Gibson's thanks

Mike Carr (left), executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, offers thanks Friday to the leaders of Chaffin, Inc., parent franchiser of the Gibson's stores, for bringing a Gibson's to Hereford. Those representing the company are Owen Chaffin, chairman of the board; Bill Chaffin, vice president; and Gary Chaffin, president.

Quayle's neighbors defend Guard service

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer

The military record of Republican vice presidential nominee Sen. Dan Quayle dominated the campaign as the Republican and Democratic tickets launched road shows on the final stretch to the November election, the political conventions now just a memory of balloons and patriotic music.

Despite the controversy over whether Quayle used family influence to get into the National Guard and duck combat in the Vietnam War, the Republican ticket led by George Bush rode the crest of publicity from the just-ended GOP convention in New Orleans into a dead heat in the polls against Democrats Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen.

A CNN-USA Today poll released Friday of 842 registered voters put the race at 45 percent for Bush-Quayle to 44 percent for Dukakis-Bentsen. The spreads for the survey conducted Thursday night were within the poll's 4 percentage point margin of error.

Bush and Quayle planned joint appearances today in Ohio, while Dukakis and Bentsen were scheduled to visit the LBJ Ranch outside Austin, Texas.

The Republican standard bearers were buoyed Friday by a supportive crowd in Quayle's hometown of Huntington, Ind., where boos and hoots of "b-o-r-i-n-g" greeted reporters' questions about the Guard issue at an outdoor news conference.

The conservative 41-year-old, two-term Indiana senator acknowledged that a family friend made calls on his behalf after he expressed interest in joining the Guard in 1969, but he insisted: "I got in fairly."

"You're going to be surprised at how outraged people and families that identify with the National Guard around America are going to be towards these accusations," Quayle said.

Quayle said he turned to his parents for advice during his senior year in college as he faced the loss of college deferment from the draft following graduation.

The father discussed the matter with Wendell C. Phillippi, a former commander of the Indiana National Guard who worked for Quayle's grandfather at the Indianapolis News, Quayle said, adding, "I would assume that calls would be made."

Phillippi has said he contacted the Guard on Quayle's behalf.

Bush stood by Quayle at the rally, calling him "a young man of vision, of character."

Meanwhile, Dukakis and Bentsen took separate campaign trails before meeting up in Dallas for a fund-raising event Friday night.

Dukakis, the Democratic presidential nominee, took an indirect shot at Bush and Quayle, telling a rally in Bismarck, Mo.: "The test of strong presidential leadership is strength, the quality of the people you select to serve with you."

On a day that saw him in rural Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas, the Massachusetts governor said Bush's convention address Thursday night "wasn't a bad speech actually," but he criticized it for what it did not discuss.

"He talked a lot about missions but I must have missed a page," said Dukakis, who did not watch Bush's speech but reviewed its text. "There was nothing in there about the two biggest economic challenges we face in this country," he said.

"We didn't hear a word from the Republicans on the budget deficit or the trade deficit last night or this week. And we know why. They don't know how to deal with it. They don't know what to do with it. That's why we're going to have a Democratic president and vice president."

Bentsen, meanwhile, stayed on home turf in Texas, where he criticized the Republican National Convention as a "Mardi Gras for the Moral Majority" that ignored the concerns of working people.

Tax bill up 4.3 percent

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Hereford Independent School District will hold a public hearing Tuesday, beginning at 7 p.m., on the proposal to increase the school tax rate by 7.89 percent. The special meeting will be held at the administration building.

Deaf Smith Hospital District was the last local taxing entity to set its rate this week, and it adopted an effective rate is almost the same as last year. The hospital board will hold a public budget hearing Aug. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital board room.

Last year's rate for the hospital district was 12.43 cents per $100 valuation. The rate for 1988-89 will be 12.46 cents—an effective rate that should generate the same amount of tax revenue as last year, according to Fred Fox, chief appraiser for the Appraisal District.

Deaf Smith County had earlier increased its rate about 4 percent—from 45.16 cents to 46.97 cents. The City of Hereford retained its same rate at 42 cents per $100 valuation.

For a taxpayer living in the city and in all four local taxing districts, as well as the High Plains Underground Water District, the total tax rate for the new year will be $1,765.7. This represents an increase of 4.3 percent in taxes over last year's total of $1,692.9.

The total tax bill depends on where the taxpayer resides in the county and how many taxing districts are assessing his property. Here's a look at last year's rates and the rates set for the new tax year:

1987-88	TAX ENTITY	1988-89
.69	HISD	.7444
.4516	County	.4697
	City	.42
.1243	Hospital	.1246
.007	Water Dist.	.007

McCathern schedules whistle-stop campaign

Voters in the 19th Congressional District will get a taste of nostalgia during the week of Aug. 23-29 when Gerald McCathern, Democratic candidate for U.S. Representative, will be conducting a "Truman Special" whistle-stop tour through most cities and towns in the big district.

The "Truman Special" is a renovated Southern Pacific railroad caboose which carries its own sound and lighting systems, dining and lounge facilities, and authentic steam whistle. It is mounted on rubber tires and pulled by a truck.

As the name implies, the tour will be reminiscent of the whistle-stop campaign of Harry Truman in 1948, according to McCathern. That was the year Truman defeated Thomas Dewey in a big political upset, the Hereford Democrat reminds prospective voters.

"We intend to make a whistle-stop in each community of the district, even though most of the rails have long since vanished. We'll have a short speech from the rear platform of the caboose and distribute our campaign material as we take our message to the people," explained McCathern.

An "All-Aboard" rally and press conference will launch the tour in Lubbock Tuesday at The Depot at 6:30 p.m. The campaign swing gets underway Wednesday with a stop at the Wolforth City Hall at 9:15 a.m. The whistle stops continue at Ropesville, Meadow, Brownfield, Plains, Denver City, Seagraves, Seminole and Odessa Wednesday.

McCathern said he hopes to get voters' attention "and excite them the way they were excited by politics in the good old days." He added that the tour is "something different, something positive, and we hope it's the type of activity that will get folks involved in politics again."

The "Special" continues its stops Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Monday. The tour will wind up in Hereford at the courthouse at 4:45 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 29. A rally and press conference will climax the campaign tour at 7 p.m. in Dameron Park.

Austin picketers protest

Christian fundamentalists picketed the Texas premier of "The Last Temptation of Christ," with more than 500 protesters lining five city blocks around an Austin theater.

The Austin group Friday included parents carrying infants as well as senior citizens. It swelled from about 100 at 6 p.m. to more than 500 shortly before the 7:10 p.m. showing of the film at the Village Cinema.

Throughout the evening, the demonstrators' numbers continued to grow, spilling onto both sides of the street, as the group awaited the 10:40 p.m. showing.

The film's portrayal of Christ as possessing human doubts and frailties has prompted protests around the country.

The movie's last scene depicts Christ hallucinating while hanging on the cross. In the scene, Christ considers abandoning his role as Savior, settling down with Mary Magdalen and raising a family.

Austin protesters carried signs encouraging passing motorists to honk horns and yell their disapproval for the film depicting Christ's last days on earth. While some picketers chanted "Jesus! Jesus!" others sang religious hymns and still others sold T-shirts from the back of a van.

Larry Bates, 36, of the World of Pentecost Church in Austin, said his church originally had 1,500 T-shirts printed for church members. But when there were plenty left, Bates said the group chartered a bus to the theater to picket and sell the shirts for $10 each.

The shirts featured the slogan — "Don't Mess with Jesus" — on the front and the movie's logo encircled in red and crossed out on back. Several hundred protesters wore the shirts late Friday.

In Houston, Police Sgt. Don Cook said about 150 Christian demonstrators arrived at the Spectrum Theater by 7 p.m. to sing hymns and shout at motorists as they pulled into the theater's parking lot.

But Houston's protest was quieter. "I'm not trying to do this for the publicity," said Larry Cooke, a painter from Katy, who distributed copies of the New Testament outside the theater. "I'm doing this for Jesus. I don't want them to see me — I want them to see Him."

Two members of the Houston Chapter of the American Atheists held their own protest, carrying a sign, reading: "This movie doesn't insult Jesus enough." They were surrounded by the Christian demonstrators.

In Austin, the movie still sold out for its 7:10 p.m. showing in Austin, theater officials said.

"This is making more people come out and see the movie better than any promotional could do," said John Iacoletti, 25, of Austin, who arrived an hour early for the film.

Eight more S&Ls merged

DALLAS (AP) — The merger of eight insolvent Texas thrifts into the government-owned Sunbelt Savings F.S.B. is designed to be the largest savings and loan bailout of the proposed Southwest Plan, officials said.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. Friday estimated it will spend at least $5.5 billion over the next decade to create the new institution and combine the thrifts, which include three of the largest institutions in Dallas.

"If we didn't do this transaction and we allowed these institutions to be out offering higher rates for deposits we would impact the viability of the transactions that have already been completed," said George Barclay, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Dallas. "It was an absolute necessity to bring control to cost of funds in this part of the state."

The merger, outlined by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, is the biggest under the government's Southwest Plan, which was developed to consolidate or close 120 ailing S&Ls of the 279 thrifts operating in the state as of Jan. 1.

The bailout price includes $2.5 billion in a note the FDIC has committed to the transaction, plus promises to cover future losses on the loan portfolio.

"We have put in a $2.5 billion note," said Tom Lykos Jr., deputy director of the Southwest Plan. "We never said that was the total cost of resolution of this package of institutions."

"We are planning to run this institution down to shrink it to a viable size," Lykos said. "We are planning to do that hopefully within a year's time, at which point we will go out and seek new capital to fully capitalize this institution."

The thrifts involved include Dallas-based Sunbelt Savings Association of Texas, whose first-quarter loss of $1.2 billion ranked it No. 1 for quarter losses among the nation's savings and loans this year.

Also part of the consolidation are Western Federal Savings & Loan Association, a Dallas-based thrift which ranked 12th in losses for the first quarter, and Independent American Savings Association of Irving, ranked 20th in first-quarter losses.

The other institutions involved in the merger include: First City Savings Association of Irving; Federated Savings & Loan of Brady; Multibanc Savings Association of Alice; Texana Savings & Loan Association, Texarkana; and Summit Savings Association of Dallas.

"The eight thrifts have the most complex and troubled assets portfolios in the state," said Mary Crendon of the Dallas office of the FSLIC.

Sunbelt Savings F.S.B. will be headed by Thomas J. Wageman, now director of Sunbelt Savings Association. Each of the eight merged thrifts will be operated as branches of the new Sunbelt and depositors will be covered, bank board officials said.

Friday's announcement was the second time in as many days that federal officials combined troubled Texas thrifts as part of their plan to rid the state of mismanaged and poorly operating Texas savings and loans.

Local man dies in front-yard hanging

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Antonio Casares, 71, of Hereford, died Friday in the front yard of his Hereford home after hanging himself from a tree.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine ruled the cause of death was suicide.

According to family members and friends, Casares had been "depressed" since the death of his wife six years ago and had told several people since the time of his wife's death that he was contemplating suicide.

A man who identified himself only as a "neighbor" said he had been talking to Casares only a few minutes before the man was found by a person driving by the residence on Avenue I. The neighbor said Casares told him he was going to commit suicide, but the neighbor dismissed the threat. The neighbor said Casares had talked about committing suicide several times before Friday.

The driver, who had passed by the house only a few minutes before the incident and told police she had seen the man sitting on the front porch, went to a neighboring house to call police.

Police found a note, written in Spanish, apologizing to his family for his actions.

Funeral services are pending with Rix Funeral Directors of Hereford.

Whodunit first? Some firsts aren't famous

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody knows that Jackie Robinson was the first black Big League baseball player, most everyone knows Sandra Day O'Connor was the first woman to sit on the U.S. Supreme Court, but what does the name Steve Newman do for you?

Well, he was the first man to walk all alone around the world. And there are many other individuals who did something first, people who had their Whodunit 15 minutes of fame, sometimes of a dubious nature, sometimes revolutionary, sometimes profoundly forgettable.

Newman, of Bethel, Ohio, took four years for his global stroll and he got more than 15 minutes of fame out of it.

"Andy Warhol was wrong," says Newman, who completed his trek in 1987. "If I wanted to be boring, I could live on this for the rest of my life. It is not a 15-minute thing." He says he got a $100,000 advance for a book.

He also gets requests for three or four speeches a week at $1,000 a throw, which he says is "like being paid for being Marco Polo."

Less of a saga is the achievement of Fred Muermann of Chetek, Wis., who very quietly grew a cornstalk 22 feet and 3 inches high, said by the Guinness Book of World Records to be the tallest ever.

And a wee one named Gordon, entirely oblivious to the honor, was the first baby to be born on television, according to "Famous First Facts," a reference work containing many such nuggets. Gordon arrived by Caesarean section at Colorado General Hospital in Denver on Dec. 2, 1952, greeted by KFEL-TV. The program aired on 49 NBC affiliates as the high point of an American Medical Association clinical meeting.

The first marriage of two U.S. representatives took place on Jan. 2, 1976, in Topeka, Kan. Andrew Jacobs Jr., of Indiana, married Martha Keyes of Kansas. They are now divorced and neither is still in Congress.

The first nun to become a mayor of an American city was Sister Carolyn Farrell, a Sister of Charity, BVM. She was elected to the City Council in Dubuque, Iowa, in 1977, and became mayor in 1980.

She didn't mind the to-do, but the Roman Catholic Church minded clerics seeking public office and she didn't run for re-election.

High-tech, biogenetic and space firsts cluster thickly in the past two or three decades, but lower-tech triumphs haven't lost their allure.

