Bush defends U.S. at U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Vice President George Bush's rare appearance before the Security Council today indicates the United States seeks dialogue with Iran, which wants the council to condemn the U.S. attack on an Iran Air jet.

Bush was expected to vigorously defend the U.S. position that the crew of the USS Vincennes acted properly under the circumstances when it shot down the airliner over the Persian Gulf on July 3, killing all 290 people aboard.

The Navy said the cruiser's crew mistook the A300 Airbus for a fighter jet and the plane ignored radioed warnings.

A U.S. vice president has not spoken to the council in years, and the appearance of Bush, a former U.N. ambassador, is considered a major gesture of hopes for better relations with Iran after nearly nine years of hostility.

The meeting, originally scheduled for Tuesday, is turning into an embarrassment for Tehran because it cannot get a majority on the 15-member council to condemn Washington and demand removal of U.S. forces from the gulf.

Both Iran and the United States are seeking to avoid a public confrontation. And behind the scenes, both appear to be seeking common ground in a council resolution, said diplomatic sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The sources said Wednesday that Iran had failed to line up strong speakers to denounce the United States.

They said an impasse was shaping up on an acceptable document from the session and speculated that the meeting could be adjourned after Iranian Foreign Minister Ali-Akbar Velayati and Bush speak.

Code means better buildings

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

Starting July 18, contractors and home owners must comply with Hereford's new building code in an effort to end the "popsicle stick" construction most often seen in Hereford's more destitute areas.

"This is gonna take up most of my time to inspect," said Marvin Gaddy, city inspector, "but I love it. (This code) is gonna help the community have better buildings, and it will stop this bad construction which affects the next people who'll buy a house."

According to Gaddy, Hereford is the last city in the Panhandle to have a building code and was surprised that Hereford didn't have one when he arrived on the job in October.

The Hereford City Commission eventually adopted the code April 18 after an independent committee of five persons involved in the construction business studied the Standard Building Code and made a few alterations.

"They made some changes on the re-roofing rules in the book to protect the home owners from these fly-by-night contractors who come in here after these big hail storms," stated Gaddy. "They're still having to re-patch those roofs all over town."

The code is a series of four, 2-inch books and four small books addressing all aspects of construction. The home owner needn't worry about familiarizing himself with all the books, said Gaddy, because the contractors already will be versed in all codes.

The least popular law will probably be the Trench Safety Law requiring that any trench more than 5 feet deep must have a permit, and the banks must be braced.

Bad building

This garage being built on Whiteface Avenue is just the kind of construction Gaddy hopes Hereford's new building code will improve. Gaddy explained that any structure constructed before July 18, when the code will be enforced, does not have to comply with the code.

"The trenching law is what's gonna be a real pain in the butt," Gaddy stated. "Anybody that digs a ditch will be affected by this law, especially those in the utility companies. It's just going to be so costly."

Trenches also must be inspected as well as any other construction. "After I've inspected the construction and it doesn't comply, then the City will issue a stopwork order. I've been doing inspections for years, and I've never had to issue one of those. Then, if they don't comply with the order, we charge a $200 fine for each day the problems aren't corrected," said Gaddy.

Gaddy said structures already under construction are not required to adhere to the code "so there's been a lot of construction in the past few weeks. Only when these structures become a hazard can we step in and start the condemnation procedures."

The inspector said he has heard no complaints against the code yet.

"Everybody I've talked to says we need it. The whole idea of the code is to let the people paying for the construction get their money's worth. The code will just affect the bad building contractors, because the good ones usually exceed any building standards."

Reagan inspects drought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he will do all he can to protect farmers from excessive losses, but he won't approve drought-relief measures that would "bust the budget."

Reagan made the statements in a meeting with farm leaders in the elegant Roosevelt Room of the White House Wednesday before flying to southern Illinois today to visit damaged soybean and corn fields and "see the effects of the drought for myself."

His schedule called for him to receive a briefing from state agricultural officials after viewing the crop damage at the State Fair Grounds near Marion, Ill., then visit with Herman Krone and his family at their DuQuoin, Ill., farm.

From Marion he was flying to Davenport, Iowa, to take part in the dedication of a new building at radio station WOC, where he broke into radio in 1932, and to speak at a luncheon sponsored by the station and the local chamber of commerce.

Although Krone's farm has had nearly 2 inches of rain this week, today's forecast was for mostly sunny skies, hot and humid with highs in the 90s. Some parts of southern Illinois have had up to 4 inches of rain recently, but agriculture experts say it won't do much to help the already shriveled corn crop.

"Even though it has rained, when the president looks at the crops, he's going to see a bad situation," said Steve Newman of the Illinois Farm Bureau.

At the 2,800-acre Krone farm, about 400 acres of the 1,200-acre corn crop are believed to have been irreversibly damaged, for a financial loss estimated at $35,000. Krone said corn stalks that should be 10 feet to 12 feet high by this time of year measure only 2 feet to 5 feet, with burnt, brownish tassels.

Congress okays closings bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — With plenty of extra votes in the Senate and maybe enough in the House to override a veto, Congress is forcing an election-year showdown with President Reagan on giving workers advance notice of plant closings and layoffs.

Fifty-four of the 177 House Republicans abandoned the administration and the party's presidential candidate, Vice President George Bush, on the issue Wednesday. Nineteen of the Senate's 46 Republicans did the same last week.

On a 286-136 vote, more than the two-thirds needed to enact the law over a veto from Reagan, the House voted Wednesday to let workers caught up in plant closings or layoffs involving more than 50 of them know about it 60 days beforehand.

The Senate approved the same measure a week ago by a veto-proof 72-23 vote in the biggest legislative battle of the decade between corporate America and labor unions.

House Republicans aware of polls showing that more than 80 percent of the American public favor the notices are distancing themselves from Reagan and Bush on the issue.

"I don't think he'll be able to sustain a veto," said Rep. Marge Roukema, R-N.J., who led the House fight against the mandatory notices through the legislative process but voted for the bill Wednesday.

Bentsen, not Glenn, had the right stuff

BOSTON (AP) — In the waning hours of Michael Dukakis' search for a running mate, it came down to two — John Glenn and Lloyd Bentsen.

And both, in Dukakis' mind, had the right stuff.

The two senators each offered Washington experience. Either would bring ideological and geographical balance to the Democratic ticket. Both have moderate to conservative voting records and both are well respected in Congress.

Glenn, the Ohio senator, the astronaut and hero, likely would deliver his state's 23 electoral college votes to Dukakis. Bentsen, the silver-haired Texas senator, the quintessential Washington insider, might help carry his state's 29 electoral votes.

On the negative side, neither is considered a dazzling campaigner. Both had made unsuccessful presidential bids, Bentsen's a short-lived venture in 1976 and Glenn's a failed 1984 effort marked by well-publicized disarray and a huge remaining debt.

