Song is dedicated to Solomon, Brock

Greg Coplen and Bobby Perales stole the show with their song, "At Your Throne," at Thursday's annual Koobrae assembly at Hereford High School.

Coplen, an award-winning pianist, and Perales, on guitar, performed the song written by Coplen. It was originally written and dedicated to Amy Solomon in memory of her brother, Kyle, who died in an auto accident last December. At Thursday's debut, Coplen also dedicated the song to the memory of Gene Brock. Brock was long-time faculty advisor to the Hereford Key Club.

It was Coplen's first public performance of a song he had written. "I was a little nervous, but I thought it went really well," he said.

The performance was voted as the winner of the talent competition at the assembly, which is sponsored by the HHS yearbook staff to announce winners of class favorites and other school-wide awards.

Here are the words to "At Your Throne."

How am I supposed to say goodbye, to the one I love.
Knowing that he won't be back again.
It's hard to believe he's gone away,
Never to return to me.
As I sit here all alone, and everyone's gone away,
I think of the friend he was and then I start to pray

(Chorus)
Lord I know it was meant to be.
It was time for him to go home.
And all that's really left to say to him
Is one day, I will see him at your throne.

Lord I know why you would want my brother.
Wouldn't anyone be the same.
How could you not love my very best friend
And want his presence in your name.
As I sit here all alone and everyone's gone away,
I think of the friend he was, and then I start to pray.

Bobby Perales and Greg Coplen won the talent award at Thursday's Koobrae assembly at Hereford High School. They performed "At Your Throne," a song written by Coplen.

City pledges special effort to help parks

A serious effort to improve Hereford city parks, beginning at Dameron Park, was promised Monday night by the City Commission.

Mauri Montgomery, chairman of a beautification committee appointed almost three years ago by the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, suggested that the centrally-located Dameron Park should be the focus of initial improvements in the system.

A stage, or pavillion, in the park has been asked, Mayor Tom LeGate observed. He added that cost estimates for the project, including restrooms and stage, should be obtained.

Commissioner Wayne Winget responded, "I think we ought to get an architect for a stage" as soon as possible.

A special fund for park improvements was put in place last year when the City Commission voted to add a $1 charge to utility bills which customers may pay, if they wish.

Since the fund was established, contributions have risen to $33,750. Approximately 75 percent of utility customers participate in the voluntary program.

Although no formal action was taken on the project, commissioners indicated they are ready to proceed on park improvements, beginning with Dameron.

In other business, the commission rejected bids submitted for a new dump truck. Recommending that the low bid of $47,951 be rejected, City Manager Chester Nolen reported, that $40,000 was budgeted for the vehicle.

The commission issued the formal call for the municipal election to be held on May 2.

Filing for the four seats to be filled in the May 2 election began Monday and continues through March 18. Early voting begins April 13.

Incumbents in the places to be filled are Irene Cantu, Place 2; Wayne Winget, Place 4, and two commissioners elected at-large, Roger Eades and Emory Brownlow.

Heavyweights battle for NH knockouts

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) - New Hampshire votes today in a leadoff primary that serves as the first verdict on George Bush's presidency and the opening cut in a five-man Democratic race thrown into confusion by Bill Clinton's troubles.

Bush's challenge in the state that saved him four years ago is to weather the pugnacious conservative punches of Patrick Buchanan.

For the Democrats, New Hampshire voters were ordering a lineup that has seen two designated front runners stumble and a late surge by former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas.

For both parties, recession-slammed New Hampshire was a testing ground of economic themes sure to dominate the 1992 campaign.

With Tsongas on the Democratic ballot were Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, Sens. Tom Harkin of Iowa and Bob Kerrey of Nebraska and

Early voting will begin here Wednesday

Sample ballots for the Republican and Democratic primaries are included in today's Hereford Brand to help voters in the 1992 elections.

Early voting begins Wednesday at the county clerk's office in the Deaf Smith County Courthouse. The ballots include presidential preferences in both parties as well as contested races.