The pilots of the Voyager, Jeana Yeager and Dick Rutan, made history in 1986 when they flew around the world in the first non-stop flight without refueling, Dec. 14-23. The rigors of the preparation unfueled a romance between the pilots. They parted as friends.

Kanellos Kannelopoulos very nearly re-created the myth of Daedalus when the real-life Greek, a cycling champ, flew farther than anyone else in a human powered plane last April 23. By pedaling the 72-pound aircraft on a 74-mile flight from Crete to Santorini and crashing into the sea just 10 yards offshore, Kanelopoulos broke earlier records of 37.2 miles and 22.5 miles.

Newman's ultra low-tech feat, doggedly putting one foot in front of the other, drew some appropriately primitive adventures.

He was attacked in Morocco, he says, by a man with a scar running down the side of his face and one eyeball missing.

"I hadn't seen the movie, but I did a Crocodile Dundee. I pulled out a bigger knife and he ran," says Newman. Bandits also set upon his with machetes in Thailand, he says, and he fended them off with an umbrella. In Africa, 13 wild boars treed him for a night.

Now engaged to be married to the girl almost next door, the 6-foot-2 Newman says he intends to keep using his feet as a means of meeting ordinary people and writing about them.

"Eventually I wanted to become a novelist, but I want to do more walking stories," he says. The trek, incidentally, boiled down to 19 cents a mile, compared, he notes, to a spacecraft's costs of $3,000 a mile.

"People took care of me, so the whole trip cost only about $4,000," he says.

Eva Shain may agree that Andy Warhol's sense of time was wrong. Back in 1977, she became the first woman to judge a world heavyweight championship fight, Muhammed Ali vs. Ernie Shavers. She's still in the business. Although her expertise was not needed, she was a judge at the 91-second world heavyweight fight between Mike Tyson and Michael Spinks.

She says she still gets calls about her headline-making 1977 appointment. It was a surprise to her. "I thought I was doing the undercard. It wasn't until I got there that I found out I was doing the championship fight."

A feature on her then appeared in The New York Times and she received two proposals by mail, although she has been married for years to ring announcer Frank Shain, who appeared in the movie "Raging Bull" as the ring announcer.

Mrs. Shain appeared on "What's My Line" and "To Tell the Truth" as well as other television shows at the time.

Firsts seem to beget firsts. She was also the first woman inducted into the New Jersey Boxing Hall of Fame, the first woman to judge a fight on an aircraft carrier, the USS Lexington in Pensacola, Fla., the first woman to work professional fights in New Jersey, her home state, and in Texas.

The Thomas Powners and their three children in 1959 endured two weeks in a fallout shelter for the nuclear family, reportedly aided by "a copy of 'Lady Chatterley's Lover,' tranquilizers and whiskey."

Thomas Powner, who worked at Princeton University at the time and is still a schoolteacher, says several scientists asked him if he would consider the stunt for the family.

Powner recalls that his wife, now deceased, had second thoughts, but they went ahead. They were paid, he remembers, about $600.

"Actually, there was only one bottle of whiskey. We only had a few drinks, but there were lots of books and we read a lot," he says.

Like Mrs. Shain, the family's picture was on the front pages when they came out. They went on to appear on television shows of the time, "Who Do You Trust?" "The Dave Garroway Show," "The Henry Morgan Show."

They also made some commercials afterward and his wife traveled extensively on behalf of the Civil Defense campaign, a campaign now all but forgotten.

Powner, 58 and remarried, says his students always know about his sheltered past and he retells the story for each new class.

In the sporting world, firsts are numerous, obscure and remembered more by the statisticians than by the record holders. Take Larry Doby, the second black player in the majors, the second black manager and now, at 64, community relations director for the New Jersey Nets of the NBA.

Asked who was the first black player to hit a home run in a World Series, Doby said: "I don't know Jackie, I guess."

Informed that it was none other than himself, he laughed.

"Me?" he said. "I guess because I've been the second so often, I'm always surprised to hear that I was the first at anything."

He did remember, however, the blow and that he hit it off the Boston Braves' Johnny Sain in the third inning of the fourth game.

And who was the first professional baseball player?

Alfred James Reach, an outfielder for the Philadelphia Athletics of the National Association. From 1871 to 1875, he played in 82 games, but he's in the record books because in 1874 he received the princely sum of $1,000 for playing in 14 games.

There is no explanation why the other players seemed to play gratis.

FSLIC

Thursday, the FSLIC announced the consolidation of 12 troubled thrifts into the American Federal Bank F.S.B., which will be headquartered in Dallas. The government will invest $1.3 billion to assist in acquisition of the 12 by an investor group led by Chicago banker William Gibson and Lone Star Technologies.

"In two days the bank board has acted to stop losses in four of the most troubled thrifts in the country," Ms. Creedon said. "Continuing to resolve these most troubled institutions will allow the positive performance of the healthy segments of the industry, the healthy majority of the industry, to be seen."

Ms. Creedon said Friday's action, the sixth consolidation under the Southwest Plan, would bring about a significant reduction in institutions offering higher-than-average interest rates for depositors.

"The continuing reduction of cost of funds is an important part of the transactions," she said. "Five of the institutions involved (Friday) were among the highest hundred rate payers in the country."

Analysts, meanwhile, questioned whether the consolidation will lead to a long-term resolution of the state's banking troubles.

"The question is: What have they accomplished by this?" asked Bert Ely, an Alexandria, Va.-based thrift consultant. "I characterize this as throwing together a bunch of minnows and sharks and getting one bloated whale."

Similarly, U.S. Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., said he was concerned such long-term commitments from the government might mean taxpayers eventually will have to bailout FSLIC.

Benefit will open KACV-TV

Public television beamed for and from the Texas Panhandle will be launched the last weekend in August with a gala to benefit the new station.

The celebration, "Stars Under the Stars", featuring world-renowned guest entertainers, a sumptuous buffet, and after-dinner dancing, will be held Saturday, Aug. 27, in Amarillo at the home of Francie Whittenburg Klein.

KACV-TV—Channel 2 in some areas—will serve all interested viewers within a 74-mile radius of Amarillo, according to station manager Royce Bodiford.

Correction

In Friday's story on the Country Opry, it was incorrectly reported that the Opry would be open August 20. The Opry will be open August 27. The Brand regrets the error.

The party for the new PBS affiliate will mark the preview of the station's first production: "Two Voices—Mary Jane Johnson and Timothy Jenkins in Concert." Party guests will be treated to a presentation designed for the occasion. In addition, film and television star Carole Wells Doheny will perform selections from Broadway. Two bands will provide dance music for the differing tastes of the young and "young at heart," said Jackie Wilson, Amarillo College director of development.

Party Patrons contribute $350 a couple to KACV-TV and buffet guests will contribute $200 a couple. A contribution of $100 entitles a couple to an evening of dancing beginning at 10 p.m. All proceeds will benefit the new PBS station. Reservations will be accepted through Aug. 24. Those wishing to take part may call Ms. Wilson at 371-5266.

Officially opened

Hereford Hustlers, Gibson's employees and community leaders gathered Friday morning to cut the ribbon on Gibson's Discount Center located at 1115 W. Park Ave. in West Park Plaza Shopping Center. The store accommodates 50,000 square feet of floor space. Cutting the ribbon is Owen Chaffin, chairman of Chaffin, Inc., while store manager Jim Rakes holds the store's first dollar of clear profit.

ANNUAL SKIN EXAM

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — An annual trip to the dermatologist is recommended, says the Ladies' Home Journal.

A dermatologist will look at every inch of a patient's skin, from scalp to toes, during the exam, and it only takes several minutes.

Skin exams can diagnose serious illnesses, including skin cancer and AIDS. A recent study in the Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology found that 15 percent of 1,106 patients given the exam had skin lesions that indicated illness or problems such as fungal infections.

The study also found that more than half the malignant tumors detected were located on parts of the body normally covered.

Ruiz, Reyes vows exchanged Ask Dr. Lamb

Sylvia Ann Ruiz became the bride of Santos G. Reyes during a mid-afternoon wedding ceremony held Saturday in the San Jose Catholic Church of Hereford. Father Joe Bixenman officiated for the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos A. Ruiz IV of 311 Ave. J.

The church altar was decorated by two 15-branch candelabra and two large floral arrangements of red carnations, red gladioli, white mums and fresh greenery.

Cynthia Charlene Ruiz served her sister as maid of honor and Kevin Lynn Ward was best man.

Bridesmaids were Delma Garcia, the bride's cousin, and Pricella Garza. Groomsmen included Hector Reyna and the bride's brother, Daniel Ruiz.

The bride's sister, Carlota Ruiz, was flower girl as was the bride's cousin, Marlana Rodriguez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Lomeli. Ring bearer was the bride's cousin, Anthony Torres, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Heller of Canyon.

Guests were escorted by Nicky Ruiz, the bride's brother, and Mark Washington, who also lit candles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose to wear a white satin designer's gown featuring a queen scalloped neckline to the shoulder tips. The bodice was crowned with pearls and sequins and topped with Romania crystal pleated shirring. The French pouf sleeves of white satin crystal were pleated in Renaissance quilt. Each sleeve square was heavily beaded and decorated. The princess waistline was pointed with jewels and European laces.

The back of the gown plunged to a V-shape and was decorated with six strands of lustrous pearls swagged across the base back. A designer bow with sprays of pearls accented the waist.

The skirt was full and flowing with a satin overskirt of queens renaissance in flounces of satin with a crest of medallions accenting the skirt's border. The cathedral court-length train featured a scalloped edge of European cut-out laces etched into the satin.

The double-layered fingertip veil of silk illusion was edged in seed pearls and attached to a designer headpiece of pearls, bugle beads and crystal lily-of-the-valley. The headpiece featured a forehead band of rhinestones and seed pearls and the high pouf of the veil at the crown was complemented with layers of stylized bead and pearl hearts with crystal lilies.

The bride carried a designer bouquet of silk, chiffon and satin roses, stephanotis and lily-of-the-valley. Looped seed pearls, tiny ribbons and crystal glazed baby's breath enhanced the design which ended in lace and satin streamers holding clusters of tiny flowers.

Her jewelry consisted of diamond and pearl earrings and pendant which was given to her as a wedding gift by the groom.

Bridal attendants wore red floor-length dresses fashioned with ruffles at the back. The maid of honor was attired in a white floor-length gown designed with ruffles at the back.

Beverly Griego, the bride's cousin, invited guests to register at the reception held in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Refreshments were served by the bride's cousins, Molly Lomeli and Audrey Garcia, from a table covered with a lace cloth and decorated by red candles.

The bride is a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School and the groom graduated from HHS in 1987. He is employed as accounts manager at Colortyme.

Out-of-town wedding guests represented San Jose, Calif., Groover City, Calif.; Houston, San Angelo, Del Rio, Dallas, Amarillo, Dimmitt, Friona, Lubbock and Garden City, Kan.

TICK BITES

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — Tick bites can bring on Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain potted fever, with accompanying chills, headache and muscle aches.

When outdoors wear protective clothing to guard against thick bites, says Patient Care magazine. Keep pants and shirt tucked in and fully buttoned.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Can one become addicted to exercise, and when is it too much? My 37-year-old daughter works out at the health club every day, jogs nearly every day and belongs to a bicycle club and rides her bike on 100-mile rides.

She is extremely thin and is beginning to have stomach problems. The doctor told her she has a nervous stomach.

She seem to be unable to decrease her exercise. If one becomes addicted, how difficult is it to slack off, and what are the physical consequences if she doesn't slow down?

DEAR READER: You can't become addicted, but a person can have many forms of compulsive behavior, such as the person who washes his hands every 30 minutes. However, just because she does a lot of exercise does not mean she has a compulsion. People can get caught up in an activity that dominates their lives. You could say that about almost any professional sports person, such as the professional golfer.

She may be too thin because she doesn't consume enough calories. Her quiet and not her exercise may be the problem. If a person's nutritional intake is adequate, one can be very active day after day without ill effects. She may be exercising and dieting to stay thin and overdoing being thin. In that case, the question of anorexia nervosa must be considered.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

It's Lovely Weather... For Allergies & Hay Fever

BY DR. GERALD GLASSCOCK
Doctor of Chiropractic

The major problem with regard to allergies is oversimplification. True, the symptoms of an allergic attack are generally recognizable.

The itchy eyes, throat tickle, clogged ears and of course the runny nose, sneezing and stuffed up conditions. Add these miseries to sleepless nights and you have a ripe case of allergy.

Just remember, even though you are used to sneezing, you can't blow away your condition like you blow your nose through sales presentations, or housework, or at the shop.

But let's get back to the over-simplification. An allergy attack isn't just a matter of getting an overdose of pollen or dust. Rather, there are several factors involved: emotional stress or business or home pressures; an infection, maybe one that's accelerated by the attack; the diet; a person's physical condition...for instance, the lack of proper rest can magnify that pollen many times over.

Now, of the factors involved in an allergic attack, by far the most important is the one that relates to the nervous system. Purely and simply, allergies are caused by poor functioning of the nervous system.

It works like this. Nerves are pinched by bone as they leave the spinal cord and spread throughout the body. This reduces the nerve impulses from the brain and the affected parts of the body are unable to do their usual job. It's then that allergies develop.

Dr. Gerald Glasscock

It follows that to clear up an allergic problem, one must get to the source of the difficulty. Of course we look after the diet and other good bodily health habits. But until the nerve impairment has been solved, the allergic problem will continue.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around Texas:

Hispanic on Cabinet Long Overdue

President Reagan's nomination of Lauro Cavazos to be secretary of education — the first Hispanic nominated for a Cabinet post — has drawn two general types of responses from Republicans and Democrats. Republicans have been hailing the move as a brilliant choice that broadens the GOP's appeal. Many Democrats, however, have said Cavazos' selection was a cynical election-year ploy designed to negate the appeal to Hispanics by Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen, both of whom speak Spanish.

