Demos seek unity for their ticket

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen moved today to unify Democrats behind their "Boston-Austin" ticket as a disappointed Jesse Jackson said he is "too mature to be angry" but ready to fight over the party platform.

Among other Democrats, the chorus of praise for the 67-year-old Texas senator was loud after his formal introduction as Dukakis' running mate at Boston's Faneuil Hall. Hopeful refrains citing the parallels with the 1960 Kennedy-Johnson ticket were heard again and again.

"He's a terrific guy. He's very tough, very smart," Oregon Gov. Neil Goldschmidt said of Bentsen.

"He knows how to beat George Bush," said Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md. "He did just that in 1970" — when Bentsen defeated Bush for the first of three terms in the Senate.

Bush, the Republican nominee-to-be, called Dukakis' choice of the Senate Finance Committee chairman "interesting" but refused to say more.

Bush's supporters were quick to argue that Democrats still won't carry the state Bush calls home — and its 29 electoral votes — in the November balloting.

"He is desperate. He knows he can't win without carrying Texas," Texas Gov. Bill Clements said of Dukakis. "It ain't going to work."

The most immediate problem for Dukakis with his choice was the reaction of Jackson, the last remaining rival for the presidential nomination who demanded consideration for the No. 2 spot.

With five days to go before the Democratic National Convention opens in Atlanta, Dukakis sought to appeal to Jackson and his supporters by pointing out Bentsen's civil rights record.

"Lloyd Bentsen brings to this ticket and will bring to this nation years of experience, a deep commitment to civil rights and equality of opportunity that goes way back to the 1940s," Dukakis said at Faneuil Hall.

Former party chief and Jackson adviser John White echoed those sentiments about his fellow Texan: "He's got one of the best civil rights records in the Senate. He voted against the poll tax when he was in the Congress

Scramble on for 'maybe' election

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The scramble to replace Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who might not need a replacement, has begun.

Several Democrats and Republicans wasted no time Tuesday in positioning themselves as possible contenders if Bentsen wins re-election to the Senate, but must vacate the seat to become vice president.

Democratic presidential nominee-to-be Michael Dukakis set the speculation in motion by naming Bentsen as his running mate. Under a Texas law written in 1959 to let Lyndon Johnson run for the presidency and the Senate, Bentsen will run simultaneously for the vice presidency and the Senate.

If he wins both, a special election would be called next year to pick someone to complete the Senate term. Bentsen faces U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter of Amarillo in his November Senate race.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower and U.S. Reps. Mike Andrews and John Bryant expressed serious interest in that race. Former Democratic Gov. Mark White said he would "be talking to his friends" about it.

San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros is considered a possible candidate for virtually any major race.

On the GOP side, U.S. Rep. Jack Fields of Houston said he would "probably look at it very hard," but predicted there would be no special election because Bentsen would not win the vice presidency. Republican U.S. Rep. Steve Bartlett, considered a possible contender, said it was "way too early" to speculate.

Hobby, who says he won't seek re-election as lieutenant governor in 1990, said, "If a vacancy would occur in the United States Senate I would certainly seriously consider a race."

"I think the United States Senate is the greatest deliberative body in the world. There's the opportunity in the United States Senate to have influence over national policy in many areas, to shape the future of the country," he said.

Andy Welch, spokesman for Hightower, said the Democratic agriculture commissioner has been seriously considering the race ever since Bentsen was named as a possible vice presidential choice.

In Washington, Andrews, a three-term congressman from Houston, said, "I'm very interested in it." Bryant, a three-term House member from Dallas, said it is "highly likely I'll be a candidate" if there is a special election.

The special election would be open to all candidates. The 1961 special Senate election to replace Johnson, who won Senate and vice presidential races in 1960, drew more than 70 candidates. Republican John Tower won in a runoff.

Texas Secretary of State Jack Rains said a special election would be a "scramble."

"Everyone just goes out and tees it up," he said, predicting the race could draw a big field.