The county clerk's office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Monday through Friday. There is no need to have a reason for not being able to vote on election day, March 10. The state began the "no excuses" program in 1990 to boost the number of persons voting in elections.

former California Gov. Jerry Brown, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo was the subject of a write-in effort.

Polls were open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., with about half the state's electorate expected to participate; 140,000 or so in the Republican primary, 125,000 on the Democratic side.

But polls in Dixville Notch, a tiny resort hamlet with 31 registered voters, opened its polls at 12:01 a.m. and closed them five minutes later.

The first in the nation returns gave a surprise protest victory to Libertarian candidate Andre Marrou, who swept the minuscule field with 11 votes.

Among Republican candidates, Bush received 9 votes to Buchanan's 3; Among Democratic candidates, Clinton beat Tsongas, 3-2.

Kerrey, Harkin and Brown received no votes in Dixville Notch, but three Republicans wrote in consumer activist Ralph Nader.

With only 23 Republican and 18 Democratic convention delegates at stake, little seemed to justify the months spent meeting voters face to face, or the advertising blitz.

But since the modern primary began in New Hampshire in 1952, no president got his job without first winning this primary.

Bush campaigned by telephone and satellite, trying to counter Buchanan's call for New Hampshire's unemployed and anxious to send the White House a pointed message.

"Don't worry about trying to send some message and let's put the person in that has the proven leadership," Bush said on WMUR-TV.

Bush led substantially in GOP polling, but even his advisers worried Buchanan might embarrass the president. "The campaign has tremendous momentum," Buchanan boasted.

Tsongas entered the day leading the polls and scoffing at being dubbed a regional candidate whose tough economic talk will fail him elsewhere.

Behind Tsongas in polls was Clinton, who had parlayed a specific economic program targeted at the middle class into a surprising early lead, only to see it disappear as his campaign was buffeted first by a tabloid account of infidelity - which he denied - and then suggestions he continued to avoid the Vietnam draft.

Kerrey had yet to back up the lofty expectations of his sudden summer entry into the race. He seemed the perfect Democratic candidate: a Vietnam hero who had erased a farm recession deficit as governor and won twice statewide in a conservative state.

Harkin entered the race the favorite of liberals and labor. But he has lost chunks of his base to Clinton and Tsongas, and he tried to parlay his Iowa caucuses win, he drew fire from rivals for his frequent attacks.

"We are ready to go national better than any other candidate," Harkin insisted Monday, as late polls suggested he was fighting Kerrey for third.

Brown's campaign has been the most colorful if not successful. His railings against monied politics are full of vigor and vitriol, and his audiences have taken to wearing the look Brown promises to bring to the White House: turtlesnecks.

US may research more, buy fewer big weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) - Largely lost in the hubbub over President Bush's proposed $50 billion in defense spending cuts is a Pentagon plan to radically change its approach to buying weapons, a move that redefines the arms race.

At the core of the Pentagon's new approach is an intention to shift emphasis - and defense dollars - away from actual production of new-generation weapons to research.

New arms technologies still will be pursued, but once proven they will be kept on the shelf in many cases instead of moving into production.

Weapons fielded in the 1980s and earlier simply will have to last longer. And arms suppliers will have to focus more on development, less on production.

Production of a new-generation Comanche attack helicopter for the Army, for example, which had been scheduled to begin 1998, would be put off indefinitely, even as work continues on improved helicopter avionics and engines.

The aim is to economize. That may be making a virtue of necessity, in light of increasing pressure in Congress to drastically reduce the defense budget and growing resistance to many advanced weapons such as the B-2 stealth bomber.

"The facts and the circumstances have forced this on the Defense Department," Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., said in an interview. McCurdy is chairman of a special panel of the House Armed Services Committee studying the U.S. industrial base.

Whatever the motive for the Pentagon's new approach to weapons development, the change does mean an end to an arms race mindset in the military, where for the past 45 years the Soviet "threat" justified putting almost any new weapons advancement into production as quickly as possible.

Now the Soviet Union is gone and so is the urgency.

"More and more we will try to save money and trim down the industrial base so that we're not buying for World War III any longer," Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said recently.

