Singers have fond Australia memories

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

Surrounded by koala bears, kangaroos as plentiful as dogs and strange "spakin' papple," the 37-member Chamber Singers captured lots of moments on Kodak film and have a thousand stories to tell about the Land Down Under during their visit to Australia's World Expo '88 in Brisbane, Australia, in June.

Six of the 37 met Wednesday night, dragging out the vinyl photo albums, and rehabbed some of the thrilling and not-so-thrilling adventures of a bunch of Texans in another hemisphere.

Day 1: The singing troop departs the United States June 11, arriving June 13 in Brisbane after losing a day due to crossing the international date line. They went by bus to Surfer's Paradise, a hotel on the Gold Coast of Queensland and quickly dropped their bags (except for Joe Wallace who lost his luggage somewhere over the Pacific).

"I couldn't believe the shadows and how long they were because it was winter down there," said Bobby Boyd, a tenor, whose wife, Bera, also sings with the group. "There were poinsettia trees everywhere and everything was so lush and green. And what tickled us so much is that our tour guide was apologizing for the weather and it was beautiful — no wind, sunny, just beautiful."

Amy Gilliland, president of the Chamber Singers, said she was impressed with the city's cleanliness. "I'm not sure what they did with their beggars and bones, but there were none to be found," she said.

Some of the group toured a rain forest, others checked out a barbeque (barbecue for those needing a translation), and still more visited Sea World and took in some fishing.

Day 2: More of the same. One couple in the group reportedly held a koala and was licked by a kangaroo.

Day 3: Another day of sightseeing. Ken Walser, who traveled with his wife, Jan, said wading through the countless number of Japanese was a nightmare.

"They're so little they can run around ya and in between your legs," said Walser. "They all wore these navy blue outfits and they all wore knee socks. I guess the Japanese are pretty much taking over Australia and buying up the place 'cause a lot of the signs were in Japanese."

The group took a boat ride up a river at Brisbane to the Lone Pine Koala Sanctuary where the koala bears were in force. Other wildlife included peacocks, dingos and fruit bats (which the women squeal at when mentioned).

Another wildlife in abundance are the aborigines which, according to the singers, are looked down upon by the Aussies because the aborigines tend to sap the welfare.

Taking the bus up to a hill that overlooked Brisbane (the widest-spread city in Australia), the quartet of Bill Devers (Chamber Singers director), Boyd, James Maccliskey and George Ochs sang a few barbershop quartet songs.

Day 4: The few days of sightseeing have now slowed since this is the day the Chamber Singers would perform their two shows at the Expo — but first, the group entertained children at the McGregor Primary School.

"This was probably my favorite part of the whole trip," said Gilliland. "There were about 850 kids, first through eighth graders, and the auditorium was packed. Their honor choir sang for us and then we sang for them. They especially liked the quartet."

Boyd mentioned that in one of the quartet's songs, the name "Lulu" is used. This roused a snicker from the children because

"lulu" in Australia means "bathroom."

After sharing morning tea with the students, the Singers disassembled and talked to different groups. The children had been studying the United States and were loaded with questions — some a little personal after one child asked who the oldest singer was.

The rest of the day was spent performing at the Expo in the misting rain. Because the stage was wet and to prevent the singers from getting soaked, Devers had to concoct new blocking for the singers. The crowds weren't huge in front of the stage, admitted Cindy Rogers, but she attributed this to a lack of publicity since the Chamber Singers were not listed on the program.

Day 5: A little pomp and circumstance was in order for Day Five with the singers presenting Brisbane's Lord Mayor Sallye Ann Atkinson with the keys to Hereford, and the mayor's aide, who was acting for the mayor, gave the singers a commemorative plaque.

Day 6: The group performed its 30-minute religious concert at the St. Andrews-Ann Street Uniting Church where they were fed supper and dinner.

"This was really confusing to us because we didn't know if we should fill up at dinner or supper because they both mean the same thing to us," Gilliland said. "We later found out that dinner is the meal and supper is the coffee and biscuits served after dinner."

Each member of the group stayed with a host family and this was their chance to see Aussies up close.

"Their houses were not that prettily decorated," stated Rogers. "They were pretty much functional. I mean, they all had the microwaves and the

Senators lobby for AG successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators are weighing in with their favorite candidates for attorney general, while the man who's leaving the job predicts his successor will not be "a clone of anybody else."

President Reagan launched his search Wednesday for Edwin Meese III's replacement and one of his first steps in the process was to meet with the departing attorney general.

A lightning rod of controversy because of his conservative policies and his personal legal problems, Meese announced Tuesday he would be gone in a few weeks. He declared himself vindicated by an 830-page report on his official conduct compiled by independent counsel James McKay, although he acknowledged he had not yet seen it.

The report has not been released by a special federal court. While sources have said the report recommends against a criminal indictment, its conclusions on Meese's ethical conduct remain unclear.

While no names of possible successors were volunteered at the White House, senators made sure that a steady list of possibilities kept drifting from Capitol Hill to the White House.

Two members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, ranking Republican Strom Thurmond and Democrat Dennis DeConcini, suggested former Republican Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada as Meese's successor. Laxalt was considered the president's closest Senate ally before retiring.

Tom Loranger, a spokesman for Laxalt, quoted the former senator as saying, "There is absolutely no truth to the rumors about my going to the Justice Department."

Laxalt's secretary at his Washington law office, Janene Assuras, said her boss was "not interested" in the job, but didn't know what he would do if Reagan asked.

DeConcini, of Arizona, also recommended former House Republican leader John Rhodes from his home state.

Thurmond, of South Carolina, also had other suggestions: former Democratic Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, who served under Jimmy Carter; and Reagan's first attorney general, William French Smith.

Responding to a reporter's question, Thurmond said former Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole "would make an excellent attorney general."

Her husband, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., suggested that former White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr. and Washington lawyer Judith Richards Hope, daughter-in-law of comedian Bob Hope, would qualify.

Baker resigned as chief of staff, effective June 30, to return to private law practice in Tennessee. Mrs. Hope's nomination to succeed Robert H. Bork on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia has not yet been acted upon by the Senate.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah and a Judiciary Committee member, favors acting Deputy Attorney General Harold Christensen, of Salt Lake City. A newcomer to the department, Christensen's confirmation hearing for the deputy's job is set for July 27.

Conservative Republican Sen. Steve Symms of Idaho recommended Eugene Thomas of Boise, president of the American Bar Association in 1986-87.

Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato, R-N.Y., suggested a homestate judge, Sol Wachtler, chief judge of the New York Court of Appeals. His term on the state court expires in January 1999.

Interviewed on Cable News Network, Meese was asked what kind of person he thought should succeed him.

155 missing in North Sea

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — Fire engulfed a North Sea oil platform with 232 workers aboard, breaking it apart and leaving 155 people missing today in one of the worst oil rig disasters ever, authorities said.

Energy Secretary Cecil Parkinson said the fire destroyed the rig's living quarters and caused "a very, very substantial loss of life."

U.S.-based Occidental Petroleum, which owns the rig, said most of the victims died as they slept.

More than 12 hours after the blaze flashed through the rig at 9:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. EDT) Wednesday, only one person was confirmed dead, but the number of missing suggested it was the worst disaster to hit a North Sea oil platform in eight years, and possibly the worst ever.

Rescue boats and helicopters, including vessels from a NATO task force, converged on the disaster area 120 miles northeast of the Scottish coast.

Parkinson told reporters the survivors were on-duty workers who leaped clear of the flames into the sea. The 649-foot-high platform stood 150 feet above the water line.

Aberdeen Royal Infirmary said it took in 71 survivors and was expecting five more aboard a rescue helicopter.

The injured "range from people who were able to walk away to those who are seriously ill with 50 percent burns," said hospital spokesman Alan Reid. "We have a lot of burns cases because, I gather, there were two explosions and there were people literally jumping for their lives."

He said 36 survivors remained hospitalized. The one death was confirmed by the Royal Air Force Rescue and Coordination Center.

Many workers were thought to have jumped into the frigid sea and some were taken to at least two other rigs in the area.

Witnesses said the flames engulfed the rig and towered over the horizon.

