Expectations for boys, girls differ in U.S. schools

WASHINGTON (AP) - Boys and girls face differing expectations whether cheerleading, playing sports or learning computers. But they also differ in the quality and quantity of public schooling they receive, a study suggests.

The report released Tuesday said girls and boys enter public schools roughly equal in measured ability but girls emerge 12 years later behind their male classmates in math, sciences and even self-esteem.

Boys receive more attention from their teachers and also are more likely to receive college scholarships than girls with equal or slightly better grades, the report said.

"The implications of the report's findings are enormous," said Alice McKee, president of American Association of University Women Educational Foundation.

"It presents compelling evidence that girls are not receiving the same quality, or even quantity, of education as their brothers."

The self-esteem of girls dropped nearly 40 percent between elementary school and high school, compared with a 20 percent decrease for boys, according to a 1990 nationwide survey.

When broken down by race, there are sharp differences in girls' self-esteem, the report said. Among elementary school girls, 55 percent of white girls, 65 percent of black girls and 68 percent of Hispanic girls reported being "happy as I am."

But in high school, agreement with the statement came from only 22 percent of the white girls and 30 percent of the Hispanic girls, compared with 58 percent of the black girls.

The Wellesley College Center for Research on Women used a $100,000 grant to develop the report after compiling a large body of material on the subject of girls in school, including a 1990 nationwide survey of 3,000 children.

Key findings were:

-Girls receive significantly less attention from classroom teachers than do boys. Officials said research showed teachers listened when boys in elementary and middle school called out answers but admonished girls to "raise your hand if you want to speak."

-The average number of math credits of male high school students increased from 2.61 to 3.04 from 1982 to 1987. But the average increase for female students was from 2.46 to 2.93.

-In science and computer science, male high school students had credit increases of 2.25 to 2.69, compared with 2.13 to 2.57 for girls.

-When scholarships are given based on the Scholastic Aptitude Test scores, boys are more apt to receive scholarships than are girls who get equal or slightly better high school grades.

The report was praised by the National Coalition of Girls' Schools, which said "girls have been shown again and again to be treated as second-class citizens academically in coed learning environments."

The group of 57 public and private all-girls' schools said studies have shown that girls who attend all-girls' schools break conventional stereotypes and outperform those in traditional coed environments.

A big breakthrough at Northwest School

Students at Northwest Primary School in Hereford enjoy a game of "Red Rover" at the school playground. Children (and adults) have been enjoying the 60-degree weather this week.

Charges pending in thefts

Charges of theft over $20,000 are pending against a Deaf Smith County woman after she apparently failed to live up to a repayment agreement.

Hereford police will present their case against Esmeralda Rodriguez, 25, to Deaf Smith County District Attorney Roland Saul.

Rodriguez is accused of stealing $21,600 from Doak's Thriftway in Hereford over 14 months from 1989 through May 12, 1991. According to an official report, former store owner Doak Porter had employed a private investigator to search for leads to missing money. The report states the private investigator was able to trace the missing money through cash register receipts.

The report states that Porter confronted the employee, who gave a voluntary statement that she had taken the money. Rodriguez set up a plan to repay the money to Porter.

Porter contacted police Tuesday after Rodriguez had not made a payment since December 2.

Police called Rodriguez to the police station. Before she came to the station, she made a $100 payment to Porter, making the total $1,300 that she had repaid Porter in seven payments.

Porter told police that despite the payment Tuesday, he wished to file theft charges against the woman. He gave police her handwritten statement admitting the theft and a receipt book showing the seven payments.

Rodriguez signed a statement Tuesday acknowledging her rights and admitting the thefts.

Bush officially joins race for re-election

WASHINGTON (AP) - And now, the candidate who needs no introduction.

He's the one in a 17-car motorcade, surrounded by squinty-eyed bodyguards. He's the one with his unique entrance music, "Hail to the Chief." The one with the blue, white and silver jumbo jet and his own limousine waiting wherever he might be.

George Bush, who's made no secret that he wants a second term, could afford to wait until today to proclaim his candidacy, first in Washington and then in Concord, N.H.

Never mind the Texas fund-raiser in October, or his telling an interviewer last month "I will do what I have to do to be reelected," or that he's already raised more than $11 million and put his name on the ballot in 26 states.

Even on Day One of his campaign, if the recognition of name were the game, the rest of the pack hasn't taken the field. Candidate George Bush is also President George Bush and there's no divorcing the two.

It is fact as well as disadvantage that Bush has to answer for the country's miserable economy. It is Bush who's been plagued by health problems that while explained away, still present nagging doubt. It is Bush who zoomed in popularity when America marched against Saddam Hussein, only to see it fade with an unfinished victory.

Being president is also an advantage in a campaign when there are five Democrats and a Republican arrayed against him, not to mention David Duke and other minor candidates.

While Paul Tsongas became the first announced candidate last April 30, Bush was proclaiming Older Americans Month. On Oct. 21, as Jerry Brown became a contender, Bush was talking national security inside the White House.

When Patrick J. Buchanan, his only Republican challenger in New Hampshire, entered the fray on Dec. 10, Bush had just returned from Pearl Harbor, where he commemorated the 50th anniversary of the Japanese attack.

The others have tramped New Hampshire to win, place or show, but Bush so far has devoted only a single day and a total of six stops to the state. The president-candidate has said he's ready for a dog-eat-dog fight to keep the job he's had more than three years. Early in his tenure, Bush was asked by schoolchildren how he liked it.

"Sometimes it feels good and sometimes it feels less good," he said.

Prez prodding tax cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - Many Americans can expect their taxes to go up - whether under President Bush's economic recovery plan or through proposals being devised by congressional Democrats.

Bush is prodding Congress to quickly enact a cut in the capital gains tax and other elements of his economic plan, even if it means delaying his proposed income tax break for families with dependent children.

But his overall package, which besides capital gains includes an increased exemption for children and a new credit for some home buyers, would be financed in part by tax increases exceeding $21 billion over the next five years.

The House Ways and Means Committee begins work on the fiscal 1993 budget today. Democrats are ready with their own set of priorities, highlighted by a temporary tax break of up to $200 per worker. It would be financed by raising taxes on wealthy Americans.

Bush muddied the debate on Tuesday by urging Congress to pass seven parts of his plan by March 20 and delay the rest of his program until the immediate economic crisis is overcome.

The seven provisions, including capital gains, a credit of up to $5,000 for some home buyers and special tax relief for real estate professionals "will get this country back to work," Bush said.

"We've got a short-term set of proposals that would be the best medicine for this economy," the president said.

Other tax proposals, including a $500-per-child increase in the personal exemption, can be considered later, Bush told Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee.

Democrats were quick to point out that Bush, in demanding those incentives, was de-emphasizing the most visible "middle class" provision in his tax plan: the $500-per-child increase in the $2,300 personal exemption. His original bill would make that change effective Oct. 1.

In his meeting with the GOP lawmakers, the president repeated a warning against raising income tax rates.

But the president's own long-range tax program would raise taxes on a variety of individuals and businesses - though not income-tax rates. Among the losers and the five-year cost:

-Two million state and local government employees hired before April 1, 1986, would be required to pay the 1.45 percent tax that finances Medicare hospital insurance. Cost: $8 billion.

-An estimated 100,000 operators of diesel-powered recreational boats would begin paying the 20.1-cent-a-gallon tax on diesel fuel. The $200 million would finance repeal of the luxury tax on yachts.

-Nearly 1,000 credit unions with assets over $50 million and 32 million members would be subject to income tax. $2 billion.

-Local calls on coin-operated phones would be subject to the 3 percent telephone tax. About $500 million.

-Many brokers would be required to change their method of valuing securities held for sale to customers.

Two sentenced to prison terms

Two defendants have been sentenced to terms in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division after pleading guilty in 222nd District Court to charges of tampering with government records.