The administration's proposed 1993 defense budget cites $42.1 billion in savings through 1997 from slowing down or ending 10 advanced weapons programs which just a year ago the Pentagon argued were vital to the nation's defense.

"There is going to have to be a significant shakeout within the defense industry," Powell said.

Such a shakeout means jobs, of course. The chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sam Nunn, estimates that some 2 million Americans will lose their defense-related jobs by the middle of the decade.

And that's making some members of Congress nervous. Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, believes it may be necessary to buy some unneeded weapons to keep production lines open and people employed.

Donald Atwood, the deputy defense secretary, said in an interview that although the defense industry faces leaner times in the 1990s he believes many companies see the new weapons-development philosophy in a positive light.

Acne medication may help fight in some skin cancer

HOUSTON (AP) - A combination of two fairly non-toxic drugs has been found effective in treating some skin cancers and advanced cervical cancer, a Houston researcher said Monday.

Research leader Dr. Scott M. Lippman said a vitamin A derivative, called Accutane, has been somewhat unsuccessful in treating advanced cancer in earlier studies.

But combining it with laboratory-made interferon appears to improve Accutane's fighting abilities, said Lippman, assistant professor of medicine at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center.

The results will be published this week in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute. Lippman said they could prove especially promising to developing countries, where cervical tumors are one of the most deadly cancers among women.

"We feel it's a very important lead, but it needs further work before we can really make statements about impacts on mortality," Lippman said. "But the potential is there."

Cervical cancer is rare among American women, who tend to screen themselves regularly for the disease.

Homeless program in NYC makes cents

NEW YORK (AP) - Pennies from heaven? How about from shoe boxes, coffee cans, piggy banks, pillowcases and even an antique Chinese vase? Thanks to an organization called Common Cents, all this loose change adds up to help the homeless.

"We look at pennies as problems - they're just gathering a lot of dust, what a drag, let's throw them out," said Teddy Gross, the group's founder.

"A lot of people have the same attitude towards the poor - what a nuisance," he said. "But if you start with the very smallest thing in the world, and say this has value, it's like saying everything has value."

Some 30,000 New Yorkers have donated a total of $103,000 in loose change since Common Cents was formed about a year ago. That included 7 million pennies - about 21 tons - and an assortment of quarters, nickels, dimes, 50-cent pieces and Susan B. Anthony dollars gathered in everything from piggy banks to an antique Chinese vase.

The money has paid for 50,000 meals prepared by soup kitchens and food vans; three weeks of summer camp for 71 homeless youngsters; hundreds of blankets, coats and sets of thermal underwear; and recreation programs in family shelters.

Gross, a playwright, was inspired after his young daughter noticed a homeless man on the street and asked why they couldn't help him.

"I remember running in Riverside Park and looking up at all the buildings, and seeing in my mind this huge penny bank - sort of imagining what the city has in wasted wealth," Gross said.

First he turned to neighbors. When Gross finished knocking on doors on his floor, he had a few hundred dollars. By the time he was done with his whole apartment building and a few friends had gone through their buildings, he had several thousand dollars.

TDH asked to investigate HIV report

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) - A Texas Department of Health to educate people about AIDS and provide counseling to the region. Health Department officials had the President's Day holiday off and could not be reached for comment.

The cases reportedly will be reviewed by Richard Hensley, regional AIDS coordinator for the Health Department's Tyler office. Ms. Hutcheson said the department will publish its results Tuesday.

Ms. Spence said Monday that she already had contacted the department to research her files. She hopes they eventually will support her reports.

"I wanted them to look through my files so they could see that what we had was legitimate," she said.

Officials at Rivercrest High School near Bogata last fall received reports from Ms. Spence that six of their 197 students tested HIV-positive.

David Anthony, superintendent of the Mount Pleasant Independent School District said he was told in November that four of the 2,037 students in his junior and senior high schools had the human immunodeficiency virus.

A local newspaper also reported that Paul Hewitt High School in Omaha, Texas, which has grades K-12, had three infected students, Anthony said.

The other rates would be in line with or below national estimates, but the Rivercrest rate would be more than six times the national average.