"When we went on late last night, we certainly could see the fire raging from 60 to 70 miles away and the flames at that time were, we'd estimate, 300 or 400 feet. It was really an inferno," said Royal Air Force Squadron Leader Garfield Porter, who was involved in the rescue.

"It was a very confused picture but certainly people were being picked out of the water, especially in the first hours... And then, as the time went on, the numbers being picked out started to lessen," he told BBC television.

Coast Guard spokesman Peter Webb said rescue conditions were good. "The weather in the area remains good. Visibility is good. There's not too much wind and sea conditions are fair," he said.

Occidental said in a statement that it would shut down its nearby Claymore and Tartan oil production rigs pending an investigation of the disaster.

The worst North Sea oil field disaster was in 1980, when 137 crewmen on the accommodation platform Alexander I. Kielland died when it capsized in storms in the Ekofisk area. Most of the dead were Norwegians.

Babbling Brooks

I have a new respect for T. Boone Pickens after finally reading his book, BOONE.

In the book, Boone retraces many of his steps and tells his side of the story on his "takeover" attempts, how he fought to save his company, and about how to cure some of the ills of American business and industry today.

Pickens also provides an important lesson for everyone by constantly reminding the reader that the stockholders, not the managements, own the companies.

You also learn how he took very little money and created what is and has been Mesa Petroleum. To say he started from scratch may not be describing how little he had to start out with.

It's a heck of a story. You done good, Boone.

Another book you should read, if you can get your hands on a copy (no, you can't have mine) is Songs of Andalusia, a collection of poems written by Bill Neeley.

The book was published by the Castro County Historical Commission and is a compilation of his thoughts and dreams of Spain drawn from a one-week visit to Spain in 1983.

I ain't a poem collector, but this is good stuff.

Another thing that makes it nice is that, like it or not sports fans, if you're living anywhere in the Southwestern U.S. you have Spanish roots. This area was found by Spain, settled by Spain, and to say we still have a tremendous Spanish influence is understating the point.

If you'd like a copy of the book, contact the Castro County Museum in Dimmitt.

"It's never too late to pay an old debt" has probably been around since Confucius was a gleam in someone's eye, but it's been brought to bear between two old friends — one of whom lives in Hereford.

Esther Kizer of Mackinaw, Ill., didn't owe Mabel Watson, who now lives in Hereford, the $100, but Esther's dad did owe Mabel's brother $100, and had owed it for over 50 years.

It was back during another drought, during the latter stages of the Dust Bowl that gripped most of the U.S., Esther explained in her letter to Mabel.

"More than 50 years ago, Kansas had a drought, and well went dry and whole orchards died," Esther wrote.

"My dad made the wrong move, and had to drive all the livestock a mile down the road to a deeper well. He also got panicky . . . and borrowed money from his best friend, your brother.

"Time and old age caught up with him and he never had it to pay back. "Thomas told me and is so sorry he hasn't repaid it, but he is married to a wicked witch, so his hands are tied. So I vowed if I ever could I would repay it. I want you to accept it with great memories of your brother. Maybe it will be a joy to you."

Mabel's son, Gene Teeter, says Mabel was grateful for the thought, but the check is in the mail — back to Esther.

Burning up

If you've been burning up lately, it's probably from higher-than-normal humidity — you can figure how hot it feels with the heat index from the July 5 Brand. It was especially hot just north of town, where these pallets were burned. Trying to find an ideal solution, right, is Angela Guajardo, who gives a friend a welcome squirt from a water gun.

Lockheed sued for contract abuses

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A lawsuit accusing a top defense contractor of charging the government for everything "from building a private plane to typing the Bible into a computer could open the way for fraud investigations into top-secret projects, a watchdog group says.

"What we have is a little wedge into the 'black' world," projects so secret they often don't appear on the defense budget, said Dina Rasor, head of the Washington-based Project on Military Procurement.

"(It shows) you can expose fraud and waste in a black program" without divulging sensitive information, she said.

Rasor spoke at a news conference Wednesday to unseal the lawsuit alleging fraud and overcharging against Lockheed Missiles & Space Co., the leading defense contractor in California's high-tech Silicon Valley.

The lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court by a former and a current employee, claims Lockheed workers, while waiting months for security clearances, goofed off, ran profitable businesses, ran a football pool and even built a private plane — all at government expense.

If proved, the charges could result in suspension of defense contracts. The alleged violations at one California plant cost the government more than $10 million, but that figure could go higher, the plaintiffs' attorney said.

"We expect additional people are going to step forward and describe additional examples of fraud at Lockheed," said Oakland lawyer Guy T. Saperstein.

Lockheed, the plaintiffs also charged, told employees to bill various government contracts for 40 hours even if they worked less and to charge their time to contracts on which they had not worked.

Lockheed denied the accusations. "We very vigorously deny that false claims have been or are made or condoned by the company," said company spokesman George Mulhern. "In fact, we've had a very strong program over the past several years to make sure all employees know any form of mischarging is wrong and can lead to disciplinary action, including dismissal, if warranted."

Mulhern said the company would wait until it receives a copy of the suit before responding to specific allegations.

"(But) we are also very confident the suit, if it goes to trial, will show the company has not engaged in any improper practices," he said.

dishwashers but none of the decorations we have over here."

Driving in Australia, according to the group, is an enlightening experience too. For one thing, the driver's seat is reversed from the American-built cars and all the buses have kangaroo catchers on the front because the brawny critters often attack the vehicles. Kangaroo crossing signs are also plentiful along the winding roads.

Day 7: The group had its first bout of sickness on the nine-hour bus ride to Port Macquarie.

"We were on what is considered one of the better highways in Australia, and it was like the road from Hereford to Easter!" exclaimed Bera Boyd. "We had folks getting sick all day, popping that Dramamine."

Day 8: The group felt it had a delightful time in Brisbane. Another experience awaited the Singers at Sydney. Express lanes were non-existent so the bus was constantly stopping and starting at each red light.

"Sydney was very cosmopolitan compared to Brisbane," said Bera. "People were more cold and distant and not as helpful as those we met in Brisbane."

The Sydney Opera House was a favorite for several of the singers, but a larger group lusted for the "wilder" side of town — King's Cross.

"There were queers, transvestites, everything imaginable down there," stated Devers.

Ginger Wallace didn't mention who was victimized, but one of the singers was accosted by a "lady of the evening."

Day 9: The singers toured the historic Rocks area (the Plymouth Rock for Australia), and the night was spent at a wool shed which had been revamped into a restaurant.

"We did Australian folk dances, ate beef and homemade apple pie and it was just a lot of fun," Bobby said. "We were all just getting out there and dancing up a storm. It was very vigorous."

Day 10: Day of departure. Ten of the crew headed for New Zealand and the others shuttled off to San Francisco. The day that was lost coming to Australia was added on the journey back, and the singers were exhausted.

"It was like we were going around a pole in the middle of the ocean," explained Wallace.

After the suitcases were unloaded and the stories were being exchanged, Bera said she felt the 37 from Hereford made quite an impression on the Aussies.

"Our guide was telling us that we were probably the true representation of American; because we were so friendly, easygoing and didn't put up a fuss. He had messed with Americans from the east coast before and they were very uptight about everything. We just took it easy, and I think we were excellent ambassadors for the U.S."

Hot and dry

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Forecasters for the National Weather Service station here have all sorts of sophisticated instruments, including a bank of hunk computers, to help predict the weather. They can call upon computer-generated graphs and maps and on their own expertise as meteorologists.

Or they can just stick their faces out the front door.

"Everybody knows it's gonna be hot," Skip Ely said with a shrug. Ely is meteorologist in charge and area manager for the North Texas forecasting office.

Indeed, as Texas joins other states in willing under what has been described as the worst nationwide drought in 50 years, government weather forecasters vainly seek signs of relief from high temperatures and the repetitive predictions.

"This is kind of a slack time," Ely said.

So, since they're not challenged by tornadoes (which usually come in the spring) or hurricanes (which are more common in the fall) or the threat of winter storms, the 25-member office concentrates more on some fine details in the art of forecasting.

For instance, Ely debates aloud with himself whether to predict a 40 percent chance of rain out of an East Texas storm or merely a 30 percent chance.