Hobby agreed, saying a large field was likely because it would be a "free ride," meaning candidates would not have to give up other elected offices to make the race.

Clements shrugged off questions about whom he might appoint as interim senator. He said he would not get that chance because Bentsen would not be elected vice president.

If Hobby won the seat and vacated the lieutenant governor's seat, the Texas Senate would pick a replacement to serve out the term, which expires in January 1991.

Caviness will 'get retreaded'

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hap Caviness says it's time "to just get retreaded," and will be leaving his dentistry practice in Hereford in the near future to "pursue other interests."

Taking over Caviness' Hereford practice will be Dr. Rick Roden, fresh out of the UT-San Antonio Dental School. It's not like Hap doesn't know Rick — Rick's dad, John Mack, a dentist in Friona, first met Hap when John Mack was 14.

"I started with John Mack as a young man, so we've gone back for quite a while," Caviness said. "It is a really great feeling, a warm feeling, to have people come in and take over this practice. That part of it I really like."

Rick will be doing most of his work here, but the Rodens might switch off every now and then between the Hereford and Friona practices.

"We'll be back and forth," John Mack said. "Mainly Rick will be here. We plan on doing some additions to the offices here, adding more treatment rooms. We will have our hygienist over here when we get everything together and organized."

Caviness has mixed emotions about leaving his practice, which he established against the odds of practicing in the "Town Without A Toothache in 1951.

"One problem is that I've had a few additions to my anatomy lately, so I just can't stay on my feet as much as I need to," Caviness explained. "There are also some other things I still want to pursue."

"I'm not going to leave dentistry, though. I will be doing some fill-in work for other dentists. You know, they might break a leg, or go to Europe; whatever, I'll be doing some fill-in work for them. It will be easy to do that because they'll know I don't have a practice somewhere else where I'd try to take their patients."

Rick, a Friona native, is looking forward to getting back to the Panhandle after spending four years in San Antonio. "I'm real excited about the practice and getting everything started, meeting lots of new people. I know I have some big shoes to fill."

Those shoes will still be treading around Hereford for a while. "I've had fun living here and raising a family in Hereford," Caviness said. "I've always been a very avid salesman for Hereford since we moved here from Austin in 1951. I've certainly enjoyed my practice in Hereford, and I feel Rick will enjoy it, too."

Drought package introduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers unveiled a wide-ranging drought relief package for the nation's farmers and quickly began work on it as a House chairman called for final action by mid-August.

House Agriculture Committee Chairman E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Texas, promised fast action as his panel began reviewing the bill on Tuesday. He said Congress should send "a signal that we care" about the drought ravaging the nation's cropland.

To speed the bill to passage, de la Garza said, lawmakers should dispense with the usual parade of witnesses from farm organizations and other groups.

Across Capitol Hill, the Senate Agriculture Committee raised the curtain on a similar bill to provide disaster payments of up to $100,000 each to farmers whose crops have been wiped out by the drought.

The lawmakers acted as the Agriculture Department released a fresh report forecasting severe damage to the harvest from the drought.

It estimated, for example, that U.S. corn output this year would shrivel to 5.2 billion bushels, down from 7.06 billion last year.

Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng told lawmakers it is "the largest drought that our nation has ever experienced."

"I think history will show that it's truly more mammoth than any of us has ever experienced," Lyng said. He said a recurrence next year would "suggest that we've done something wrong and the gods are against us."

For their part, Agriculture Committee members resolved not to allow the drought to force a rash of bankruptcies in the countryside, just as the farm economy is shaking off the stagnation of the early 1980s.

"We're not going to allow their lives as farmers and ranchers to end because of a freak of nature," Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., said in remarks on the Senate floor.

The legislation unveiled Tuesday is going to be expensive by all estimates, but there will not any sure way to gauge costs until August at the earliest. Sponsors express confidence that government savings resulting from the drought will be enough to offset the disaster payments.

The measure would cap disaster payments at $100,000 for each individual farmer. Payments would represent 65 percent of pre-drought expected earnings, whether from target prices, price-support loans or market prices, but they would apply only to losses in excess of 35 percent of the crop.