Martha Ruth Cuellar Cardona received an eight-year sentence from Judge David Wesley Gulley when she appeared in court Monday to plead guilty to the charge.

Samuel Jackson entered his guilty plea to the charge Tuesday. He also was assessed eight years in TDCJ-ID.

In another case heard Monday, Alejandro Torres Sermino pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of theft under $750, reduced from the original felony charge of theft by receiving stolen property.

Sermino was sentenced to a year in Deaf Smith County Jail, probated for two years, fined $2,000 and ordered to perform 80 hours of community service.

TDCJ delays center choices

HUNTSVILLE--The Texas Department of Criminal Justice and the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse have delayed indefinitely the decision on how many substance abuse treatment centers the state will build this year.

The decision originally was to be made Monday but now has been delayed until at least early March, said TDCJ official David Nunnelee.

Sixty-three communities across the state submitted proposals last month for state prison facilities, including 12,000 beds for substance abuse treatment.

Nunnelee said the delay was caused, in part, by the fact that many of the TDCJ's health services representatives are currently on the road studying potential sites. They will wrap up their site visits by the end of February, he said, and review the information once they return to Huntsville.

Congress asks GAO study of 'ad' grants

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas congressman Dick Armey is asking Congress to kill an Agriculture Department program that awards millions of dollars in advertising grants to giant food companies.

"Even General Mills, home of the famous Betty Crocker and one of the largest food processors in the world, gets money under the MPP," the Republican told House members as he began his fight to scrap the Market Promotion Program.

Six other lawmakers, meanwhile, have requested an investigation into whether foreign-owned firms are abusing farm export programs, including the promotion program.

Under MPP, the Agriculture Department awards $200 million a year to industry associations and companies to promote U.S. food and farm products abroad.

Millions of dollars have gone to giant food companies to advertise their brands. Other grants have been awarded to bourbon distillers, chocolate and wine makers and tobacco farmers.

"Basically, taxpayers are being asked to pay McDonald's, Jim Beam's and M&M's advertising budgets with their hard-earned money," Armey said. "I've said it before and I'll say it again, this is corporate welfare of the worst kind."

Supporters say the program has boosted exports and created jobs, but Armey said taxpayers are merely subsidizing common-sense business practices.

"The federal government should not have to bribe corporations into undertaking sound business practices," Armey said Tuesday. "What next, do we cut checks to companies that remember to lock the doors at night?"

Roger Runnigen, a spokesman for Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan, said that for every $1 spent under the program, sales of U.S. farm products increase by $2 to $7.

Every $200 million in spending generates $400 million to $1.4 billion in agricultural exports and translates into approximately 11,000 to 38,000 jobs.

He noted that Congress requires USDA to award grants to companies and associations that qualify. McDonald's, he said, qualifies.

The other lawmakers requested a congressional investigation into whether foreign firms are abusing the program, as well as the $1.2 billion-a-year Export Enhancement Program, or EEP.

Under EEP, international grain traders are awarded bonuses to cover the costs of selling U.S. farm products at a lower world price in overseas markets.

In a letter requesting the General Accounting Office investigation, the lawmakers say the participation of foreign corporations in these programs raises questions about potential abuse.

Indictment names former speaker

Mutscher charged in bogus land development deal

HOUSTON (AP) - A federal grand jury has indicted former Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher in connection to bogus land development schemes that cost investors nearly $1.5 million, a newspaper reported today.

The 14-count indictment, which was unsealed Tuesday, charged Mutscher and three others with one count of conspiracy, eight counts of mail fraud, three counts of money laundering and one count of illegally transporting securities across state lines.

The indictment also names Robert P. Renner, Jan I. Renner and Rohini Divecha.

The Renners co-founded Jarenco Investments of Texas Inc. Robert Renner served as the company's president and Jan Renner, his wife at the time, was Jarenco's vice president and treasurer. Divecha was the director of financial planning for the company and acted as a salesman for the investments.

The indictment charges that Jarenco raised money from about 100 investors in late 1985 and early 1986. The property was never developed and the indictment alleges that Mutscher used the money to pay himself $717,000.

The rest of the money was allegedly used to pay $309,500 to the Renners and an additional $132,000 to Divecha.

If convicted on all 14 counts, Mutscher and Robert Renner could face up to 95 years in prison. Jan Renner and Divecha could be sentenced to 90 years if convicted on all counts.

Neither Mutscher nor his attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, could be reached for comment. Attempts to reach Jan Renner also were unsuccessful.

Robert Renner is being held in the Harris County jail.

David Berg, Divecha's attorney, said evidence will show that his client did nothing wrong in selling the Jarenco investments. He said Divecha, an instructor at San Jacinto

College, and members of her family also invested and lost money in the Jarenco deals.

"She is anxious to get her story out, to put the evidence on the table," Berg told the Houston Chronicle.

The FBI launched an investigation almost four years ago after the land development ventures failed and the investors began to allege they were defrauded by Mutscher and Jarenco.

A group of 42 investors filed a lawsuit in 1988 in an unsuccessful attempt to recover more than $1.2 million from Mutscher and the others.

Robert Renner disappeared in early 1987 after the collapse of Jarenco.

FBI agents had been searching for Renner since the indictment was returned Oct. 25.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Lenoir said Renner was arrested Tuesday afternoon at a Houston residence.

Lenoir said Mutscher and the other defendants are expected to surrender and appear today before U.S. Magistrate George Kelt.

The indictment charges that Jarenco, acting with Mutscher, raised money to finance the development of a 33-acre tract of land in La Grange and a 154-acre parcel in Brenham. Both tracts were owned by Mutscher.

Investors were falsely told their money was secured by liens taken out on the property and were further guaranteed by Mutscher's personal wealth, the indictment alleges. The indictment also charges that investors were not told about existing liens on the property.

After the projects failed, the land was seized by financial institutions holding liens superior to those of the investors.

Mutscher, House speaker in the late 1960s and early 1970s, was convicted of conspiracy in 1972 in the Sharpstown Bank scandal. He completed four years of probation in 1976 and served 14 years as county judge of Washington County until his defeat in 1990.

Students at Shirley School in Hereford have done projects on ancient Egypt for Bernice Rodriguez' sixth grade Social Studies classes. Students who prepared projects included, from left, Paul Knight, Lorena Hernandez, Monica Reyes, Ulises Tabares, Sarah Chavez and Elizabeth Cooper. Many other students also worked on projects, on display in the school library.

Presidio sheriff pleads guilty in federal court to drug charge

DALLAS (AP) - Suspended Presidio County Sheriff Rick Thompson, arrested in connection with the seizure of more than a ton of cocaine, faces up to life in prison after pleading guilty to a conspiracy charge.

Sentencing was scheduled for April 17 by U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer, who dismissed three other charges against Thompson.

Thompson faces a possible prison sentence of 10 years to life and a fine of up to $4 million for conspiracy to import and cause to be imported more than five kilograms of cocaine from Mexico, said Tom Beery, a federal prosecutor.

Thompson will resign his position in the wake of his guilty plea, said Barry Crutchfield, his attorney.

"The dangers are just too great under federal sentencing guidelines. Therefore, we didn't want to go to trial," Crutchfield said, adding that his client chose to plead guilty to one of four charges instead. "He could die in prison."

"The prosecution's case had merit and demerit," he said. "They had some weaknesses as well as strengths."

The sheriff, wearing a white hat, left court with his wife, Barbara, holding his arm.

"I have no comment," Thompson told The Associated Press after his appearance.

Crutchfield said Thompson was abused by unidentified individuals, and became a victim of government prosecution. But the attorney would not elaborate, citing a sealed plea-bargain agreement.

Thompson, 45, ended a four-week stay in jail Monday by posting a $5,000 bail bond set by Buchmeyer. The judge set aside a no-bond ruling that had kept Thompson at Reeves County Jail in Pecos since Jan. 13.

Last month, Thompson was charged in connection with 2,421 pounds of cocaine seized Dec. 4 from a horse trailer parked at the Presidio County Fairgrounds.