We don't know which claim is right; we think the voters should decide that. But we do know that the appointment of a Hispanic man or woman to a Cabinet-level post was long overdue. Other minorities have been represented in these positions since the 1960s or before, and we refuse to believe no Hispanics were qualified for these posts before now.

There are nearly 19 million Hispanics in this country, almost 8 percent of the population. Like all Americans, they deserve full representation in all facets of U.S. life, and we hope Cavazos' appointment signals progress toward that goal.

Bright Spot for Texas

Texas is not all shut-down rigs and out-of-work tool pushers. The natural gas industry is zinging along nicely, with a growing market for a resource Texas has in abundance. Construction of new pipelines should be encouraged, to broaden that market further. Increased use of natural gas will not only help the Texas economy, but the the nation's environment — and make a serious dent in the acid rain problem plaguing this nation and especially Canada.

Limit Military Role In Border Patrol for Drugs

Should the military be used in the fight against drugs?

Yes and no.

On Aug. 3, 110 National Guard soldiers began searching border-crossing commercial cargos in El Paso and other cities as part of a 20-day experiment with the U.S. Customs Service in Texas, Arizona and Florida.

No figures have yet been released on how well this program is working. But if the military is to be used in any capacity, this limited support role is working. The soldiers are not checking or searching people — only cargo. They don't make arrests. That is left to the U.S. Customs Service.

But if the soldiers become police officers, with the right to arrest, that would be carrying the experiment too far. The Pentagon agrees and has said the military should have little if any role in the fight against drugs.

Soldiers performing a police role is too reminiscent of countries where military dictators used the armed forces to control the populace. The soldier's role is to prepare for and fight wars — or ... prevent war — not be law enforcement officers.

There's No Constitutional Right To Own a Handgun

The man who recently called for stricter regulation of handguns was none other than conservative former Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. Powell made his comments while calling for laws that would hasten federal review of capital cases that have been appealed from state courts.

Powell blamed the backlog of death-penalty cases on two things: appeals that generally run the entire length of both state and federal court systems and easy access to handguns.

Though his thoughts on death-penalty appeals are hardly surprising, Powell's acknowledgement of the obvious link between murder and handguns is. It's also welcome.

Powell's observation bears repeating. "It is not easy to understand," he said, "why the Second Amendment, or the notion of liberty, should be viewed as creating a right to own and carry a weapon that contributes so directly to the shocking number of murders in our society."

The former justice went on to point out that handguns were used to commit almost 60 percent of the 20,000 murders that occurred last year in this country.

Powell also noted that other Western democracies with lesser murder rates have strong restrictions on private gun ownership.

Powell's voice is a welcome addition to the call for the reasonable regulation of handguns.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek discusses coin-operated machines and bombers this week, we think.

©00

Dear editor:

Chances are, there's nobody in this country or the rest of the industrialized world, for that matter, who hasn't lost some coins in a coin-operated machine.

You put in a quarter or two dimes and a nickel or four quarters or whatever the machine demands to get a soda water or a sandwich or a cup of coffee or a candy bar or a newspaper, and the machine swallows your coins and delivers nothing.

You put coins in a pay-phone and get a busy signal but no coins return. "Pay-phone," that's an odd distinction. I don't know of any type of phone you don't pay for one way or another.

What brought this up was a news article saying 39 servicemen have been injured in the last few years by army coin machines that topple over when rocked and shaken for not delivering the goods or returning the coins. A soldier, like a lot of the rest of us, will kick and pound on the machine, and when that doesn't work he'll rock it. That sometimes causes the machine, weighing 1,000 pounds when full, to fall over on him.

To avoid this hazard, army officials studied the problem and have recommended that signs warning of the danger be placed on the machines.

No wonder that billion-dollar bomber the army ordered won't fly or those 500-million-dollar tanks can't cross a stream without bogging down.

Apparently they don't have anybody who could look at those topple-prone coin machines and, without even appointing a research committee or hiring a consultant, say right off: "Just bolt the blamed things to the floor."

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

The High Plains Epilepsy Association 1988 Poster Child, Summer Butts, recently visited Hereford. What a welcome she received from your community!

Many thanks to the people who made her visit so special: June Owens and Boyd Foster of Arrowhead Mills; Jerry Walsh of Frito-Lay; Garth Merrick of Hereford Bi-Products; Rene Ramirez and Rose Medrano of Ramirez and Sons; and Bob Sims and Sam Kirk of Tri-State Cattle Feeders.

The High Plains Epilepsy Association is a United Way agency and we would like to thank Wayne Amstutz, executive director of the United Way of Deaf Smith County, for making arrangements for the tours and providing transportation for Summer to visit these facilities. Summer loved the mementoes she received.

Summer is from Texhoma, and she will always remember the wonderful hospitality shown to her by the lovely and friendly people of Deaf Smith County.

Sincerely,
Teresa Soils

Dear Editor:

Thanks to many people and businesses, the first-ever Hereford "Show & Shine" was a success. A number of firms provided prizes for the contestants, and these were greatly appreciated by the winners and coveted by those not so lucky.

Other businesses provided discounts and scavenger-hunt awards. The Chamber of Commerce worked hard to make this happen and provided great support.

The participants brought out some outstanding cars that included several perfect restorations, beautiful street rods, some wild 4x4's, and some in various stages of completion. The people of Hereford were the final ingredient that made this a great success.

A great time was had by all and our citizens are to be congratulated for the wonderful treatment they gave the participants. There were more than 500 ballots cast in selecting the winners and it showed that all of the cars had fans. Thank you, Hereford, from the committee and from the participants!

LABELS

Get ready, I am going to do some preaching. I hate to put it on my readers but I have no other forum. I tried it on my wife but she was watching her soap. I went to the Shot Bull Cafe but they barred me from the round table. You are the only ones left.

I am disappointed in Jerry Falwell. He may "fall well" but sometimes he does not sit well with me. He was at the Republican Convention peddling a comic book published by his son. The comic book describes Dukakis as being against everything that is right or dear in the world. He is accused of being for bestiality, whatever that is.

Dukakis is for it because he did not vote for some bill that wanted to make this a crime. The man may have felt that those who do such things need help more than they need a jail sentence, but since he did not vote for the bill he is for the crime. That is sleazy.

I rebel at all of the labeling going on in our world. I have watched my own religious denomination being torn apart by those who want to label everyone. If someone is not a conservative in just the right way, and all of the way, they are a liberal and want to see our nation go to the dogs. Good people have been hurt and some have been ruined by this inquisition.

In the early '60s we went through a time of this sort of labeling. Everyone was afraid of communism. I was pressured into attending a rally whose main theme seemed to be if it looks like a duck, walks like a duck, has web feet and quacks, it is a duck.

To them, the same thing was true of communism. If someone looked like one, they were one. After the meeting a fellow told me there were communists in his church. I asked him how he knew. He said, "Well they are new, they never say much so we do not know where they stand, and they just seem strange." That sort of thinking was dangerous then, and it is dangerous now.

The most profound question I have ever been asked came from a young lady in Tulsa. She said, "I am thinking about becoming a Christian. I want to join your church but I have one question. You say Christ will change me. Now, I believe He will, but my question is: 'What if He does not change me to suit you?'" WOW!!

Warm fuzzies,

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

Let's enforce laws we have

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON—"The more corrupt the state," wrote the ancient Roman historian Tacitus, "the more numerous the laws."

In recent years, Congress has enacted numerous new laws intended to discourage fraud against the government. For example, the False Claims Amendments Act of 1986 permits the government to recover treble damages plus up to $10,000 per false claim in a civil action.

This recovery is virtually automatic after a criminal conviction. The Anti-Kickback Enforcement Act of 1986 provides a fine of $500,000 for corporations and $250,000 plus 10 years imprisonment for people who offer to solicit kickbacks in connection with government contracts. The Criminal Fines Improvements Act of 1987 permits a fine of up to twice the gross financial gain of the defendant or twice the loss to the government for crimes against the government, including false claims.

These laws are only a few of those recently added to an already lengthy list of criminal statutes pertaining to fraud against the government. Yet despite all this legislation, cases of fraud continue to occur. So what are we to do?

Well, as you might guess, the response of Congress is to write even more laws making the penalties even more severe. The latest effort is the Major Fraud Act of 1988, H.R. 3911, recently adopted by the House and now under consideration by the Senate. It would, among other things, establish draconian penalties for fraud against the government, extend the statute of limitations from five to seven years, create a cash reward system to encourage reporting to establish criminal fraud and eliminate the motive in certain cases.

Well, I am as opposed to fraud as anyone, by H.R. 3911 exudes the faint aroma of election-year hysteria. I am opposed to all crimes, but I do not necessarily think death would be an appropriate penalty in every case. H.R. 3911 could in fact amount to a death penalty for many businesses, and the awesome fines in the proposed law would not necessarily have to be imposed to achieve that result. The mere threat of bankruptcy destroys a company's credit, forecloses access to capital markets and critically injures a firm's ability to conduct business, all before it has a chance to defend itself in court.

I share the widespread indignation and outrage at reports that some government contractors may have broken the law in their quest for Uncle Sam's business. But the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution requires that legal punishment be proportionate to the crime. Existing laws are more than sufficient to deal with the crimes allegedly committed against our government. We need no new laws—only tough enforcement of the ones already on the books.

Family communications

NEW YORK (AP) — Kids' busy schedules and a rise in two career and single parent homes have resulted in the fact that many families no longer eat together on a regular basis.

However, reviving the dinner hour as a ritual in the home can improve family communication, says Family Circle magazine. It gives these tips to make the family meal a positive experience.

— Eliminate distractions: For uninterrupted family-time, turn off the television and unplug the phone.

— Avoid unpleasant business: Save giving out punishments and discussing bad grades for some time other than the dinner hour.

— Get everyone involved: Encourage children to speak up and participate.

— Stick to a designated time: Appointing a specific hour can be comforting to children as a sign of order in a chaotic world.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been hearing several late-night radio hosts say they believe Elvis Presley is alive. I, for one, am convinced that he is. I hope that through your column I can get people to respect his privacy. "The King" deserves to be left alone.
 It is perfectly reasonable, as one radio person pointed out, that Elvis got so fed up with people following him around and pestering him, and writing all those awful stories because he had put on a few pounds, that he faked his own death so he could have some peace and quiet. It all adds up.
 Elvis is now 52 years old. He gave more than half of his life to the public. There was never an entertainer who was more accommodating and generous. He put up with a lot of nonsense because he didn't want to disappoint his worshippers.
 Now that the truth is leaking out, I hope people will let the man have a private life. He has earned the right to live like a normal citizen. Please put your weight behind this, Ann. You could be a great help.—True Blue Fan in Tennessee Presley died on Aug. 16, 1977. An autopsy showed that although the cause of death was a heart attack, he had 10 different drugs in his blood, including codeine, morphine and Quaaludes.

 His funeral was one of the most spectacular displays of hero worship this country has ever seen. Within hours of his death thousands of people crowded around the gates of Graceland. After Presley's body was prepared for viewing, more than 80,000 mourners filed by the casket to pay their last respects. Hundreds fainted, one man had a heart attack, a woman went into labor, and the National Guard was called out. The near-riot crowds were comparable only to those that stormed the chapel when Rudolph Valentino, star of the silent films, was laid to rest in the 1920s.
 The commercial value of this great entertainer, a decade after his funeral, continues to grow. His worshippers have proven to be a phenomenal source of revenue. The people who surrounded Elvis during his life have increased his $4.9 million estate to something close to $50 million with no sign of slowing down.
 Much of what you have just read is from a new book by Malcolm Forbes. It is a compelling collection of stories about how the rich and famous died, dutifully reporting their last words and the family fights that followed.
 I was up until the wee hours reading Forbes' book. Here's another vignette: Mata Hari put on her best dress and a straw hat with a veil before she was driven to the French military compound to be executed. The famous spy refused to be tied to a pole nor would she allow herself to be blindfolded. As the executioners raised their rifles she winked at them and blew kisses.

YOUR EYES

SUNGASSES THIS SEASON

Heading for the beach or the ballfield? Make sure the sunglasses you take along have lenses that adequately absorb the ultraviolet light of the strong summer sun.

Although the sun's ultraviolet rays are invisible, excessive exposure to those rays can possibly damage the lens (the front part of the eye that focuses on an object), or the retina (the light-sensitive portion in the back of the eye that sends images to the brain).

If you are boating, fishing or water skiing, the light reflected off the water on a sunny day contains even more ultraviolet rays. Protecting your eyes with quality sunglasses becomes extra important.

Neither the color nor density alone of your sunglass lenses can be used to judge their ability to filter out ultraviolet rays. That is why, whether prescription or plain, sunglasses should be purchased from an optometrist who handles only high quality lenses.

Sunglass protection can also be provided by photochromic glass lenses — clear, quality lenses that change into darkened, light-filtering sunglasses when you are in the sun.

HAVE YOU HERD

HEREFORD PRODUCE IS GOING FRESH AT THE FARMERS MARKET?

Wednesdays are now Farmers Market days thanks to the Agriculture Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Local farmers from in and around Hereford now have a place to sell their fresh produce to local residents.

The market will be set up every Wednesday evening from 5:00 p.m. until 8 p.m. in the Winn's parking lot. And according to committee member, Garry Yosten, "This will be a real benefit to everyone in the community...to those who don't have time to manage their own gardens and for our local growers as well." The Farmers Market is not presently a money-making project. All proceeds are being put back into the market to help it grow.