Nearby, posted figures show the Dallas-Fort Worth area's rainfall totals to be 5.66 inches, or 34 percent below normal for the year. Wichita Falls is only 13 percent below normal, but Lufkin particularly was needing what the East Texas storm could provide. Rainfall there is 13.27 inches, 63 percent below normal.

Ely opts to go with a 40 percent chance for Lufkin.

"I have a wet bias," he said, which means he tends to lean toward predicting a higher probability of rain than does, say, Tommy Trimble, Ely's deputy, who has a "dry bias." Hence, Ely's nickname around the office: "Swamp Ely."

"Have you ever wondered how forecasters arrive at a probability of precipitation?" Ely asks. He explains the weather service formula this way:

Forecasters don't like it, either; they're looking hard, in vain, for rain

"First you look at an area and figure what part of it will get rain. Let's say you think 50 percent of the area will get rain. Then you look at how confident you are that there will be any rain at all. Suppose you're only 50 percent confident that there will be rain. You multiply the 50 percent times 50 percent and get a 25 percent probability of rain."

Ely is working the "plain language desk" this particular day. His forecasts will go out to media throughout the North Texas area. Trimble is on the aviation forecasting desk, and Brad Fujii is on the local forecasting desk.

"Plain language" is something of a misnomer, because everyone in the bureau speaks a strange language.

A note taped to one of the "plain language" computer terminals reads: "The SKEWT's are being run at ABI again, so you should receive the run after 0130Z and 1330Z. I have added the RAOB MACRO to AEX for the morning fire weather forecast. It will run at 1280Z. This should be late enough to pick up the MAN and SGL products."

At one point Trimble expresses concern that the temperature is 89 and there isn't a cloud in the sky.

"I predicted we'd have cumulus clouds forming when it reached 88," he said. He is working at a computer terminal but also keeps watch out the window.

The 10th-floor federal building window not only serves as a source of light for the office, but occasionally reassures forecasters that they haven't lost their touch.

"Look there," Trimble said, pointing to a bit of fluff in the sky. "It's 90 degrees." Within minutes a dozen small clouds have formed, thus refuting the widely held belief that clouds come scurrying in over the horizon when no one is watching.

On the windowsill rests a rudimentary forecasting tool, a pair of binoculars, which Ely says are used mostly for getting close-up looks at storm clouds as they approach.

By far the most sophisticated piece of equipment is the bureau's computer, which automatically tracks weather balloons released twice a day from points as diverse as Stephenville, Longview and Lake Charles, La.

The computer processes data on wind speeds, temperatures, humidity and barometric pressure transmitted by the balloons' instruments and analyzes it along with other data and produces its own predictions.

Ely flicks a switch and a concise forecast appears on one of a half-dozen terminals at his station. "There you have a computer forecast, untouched by human hands," he said.

What the computer can't forecast or recognize, he said, is small weather features, such as local storms or tornadoes. So the small features are where the human beings concentrate their efforts.

Ely's predictions for rain appeared to be on the mark. But what everyone wants to know is when will we get any significant, widespread rain.

"October," Ely said. "I'd say October."

That's not what we wanted to hear.

Now You're Cooking

BY GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

Reruns of the western television series "Bonanza" hold a special place in Linda Baird's heart: she knew the actor who played Hoss Cartwright as a good friend.

"Dan Blocker was the first person to come visit when I was born," said Baird. "Our families all lived in O'Donnell, where Blocker's parents ran the only grocery store in town. He ran around with my uncle, so our families were close. Although he has passed away, we still keep up with his family in California."

Raised on a farm family and a graduate of O'Donnell High School, Baird received a bachelor of science degree in education from Lubbock Christian College. She has lived in Hereford for 15 years, teaching within the Hereford Independent School System for that length of time and is currently a first grade teacher at Aikman Elementary School.

When she is not teaching, Baird calls 110 16th Street home along with her family, which she describes as an "on-the-go family." Husband Ross is employed by Water Industries as a driller and their children, Jana, age 11, and Jerry, age 7, also lead active lives. "Jerry plays Little League baseball and is active in RA's and the church choir at First Baptist Church, where we are members. Jana plays the piano, is active in GA's, and enjoyed a recent computer course. They both are having fun swimming this summer and participating in the library's reading program."

Obviously, this summer is not a time of leisure for Baird, who is teaching summer school. She is preparing for her role as representative to the Classroom Teachers Association where she will help select curriculum on self responsibility through health. A member of the choir at First Baptist Church, she has been active in Texas State Teachers Association and served as a Big Sister in the local Big Brother/Big Sister program.

Working in the yard and collecting mementos from overseas are pastimes enjoyed by Baird, who also likes all types of music and handwork such as embroidery. Gardening with her mother-in-law, Irene Baird, also keeps the energetic, bubbly woman busy.

"I use the summertime to can all sorts of vegetables and some fruit," Baird said. "I enjoy cooking all types of food, focusing on vegetable-type casseroles."

Baird admits that her cooking ability was fostered at an early age. "When I was a 7th grader, my mother cut a tendon in her hand so she and my grandmother taught me to handle the cooking duties."

"When our family got together, we often had 45 people, so I learned to cook for a crowd. It really is a challenge to cook for a smaller group and to have hurry-up meals for an active family, but I still like to take the time to set a pretty table."

Some of Baird's favorite recipes follow:

CHIHUAHUA SANDWICH

8-16 corn tortillas
2 lbs. hamburger meat
1 pkg. Williams Chili mix
1 large can tomato sauce
½ c. water
1 head of cabbage
1 onion
1 lb. Velveeta cheese
1 small jar diced pimientos
3 Tbsp. Miracle Whip Salad Dressing
2 Tbsp. milk
Brown hamburger meat and onion; add Williams chili mix, tomato sauce and water, simmer for 15 minutes. Mix pimientos and cheese together, adding Miracle Whip and milk so that it will spread easily on tortilla. Chop cabbage and set aside. Fry tortillas until they are crispy. Take two tortillas, spread pimiento and cheese on one, then spread chili on the other. Add cabbage and put the two tortillas together to form a sandwich. Serve with a hot pepper; serves 4-8.

BEAUTIFUL SALAD

1 head cauliflower
1 bunch broccoli
3 carrots, sliced
1 can (15 oz.) pitted medium black olives, drained
1 jar (15 oz.) green olives, drained

1 can (4 oz.) chopped mushrooms, drained
1 bottle (8 oz.) Kraft Presto Italian dressing

Break cauliflower and broccoli into pieces. Slice or dice carrots. Mix vegetables and add olives (may use fewer olives). Stir in mushrooms.

Toss salad with Italian dressing and chill. Toss salad several times while chilling.

Note: Cauliflower and broccoli may be cooked up to 3 minutes if desired; put them in ice water immediately.

FROZEN APRICOT SALAD

1 can apricot fruit or pie filling
1 large can crushed pineapple packed in its own juice
2 small or 1 large pkg. frozen strawberries
3 large bananas, sliced
1 c. pecans, chopped
1 c. sugar (not needed if use apricot pie filling)
Mix well and freeze in a large pyrex dish. Set out 15-20 minutes before serving. Slice in squares and serve frozen.

DELIGHTFUL PINK PUNCH

2 pkgs. strawberry jello
2 pkgs. pre-sweetened cherry Kool-aid (or use lemonade if cherry Kool-aid is too pink)
2 - 6 oz. cans pink frozen lemonade
1 - 48 oz. can pineapple juice
4½ c. sugar
4 qts. water
3-4 qts. ginger ale
Dissolve jello and sugar in warm water, add remaining ingredients (except ginger ale) and freeze. Remove from freezer one hour before serving. Add ginger ale, then serve.

STRAWBERRY SPARKLE CAKE

1 angel food cake
Filling
1 c. boiling water
1 pkg. (3 oz.) strawberry-flavored gelatin
2 pkgs. frozen sliced strawberries
2 - ½ pints whipping cream
4 Tbs. sugar
red food coloring
4-6 toothpicks
Bake an angel food cake and cool for 2 hours or buy a ready-made angel food cake. Dissolve gelatin in water and add frozen block of strawberries, stirring to break up and mix berries. Place cake, widest side down, on a serving plate.

Cut a 1½ inch layer from the top and set aside. Cut or tear cake one-inch from outer edge to one inch from bottom, then cut or tear around cake one inch from inner edge to one inch from bottom. Gently remove the section of cake between the cuts, tearing it into small pieces.

