Hollowell named new city judge

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

The Hereford City Commission picked Tawanna Hollowell as the city's new municipal court judge Monday night and also named several others to various city boards.

Hollowell, currently the Justice of the Peace chief court clerk, was culled from nine applicants to fill the municipal judge slot being vacated in July by Judge JoED Cupell.

The chief clerk has worked in the Justice of the Peace court more than five years.

Commissioner Tom LeGate was named to the Economic Development Council, a group designed to promote economic growth with three representatives from the community and a member from the city, school, county and Chamber of Commerce to man it.

The commission also voted that Mayor Wes Fisher and Commissioner Bud Eades should represent the city on the Tax Abatement Board, a board designated to install a tax abatement program for new and expanding industry, represented by two members of the city, county and school with one representative from the hospital district.

City attorney Earnest Langley conducted a public hearing concerning the condemnation of three structures city inspector Marvin Gaddy deemed a hazard.

The owners of the structures in the 500 block of George Street and 206 Whiteface Avenue have refused to answer the city's requests that the buildings be razed, so Langley stated that the cases will go to district court.

"This is the first time in 31 years that we've ever had to go this far (to enforce the building ordinance)," said Langley. "Before when we've written or called to have the owners tear a structure down, they've done it."

Gaddy described the houses as "completely deteriorated — no windows, no doors or anything."

The owner of the property at 231 Catalpa Street had already agreed to demolish her house, which had no running water.

In other business, the commission voted to replace the "park ranger" green police uniforms with the popular dark and light blue uniforms because the blue color is more easily associated with law enforcement, said police Capt. Ted Langgood.

"The blue uniforms help to command respect at the scene of a crime and it should help our recognition within the community," said Langgood.

City Manager Darwin McGill said that the city will furnish three full uniforms for each officer and will delete the current method of giving each officer $50 per month to purchase the uniforms.

Police Cpl. Bennie Barrick stated that the city will be receiving three bids for the uniforms and "the city will definitely end up saving money by going this route."

The commission also named Kenneth Hagar, Raynold Herr, Tom Lange, Paul Posner and Fred Euland to the Building Code Board of Adjustments and Appeal, and Patsy Giles and Kay Claypool were named for another term to the Hereford Family Services Advisory Board.

Japanese trade pact helpful here

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A Japanese agreement to almost double beef imports over the next three years could be a big boost to the area's economy, according to officials of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association and the National Cattlemen's Association.

The agreement, announced Monday in Tokyo, calls on Japan to scale back its beef import restrictions, destroying a barrier that had existed for many years. Tariffs will be cut by as much as 50 percent over the next five years, and an additional $1 billion worth of boxed beef could be headed to Japan over the next three years.

"This has been a psychological thing for our people, the fact that we import so much from Japan while they've had barriers on our beef and citrus over there," said Charles Ball, executive vice president of the TCFA in Amarillo.

"It's going to be a morale booster for us and it's going to help our markets some. We're very pleased with the agreement. (Japan) will become a very significant market in the future, but in terms of dollars this year or next year it's going to be very difficult to measure."

"We're talking about a potential increase of some 1.1 million head of cattle from U.S. producers," said Teel Bivins of Amarillo, a member of NCA's Beef Promotion and Research Board. "Because this region produces such a significant portion of the nation's beef supply, a lot of cattle will be moving out of this region, ultimately winding up as boxed beef in Japan."

The additional cattle sales to Japan could be a boost to the entire regional economy. "Anything that is healthy for the beef industry is very helpful to all of the residents in the region." (The Associated Press also contributed to this report.)

Drought dims farm dreams

LOWELL, Ind. (AP) — This was supposed to be the year of optimism, with debt down, spirits up and many farmers expecting good crops and good prices in 1988. But now Wayne Wiethrock will settle for less. Breaking even.

Along with thousands of farmers across the Midwest, Wiethrock has seen the drought curl corn leaves and trap soybeans under dried chunks of cracked gray soil in his fields. A brief rain Monday, he said, did little to help.

Wiethrock, a third-generation grain farmer in northwest Indiana, said if there's no break in the dry spell, he could lose 30 percent of his corn.

But he added: "If I can break even ... I'll count myself OK. So many farmers just went completely bankrupt. Maybe we feel good just by staying where we are."

Still, the Midwest's worst drought in 50 years comes as many farmers, having survived the mid-1980s' tough times, are finally making a dent in their debt and starting back toward recovery.