Before Thompson's indictment, he had contended that the drugs were being used in a reverse drug sting he was operating alone. The seizure's street value had been estimated at more than $48 million.

The Presidio County sheriff for 18 years, Thompson had served as chairman of the board of the El Paso-based Multi-County Narcotics Task Force.

Thompson was suspended from office without pay following his four-count indictment.

Inspection of bidders for lottery is planned

AUSTIN (AP) - State lottery officials want to inspect operations of competing bidders for Texas' game in Illinois and Florida.

A 16-member committee that evaluates bid contracts will travel to Springfield, Ill. to look at the operations of GTECH Corp., which handles the computerized games there.

On Thursday, the committee is scheduled to visit Tallahassee, Fla. to see Control Data Corp.'s operations.

GTECH and Control Data are vying for the contract to operate the Texas lottery, which is scheduled to start in July, and is expected to be one of the nation's largest.

The evaluation committee is composed of marketing, computer, telecommunications and legal staff from the state comptroller's office.

Greg Hartman, communications director at the Texas comptroller's office, said the committee's trip is unrelated to a recent controversy over the awarding of a contract.

"This had been contemplated for some time," Hartman said.

The state is seeking a new lottery consultant to review contracts after last week's resignation of a consultant who was accused of having a potential conflict of interest when the state selected a company to print instant tickets.

State officials refuse to say who is on the committee for fear that committee members may be personally contacted by bidders on lottery contracts. Despite this secrecy, Hartman conceded that the major lottery bidders will be able to find out who the committee members are during this visit.

Hartman said the inspection of both company's operations in other states is part of the process to award a contract.

The Illinois lottery was started in 1974, and for the past three years has sold an average of $1.5 billion worth of tickets per year.

The Florida lottery started in 1988, and had sales of $2.15 billion in 1991.

Two Hereford youths named to Wayland's honor roll

Kevin Lindell and Mike Manchee from Hereford have been named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the 1991 fall semester at Wayland Baptist University.

Lindell is a senior and son of Alice Lindell, and Manchee, a sophomore, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Manchee.

The Dean's Honor Roll is announced at the end of each semester. It lists the names of students who earned at GPA of at least 3.50 on a 4.00 scale while completing at least nine semester hours.

A total of 245 students from Wayland's Plainview, Lubbock, Wichita Falls and Hawaii campuses were named to the Dean's Honor Roll at Wayland for the fall semester.

Scholarships given at WT

Nine West Texas State University students were awarded competitive scholarships, effective for the spring 1992 semester, by a committee of faculty members from the Department of History and Political Science.

Valerie Gainer, a senior from Amarillo, Vickie Norrid, a junior from Amarillo; Amy Rhoades, a junior from Canyon; and Wayne Williams, a sophomore from Amarillo, were awarded Jesse and Grace Osborn scholarships.

These scholarships are funded from an endowment established by the Osborn family in honor and memory of Jesse and Grace, former residents of Muleshoe and the grandparents of Susan Coleman, WTSU instructor of Political science and criminal justice administration. Jesse was a member of the Texas House of Representatives in the 1950 and later served on the Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

The Claudia Stravato Women in Government scholarship, based on academic achievement, was awarded to Nancy Nicon, a senior political science major from Hereford.

The scholarship fund was established by friends in 1984 in honor of Stravato's contributions and dedication to government service. She is an Amarillo resident and currently serves on the staff of Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock.

Seniors Ken Funtek of Amarillo and Kathy Williams of Happy were presented Brent T. Lynch Criminal Justice Scholarships.

The fund was established in honor of Dr. Brent Lynch, former WTSU faculty member and founded for the University's criminal justice program.

The Ed Foster Scholarship, created in memory of a long-time University Police officer and was awarded annually to a freshman criminal justice major, was presented to Toby Vincent of Hartley.

Chili supper, play slated at Community Center

Shawn Walsh, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kriegshauser of Hereford, will be appearing in "The Taffetas", a musical production scheduled at 7 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 22, at the Hereford Community Center.

In conjunction with the production which will feature musical selections from the 1950s, a family style chili supper will be served preceding the play. St. Thomas Episcopal Church is sponsoring the event.

Tickets are priced at $10 per person and may be purchased at Brookhart's or from members of St. Thomas Church. Reservations may be made by leaving a message at 364-3717.

Proceeds will benefit the Outreach Program at St. Thomas.

"The Taffetas" is basically a musical, a hit parade of songs from the 1950s. The humorous play has had a successful run off Broadway. The touring production has appeared in Booker, Vega, Spearman, Dumas and Tucumcari, N.M.

Cast members include Walsh, Kelly Johnson, Cara Johnston, Candy Boxwell, Liz Allen-Grabber and Elizabeth Pelton.

All ball

Hereford's Leo Brown blocks Robert Beene's shot during Tuesday's game at Whiteface Gym. Looking on is Hereford's Jason Tatarevich (20).

Raiders sweep Herd

The Randall Raiders answered every shot the Whitefaces put in. The fourth-ranked Lady Raiders, however, answered the Lady Whitefaces in essay form.

The Hereford girls, playing their last game of 1992, stayed with Randall for five minutes of the first quarter but eventually got buried 68-30 Tuesday in Whiteface Gym.

The Herd drew first blood on a three-pointer by Jennifer Bullard, and the game was tied 7-7 with just under three minutes left in the first. Then, however, Randall took off on a 17-0 run which wasn't slowed down by the break between quarters.

Randall, ranked fourth in Class 4A by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches, finished the half leading 37-13 and continued to stretch its lead in the second half.

The boys' game was close all the way, but every time the Herd made a shot and threatened the Raiders' slim lead, the Raiders answered with a shot of their own.

Mens' golf club to meet today

The annual meeting of the Hereford Men's Golf Association will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Following a short business meeting, a reception will be held for Dave Kaesheimer, new golf pro at Pitman Municipal Golf Course. John Sherrod, HMGA president, invites members and prospective members to attend the meeting and meet the new golf pro.

Members of the Hereford Ladies Golf Association have also been invited to the reception.

Randall took a 10-9 lead midway through the first quarter and didn't lose the lead again until the end of the third. The Herd was right behind the Raiders the entire game, but every time Hereford made a run at the lead, Randall would score and snatch the lead out of reach.

Kevin Kelso gave Hereford fans something to cheer about between the third and fourth quarters. With the clock winding down, Kelso was forced to shoot a three-pointer with a Raider in his face. The awkward shot swished through the net at the buzzer, giving Hereford a 40-39 lead.

Leo Brown hit two free throws to extend the lead to 42-39, but Randall scored four points quickly, taking the lead for good. Moments later, Randall's Marc Franklin hit a three-pointer to make the lead 46-42.

Hereford got within two points twice more on strong inside shots by Derek Mason and Eric Sims, but Randall answered each score with a bucket of its own, the second time on a knifing layup by Franklin. That made it 50-46 with less than two minutes left.

Randall survived a flurry of Hereford three-point attempts which all were off the mark.

"The kids played hard," Coach Jimmy Thomas said. "This has just been one of those years where we can't win close games against good teams.

Netters play in Canyon

The Hereford tennis team got in a partial dual match in Canyon Tuesday before the sun went down. Only the seven doubles matches were played in two or three sets, and nine singles matches were completed using pro sets.

Canyon won 10 of the 16 completed matches.

"When we play a good team like Canyon, we don't worry as much about the team scores as individual wins and losses," Coach Natalie Sims said. "I was proud of Bri Reinauer's win against Erin Metcalf (8-3 in No. 1 singles). She played really well. All

Robinson gets even with Parish, Celtics

By The Associated Press

David Robinson is a quick learner. Boston's Robert Parish embarrassed San Antonio's All-Star center on Jan. 19 by scoring 30 points and grabbing 14 rebounds in the Celtics' 98-89 victory at Boston Garden. Robinson got his revenge Tuesday night, outscoring Parish 23-6 and outrebounding him 15-6 in the Spurs' 100-84 victory.