On Friday, school and health officials began to question the extraordinarily high numbers in Ms. Spence's reports.

Anthony said Ms. Spence told him earlier that she got her numbers from the Department of Health and from students who had talked with her. Ms. Spence said Monday her information comes only from personal interviews with the students.

Texas Department of Health spokesman Doug McBride confirmed Ms. Spence did not get her information from his agency.

The COG's request of the state Health Department follows reports that Ms. Spence was preparing to open a non-profit AIDS education facility in the area.

"I suppose, the main thing is that I'm going through all this to protect the students," she said. "I hope that people will not lose the original purpose of having this brought out, the need for AIDS education."

But Rex Ranes, principal of Paul Hewitt, said Monday, "It appears she's trying to get something going."

Anthony said Ms. Spence's information is too sensitive to go without additional confirmation.

"It could be real, however I have a hard time reacting to an allegation from a single source," he said. "You create an extreme state of paranoia when you tell folks you have four kids who are HIV-positive, not only from the standpoint of parents concerned is it their children, but other children who go to school with those children."

Trade talks opening marked by optimism

DALLAS (AP) - The big push is on for the United States, Canada and Mexico to complete a free trade agreement.

Several hundred negotiators from the three countries, split into 19 subgroups that concentrate on specific issues, are all together for the first time since the trade talks got serious last June.

"We start this effort with great optimism," lead U.S. negotiator Julius Katz said when the weeklong meeting began at the World Trade Center Monday.

The chief task is to resolve several hundred disputes the countries wrote into a first draft of the pact last month.

"The instruction I have is to progress as much as possible for a good agreement for Mexico this week," said Herminio Blanco, the chief Mexican negotiator.

Blanco, Katz and Canada's chief trader John Weekes declined to specify how many differences remain between the countries. Katz said he doubted they could all be resolved during the meetings in Dallas.

The negotiators cited disagreements on farm products, autos and "rules of origin," which govern how much of a product must be made in one of the three countries to be traded freely to the others.

The Bush administration has made the pact a cornerstone of its trade policies. The United States already has a free trade agreement with Canada. The current talks are aimed at creating a North American trade bloc that will rival those emerging in Europe and the Far East.

The U.S.-Canada-Mexico talks have moved much faster than those for the U.S.-Canada treaty, which took effect in 1989 after more than three years of talks.

"The big difference is now we have a free trade agreement to work from," Weekes said. "We know what it looks like. We know what it takes to get it."

About 60 Dallas-area union activists Monday protested the talks, which they said will cause the United States to lose jobs to Mexico.

"We simply can't compete with jobs with an area that works for 40 cents an hour," said Jim McCasland, a local AFL-CIO leader.

Katz said U.S. negotiators were keeping such fears in mind.

Environmental groups also are fighting the proposed agreement. They fear lax enforcement of Mexican pollution laws will harm the environment.

Agricultural parity means the ratio between the price a farmer buys and sells, calculated from the same base period when farm incomes were considered equivalent to income standards of the economy. In the United States, when parity falls below 100 for certain products, the farmer receives a percentage of the actual parity figure from the government.

8th graders win

David Sims of the Hereford eighth grade team puts up a jump hook during the 44-38 win over Levelland Monday.

Levelland wins 2 of 3

Hereford's seventh, eighth and ninth grade A teams played one more game before calling it a season. Three teams from Levelland came to Hereford Monday, and two went home with wins.

Hereford's winner was the eighth grade Maroon team, which grabbed a 13-8 lead after a quarter and held on to win 44-38.

"The whole team just played a good game," Coach John Nino said. "We did a good job with the press the whole game."

The seventh graders, a combination of players from the Maroon team and the White team, lost 35-26 after falling behind 28-12 in the first half.

Coach Rodney Allen said the problem wasn't adjusting to the combined team. "We just woke up in the second half and played really good defense," he said. Hereford allowed one point in the fourth quarter.

The ninth grade team lost 82-58 after falling behind early. They trailed 45-30 at the half. Benton Buckley led the team with 13 points.