"It's very frustrating for farmers just coming out of several years of low prices and a high debt situation," said Dennis Vercler, Illinois Farm Bureau spokesman.

"This is the year we looked at ... as starting to recover," said Rex Barnes, a farmer near New Hampshire, Ohio. "If you don't have anything to sell, it doesn't mean anything if prices are high."

Many experts say it's too early to tell what the impact will be because heavy rains in coming weeks could leave farmers in reasonably good shape. But more dry weather could cause irreparable financial damage in the Farm Belt.

"If we adopt a worst case scenario ... this could be a setback for the financial recovery side of agriculture," said Neil Hari, an Iowa State University economics professor.

For farmers "who were just barely making it, this may be the marginal blow that puts the person in a place where they may not continue."

After the farm crisis of the mid-1980s, strong hog and cattle profits, good yields and price support programs contributed to a record $44.9 billion net farm income in 1987, Hari said, while farm debt fell by $30 billion.

Hari said 1987 was a record year for reducing farm debt, which was about $150 billion at the end of last year, compared with $216 billion in 1983.

In Iowa, he added, the latest figures show 21 percent of farmers with substantial financial problems, compared with more than 30 percent in 1985-86.

If the drought continues, farmers will have less crop to deliver to the market and that means less income to spend on Main Street.

Experts say the next few weeks are critical because the summer is usually very dry in the Farm Belt.

"Unless we have an unusually wet July and August, we're almost assured of having serious troubles," Hari said.

Many farmers, including Tim Abraham, of Lorain County, Ohio, already have lowered their expectations.

"Financially, we could salvage the year — we could break even," he said. "As far as making any large profits, that's gone. Right now, most people are willing or more than willing to accept a break-even year."

Wiethrock, 58, said if he goes this year without profits, he won't be able to buy machinery and will make other sacrifices. Still, he said he considers himself lucky because many others have been forced out of farming.

"The family farm is a struggle for a lot of us to stay on," he said. "I look around here ... and do not see any young farmer, under 40 years old. There's no young ones coming on. Something like this ... is going to further discourage others."

Promise: NBA will decide champ tonight

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The NBA's team of the '80s is playing for more than just a title. The Los Angeles Lakers are seeking a special place in history and the right to be called "great."

They say they will have neither if they lose the decisive seventh game of the NBA Finals tonight against the Detroit Pistons — whose star player, Isiah Thomas, probably will miss the game with a sprained ankle.

The Lakers can enhance their decade of dominance and fulfill their coach's guarantee of consecutive championships by denying Detroit its first crown.

"If we win it, we will have earned our spot in the recent history of basketball," Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said Monday. "We have been the dominant team of the '80s and if we win, we will have earned that appreciation."

The Lakers won three of the first seven titles this decade. But no team has repeated as champions since the 1969 Boston Celtics. After the Lakers won their fourth crown of the 1980s last year, Coach Pat Riley found an unusual way to try and break the streak.

He guaranteed the Lakers would do it.

"I'm going to guarantee everyone we're going to repeat," he said soon after the Lakers beat Boston for the title last year.

On Monday, with his players perhaps one day from accomplishing that, Riley said he made the statement to motivate them.

"If they ever really wanted to accomplish something, it had to come from back-to-back titles," he said.

"If that was the criteria for greatness, then ... I think the players understand that."

He said his team's objective now is to win tonight's game at home; its goal is to win a world championship and its mission is intangible.

"What that is," he said, "is what we're playing for. Greatness."

The Lakers have won 10 titles, five of them since moving from Minneapolis in 1960.

The Pistons would be happy with one.

They are in their first final since they moved to Detroit in 1957 and haven't won a championship since they joined the NBA as the Ft. Wayne Pistons in 1948.

"I don't care about our fifth or sixth (title). All I want to win is one," Detroit center Bill Laimbeer said.

While the Lakers seek greater glory, the Pistons feel they finally are getting the recognition they deserve for a season in which they became surprise finalists by knocking off the Celtics in the Eastern Conference finals.

"I don't think anybody's saying we're a fluke now," Pistons' forward Adrian Dantley said.

Not after they took a 3-2 lead in the series and not even after the Lakers struggled to tie it with a 103-102 victory Sunday at the Forum. The Pistons "thought we had it" after they took a 102-99 lead with one minute left, Dantley said.