Fold pieces into strawberry mixture and pour it into cake shell. Place cake layer on top. Whip cream until thick, stir in sugar and add a few drops of red food coloring until pink. Spread sweetened whipped cream over top and sides of cake; decorate with whole fresh strawberries if desired. Refrigerate until served (at least one hour).

Hints from Heloise

HANDY BOTTLES

Dear Heloise: When pouring cooking oil from the bottle to my measuring cup or to the frying pan, I find the oil comes out too fast and I end up with a spill or too much in the pan. I have found a good solution.

I washed an empty squeeze margarine bottle and filled it with cooking oil. I can measure the exact amount I need by squeezing slowly. The smaller bottle fits better in my cupboard, too.

I've also found that an empty pancake syrup plastic bottle, with the entire lid removed, works well for thick salad dressings that just won't come out of the bottle. — Mary Koothoa, Maui, Hawaii

NO MORE TANGLES

Dear Heloise: For those who have had trouble with the self-gripping fabric straps on their tennis shoes getting caught on other fabrics and picking up lint while being washed, your problem is solved.

Simply close the straps tightly before washing. The inside and outside of the shoes come out clean. I've been doing this and have never had problems. — K.C., Mo.

Pearson presides at meeting

The semi-annual report was read and approved when members of the Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met in regular session Tuesday evening.

Noble Grand Thama Pearson presided as reports were made on sick and distressed members and friends. Forty-four visits to the sick and 38 cheer cards were reported for the week. It was also announced that installation of new officers will be conducted July 12 with District Deputy President Wilma Wise in charge.

Those present included Pearson, Marie Harris, Stella Hershey, Susie Curtsinger, Shirley Brown, LaVerne Worley, Irma Loving, Jim Loving, Sadie Shaw, Leona Sowell, Merle Boozer, Ursalee Jacobsen, Faye Brownlow, Irene Merritt, Verna Sowell, Lydia Hopson, Dorothy Lundry, Ada Hollabaugh, Rosalie Northcutt, Peggy Lemons, Kee Ruland and Ben Conklin.

In Ireland it was once considered a good idea to wear an arrow head as a protection against elves. It always worked, too.

17-game home winning streak

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

One of the hundreds of avid Whiteface football fans asked me Tuesday night if I was ready for football season. This particular fan, Gary Ruckman, then asked me about a current Hereford High School home game winning streak. I told him I would check into it, and here is the answer:

The current home winning streak of the Whitefaces is 17 games in a row, if you include an "asterisk" with it about last year's 37-8 victory over Pampa — the win which was later forfeited because an ineligible player participated in the game.

If we simply call it a loss, then there would be a 13-game winning streak at home from Oct. 12, 1984 to Nov. 14, 1986, plus a current three-game streak.

And if we say it is a 17-game winning streak at home, it ranks as the longest in school history, one game better than a 16-game streak from Oct. 31, 1980 to Nov. 4, 1983.

The rest of the top five home victory streaks are: 14 games from Oct. 5, 1928 to Sept. 12, 1930; 11 games from Sept. 21, 1934 to Dec. 6, 1935; and eight games from Oct. 14, 1966 to Nov. 3, 1967.

Whiteface football teams have had 11 streaks of at least five wins in a row at home, and eight streaks of at least five wins in a row on the road. The best road streaks have been 14 wins from Oct. 7, 1927 to Oct. 10, 1930 and 13 wins from Sept. 11, 1980 to Dec. 5, 1981.

On the other side of the coin, the most games lost consecutively at home is eight, from Nov. 21, 1969 to Sept. 24, 1971, and the most games lost in a row on the road is also eight, from Oct. 31, 1958 to Nov. 13, 1959.

Ruckman and all the Whiteface fans can say that according to what was actually done on the field, the HHS varsity football team has won 17 games in a row at home. The ineligible player saw some action in the second half after the Herd built up a big lead over Pampa. Here are the longest winning and losing streaks at home and away in HHS football history:

For Tuesday's baseball all-star game

Three Oakland players are starters

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Not since the days of Reggie, Catfish and Rollie have the Oakland Athletics been this popular.

These A's haven't won three straight World Series, as the 1972-74 Oakland teams did. They have captured the fancy of American League fans, though, with three of them being voted starters for the All-Star team.

Outfielder Jose Canseco, the overall leader in the AL with 1,765,499 votes, first baseman Mark McGwire and catcher Terry Steinbach were picked by the fans in results announced Wednesday. The Athletics will be the only team with three starters selected by fans for next Tuesday's classic in Cincinnati.

"This is a great team, and I think the fans realize this," said McGwire, the 1987 Rookie of the Year who is batting .245 with 14 homers and 47 RBI.

Canseco, the AL Rookie of the Year in 1986, leads the league with 23 home runs, 70 runs and 65 RBI. He said the voting shows how positive a future the Athletics have.

"It says a lot about the young ability of our team, about the youth throughout our organization," said Canseco, who turned 24 last week. McGwire also is 24 and Steinbach, who has fought slumps and injuries this year and is batting just .217, is 26.

Joining the three A's on the AL starting team are outfielders Dave Winfield and Rickey Henderson of New York, Milwaukee second baseman Paul Molitor, Detroit shortstop Alan Trammell, who is on the disabled list with a broken left elbow, and third baseman Wade Boggs of Boston, the AL's leading batter with a .353 average.

Molitor has served exclusively as a designated hitter this year, but with no DH spot on the ballot, he was placed at second base. And won.

"It's not a perfect system, but the players have to understand it's not going to be fair year-in and year-out," Molitor said.

Ozzie Smith certainly can't have any gripes with the voting. The slick shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals was the top overall vote getter for the second straight year with 2,106,757.

Smith will start for the National League for the sixth straight year. He is the first player to repeat as the top vote-getter since Rod Carew did it three consecutive years, 1977-79.

Joining Smith in the National League starting infield will be first baseman Will Clark of San Francisco, second baseman Ryne Sandberg of Chicago and Pittsburgh third baseman Bobby Bonilla.

The NL outfield has New York's Darryl Strawberry, Chicago's Andre Dawson and St. Louis' Vince Coleman.

The NL catcher is Gary Carter of the New York Mets, selected to start for the eighth straight season, tying Philadelphia third baseman Mike Schmidt's record for overall starts. But, like his counterpart with the A's, Carter has struggled this year and was hitting .245 with eight homers and 33 RBI. He has not homered since May 16, when he got the 299th homer of his career.

A total of 6,146,477 votes were cast by fans this year, the most since 1984.

Players who will collect contract bonuses for being elected All-Star starters are Winfield ($50,000), Dawson ($50,000), Boggs ($50,000), Clark ($25,000), Strawberry ($25,000), Molitor ($25,000), McGwire ($20,000), Canseco ($20,000), Bonilla ($15,000), Coleman ($15,000) and Sandberg ($10,000).

The acrobatic Smith long has been known as the game's premier fielding shortstop. His offense hasn't been bad, either, and he was hitting .281 with 27 stolen bases and 52 runs scored.

The closest voting in the AL was at catcher, where Steinbach had 84,266 more selections than Carlton Fisk of Chicago. The biggest margin of victory was, ironically, by Molitor, who finished more than 245,000 votes ahead of New York's Willie Randolph.

"There's no question it's an ironic situation to be selected to start at a position you haven't played all year," Molitor said.

In the NL, the tightest race was at catcher, with Carter beating 1987 Rookie of the Year Benito Santiago of San Diego by 90,476 votes. Smith was the biggest winner, by more than 1.6 million votes over San Francisco's Jose Uribe.

Whitey Herzog of St. Louis is managing the National League team and Minnesota's Tom Kelly handles the American League. They will announce their pitchers and reserves today.

A Hereford basketball player is a member of an Amarillo AAU girls' team that will play in the national tournament in Miami, Fla., next week.

Carmen Brockman is a member of the Amarillo Stars, a team coached by Dan Lynch of Amarillo. The Stars are a 16-and-under team of 10 players.

Earlier this summer, Brockman played with the Panhandle Panthers, who placed second in the state AAU tournament. After that tournament, in June, she was invited to join the Amarillo Stars. The Amarillo Stars won the state tournament.