As Dukakis prepared to make his choice Monday night, sources said, the focus essentially had narrowed to Glenn and Bentsen.

But Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana and to a lesser degree Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee were still in contention.

Stacked up against Glenn, Bentsen emerged as the victor based on his Senate record and the strategic implications of his inclusion on the ticket, sources said, winning out over the heroic legacy of the Ohioan most had considered the favorite for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Dukakis aides also believe he is already a strong contender in the Midwest and that the key to the election is attracting Reagan Democrats back to the party.

As part of the detailed background checks directed by Dukakis confidant Paul Broutas, the campaign had compiled an unimpressive portrait of the 1984 Glenn presidential effort, which was in serious trouble even before Iowa's all-important caucuses. Several people involved in that campaign live in the Boston area and were easily accessible to the Broutas research team.

With Dukakis, his wife, Broutas and two top campaign aides assembled at Dukakis' kitchen table, the unanimous choice was Bentsen.

"If the pick is between two near equals, why not take the one that causes George Bush the most grief?" offered one senior Dukakis adviser. Bush claims Texas as his home state, and the choice of Bentsen by Dukakis was a deliberate effort to force Bush to invest time and money in a state he may have taken for granted.

Bentsen, as Senate Finance Committee chairman, plays a leading role in the chamber's handling of major legislation and this year alone has been a key figure in the consideration of trade and catastrophic health care bills.

"Both had the stature we were looking for, but Bentsen is more of a doer, has more accomplishments," another adviser said. "That was appealing to Michael."

Dukakis said from the outset of the search that his vice president would be an active player and trusted adviser, and Bentsen was seen in the Dukakis camp as fitting that role better than Glenn.

Dukakis himself hinted at that when explaining on Wednesday

why he picked Bentsen to fill the ticket.

"I picked this man because in my judgment he had those qualities, the strength, character, the values, the experience that would be most helpful, not just in running and winning but in serving in office and putting together as fine an administration as we possibly could," Dukakis told a Capitol Hill news conference.

The choice of Bentsen also was partly attributed to the withdrawal of two attractive candidates from consideration: Georgia Sen. Sam Nunn and New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley.

With Nunn out of the running, speculation about a running mate from the South turned to Bentsen, Gore and Florida Sen. Bob Graham.

Graham, sources said, did not have the Washington and national political experience Dukakis sought, and Gore would prove a sensitive choice because Jackson was pushing for the No. 2 spot and had outlasted Gore in the presidential primaries.

That problem also dimmed the prospects of Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt. (See STUFF, Page 2)

Hereford Bull

By SPEEDY NIEMAN

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says there's little chance of our government being overthrown--there's just too much of it.

There are two kind of highways in the summer--overcrowded and under construction.

It's "carnival time" in Hereford this week and the Hereford Lions Club has once again put a lot of work into the big fund-raising project at the Bull Barn. The Lions have been very pleased to sign up with Ed Burlingame's "Pride of Texas Shows" for the carnival, because he runs a clean show for the entire family. Special live entertainment will be featured Thursday through Saturday nights.

The annual summer barbeque at King's Manor last Saturday was termed "the most successful ever" by a director of the Founder's Association. We salute the Founder's Association, board members and volunteer workers and those who contributed to the success.

Many people take life too seriously, but most fishermen have mastered the art of avoiding stress. A story from George Dolan out of Fort Worth illustrates the point:

A fisherman had run out of bait and was heading his boat back toward shore. Near the bank, he saw a big fish leap out of the water. He searched the boat again but no bait could be found. Then he happened to spot a snake on the bank with a frog in its mouth.

The fisherman jumped out, grabbed the snake and pulled the frog from its mouth. To appease the angry snake, the fisherman took out his flask and poured a couple of nips of bourbon into its mouth. He quickly affixed the frog to his hook and began casting out where he'd seen the big fish surface.

Soon, the fisherman felt a thump, thump, thump against his pant leg. He looked down and there was that snake--with another frog in its mouth!

Cable will interrupt channels

Hereford Cablevision is planning to interrupt several channels beginning at 9 a.m. Friday.

Lloyd Ames of Hereford Cablevision said the system will be working on several different pieces of equipment, including a new processor for the Amarillo College PBS station that should be on the air in the next six weeks.

The channels which will be off the air for about two hours include MTV, VH-1, Nickelodeon, C-SPAN, C-SPAN II, Lifetime, The Weather Channel, A&E, local access channels 3 and 19, and the community emergency alert system.

Ames said the improvements will increase reliability at the tower site and enable the system to be ready for KACV.

Police arrest two

The Hereford Police Department arrested a 27-year-old woman on charges of theft, and a man, 42, on charges of public intoxication. Disturbing the peace was reported in the 500 block of Irving Street; in the 100 block of Catalpa Street, bicycles worth $150 were stolen; juvenile problems were reported in the 200 block of Avenue K; a family disturbance was reported in the 800 block of Brevard Street; a family disturbance occurred in the 400 block of Brevard Street, and officers are investigating a possible bigamy case.

County arrests five

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office arrested a 41-year-old man on charges of no liability insurance (second offense); a 21-year-old man was jailed on a motion to revoke probation; a man, 36, was arrested on charges of driving with a suspended license; a man, 17, was jailed on a motion to revoke probation and a 22-year-old man was arrested on a warrant for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Warm streak continues

Tonight will be fair with a low of 68. South winds will be 5-10 mph. Friday will be fair and warm with a less than 20 percent chance of isolated afternoon thunderstorms. The high will be 95, with south winds 5-15 mph. This morning's low at KPAN was 71 after a high Wednesday of 95.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

And then there's the guy who heard Dukakis had picked Bentsen.

"I knew he was interviewing a lot of people," sez the guy, "but I never figured he'd pick a guy who played a governor's aide in the TV show."

It's Boston-Austin II! Bigger than Rocky IV! Better than Friday the 13th, The Final Chapter! Scariest than Nightmare on Elm Street 3! More eventful than Tyson-Spinks I! Gorier than Texas Chainsaw Massacre II!

Using a formula that's been successful every time it's been used in American politics (once), Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts has followed in the footsteps of John Kennedy and chosen as his running mate a guy who:

- Is from South Texas;
- Served an apprenticeship in the House of Representatives;
- Has been a multi-term U.S. Senator;
- Has had presidential ambitions of his own.

No, Lyndon Johnson has not been cloned. It's Lloyd Bentsen, the man from Mission with a mission that may well be impossible.

One of the immediate drawbacks of Dukakis is that he has never been involved in "national" politics. His service has been in the statehouse.

Lloyd's immediate concern, I guess, is to show Mike some of the ropes in the nation's capitol.