But they let it slip away, a lapse that gained meaning Monday when Thomas, their star guard, said he was hoping for a miracle so he could play tonight.

He severely sprained his right ankle with 4:35 left in the third quarter Sunday and was on crutches Monday. Trainer Mike Abdenour said "his chances of playing are one in 99."

Thomas carried the Pistons Sunday with 43 points, including 17 after he was hurt, but said Monday that, "I have a lot of faith in my teammates."

"I like our basketball team's chances. We're a strong defensive team and I've said all along the best defensive team can win the series," he added. "Even without me, we'll still be able to stop people."

Winnie Johnson was expected to start in his place alongside Joe Dumars.

Saints win tournament

The Saints won the championship in the Minor League Girls' Softball Tournament held Saturday and Sunday at the Kids Inc. Baseball Complex in Hereford.

The Saints came out tops in the four-team round-robin tournament Saturday, then defeated the Cardinals and the Angels to win the championship Sunday. The Angels won second place, and the Cardinals came back in the loser's bracket to earn third place.

Strange end for Open

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — The waiting is over for Curtis Strange.

On Monday, he settled two old scores by winning his first major golf championship, the U.S. Open.

Now, he can put to rest the whispers that said he wins money but not titles. And he can properly honor the memory of his father, who died when he was 14.

"This is for my dad," Strange said. "That's all I can say. I waited a long time to do this."

"I screwed up the 1985 Masters, and I was as disappointed as anyone. We don't have to bring that up, though. We're supposed to be having fun here. But I have been waiting a long time."

The 33-year-old Strange shot an even-par 71 over the 7,010-yard course at The Country Club, beating Nick Faldo of Britain by four strokes in an 18-hole playoff. The end came when Faldo had two bogeys on the four long, par-4 holes that start the back nine.

Although Strange managed to find only seven fairways while Faldo hit 12, Strange used just 26 putts, including a 29-footer for birdie on No. 13 while Faldo was bogeying the hole for a two-stroke swing.

"That was the turning point right there," Strange said.

Strange was the PGA Tour's leading money winner in two of the past three years, setting records both times. He had won two Tour events already this season, and Hale Irwin called him the greatest player in the game today.

Many other golfers agreed, but Jack Nicklaus, winner of 20 major tournaments himself, said Strange would have to prove it in one of the Grand Slam events.

Strange almost did that in 1985, leading the Masters going into the final nine holes. But he hit into the water on both par-5s for bogeys, and Bernhard Langer won. That may have been the low point of Strange's career.

This certainly was the highest.

"You wait for a moment like this in your life, to be able to thank the people who helped you through your career," Strange said, tears glistening in his eyes and his chin quivering with emotion.

Strange's father was a golf professional and owned the White Sands Country Club in Virginia Beach, Va. He had Curtis golfing when he was 7.

Strange and Faldo wound up tied at 6-under-par 278 after 72 holes on Sunday, forcing an 18-hole playoff, the format used by the U.S. Golf Association for its Open championship. Strange saved par from a trap at 18 on Sunday after bogeying the 17th hole by three-putting from eight feet.

Strange was 1 under par on the front side and led Faldo by one stroke going to the back nine, which starts with four par-4s, all over 430 yards.

The two matched par on No. 10, and Faldo bogeyed the 11th hole when he two-putted from eight feet. Strange gave the stroke back on 12 when he bogeyed from a greenside bunker.

The big swing came on 13, a 433-yarder. Faldo three-putted from 40 feet after driving into the right rough. Strange was on in two and birdied from 29 feet.

How much did that 29-footer mean?

"It meant a lot," Faldo said, "because he made it."

Faldo birdied the 14th hole, a par-5, when he put his second shot 35 feet past the pin and two-putted, pulling within one stroke.

Faldo gave back the stroke on 15 when he chipped his third shot from one side of the green to the other for a bogey. He missed a 15-foot birdie putt on the par-3 16th and lost his final opportunity when he bogeyed 17 after his second shot went past the green into the short rough, putting Strange three strokes ahead.

Faldo also bogeyed the 18th after the outcome was already decided.

Strolling up the 18th fairway, raised fist in the air and a par in the bag after he put his second shot in the center of the green, Strange had settled two scores. The only question that remained was: Is Curtis Strange now the best golfer in the world?