Leads Rangers on offense, defense to 4-2 win

Incaviglia celebrates return to lineup

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — While principal power threat Pete Incaviglia missed nine straight games due to a back injury, the Texas Rangers struggled to score runs. Without Incaviglia the Rangers hit only five homers in 13 games.

Incaviglia celebrated his return to the lineup Wednesday night with a solo homer and a triple and threw out the potential tying run at the plate in the sixth as the Rangers beat the New York Yankees, 4-2.

"You'll never hear me complaining but it's a different lineup with him than without him," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "The home run and the triple were great but the throw to the plate was better."

Ranger starter Jeff Russell, 8-2, snapped a two-game personal losing streak despite allowing 12 hits, four walks and committing two balks in 7 2-3 innings.

"It was awfully good to have Inky back in the lineup," Russell said. "He told me before the game he was going to go out and hit one tonight and he did."

Texas took a 2-1 lead in the second, a rally that started when Incaviglia clubbed a leadoff homer, a 424-foot blast into the left-field stands. It was the 15th homer of the season for Incaviglia, who'd missed the previous nine games with a back injury.

"It's nice to get back in the lineup and help the team," Incaviglia said. "But I felt like I was in the Twilight Zone out there. I haven't picked up a bat or a glove in so long, it really felt strange."

After Incaviglia's blast, Larry Parrish doubled, then Jeff Kunkel drove in the go-ahead run with a double.

Incaviglia tripled with out out in the eighth and scored an insurance run on Pete O'Brien's sacrifice fly.

The Yankees failed to come up with the key hit in several situations, leaving 14 runners on base. New York loaded the bases in the ninth off Texas relief ace Mitch Williams in the ninth but Williams struck out three of the final four hitters to earn his 12th save.

"We could have played 18 innings and not won that game," said Yankees manager Lou Piniella. "That's a game where we could have scored seven or eight runs. We just couldn't get the big hit."

New York fell 2½ games behind pace-setting Detroit in the American League East. Texas had dropped seven of its previous 10 games.

The Yankees evened the score, 2-2, in the fifth with two outs when Dave Winfield doubled and came around on Mike Pagliarulo's single.

Incaviglia made the defensive play of the game in the sixth, throwing out Rickey Henderson at the plate as Henderson tried to score from second on Claudell Washington's single to left.

"From where I sat, Rickey looked safe," Piniella said. "When I saw it on the replay, he was safe."

Ron Guidry, making his second start of the season as he attempts a comeback from off-season rotator cuff surgery, was pulled with two outs in the fifth after the Rangers scored a run for a 3-2 lead.

Guidry, 0-1, pitched 4 2-3 innings, allowing seven hits, one walk and two earned runs while throwing 79 pitches.

"I've got to bide my time," Guidry said. "I'm making progress. I don't need to hurry, just go out there and do the best job that I can."

"Ron pitched well," Piniella said. "He got beat on an unearned run."

The Yankees, who scored eight first-inning runs in the first two games of the series, seemed on the verge of another big start Wednesday. With one out, four straight Yankees singled, with Jack Clark picking up an RBI. But the Yankees left the bases loaded when Mike Pagliarulo grounded into a double play.

Elsewhere in the AL it was Minnesota 8, Boston 1; Detroit 7, Seattle 6; California 5, Toronto 4 in 10 innings; Chicago 4, Baltimore 1; and Milwaukee 4, Kansas City 2.

Twins 8, Red Sox 1

Just call Frank Viola the Minnesota Twins' "Mr. Inside."

Viola pitched a three-hitter Wednesday night to beat Boston 8-1 for his American League-leading 14th victory and continued his Metrodome mastery.

Viola, 14-2, has not lost in the Metrodome since May 22, 1987. In 23 starts at home since then, he's 18-0.

"I can't explain it," Twins manager Tom Kelly said of Viola's success indoors. "He's pitched well the last couple of years, and a little bit better yet this year. Maybe it's confidence, I don't know, or maybe playing in the World Series and the playoffs is a factor."

Viola won Game 7 of the World Series last season against St. Louis and was named the Series' MVP.

Viola, in tying the Chicago Cubs' Greg Maddux for the major league lead in victories, became the earliest 14-game winner in Twins history. The left-hander reached the 14-victory mark last season on Aug. 16.

The victory was Viola's third straight complete game victory over Boston this season and Dwight Evans' fourth-inning homer is the only run scored by the Red Sox against him this season.

"I'm not taking anything for granted," Viola said. "Boston, when I looked up the stats before this season, just hammered me. This year it seems like I've had good stuff on the days I've faced them and we've been able to get ahead of them. The guys have made it easy for me."

The Twins backed Viola with 11 hits, led by Kirby Puckett's four hits and two runs batted in.

Indians 8, Athletics 6
Mel Hall hit an inside-the-park homer with two on to cap a four-run seventh inning as Cleveland overcame a five-run deficit to beat visiting Oakland.

The Indians had spotted Oakland a 5-0 lead in the first inning and trailed 6-4 in the seventh.

Don Gordon, 1-0, got his first major-league victory in five decisions, pitching three scoreless innings in relief of Greg Swindell.

Angels 5, Blue Jays 4

Chili Davis hit his second homer of the game with two out in the 10th inning to lift California past Toronto at Exhibition Stadium. Davis, who had four hits, hit both homers off reliever David Wells, 3-5.

Pinch-hitter Nelson Liriano hit a two-run triple in the ninth to tie the score for Toronto.

Tigers 7, Mariners 6
Luis Salazar singled home Matt Nokes from third base with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning to cap a two-run rally as Detroit beat Seattle at Tiger Stadium.

Trailing 6-5, the Tigers tied the score in the ninth on a pinch-hit single by Lou Whitaker, a sacrifice, and a pinch RBI single by Nokes. Nokes went to third on Darrell Evans' two-out double and he scored on Salazar's single.

White Sox 4, Orioles 1
Rookie Jack McDowell allowed four hits in 8 1-3 innings and lost a shot at his first major-league shutout when Fred Lynn homered with one out in the ninth.

Greg Walker homered for the Sox, his first in Comiskey Park this season.

Brewers 4, Royals 2

Darryl Hamilton reached on a bunt single, went to third on Bret Saberhagen's wild pickoff attempt and scored the go-ahead run on a passed ball in the eighth inning as visiting Milwaukee beat Kansas City.

Robin Yount tripled home Paul Molitor with the Brewers' second run of the eighth as the Royals lost their third straight game.

Saberhagen took the loss and fell to 10-7.

Many more players should be all-stars

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

There just aren't enough places on the starting All-Star team to do justice to all the players who belong there. What they need for Tuesday night's game are new rules with three or four designated hitters to accommodate the overflow.

Hey, the American League changed the rules from nine players to 10. So can we.

There is, for example, the traditional limitation of three outfielders in the starting lineup. Both leagues are supplied with more suitable candidates than that, and there is evidence that the excess has left voters befuddled.

If you can vote for just three American League outfielders, then maybe your three are Dave Winfield, Jose Canseco and Kirby Puckett, all worthwhile choices. What do you do then with people like Boston teammates Mike Greenwell and Ellis Burks?

Nothing, apparently. The last report of voting results before Tuesday's announcement of the starting teams show Greenwell and Burks, fourth and eighth among the AL's hitters at .344 and .325, missing in action. This is not easy to do, considering that the All-Star vote tally goes 16 deep.

Greenwell's credentials, through Monday night's games, included 64 runs batted in, tied for first in the majors with AL outfield vote leader Canseco, and a .584 slugging percentage and .440 on-base percentage, both second best in the league. Burks' .527 slugging percentage was eighth best in the league.

And for that neither player could make it to the top 16?

They aren't the only ones feeling left out today.

The best young outfielder in the National League may be Chicago's Rafael Palmeiro. He is fourth in the league in hitting at .315 through Monday night, third in hits with 102, and tied for fifth in doubles with 24.

In the All-Star vote, he is 15th. That is not because the fans have been voting casually. There is nothing terribly wrong with a starting outfield of Darryl Strawberry, Andre Dawson and Vince Coleman.

Montreal first baseman Andres Galarraga is tearing up the league, batting .345 with 19 home runs and 52 RBI. He is, however, only third in the voting behind San Francisco's Will Clark, who also has 19 homers and leads the league with 62 RBI, and perennial Keith Hernandez of New York, the beneficiary of force of habit votes at a time when he has spent almost a month on the disabled list.