We congratulate the Chamber of Commerce on its newest project and invite everyone to support our local growers as they now bring us some of the freshest produce around.

Despite Cowboys' injuries

Landry says preseason is a success

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry declared the 1988 preseason camp a success as training ended, but added that injuries cast a pall over the proceedings.

"I thought it was a very successful camp, from the viewpoint of players coming in with a good attitude, with good effort and with good conditioning," Landry said Friday in his final training camp press conference.

"We had one of our better camps. The injuries took away from some of it, because we had so many injuries in one area, but I think overall, it was a very successful camp."

After looking at this year's team in camp, Landry said the Cowboys strengths are at wide receiver and one of the offensive line.

Seven healthy receivers remain among the 81 players on the roster, probably competing for five positions.

Eleven offensive linemen remain, vying for eight or nine spots.

Landry singled out second-year receiver Kelvin Martin, fourth-year defensive tackle Kevin Brooks and sixth-year defensive end Jim Jeffcoat as the most outstanding individuals at camp.

But he said his biggest disappointment was the wave of injuries that hit the linebackers.

Landry also told the writers that he plans to take a long look at his veterans against the Chicago Bears in an exhibition game Monday night at Dallas (7 p.m. CDT). Both teams will enter the game with 1-1 pre-season records.

"They may play as much as a half," Landry said. "We'll still be looking at people, but less people. We are only suiting up about 68 (players) at this point, with all of our injuries, so you're not looking at too many players."

The Dallas offense has been extremely impressive during the pre-season. Aided by the unquestioned role of Herschel Walker at tailback and the development of Steve Pelluer as the No. 1 quarterback, the Cowboys scored 48 points in their two pre-season games, against the Chargers and the Raiders. The Cowboys scored only 36 points in four pre-season games last year.

Landry said playing against the Bears Monday night will serve as an excellent gauge to evaluate offensive progress.

The Bears will should help Dallas learn if its find out if its transition toward a more physical offensive style is succeeding.

"It's going to be a real test for us," Landry said. Last couple of weeks, in the Chargers and the Raiders," Landry said. "What you've got in this team (the Bears), you've got so much more talent. These guys are tough anyway. But you're playing guys that move quick and fast, and have excellent escapes off of blocks. It's going to be a real test for us."

Other highlights from Landry's press conference:

— On Bill Bates and Vince Albritton: "Bill's had a good summer. He's working hard in there. I think all of our safeties are working hard. We're just sorry that Albritton is hurt (with a bruised thigh). We need Albritton to work. Do we try him at linebacker, or try to have him support us at that area? He's still out. He hasn't worked in some time. So I don't know when he'll be back."

"He (Bates) is not quite as impulsive as he was. I think he's thinking a little bit more, and he's not making those aggressive moves that he makes at times, before he thinks. So I think that's helping him. So from that standpoint, he's playing better. At this point, he's definitely working as our starter."

— On Steve Pelluer: "I think Steve proved what we felt he would do, after the two games that he won last year at the end. I think he's confident that he can do the job. He doesn't seem to be flustered at all. When he makes a poor pass or make an error, it doesn't bother him much. He comes on back and plays well. So I think it's been a good camp for him."

— On Jim Jeffcoat's camp: "I think Jeffcoat has probably done a better job in the off-season, preparing himself for what he had to do this season, than probably anybody. He's benefitting from it now. He's fast off the ball. He's coming off the ball well. That's the thing he was lacking last year."

— On team's attitude, coming out of camp: "It's been a very positive camp. This week's kind of a downer. Always is, when you get ready to go home. Everybody's ready to go home. They see the weights being carried off, and their mind is someplace else. But that's just part of breaking camp. I don't know how it's going to affect us going into Monday's game, but it's surely been different than it's been the other weeks we've been here."

— On distraction-free camp: "I think it's welcome, from my standpoint. Controversy never helps you. People try to think it does. I guess (baseball's New York Yankees owner George) Steinbrenner thinks it helps him. But I don't know. He's in third place, I saw the other day."

— On Herschel Walker's mentality: "Nothing bothers Herschel. Tony (Dorsett) didn't bother Herschel. Nobody bothers Herschel. If it's bothering him, you don't know it. It's inside of him, it's not outside of him. I think it's always more comfortable, when you don't have something like that (Dorsett's presence) that you're faced with everyday."

When Eric Heiden of the U.S. won five gold medals in speed-skating in the 1980 Winter Olympics, he set Olympic records in each event.

Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba won the Olympic Gold Medal in heavyweight boxing in three straight Olympiads, 1972, 1976 and 1980.

Houston pitcher at odds with NOW -- again

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher Bob Knepper is at odds with the National Organization for Women — again.

Before the Astros' game Friday night against the Pirates at Three Rivers Stadium, fliers calling for Knepper's suspension were circulated by members of the Pittsburgh chapter of NOW.

Knepper was given a copy of the message, which called for baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth to fine and suspend Knepper for bigotry.

"When Al Campanis and Jimmy the Greek made racist comments, they were fired," the message read.

Friday's scores

"Bob Knepper should be fined and suspended for his attacks on women and girls."

The message criticized Knepper for attacking female umpire Pam Postema's right to her job because she's a woman and criticized him for his comments that NOW members were "lesbians and blowhards." Knepper has since apologized for calling NOW members lesbians.

The last line of the flier used a slang word to describe how a person need not be a male to call strikes.

"This makes me want to come down real hard on them," Knepper said. "Their inaccuracy and the language they used shows their lack of class and the worthlessness of their organization. That's as gentle as I can be."

"People say I've attacked women's rights. I've never attacked women's rights or homosexual rights. To say my remarks showed bigotry is a joke."

Accent on Agriculture

By DENNIS W. NEWTON
Co. Ext. Agent-AG

An educational program to acquaint agricultural employers and laborers with provisions of the state's new Agricultural Hazard Communication Act will be conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service on Wednesday, Aug. 24 in the Banquet Room of the Hereford Community Center at 8 p.m. The program will be conducted in the English and Spanish languages.

Commonly referred to as the "Right-to-Know Act", the measure was enacted by the legislature in 1987 to promote the safe use of pesticides and protect the health of farm workers, farmers and farming communities.

Proposed regulations of the provisions have been drafted by the Texas Department of Agriculture. The law requires the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to conduct training programs in all but 21 selected counties, where the TDA will conduct the programs.

The programs presented by the Extension Service are designed to inform employers of their responsibilities, and to emphasize to workers safety and health aspects of working in fields and areas where pesticides are used to produce agricultural commodities.

The law applies to agricultural employers who:

- Hire migrant or seasonal workers with a gross annual payroll of $15,000 or more, and who annually use or store 55 gallons or 500 pounds of any pesticide; or
- Hire permanent agricultural workers with a gross annual payroll of $50,000 or more, and who annually use or store 55 gallons or 500 pounds of any pesticide.

Employers in these categories must provide relevant crop sheets for the commodity being grown, and ensure that these are read aloud to each farm laborer, in the most understood language, at least once each growing season.

Crop sheets are regional documents which list the pesticides used on that crop in that region; the time of the year in which they are used; re-entry intervals, or the time which must elapse following pesticide application before workers can re-enter a field; and health effects and precautions which should be exercised by the worker.

In addition, employers covered by the law must maintain a workplace chemical list which records information about pesticides used or stored in the workplace, and a material safety sheet (MSDS) for each pesticide purchased. These documents are to be available to workers, or their representatives, on request.

All employers and farm workers are encouraged to attend. For more information concerning the meeting, contact the County Extension Office on the 4th floor of the County Courthouse or call 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Drought will save $10 billion in government farm payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher prices for drought-reduced commodities and cutbacks in subsidy payments will mean a two-year saving of $10.6 billion for major farm price support programs, according to Agriculture Department projections.

When USDA's proposed operating budget was sent to Congress last February, net price support outlays by the department's Commodity Credit Corp. were estimated at $17.7 billion for the current year and $17.1 billion for the fiscal year that will begin Oct. 1.

The revised estimates, based upon a "mid-season review" of USDA budget figures, are tentative and still subject to revision. However, as of now, they call for commodity price support spending to drop this year to around $13.1 billion and in fiscal 1989 to $11.1 billion.

Spending on farm supports soared to a record $25.8 billion in 1986, the first year of a new farm law passed in 1985. The law authorized gradual reductions in "deficiency payments" made to farmers when market prices are depressed. It also allowed other adjustments, including the lowering of basic price support loan rates for major commodities.

Outlays for support edged down to $22.4 billion in 1987 but were expected to decline more in future years as lower adjustments were made in the law's various formulas, including reduced dairy supports.

But rising exports, followed by drought this year, boosted commodity prices sharply. That has lessened the need for large deficiency payments for some crops.

Not all commodities have shared in the expected cost reduction. Some programs, including cotton and rice, will be more costly to operate in the coming year.

But the anticipated savings in direct payments to farmers was an important arguing point in favor of the recent $3.9 billion drought relief measure signed Aug. 11 by President Reagan. Corn, soybeans and spring wheat areas have been the hardest hit.

According to a summary provided at the request of The Associated Press, most of the $10.6 billion in savings this year and next will come as a result of reduced payments to producers of feed grains, which include corn, sorghum, oats and barley.

Feed grains payments in fiscal 1987 totaled nearly $14 billion. This year's payments are expected to decline to $8.2 billion and in 1989 those will drop to less than $2.73 billion, according to the estimates. Last February, USDA budget analysts said feed grains payments might be about $12.6 billion this year and $11.1 billion in 1989.

Some other payments and comparisons, included: —Wheat, $2.84 billion in 1987, $556.9 million in 1988 and $695.5 million in 1989. Earlier, this year's payments were forecast at $1.08 billion and 1989's at $1.52 billion.

—Rice, $905.9 million in 1987, $124.6 million in 1988 and $1 billion in 1989. The earlier forecast was $189 million in 1988 and $320 million in 1989.

—Upland cotton, $1.79 billion in 1987, $756.8 million in 1988 and $2.61 billion in 1989. The earlier forecast was $42 million in 1988 and $229 million in 1989.

—Dairy, $1.17 billion in 1987, $1.18 billion in 1988 and $681.9 million in 1989. The earlier forecast was $1.23 billion in 1988 and $936 million in 1989.

—Wool, $152.1 million in 1987, $136.7 million in 1988 and $84.7 million in 1989. The earlier forecast was $125 million in 1988 and $127 million in 1989.

Are pesky insects in lawn or trees?

By DAVY VESTAL
County Extension Agent

It's time once again for white grub control in lawns. With several indication factors we could have extensive damage in lawns due to this pesky pest, now until freezing weather. Here are a few helpful hints, Diazinon R and Dursban R should be applied within the next couple of weeks regardless of turf condition. Granular formulations are highly recommended for white grub control.

Bagworm problems, by now those bagworms have cherished a pretty good average daily gain. Control this time of the year is usually less than satisfactory. Suggested control measures include treatments of Seven R, Orthene R, Diazinon R, or Dursban R. Two applications at a 7 day interval is suggested for these large bagworms. Next year it would be wise to start control measures in mid June.

Monthly applications of Lindane R or Dursban R for "borer" prevention is recommended, however if you are already experiencing problems, such as Peach Tree borer, control can be accomplished with applications of Lorsban R in mid-to-late-August.

We are moving into the time of year when mites start developing rapidly on ornamentals. Hot-dry weather will likely cause build up to increase. Cygon R, Diazinon R, or Malathion will give very satisfactory control with two applications made at 7 day intervals.

Grasshoppers are quickly becoming evident of large damage as we reach hotter, dryer times. Persistence in control efforts if likely your best bet. Control efforts include Sevin R, Malathion R and Diazinon applied once or twice serve a good control measure.

If you have problems with insects or disease problems you may contact the county Extension office for further information.

WHITEFACE AVIATION CORP.

The flies are taking over - just ask any cattle operator or feedlot. And, to make the fly problem a lot worse, different species of flies require different methods of control. Horn flies and face flies are predominant in cow herds while house and stable flies create the most trouble for feedlots. To control the flies in cow herds, feed additives can be used to kill developing larvae. However, since these flies travel long distances, this method isn't always very effective. Ear tags impregnated with insecticide are usually a better method of control. The kind of insecticide must be changed every year or two since the flies quickly become resistant. Oils and dust bags work well when placed where the cattle must rub the bags when entering or leaving an area. In the feedlot, the best defense is good sanitation, eliminating areas where eggs will hatch. Use the chemical sprays, mists and fogs will help control but does not take the place of sanitation practices.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The opening of Malaysia to U.S. corn sales last year was an encouraging development in a market historically dominated by Thailand, says a trade report by the Agriculture Department.

"Although it is likely that the United States will have a hard time maintaining a market presence (in Malaysia) once Thai supplies return to normal, the sales last year provided an opportunity for Malaysian users to become more familiar with the qualities of the U.S. product," the report said.

Malaysians liked U.S. corn for its consistent quality, lower moisture and exporter reliability, among other reasons, the report said.

Says local farmer Troy Sublett

Center pivot is efficient

When Troy Don Sublett of Hereford began watering with a center pivot irrigation system, he found it increased his irrigation efficiency and made it possible for him to change his farming practices.

Sublett implemented minimum tillage as a way to rotate crops under pivot irrigation. Minimum tillage complements center pivot irrigation because it conserves soil moisture and controls runoff by leaving stubble in the field.

"I didn't really want to minimum till, but I saw some neighbors do it and became interested in it," Sublett said. Fields look messy to farmers unaccustomed to minimum tillage. Sublett was no different.

"At first, I didn't like the looks of it, but I soon realized that minimum tillage can save a pre-plant irrigation and reduce both fuel costs and the number of trips across the field.