"Mike, this is what they call the White House. Maybe you've seen it on TV. It's what Sam Donaldson stands in front of every night on the news. You'll get to know Sam. He's the one with the loud questions."

"Ooh, Lloyd, that's a very ugly statue..."

"That's no statue, that's Helen Thomas of UPI. She's the woman in the front row at all of the presidential news conferences."

"What's this building over here with all of the bunkers around it, Lloyd?"

"That's the Pentagon. The bunkers are for everyone to take cover during this little flap we're having over contract procurements."

"What's the building over here, Lloyd? The one with all of the rotten eggs and toe-mah-toes all over it?"

"What the hell's a toe-mah-toe?"

"The red things. You know, like you put in salads."

"Oh, Toe-mah-toes. That's the Internal Revenue Service building."

"That could be one of my favorite buildings. I never met a tax I didn't like. Hey, Lloyd, have any idea where I can get a good breakfast in Washington?"

"Heh, heh, heh. Have I gotta deal for you..."

Carnival bike winner

Mary Helen Murillo, 12, of Hereford, won a bicycle given away by the Hereford Lions Club at the club's annual carnival underway through Saturday at the Bull Barn in Hereford. A featured event at the carnival tonight through Saturday will be free concerts at 8:30 p.m. in the Bull Barn by The Lariat Band, Sound of America recording artists. Wednesday night's bike winner was Crystal Castillo of Hereford.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

There's a bill soon up for debate in the U.S. Senate that would be very damaging for small business people. It's called the Minimum Health Benefits for All Workers Act of 1987, and it would require all employers to make health insurance available to both full-time and part-time employees and uncovered members of their families.

Once again, it's obvious that our lawmakers have no idea about the value of a dollar. The cost of this mandated health insurance has been conservatively estimated at $1300 per year for each employee, or $2,200 per family. Eighty percent of the cost would have to be paid by the employer, the remaining 20% by the worker.

Most small businesses can't afford those kind of costs. The fact is, the bill requires greater minimum benefits than many self-employed people and small business owners provide for themselves. To meet these demands, they would have to let people go, or cut back on their hours or wages tremendously.

Sen. Edward Kennedy has introduced the bill to make sure that health benefits are provided to all workers, particularly low-income ones. Certainly, that's a noble idea. Unfortunately, the bill will have the effect of creating more unemployment among the 6 million workers who make less than $4 per hour, according to the Congressional Budget Office. If the employers aren't forced to lay off workers or reduce wages, they will probably increase their prices to the customer to cover the additional costs of doing business.

Yes, we do need to find a way to see that the 37 million uninsured people in our country have health coverage. But there has to be a better way. This proposal, in the end, could well cause more harm than good for the people it was intended to serve. By one estimate, it would cost the government $35 million in lost revenue in the first year because of all the extra pre-tax expenses businesses and employers would be forced to pay. That hardly helps solve the budget deficit we keep hearing about.

Several other ideas have been proposed that would be more workable in increasing the number of people covered by health insurance.

-For one, self-employed people and small business owners should all be allowed to deduct 100% of the premiums they pay on themselves and their employees, just like big corporations.

-Second, small employers should be allowed to band together to form groups that would enable them to purchase coverage for their employees at the same favorable rates large companies have.

-Rather mandating health plans with unrealistic minimum standards, the federal government should provide incentives to encourage small businesses to provide health coverage.

-At the very least, the Kennedy bill should be amended to exempt small businesses that employ less than five full-time people, and the minimum number of hours set for an eligible employee should be raised from 17.5 to 30.

This issue will soon be in front of the Senate for debate. It's vital that all of us contact our senators and congressmen to let them know that they should vote against this bill, unless major changes are made. Congress should work to make health care coverage affordable and accessible, rather than mandating unworkable programs that would balloon the federal deficit. It's time for each of us to stand up and say "no thank you."

SPS, cities will lower rates

Customers in Texas cities served by Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) soon should receive their second electric-rate decrease of the year, and SPS rural customers should have their rates lowered to match rates within city limits, the utility announced Monday.

The decreases in effect and proposed total $20.6 million, or 4.3%, and reflect lower SPS expenses resulting primarily from federal tax reform, said Sam Hunter, SPS vice president of rates and economic research.

The proposed decreases were agreed to July 8 by SPS, the staff of the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT), the state's Office of Public Utility Counsel, the Texas Industrial Energy Consumers and the U.S. Department of Energy.

Details of the agreement are being worked out, and once approved, the reduction would be considered effective as of July 8, Hunter said. Approval from city and state regulators is expected within 35-60 days. A customer's first bill on which the reduction is calculated would include a credit recognizing the effect of the lower rate since July 8.

"This timing allows our customers to, in effect, receive lower rates even before the regulatory process is complete," Hunter said. "We worked out this arrangement in order to extend lower rates to all of our customers as soon as possible."

Residential customers will receive a net 5.2% decrease compared to rates in effect at the first of the year.

Because of an earlier agreement between SPS and the Texas cities it serves, customers within city limits received a 3.1% decrease effective March 28. Upon approval from the cities, these customers will receive an additional 1.2% decrease, Hunter said, to match the rural reduction of 4.3%.

In Texas, cities have original jurisdiction over rates within their city limits. The PUCT regulates rates in rural areas. SPS will file with the PUCT for approval of the rural rate decrease and with 74 Texas cities it serves for approval of the rate decrease within city limits.

The percentage of rate decrease varies slightly among types of electric customers.

A monthly electric bill for a rural residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours would drop $4.09, from $73.51 to $69.42. The bill for a customer within the city limits using 1,000 kilowatt hours dropped $3 on March 28 and should decline another $1.09, resulting in a bill of $69.42.

"These rate reductions represent a cooperative effort among all parties," Hunter said. "We believe these rate decreases can help stimulate economic development and enhance opportunities for growth in our service territory."

Senate warns Sandanistas

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an unprecedented show of bipartisan unity, the Senate is warning Nicaragua's Sandinista government it could face renewed U.S. military aid to the Contra rebels unless it reverses "dramatic new steps in brutality" against its own citizens.

In what some senators called a "carrot and stick policy," adopted on a 91-4 vote, the Senate also said it was ready to extend U.S. economic aid to Nicaragua if the Sandinistas fully comply with commitments made a year ago and "proceed to permit the establishment of a democratic system."

The "sense of the Senate" resolution is non-binding.

But the wide bipartisan coalition which swung behind it emphasized the anger and concern caused by recent Sandinista actions to suppress dissent.

These include the closing of the opposition newspaper La Prensa and Nicaragua's Catholic radio station, the suppression of a non-violent demonstration in Managua, the arrest of 40 opposition political leaders and the expulsion of U.S. Ambassador Richard Melton and seven other U.S. diplomats.