"You have to give their defense a lot of credit," said Parish, who also turned the ball over eight times. "Every time I got the ball, there were three or four people around me."

San Antonio held Boston to its lowest point total of the season and whipped the Celtics by reeling off 27 fast-break points, forcing 20 turnovers and limiting the Celtics to 45 percent shooting from the field.

"Our running game was great tonight and our aggressive defense allowed us to get it going," Robinson said. "We got a lot of rebounds and steals."

San Antonio took control late in the second quarter, using a 13-4 run to go ahead 50-36. An 8-0 rally to start the third quarter made it 58-40.

A 12-3 run later in the quarter, including six points by Antoine Carr, put the Spurs ahead 98-74 with 2:12 remaining.

Reggie Lewis led Boston with 22 points.

Bulls 133, Nets 113

Michael Jordan scored 34 points. The Nets led 94-93 after three quarters, but the Bulls started the fourth quarter by scoring the first seven points - two baskets by B.J. Armstrong and a three-point play by

Will Perdue - to go ahead 100-94. The Bulls built the lead to 114-98 when Jordan hit a pair of free throws with 7:14 left.

Bucks 104, Pistons 87

Moses Malone paced a 19-3 fourth-quarter run.

Pistons coach Chuck Daly was ejected with 4:03 to go when he was called for his second technical, seconds after Orlando Woolridge had been tagged with a technical during a timeout. Daly left the floor screaming and gesturing at the officials.

Malone finished with 24 points and 13 rebounds and Dale Ellis also had 24 points for the Bucks. Woolridge led Detroit with 21 points.

Pacers 100, Magic 98

Detlef Schrempf scored 26 points, including a game-winning 17-footer at the buzzer, and grabbed a career-high 23 rebounds for visiting Indiana.

The Pacers outscored the Magic 8-2 in the final 58 seconds on 3-pointers by Chuck Person and Reggie Miller and the final shot by Schrempf.

76ers 114, Heat 102

Hersey Hawkins scored 20 of his 29 points in the first half as Philadelphia took an 80-49 halftime lead.

Johnny Dawkins scored six of his 11 first-quarter points during an 18-4 run that gave the 76ers a 29-16 lead with 2:47 left in the period. Hawkins then had eight points during a 21-5 spurt that put Philadelphia up 52-26.

Miami's Rony Seikaly scored 20 of his 23 points in the first half to keep the score from being even more lopsided.

Hornets 113; Hawks 108

Kendall Gill scored 27 points and Larry Johnson made four clinching free throws in the final 13 seconds.

Johnson and Johnny Newman each added 18 points for Charlotte and Dell Curry had 16, including a 52-footer at the buzzer ending the third quarter to give the Hornets an 85-84 lead. Rookie Paul Graham had a career-high 24 points for the Hawks.

Lakers 116, Timberwolves 108

Terry Teagle sparked a third-quarter rally with 13 straight points and Sam Perkins and James Worthy dominated inside as the Lakers won in Minneapolis.

Teagle scored all but two points in a 15-4 run late in the third quarter that put the Lakers in command.

Minnesota led 73-72 when Perkins started the surge with a pair of free throws. Teagle, who finished with 17 points, followed with a variety of jump shots and drives to the basket, capping the rally with a baseline jumper that put Los Angeles ahead 87-77. Perkins scored 27 points and Worthy added 23.

Jazz 111, Cavaliers 109

John Stockton beat the clock, scoring on a driving layup with .1 of a second.

Blue Edwards' steal with six seconds left set up Stockton's shot. Edwards knocked the ball away from Cleveland's Mark Price three seconds after Jeff Malone had hit a 3-pointer to tie the score at 109.

SuperSonics 105, Rockets 99

Eddie Johnson hit the go-ahead basket with 56 seconds left and Ricky Pierce added four clinching free throws.

Pierce scored 16 of his 31 points in the fourth quarter and helped the Sonics overcome an 86-77 deficit early in the final period. Shawn Kemp also keyed the comeback by scoring 10 of his 14 points in the final period.

Trail Blazers 121, Nuggets 112

Clyde Drexler scored 28 points and Terry Porter added 24.

The Trail Blazers didn't put the game away until running off eight straight points in less than a minute after Denver, which lost its sixth straight, closed to 111-110 with 2:19 left. Porter hit four free throws in the final 46 seconds to put the game out of reach. Warriors 139, Bullets 127

Chris Mullin scored 33 points and Tim Hardaway added 29 points and 13 assists.

Mullin made 13 of 16 shots as the Warriors shot 59 percent from the field. Hardaway was 6-for-7 from 3-point range and Golden State went 7 for 11 while snapping a two-game losing streak.

Harvey Grant scored 31 points for Washington.

Mustangs pull out win against Aggies

DALLAS (AP) - It was a game that flashed back to basketball in the 1920s. Only the peach basket and ladder were missing.

In the lowest scoring game of the year for both teams, Chad Allen hit four free throws in the last 15 seconds Tuesday night to give the Southern Methodist Mustangs a 44-38 Southwest Conference victory over Texas A&M.

The Aggies, desperate for their first conference victory of the year, milked the 45-second clock and played a tough matchup zone against the Mustangs.

"They held the ball and held the ball and we didn't do a good job against their zone defense," said SMU coach John Shumate. "It got a little hairy and scary but we pulled it out. We've had some pretty games and lost so I'll take an ugly win."

SMU increased its SWC mark to 4-5 and 10-11 overall while Texas A&M, losing its 12th consecutive game, dropped to 0-8 and 3-16.

The Aggies rallied from a 12-point deficit but couldn't produce when it counted.

Reserve Matt Haralson scored five points to pull A&M within a point at 37-36 with 3:42 to play, but the Aggies couldn't make another field goal while SMU hit seven free throws.

Mike Wilson led SMU with 14 points and 12 rebounds. David

Edwards led the Aggies with nine points before the sparse crowd of 2,010 fans at Moody Coliseum.

"I can live with this," said A&M coach Tony Barone. "We had three walk-ons and two starters out there at the end and almost won."

"But this is the kind of game we have to play. We have to make it as ugly as we can. We can't run up and down the court because we don't have enough players."

A&M shot 28 percent from the field to 36 percent for SMU. The Mustangs made only 13 of 25 free throws while A&M hit 5 of 7.

The 38 points was the second lowest scoring game in history for the Aggies. They only scored 36 points against Texas Tech in 1967 in a 41-36 loss.

"Haralson was phenomenal for us," Barone said. "He played great for a freshman walk-on."

Wilson said it was a twilight zone game.

"They didn't surprise us because they've been playing everybody tough but they just put us to sleep," Wilson said. "It was scary. We didn't want to be their first conference win and let them break the streak here."

In SWC play tonight, Texas, tied with TCU for the league lead with a 6-2 record is at Texas Tech (3-5), Houston (5-3) is at Baylor (3-4), and TCU goes outside the conference to play at St. Louis.

Seton Hall bests Syracuse

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - A lot has happened over the last 11 years, enough for a few chapters in a history book.

Nowhere could it be mentioned in that span that Seton Hall had beaten Syracuse in a men's college basketball game.

That all changed Tuesday night when the 25th-ranked Pirates beat No. 10 Syracuse 86-76, a victory which ended a 23-game losing streak to the Orangemen and which set off a celebration usually seen about a month from now.

"We were getting tired of hearing about the streak," Seton Hall guard Bryan Caver said. "It's over now. We want to start a streak of Seton Hall over Syracuse."

The Pirates have hope that courtesy of a solid defensive effort and some good free throw shooting in the final minutes. Seton Hall made 15 of 18 foul shots in the last 4:57. The only field goal in that span was a slam dunk by Luther Wright that started a three-point play with 16 seconds left and capped the night's scoring.

The last time Seton Hall had beaten Syracuse was Feb. 21, 1981, the Pirates' only victory in 26 games since both schools joined the Big East Conference in 1979-80.