A 50-cent per hundredweight reduction in dairy price supports scheduled for next year would be canceled under the legislation. Dairymen say rising feed costs resulting from the drought warrant such action.

Feed in government storage that is already being provided on an emergency basis would be made available to a broader range of livestock producers up to a maximum benefit of $50,000 for each individual.

The drought has burned up a considerable amount of hay and grazing land and thus feed is now at a premium.

Under the legislation, wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice producers would not be required to refund to the government any deficiency payment they have received in advance.

Deficiency payments are income supports provided by the government. They represent the difference between the market value of a crop and its value at higher target prices set by Congress and adjusted annually by the secretary of agriculture.

As the drought has spread across rural America, market prices have climbed steadily, reducing the size of deficiency payments at the very time that many farmers find themselves without crops to take to market.

To complicate matters, many farmers already have received 40 percent of their deficiency payments from the Agriculture Department and will have to refund a portion of them unless rescued by relief legislation.

I think the guy's real name is Pandit Vishuddhanand Gaur, give or take a few letters. Anyway, he sent out a news release telling us what's going to happen in the next 18 months based on our Jyotish.

Our Jyotish is based on our birthday — 2:13 a.m., July 4, 1776, fer those uv yew hoo donet no.

According to our Jyotish, Bush will narrowly beat Dukakis, but Dukakis will come back and beat Bush in 1992; our romance with the Russians will continue to blossom; the economy will grow at an even pace; the drought won't linger; the nation will become more physically fit; and America will continue to be a world leader.

Just as there is a Jyotish, here is the Maharishi Babbling Hsiojt, which is Jyotish spelled backwards. Ye old Hsiojt for the U.S., which was obtained by running my hands rapidly above my PCBAN/Globe-News file folder, reveals:

—There will be at least 20 more free-lance articles written before the end of the year about the Globe-News, West Texas State, Hereford, and a bunch of other drivel written by people who know nothing;

—Horace Scott will write at least one letter a week for the rest of his life to the Globe-News and the Canyon News, and none of them will make sense;

—No matter your feelings about a nuclear waste dump, we will forever miss the quality of people who made Hereford their home for a while;

—Someone will try to protest higher taxes by paying Fred Fox in pennies, or Jack and Jill coupon stamps;

—All voters will take the next local elections a little more seriously;

—Less than one percent of all shoppers at Save and Gain will return their carts to the special storage area in the parking lot (are ya lazy or what?);

—The roof will leak like a sieve again in less than a year out at Sugarland Mall;

—The strip center across from Sugarland will be vacant until the day this particular piece of newsprint deteriorates with age (Boy, I hope that's wrong);

—George Bush will pick Jesse Jackson as his running mate (wouldn't you love to see that?);

I promised to tell y'all something about Dust Bowl Dean.

Dust Bowl Dean is the farmer who, as I explained last week, firmly believes we are living in the end times and wants to spread the word of how farming is going to get a lot better in the not too distant future.

Dean McHard is a farming consultant from Wray, Colorado — I suppose this spreading of his interpretation of Revelations is consulting, in a way.

Dean believes that some of the seals — read the sixth chapter of The Revelations — have already been broken. The first seal was Communism, the second is rebellion (Dean feels it began with "Rebel Without A Cause," the James Dean movie, and continues today with rock and roll music, etc.), the third is the drought and unkillable locusts in North Africa, and the fourth is AIDS.

There were a couple of Castro County farmers, Harold Smith and Earl Smith, both from around Hart, who explained how they are helping to spread the gospel in Mexico, and a guy from Canyon, whose name I don't remember, who was talking about efforts in Australia.

I don't have any doubt that there is work to be done in Mexico and Australia and elsewhere in the four corners of the Earth. But, as I told them, I have trouble sending all of our efforts hither and yon when we have plenty of problems in our own back yard.