"You can say it's only a sense of the Senate resolution, but in my view it means a great deal," said Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

Dole told his colleagues: "We are moving now because the Sandinista goons have been in the streets of Managua again; because the Sandinista jails are filling up with new prisoners; because what little independent media there has ever been in Nicaragua is being closed down again; and because the light of freedom in Nicaragua has been nearly snuffed out again."

The resolution states in part: "The Sandinistas should understand that blatant violations (of last year's peace agreement) and the human rights of the Nicaraguan people could cause Congress to consider the provision of additional humanitarian and other appropriate assistance, including military aid, if conditions should so warrant."

Clarification

In an item in Tuesday's Local Roundup, it was reported that Reynaldo Pesina of Hereford had been arrested by the Deaf Smith County sheriff's office.

Authorities have since learned that the name of the man who was arrested is actually Refugio Pesina. According to Ray Pesina, the man had been using his name "for about six months. I've been getting a lot of calls..." When Ray Pesina saw "his" name in the report, he reported what had been happening with the use of his name to authorities.

Witness misses Delta testimony

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A meteorologist who was taking a lunch break at the time of the Delta Flight 191 crash was a no-show when he was scheduled to testify at the liability trial because he had to go to Washington.

Meteorologist Richard Douglass, who had been waiting to testify since the beginning of the week, said he had to go to Washington Tuesday night and could not be in court Wednesday.

A videotaped deposition made earlier was substituted for his testimony, but Delta attorney John Martin said the videotape's use deprived him of the chance to cross-examine Douglass and thus left significant questions unanswered.

Douglass, who was on duty at the National Weather Service Center Weather Service Unit on Aug. 2, 1985, left on a dinner break at 5:25 p.m. and did not return until shortly after the crash at 6:06 p.m.

Government lawyer Kathlynn Fadely said Douglass called her Tuesday night and told her he had to go to Washington. Douglass had been waiting to testify earlier this week while Delta attorneys finished cross-examining another witness.

Although Douglass was a witness for the federal government, his appearance in court also was anticipated by Delta attorneys, who have focused on testimony that Douglass' weather radar station was unmanned during the entire time he was on break.

The airline contends that federal air traffic controllers and meteorologists failed to warn the Delta pilots of the developing thunderstorm, while the government argues that pilots have the best view of the weather and should have known what they were flying into.

In the deposition videotaped in Dallas in April 1987, Douglass said he went on his dinner break shortly after delivering a short-range forecast to air traffic controllers that predicted thunderstorms dissipating.

Salad-to-go new trend

The interest in healthy foods among today's on-the-go consumers has created a boom in salad bars at restaurants, fast food chains and even supermarkets.

A 1988 national survey conducted for The Packer, a fruit and vegetable industry publication, found that 45 percent of supermarkets now have salad bars and 51 percent of product consumers use them at least once a month.

However, patronizing a salad bar doesn't automatically result in healthy eating.

"What people get nutritionally from a salad bar depends entirely upon the choices they make," said Dr. Alice Hunt, a nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

A salad of iceberg lettuce with dressing, for example, will be high in fiber and low in calories if you don't over-do it on the dressing, according to Hunt.

"But you can do better nutritionally by adding vegetables that are high in vitamins A and C, such as romaine lettuce, spinach, broccoli, carrots, cauliflower or green pepper," she said.

"If you salad is supposed to be an entire meal, you should also include some protein foods, such as bacon bits, shredded cheese or chopped egg," said the specialist.

"Some nutrients, such as iron, thiamin and niacin are supplied primarily by foods you don't often see at salad bars, such as meats and whole grain products. So you may want to balance out your diet by eating these at another meal during the day," she said.

Hunt said a salad bar is often not the best place to find a low-calorie meal, unless you can show some restraint, both in serving size and what you select.

"By choosing potato and macaroni salads, gelatin, fruit salad with whipped dressings and cole slaw in addition to your vegetables, you can wind up with more calories than a regular meal," said the specialist.

To keep the calorie count down, the nutritionist suggested sticking with plain raw vegetables and diet dressings, avoiding pickled foods and the prepared salads that use high calorie dressings.

4-H fun for all

People of all ages joined together Thursday to view the Deaf Smith County 4-H fashion show which used a circus-inspired theme. The event was held at King's Manor as Manor residents were present along with 4-H parents and other guests. In left photo, 4-H'er Jim Brett Campbell made sure little Kesli Urbanczyk, held by grandmother Loretta Urbanczyk, enjoyed the festivities that yielded 11 winners who will enter District competition July 25 in Borger.

Patriotic theme observed during meeting

A patriotic theme was observed when members of the Order of Eastern Star met Tuesday evening in the Masonic Hall for a business meeting.

Argen Draper gave a tribute to the flag assisted by Bill Shelley and Courtney Brooks. Margaret Bell, Worthy Matron, gave a tribute to the United States to open the meeting.

Richard Ochs, grand chairman of the Board of Trustees, Grand Chapter of Texas, and his wife were introduced as special guests.

Masonic Night will be observed at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 6 with a picnic in the backyard of Margaret Bell, 132 N. Texas. The next regular meeting will be Aug. 9 in the Masonic Hall.

Friendship Night will be held Tuesday, Sept. 13. Plans were made and invitations have been mailed.

Norma Coffey served as courtesy officer for Bonnie Hartley.

Refreshments were served by Bea Hutson, Leota and Orville Knowlton.

To make cutting sticky fruits like dates, figs, or those used in a fruit cake easier, gently heat the knife or dip it in warm water.

EXERCISE AND DEPRESSION
 NEW YORK (AP) — People who exercise regularly have fewer episodes of depression than sedentary people, according to the Reebok Information Bureau.

It says exercise activates brain cells which release dopamine, a chemical that helps regulate movement and emotion.

In Babe Ruth 14-15 district tourney

Hereford falls to Plainview, 9-6

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Hereford's 14 and 15-year-old Babe Ruth League all-stars fell behind Plainview 6-0 and cut the lead to 6-5 but went down to defeat 9-6 Wednesday in game one of the district tournament.

Today at the Deaf Smith County Kids Inc. complex, Plainview battles Tulia at 7:30 p.m. The losers of the first two games of the tournament play Friday. Interested spectators should note the change in the tournament schedule from what was previously announced.

Plainview's David Juarez hit a three-run homer over the center field fence for the first big blow for his team, and a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Plainview added three more runs in the inning on a fielder's choice, a passed ball and a wild pitch.

Hereford came back with three runs in the bottom of the first. Emmanuel Cepeda and Max Mungia, who both reached the basepaths on walks, successfully executed a double steal, with Cepeda scoring Hereford's first run.

Later in the inning, Chad Brummett walked, stole second, and scored along with Mungia on Matt Bromlow's single.