Seton Hall's chances of finally beating the Orangemen (16-4, 8-4) got a lot better when redshirt freshman John Leahy made a four-point play with 4:57 left that gave the Pirates (14-6, 6-5) a 70-61 lead.

In the only other game involving a Top 25 team Tuesday, Georgia beat No. 20 LSU 64-62.

Russians dominate pairs under any flag

ALBERTVILLE, France (AP) - Talk about your sports dynasties.

The Boston Celtics, the Montreal Canadiens, even the ghost of Knute Rockne could learn a thing or two about winning tradition from what the Soviets and their political offspring have achieved in pairs skating.

After Tuesday night's masterful performance by world champions Natalia Mishkutenok and Artur Dmitriev, here's what the country's top pairs finishes look like in the eight Winter Olympics dating to 1964:

Gold. Gold. Gold. Gold. Gold. Gold. GOLD.

The United States aren't ready to establish a dynasty in women's luge, but today Cammy Myler of Lake Placid, N.Y., placed fifth - bettering Bonny Warner's sixth-place finish for the best American showing ever.

Austrian sisters Doris and Angelika Neuner took the gold and silver, followed by Susi Erdmann of Germany, who beat out Myler for the World Cup title, with the bronze. Austria boosted its leading medals total to nine, only one fewer than it won in the 1988 Winter Games.

The pairs world champions - Russians competing for the Unified Team - brought the crowd to its feet and were first with all nine judges, earning seven near-perfect 5.9s for artistic impression.

But even the Russians think the end of the longest championship streak in the history of the Winter Games may be in sight.

"Our country has just broke down," said Tamara Moskvina, the couple's coach. "I think there will be a decline in the level of achievement, and this decline will last some time."

Elena Bechke and Denis Petrov of the Unified Team got the silver, and Canadians Isabelle Brasseur and Lloyd Eisler took the bronze as the top six placings in the original program remained the same.

The top two American pairs provided no evidence of a future challenge to the Russians' three-decade hold on the sport. National champions Calla Urbanski and Rocky Marval tripped and flipped their way to 10th place, while Californians Natasha Kuchiki and Todd Sand were shaky but held onto sixth.

On another rink an hour's drive higher in the Alps, the United States scrapped its way to a second straight victory, 2-0, over Germany on Tuesday, for its best Olympic start since its unbeaten gold-medal team of 1960.

Ray LeBlanc made 46 saves in recording America's first Olympic shutout since 1964, and Marty McInnis and Ted Donato scored power-play goals.

But Americans dreaming of a Lake Placid II take note: The wins aren't coming easily here and five other teams are 2-0.

"There are six very good teams and each of those six very good teams deserves a gold medal," said coach Leszek Lejczyk of Poland, whose 0-2 team does not.

Despite its two luge medals and a first-place standing going into today's finale of the men's Nordic combined, Austria didn't know whether to celebrate continued wild success at the Winter Games or bemoan two sad setbacks.

Sabine Ginther, one of the biggest stars in women's skiing and a possible triple Olympic medalist, broke a bone in her back Tuesday and was being sent home to Austria.

Fellow Austrian Hubert Strolz was only 100 feet from becoming the first Alpine skier to win the same event in two Olympics when he skidded off a bump and missed a gate in the final slalom run of the men's Alpine combined.

That slip gave the gold to an Italian skier who leaves all the "La Bomba" bombast to Alberto Tomba. Josef Polig, a shy 23-year-old who works in his mother's food store back home, called himself lucky and said his victory was "a gift."

"Now it's up to Alberto to improve our Olympic record," Polig ventured.

Three women from Austria, headed by sisters Doris and Angelika Neuner, led the luge singles going into today's final two runs. Cammy Myler and Erica Terwillegar, both of Lake Placid, N.Y., stood sixth and seventh with lingering medal hopes.

Several top men's and women's skiers share a common misery at these Olympics: Their medal hopes have been devoured by a downhill course designed by Bernhard Russi, the 1972 Olympic downhill champion from Switzerland.

The latest was Ginther, who had been the favorite in the women's combined. A non-contender, Wendy Fisher of Incline Village, Nev., also was knocked out of the Games in a separate spill on the tough women's downhill course Tuesday.

Several athletes collapsed in exhaustion at the finish of the first-ever women's Olympic biathlon competition Tuesday. Anfissa Reztsova, a Russian competing for the Unified Team, drew on her cross-country strength to endure the tough, mile-high course and claim the gold medal in the 7.5-kilometer race.

America's "Blue Collar Couple" - waitress Urbanski and truck driver Marval - was chagrined after an abysmal showing in front of a supportive crowd full of Americans. Urbanski landed on Marval's skate during a split triple twist early in the program, and things got worse from there.

"It was not to our standards, not really acceptable," Urbanski said. "We haven't had a really bad performance yet and we can learn from it."

Albertville Olympics lack fun of Calgary

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

LA LECHERE, France (AP) - My Olympic spirit is lagging.

I miss Katarina. I miss Eddie The Eagle. I miss the Red Menace. I can't wait much longer for La Bomba.

I want a coy, manipulative woman who wants to be ogled. I want a few laughable competitors who don't mind being laughed at. I want villains who win and rub it in. I want braggarts daring us to hold them to their words.

I don't want politically correct. I want fun.

Bonnie Blair is a great skater - she proved that by winning the 500-meter race Monday. But she is not great fun. She wears Spandex outfits and sunglasses and a hood when she skates, because the only thing she wants to impress is the clock.

She would never wear a crimson-red, black, ruffle-trimmed, V-neckline-plunging-to-the-navel outfit as Katarina Witt did in Calgary. And neither will any of the figure skaters now encamped in Albertville.

And I guarantee you that none of them would dare say - as Katarina did when discussing the male judges - that "men would rather look at a well-built woman than a rubber ball bouncing over the ice."

Ernst Vittori is a great ski jumper - he proved that Sunday by winning the 90-meter jump. But did the quiet Austrian make you care about this obscure event the way that Matti "Nukes" Nykanen, the Flying Finn of Calgary, did?

Did he drive his mother crazy by jumping off the roof of the house while still virtually in diapers, or, years later, drive his coaches crazy by exiting bars the World Cup circuit over with one legendary fistfight after another?

And this new duck-footed way of pointing the skis may make them fly farther, but it's just not Eddie "The Eagle" Edwards, smiling, glasses fogged, not so much jumping as merely dropping, and spending the whole flight praying that the road was rising up to meet him.

And unlike Eddie, none of these guys was awarded a lifetime membership in The Monster Raving Looney Political Party of England, either.

The Soviet - oops, make that Unified - hockey team is still beating everyone's brains out - 8-1 Saturday vs. Switzerland, 8-1 Monday vs. Norway. Probably 8-1 vs. everyone the rest of the tournament.

When this kind of thing went on previously, the victims used to fight back the only way they could - with biting understatement.

"If you're them," said Norway's assistant coach Tore Jobs, a first-round victim at Calgary, "you should beat us more than 5-0."

But considering how bad things are going off the ice for these guys these days, who - outside of George Steinbrenner - still has anything against them?

And that's another part of the problem. There was a time, not so long ago, when a Soviet skater or Nordic skier would set a record and his coach would boast that they had to hold a lottery to select the athletes for each team because there were 50 more like them back home.

Now, when these Unified guys win and say they are glad just to have a job, we nod sadly in agreement.

Tomba, save us.

We'll forgive your hiding out in Italy this week if you promise to reprise the party-animal thing you did at Calgary.

Tell everyone how you are the "messiah of skiing," call home between runs down the mountain, and blow everyone else off the hill. Then do it again. Then grab a helicopter, knot a tie, drape those two gold medals over your neck, pluck a single rose and go wait backstage for whichever figure-skating queen is finally crowned.