"That's a tough one," Faldo said. "Sandy Lyle won three events this year. He's the Masters champion. To be honest with you, in golf today there is not a No. 1 ..."

"All I know is it felt like a hell of a long day."

Kunkel, Rangers sink Mariners, 4-3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — When Jeff Russell was moved from the bullpen to the starting rotation on May 14, the Texas Rangers right-hander was skeptical. Russell felt comfortable as a reliever.

Now he's making a serious bid for a berth on the American League All-Star team with a 6-0 record and a 2.18 ERA since being shifted from the bullpen.

Jeff Kunkel's RBI double in the bottom of the ninth Monday night helped Russell boost his record to 7-0 as the Rangers downed the Seattle Mariners, 4-3.

Russell thinks his record merits All-Star consideration. The All-Star game will be played in Cincinnati, Russell's hometown, next month.

"I want to go home (for the All-Star game)," Russell said. "I knew it was out of range starting the season in the bullpen, but now it's possible. I just want to go out and do what I'm capable of on each start."

Russell scattered four hits in pitching his third consecutive complete game. Russell matched the best start ever by a Rangers pitcher since Jim Kern started 7-0 in 1979.

"That's a nice way to win," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine, whose club dropped two-of-three games in extra innings to Oakland over the weekend. "No extra innings. Russell gets the complete game and the guys in the bullpen get a day off."

Valentine didn't even have Kunkel's name on his original lineup card. He'd told Kunkel he'd start against lefty Mark Langston but forgot, mistakenly writing in Curtis Wilkerson as the starting second baseman.

Tigers 2, Yankees 1

Detroit got a second-inning run on second-inning doubles by Ray Knight and Darrell Evans and made it stand up until the ninth, when Dave Winfield spoiled Jeff Robinson's bid for a second straight shutout with a two-out RBI double.

Brookens then won it off reliever Cecilio Guante.

Athletics 5, Brewers 4

Oakland built a 4-0 lead on Dave Henderson's solo homer, an RBI triple by Mark McGwire and Dave Parker's two-run homer. After Parker's shot in the sixth, Teddy Higuera was ejected by home plate umpire Derryl Cousins when he hit Henderson with the next pitch.

Red Sox 14, Indians 7

After collecting 23 hits against Baltimore on Sunday, the Red Sox went to Cleveland and belted Indians ace Greg Swindell, 10-5, who lost his fourth straight, allowing five runs on nine hits in 2 2/3 innings.

Angels 6, Twins 5

Wally Joyner was the difference at Minneapolis with a three-run homer and a run-scoring single. California also was aided by Joyner's sensational running catch in the ninth inning.

Blue Jays 5, Orioles 2

Dave Stieb, 10-3, won his ninth straight decision and Fred McGriff keyed the offense with a two-run homer. Stieb allowed four hits in six innings.

White Sox 5, Royals 3

At Chicago, Steve Lyons hit Jerry Don Gleaton's first pitch for a two-run homer in the ninth inning.

Browning bests Deshaies, Astros 2-1

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Pete Rose has hit upon the right combination for beating the Houston Astros with pitcher Tom Browning and shortstop Barry Larkin.

Browning held the Astros to five hits and one run over 7 2/3 innings Monday night and Larkin got three hits in five at-bats, leading the Reds to a 2-1 victory.

Browning, 6-3, defeated the Astros and starter Jim Deshaies, his former college teammate and high school opponent, for the second straight time.

Lubbock team wins major tourney

The Lubbock Lady Raiders defeated Ideal Rentals 19-5 in the championship game of the Hereford Girls' Softball Tournament held Saturday and Sunday at the Kids Inc. Baseball Complex in Hereford.

Ideal Rentals had beaten Lubbock Blast in the first round before losing to Cattle Town in the second round. Ideal Rentals then defeated Merchants in an elimination game Saturday, beat Lubbock's Zappers 12-5, then came back to beat Cattle Town 10-8 in the loser's bracket finals to gain a spot in the championship game against the Lady Raiders.

Larkin, who has a career .432 batting average against the Astros, homered in the sixth inning to tie the score at 1-1.

Chris Sabo, the Reds' No. 2 hitter, followed with a double down the third base line and scored the winning run on Nick Esasky's sacrifice fly to left field.

"Chris and I know that we are the table setters for the third, fourth and fifth hitters," Larkin said. "I hit the ball well against Houston pitchers because they come right at you and you have to be ready to hit against them."