Hereford left the bases loaded in the second inning, but scored one run in each of the next two innings. Joe Anima doubled in the second.

Brummett walked in the third inning, stole second, went to third on a groundout, and scored on Roy Cantu's pop fly single into left field.

In the fourth inning, Mungia walked and later scored on an error. The mistake was a bobble of Bromlow's grounder by the pitcher.

But Plainview put the lead back to three runs, 8-5, in the top of the fifth. A single, wild pitch, error and RBI single led to two runs.

Plainview added a run in the seventh inning on a fake tag violation called against Hereford shortstop Max Mungia. The violation was for tagging a runner stealing second, when no throw was made to that base.

Since there were no Hereford players left to enter the game, each runner advanced one base on the violation — instead of Mungia being ejected.

But there was still an ejection in that inning. A Plainview coach left the dugout and went onto the playing field, resulting in three coaches there, a violation of the rules.

Hereford scored its other run in the bottom of the seventh on a three-base, catcher's throwing error. An attempt was made to pick off Hereford baserunner Joe Riojas at first.

The throw went deep into right field, almost all the way to the fence, and Riojas advanced around the bases for a run.

Hereford, limited to three hits, stranded 11 runners on base. Plainview had five hits and left four men on base.

Hereford starting pitcher Amado Lopez went six innings, giving up five earned runs and six hits. He recorded six strikeouts and walked two batters.

Richard Rodriguez pitched in the seventh inning, getting one strikeout, allowing one hit, and walking one batter.

Among the good plays on defense for Hereford was one by first baseman Patrick Newton in the second inning. Newton caught a bad throw from a teammate on an infield grounder and tagged out the runner.

Cepeda advances on pitcher's error

Emmanuel Cepeda, a member of the Hereford 14 and 15-year-old all-star team, races to third base on an error in the first inning of Wednesday's Babe Ruth League district tournament opener. Cepeda, who walked and stole second base, scored when he and Max Mungia achieved a successful double steal. Hereford suffered a 9-5 loss to Plainview. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

The 3-point goal has gradually expanded its territory through the years, from professional to college basketball, and last year to high school and junior high school basketball in Texas and many other states.

Boys' basketball players seem to have been more accustomed to attempting long shots as compared to girls. The 3-pointer no doubt had a greater impact last season in high school boys' basketball than in girls' basketball.

But as boys now in junior high school get more and more used to the 3-point line, the potential for a big increase in 3-point shots seems tremendous.

The 3-point goal may not have played a major role in girls' games last year, but girls in junior high now, who practice the shot and attempt it often in games, may later utilize it as a normal part of the competition instead of occasionally when they are on the high school varsity.

The use of the 3-point shot, of course, depends in part on coaches and the offenses they train their players to run.

Frank Belcher, Hereford High School head girls' coach, figures the 3-point goal did not result in coaches changing their offense patterns much in girls' basketball.

"It seemed to me that the real good teams didn't attempt a lot of 3-point shots. I'm not sure if the 3-point goal even dictated any offenses last year.

"With the 3-point goal, if you're ahead by four late in the game, you had to guard more defensively because you haven't won. In a real tight game, you can't say a 4-point lead is safe, or even a 3-point lead," Coach Belcher said, noting that the 3-pointer resulted in a difference in the girls' game only late in the game.

However, Belcher does see the 3-point goal becoming a more important strategy in the game.

"As players get more confidence in the shot, I think in the future it will make a difference. As girls get stronger and get more confidence, it will become more of a factor.

"For some players it's a good shot.

But for us last year, it really wasn't. But we have some girls this year who could hurt the opponents with the three-point shot," he said.

Coach Belcher and his assistant, Coach Donnie O'Rand, both said a made 3-pointer has a powerful effect on a team's emotion in a game.

"I do think that the 3-point shot is a momentum builder," O'Rand said. Belcher adds, "It's like a breakaway layup or a great play."

Before the 1987-88 high school season began, I wondered if many players would find themselves concentrating more on where the 3-point line was than on taking a good shot.

Occasionally in men's college games, I noticed a player looking down at the floor before taking a shot, and realizing he was not behind the 3-point line, dribbled a step or two backward, only to find that a defensive player gained an advantage on him. Result — no shot attempt or a poor shot attempt from 3-point range rather than a good 2-point shot.

"I never noticed if the players themselves were looking at the 3-point line. But the players on the bench and the fans seemed conscious of where the players shot from," Belcher said about his HHS players and the Lady Whiteface fans.

Coach Belcher did notice that players were standing behind the 3-point line before shooting, but would "step into their shots" and cross the line before shooting.

Whether the 3-point goal becomes a bigger factor in girls' basketball will depend not only on a coach's offensive strategies but also on the talent of the players.

"Most coaches, like us, are concerned about shot selection — and the 3-point goal is not the kind of shot you want to be talking. But on the other hand, if you have a good 3-point shooter, you want to take advantage of it," Belcher notes.

Only time will tell how much impact the 3-point goal will have in high school girls' basketball.

Admits asking Trump for advice

Tyson has own soap opera

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
AP Sports Writer

It's hard to doubt Mike Tyson when he says, "I'm the greatest fighter on the planet."

It's just as hard to believe him when he says he is in charge of his life.

"I call all the shots," the champion said this week while admitting he has asked billionaire Donald Trump to advise him.

At least he and Trump say it was Tyson's idea to seek Trump's advice.

"Mike called me," Trump said. But he also said, "My initial meeting was with Winston and Ruth Roper."

Attorney Michael Winston and Roper, the heavyweight champion's mother-in-law, are two of the characters in what resembles a daytime soap opera.

Call it, "As Mike Tyson's World Churns."

Other characters are, of course, Trump in the role of Daddy Warbucks; the beautiful Mrs. Tyson, actress Robin Givens, manager Bill Cayton, who is cast in the role of the villain, and promoter Don King, a man who plays many parts at the same time.

King, who would like to be Tyson's main adviser, has proclaimed he is "one-thousand percent behind Mike Tyson." Some people believe it's better to have the promoter 1,000 percent in front of you.

There is litigation to break Tyson's 3½-year boxer-manager contract and three-year personal services contract which he signed in February with Cayton and the late Jim Jacobs.

Trump said he has "a great relationship with Bill Cayton," but added "I think he (Tyson) has a very strong case."

Trump noted that Tyson was not represented by a lawyer when "he signed a contract with some very sophisticated people."

The people in the champion's increasingly crowded corner contend and she has not been far from his Tyson would have not signed in February he he known Jacobs was terminally ill. Jacobs, who was close to Tyson, died in March. Cayton's relationship with the fighter has been strictly business.

Givens and her mother called for Cayton to give an accounting of Tyson's finances shortly after the actress and champion were married in February, and Tyson has accused the manager of vilifying Robin and Ruth in the press.