If Hernandez and Atlanta's Gerald Perry (second in the league at .332 but also disabled) were healthy, you could add them to Clark, Galarraga and Houston's Glenn Davis (18 homers, 59 RBI) and have an NL team with five very good first basemen. This, though, would be a problem since baseball, shackled by tradition, insists on continuing to use only one first base in the game.

Then there is the matter of third base in the National League.

For many years, that was an automatic vote, and deservedly so, for Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt. Now the ravages of age have limited Schmidt to a .236 summer and second place in the balloting behind Pittsburgh's Bobby Bonilla. There is nothing terribly wrong with that because Bonilla is a legitimate star. But absent from the eight-deep vote tally at the position are Cincinnati rookie Chris Sabo and veteran Vance Law of Chicago, both enjoying banner seasons.

Sabo (.308) and Law (.307) are running 5-6 among NL hitters. Through Monday's games, Sabo also led the league with 30 doubles and was fifth in slugging percentage at .529. The voters, however, found eight third basemen more deserving of All-Star votes.

Voting for Sabo required determination since he is not on the ballot because of his rookie status. But if you wrote in Sabo, what did you do with Bonilla? Or Law? Or, for that matter, Schmidt?

The All-Star extravaganza is a welcome mid-season pause, a time to contemplate the season's first half and anticipate the rest of the race. The game belongs to the fans but making them pick and choose between so many worthy players invariably leaves them frustrated. And it's not wonderful either for the players they're forced to leave out when they vote.

Older adults discover nutritious pasta

By the year 2000, about 13 percent of the United States population will be 65 years of age or over, reasonably healthy, and enjoying leisure activities. By that time, the average American will have eaten 100,000 pounds of food. These food choices will almost always be reflected in the individual's health status.

Older adults are a growing population and it is important to understand their nutrition concerns of avoiding chronic diseases, such as heart disease and diabetes, and having energy to enjoy life to its fullest. Research may eventually give us new information on specific nutrient needs of older adults, but for now the nutrient requirements of this age group are much like those of other ages, but with special emphasis on lower energy needs (making high-nutrient food choices a must), low fat and sodium intake and high dietary fiber intake.

Pasta is an idea food for older adults because it helps them meet their nutritional goals. Indeed, if a two-ounce serving of pasta were eaten daily for 60 years, over a ton of this nutritious food could make a significant contribution to a health-enhancing diet.

Pasta has the following benefits for older adults:

- It is low in sodium. Low-sodium foods help control high blood pressure, often of special concern to older Americans.
- It is low in fat. Dietary guidelines for healthy Americans suggest we all cut down on fat! But for older adults, controlling fat helps control calories and may help reduce risk of heart disease and cancer.
- It is versatile, economical, convenient and great tasting! Pasta is a great comfort food, low in cost and easily prepared for one or two persons.

-It provides complex carbohydrates to allow protein to be used for its proper role in growth and maintenance. Although protein needs of older adults are basically the same as for younger adults, they need to get protein from less food.

-It provides thiamine and other B vitamins to help release energy from food so that older adults have energy to enjoy life.

-It provides iron necessary to carry oxygen to cells to prevent fatigue, or that "tired" feeling. Older adults who have low protein and/or low calorie intakes, or who have lost blood through illness or surgery, are often iron deficient.

Statistics compiled by Steve Shifman, owner of the Pasta Market in Cincinnati, Ohio, show the popularity of pasta:

"If the nation's annual pasta consumption were laid end to end, it would stretch to the Moon and back 300 times, Mars and back twice, around the equator 5,743 times...A pound laid out stretches 217 feet; average eaters slurp up 14.7 pounds a year or 3,189 feet, which translates to 900 hours of twirling forks. Americans eat 3,497,000 pounds a year, roughly the same as the weight of the population of Ohio, Indian and Kentucky."

Social Security

Have you a question about Social Security? Address it to Jim Talbot, Manager, Social Security Office, Suite 16, 3601 W. 15th, Amarillo, Texas 79102. You will receive an answer in this column or by mail.

QUESTION: My mother has been in the hospital for several weeks. She has Medicare Hospital insurance, but I've been told Medicare won't help pay her hospital bill because the care she is receiving is "custodial." What does that mean?

ANSWER: Care is considered "custodial" when it is mainly for the purpose of meeting personal needs and can be provided by people without professional skills or training. For example, custodial care includes help in walking, getting in and out of bed, bathing, dressing, eating, and taking medicine. This kind of care is not covered by Medicare, even if provided in a participating hospital or skilled nursing facility.

QUESTION: I need to have some rather expensive laboratory tests. Will Medicare pay for this?

ANSWER: Medicare medical insurance can help pay for diagnostic tests provided by independent laboratories. The lab must be certified by Medicare for the service you receive. Not all laboratories are certified by Medicare, and some laboratories are certified only for certain kinds of tests. You may want to check with your doctor to see if the tests you need are covered.

Astros lose eighth of last nine games

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers isn't gloating about the Expos' first three-game sweep of the Houston Astros in the Astrodome since 1962.

The Expos beat the Astros 4-2 Wednesday night on a 5-hitter by Pasqual Perez over eight innings but Rodgers says look out in the second half of the season.

The Astros haven't been "exposed" yet.

"I think all hell will break loose in the second half," Rodgers said. "I've said it all along. It's going to be close in September."

Something broke loose in the Astros dressing room following Wednesday's loss.

Astros Manager Hal Lanier was clearly angry following the game.

The Astros' dressing room was closed briefly and when it was opened, the media noticed an overturned garbage can in a hallway and garbage strewn on the floor and splattered on the wall.

The Astros' frustration is understandable.

They've lost eight of their last nine games and dropped two games below .500 while the Expos have won seven of their last eight games.

"We can't continue making every pitcher that comes in here look like a 25-game winner," Lanier said. "It's ridiculous night after night to go out and try to win with five hits."

Mitch Webster's sacrifice fly in the second inning, Hubie Brooks' seventh homer of the season in the fourth and Hudler's game winning single in the fifth gave Perez all the runs he needed to beat the Astros.

Nelson Santovenia tripled in the ninth inning to score Tim Wallach, who had doubled, for the final run.

The Astros had two runners poised on the bases in the sixth inning with two out when Webster made a diving catch of a fly by Buddy Bell to preserve Montreal's lead.

"That was a two-run catch," Rodgers said. "The runners were running and there were two out. Don't under-estimate defense. It doesn't make the headlines but it keeps you in games and it wins games."

"That's the best catch I've seen him make."

Houston got its two runs in the third inning on a two-run double by Rafael Ramirez to center field after Craig Biggio reached base on an infield hit and Gerald Young walked.

Perez, 6-3, kept the Astros at bay until his teammates could provide him with a lead.

"I felt real strong," Perez said. "This is the best I've felt since I pitched in Montreal against Atlanta."

Perez was injured trying to punt against the Astros on May 7 and was making his fourth start since coming off the disabled list.

"I've been throwing everything, a lot of changeups and sliders," Perez said. "In any situation I'll throw any pitch for a strike."

"It doesn't matter if men are on base or not. I felt I could dominate any situation."

In other National League games, it was New York 5, Cincinnati 4; San Francisco 2, Chicago 0; Atlanta 3, Philadelphia 2, and Los Angeles 7, St. Louis 3.

Mets 5, Reds 4

New York Mets Manager Davey Johnson had an upset stomach, but was feeling a lot better after getting some fast relief from Randy Myers.

Johnson, who was in the Mets' clubhouse with stomach pains, rushed off his couch and back into the dugout in time to call Myers in from the bullpen to save a troubled Ron Darling on Wednesday night.

Myers quickly struck out Kal Daniels, who had a 2-0 count, and got the next six batters to preserve the Mets' 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

"I knew I had a control pitcher in Myers," Johnson said. "And about the same time, my stomach started to feel better. It was perfect once Daniels struck out."

"It doesn't take long for Randy to warm up ... five or six pitches. It takes him longer to tie his shoelaces."

Darryl Strawberry, the NL home run leader with 21, hit a two-run shot for the Mets in the first inning.