"I changed from an intense farm management system to minimum tillage with milo, corn and sugar beets. Under center pivot irrigation, I planted wheat into corn stalks or grain sorghum into wheat stubble to rotate the crops. By farming with minimum tillage, I saved a lot of moisture."

Sublett first used a center pivot in 1976 after his landlord installed a system on the land he farmed. A year later, drop lines were added to the first pivot, and the landlord purchased a second drop-line center pivot.

By 1978, Sublett was irrigating corn, grain sorghum and wheat with four drop-line center pivot systems. Six wells, pumping from 200 to 500 gallons per minute, supplied water to two pivots which watered summer crops and two pivots which watered winter wheat.

Sublett noted that center pivot water distribution is more efficient than furrow irrigation. "On the rented land, I irrigated about a third more acreage with the same amount of water with the pivot."

In 1986, Sublett purchased a 320-acre farm which had a Low Energy Precision Application (LEPA) system installed on it. He said the irrigation system works especially well with crops like sugar beets and corn, which require large amounts of water.

"Last year was the first time I had sugar beets under the LEPA system, and it worked really well. I was afraid of crusting with the drops right on the ground, but I didn't notice any problems. I really have enjoyed using it," Sublett said.

Sublett says he has a low water situation on his farm, and the LEPA system allows him to save his water resources.

"You have to throw your wells together if you're going to do anything in a low water situation.

With the LEPA center pivot, I can run two wells part of the season and then, when the water level draws down, I can put one or two more wells on the system." Sublett noted that he has three wells pumping an average 250-300 gallons per minute to supply water for the LEPA system. A fourth well can also be tied into the system if needed.

Sublett highly recommends soil moisture monitoring in conjunction with center pivots. "I think anyone who's starting to use center pivots really needs to use soil moisture monitoring devices, such as tensiometers or gypsum blocks. It helps to know the amount of water in the soil profile before you start irrigating. If you know how much is in the profile, then you can calculate how much water you need to apply and not over-irrigate.

"Using moisture blocks with the LEPA system has been really surprising. I'd be ready to start watering, and the blocks would say that I didn't need to."

Special referendum

Pork producers to vote Sept. 7-8

Pork producers in Deaf Smith County will have an opportunity to vote in a special referendum Sept. 7-8 as authorized by the Pork Promotion, Research and Consumer Information Act of 1985.

Purpose of the referendum is to determine the continuance of the 100 percent checkoff program which provides funds for pork research and promotion to enhance the pork industry, said Dennis Newton, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The checkoff is at the rate of 25 cents per $100 on all hogs and pigs as well as on all imported hogs and pork products.

Referendum voting will be conducted in the county Extension office during normal business hours Sept. 7-8.

Producers and importers unable to vote in person may request an absentee ballot from Dr. Bill Thomas, Extension Swine Specialist, Kleberg Center—Room 212, Texas A&M University, College Station, Tx. 77843. Absentee ballots will be available from Aug. 1 until close of business on Aug. 26. Absentee ballot return envelopes, containing the ballot and registration/certification statements, must be signed by the voter and mailed so as to be received in the county Extension office serving the county of voter residence by close of business on Sept. 1.

All pork producers who produced and owned porcine animals in the U.S. for sale in commerce and who are subject to assessment during the representative time period of Nov. 1, 1986, through Sept. 6, 1988, are eligible to vote. Importers who imported porcine animals, pork or pork products during the representative time period also are eligible to vote. Also eligible are 4-H, FFA and other youth owned porcine animals and are subject to assessment during the representative time period.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will count ballots, determine the eligibility of challenged voters and ballots, and report referendum results, said Newton.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

TCFA executive slated to retire

Charles E. Ball, executive vice president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association (TCFA), has announced that he will retire at the end of this year to become a consultant to associations and agribusinesses.

Upon retirement, he will serve as TCFA Executive Vice President Emeritus and be retained by TCFA as a consultant.

"During Charles Ball's 16 years as chief executive, TCFA has grown in all respects and become recognized as one of the most dynamic associations in the beef industry," says TCFA President Clark Willingham. "Now Charlie will have the opportunity to help other associations as he has helped TCFA. Our membership has increased from 800 to 6,500 members; the staff expanded from five to 20; and annual income increased from $312,000 to $2,600,000."

Also, many new services were added and expanded, according to Willingham. Among them: Beef-PAC, a political action committee; a state-of-the-art market information system, including M-Net, a computer-satellite market network; a Total Insurance Plan for feedyards; an arbitration program to resolve cattle feeding disputes; and a weekly newsletter, regarded as one of the best in the industry.

In recent years, as a Certified Association Executive (CAE), Ball has been active in the American Society of Association Executives and the Texas Society of Association Executives. In a consulting role, he has helped evaluate a number of associations, in and out of agriculture; has helped develop strategic plans for several associations; and given programs on selecting, motivating and rewarding volunteers.

Prior to joining TCFA in 1972, Ball was for 20 years a regional editor of Farm Journal. He also was author of a book on horsemanship, "Saddle Up," which sold over 150,000 copies.

Among the honors awarded to Ball during his career as an editor and association executive: Outstanding Agriculture Writer Award, by American Seed Trade Association; Outstanding Agriculturist Award, by Texas Tech University; "Hall of Merit," by American Polled Hereford Association; and Man of the Year in Texas Agriculture, by Progressive Farmer magazine.

Farm machine sales up in '87

WASHINGTON (AP) — The drought has brought mixed results to farm machinery sales this year, although preliminary readings by the Agriculture Department show that crop expansion plans for 1989 could have some effect.

Spending on farm machinery rose in 1987 after seven years of decline to $5.77 billion from $4.61 billion in 1986, according to a report by the department's Economic Research Service.

Currently, largely because of brisk sales early in the year, the agency forecasts 1988 machinery expenditures may range from $5.7 billion to $6.2 billion.

"The farm machinery industry will be hurt if farmers with reduced cash receipts put off buying new equipment," the report said. "Demand for harvesting, drying and storage equipment is most likely to be affected."

However, the report added that the drought has prompted greater sales of irrigation equipment in some parts of the country.

Farm machinery sales rose to a record of almost $12 billion in 1979 before starting a 60 percent slide to $4.61 billion in 1986, reflecting the crunch on farm income, high interest rates and tight credit in the early 1980s.

Analysts said last year's improved sales stemmed from "enhanced financial conditions for farmers" in 1987, notably a record net cash income nationwide of $56 billion. Net cash income — the difference between gross cash receipts and cash expenses — is forecast at $53 billion to $59 billion this year.

Despite the drought, analysts said there are some good signs: farmland values as of February were up 3 percent, on the average, from a year earlier, and total farm debt is at its lowest level since 1979.

"Higher interest rates and drought likely will repress some demand for machinery in the remainder of 1988, but sales are still likely to rise," the report said.

Texas may be in position to end A&M's dominance

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Texas A&M's unfavorable schedule opens the door for a new Southwest Conference football champion in 1988.

The loaded Aggies, who have won three consecutive titles, appear to have everything going against them.

They have an early schedule of Nebraska, Louisiana State, Alabama and Oklahoma State.

They have rugged SWC road games against Houston, Texas, and Arkansas.

They have the NCAA breathing down their neck with allegations that includes a possible cover-up.

If the Aggies win the title this year with all the hurdles they have to jump, then you can retire the trophy until 1993 with all the talent they have on the team.

The guess here is that there are too many obstacles.

The Texas Longhorns appear to be in the best position to end the A&M dominance.

They lost a hard-fought 20-13 game to the champion last year then finished strong with a 32-27 victory over favored Pittsburgh in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Here is the August line on the 1988 SWC chase:

TEXAS: 2-1 odds. The 'Horns play Arkansas, Houston, and Texas A&M in Austin. If quarterback Shannon Kelley keeps his passing arm hot to take the heat off exciting Eric Metcalf, then look out for Texas. The defense could be salty.

BAYLOR: 3-1 odds. Give Grant Teaff a good defense and a soft early schedule and he'll develop a good offense. Nevada-Las Vegas, Kansas and Iowa State provide good fodder while the offensive line matures.

TEXAS A&M: 4-1 odds. Jackie Sherrill has the hosses, but will they be worn out by the time SWC play starts in October? If the Aggies upset Nebraska in the Kickoff Classic then beware of the Maroon and White.

ARKANSAS: 5-1 odds. If the Razorbacks ever learn how to pass and catch a football they'll be in the (Mobil) Cotton Bowl Classic again. If not, it will be the same old El Foldo in the big games. One blessing is that the Hogs don't have to play Miami until the last game of the season.

TCU: 6-1 odds. Will Jim Wacker ever put it together? He has the talent and depth to sweep into high cotton. We'll know about the Frogs after they play Georgia and Boston College.

TEXAS TECH: 7-1 odds. Billy Joe Tolliver is the key. The Raiders' strong-armed quarterback will have to be on target every game and that could be tough with an inexperienced offensive line.

HOUSTON: 8-1 odds. Jack Pardee's bunch closed strong last November and the Cougars' run-and-shoot will be troublesome. However, you get to the Cotton Bowl on defense and Houston needs to develop a strong one.

RICE: 50-1 odds. Despite Jerry Berndt's enthusiasm, the Owls are 15 good players short of competing in the SWC. Rice's offense could provide some unsettling moments for opponents.

SMU: 1,000-1 odds (1989). The Mustangs return to the practice field Aug. 22 and will have a long time to learn their offense. They won't play until Sept. 2, 1989 against Rice in Dallas because of the fallout of NCAA probation.

For Olympic coverage

Long wait over for NBC

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The long wait is almost over at NBC.

Eight years ago, a U.S. boycott forced the network to cancel its coverage of the Moscow Olympics. Years of preparation and planning went down the drain, leaving the NBC crew as heartbroken as the American athletes.

Starting Sept. 15, the network gets another chance with its 19-day coverage of the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

NBC hopes the Olympic programming will boost ratings, profits and morale at the network. But after suffering a huge letdown in 1980, nobody is taking anything for granted, especially with the potential for student riots or violence by publicity-seeking terrorists.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed," said Michael Weisman, executive producer at NBC Sports. "We will all be tremendously relieved when the torch is lit."

NBC hasn't televised an Olympics since the 1972 Winter Games in Sapporo, Japan. Since then, ABC has done every Olympics except the boycotted Moscow Games.

ABC bills itself as the "network of the Olympics." But Weisman and Co. want to show that NBC can also handle the toughest assignment in sports.

"My mandate is to shatter the mystique that only ABC can do the Olympics," he said. "They've done a good job over the years, but I think we can do it too."

In financial terms, NBC is already assured of topping ABC's performance at the 1988 Winter Olympics.

ABC got caught in a bidding war for the Calgary rights, and ended up paying a record $309 million. Despite good ratings, the network lost an estimated $75 million.

NBC paid $300 million for the television rights in Seoul, even though the Summer Games are far more popular than the Winter Games. Network officials are projecting a profit, but they won't say how much.

"We will definitely make money," said Mike Eskridge, the NBC vice president in charge of Olympic finances. "It will be more than originally expected because our costs are lower than expected."

NBC plans to telecast 179½ hours from Seoul, roughly the same as ABC showed from Los Angeles. Seventy-five percent of the coverage will be live, including all prime-time and late-night shows.

Of course, prime-time in New York is lunch-time in Seoul the following day.

Because of the 14-hour difference between the cities, many of the glamour events will be held in the morning and early afternoon to accommodate American television viewers.

"It could be a shock to look out your window and see pitch darkness, then look at your television set and see athletes running live in broad daylight," Weisman said.

An even bigger shock may be the streamlined look of the telecasts.

Weisman is known for his innovations and experiments, including the silent Super Bowl minute, the "10-minute ticker" scoring updates and the announcerless game. But he is warning his troops not to get carried away with technical wizardry and gimmicks at the Olympics.

"There's a temptation to over-produce when you've got an event as important as the Olympics," Weisman said. "But we're going to try to avoid it. The event is the story, not NBC."

To cover the story, NBC will send more than 1,100 people to Seoul, including about 500 engineers, 70 cameramen, 60 directors and 60 producers.

The spotlight, however, will be on the 40 announcers and eight hosts who will become as familiar to American television viewers as the athletes.

Anchoring the nightly prime-time program will be Bryant Gumbel, co-host of the "Today" show and a former NBC sportscaster. The late-night programs will be hosted by Bob Costas, best known as a baseball announcer and host of NBC's NFL studio show.

The other anchors are Dick Enberg, Jane Pauley, Jimmy Cefalo, Gayle Gardner, Ahmad Rashad and Maria Shriver.

ABC's hosts at the Winter Olympics, particularly prime-time anchor Jim McKay and the late-night team of Frank and Kathie Lee Gifford, were widely criticized for doing too much cheerleading and not enough reporting.

Weisman said that won't happen at Seoul.

"By and large, I think we have a more irreverent group (than ABC)," he said. "I don't mean that as a criticism, either. It's just that we have different personalities than they do."

To ensure that NBC goes after breaking stories, Weisman has hired a number of print journalists to complement the announcing crew.

"They're there to protect us," Weisman said. "We don't want to miss a big story and then read about it in the morning papers."

Evening ceremony Saturday unites Huffaker, Langston

The Rev. Bob Huffaker officiated at the marriage of his daughter, Constance Huffaker, and Ben Langston, Jr., both of Bakersfield, Calif., during an early evening ceremony Saturday at First Church of the Nazarene. Assisting the pastor was Jeff Love.

The bride's parents are Rev. and Mrs. Huffaker of 233 Cherokee and the groom's father is Ben Langston, Sr. of Houston.