Just do one thing different. If you must give her a poster of yourself, don't spell her name wrong (it was Katarina, not Katerina, remember). Maybe you won't get turned down this time.

Tyson's own lawyers helped doom him

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Mike Tyson's lawyers painted such a vivid portrait of him as a public brute that it was easy for jurors to picture him as much worse - a rapist - behind closed doors, trial watchers say.

"You portray your client as a very unattractive individual, predatory in nature, disrespectful of women and thus prone to do an offense like this, and it makes it easier to return the verdict of guilty."

The 25-year-old former heavy-weight boxing champion was convicted Monday of raping a Miss Black America contestant July 19. The victim testified Tyson lured her to his hotel room and raped her while she cried in pain and begged him to stop.

Tyson was convicted of one count of rape and two counts of criminal deviate conduct. Each count carries up to 20 years in prison. But similar convictions usually result in sentences ranging from seven to 11 years, prosecutors said.

Sentencing was set for March 6. Tyson remains free on $30,000 bail. Adopting a strategy of tearing down their client's reputation in order to save him, Tyson's lawyers led other pageant contestants through allegations that the boxer was an "octopus" who fondled them and made lewd suggestions.

Tyson likewise testified he told his accuser at a pageant rehearsal - using a common vulgarity - that he wanted to have sex with her and that she consented.

The fighter's lawyers hoped to show that Tyson - by his behavior and his words - made it clear that he was out for sex.

"After all the evidence was weighed, the state had a stronger case," said the jury foreman, who would not give his name. "The accusing witness made a very convincing case."

"This was a case about emotions and human relationships," said Sonja

Stephens, a lawyer and Sports Illustrated writer. "It would have been helpful if Tyson had looked like a nice guy, because she was so sweet. You hear one word and instantly you fall in love with her."

Stephens said a better strategy would have been to "soften his edges," portraying Tyson as a tough kid who grew up without love and without the normal skills for developing relationships.

Defense lawyers Vincent J. Fuller and Kathleen L. Beggs refused to discuss the case, but issued a statement: "The trial is but the first step in the process of arriving at the truth. When that process has been completed, a new trial had, and all the evidence heard, we have faith that Mr. Tyson's vindication will be complete."

Tyson appeared at the probation office Tuesday for a routine, post-conviction interview, answering questions about his personal history, health and finances for use in a sentencing report that will go to the judge.

"He's cooperative. He was respectful," said Stephen Willis, Marion County chief probation officer.

Tyson's former wife, actress Robin Givens, will be given the opportunity to tell authorities about their violent, 8-month marriage in 1988.

"She talked quite a bit this morning about being a spokeswoman for victims' rights, victims of rape," Marion County Prosecutor Jeffrey Modisett said.

Owners win in arbitration

NEW YORK (AP) - In the battle over money, baseball owners are getting at least small victories this winter.

Owners extended their winning streak to five on Tuesday when arbitrator Gil Vernon ruled for the Pittsburgh Pirates and against shortstop Jay Bell.

Meanwhile, Houston third baseman Ken Caminiti, Chicago White Sox catcher Ron Karkovics and San Diego pitcher Grge Harris settled, and New York Mets shortstop Kevin Elster had a hearing, leaving 37 players left in arbitration.

Montreal also invited catcher Rick Cerone to spring training as a non-roster player. The Expos have been looking for additional catching since backup Gilberto Reyes was suspended for 60 days last Friday for violating baseball's drug policy and his aftercare program.

Reyes filed a grievance Tuesday through the Major League Baseball Players Association in an effort to overturn the suspension, which begins April 6. The case will be heard by George Nicolau, baseball's permanent arbitrator, who in December declined to overturn the 60-day suspension given to Atlanta outfielder Otis Nixon, who tested positive for cocaine.

Vernon, who heard Bell's case Monday at Rosemont, Ill., decided the shortstop should get a raise from $360,000 to $875,000 rather than $1.45 million. Bell, 26, hit .270 last season with 16 homers and 67 RBIs.

Owners have won seven of the nine cases decided so far this winter. Last year, owners won 11 of 17 cases that went through to hearings.

Elster, who came off shoulder surgery last season, had his hearing in New York before Robert Creo, an arbitrator hearing his first case. The shortstop, who made $625,000 in 1991, is asking for $1.35 million while the Mets are offering $760,000. He hit .241 last season with six homers and 36 RBIs.

Harris, 28, agreed to a two-year deal worth $3.05 million. He gets a $50,000 signing bonus, $1 million for this season and $2 million for 1993.

The right-hander had tendonitis in his elbow during the first half of 1991, but went on to an 8-4 record and a 2.11 ERA in 16 starts after the All-Star break. He was 9-5 overall with a 2.23 ERA last year.

Karkovics and the White Sox settled at $500,000 with $200,000 more in possible performance bonuses. Karkovics made $332,500 in 1991, when he hit .246 with five homers and 22 RBIs.

Caminiti, Astros agree

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Astros infielder Ken Caminiti has signed a one-year contract with the team worth $1.5 million, avoiding arbitration.

Caminiti signed the contract Tuesday, two days before his scheduled salary arbitration hearing with the Astros. He made $700,000 last season.

The 28-year-old player had sought

$1.85 million in arbitration, while the Astros wanted to pay him $1.1 million. Last season, Caminiti hit .253 with 13 home runs and 80 RBIs.

With Caminiti's signing, the Astros still have two salary arbitration hearings left involving Craig Biggio and outfielder Steve Finley. Biggio was the Astros' catcher last season but is scheduled to start at second base this year.

Four awarded for exceptional service

The Hereford Retired School Employees Association met Monday for a luncheon meeting at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Mary Dzaik, chairman of the community service committee, recognized four members for their exceptional service to the community. She presented Certificates of Appreciation to Bill McDowell, Billie McDowell, and Leona Schilling. Each had donated over 1,000 hours of their time in volunteer service to the community.

Eliose McDougal was awarded a plaque in appreciation of her 2,460 hours of service in several different fields. McDougal's name has also been submitted for state recognition. The Texas goal for 1992 is 8,250,000 volunteer hours, which illustrates the tremendous productivity of senior citizens who serve in so many different capacities.

Audrey Powell stressed that the VITA program is still available to assist anyone if filling out their IRS forms. Someone will be available at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center each morning.

President Betty Mercer reminded the group of the annual convention to be held April 9-11 at the Amarillo Civic Center. Deadline for advance registration is March 27.

The report of the nominating committee was presented by the chairman, Charles Duvall. Nominations may be made from the floor at the March meeting.

The program was introduced by Bill McDowell. Glen Nelson, Weldon Stephens, Billy Lytal, and L.D. Combs entertained the group of 43 members and five guests with their music.

Any retired school employee is eligible to join HRSEA, and if wishing further information can call Betty Mercer at 364-0289.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few months ago, a friend of my wife's asked if I would help her move to a distant city. Since I was unemployed at the time, I agreed to do it for a few hundred dollars. I was glad to pick up the extra money and it allowed her to save more than $600 off the lowest bid by a professional mover. I broke down the furniture, loaded the truck, drove it 900 miles, unloaded it and reassembled the beds and other pieces that had been dismantled.

Unfortunately, along the way, I hit a steeply angled service station overhang. It had no clearance markings. After negotiations with the truck rental firm, repairs were paid which came to a bit more than my fee, and I ended up with nothing.

I feel that my wife's friend should have paid part of the repair bill. After all, she saved over 40 percent on her moving costs and the damage was not the result of carelessness. It was a freak accident. As the driver of the rental truck, I did my best. I was not reckless and what happened was pure bad luck.

Am I wrong to feel this way? My wife said I am. I'll respect your wishes. Either way, I don't intend to bring this matter up with the friend. Thank you.—Left Holding the Bag

DEAR HOLDING: If your friend had hired a moving company, any damage incurred while transporting her furniture would have been the company's liability. She wanted to save some money and you were happy to get the extra work, but unfortunately, it didn't work out very well—at least not for you.

