Valley View plans April start-up

By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

* Hustlin' Hereford,

April on the long-delayed Valley View Energy Corporation biomass generation facility east of Hereford.

electricity to provide five percent—and operation of the plant. of the power needs of the City of Austin.

Bob Isaac, secretary and Power Partnership, Ltd., of Dallas, announced Monday at a meeting of the Deaf Smith County Industrial Development Corporation and at the county commissioners' court meeting that construction could begin by mid-April on the $150 million facility

The plant should employ about 300 persons during the peak of construction, and will employ from 55 to 85 persons when complete-hopefully, according to Isaac, by mid-1990

'We are cautiously optimistic that were are about to see this project come to fruition," Isaac said. "we have had a lot of ups and downs over the last couple of years, and the economy didn't help us. The downturn in the economy caused one of the previous partners to pull out just when it was breaking."

The parties involved in the cor-consortium of investors; Southern Work is expected to begin in Electric International, which operates utilities in three southeastern states; and Edwin L. Cox Jr.

The massive downturn in the state's economy and the leeriness of investors, including major general counsel of Hereford banks, to hold a multi-million dollar stake in any type of energyrelated development, has continually postponed the project.

> Isaac said Monday that Citicorp, the original issuer of the letter of credit to cover $97 million worth of bond and the lead bank of several financial groups in the deal, backed out of the plan two years ago "because of a change in direction of where the bank wanted to invest." Isaac said.

That forced Valley View to find another bank to issue a letter of

They are providing the actual funds for construction," Isaac said. "We wouldn't be here today if they weren't ready to go with us. We wanted to be sure this was coming about before we wasted anyone's time again, or make people feel used or manipulated. We wouldn't be here today if we didn't feel we are finally going to see this thing happen.'

Also delaying the project was a merger between Fluor Corp. and The Daniel Corp. Daniel was going to be the lead contractor for the plant, but the Fluor-Daniel merger led to another corporate direction change-the new company decided not to participate in the project.

Southern has already entered into a contract with Combustion Engineering for the major piece of the plant-a boiler which will contain a circluating, fluidized bed of ash to "cook" the manure. The "cooking" process will generate steam to turn a turbine generator. A contract is expected. soon on construction of the tur-

The cooking process has also been the subject of change

The original process was developed by The Bechtel Corporation and has been field-tested in Europe "with manure shipped from Deaf Smith County to sites overseas," Isaac said. However, engineers felt that the Bechtelmuch sodium chloride--salt-being produced inside the boiler. that would lead to corrosion problems. The boiler will be designed to use lower temperatures and

The boiler is also designed to use other fuels in case manure is found unsuitable for use as a fuel.

"That would be a worst-case scenario (to find manure is unsuitable)," Isaac said. "The bank jsut wanted this to fall back on in case manure doesn't work. This is financed with manure as the primary fuel and we will use manure as long as it is feasible."

Isaac says that Valley View has invested "significantly into the millions of dollars" into engineering and research and is firmly convinced manure will be the plant's fuel ource for the life of the facility

We have been trustrated over the years, and have met many times about this plant," said Mike Carr, executive vice president of the Deat Smith County Chamber of Commerce this is now the bottom of the minth sinnings and are hope that the actions today will bring about the final score."

We would have liked to have had the game over a couple of years ago " said I saac - We want this project to come about "

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

A hospital is a terrible thing to waste

Depending on which mumble you care to understand, Gerry Hollinger was fired as director of nursing at Deaf Smith General Hospital for lack of competence or lack of confidence. Either is a ludicrous excuse.

If there are other excuses, legitimate excuses, or whatever, please, Deaf Smith County Hospital

District Board of Directors, let us

And please save us all if there were no undocumented reasons for firing

Sure, Gerry had enemies. You supervise enough people, run off a few, get enough personalities that don't exactly mesh with yours, and you'll have enemies

It seems he had many more friends than he had enemies, judging from the letters to the editor, comments in board meetings, coffee shops, and phone calls. One critical person said all Gerry does is stand there and talk when he goes on an ambulance run. Good. Soothe those people, ease their minds-and make sure the work gets done. Maybe it was the other guy who did all of the work, but Gerry is remembered by all of these people because he helped pull everyone, not just the unfortunate victim, through their shared peril.

Rumors are abundant about the reasons Gerry was asked to resign in reality, fired. Maybe tonight those rumors will be addressed instead of being pushed under some rug labeled "Matter for executive session" or "Could be the subject of litigation."

Or is the reason really no reason at all? Did our hospital board, a group of six individuals that is supposed to represent the will of the electorate, really just want to get rid of a man that didn't cater to one person's, an underling's, request?