A 15-branch arch candelabrum, flanked by two spiral candelabra, decorated the church altar as did two large floral arrangements placed on white pedestals. The kneeling bench was embellished with greenery and ribbons and the unity candle was accented with greenery.

Maid of honor was Dana Adams of Bakersfield, Calif. and best man was Kevin Cunningham of New Orleans, La.

Serving as bridesmaids were Robin Umsted of Oklahoma City, Okla., Kelley Phillips of Lubbock and Barbie Koelzer of Houston. Groomsmen were Bob O'Brien of Dallas and Parks Wesson and Rick Rager, both of Bakersfield.

The bride's brothers, Kevin and Terry Huffaker, escorted guests.

Flower girls were the bride's nieces, Kristen and Brynne Huffaker, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Huffaker. Candles were lit by Jessica Huffaker.

Principal wedding selections were "This Is The Day", "We'll Be One", "Only God Could Love You More" and "Cherish the Treasure" vocalized by Pat Holcombe and Jim Haile who were accompanied on the synthesizer by Cynthia Streun and Lisa Hilton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an elegant white taffeta designer's gown. It featured an off-the-shoulder neckline with the bodice garnished with sequins and three dimensional beading of pearls and glittering jewels. The puffed sleeves were inset with sheer netting and accented by two butterfly bows. From the dropped torso waist, the gown bloomed into a full circle skirt, sweeping into a chapel-length train which was fashioned with appliques and enhanced with large butterfly bows cascading down the center.

The bride also wore an ornate designer's across-the-forehead headpiece which matched her gown. It consisted of jewels and pearls with a delicate spray of delicate white flowers. The three-tiered bridal illusion veil with pencil edging was aist-length.

The bridal bouquet was formed by an arrangement of white roses interspersed with peach sweetheart roses, delicate pearls, baby's breath and greenery.

Each bridal attendant wore a designer French-pouf shoulder tea-length teal satin creation fashioned with a sweetheart neckline overlaid with lace. It was also designed with a fitted bodice and a back accented with a large bustle bow. Each carried two calla lilies with peach bows and streamers.

Guests were invited to register at the reception held in the fellowship hall by Debbie South of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Lisa Huffaker and Khristi Huffaker, the bride's sisters-in-law, presided at the bride's table and the groom's sisters, Susan Zimicki and Angela McMillan, served the groom's cake.

Betty Koelzer served as organizer and Chad Fitzgerald was in charge of refreshments and reception decorations.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Hawaii, the bride wore a red and white box-pleated linen skirt and a sailor top accented with red button bows.

The couple will make their home in Bakersfield, Calif.

The bride, a 1981 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated from Southern Nazarene University in 1985. She is currently an elementary teacher in the Greenfield School District.

The groom, a 1980 graduate of Stratford High School in Houston, graduated in 1984 from Texas A&M University. He is presently a petroleum engineer with Chevron U.S.A. Corp.

Out-of-town family members attending the wedding included Nina Erdahl of Phillipsburg, Kan., Pat and Ernest Roberts of Baton Rouge, La., and Kevin and Khristi Huffaker of Oklahoma City, Okla. Other towns represented were Hammond, La., Houston, Colorado Springs, Colo. and Fort Collins, Colo.

Red Cross Update

Extra special thanks is extended to all of the volunteers that helped with the Jubilee activities. The Splash was lots of fun for everyone that attended and we hope to have a bigger and better one next year.

Appreciation is also given to all of those that made cookies and spent hours in the park. We appreciate those that came and bought cookies and lemonade and played our games. Thanks to the Chamber of Commerce for putting on the best Jubilee ever. Thanks to Karl King and Lupe Chavez for helping with the van for the parade.

New materials for CPR and First Aid will soon be available. All instructors must have an update training before the new material is used. Contact our office for details. We need new instructors for First Aid and CPR. Now is the time to train and learn to teach with the latest in First Aid information.

The Water Safety volunteers will have a swimming party Tuesday at the City Pool. The party is set for 7:30 p.m. Everyone is asked to bring a picnic supper. The Chapter will furnish the dinnerware and the drinks.

Ever wonder where Red Cross instructors come from? The instructors in our Chapter come from Deaf Smith County. They are volunteers that find teaching lifesaving skills is a fun, challenging and rewarding service to the community. We need more instructors. If you are interested in becoming an instructor, please call us at the Red Cross office, 364-3761.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way agency and depends on the United Way for money to keep our office open and programs continuing. The United Way depends on everyone in Deaf Smith County to provide funds for the 12 local agencies.

Couple united in marriage during candlelight ceremony

Soft candlelight illuminated the altar at St. Paul United Methodist Church in Amarillo as wedding vows were exchanged by Laura Michelle Weingart and Douglas Kyle Rains, both of Amarillo, early Saturday evening.

Officiating at the marriage was the Rev. Bill Titus of the church.

Parents of the bride are Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Weingart of Amarillo and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Rains of 220 Ranger Drive.

A large altar bouquet of peach and white gladioli, flanked by two large spiral candelabra entwined with greenery, decorated the church altar. Six pews were adorned with peach flowers, greenery and bows.

Pamela Boykin of Amarillo was maid of honor and Craig McCustian of Lubbock was best man.

Michele Peters and Kimberly Hulsey, both of Amarillo, were bridesmaids and serving as groomsmen were the bride's brother, Robert Weingart, and David Poindexter of Amarillo.

Serving as candlelighters and ushers were John Kelleher of Amarillo and Brian Skinner of Dallas, the groom's cousin.

Raenell McDonough, organist, played traditional wedding selections for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight regal satin designer's gown crowned with a Queen Anne collar with jewel work on the sweetheart bodice. The gown featured French puff sleeves that tightened to points, accented with pearls on European medallions. The princess waistline was decorated with pearls and the all satin full flowing skirt was embellished with medallions on the front. The back was designed with a runner of pearl buttons to the waist. The full-length queen's court cathedral train was adorned with a ruffle of satin along the border cascading in the center.

The shoulder-length layered net bridal veil with pencil edging was decorated with sprays of pearls and formed a pouf at the back of an elegant forehead band of pearls and sequins.

She carried a full cascading bou-quet of bridal white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and fresh greenery. Her jewelry consisted of a strand of pearls belonging to her paternal great-grandmother.

Each bridal attendant was attired in a peach taffeta tea-length gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, French cuff sleeves gathered in the center, and a dropped waistline which came to a point and was accented at the lower back by a designer bow of ivory satin. Each carried a nosegay of miniature peach-colored roses, off-white picarnations scattered with baby's breath and fresh greenery and trimmed with peach picot ribbon.

Jennifer Allen of Amarillo invited guests to register at the reception held in the bride's parents' home in Amarillo.

The Weingarts' circle driveway was lined with aluminized candles and eight pots of white mums leading to the steps of the doorway. As guests entered the home, they were served champagne. To the right of the entry was the bride's table and two round food tables, each centered with a five-branch gold candelabrum, were located in the living area. One table featured and assortment of finger sandwiches, deviled eggs, stuffed cherry tomatoes and pate and the other held meringue, whipped cream, fruit, croissants, miniature frosted cookies and cream puffs.

Elizabeth Lookingbill, the groom's sister, served cake, and punch and coffee were poured by Deborah Fansler of Amarillo.

The bride's large white two-tiered columnade heart-shaped cake was delicately trimmed with peach and candlelight flowers and was the focal point of the table which was covered with a floor-length candlelight lace cloth. Also decorating the table was a silver candelabrum holding white tapers and a bouquet of peach-colored roses, carnations, greenery and baby's breath. Silver appointments were used to serve fruit punch, cream cheese mints and crunchy mints.

Departing for a honeymoon to Red River, N.M., the bride wore as her traveling costume a mauve floral print dress. The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride graduated from the Academy of the Sacred Heart Bloomfield Hills, Mich. in 1986 and attended Amarillo College. She is presently employed by Dunlaps in Western Plaza Mall in Amarillo.

The groom, a 1985 Hereford High School graduate, attended TSTI in Waco and graduated from LaPlata Beauty School in Hereford. He is a hairstylist with Barbara Tabor European Skin Care Specialist in Amarillo.

Out-of-town guests included a grandmother, Mrs. Marion Hosman of Riverside, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lehr of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Col. and Mrs. Dennis Thompson, Altus, Okla.; Mrs. Charlotte Calman, Dallas; and Mr. and Mrs. Arlee LaPrade, Grand Saline. Guests also attended from Hereford, Tulia, and Plainview.

The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Fifth Seasons West in Amarillo.

A couple of pre-nuptial courtesies were extended to the bride. She was honored with a linen and lingerie shower in the home of Mary Boykin of Amarillo hosted by her maid of honor, Pam Boykin. Also, a miscellaneous bridal shower was held in the home of Mrs. Charles Burfield of Hereford.

Noted author to present program

The Nursing Division of Amarillo College will present Dr. Bernie Siegel, lecturer and author of Love, Medicine, and Miracles Aug. 28 at the Civic Auditorium 3 p.m.

Dr. Siegel's presentation is open to the public free of charge.

An autograph party with Dr. Siegel will be held at the Hastings Bookstore in Wolfen Village, Monday, Aug. 29 from noon until 2 p.m. Twenty-five percent of the book cost for all books purchased at that time will go to the Nursing Scholarship Fund at Amarillo College.

In his surgical practice and support groups, Dr. Siegel has developed a unique approach to working with people facing chronic or catastrophic illness. The disease is no longer a sentence but a redirection. His therapeutic approach is aimed at the integration of body, mind, and spirit. Dr. Siegel explores the role of hope, love, spirituality and unconscious beliefs in the healing process.

Dr. Siegel will be the guest of the Amarillo College Faculty for a brunch/discussion at the Amarillo College West Campus, 6222 West 9th, on Monday, Aug. 29 from 9-11:30 a.m.

BABY PICTURES

NEW YORK (AP) — Good baby pictures are no easy snap but knowing your child and your camera is half the battle.

Professional photographer Elin Schoen Brockman provides the following tips in Family Circle magazine:

— Have a loaded camera handy at all times in order to capture that special moment.

— Get two or more babies together for inventive shots. Or, have another person play with your child while you snap away.

— Use natural light whenever possible. Avoid backgrounds that are lighter or brighter than your subject.

— Don't shoot from too far away. The baby's face should be your focal point.

— Take photos at eye level — the best angle.

Residents' son weds in Lubbock Saturday

The Oakwood Baptist Church in Lubbock was the site of the marriage of Beth Elliott and Scott Mazurek, both of Lubbock, Saturday evening with Cleve Haley of the church officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Elliott of Lubbock and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mazurek of Hereford.

Cindy Nelson of Lubbock served as maid of honor and Adolph Knabe of Midland was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bride's sister-in-law, Linda Claborn of Lubbock; the groom's sister, Amanda Mazurek of Lubbock; and JoAnne Beatty, also of Lubbock.

Groomsmen were Bart Holder of Pyote, Texas, Tony Reinart of Lake Jackson and Bob Kitten of Lubbock. Guests were escorted by the bride's brother, Paul Claborn of Lubbock, and Dean Heinrich of Lubbock.

Flower girl was Katie Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randy Williams of Hereford, and ring bearer was Travis Claborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Claborn of Lubbock.

Candles were lit by Jeff Claborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russ Claborn. Bridal attendants were attired in peach dresses and carried peach roses accented with peach and gray ribbons and baby's breath.

Amy Claborn and Tori Mazurek served cake at the reception in the church.

The couple will make their home in Lubbock following a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

The bride, a 1983 graduate of Cooper High School, received her associates degree from Western Texas College in Snyder. She is a December candidate for graduation from Texas Tech University.

The groom, a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated from Amarillo College in 1984. He is employed at Diesel Injection Service in Lubbock.

All interested persons may attend the meeting of the Support Group for Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders at 10 a.m. Aug. 24 at the Hereford Senior Citizen Center.

The following meeting has been set from 3-5 p.m. Sept. 4 at the Center. Dr. Mary Birdsong will be presenting the program.

Barnes, Delaney vows exchanged in Ohio

Brenda Sue Barnes of Columbus, Ohio became the bride of David William Delaney of Reynoldsburg, Ohio during a mid-morning wedding ceremony Saturday in Stoneybrook United Methodist Church in Gahanna, Ohio.

The marriage was officiated by the Rev. Michael O'Connor of Fairmont United Methodist Church in Abilene and prayer was led by the Rev. Donald Harbaugh, Baptist minister of Jersey Shore, Pa.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ronald Barnes of Hereford and the late Ronald Barnes and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Delaney of Jersey Shore, Pa.

Two large sprays of dried wildflowers naturally arranged in white-washed wicker baskets were placed at the church altar and pews were marked by bows made from the same material as the bridesmaids' dresses and peach corn husk ribbons.

Serving as maid of honor was Karri Vinton of Hereford and best man was Brian Stebner of Saginaw, Mich. Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Mary Delaney of Jersey Shore, and Mrs. Brad Palches of Rockton, Ill. Groomsmen were Steve Wattawa of Milwaukee, Wis. and Brad Palches of Rockton, Ill.

Escorting guests were the bride's cousin, Scott Barnes of Gahanna, Ohio, and the groom's cousin, Mike Delaney of Jersey Shore.

The bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Barnes of Macomb, Ill., vocalized "Household of Faith", "Thy Word", and "The Wedding Prayer."

Escorted to the altar by her brother, John Eric Barnes of Hereford, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of candlelight peau de soie designed with a Sabrina neckline of re-embroidered alencon lace. It was also fashioned with long fitted sleeves that came to points over her hands and a princess-style bodice which ended at the hip line that was marked with a large flat bow. The full skirt extended into a chapel-length train.