Your friend is under no obligation to share in the cost of the accident, but she might have done so had she chosen to be generous.

The lesson to be learned is this: Should you help anyone move in the future, have an understanding that in case of an accident, he or she pays half.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I empathize with "Faithful Reader in North Carolina." I, too, detest the audio garbage on the telephone when I'm put on hold, and the music in elevators sets my teeth on edge.

At home, however, I have music playing constantly. It's not that I am afraid of silence, as your reader suggests. I would welcome REAL silence, but I will never know what silence is unless I become totally deaf.

Thanks to parents who didn't care where they hit me when I was a child and noisy factories where I worked my way through college, I have tinnitus. In a totally silent room the sounds in my ears are deafening. There is no way I can escape it. Gentle music (not television, which I generally detest) helps me focus my attention on what I'm doing, rather than on the three distinct noises I hear constantly—a high whistle, a low whistle and the rushing sound that resembles a strong wind blowing past my ears.

I am not looking for sympathy. I've adapted to the tinnitus and the resulting hearing impairment quite well. I just wish that people who are fortunate enough to have normal hearing would have a little more compassion for those of us who don't. We are not addicted to noise. Short of total deafness, most of us would give anything to get away from it.—L.B., Ingleside, Ill.

DEAR L.B.: There is help for you and others who suffer with this affliction. For further information, send a postcard with your name and address to the American Tinnitus Association, P.O. Box 5, Portland, Ore. 97207. While there is no cure for tinnitus, you may learn of new ways to cope with it. Good luck.

Children to present musical

The Amarillo College Theater School for Children (ACTS) will present the Panhandle premiere of "The Wind in the Willows" Feb. 14-16 in Ordway Auditorium.

Performances are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 14 and 15, and at 2:30 p.m. Feb. 16. The performances are sponsored by the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center, Circle of Friends and the Ronald McDonald House.

A cast of more than 30 children will present the musical adaption of Kenneth Grahm's timeless story. The action takes place in and around the river bank and concerns the friendship of Water Rat, the Mole and the badger. Their friendship is tested by the arrogant Mr. Toad. The play offers a message about values and responsibilities through humor and heroics.

The show is directed by Linda Dee Hughes, Texas artist-in-residence with the Texas Commission on the Arts. She is assisted by Sherman Bass, professional actor and drama coach. Choreography is by Kathy Bass and Lydia Grey is the production's musical director.

Reservations for the production can be made by calling 371-5353.

BOB SIMS

A group of British soldiers in India was imprisoned in 1756 in a suffocating dungeon that became known as the Black Hole of Calcutta. Originally, 123 out of 146 men were said to have died there, but in recent years historians have charged that both figures were exaggerated.

Bob Sims elected as president

Bob Sims has been elected president of the Hereford Country Club board of directors for 1992. Other new officers are Chip Guseman, vice president, and Kay Lynn Caviness, secretary-treasurer.

Members elected new directors last week, and the board elected officers. The new directors are Robert Beville, Kay Lynn Caviness, Walter Davis, J.L. Marcum and John Sherrod.

Holdover directors are Sims, Guseman, Mary Thomas, A.K. Roark, Roland Saul, Don T. Martin, Jan Weishaar, Nance Perrin, Scott Hall, and Terry Bromlow.

Directors whose terms expired were Brent Caviness, Ike Stevens, Sylvia Khuri, Milton Rudder and Don Graham. Caviness served as president last year.

Low-income working families eligible for cash from IRS

The Internal Revenue Service is giving up to $2,000 to low-income families who qualify for Earned Income Credits (EIC) to their tax returns. The trouble is that many just don't apply.

"Many families miss the opportunity to receive this tax credit because they don't make enough money to owe taxes, so they don't file an income tax return," said Joyce Cavanagh, family economics specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Also, people don't know the EIC is available or how to file for it."

It is believed that more than 12 million families now qualify for the EIC. It is available to working parents who earned an adjusted gross income of less than $21,250 in 1991, and who have at least one child who has been living at home for more than six months, Cavanagh said. Both married and single parents can qualify.

The EIC is a refundable credit, she said, which means that eligible working families can receive it even if they owe no federal income tax or have no income tax withheld from their paychecks. Those who owe no income tax receive a check from the IRS in the amount of the credit.

"If a family does owe income tax, the EIC reduces the amount of taxes owed," Cavanagh said. "If the family's credit is greater than the taxes owed, the family's tax bill will be reduced to zero and the IRS will send the family a check for the remaining amount of its EIC."

To receive the EIC, a person must file a federal income tax return, either a 1040 or 1040A, and a new form called "Schedule EIC." A tax payer can fill out both sides of the form or fill out only the first side and allow the IRS to complete the rest and calculate the credit.

Cavanagh said the those families who use the "married couple filing separately" status should check with the IRS to see if they qualify to receive the EIC.

The amount of refund families receive, according to Cavanagh, depends on how much income was earned and whether they qualify for two extra EIC benefits that are now available:

* The basic EIC for 1991 for families with one child is worth a maximum of $1,192. The maximum is $1,235 for those with more than one child. Most families who earned between $6,000 and 13,000 last year should receive at least $1,000.

* Families with a child born in 1991 can receive an extra benefit of up to $357.

* Families that pay at least part of the premiums for a health insurance policy that includes health care coverage for a child may receive an extra credit of up to $428.

Low-income parent with a foster child also may qualify for the EIC, Cavanagh said. However, the foster child must have lived with the family of that entire year.

More information on the EIC and free assistance is available in most areas at Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) clinics, Cavanagh said. Call the local IRS office or (800) 829-1040 to find out the location of the nearest VITA clinic in your area.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) - Before Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was a basketball star and George Will was a syndicated columnist, they were Little League players.

Now they've been tapped for Little League Baseball's Hall of Excellence for success on and off the field.

Abdul-Jabbar retired in 1989 as the NBA's all-time scoring leader. Back when he was still Lew Alcindor, he was a star for the Inwood Little League of New York.

Will played for the Champaign Little League of Champaign, Ill. He recently wrote an appreciation of baseball, "Men at Work."

The hall is sponsored by the Little League Museum in Williamsport. Other members are Vice President Dan Quayle, Baseball Hall of Famer Tom Seaver, actor Tom Selleck, U.S. Sen. Bill Bradley, Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan and retired Philadelphia Phillies slugger Mike Schmidt.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: When I was 57 I had a bad fall which resulted in a fracture. The surgeon had to place a metal plate in my left leg hip bone. I started the menopause at age 34. Nothing was ever mentioned to me about hormone treatment. I was told the lack of hormones was the reason I had osteoporosis and had a fracture when I fell.

I hope there is something I can do to prevent it from progressing. I am now taking two Tums in the morning and two Tums before bedtime and drink two glasses of skim milk a day.

At age 56, I had colon cancer. A year later, when I was told I had osteoporosis, the doctor mentioned I could have estrogen treatment, but also said it was a little late for this and did not think it would be too helpful. Because of having cancer the year before, I was a little afraid to take hormones. I am now 64 and not doing too badly. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER: Estrogen replacement therapy was not commonly recommended 30 years ago when you had your menopause, and its relationship to future osteoporosis was not known. You might have gotten some benefit from estrogen at age 57 when you were first told you had osteoporosis. It would not have had any effect on your colon cancer. Estrogen increases the risk of endometrial cancer of the uterus, and there is some question about it causing a slight increase in the risk of breast cancer under certain circumstances, but it has no relationship to other cancers.

Hormone-replacement therapy does have other benefits than just decreasing the risk of osteoporosis. I would think in your unusual case the decision would need to be made on the basis of what your bony skeleton looks like today — how much bone density you actually have.

Depending on what is found, you might need to take Didronel if you are not taking estrogen. Increased calcium intake mostly helps prevent loss of bone from the long bones, such as the bone you broke, but will not help prevent loss of bone from the vertebrae. Didronel is mostly effective on the vertebrae. Calcium and Didronel make a good combination.