Several Hereford teams played in their district tournaments Friday and Saturday. The top finisher was the eighth grade boys' A team, which lost in its championship game.

They fell to VV's A team 37-33. Hereford led 16-14 at the half, but fell behind in the third quarter.

"We wanted to have a good third, but it didn't turn out that way," Coach John Nino said. "We put them in the one-and-one pretty early. That didn't help us any."

"We were ahead by four with about three and a half minutes to go and ended up losing by four," Nino said. "We made a few mental mistakes toward the end of the game that put them back in the game."

Ronald Torres was Hereford's leading scorer with 11 points.

The team's first two games in the tournament (at Dumas) were routs from the beginning: 64-40 over VV's B team and 61-39 over Borger's A team. The leading scorers in the first game were Martin Martinez with 12, Torres and Joe Rickenbaw with 11 and Armando Zambrano and Brian Betzen with eight. In the second game, it was Torres with 12, Betzen with 11, Todd Dudley with nine and Marquise Brown with eight.

The eighth grade B team, the White, was good enough to be one of two B teams to make the A team bracket, but that resulted in three losses.

They started with the VV A team and lost 62-26, with Wade McPherson scoring seven. Their second game was closer, but Canyon A pulled away in the second half to win 60-50. McPherson led again, this time with 16, and Raymond Gonzales added nine.

Their third game was a 41-39 loss to VV B. Hereford trailed 31-24 going into the final quarter and outscored VV 15-10 in the fourth to make it exciting.

"We could have sent it into overtime, but we missed a shot at the buzzer," Coach Henry Perez said.

Kyle Goldsmith led the scoring with 10 points, and McPherson chipped in eight.

The eighth grade girls finished their season Saturday at Valleyview with a 29-25 win over Borger's A team in the third place game.

"During the season, they had beaten us twice," Coach Jane Radford said. "It was a real highlight of the season."

Because of the ski weekend, Hereford combined the A and B teams for the tournament.

Heather Hodges led Hereford's scoring with 12 points, and Shay Henderson sparked the team in the third quarter. Hereford led 11-7 at halftime, but Borger took the lead as Hereford scored only two points in the third. Henderson came in and scored four points at the end of the third to tie the game. Hereford came back and outscored Borger 12-8 in the fourth.

"She did something that helped turn the game to our advantage," Radford said.

Herd wraps up season

Basketball season ends today for Hereford teams. The Whitefaces will host the Borger Bulldogs in three games tonight: sophomore boys at 5; junior varsity at 6:30; and varsity at 8 in Whiteface Gym.

The Herd is 7-22 and is coming off a 60-49 win over Dumas which clinched fifth place (2-7) for Hereford. Borger is fourth at 4-5 in district and 13-16 overall, but a win tonight combined with a Randall win at Caprock would put the 'Dogs in a tie for third.

Hereford to host playoff

Hereford will host a Class 3A girls bi-district playoff game between Canyon and Friona at 7 p.m. Friday in Whiteface Gym.

Canyon is the District 1-3A champion at 10-0 and 23-8 overall. Friona at 8-2 is the 2-3A runner-up behind Dimmitt. Friona is 21-10 overall.

Elvin Hayes of Houston set a record with 222 career rebounds in NCAA post-season basketball tournament competition.

Italians monopolize ski medals

ALBERTVILLE, France (AP) - Alberto Tomba refused to be upstaged by his suddenly famous training partner today - it would not have been La Bomba-esque.

Barely two hours after Deborah Compagnoni snatched the gold from the favorites in the women's super-G, Tomba capped a sensational debut in the 1992 Winter Olympics and became the first repeat Olympic champion of an Alpine ski race by powering to victory in the men's giant slalom.

It was the greatest day ever for Italian skiers. And it made it three gold medals in three Olympic races for the sport's reigning superstar.

He needed a speedy second run to do it.

Luxembourg's Marc Girardelli, a four-time World Cup circuit champion, made a strong bid for his long-sought first gold medal by flashing down the Val d'Isere course into first place on his second run.

But Tomba, skiing last among the top-seeded skiers after posting the fastest time in the morning run, overcame an early slip to do it again in the afternoon. He won by .32 seconds in a combined 2:06.98.