As for the seals already being opened, etc., I tend to go along with a famous quit Baptist preacher, Doug Manning, who told me he was a "Panmillennialist." That means everything will pan out in the end.

I suppose we can make guesses, suppositions, prophecies and what-not about what everything in Revelations means, when the end times are, and lotsa other stuff.

One former youth minister of a church in Hereford told the kiddos that the end would come sometime in 1988. He's since gone west, and that little prophecy will go south if we celebrate a New Year on Jan. 1.

He's not in bad company, really. Paul thought he was living in the end times, too. A quick bit of subtraction shows that Paul was off about 1,930 years and counting. It just shows to go ya that we're not s'pose to speculate, argue, or debate about it — we're just supposed to be ready.

Boulter glad Bentsen on Demo ticket

AUSTIN (AP) — The choice of Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen for the No. 2 spot behind Michael Dukakis on the Democratic ticket was called good news by his Republican Senate opponent, who said it exposes the fiction that Bentsen isn't tied to national Democratic politics.

"There have been two Lloyd Bentsens. Some Texans have thought Lloyd Bentsen was a conservative-moderate Democrat. I think this shatters that myth," Amarillo Congressman Beau Boulter said Tuesday.

In Texas, Bentsen's name will be on the ballot for both vice president and U.S. Senate. Boulter said that boosts his campaign because Texans don't want Bentsen or anybody else running for two jobs at once.

"It's wrong. It's unethical. And it's going to raise questions throughout this campaign," Boulter said.

While legal under the so-called "LBJ Law," Boulter argued that the twin-tactic isn't right. "I think Texans are going to be upset about it," he said.

According to Secretary of State Jack Rains, if Bentsen were to withdraw from the race, the Democratic Party wouldn't be able to replace him.

Boulter, who polls show faces an uphill battle, also said he had questions about how campaign monies would be spent if Bentsen is running for two offices.

"I'd have a hard time seeing Lloyd Bentsen campaigning in Lubbock or Tyler and knowing what he's campaigning for," Boulter said.

Jack Martin, Bentsen's Senate campaign director, said that campaign would continue as planned.

"It will be run separately, completely separately. It will go on just as if we were not running for vice president," Martin said.

Boulter, a two-term congressman, also said Dukakis' choice for a running mate shows what candidate Boulter has been saying — that Bentsen isn't a conservative Democrat but an ally of the liberal, national Democratic leadership.

Pilot, lady plead innocent in escape

SANTA FE (AP) — The pilot and a woman allegedly involved in Monday's helicopter escape from the state prison near Santa Fe have pleaded innocent to conspiracy and assisting an escape.

Charles Bella, 43, and Beverly Shoemaker, 41, were presented with the formal charges on Tuesday and ordered held under $100,000 bond by Santa Fe County Magistrate Isaac Archuleta.

Ms. Shoemaker told reporters Tuesday that she acted out of love for inmate Daniel Mahoney, 31, and would do it again.

"It's probably my way of giving him a birthday present," Ms. Shoemaker said. Today was his birthday.

She also said in a copyright interview with the Albuquerque Journal that Bella had offered to help during the wild flight Monday from the state penitentiary.

"He told me if I quit pointing a gun at him, he'd help me. He did tell me he was going to help me but (that) he would deny it later," she told the Journal.

However, she conceded Bella was "probably scared I was going to shoot him." One of Ms. Shoemaker's attorneys, whom the newspaper did not identify, said Bella had no part in planning anything illegal.

Bella's lawyers entered a plea of innocent for him. Ms. Shoemaker also was presented with formal charges Tuesday and ordered held on $100,000 bond. Archuleta entered an innocent plea on her behalf.

She told the Journal that she and Mahoney had planned the escape during weeks of letters and telephone calls to the prison.

"Apparently the prison phones aren't bugged," she said.

Penitentiary warden Robert Tansy said prison officials don't normally monitor calls.

"I want you all to know that whatever I did yesterday, I did out of my love for Danny Mahoney," Ms. Shoemaker said.