Daniels and Paul O'Neill then hit two-run homers in the sixth to give the Reds a 4-2 lead. But the Mets came back with three runs in the bottom of the inning as Darling capped the rally with a run-scoring single. It was the first game-winning hit of the pitcher's career.

"My pitchers take their hitting seriously," Johnson said. "Batting practice is something they enjoy. They don't try and duck it."

Added Darling: "If you're in the lineup, you might as well help yourself out."

Giants 2, Cubs 0

Jose Uribe doubled and scored on two sacrifice bunts and Rick Reuschel and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter as San Francisco defeated Chicago to shut out the Cubs for the second straight game.

Reuschel, 11-4, allowed six hits, walked none and struck out four to win for the fifth time in six decisions. Craig Lefferts allowed one hit in the ninth before giving way to Scott Garrelts with two outs. Garrelts earned his seventh save.

Jamie Moyer, 5-8, gave up four hits and two walks and struck out one before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Braves 3, Phillies 2

Ken Oberkfell singled in the tie-breaking run with one out in the eighth inning to boost Atlanta over Philadelphia.

Zane Smith, 4-6, snapped a personal three-game losing streak. He yielded eight hits and three walks in going eight innings. Bruce Sutter pitched the ninth for his 12th save.

The loss went to Shane Rawley, 5-10, who gave up 10 hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Dodgers 7, Cardinals 3

Franklin Stubbs capped a seven-run eighth inning with a tie-breaking grand slam, lifting Los Angeles over St. Louis for the Dodgers' fourth consecutive win over the Cardinals.

Stubbs' winning hit came off reliever Todd Worrell, 4-4, the third St. Louis pitcher. The victory went to Tim Crews, 2-0, who relieved starter Fernando Valenzuela, trailing 3-0 in the seventh. Crews pitched one inning, and Alejandro Pena finished up.

Deadline nears for 'triples' volleyball league

Monday is the registration deadline for a "triples" volleyball league at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

There will be no age limitations for individuals interested in participating. League matches start on July 14.

Game days will be Mondays and Tuesdays, with matches beginning at 8 p.m. The league season will be six games plus a single-elimination tournament.

Registration fees are $5 for YMCA members and $15 for YMCA non-members. Divisions offered are co-ed "A," co-ed "B," and men's. At least six teams are needed to form a division.

Awards will be T-shirts for first place team members in each division. League rules include at least one female among the three team members on the court, and the female must touch the ball on a 2-hit series.

The first name of Gene Tenace, Bob Gibson, Cardinal righthander, who hit four home runs for Oakland in the 1972 World Series against Cincinnati, is Fury. Gene is his middle name. set a record for an earned-run average with 1.12 in 1968. It was for pitchers working 300 or more innings.

DENVER (AP) — Walter Davis, a six-time NBA all-star and the all-time leading scorer in Phoenix Suns history, became the second unrestricted free agent to change teams when he signed a contract with the Denver Nuggets.

Davis, a 6-foot-6 guard, played his entire NBA career with the Suns but became an unrestricted free agent following the 1967-68 season. The 33-year-old signed with the Nuggets one day after forward Tom Chambers signed with the Suns.

Youth soccer registration deadline is July 11

Registration is under way for the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA youth soccer leagues.

The league formation will depend on registration. YMCA program director Jerry Brock said the goal is to have a first through third grade division and a fourth through sixth grade divisions, and also separate leagues for boys and for girls, if the interest is great enough.

If necessary, boys and girls will play in the same league, Brock noted. All participants must register by July 11.

The league games begin on July 18, and teams may begin holding practice sessions on July 14. The league season will be six games, plus some playoff games on Aug. 19-20.

Registration fees are $5 for YMCA members and $15 for YMCA non-members. Brock said volunteer coaches are needed to make the youth soccer league successful.

Brock also noted that the purpose of the league is to give boys and girls an opportunity to learn such soccer skills as agility, dribbling, trapping, shooting, throw-ins, passing, strategy, heading, and positioning, as well as coordination and good sportsmanship.

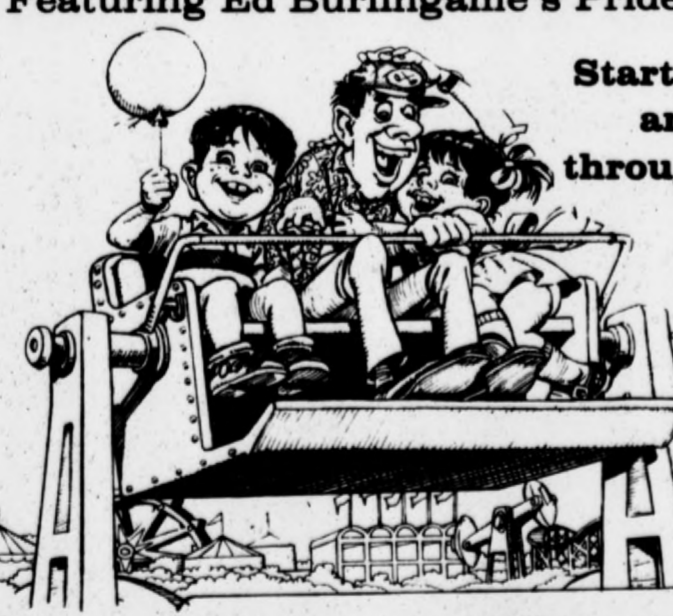

After July 11, late registration will be open only to fill up teams where more players will be needed. Teams will be drawn by the YMCA officers.

For more information on the youth soccer leagues, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB: A year ago I had a transient ischemic attack (TIA) which caused my right eye to lose sight for awhile. I went to the hospital and after all tests were run, the doctor prescribed four aspirin a day for the rest of my life. My daughter is a registered nurse and she says the thinks one aspirin a day would be enough. I talked to the doctor again at my six-month checkup and he was emphatic that I take four aspirin a day. I would appreciate your comment.

DEAR READER: After having had a TIA or a stroke, the usually approach is to give 1 to 1.5 grams a day - three to four aspirin a day - in the hopes of preventing a subsequent stroke.

Having said that, I am not at all sure this regular practice is correct. There have not been enough studies done using different amounts of aspirin to prevent strokes to really know what the correct dosage should be. And there is no current recommendation about the use of aspirin at any dosage level in the hopes of preventing the first stroke, other than aspirin after having had a TIA. For fundamental reasons, it is quite possible that a small amount of aspirin could even be superior to the larger dose. A year ago a British study showed that one 325 mg tablet a day was as effective as three.

I have discussed the role of different dosages of aspirin in prevention of heart attacks and strokes in THE HEALTH LETTER 31-07, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER 31-7, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

The recent European study, in the December 12, 1987, issue of Lancet, reports a third fewer deaths in patients who took Persantine and only 325 mg of aspirin a day. The results were much better than reported in United States studies with the larger doses of aspirin, raising some significant questions about how large the dose should be. Dr. William Fields of Houston, who headed the first aspirin/stroke national study, has been quoted as recommending only one aspirin a day.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother was a wonderful woman who worked hard. Unfortunately, she was obsessed with far-out religions and miracle cures. At age 43 Mom had a stroke that left her paralyzed on one side. Her "hobby" began to consume her life, and it proved to be her undoing.

Mom walked with a cane and dragged one foot, but she typed well with her good hand. Every week she sent for dozens of herbs, roots, crystals and compounds that promised to make her well. My dad was devoted to her, and they went to Mexico several times to visit health spas and confer with "healers."

In 1983 Mom developed breast cancer. She refused to see a medical doctor and returned to Mexico for the "blackberry powder cure." A chain-smoking "nurse" who wore dirty jeans gave Mother treatments.

Several months later it was apparent that Mom wasn't getting any better, so Dad brought her home. She had drunk gallons of aloe vera juice and had dozens of blackberry powder treatments. By the time she agreed to go to a legitimate cancer clinic to receive conventional treatment, it was too late.

Please tell your readers to stay away from "miracle cures." If Mom had not gone in for all that garbage, she might have been one of the 50 percent who beat cancer.—Sad in Arizona

DEAR ARIZONA: You told them better than I could. What a shame that billions of dollars are shoveled out to quacks for worthless "cures" that not only don't work, but they waste valuable time that could be spent pursuing legitimate treatment.