Girardelli won his second silver in Albertville and Norway's Kjetil Andre Aamodt took a bronze to go with his surprise gold from the super-G.

Italy now has won a record three skiing gold and can make it four in Saturday's slalom. Josef Polig led that country's 1-2 finish last week in the Alpine combined.

Compagnoni temporarily stole the spotlight from Tomba by cruising to a surprisingly wide victory over French favorite Carole Merle in the women's super-G.

Merle, the career leader with nine World Cup victories in the event, appeared to have won when no one in the group of top 15 seeds could match her time of 1 minute, 22.63 seconds on a frosty day on the "Roc de Fer" course.

But Compagnoni, who won the last super-G before the Olympics, skied next and crossed the finish line a whopping 1.43 seconds faster, flashing a huge smile when her time was posted. That left Germany's Katja Seizinger with the bronze and bumped Austrian Petra Kronberger, the two-time defending World Cup champion and Alpine combined gold medalist, out of a medal by a hundredth of a second.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last year you printed my letter about panic attacks. I am thrilled to tell you that I have improved enormously.

First, I faced the problem. Then I became educated about the illness and decided to talk about it with the people who were closest to me. To my amazement, I discovered that several family members and friends also suffered from panic attacks.

I joined a support group and attribute much of my success to talking with people who have conquered the problem. One of my principal comforts is re-reading the Golden Rules for Coping With Panic. Of all the material I have read, this is the most reassuring and helpful. I carry these rules with me and read them every day. It is not an exaggeration to say they saved my life. Here they are--Panic Attack Recoverer, Little Rock, Ark.

Golden Rules For Coping With Panic

1. Remember that although your feelings and symptoms are frightening, they are neither dangerous nor harmful.

2. Understand that what you are experiencing is merely an exaggeration of your normal reactions to stress.

3. Do not fight your feelings or try to wish them away. The more willing you are to face them, the less intense they will become.

4. Don't add to your panic by thinking about what "might happen" if you find yourself asking, "What if?" tell yourself, "So what!"

5. Stay in the present. Be aware of what is happening to you rather than concern yourself with how much worse it might get.

6. Label your fear level from zero to 10 and watch it go up and down. Notice that it doesn't stay at a very high level for more than a few seconds.

7. When you find yourself thinking about fear, change your "what if" thinking. Focus on and perform some simple, manageable task.

8. Notice that when you stop thinking frightening thoughts your anxiety fades.

9. When fear comes, accept it, don't fight it. Wait and give it time to pass. don't try to escape from it.

10. Be proud of the progress you've made. Think about how good you will feel when the anxiety has passed and you are in total control and at peace.

DEAR ARK.: I'm sure you've helped many people today. Thank you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: While my wife and I were dating, we got along fine. After six months, I moved in. We lived together for two years and got along well. Then I let her talk me into getting married.

The trouble started when she quit her job. Her clothes got tighter and tighter. Then she began to make excuses when I wanted to get romantic. Before marriage, she was an eager participant. Now she just lies there like a gunnysack while I do all the work. That's right--now it's work.

By the time I get her motor started,

I've lost interest in the trip.

Two years have passed. My wife has gone from a size 10 to 24. Her favorite three words are "Let's Eat Out." I tried everything to get "Big Edna" interested in taking off some weight. Nothing works. Her idiot doctor says her metabolism has slowed down, which is to be expected at her age (40). Any advice?--Dizzgusted

DEAR DIZZ: You and your wife need joint counseling. A lot of couples continue to have loving sexual relationships even when one partner is overweight. Find out what the REAL problem is and hopefully "Big Edna" will work with you on trying to fix it.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box. 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Hints from Heloise

TOMATO SOUP

Q. Do you have a recipe for making good ole tomato soup? -- Harriet P., Boston, Mass.

A. Here ya go! You will need to cook 1 quart of peeled tomatoes (you can use fresh or canned) in a saucepan over medium heat until they are soft. After cooking, strain off any seeds and mash any remaining lumps.