Mike Moon attends convention

MIKE MOON

Mike Moon, case manager at the Hereford Family Services Center attended the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill Convention July 1-4 on the University of Colorado campus in Boulder, Colo.

The theme of the convention was "mental illness on the Nation's Agenda." Approximately 1,650 persons attended the event with 63 persons being from Texas.

Among the presentors were Dr. E. Fuller Torrey, who is researching schizophrenia in identical twins. Patty Duke spoke about her treatment for bipolar illness (manic depression.) Several physicians from the National Institute of Mental Health described various research projects related to the causes and treatments of mental illness.

Smaller workshops addressed such topics as increasing cooperation between families and mental health professionals, expanding opportunities in housing and employment, and reducing the stigma of mental illness through greater public education.

Moon is available to offer programs to interested groups and clubs. He can be contacted at the Hereford Family Services Center, 364-6111.

Cooking school set July 19

Mary Blinderman, home economist with Southwestern Public Service Co., will be leading a cooking school for children Tuesday, July 19. The program is being co-sponsored by the 4-H section of DSC Extension Office and SPS.

The 10 a.m. session will be for those youth 6-9 years of age and the 2 p.m. session for 10-12 years of age.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling the extension office at 364-3573. Enrollment is limited to 20 per session.

During World War I, Baron Manfred von Richthofen, the German ace known as the "Red Baron," was killed in action in 1918.

Writer Mark Twain died in 1910.

Steinbach's RBIs give American League 2-1 victory

Worst hitter in game named all-star MVP

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — The only real consolation was that baseball's 59th All-Star Game was short.

It was boring for nearly all of its 2 hours, 26 minutes. And its hero was a player, Terry Steinbach, who was the worst hitter on either team, so bad and so little-known that his name was misspelled "Steinbech" on his special All-Star bat.

The National League did supply some comic relief when Bob Knepper almost fell off the mound in the fourth inning and when Cincinnati Reds rookie Chris Sabo ran off the field thinking he had scored on a foul ball in the seventh.

But it was only funny because the rest of the game was so foul.

In a season that may signal a changing of the guard among baseball's top players, the American League won 2-1 Tuesday night on Steinbach's homer — with his misspelled bat — in his first All-Star at-bat leading off the third inning and his sacrifice fly in the fourth.

Steinbach, the Oakland Athletics catcher, was one of 30 first-time All-Stars in the game, the most since the first All-Star contest in 1933 when they were all new.

The victory was only the third for the American League in the last 17 All-Star Games, and, in each, Whitey Herzog of the St. Louis Cardinals has been the losing NL manager.

The National League scored its only run — a typical Vince Coleman-style run — in its half of the fourth. The Cards' Coleman is the only major leaguer to steal 100 bases in each of his first three seasons — a real havoc-wrecker on the basepaths.

Leading off the fourth, he walked, stole second, went to third when Steinbach's throw went into center field, and scored on a wild pitch by Mark Gubicza of the Kansas City Royals.

Thus, even Steinbach's performance was not untainted, although hits later in the inning by Andre Dawson and Darryl Strawberry made the run earned.

Oddly, in 1986 in Cleveland, Steinbach hit a home run in his first major-league at-bat. He now is the eighth player to hit a homer in his first All-Star at-bat, the most recent being Lee Mazzilli in 1979. Steinbach's homer came on an 0-1 pitch from Dwight Gooden, also the loser in his 1986 All-Star start.

"The guys were teasing me," Steinbach said of the banter in the dugout after his homer cleared the right-field wall off Darryl Strawberry's glove. "They're already saying I'm an answer to a trivia question."

Part of that trivia question will be: What was Steinbach's batting average when he hit the homer? Answer: .217, easily the worst on either All-Star team. He hit .286 with 18 homers and 60 RBI in his first full major league season in 1987, so, like a lot of actors who win Oscars for bad movies, he was elected for last year's performance.