Her floor-length veil of bridal illusion was attached to a double bow of candlelight peau de soie. She carried a garden bouquet of rubrum lilies with naturally dried wildflowers wrapped in ivory lace.

Bridal attendants were attired in sheath dresses of apricot and green print on cream colored backgrounds. They were fashioned with peplums at the hip lines and three-quarter-length sleeves.

Each carried sprays of pale apricot rosebuds surrounded by dried wildflowers and baby's breath with ivory ribbons and lace.

The bride's cousin, Joy Stephens, invited guests to register at the reception and brunch held on the church lawn.

Guests were seated at round tables covered with white linen cloths and centered with baskets of dried wildflowers.

The three-tiered pineapple buttercream cake was topped with a small bouquet of rubrum lilies with ribbon streamers. It was placed on a table covered with a white linen cloth and decorated by the bridesmaids' bouquets.

The couple will make their home in Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

The bride, a 1984 graduate of Hereford High School, is a 1988 graduate of McMurry College in Abilene. She is presently employed by Peat, Marwick and Main.

The groom, a 1984 graduate of Jersey Shore High School, served with the United States Air Force in Abilene. He is presently employed by The Limited Corp.

Out-of-town wedding guests represented Lenoir City, Tenn., Cape Coral, Fla., Jersey Shore, Pa., Macomb, Ill. and St. Simons Island, Georgia.

Hints from Heloise

WIRE COAT HANGERS

Dear Heloise: I take two wire hangers and bend the ends up on both sides.

I use one for my beads and another for my belts. I put one on each end of the closet rod. They fit over the rod and work well for me. — Mrs. Edith Stout, Wall, N.J.

SODA BOTTLE BOTTOMS

Dear Heloise: This is for mothers with small children.

I cut the bottoms off of two-liter plastic pop bottles. They make nice potato-chip, corn-chip or small cracker dishes for the kids to use while they are watching television.

They can be washed or simply thrown away. — Barbara A. Miller, Girard, Ohio

FLOUR QUESTION

Dear Heloise: I read your column in the Mountain Mail in Salida, Colo., and want to ask a question pertaining to flour.

Should flour be sifted before or after measuring it? — A Reader, Salida, Colo.

This a commonly asked question.

If the recipe states one cup sifted flour, then you should sift it first. However if the recipe states one cup flour, sifted, then the flour should be measured first.

Stretch tuna fish salad by adding diced or grated apples and celery.

INSPIRED INVENTIONS

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Inventor and civil engineer Robert Fulton (1765-1815) is best known for designing and building the first commercially successful steamboat, the Clermont.

But Fulton's other innovations included designs for improved canals and canal boats, dredging machines, a marble cutting device and machines for making rope and spinning flax.

Between 1797 and 1806, Fulton experimented with submarines and guns that fired underwater. He also designed and built a steam warship for the defense of New York harbor in the War of 1812.

Paschel, Flusche exchange vows Friday

Wedding vows were exchanged by Janet Paschel of Hereford and Darryl Flusche of Idalou Friday evening in the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Vega. Father Pat Carathers of St. Ann's Catholic Church in Canyon officiated for the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Anthony and Katherine Paschel of Route 4, Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Arnold and Joanne Flusche of Idalou.

The church was decorated by teal and mauve floral arrangements highlighted with votive candles and baby's breath made by the bride and her mother.

Rita Garrett of Knoxville, Tenn. served her sister of matron of honor and David Flusche of Idalou was his brother's best man.

The bride's sisters, Barbara Paschel of Euless and Margaret Schoenenberger of Hereford, and the groom's sister, Diane Bunting of Lexington, Ky., were bridesmaids. Groomsmen included the groom's brother-in-law, Dwain Bunting of Lexington, Ky., and the bride's brothers, Ralph Paschel and Louis Paschel, both of Hereford.

Escorting guests were Chris Hoyt, Scott Robinson and Robert Gist, all of Canyon.

Junior bridesmaid was the bride's niece, Sara Paschel of Dalhart, and flower girl was Denise Paschel of Dalhart, daughter of Richard and Arlene Paschel. Ring bearer was Brent Schoenenberger, son of Albert and Margaret Schoenenberger of Hereford.

Kim Wieck, Mark Hodge and Keith Brown, accompanied by organist, Susie Dolle of Canyon, vocalized "Where There Is Love", "You're the Inspiration", "Hail Mary, Gentle Woman", "One Bread One Body", and "Unity Candle Song."

Serving as Acolytes were Karl Schoenenberger of Hereford, the bride's nephew, and Keith Brorman of Vega, the bride's cousin. Readers were Vince Homer and Teresa Carter, both of Canyon.

Gift bearers included the bride's nephews, Nicholas Paschel and Ryan Schoenenberger, both of Hereford, and Karen Paschel of Dalhart, the bride's niece.

Eucharistic Ministers were Jennifer Dolle of Canyon; the bride's aunt, Delores Brorman of Vega; and the bride's father, Anthony Paschel.

Presented in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white formal-length gown of sheer imported crystalline and schiffli embroidery. It was designed with a sweetheart neckline and the molded bodice, decorated with hand-beaded schiffli lace over crystalline, dipped to points in the front and back forming a basque waist. The short puffed sleeves were adorned with beaded lace appliques and the full shirred skirt was enhanced by a wide flounce.

The fingertip-length bridal veil was attached to a tiara highlighted with lace and encrusted with pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses with accents of mauve and teal, and white, teal and burgundy ribbon streamers made by the bride. Bridal attendants wore teal taffeta full-length gowns fashioned with rounded necklines, puffed sleeves, and double V-shape peplums with bows marking the V-shape backs. They carried mauve and burgundy flowers with baby's breath accented with white, burgundy and mauve ribbons made by the bride and her mother.

The reception was held in the church parish hall.

The bride's cousin, Carol Sharber of Amarillo served the bride's cake and the groom's cake was served by Andra Schlabs of Hereford. Punch and coffee were poured by Sue Rankins of Lubbock and the groom's cousin, Karla Flusche of Idalou.

The bride's table held the three-tiered white bride's cake, trimmed with mauve silk flowers and topped with a gold cross, and a punch service. Silver appointments were used on the groom's table which featured a German chocolate cake.

The couple will make their home in Lubbock following a wedding trip to San Antonio.

The bride received her masters of business education this year from West Texas State University where she was a sponsor for the WTSU Leadership Board and program advisor for Student Activities Council. She plans to teach in the Frenship Independent School District in the fall.

The groom received his bachelor of science degree in education this year from WTSU where he was named 1988 WTSU Man of the Year and served as resident assistant at Guenther Hall. He also plans to teach in Frenship this fall.

HUMAN INTEGRITY
By BOB WEAR

Human integrity is human 'wholeness', human 'completeness', human 'soundness', human 'uprightness'. This is what we need, this is involved in all of the concern, apprehension, and worry of our time. Of course, most of the discussion, public and private, is concerned with 'symptoms', and the real problem is seldom mentioned.

The real problem is the fragmentation of human integrity, in private life and in public life. Until and unless there is a general restoration of 'human integrity', there will be no significant change in the conditions about which all of us are concerned all of the time.

All of the talk about personal freedom, I'll do as I please, along with the disrespect of established laws and standards, must be given some very careful thought. It is very plain that the widespread spirit of permissiveness is 'backfiring'. This spirit has never worked for human good, and never will.

There are too many who think that moral standards belong to some long-dead past. Historically, the greatest loss experienced by the people of the earth has been caused by immorality, disregard of time-tested standards of human conduct, and a kind of self-consuming carelessness. The concept of 'human integrity' has been forgotten or deliberately discarded.

You know the symptoms. You read about them, and hear them discussed on the daily news report. They help create the need for higher taxes, they help increase the national debt, and, in fact, they damage to a great degree every facet of our individual life and our national life. There is no way to beat the Divine law, "Righteousness exalts a nation, but sin is a reproach (disgrace) to any people."

There is no quick solution, no easy way. We must work for restoration of time-tested moral standards; for wholesome self-control; for the wise restraints that can preserve our personal freedom; for the time-honored value system in which 'human integrity' is the heart. If we care enough, and if we honestly desire to succeed, we can do it.

Kick-off luncheon set

In less than three weeks, a luncheon for all local United Way volunteers and civic club leaders will be held Sept. 7 to kick-off the 1988-89 Deaf Smith County UW campaign drive Sept. 12-Oct. 24. This year's goal has been set at $123,500 with the money to be used to help fund 12 local agencies. Bill Bankston, Buddy Peeler and Donna West discuss the luncheon and campaign drive which is being co-chaired by June Owens and Margaret Bell.

Birthday celebration held recently for local resident

Edith Sheppard, who will be 90 years of age Monday, Aug. 22, celebrated her birthday recently with family members at a lunch and reception in the Central Church of Christ fellowship hall.

The party was hosted by her three daughters, Eris Pulliam of Hereford, Emmagene Calaway of Bovina and Audine Wells of Midland.

The honoree was born in Sanger, Texas and moved with her family to Hollene, N.M. in 1906. She married Charles Sheppard on May 6, 1917, at Hollene. The couple moved to Hereford in 1945 where they purchased the Chocolate Shop. Mrs. Sheppard has been a resident of Hereford for 43 years and is a member of the Central Church of Christ and Hereford Senior Citizens. She has seven grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren; and 10 great-great-grandchildren.

Fifty-eight family members attended the birthday celebration representing New York City, N.Y., Millsboro, Del., Baxter Springs, Kan., Santa Fe, N.M., Midland, Lubbock, Muleshoe, Bovina, and Hereford.

KEEPING TRIM

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Overweight teenagers shouldn't mix snacks and television, says University of Rochester nurse Audrey Braunschweig, who works with overweight adolescents.

"People are usually not aware of how much snack food they consume while watching television," says Braunschweig. "Snacking becomes a reflex action based on habit and not on a real need to satisfy hunger."

If you get hungry between meals, she says, try fruit or unsalted popcorn. "After your hunger is satisfied, watch TV or, better yet, get some exercise. If you snack while watching TV, the program's over before you know it and the food's gone."

Cheerleaders return home

New routines, chants and dance steps were learned by the Hereford High School junior varsity cheerleaders when they attended cheerleader camp Aug. 1-5 at Southern Methodist University in Dallas with their sponsor, Gail George. The girls won five blue ribbons for superior performances and received the squad achieve-

Family Room and Master Bedroom Boast Soaring Sloped Ceilings

CLASSIC EXAMPLE OF TRADITIONAL ARCHITECTURE

By W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

Although this plan is a traditional design, its facade does include a European flair. A wide two-story foyer leaves view to second floor by open rail stair. The full formal living and dining rooms are isolated to the left but still form the perfect part for traffic flow. A small bedroom is shown for the first floor and it has private access to the full first floor bath. The kitchen is uniquely formed to allow the housewife to view the family room as well as the breakfast room. It includes good cabinet and work area and a bonus pantry is adjacent. The breakfast room is not entirely separated from the family room and the family room has access to covered walk for the rear entry garage. This plan will be majestic even on a narrow lot.

There are three bedrooms upstairs; the master including a luxury bath and large walk-in closet. A central full bath services the remaining two bedrooms. Closets are plentiful throughout.

The exterior is constructed of stucco, enhanced by ornate windows and window trim, hip and gable roof design, corner quoins and a recessed entry with side lighted door. This is a computer plan. Some changes may be made from the plan stored in the CADD memory at less cost to you. Direct inquiries about CADD plan changes to the address below.

The plan is number 2742. It includes 2,707 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements and include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Q. — I am working on a stainless steel project. I want to bring the steel to a high polish. Is there any special sandpaper that will work well on this metal?

A. — Emery paper once was considered ideal for metal, but aluminum oxide has special properties that make it ideal for stainless steel.

Q. — Some of the clapboard on the side of our house has started to deteriorate. Can the bad boards be removed or must an entire wall be done at the same time?

A. — No need to remove any clapboards still in good shape. Your biggest problem, when removing damaged pieces of wood, is to be extra careful so as not to dig into the building paper or board beneath the top pieces.

Q. — I had a flower vase on a coffee table for several months. I did not realize there was a leak in the vase.

As a result, there is a deep black ring on the wooden surface. Can this be treated without removing the entire table top finish?

A. — Afraid not. No matter the type of finish, a black spot usually means the water has penetrated deeply. The only solution is to refinish the top completely.

FOUR THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT SECURITY CHECKING

1. It won't nickel-and-dime you to death. Because there's no per-check charge. Ever.
2. There's no service charge if you keep just $200 in your account. And even if you fall below the minimum, the fee's only $4.00.
3. You can get a free Security PULSE card to use in thousands of machines nationwide without ever paying a transaction fee.
4. It just about pays for itself because every dollar in your account earns interest.

So you've been all over town, looking for the best checking account, relax. You just found it.

On the House

Properly installing resilient floor tiles requires that the center of the room be located first. Laying the tile without taking this step, which is sometimes done by novice do-it-yourselfers, produces a hit-or-miss result. If you miss, the tiles will not be lined up correctly.

Use the professional way of locating the room center. Coat a string with ordinary chalk or buy one already chalked. Hardware stores and home centers usually sell them. When that has been done, mark the centers of the two end walls of the room. Ignore irregularities of contour. Drive two nails into the floor just a bit, so that they extend only about an inch above the surface. Tie the chalked string on to the nails so that you have a taut line. If it is tight enough, it will leave a chalk mark on the floor as you snap it with your fingers. Do it more than once if necessary to get a clear line.