Larkin definitely was ready to hit against Deshaies, 4-5, his former Le-Moyne College teammate.

Names In The News

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Six-year-old Brian Bonsall, who shares the spotlight with Michael J. Fox in NBC-TV's "Family Ties," is a bundle of energy and frustration, according to TV Guide.

Fox plays Alex, the oldest offspring of the Keaton family, and Brian plays Andrew, the youngest.

During a day on the set, the boy's preference for play was continually challenged by adults' demands for less childish behavior, something that doesn't always please his mother, the magazine reported in its May 28 edition.

"One of my concerns is that people treat him too much like an adult sometimes," said Brian's mother, Kathleen Bonsall, who dropped her own acting aspirations to help manage her son's career.

But, she added, "He loves to perform. If he didn't, I wouldn't have him here. I want a healthy child."

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A crowd of fans and reporters jammed the airport of Brazil's largest city for the arrival of ballet star Rudolf Nureyev, who plans a series of six performances here.

Nureyev, who was expected a day earlier but missed his flight from Paris, gave a brief impromptu press conference at the airport Thursday. Using an interpreter for the Portuguese-speaking crowd, Nureyev said he was familiar with Brazilian dance and dancers in Europe.

Asked which Brazilians he knew, Nureyev only smiled and asked, "Do you want names?"

The Soviet-born dancer was to give three performances in Sao Paulo and three in Rio de Janeiro.

The visit is Nureyev's fourth to Brazil. He performed here in 1967, 1971 and 1983.

NEW YORK (AP) — Faye Dunaway says her performance as an alcoholic in the movie "Barfly" benefited from her time spent in analysis, during which she says she "learned to relax as a person."

"I'm more accepting of my vulnerability now," she said. "I've always had enormous insecurity, but I was always frightened of showing that before, so I sort of hid behind whatever kind of facade I could."

In contrast, Ms. Dunaway says her performance as an icy, manipulative Joan Crawford in "Mommie Dearest" may have been too believable, especially to herself.

"I was too good as Crawford," she said in an interview published in the June 13 issue of US magazine. "I think that changed the notion of who I was. ... It created a kind of monstrous element which I don't think had been part of my life before."

In her newest film, "Midnight Crossing," Ms. Dunaway plays an ophthalmologist blinded by glaucoma, which required her to learn what sightlessness is like.

"Hearing became very important," she said. "She (her character) was always seeing with her ears. ... It makes you realize how lucky you are."

DENVER (AP) — Yoko Ono got an autograph and a hug when she showed up at a book-signing by Jimmy Carter at a book store here.

Carter was promoting his new book, "An Outdoor Journal: Adventures and Reflections." Ono was in Denver to open an exhibit of artwork by her late husband, John Lennon.

She approached the former president as he was preparing to leave the Tattered Cover Book Store. Ono received the autograph and the hug before making a quick exit.

In the latest of his six books, Carter writes of his lifelong relationship with nature. A devoted fisherman and hunter, he took regular trips to the wilderness while occupying the White House from 1977 to 1981.

LONDON (AP) — Derek Walcott, the Caribbean poet and playwright who has given pungent voice to themes of cultural identity and assimilation, was awarded Queen Elizabeth II's Gold Medal for Poetry, the first Commonwealth writer ever to win the prize.

Walcott, who is in his 50s, was born in the former British colony of St. Lucia. He has written eight volumes of poetry and more than three dozen plays, and also teaches English at Boston University.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Best-selling author Jackie Collins, sister of "Dynasty" vixen Joan Collins, says she pursued a career in show business after being expelled from her exclusive English high school for smoking.

Her parents told her, "You're not bad looking. Why don't you go off to Hollywood and be a movie star like your sister," she recalled recently.

Dismal bit parts steered Ms. Collins away from acting and toward writing about the players. Her latest ode to life in the fast lane, "Rock Star," held steady at No. 4 on last week's New York Times best-seller list, following her last two tinseltown tell-alls, "Hollywood Wives" and "Hollywood Husbands."

"Some people tend to regard me as the Hollywood expert," she said. "I could write a book tomorrow with all the real names — short one-liners that would let you know exactly who everybody really was."

HOUSTON (AP) — Col. Sherwood "Woody" Spring, an astronaut who flew on a shuttle flight in 1985, is leaving NASA in August to become director of the Army Space Program office.