He also has accused members of the media of embarrassing his family, although his wife and mother-in-law don't seem to mind talking to the media and his sister-in-law volunteered to one reporter that she had seen Tyson hit Robin.

Tyson denies ever hitting his wife, side at anytime since they were married even though he fought twice in that period.

There have been assertions that Givens and Roper are behind Tyson's decision to break with Cayton.

"That's absurd," Tyson said. "Face the facts."

It really is not fair to accuse Givens and Roper of not having Tyson's best interests at heart. Nor is it fair to scoff at Tyson for sticking up for his wife and her family.

Time will tell. It's also easy to understand that 22-year-old Tyson could be confused by the problems which accompany fame and fortune.

Calling Tyson, "a fine young man, a champion of the people and a wonderful person," Trump said, "I want to help Mike through this period and with his finances."

Trump said he will donate to charity any money he makes through his association with Tyson.

Cowboys become first in NFL to sign all draft choices

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The signing of former UCLA linebacker Ken Norton Jr. has allowed the Dallas Cowboys to become the first NFL team to sign all their draft choices.

Norton agreed to a four-year contract that sources say will pay him about $950,000 late Wednesday.

Norton, 21, 6-2, and 224 pounds, is the son of former heavyweight boxing champion Ken Norton Sr., and was the second player selected by Dallas in the recent National Football League draft.

"I had hoped to be there on time. I wanted to learn all I could and have a positive impact on the team. I want to sign as soon as I can. I've missed some training camp, and that's not positive at all," Norton said before reaching the agreement.

"I'm real anxious to play and be the best football player I can be."

Norton will take a physical early today and is expected to join the other players in training camp for a 10 a.m. workout.

Admitting that he will be behind other rookies in camp, Norton said he is confident he can catch up.

"I just have to cut my lunches a little shorter and catch up for those few days," Norton said. "I didn't want to miss too much."

"The defense is supposed to be really difficult to learn," he added. "I missed some days that put me behind, but not as far as it could be. It could be a lot worse."

Norton was described by pro scouting combines as "one of the fiercest tacklers" in college football. He led UCLA last year with 119 tackles.

He entered UCLA as a running back, having rushed for 840 yards and 10 touchdowns his senior year in high school, but switched to linebacker before his freshman year in college.

Pro scouts called him not only an outstanding tackler but an excellent pass defender with the quickness to handle the speedy runners coming out of the backfield.

Norton, an avid weight lifter, has been timed at 4.54 seconds in the 40-yard dash.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was helping my 8-year-old daughter with her school work and came across this poem. To say I was shocked is putting it mildly.

I asked my daughter what she thought of the poem and she replied, "I didn't like it very much, but the teacher thought it was funny."

Here is the poem and it appeared in my daughter's workbook:

"DREADFUL"

Someone ate the baby, it's rather sad to say.

Someone ate the baby, so she won't be out to play.

We'll never hear her whiney cry, or have to feel if she is dry.

We'll never hear her asking, "Why?"

Someone ate the baby.

Someone ate the baby, it's absolutely clear.

Someone ate the baby, 'cause the baby isn't here.

We'll give away her toys and clothes.

We'll never have to wipe her nose.

Dad says, "That's the way it goes."

Someone ate the baby.

Someone ate the baby, what a frightful thing to eat.

Someone ate the baby, though she wasn't very sweet.

It was a heartless thing to do, the policemen haven't a clue, I simply can't imagine who, would go and (burp) eat the baby.—Author Unknown

I contacted the principal of the school. She said the poem is from a book in their media center. I told her that I was going to try to get that poem removed. She said, "Go ahead."

I am writing to let other parents know they should become actively involved in what their children are learning in school.—Atlanta Mother

DEAR MOTHER: That poem is from a book called "Where the Sidewalk Ends" (copyright (c) 1974, Evil Music, Inc.). The author is Shel Silverstein. Some people think it is very funny. I am not a fan of sick humor.

In my opinion, this poem does not belong in a book for 8-year-olds.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please share this easy rescue technique. It could save lives.

Inflated spare or old automobile tires (mounted on rims) may be thrown, wheeled, slid, pushed or rolled to any drowning person who may be struggling to stay alive.

Any person or party, on a boat (fishing or whatever), should carry some spare tires on board for any emergency.

Remember Florida Air Flight 309, which crashed into the Potomac River while taking off from Washington National Airport? I wonder how many spectators had spare tires in the trunks of their cars. If every person who watched that disaster had tossed a tire into the water, who knows how many more lives would have been saved?—Joseph Juliano

DEAR JOE: Thanks for tossing the lifesaver this way.

According to the National Safety Council, an inflated tire would be fine, but one on a rim could hit the struggling person and kill him.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? Think you can handle them? For up-to-the minute information on drugs, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Cut cardboard milk cartons in 2 in. wide strips, place around new transplants to discourage worms from eating the tender growth.

Italy, Sweden and Spain use flowers as yule decorations instead of evergreen.

Will a European golfer win British Open this year?

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer

LYTHAM, England (AP) — At a time when Europeans are dominating professional golf, a visitor from across the Irish Sea may be the dominant force in the British Open.

The wind, a presence as constant in this seaside town as beach sand and rain-soaked tourists, will be waiting to make the always difficult Royal Lytham and St. Annes Golf Club course into even more of a nightmare for the 153 golfers who were to begin play today as the open's 117th field.

"An unremitting breeze," is how Tony Nickson, the course historian, describes the wind, which generally blows from the northwest.

That was the direction forecast for opening day, with rain and temperatures in the mid-50s to go along with it. If the forecast was accurate, the wind would have been gusting right across many of the fairways.

Not a very warm welcome for the best in the sport, but typical conditions for this tournament known in Britain simply as "The Open Championship."

"What makes it tough is the wind," said American Paul Azinger, who finished tied for second at last year's open in Muirfield, Scotland. "Left to right, or right to left. At Muirfield, a lot of the holes were straight downwind. I'd like to see it blow."

The wind can make an especially fierce impression over the final four holes, a finishing quartet that three-time champion Jack Nicklaus said was as tough as any on the courses around Britain where the open is played.

"When the wind is blowing strong, you can just about make number 15 and number 17 par fives," he said. All of the last four holes are listed as par 4's.

Azinger held a one-shot lead going into the final round last year and lost the championship when he bogeyed the final three holes.

Nick Faldo of England shot a final round of pars and finished one stroke ahead of Azinger and Australia's Rodger Davis for his first major title.

That unexpected victory underscored the European reign in golf, one that started with a Ryder Cup victory in 1985 and continued this year with Scotland's Sandy Lyle winning the Masters.

Faldo almost made it a second consecutive British success in major U.S. tournaments when he forced a playoff for the U.S. Open last month.