I have discussed the medicines that can be used to prevent bone loss from osteoporosis in Special Report 98, Understanding Osteoporosis (Dissolving Bones), and am sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/98, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am allergic to cats. My mom said there are some cats that don't give off an allergic scent. If so, could you tell me which cats they are? I would really enjoy a pet.

DEAR READER: The probabilities are you would be allergic to all cats, not just certain breeds. The allergy is not caused by their scent, but from a protein they produce in their salivary glands and in the sebaceous (oil) glands in their skin. The fur itself does not cause the allergy, but the protein that gets on the hair does.

The way to prevent allergies to cats is to eliminate that protein. That is why frequent washing of a cat will help control cat allergies. The protein will also be in carpets and even in clothing, so a person who is allergic to cat protein may still have a reaction after the cat has been removed, unless the carpets and drapes are treated.

A washed cat, measures to keep the cat protein out of carpets and drapes, taking antihistamines such as Seldane and desensitization with a serious of shots are about all that is available.

Perhaps you would like a dog. Or a petted pig?

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a male in my mid 40s, in good health and physically able and active at 5 feet, 140 pounds. I have been having a problem getting an erection when I should. Perhaps you could provide some information.

I abused alcohol the last two years, but I don't any longer. Could this have caused some damage sexually? If so, is the damage irreparable? Will I regain my ability to have an erection, and if not, what can be done, if anything?

Two other factors I might mention, I was celibate from July 1986 to November 1989 and again from February 1990 until the present. Prior to that I was very active.

DEAR READER: It is not possible to say why you are having trouble having an erection simply on the basis of your letter. The evaluation for impotence today is rather sophisticated, when a complete and adequate evaluation is done. There is a long list of things that can cause impotence. Now that the idea that impotence is usually because of psychological factors has been dispelled, great advances have been made in understanding why impotence occurs and what can be done about it.

While the amount of male hormone is important, there are many other and more common factors. The most common cause of impotence in mature males is fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. The blockage prevents an adequate blood flow into the penis to cause it to engorge with blood and become erect. This is exactly the same disease that causes heart attacks and strokes. If more men realized that the same measures they take to prevent heart attacks can also prevent impotence, there might be a lot more interest in such preventive programs. That includes keeping your cholesterol levels in optimal ranges with a proper diet and exercise and not smoking.

Alcohol can damage the nerves that control blood flow into the penis and can cause impotence. That is called alcoholic neuropathy. It is very similar to diabetic neuropathy that causes impotence in diabetics. If the insult to the nerve fibers is not too long, a man may recover. Otherwise the damage may be permanent. But even then, a suitable implant can be used to enable an erection.

You need to find out what an adequate modern evaluation for impotence includes, what the various causes are and what can be done. There is a lot that can be done. I would have sent you a free copy of my new Special Report 125, but your address was not on your letter. I don't see the envelopes. Those who want this information can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/125, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

More than 900,000 copies of The Hereford Brand were distributed in 1991. If your advertising message was not included in many of these issues, you need to call Mauri Montgomery or Regina Herrington, 364-2030, and let them put together an advertising schedule to fit your budget.

AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Salesman Confesses

Claims newspaper is best salesman

On Monday, Jules Wintner, owner of a local retail establishment, confessed his job as a salesman was obsolete due to the impact of newspaper advertising. Wintner, in an exclusive interview, said sales were made in the local paper instead of in the store.

"Sure, we get a chance for additional sales," Wintner commented, "but the newspaper has become our best salesman." Wintner reported that consumers name the local newspaper as their usual source of "Best Buy" information, 10 times more than radio or television. This conforms with a recent Consumer Data Service report that indicated 60% of the consumers seek "Best Buy" information from the newspaper versus only 6% for radio and 7% for television.

Wintner later remarked that because the newspaper is read by all Texans, regardless of income, his business was able to sell both upper end products as well as value priced items. "No matter what we're selling, we get good response in the newspaper," he said. "In fact, the better our response seems to be, the more expensive the product, the factor is substantiated in a survey by the Texas Newspaper Advertising Bureau that documented readership of the newspaper increases as income increases. In the survey, almost 75% of Texans with incomes exceeding $50,000 a year read the newspaper.

"Our customers shop the newspaper. When they walk in the door, they already know what they want, they know the price and often have the ad with them."

"My job has become redundant," Wintner admitted. "Used to be I had to really sell each customer, but now I'm just an order taker." Asked what he intended to do now that the newspaper was doing most of the selling, he replied, "Spend more in newspaper advertising than last year."

Area auditions for "TEXAS" scheduled

Area auditions for the 27th season of the internationally acclaimed musical drama "TEXAS" are scheduled Sunday, Feb. 16, at Texas Tech University and for Saturday, Feb. 29, in Canyon at West Texas State University.

The director needs to fill 140 salaried positions including 32 singers, 14 actors, 25 dancers, six instrumentalists, 16 technicians, seven costumers and a hospitality crew of 40.

Cast members play nightly to full houses of 1,700 persons from every state and more than 100 foreign countries.

Set beneath the towering cliffs of Palo Duro Canyon near Amarillo and Canyon, Paul Green's "TEXAS" opens its 27th season on June 10 and plays nightly except Sundays at 8:30 p.m. through Aug. 22. Rehearsals being May 17.

To audition in Lubbock, applicants should come on Sunday, Feb. 16, to the Music Building at Texas Tech University, Room No. 1, from noon to 5 p.m. with dancers at 4 p.m.

The audition in Canyon on Saturday, Feb. 29, will be held at the West Texas State University Mary Moody Northern Hall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with dancers at 4 p.m.

PARIS (AP) - Woody Allen's latest movie, the story of a fog-bound European town in the grip of serial killer, makes its world premiere here Wednesday, six weeks before its release in the United States.

The $19 million "Shadows and Fog," with a cast that includes Madonna and Jodie Foster, will not be seen in the United States until March 20 because of the financial woes of Allen's American distributor, Orion.

"We really didn't want to be held up, so we decided to go ahead with a premiere in France where Woody has always had a very loyal following and where there is a seemingly more intelligent movie audience than we have back home," executive producer Robert Greenhut said.

American films usually open here between four and six months after they appear in the United States.

The first public schools for girls in Saudi Arabia weren't approved by the government until 1960.

5 p.m. with dancers at 4 p.m. Previous auditions were held in Tucson, Ariz., Dallas, and San Antonio. Auditions in Norman, Okla., will be Sunday, Feb. 23.

Anyone, 18 years or older, may audition for "TEXAS." Men and women must bring a picture and references.

All voice ranges are needed, and singers should bring one prepared number of their choice. An accompanist will be furnished or a singer may bring his own.

Since singers also fill minor speaking roles, each should also prepare a one to two minute memorized monologue.

Actors and actresses are required to present a memorized monologue, not to exceed three minutes, that will accentuate the outdoor voice and presence and also to perform a short vocal number.

The dancers should have ballet or modern dance training. Men and women are required to wear appropriate workout clothing.

Musicians are needed who are experienced in string bass, acoustic guitar, banjo, accordion and with concert training in violin.

A hospitality crew of 40 sells tickets, works concessions and barbecue, gives tours, entertains on the patio, seats visitors and maintains area.

"TEXAS" is a combination of historical romance, spectacular sound and light, and colorful music and dance. Told by a cast of 80, "TEXAS" relives the settling of the Panhandle and the coming of the railroad.

Indians perch on rocks, a real train rumbles across the prairie, cowboys ride the range and a realistic storm rocks the audience as thunder roars and lightning strikes.

More than 2.3 million people have enjoyed the production, written by Pulitzer Prize winning author Paul Green.

Under the direction of Neil Hess, company members not only have an opportunity to play to full houses every night but also to receive expert instruction and valuable exposure.

For an audition brochure, reservations for the show or more information on "TEXAS," call 1-655-2181 or wrote P.O. Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015-0268.