I have dealt with this subject in the column before and am happy to do so again. Unfortunately, when people become desperate they will try anything. And this is why the charlatans do so well.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a different view on a recent column that was headed "Never lend money to relatives." My advice is, "Never borrow money from relatives."

When my wife and I were first married we borrowed $500 from her parents. We paid against that loan every month, with interest, as agreed. Meanwhile we went without a great many things so that we could honor our commitment.

The loan was paid back. The debt, however, never seemed to get paid. Every time we saw her parents, every conversation began with a reminder of "how we helped you out when you were up against it."

Believe me, Ann, I wish we had starved rather than borrow that piddly amount of money. Please tell your readers the other side of the story. You never get to know people until you are in their debt. My advice is to borrow from a bank or a credit union, or do without.—J.L. in Texas

DEAR J.L.: Even though it sounds as if you have a legitimate beef against your in-laws (shame on them!), I'm reminded of that old French saying, "No good deed will go unpunished."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print some great advice that brides will bless you for:

Don't bring a wedding gift to the wedding or to the reception. They are a nuisance to the bride and her family. Someone must keep an eye on those gifts and take them home. Usually it's the bride's mother, and Lord knows she has a zillion other things to think about.

Also, Ann, cards get lost and it's a major headache. Thanks for passing the word, doll.—Montana Fan

DEAR MONTANA: Good advice. You're the doll, for writing.

Young pastaphiles prefer spaghetti

They're sophisticated, mature consumers in a number of areas—cars, stereos, clothes. They're securing an education—45 percent of the current 27 million are attending college.

They're hunger-driven. For them, food is a vital necessity. But they hardly ever prepare their own food, preferring to eat at mom's—60 percent of them currently live at home—to eat out, or to eat at a friend's. They have their favorite foods, and don't mind eating them over and over—and over again, as long as they're tasty.

According to this recent survey prepared for the National Pasta Association, young adults—18 to 24 year-olds—are coming into their own as pasta lovers. About two-thirds of them, the survey says, are eating pasta at home at least once a week. Any loyalty to a special brand when they go grocery shopping?

Generally, whichever brand is on sale, but more often than not, "whatever mom uses." Eighty-seven percent prefer spaghetti, 60 percent buy macaroni. Lasagne is coming in with a 43 percent preference rating, while 17 percent still hold fond memories of noodles.

While they're currently showing more loyalty to mom, these young adults soon will be tomorrow's independent, health and nutrition-conscious yuppies (25+) whose passion for all types of pasta already is well established.

In fact, the signs already are showing up. Ninety-four percent of young adults want their foods to be fresh. Convenience and ease of preparation are important to 55 percent of them, while 53 percent want their food to be fun to eat.

These attributes—fresh, fun and fast—are some of pasta's main attractions.

Following are some recipes that spice up spaghetti and one recipe even features vermicelli:

BASIC TOMATO SAUCE
 ¾ cup olive oil
 3 cloves garlic, crushed
 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
 1 28-ounce can plum tomatoes, undrained and broken up

½ teaspoon dried oregano
 ½ teaspoon salt
 Dash of pepper
 Heat oil in saucepan; saute garlic and parsley two minutes. Add tomatoes and remaining ingredients. Mix well. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer uncovered for 30 minutes.

LOBSTER SAUCE
 To basic Tomato Sauce, add:
 2 minced anchovy fillets
 ½ teaspoon dried marjoram
 Meat from 1 12-14 oz. lobster tail, cut into pieces
 Add salt and pepper to taste (Toss with bowties or spirals).

BASIC WHITE SAUCE
 (makes 4 cups)
 ½ cup butter or margarine
 ½ cup flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 ½ teaspoon pepper
 4 cups milk

In a medium saucepan, heat butter just until melted; remove from heat. Add flour, salt and pepper, stirring until smooth. Add milk in small portions, mixing well after each addition. Bring to boil over medium heat, stirring constantly.

Variation:
Bay Shrimp and Garlic Sauce
 Basic White Sauce
 5 cloves of garlic, crushed
 ¾ cup dry Vermouth
 ½ teaspoon pepper
 6 ounces grated Parmesan cheese
 ¾ cups bay shrimp, cleaned, deveined and cooked
 Combine all ingredients except shrimp, stirring until cheese is melted. Add shrimp, heat thoroughly and serve over a bed of steaming linguine.)

BASIC MEAT SAUCE
 1 medium onion, chopped
 2 cloves garlic, minced
 1 green pepper, chopped
 3 tablespoons olive oil
 2 slices bacon, diced
 1 pound lean ground beef, veal or pork
 ½ teaspoon dried basil
 Salt and pepper to taste
 ½ cup beef broth

1 28-oz. can plum tomatoes, undrained and broken up

Saute chopped vegetables in oil over medium heat until onion is transparent. Add bacon and ground beef and saute, stirring until beef is crumbled and browned. Add seasonings, and cook 5 to 10 minutes. Add remaining ingredients, blending well. Cover and simmer, stirring occasionally until sauce thickens (about 1½ hours).

Variation:
 To the Basic Meat Sauce, add:
 1 medium green pepper, sliced
 1 medium zucchini, sliced
 ½ pound mushrooms, sliced
 ½ teaspoon dried oregano
 ½ pound Italian sausage, sliced
 (Ladle over rigatoni for a hearty and satisfying meal.)

SPAGHETTI ALLA CARBONARA
 (makes 6 servings)
 16 ounces uncooked vermicelli
 ½ pound sliced bacon
 4 eggs
 ½ teaspoon pepper
 3 tablespoons bacon fat
 Grated Parmesan cheese

Cook vermicelli according to package directions; drain. Fry bacon until crisp, reserving 3 tablespoons bacon fat. Break into small pieces. Beat eggs until foamy. Add pepper and bacon fat. Pour egg mixture onto platter. Toss with hot pasta and bacon pieces. Serve with Parmesan cheese.

As for proper care of pasta, you should only rinse the pasta if the recipe calls for rinsing. Most cold pasta dishes suggest rinsing the pasta to cool it down before adding fresh ingredients.

Pasta retains most of its nutritional content even after rinsing. In fact, scientists claim that pasta contains a substantial percentage of the RDA for six minerals—31 percent of manganese, 24 percent of iron, 18 percent of phosphorus and copper, 12 percent of magnesium and 9 percent of zinc.

EARN MORE

NEW YORK (AP) — Can cosmetics help women to earn more?

Studies show women who look good and pay attention to their appearance can earn 20 percent more, according to Avon Beauty Center. One way to keep up appearances during the day is to take a beauty break, says Dr. Ellen Siroka. She says, "A makeup break will help give you the increased confidence you need before making a presentation."

Abundant Life

SETTLE DOWN
 By Bob Wear

We may not know how to meet all the challenges of life successfully, but we do know that if we 'settle down', and wisely put our time, our energy, our strength, our money, our capabilities, and other resources to work, we can be reasonably successful in doing so.

We cannot afford to be careless, indifferent, lethargic, or discouraged in our attitudes. It has never been easy for the people of any generation to live with meaning and purpose, but it is possible to do so.

The flippant, unconcerned attitude is not the sensible view toward the living experience. This is a sure way to compound our difficulties. We become less capable to cope with our problems, and our faulty attitude causes additional problems. The best way for us, as individuals, to handle the demands of life is in the best handling of ourselves. This can be done, when we 'settle down'; when we are sober-minded and serious.

Sobriety is not sourness, or unpleasantness, or hostility; but it is the condition of life "marked by sedate or gravely or earnestly thoughtful character and demeanor". In fact, 'sober' means sound-minded. This life quality enables us to be concerned about the essentially important and constructive elements of both the personal life structure, and the social structure. These will be supported and protected; and the perverse and destructive elements of life and society will be reprovved and rejected. The best balance can be achieved, when we temper our sobriety with good cheer and control it with wisdom.

We must settle down if we want to preserve and maintain the social structure in which everything worthwhile and desirable can be available to all of us. Time-tested moral standards must be observed; we must be industrious and thrifty; we must respect ourselves and each other; and we must oppose everything that is known to be demoralizing and destructive.

"Washing hands is the simplest and best way of avoiding the spread of many infections," says Sandra Pfaff, a nurse in the infection control unit.