After the fourth inning, the game became, as AL Manager Tom Kelly of the Minnesota Twins said, one of pitching and defense. Don Mattingly, the New York Yankees' fancy first baseman, made a diving stop of a smash by Andy Van Slyke that saved a run in the seventh, and swift second baseman Harold Reynolds of the Seattle Mariners ran down a soft liner to right by Ryne Sandberg with one out in the eighth.

Frank Viola, Kelly's World Series MVP left-hander, pitched the first two innings, retiring six in a row, and Roger Clemens of Boston retired the side in order in the third. Gubicza gave up the fourth-inning run, but retired the last eight men he faced over two innings. Then came Dave Stieb of Toronto, Jeff Russell of Texas, Doug Jones of Cleveland, Dan Plesac of Milwaukee and, finally, Dennis Eckersley of Oakland, who leads the majors with 26 saves. They allowed just two more hits, for a total of five, and no more runs.

After Gooden allowed the homer to Steinbach, who had only five this season, the Houston Astros' Knepper came on to start the fourth. With one out, Dave Winfield doubled into the left-center field alley.

After the double, Cal Ripken walked, and a single to left by Mark McGwire loaded the bases for Steinbach. Knepper almost fell off the mound on his first pitch to Steinbach, and catcher Gary Carter had to bounce out to his right to prevent the soft delivery from going to the backstop. Steinbach then hit a long, high one that Coleman caught on the warning track, scoring Winfield, at 36 the oldest All-Star starter.

Volleyball: more than hitting the ball

The sport of volleyball is not just hitting the ball, as junior high school athletes are finding out in this week's volleyball camp at the Hereford High School gym. In the photo above, an eighth grade athlete goes through the sprawling drills. However, as seen in the photo below, the athletes do get chances to hit the ball — a ninth grader spikes the ball while HHS head Coach Brenda Reeh watches closely.

THE MIGHTY BABE

NEW YORK (AP) — Babe Ruth, who became the symbol of home run power during his years with the New York Yankees, began his career with one Boston club, the Red Sox, in 1914, and ended it with another, the Braves, in 1935.

The Babe hit 714 home runs in regular season play and added 15 in World Series action. His lifetime batting average was .342 and before becoming a full-time outfielder, he won 94 games as a pitcher. He played in 10 World Series, eight with the Yankees and two with the Red Sox. He was a pitcher when he worked for Boston in the 1916 and 1918 World Series and had a record of three victories and no losses.

Babe Ruth 14-15 district tourney begins today

The Babe Ruth 14 and 15-year-old district tournament begins today at the Deaf Smith County Kids Inc. complex.

The Hereford all-star team meets Plainview at 7:30 p.m. to open the tournament. The loser will play Tulia at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The tournament will continue Friday night. The winner advances to the West Texas State tournament in Canyon, which starts on July 23.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The advice for that mother in Springfield whose son refused to visit a dying relative was right on the money. I know because I have been there.

When I was 14 my father died as a result of an accident at work. I went to the funeral, but I refused to get close enough to the casket to see him laid out looking "so natural," as some people said.

The most shattering memory of my entire life is my mother yelling at me, "Go give your father one last kiss." I told her I didn't want to. She kept insisting, "If you love your father you will kiss him goodbye!" I couldn't make myself kiss that corpse and no amount of pressure was going to make me.

Many years have passed and my mother still gives me digs about how I refused to kiss my father goodbye. She makes frequent references to my inadequacy as a son and uses that incident as "proof."

I was so pleased when your consultant, Dr. Harold Visotsky, said that children should be permitted to do as they please when it comes to attending funerals. Some can handle it, others can't. Those who can't shouldn't be made to feel guilty by relatives whose ideas are a little different.—No Name No Town

DEAR N.N.N.T.: The response to that letter was surprisingly heavy. And almost everyone applauded the advice.

No way could I put out this column without the generous help of my consultants. Bless them one and all.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The column that described how unsafe it is to fly pets made me write my first letter to a newspaper.

I work in a kennel in Southern California. We fly puppies and kittens all over the world. They have gone as far north as Alaska and as far south as Florida. Recently we sent two Himalayan kittens to Saudi Arabia.

