibroids. Can my menstrual cycle be stopped so the fibroids can shrink? I am in good health now. I can deal with the loss of hormones later. The uterus isn't causing trouble to other organs at this time. I do flow heavily. I take iron to keep from getting anemic. Is there any solution besides surgery?

DEAR READER: Each case is an individual matter and you cannot establish ground rules that apply to every question about having a hysterectomy for fibroids. But if fibroid tumors of the uterus are rather large, it is generally believed that it is best to have the fibroid removed or to have a hysterectomy. The size used as a benchmark is the size of a 12-week pregnancy, and if yours is at the 16th-week size, you certainly exceed that.

Whether or not there are complications is also a consideration. Bleeding is an important complication and how serious it is depends on how much bleeding you have.

It is true that fibroids shrink after the hormones decrease with the menopause. Some cases can be managed conservatively with hormones that counteract the ovarian hormones or help prevent bleeding. Depo-Provera has been used in this manner until a woman enters the menopause. But, again, it depends on the individual situation.

Your story suggests that it is not unreasonable to recommend a hysterectomy. If you are concerned about the recommendation, I would suggest you get a second opinion. I'm sure you will want to read more about having a hysterectomy so I'm sending you a free copy of Special Report 56, Hysterectomy, Cystocele and Rectocele. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to THE HEALTH LETTER/56, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I would like to have an explanation about a woman who has had no menses. My granddaughter is 20 years old now, but has not menstruated. I think this is not normal. Please give me an explanation about her malady and the remedy. I am very much worried.

DEAR READER: If a woman has not menstruated before age 18, something is wrong. However, finding out what is wrong is often complicated. The condition is called primary amenorrhea.

Primary amenorrhea may be caused by something as simple as an imperforate hymen — meaning that the membrane that guards the opening of the vaginal canal may be solid and needs opening. In some women there is no uterus. There may be genetic defects that affect the reproductive tract. This can be determined by a careful examination.

Your granddaughter should see a gynecologist for such an evaluation. There are several endocrine abnormalities that may cause lack of menstruation. Rarely, it is because the ovaries fail to function. In other cases there may be something wrong with the pituitary gland.

Young women who have been exceptionally athletic and are thin may have absence of menstruation. And girls who are exceptionally thin from self-starvation — anorexia nervosa — may have upset their hormone system to the point that they do not menstruate.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I was in the Marines in World War II. Just after getting out of the service, I was sitting in a waiting room reading a magazine and fell sound asleep. I had trouble staying awake through college. I can be talking to someone and go to sleep sitting in a chair during the conversation. If I try to read or study, I go to sleep. I have to struggle to keep awake while driving a car.

My doctor wanted me to see a specialist and he set up an appointment for me. My wife called and cancelled the appointment. Her comments have always been, "There is nothing wrong with you — you are just lazy." When I try to read at night and fall asleep she yells, "Is sleeping all you ever think about?" Believe me, I don't enjoy it. Is this a medical problem?

DEAR READER: It is a medical problem and it is not because you are lazy. You may quote me to your wife. She should stop interfering with your doctor's attempts to help you. Ask your doctor to set up another appointment.

Your story is that of the narcolepsy group of disorders. The sleep attacks are not under your control. You need to be studied to be sure that you don't have sleep apnea — stopping breathing at frequent intervals during the night to the point that your nighttime sleep is not effective. If you are considerably overweight, you could have a problem related to poor ventilation of your lungs. Otherwise, it is probably related to the brain's function with the various sleep cycles.