Bring the tomatoes to a boil and add a pinch of baking soda. Next, add 1 quart of hot boiled milk and salt and pepper to taste. Last, add 3 tablespoons of butter and rolled cracker crumbs (optional). Heat through and serve. Bon appetit. -- Heloise

HAMBURGER PATTIES

Dear Heloise: I make hamburgers for the freezer in small plastic bags and stack them in a large round oatmeal box. Making the patties in the bags keeps my hands clean and the hamburgers separated.

The container will hold about a dozen patties that when frozen separate easily from each other and I don't have to thaw all of them out when I only need a couple. -- Jane Ryan, Avon, N.Y.

A good idea, but may I add be sure to put the oatmeal container in a freezer-safe plastic bag since it really isn't made to protect food from freezer burn.

Colby Fangman, son of Donnie and Karen Fangman, attended the National Congressional Youth Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C. Jan. 21-26. Fangman was among 350 other high school students from across the nation to attend. During his stay, he had the opportunity to visit with Larry Combest.

Fangman attends conference

Hereford High School student, Colby Fangman, son of Donnie and Karen Fangman, recently attended the National Congressional Youth Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C.

Fangman, who was among 350 high school students from across the nation to attend, became familiar with parliamentary procedure and legislation. He also participated in a mock congress on gun control and toured many historical sites at the nation's capitol.

The youth met numerous government officials, including Larry Combest, and visited the Saudi Arabia embassy.

Nutrition topic of program

Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Extension agent, was the guest speaker at the Cultural Extension Homemakers Club meeting Feb. 14 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

During her program entitled "The Great Pyramid", Harder listed the main food groups, emphasized the importance of proper eating, and explained how to use the pyramid method to eat healthy.

Wilma Goettsch voiced a prayer and the pledges of the flags were led by Naomi Hare. Guests were introduced by Jewel Hargrave, and Goettsch presented the opening exercise by reading, "Cooking Is Dangerous." Roll call was answered with "the food that I eat that's best for me."

During the business meeting with Perry Keyes presiding, minutes were read by Fannie Townsend. Argen Draper noted program suggestions and Vernis Parsons reported sending eight cards since the previous meeting.

The Annual Appreciation Luncheon, sponsored by The Hereford Brand, will be held at noon Monday, Feb. 24, at the Hereford Community Center. The club will have exhibits and members voted to furnish meat for the event. Also, members volunteered to help clean up and it was suggested that each club member bring a dish to serve 10-12 people.

The council report and its recommendations were given by Goettsch. Members voted on each.

Those present were Parsons, S.T. Walton, Nell Pope, Hargrave, Goettsch, Carrie Mae Doak, Jewell Rogers, Winnie Wiseman, Naomi Hare, Edna Marnell, Daisy Steele, Keyes and Townsend.

Special guests included Argen Draper, Louise Axe, Mary Lou Aven and Harder.

Pioneer Study Club continues its study

Members of Pioneer Study Club met recently at the Caison House Restaurant to continue their study for the year, "Visions of the 21st Century."

President Rosemary Thomas opened the meeting. Catherine Gripp led the opening prayer and Maria Escamilla led the Pledge of Allegiance and the Salute to the Texas Flag.

A letter of appreciation was read from Dr. Everett M. Sherwood, President of Volunteers of the Veterans Administration Hospital, for the donations to the Christmas gift fund and that of clothing, cards and stamps.

Billee Johnson reported from the Mothers Park committee that the historical marker has been moved to the west side of the park. The committee met with Johnny Carr, city park superintendent, and made plans for the coming year. The club members will plant bluebonnet seeds this month and rake up trash with the city hauling it off. The city will also install a water meter.

Mrs. Johnson reminded the group that the framed deed of ownership is located in the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum. It was also announced that Mary Parker, Hereford High School Student Council sponsor, will be contacted to remove the "We Care" ribbons at Mothers Park and place them in Dameron Park.

Deaf Smith County Librarian Rebecca Walls reported that the library has a need for four tutors to teach in Spanish and English. Walls will be invited to the club meeting in April.