Not once has an animal arrived sick or injured. No animal in our care has ever disappeared.

What some shippers don't know is that you can't just shove an animal into an ordinary crate and forget about it. The crate must be made escape-proof.

Here are some helpful hints: Use bread bag twist ties to fasten the door, even though there are locks on it. Take four bungee cords (stretch rubber with a hook on each end) and hook them from front to back and side to side. The last cord should go across the door. It will then be impossible for an animal to escape unless someone lets it out.

This is how we've been doing it for 20 years and our success record is 100 percent.—Michelle G., Upland, Calif.

DEAR MICHELLE: Nobody can argue with a 100 percent success record. Your letter should serve as a guide to animal shippers everywhere. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are wrong when you say that most women know when their husbands are cheating. My husband and I had breakfast and dinner together several days a week. He never went anywhere in the evening without me. We were together every weekend. So, when did he have time to fool around? you guessed it. Lunch. For 10 years he met this dame at noon for a quickie. She supplied the apartment, and he brought the food. I never caught on because I never dreamed there were people who would settle for so little. Is my saga unique?—Fooled in S.F.

DEAR S.F.: Unique? No. When it comes to sex, man's imagination knows no bounds. (And the same can be said for woman.)

Are you struggling with decisions about sex and needing more information to help you make them? Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," can be like talking to a good friend. To receive a copy, send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

GET A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP
NEW YORK (AP) — Have trouble getting to sleep?

Here are some self-help measures from Family Circle magazine.

— Establish a regular sleep-wake pattern and maintain it every day — even on weekends and holidays.

— If you don't feel sleepy, don't go to bed.

— Beware of nightcaps. They may help you fall asleep faster but even small amounts interfere with sleep patterns and cause frequent arousals as well as nightmares.

— Drink a glass of warm milk or eat a small helping of carbohydrate food. These are sources of tryptophan, which brings on drowsiness.

— Exercise regularly and vigorously, but not before bedtime.

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.00 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	.14	2.00
2 days per word	.24	4.00
3 days per word	.34	6.00
4 days per word	.44	8.00
5th day FREE

Ten days (2 free) is $16.00 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is $24.00 minimum; one month is $32.00 minimum.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
 Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.50 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALIS
 Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

All-star games becoming distinctively boring

Down go the batters, down go TV ratings

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — Down go the batters. Down go the TV ratings.

Boring baseball makes for bad prime time entertainment and the All-Star Game is fast becoming a distinctly ordinary event instead of the showcase it ought to be.

At least the show got on and off quickly this time.

A year ago, squinting through the California twilight, the All-Stars did not score a run for 12 innings and all over America, people clicked off their television sets.

This time, equipped with traditional night baseball conditions, they scored early, if not often and finished the AL's 2-1 victory in 2 hours, 26 minutes, the fastest they've played this game since 1976. Madison Avenue now awaits the ratings report with trepidation.

The Do Not Disturb sign barely budged in this snoozer. If you were looking for excitement, you'd get more watching the corner traffic light change from green to red and back to green. Grass grows with more zest than this game had.

The All-Star Game was built on drama, on ninth-inning game-winning home runs by guys like Ted Williams, on 14th-inning home runs by guys like Red Schoendienst, on home-plate collisions to score the winning run by guys like Pete Rose.

But the last few gatherings of what are advertised as baseball's best players, have packed all the wallop of a flyweight fight.

The All-Stars have scored a total of 10 runs in the last three games. That's 10 runs by both teams, five apiece. In the last four games, there have been just three home runs. The last NL homer came in 1984, so long ago that the defending world champions that year were the now-woeful Baltimore Orioles.

That's a long time for a league to go without an All-Star homer.

The NL, once so dominant in this series, has managed to score in three of its last 31 All-Star innings. Its sleep-walking sluggers managed exactly six singles Tuesday night, and two of those never made it out of the infield. It was only the eighth time an All-Star team did not have at least one extra base hit. The AL accomplished the same dubious distinction in 1985.