Spring will report to the Army Space Program's Fairfax, Va., headquarters on Sept. 1, NASA spokesman Jeff Carr said Friday. Spring will train for nine months before becoming director next June.

Spring, who was selected to be an astronaut in May 1980, was a mission specialist on the space shuttle Atlantis flight that launched in November 1985.

During that mission, Spring helped deploy three communication satellites, and went on two spacewalks that totaled 12 hours.

Spring logged 165 hours in space on that mission. Since then, he has been doing general technical support work for the space station project.

Association board members to host coffee Wednesday

Board members of the King's Manor Founders Association will serve as hosts during a coffee at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Lamar Garden Room at the Manor. Manor Auxiliary members and others interested in helping King's Manor Retirement Home residents are invited to attend.

Plans for the annual Founders Association Barbecue, set from 5-9 p.m. July 9, at the Manor complex, will be discussed at the coffee. The barbecue is a major fundraising event of the Founders Association with proceeds going to assist Manor residents who are unable to pay the full cost of their care at the United Methodist facility.

Association members will be preparing the barbecue dinner with Auxiliary members serving it.

Joan Bookout, a board member, is general chairman of arrangements for the coffee. Bob Sims is board chairman this year; Jim Arney, vice president; and B.F. Cain, secretary. Other directors include Grant Hanna, Edward Allison, Wayne Amstutz, Jeff Brown, Mark Hicks, Wanda Hoover, Della Hutchins, Jim Halliburton of Vega, Roberta Caviness and Charles Duval.

Merry Mixers hold meeting

Merry Mixer Square Dancers met Thursday evening at the Community Center for their regular business meeting and square dance.

More than three squares of dancers danced to Freddie McKee's calling. Between square dance tips, Bill Harmon of Dimmitt cued for round dancers.

Among the dancers were former members, Truman and Sarah Hazelrigg of Comanche and Floyd and Eva Rector of Friona.

The Merry Mixers dance on the first, third, and fifth Thursday nights at the Community Center and welcome all square dancers to attend. The next dance is set for June 30 at 8:30 p.m.

WTSU shows increase

Enrollment figures for the 1988 first summer session at West Texas State University show an increase of 62 students compared to 1987 summer figures.

First summer session enrollment for 1988 is 2,291, compared to 2,229 for 1987.

Registrar Linda Elliott credits the increase to efforts by the University aimed at retention and increasing enrollment.

"I think the four-day week is very popular and attracts students," Dr. Steve Gamble, vice president for academic affairs and dean of enrollment management, said. "There is a tendency for some students to want to shorten their time in college so they like to go to summer school." Elliott said she expects enrollment for the second summer session to be comparable to first session enrollment.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a recent widow and mother of a grown son, 43. He has never been much of a communicator, but now when I need to talk, these are the comments I get from him:

"I'm in a hurry."
 "Get to the point."
 "Just say yes or no."
 "Let's discuss this another time."

"You are too negative about everything."

"Why do you have to make it such a long story?"

"I have to be somewhere in 15 minutes."

He sends me cards and expensive gifts on special occasions. I don't need these things. I need someone to talk to now that I am alone.

Is this normal or am I expecting too much?—Jacksonville Mother

DEAR MOTHER: I'm afraid you lost this battle several years ago. A 43-year-old son who was "never much of a communicator" is not about to open up to his mother simply because she needs to talk to someone.

I hope you will consult a grief therapist soon. Professional help would be useful. You can't count on your son to fill this void in your life, nor should you expect it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in total agreement with "Sour Note," the band leader who was sick and tired of being pestered by amateurs who came up and asked if they could do a number with the band.

A few years ago, a drunk asked if he could sing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." He seemed like a pleasant sort so I said, "OK." On his way to the mike the drunk stumbled over the drums, fell on a $5,000 violin and splintered it like toothpicks. He said, "Gee, I'm sorry." No offer to pay for the damage.

That was the last time I let anyone sing with the band.—Chattanooga Charlie

DEAR CHARLIE: Sorry about that. Here's another story with a happier ending.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Years ago I had a five-piece band. My biggest problem was patrons who wanted to sing with us. They were always lousy. One night I had a bright idea. "Did you bring your music?" I asked. Of course, no one ever brings music. That was the end of it. I recommend this solution. It works and nobody ever gets mad.—Jack in Oak Brook