The health committee from the Department of Home Life Chairman Mary Jane Burrus reported that 100 or more women are in need of "Baby's First Gift."

The GWFC report given by Willie Wimberly from the President of GWFC urged that the club emphasize leadership training and good health practices. Wimberly stated that Pioneer Study Club's programs for next year needed to address the subjects of art, women's history, and crime and domestic violence.

For "My Turn", Fern Sigle quoted Ralph Waldo Emerson, "There is no scale or chart to measure what a friend is worth," after which she read several poems from "A Book of Friendship, A Celebration On the Joy of a Friend."

For the program on international affairs, Helen Langley presented "Culture and Religion of the Arabs." Langley began the presentation with the Biblical reading from Genesis in which Hagar, concubine of Abram, conceived and bore his child called Ishmael. Mohammed began his time as a prophet and teacher in the year 1 July 622 A.D. Langley used material from "Islam and the Arab World" and the Atlantic Monthly article, "The Roots of Muslim Rage" by Bernard Lewis.

Langley pointed out important contributions made by the Persians including poetry, literature, mathematics, medicine, pharmacy, beautiful works of art in weaving, as well as meal work. Persia was supreme in the art of the book in calligraphy, bookbinding, illumination and illustration, also tooling and emboss-

Langley concluded her presentation by quoting from President John Tyler in which he wrote in a letter to a friend, "The United States has adventured upon a great and noble experiment, which is believed to have beneficial in the absence of all previous precedent—that of total separation of church and state."

Bernard Lewis stated that, "We must strive to achieve a better appreciation of other religion and political cultures, through study of their history, culture and achievements."

In conclusion, club members repeated the motto, "Wisely training the physical, mental, oral and spiritual nature maketh a perfect man."

Lynn Dawson was welcomed as a new member. Others attending were Burrus, Nell Culpepper, Escamilla, Gripp, Oleta Hoffman, Johnson, Langley, Mary Panciera, Mildred Sheffy, Sigle, Thomas and Wimberly.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I am desperate to find out if there is a way to dye a raw silk dress that has been rubbed too much and has lost some of its color. The dress is red and one of my favorites. Thank you for your help.

— Andrea Bates, Houston, Texas

A. According to our friends at the International Fabricare Institute, rubbing a silk garment breaks the surface yarns and can cause permanent damage. They don't recommend dyeing raw silk yourself, but you might be able to find a professional who can do it for you. Take it to a dry cleaner and explain exactly what happened. They may be able to cover the spot for you. However, there is a chance the spot will still show.

— Heloise

BEDRIDDEN HELP

Dear Heloise: Because of my wife's illness, she spends most of the time in bed. I have wired a doorbell button to the headboard of her bed. This rings the back-door chime to let me know when she needs me.

I also wired a "panic" button to call me if I'm outside. — D.A. Buell, Pasadena, Texas

What a smart and practical idea. My best wishes to your wife for good health. — Heloise

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am writing this letter in desperation. My friend saw an article in the paper some time back about an operation that could be performed on one's throat to keep them from snoring. I was recently married, and my husband snores so bad. I'm such a light sleeper, I can't sleep in the house. Do you have any information on this operation that you could send me? I need help.

DEAR READER: If your husband's only problem is snoring, surgery seems like a rather drastic solution. Snoring can be a symptom of problems, but not everyone who snores needs an operation. If the snoring is loud and accompanied with short, frequent periods of not breathing, then it has important medical implications and needs attention. Such individuals may have sleep apnea that increases the risk of heart attacks and can result in such poor sleep that the person is tired the following day. The operation you are asking about consists of cutting away the excess folds of tissue at the back of the throat, to keep the airway more open at night during sleep. Another approach is to do a tracheostomy, cutting a hole in the windpipe just below the voice box. The hole allows air to be inhaled and exhaled directly without going through the throat. The hole is closed during the day. These are important procedures for individuals with sleep apnea.

However, today, most people with sleep apnea are treated with a nose mask that provides continuous air flow under some pressure throughout the night.

President William McKinley often wore an immaculate white vest, changing it several times a day, and there was always a red carnation in his buttonhole.