It seemed perfectly appropriate then for the All-Star MVP to be Oakland's almost anonymous Terry Steinbach, who earned his spot on the AL team because, if you don't have a catcher it's tough to play baseball.

The All-Star Game seems to be deteriorating into something less than baseball, though. It is becoming a parade of pitchers dominating the hitters.

"It's tough for a batter when they don't get to see a pitcher more than once," AL starter Frank Viola said. "It really gives the pitchers a distinct advantage."

AL manager Tom Kelly agreed. "If a guy can get a couple of looks at a pitcher, it would be different," he said.

Except for Rickey Henderson, Paul Molitor and Wade Boggs, each of whom had two swings at NL starter Dwight Gooden, no batter in this game saw the same pitcher twice.

Real baseball isn't played that way. Real baseball isn't a race to get every player on the bench into the game. That tactic diminishes strategy and turns scorecards into mazes.

The pitcher merry-go-round may be a tribute though to Steinbach, who came into the game equipped with a .217 batting average after spending half the season on the disabled list because of an eye injury.

For his first All-Star at-bat, Steinbach faced Gooden's fast ball and he hit the second one he saw just over the right field fence, bouncing it off Darryl Strawberry's glove for a home run.

In his second swing, an inning later, Steinbach had to deal with Bob Knepper, who throws three speeds — slow, slower and slowest. The Oakland catcher made the adjustment and delivered a sacrifice fly for the other AL run.

Two RBIs. That made him a cinch MVP winner in what has evolved into a game that searches desperately for a hero.

Quick. Lower the mound. Reduce the strike zone. Somebody has to put some oomph back in this game before it evaporates from boredom.

And if you doubt just how bad things have become, you might consider MVP Steinbach's bat, which is headed for the Hall of Fame's All-Star display.

He's so well known that the manufacturers misspelled his name.

'87 British Open champ says best defense is no defense

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer

LYTHAM, England (AP) — For Nick Faldo, the best defense is no defense when it comes to preparing to defend the championship at the British Open.

"I'm trying not to overdo it," the Englishman said Tuesday, two days before he starts his attempt to become the first person since Tom Watson in 1983 to win the oldest tournament in golf in consecutive years.

"I'm not thinking of it as a defense," Faldo said. "I'm thinking of it as just another open. I've got time to get things ironed out, and then away we go."

Faldo won his first major championship last summer with a round of 18 pars on the long, rainswept course at Muirfield, Scotland.

The 71 for the final 18 holes brought him home in 279, one shot better than Australian Rodger Davis and Paul Azinger, who had entered the final day with a one-stroke lead.

It was a surprising triumph for most. Not for Faldo, though.

"I was probably secretly more confident of my chances last year," Faldo said when asked if he ever had been so confident on the eve of a major tournament. "Last year, I just felt, 'I'm going to do it.'"

A defeat in another major event last month may have something to do with the softening of Faldo's attitude.

Faldo lost the U.S. Open in an 18-hole playoff to Curtis Strange. The Englishman said a putting stroke that suddenly went wooden might have cost him that title.

"It was a little too rigid," he said. "I'm trying to get a little more feel into it, not steer it. I think I have it worked out."

Any fine-tuning that the defending champ will do between now and Thursday will focus on another part of his game.

"We're working on the backswing," he said. "Other than that, it all feels good. I'll switch on Wednesday night, I'm sure."

With his British Open title and the near-success in the U.S. Open, Faldo has been in demand on the American tour and has spent a large part of this season in the U.S.

He has played just seven European tournaments, winning the French Open a week after his loss in the U.S. Open. Three other tournaments have brought second-place finishes, including the Dunhill British Masters and two Spanish stops, the Spanish Open and the Barcelona Open.

Faldo is known for length and accuracy on drives and long irons. It was an ideal combination at Muirfield last year, and most of the top golfers in the 153-man field think a big hitter will have the advantage at Royal Lytham and St. Annas Golf Club as well.

Faldo hopes they are right.