Curtis Strange won the title on those extra 18 holes, but the victory has done little to dull European hopes of a fifth consecutive British Open victory.

In quest to become major league umpire

Postema is a persevering woman

By JOHN F. BONFATTI
AP Sports Writer
BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Albuquerque Dukes manager Terry Collins believes Pam Postema "knows what she's doing," but says her selection as home plate umpire in the first Triple A All-Star game "probably was a public relations move."

Postema, seeking to become the first female to umpire in the major leagues, said she doesn't care why she was selected for the honor.

"I don't really care about how I got it," she said. "I got it."

Aside from a few glares from batters on called third strikes, Postema fulfilled any umpire's desire in Wednesday night's 2-1 victory by American League farmhands over their National League counterparts: she did her job well enough that she went unnoticed.

Although her unique situation automatically brings attention to her, Postema is clearly tired of dealing with the questions about when — or if — she'll ever make it to the majors.

"I'm not thinking about that now," she said. "I really don't want to talk about going up to the big leagues — when or where or if — because I don't know anything."

Postema said she's "uncomfortable with it (the publicity). I really don't want it, but I understand it. I guess we all kind of like to be noticed, but I don't think it's good for umpires. I think umpires' work should be kept on the field. I don't think there's any need for me to be up there talking."

She added, "I understand that I'm different, but I'm just another umpire out there on the field."

The All-Stars gave Postema their approval, although at least one was clearly concerned with the possibility any public comment may come back to haunt him later.

"I don't want to say anything that can get me in trouble," said the Denver Zephyrs' designated hitter Tim Pyznarski, who sees Postema regularly in the American Association.

"She's a decent umpire," he said. "I've seen worse. I've seen better. She's doing the best job that she knows how."

Joe Boever, the Richmond Braves pitcher who lost the game, said Postema is a good umpire.

"She's consistent in her calls," he said. "She doesn't take any flak."

Collins, who had Postema for three seasons in the Pacific Coast League, said she "knows what she's doing. She's very good behind the plate."

He added, "The last time I saw her, I thought if she improves on the bases, she can work in the major leagues."

Postema was one of seven umpires being considered for two National League openings and umpired several major league exhibition games before being sent back for her sixth season at the Triple-A level.

"I just was hoping, especially in spring training, that I could just kind of slip in unnoticed, but it didn't work out that way," she said, adding,

"Thank you, Bob Knepper."

Knepper, who pitches for the Houston Astros, brought Postema unwanted attention when he maintained women shouldn't be umpires after Postema worked a game he pitched in spring training.

"This is not an occupation a woman should be in," said Knepper. "In God's society, woman was created in a role of submission to a husband. It's not that women are inferior, it's just that I don't believe women should be in a leadership position."

Aside from offering him her mock thank you, Postema didn't want to talk about Knepper. "I don't have anything to say about that comment," she said. "How can I comment on his statement?"

At 34 and in her 12th season as a minor league umpire, Postema is aware that time is running out on her.

"I'm very old," she said. "That's a long time in the minor leagues."

Asked why she perseveres, Postema laughed and said, "I'm stubborn, I guess. I like being poor."

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: During this past spring cleaning I rearranged furniture as well as the pictures and plaques that I have on the walls.

One problem I always had was how to cover up the holes that appear in the walls after removing the tacks and nails that held pictures.

One day I happened to be in my children's rooms and noticed some colored dough that they play with. I thought I'd try it to cover up the nail holes in my painted walls, and it worked wonders!

Made hectic spring cleaning a bit easier. — Linda Johnson, Portland, Ore.

Another idea for nail holes in white walls is to use white toothpaste! — Heloise

SEND A GREAT HINT TO:

Heloise P.O. Box 795000 San Antonio, Texas 78279 CUTTING BOARD

Dear Heloise: How do I season a new cutting board? What should I use and how often should it be done? — Diane Smythe, Indianapolis, Ind.

After buying a cutting board, wash it with a little liquid detergent, rinse well and dry thoroughly.

Then put a thin coat of mineral oil on the board using a cloth or a couple of paper towels. Never use vegetable oil since it eventually turns rancid. Allow the board to sit overnight so the oil will be absorbed, and in the morning wipe off any excess.

There really isn't any specific time period for reseasoning the board. Once in a while is sufficient to keep the board from drying out, or if you use it often, reseason whenever it looks like it needs a good scrub. — Heloise

DISPOSABLE WIPES

Dear Readers: One of our readers, Mary Deter of Annapolis, Md., sent in this great use for the disposable moistened baby towellette containers.

She uses them to store her child's toys, labeling each one according to what is inside. One for crayons, one for puzzle pieces and so on.

The containers are easy for a child to open. They make cleaning up much easier. — Heloise

Now You're Cooking

By GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

If some people grumble about cooking a meal or two, Trudie Gray may not be too sympathetic: she is responsible for 1,450 breakfasts and 3,300 lunches utilizing eight schools' kitchens.

"I've worked for Hereford Independent School District for 21 years, 14 of which I have served as Food Service Director," said Gray. "I construct nutritious menus, handle food purchasing, hire workers, complete reports, and conduct managers' meetings to discuss various requirements. This job has always been enjoyable to me because I like to cook."

Workshops during summer and courses in nutrition keep Gray up-to-date as she strives to plan well-balanced meals for all of Hereford's public schools. Belonging to such professional organizations as the Texas School Food Service, West Texas State Food Service, and American School Food Service has helped her learn what different ages need nutritionally.

Practical experience dealing with food has also prepared Gray for her job. "I had worked at a delicatessen previously so I knew a bit about food service," she said. However, she is the first to admit that cooking acumen did not come naturally to her.

"When Jack and I married, I could barely boil water," she laughed. "But I had a desire to learn, so I taught myself to cook." Over the years, the Grays have made several adjustments in their cooking routine due to family size and illness.

"Since I prefer cooking for a large group of people, I enjoyed cooking more when our four children were home. Now that there's only Jack and me, we eat out often and do little cooking." The Grays are the parents of Billie Anne of Amarillo, Jackie of Albuquerque, N.M., Sam of Green Bay, Wis. and Vicki Yocum of Hereford, and have six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. "But when we get together for holidays, I have fun cooking for the crowd."

The Grays, who reside at 300 Star Street, have lived in Hereford since 1958, moving here from Canyon. They are members of Avenue Baptist Church where they belong to the Kingdom Seekers class. She was raised in Knox County with nine brothers and sisters and went to school in Goree.

While adjusting to cooking for a twosome has been a challenge, medical problems have also necessitated special changes. "I once loved desserts and made them all the time, but for some reason after I lost a kidney to cancer almost four years ago, I no longer have a sweet tooth. I had to modify our diets further following Jack's heart surgery three years ago."