Repeat the procedure on the two opposite walls. Now you have two chalked lines that cross each other. The spot where they cross is the center of the room for your purposes. To be certain you have done everything right, make a test. Measure four feet from the center along one line and make a dot. Do the same toward the opposite wall and make another dot. The third time measure three feet from the center along a line going towards an end wall. Again make a dot. When you measure the distance between dots one and three, and between dots two and three, each should be five feet. If they are, go ahead with the job. If they aren't, you have made a mistake somewhere and must find out what it is before you proceed.

Your next move is to place some uncermented tiles on the floor, starting at the center and going towards one wall. Do the same going towards a wall in another direction, which leaves the uncermented tiles at right angles. Your objective is to see you leave similar borders at the walls. If not, make the necessary adjustments. You are looking for borders that will be more than two or three inches. This not only will assure you the tiles will have even borders but that they will be easier to cut and put in place. Without the method, which is a lot easier done than said, you might wind up with a large border on one side and a narrow, unworkable border opposite it. With cemented tiles, you leave the backing on during this procedure.

If the floor is in bad shape, cover it with underlayment before laying the tiles. This can be either plywood or hardboard. Get the 4-by-4 size, since it is much easier to handle than the standard 4-by-8 sheets. Ask your dealer to sell you the special kind of nails required for the installation of the underlayment. The nails should be spaced about six inches apart, with about 1-16th of an inch between the underlayment material. Whether or not you use underlayment, be certain all loose boards are nailed down and all loose nails taken out and replaced.

Always follow the manufacturer's recommendations about whether the tile can be laid on floors below grade. If, for example, you are contemplating installing resilient floor tiles in a basement. Get that straight with the dealer before you purchase the tile. This is especially important if your basement floor is concrete in contact with soil. The kind of adhesive you need for the particular kind of tile you buy will determine whether the floor must be rolled. Buy your adhesive where you buy the tile and you will be sure of getting the right type.

Summer is time for moving

Summer is peak moving season for Americans, according to statistics gathered by the American Movers Conference.

The association found that over 46 million people or 20 percent of the population changed their address last year. About two-thirds of all moves take place between the Memorial Day and Labor Day weekends and over 40 percent involve long distances.

Those contemplating a move or finding themselves in new quarters may well be facing the quandary of how to make a house a home in a short period of time and how to do that without spending a great deal of extra money.

Some interior designers were asked to offer suggestions to help Americans out of their difficulties and the group came up with some useful tips.

For example, Scottsdale, Arizona-based Elaine Ryan (who relocated from the New York area some years ago) advised relying on paint.

"Paint the entrance to your new home in the deepest tone of the color you love best. This makes the new place your own in a special way," she said.

Another of Ryan's tips is to paint at least two walls and the ceiling of the living room in a strong color you like. Place the largest piece of furniture you have against one of the colored walls, thus creating an instant focal point.

Often the biggest disappointment with new quarters is that they contain some large decoration you simply can't abide. Maybe it's olive green wall-to-wall carpeting or a wallpaper you know you'll never be happy with.

While awaiting the time (and money) to change it, try camouflage first. If you hate the carpet or other flooring and the color doesn't go with what you have, cover the offending floor with small rugs in every size. Orientals and area rugs of any design are fine together. Put the largest rug in front of the sofa or under the dining table. Work from the largest out to the rest of the carpeted floors. But keep at least 10 inches of space between the different rugs.

Cover walls that are bad or the wrong color or merely anonymous with collections, pictures of every size and all types of frames. You can frame photos, memorabilia, children's art work, interesting fabric scraps. You can simply hang without framing plates, fiber pieces, antique advertising signs, architectural elements.

Begin your wall arrangements about six inches from the ceiling with the largest item in the center of the group, moving out and down as you go. If the room is small, it will be dramatized. If large, you will have warmed it up considerably. You will also have hidden most of the color or pattern you don't like.

Gain a fresh perspective in a new place by moving your furniture and accessories around so they are in a different room from the last place.

Bedroom chests, mirrors and bedside tables can go into the foyer or living room.

One quick way to give furniture a whole new look is to camouflage it. Cover a side table with fabric and use as a bedside table, suggests Peter O'Hayre, a showroom and home furnishings catalogue stylist.

If you look carefully in magazines and catalogues you'll find that bedroom furniture is rarely a matched set. The large case pieces may match but the bed is often distinctive. It may be brass, white metal, wicker, upholstered or painted. The bed tables may not match the rest of the furniture or each other. A fabric-skirted table adds to the softness that is appropriate in a bedroom. Furthermore, the skirted table is a good place to store boxes or extra pillows or blankets if you are short, on closet space.

Another low-cost and easily executed idea that works very well in any room is to purchase a floor canister light with a low wattage bulb - 50 watts - suggests Flo Slezak, a photographer for Grignon Studios in Chicago.

The lamp can be hidden behind a table, chest or plant and can be plugged in on a timer so when you arrive home it is softly lit. The effect to strive for is a room bathed in light with soft shadows. Avoid fluorescent lights and overhead fixtures which usually impart a cold hard light with hard shadows.

If moving is likely to be a way of life for a while, buy new pieces that are adaptable to many situations.

Some especially useful pieces: two or three panel screens; two-drawer low chests; a rocking chair; upholstered dining chairs that in a pinch can be easy chairs; dining sets with chairs on casters; modular seating, and modular storage components.

A floor or table easel folds flat for portability and gives instant importance to a picture that is placed on it, even if it is only a framed poster. It becomes a treasure when displayed in this manner, says Ryan.

Make a habit of collecting lengths of fabric which can be used for bedspreads, table covers, pillow square coverings, and put on velcro strips to line walls that are unappealing in color or pattern.

New products

THE PRODUCT - A liquid plastic interior clear finish with a new semi-gloss sheen.

Manufacturer's claim - That this semi-gloss sheen is for do-it-yourselfers who want to get a hand-rubbed "European" finish...that the liquid plastic finish per se is the original film-building polyurethane coating...that it is available in gallon, quart, pint and half-pint sizes, as well as the convenient 11.25-ounce aerosol spray...and that it is easy to apply, dries fast and is extremely durable.

THE PRODUCT - A paint roller with a built-in handle that holds enough paint to cover about 70 square feet.

Manufacturer's claim - That this roller provides a fast and easy way to handle all types of latex painting without a messy roller tray...that the built-in 22-inch handle loads like a syringe...that it has a snap-in-place paint shield...and that it provides fast and easy, splatter-free rolling.

THE PRODUCT - Three new hot melt adhesives for use in glue guns.

Manufacturer's claim - That one is a weatherstrip clear sealer for sealing doors and windows against cold air and drafts, yet peels off to allow easy reopening...that one is a slow-set adhesive for use on wood or other porous materials, allowing users an extra 90 seconds on complex or larger gluing projects so that surfaces to be glued can be positioned properly...and that the third is especially designed for craft projects, flower arranging and the bonding of fabrics, paper goods and plastics and is available in green, red and brown.

410 DOUGLAS - Enjoy the quietness of a Cul De Sac, plus a custom built home that features a formal living-dining room with built-in hutch, rock fireplace in den with a heatolator tied to central heat for efficiency - Call Mark.

Liza Minelli: A show business survivor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a community where "survivor" is an over-worked word, Liza Minelli wears the designation with honor.

She has been through it all: growing up in the shadow of her tempestuous mother, Judy Garland; dancing on the stage of New York's hallowed Palace theater at 7 while her mother sang "Swanee"; dropping out of high school for the sake of show business; watching her mother fall into the deadly spiral of booze and drugs.

There were triumphs as well. She won a Tony award in 1965 for "Flora, the Red Menace." On television, her "Liza With a Z" brought a coveted Emmy in 1973, and in films she won an Academy Award for best actress for her portrayal of Sally Bowles in "Cabaret."

There also were two broken marriages to entertainer Peter Allen and actor-producer Jack Haley, Jr., and an addiction to alcohol and drugs that resulted in treatment at the Betty Ford Center in Rancho Mirage, Calif., in 1984. But she survived these reverses; today she's married to artist Mark Gero and thriving professionally.

She's doing concerts, TV specials and a tour with Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr., subbing for the ailing Dean Martin.

Minnelli, whose father was director Vincente Minnelli, is also back in movies. Her return after a lapse of a few years was inauspicious: the short-lived "Rent-a-Cop" with Burt Reynolds. She is starring again with Dudley Moore in "Arthur 2: On the Rocks," which is having a rough time recapturing the gaiety of 1981's original comedy hit.

"At first I was worried because the writer and director of the first film was Steve Gordon and he died, much to all of our sorrow," she said.

"I didn't think anyone could recapture those characters, but I think Andy Breckman did a wonderful job. He seemed to have so much affection for the original movie that he caught all the characters."

In "Arthur 2," Moore again portrays a prank-playing multimillionaire who is seldom without a drink in his hand. Makes you wonder why his wife (Minnelli) sticks with him.

"She loves him," Minnelli said. "He's her husband, and she'll do anything to defend him and don't anyone say anything bad about him."

"Did you ever see the 'Thin Man' series? I went back and looked at them. I learned a lot from Myrna Loy, and the way she portrayed the wife (of William Powell). She was completely supportive ... That's how I tried to play Linda.

"Of course some day Arthur has to grow up. That's why she leaves him. Sometimes it takes that kind of a shock in people's lives to make them change."

Some critics have complained that Moore's boozing is no longer funny in this era of alcoholism awareness.

Minnelli had this response: "We think back on W.C. Fields and wonderful actors who have played classic American drunks. I think Dudley created an entirely new character in Arthur; he's so sweet and he tries to be good."

Delany insists 'China Beach' real

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dana Delany insists that "China Beach," the new series about the Vietnam War, is based on real life.

Delany stars as Nurse Colleen McMurphy, who is assigned to a medical evacuation center located at China Beach, near Da Nang in Vietnam. It's also the site of a recreation facility for American troops.

The series, which made its bow on ABC in April, was created by writer-producer John Sacret Young and William Broyles Jr., a Marine officer in Vietnam and a former Newsweek editor.

Some people who were in Vietnam, either in the service or as news correspondents, have criticized the show, saying they never saw anything like "China Beach."

Delany disagrees. "Broyles was in Vietnam and our stories are all based on things that happened," she says. "One of our writers was a radio operator there."

Delany says she's done some research on her own about Vietnam and hopes to go there this Christmas. An uncle, Kevin Delany, was the head of ABC News in Vietnam and was evacuated on one of the last helicopters out of Saigon before the fall of the city.

"China Beach" focuses on the women in Vietnam. Chloe Webb, who will not be back next season as a regular, portrays USO singer Laurette Barber and Nan Woods is Red Cross worker Cherry White.

"One of the criticisms has been directed against the Red Cross girl, that the men in the show put her on a pedestal," Delany says. "In drama you need archetypes. Cherry White was the innocent, although by the sixth show she was no longer innocent. And the men were very protective."

Although only the two-hour pilot and six episodes were made of "China Beach," it has become one of the most popular shows on ABC and one of the most critically acclaimed.

Delany is just back from a visit to Italy, where her sister is living temporarily. She also went to the Cannes film festival for the showing of "Patty," a new film about the kidnapping of Patricia Hearst on Feb. 4, 1974, by the Symbionese Liberation Army. She plays Angela Attwood, a member of the SLA who was killed in the Watts shoot-out.

"I was in prep school at Phillips Andover Academy when she was kidnapped," she says. "A friend of mine at Andover had known Patty. I saved a Time magazine story about her. Patty and her husband came to Cannes for the screening. The movie, due out in August, is based on her book and is very favorable to her."

Delany worked on "Patty" at the same time as the "China Beach" pilot. She also will be seen soon in "Moon Over Parador," a comedy made in Brazil which stars Richard Dreyfuss and Raul Julia. Dreyfuss plays an American actor forced to assume the role of a Latin American dictator who has died suddenly. Julia is the power behind the scenes. Delany plays an actress in the movie Dreyfuss was working on.

"Moon Over Parador" was her second movie in Brazil. She also did "When the River Runs Black" with Charles Durning.

Delany grew up in New York City and attended Wesleyan University. After college, she worked in New York for seven years, appearing in the soap operas "Love of Life" and "As The World Turns" and the off-Broadway production of "Bloodmoon." She moved to the West with the play and caught the eye of producer-actor James Keach. She was cast as Keith Carradine's girlfriend in the TV movie "A Winner Never Quits."

She was Tom Selleck's girlfriend in "Magnum, P.I." (she turned down his proposal of marriage) and Bruce Willis' girlfriend in "Moonlighting." She was also Peter Horton's girlfriend in ABC's "thirtysomething."

Her only other series was a brief stint in NBC's "Sweet Surrender."

'Midnight Run' twists and turns

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

From "It Happened One Night" to "Planes, Trains and Automobiles," the road picture has been a Hollywood fixture. So you think all the freshness has gone? Wrong. Here comes "Midnight Run," with more twists and turns and better scenery than Route 66.

What elevates "Midnight Run" out of the ordinary is an ingenious, witty script by George Gallo, slam-bang direction by Martin Brest and a superior cast, headed by Robert DeNiro and Charles Grodin.

DeNiro is not exactly a private investigator. He's a bounty hunter from Los Angeles, an ex-cop reduced to tracking down deadbeats and bringing them to justice. Lawfully or otherwise, it doesn't matter. Bailbondsmen Joe Pantoliano gives him a daunting assignment: bring back an accountant, Charles Grodin, who is in danger of skipping out on his huge bail.

Grodin is not just any accountant. He embezzled $15 million from a Las Vegas crime boss (Dennis Farina), giving the fortune to charity. All DeNiro has to do is locate his quarry in New York and return him to Los Angeles in five days. Easy? Not when Grodin is also wanted by the FBI and is targeted for execution by Farina, and claims he is unable to fly.