Mr. Gray, retired from Water Industries after about 25 years of employment, does woodwork, goes fishing, and maintains a garden. Mrs. Gray cans produce from the garden and makes such treats as red plum jelly. When she is not attending to food matters, she enjoys sewing and crocheting.

Mrs. Gray will soon host a reunion of her many siblings and their families and will glean favorite recipes from her voluminous collection of cookbooks. "My recipe for Beef Brisket is easy and spicy. The French Cherry Pie has an unusual crust and is a cool treat for summertime. The Onion Casserole is a very good choice to use as a side dish or for brunch and it is easy and economical," she noted.

These recipes follow:

BEEF BRISKET

1 whole brisket
meat tenderizer
Liquid Smoke
Lemon pepper seasoning
Garlic salt
Cayenne pepper
Rub entire surface of brisket with liquid smoke. Sprinkle well with meat tenderizer, then lemon pepper seasoning and garlic salt. Sprinkle with cayenne pepper to taste.

Wrap completely with foil. Place in roasting pan and bake all night at 300 degrees or until tender.

ONION CASSEROLE

2 1/2 lbs. onions
5 Tbsp. butter
1/2 tsp. salt and pepper
1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 1/2 c. grated American cheese
Peel and slice onions crosswise in thin slices. Cook, without salt, in boiling water until tender. Drain.

Saute onion in butter until coated and hot. Add salt and pepper and half of crumbs and cheese. Mix together; put in casserole dish. Top with remaining crumbs and cheese.

Brown in a 400 degree oven for 20 minutes.

FRENCH CHERRY PIE

Crust:
3 egg whites, beaten stiff
12 soda crackers, crumbled
1 c. sugar
1/2c. chopped pecans
1 tsp. vinegar
1 tsp. vanilla
Mix and pour into well greased long pyrex dish. Cook 20 minutes at 350 degrees; let cool completely. Add filling:
Filling:
8 oz. cream cheese

12 oz. Cool Whip
1 c. powdered sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 can cherry pie filling
1/2 tsp. almond flavoring
1 tsp. red food coloring

Mix cream cheese and Cool Whip together. Add powdered sugar and vanilla; spread mixture over crust. Add almond flavoring and red color to cherry pie filling and mix together. Spread cherry mixture on top of cheese mixture. Refrigerate.

Golden Spread Farmers Market to open

Consumers in Amarillo and the surrounding area can buy fresh produce directly from the producers who grow it, with the grand opening this week-end of the Golden Spread Farmers Market, Texas Department of Agriculture District Supervisor Angela K. Lamb, announced today.

Grand opening activities will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday, July 16, at the Gold Sox Stadium which is located at the northwest corner of the Tri-State Fairgrounds, near the intersection of East Third Street and Grand in Amarillo.

Fresh vegetables, including beans, onions, peppers, squash, blackeye peas, okra, carrots, turnips, potatoes, and cucumbers will be available throughout the growing season, according to Lamb, and "consumers will have an opportunity to buy produce of exceptional quality at favorable price from the producer, right here in Amarillo."

On hand for the opening will be Jim Smith, Potter County Extension Agent, who has worked with producers, Angela K. Lamb and Market board members, including President Aurilia Currie.

The market will be open Saturday's, Tuesday's, and Thursday's, during the growing season, and will be in operation from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Other markets will be opening in Dumas on July 23, in Pampa on July 23, and a Dallam/Hartley County Market, time and location yet to be announced.

The Golden Spread Farmers Market is part of the statewide network of markets that the Texas Department of Agriculture has helped to establish in about 80 Texas towns and cities. Sales at these markets will approach $25 million in 1988 double those in 1987.

For more information about the Golden Spread Farmers Market, contact Market President, Aurilia Currie at 655-7413, or Jim Smith at 372-3829, or Angela K. Lamb, 358-7285.

Reunion scheduled Sunday

All former Progressive community residents and friends are invited to attend the 28th Annual Progressive Reunion Sunday at the Hereford Community Center.

Those planning to attend are asked to bring a basket dinner; cold drinks and paper plates will be provided.

The center will be open at 10:30 a.m. Sunday and a program is planned that afternoon.

Rebekah Lodge officers installed Tuesday night

District Deputy President Wilma Wise of Friona installed new officers of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 when they met Tuesday evening. She was assisted by team members, Lauretta Brookfield, Juanita Reed, Jewel Claborn, Lily Taylor, Fern White and Geneva Williams.

Taking office were Noble Grand, Dorothy Lundry; vice grand, Marie Harris; warden, Eunice Boyer, conductor, Shirley Brown; chaplain, Jo Irbeck; inside guardian, Stella Hershey; outside guardian, Faye Brownlow; musician, Kee Ruland; R.S.N.G., Lydia Hopson; L.S.N.G., Sadie Shaw; R.S.V.G., Leona Sowell; L.S.V.G., Anna Conklin; R.S.P.N.G., Verna Sowell; L.S.P.N.G., Rosalie Northcutt; R.S. chaplain, Ada Hollabaugh; and color bearer, Merle Boozer.

Members of the team received a corsage from incoming Noble Grand Dorothy Lundry. Junior Past Noble Grand Thama Pearson received a certificate and a past noble grand jewel belonging to the late Helen Bishop in accordance with her wishes.

Past District Deputy President Susie Curtsinger was presented Bishop's chain regalia denoting that office. E.E. Bishop made the presentation.

Lundry and Harris were co-hostesses at the fellowship hour following the regular business meeting. Others present were Charlie Wise of Friona, Anthony Irbeck, Jim Loving, Ben Conklin, Erma Loving, Irene Merritt and LaVerne Worley.

Relief of heartburn possible

Nearly everyone experiences heartburn now and then. Temporary relief may be found in antacids. But if you suffer from heartburn more now than then, you may be able to change some habits to better control the problem, says the Texas Medical Association.

Heartburn is a form of indigestion. It usually is described as a burning sensation in the chest, which can last for many minutes, and it typically occurs after meals.

What causes heartburn is "gastroesophageal reflux," the backup of stomach contents into the lower esophagus. It happens because there is too much pressure in your stomach or because the sphincter, a muscle band that separates the esophagus from the stomach, loosens during the digestive process.

Don't overeat, and watch what you eat. Some foods that often are associated with heartburn are fried and fatty foods, tomato products, citrus fruits and juices, chocolate, and coffee. Avoid putting extra pressure on your abdomen. Don't wear tight clothing, especially waist-pinching belts.

Don't lie down after eating. Many people find it helps them relieve heartburn if they stay upright for several hours after eating. Also, try sleeping with the head of your bed elevated about six inches.

Sometimes, certain over-the-counter drugs and prescription drugs can promote heartburn.