Is the reason some type of prejudice that may have been aired in a staff meeting'

Is the reason that our emergency medical system was so good that we dare not take it out of competent hands while it was still in the hands of someone who made that system one of the very best in the state?

Is the reason that Gerry was a care-giver instead of a brown-noser? These are questions that should be answered at tonight's hospital board meeting. I would bet the dear old farm that they will not be addressed tonight or anytime before May 19.

Please, let us know what the man has done wrong

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

We would like to know why Gerry Hollinger was asked to resign. We cannot accept that it was because of incompetence, there are too many people in Hereford who thank Gerry and the ambulance crew for their hard work and dedication. Neither can we accept that he was not doing his job at the hospital. There have been too many times that he was there at all hours of the day and night, trying to maintain a high standard of care for those of us in Hereford.

We would like to ask Mr. Moore just how many hours he has put into that hospital. We dare say that it pales in comparison to Gerry's hard work and dedication. It would be a crime for the board to let Gerry Hollinger resign. They might just need his emergency services some day. Sincerely.

If you want high-grade work, call a reliable contractor. Of course, it will cost you more, but it will be worth it. Put stock in that old saying, "You get what you pay for."

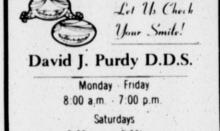

Another problem is those thirdrate outfits that hire low-ballers because they can start work tomorrow, or they con the boss into believing they can keep costs down by not carrying insurance.

Tell your readers who want Grade A work to contact their local trade associations, such as the National Association of Home Builders, or the National Association of the Remodeling Industry, Associated Builders and Contractors. Also, it wouldn't hurt to call the Better Business Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce and find out if the person they plan to hire is a member in good standing and what kind of performance record he (or she) has. DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding the dilemma: To take the cotton out of the bottle of aspirin or leave it in: Take it out. There is no "active ingredient;; in aspirin, as your reader stated. The aspirin itself is combined with a filler.

The cotton, if left in the bottle, will absorb moisture and hasten the breaking down of the tablet into the two substances from which it is made. P.S. If the aspirin smells like vinegar, it has decomposed. Don't use it.-S.M., Chemistry Professor,

Herd wins baseball tourney

A great weekend of pitching, hitting and base stealing powered the Hereford Whiteface varsity baseball team to three victories and the championship in the Dumas Invitational Baseball Tournament.

Hereford defeated Pampa 8-5 on Friday, and beat Dumas 12-2 and defeated Borger 8-3 on Saturday. Hereford had 30 hits and 20 stolen bases for the three games combined.

The victories upped Hereford's season record to 8-0. The Whitefaces return to District 1-4A play today at home against Dumas, at 4 p.m.

"Throughout the tournament, we had outstanding pitching, we had excellent hitting overall, and total aggression on the bases," Hereford Coach T.R. Sartor said.

Leading hitters for the Herd included Michael Phibbs, who went four-for-eight; Derrell Page, fourfor-nine; Robby Collier, five-for-11; and Keith Brown, four-for-11.

The Whitefaces had nine stolen bases in the 8-3 championship game win over Borger, including three each by Collier and Bill Ruckman.

Hereford starting pitcher James Hernandez struck out 11 of the 12 Borger batters he faced in his four innings of work. He allowed one hit and walked one batter.

Meanwhile, Hernandez and his teammates were building up a 5-0 lead in those innings. Page batted in two runners with a single in the first inning, including Rodney McCracken who had doubled. Brown hit an RBI double in the second inning, Hernandez drove in a run on a groundout in the third inning, and Ruckman singled and stole two bases in the fourth inning before scoring on a sacrifice fly by Phibbs. Hereford added two runs in the fifth inning. Page and Russell

Backus began the inning with singles, and Page and courtesy runner Glenn Parker each had stolen bases. Driving in the runs were Ross Torres on a fielder's choice and Ruckman on a single.

In the sixth inning, Collier doubled, stole third base, and scored on an error on a ball hit by Page.

Backus pitched two innings for the Herd, and Collier pitched one inning. The combined pitching statistics for Hernandez, Backus, and Collier were 14 strikeouts, four hits, five walks, and two earned runs.

Clint Cotten pitched for the Whitefaces in their first tournament game. Cotten allowed just one earned run in Hereford's 8-5 win over

Cotten recorded four strikeouts,

The Whitefaces had 10 hits in the game, including two each by Collier and Brown. Collier hit a two-run single in the first inning after Parker and Phibbs had successfully executed a double steal.

Collier later scored on an error, and Page, who had reached base on that error, scored the fourth run of the game for the Herd on a fielder's choice RBI by Torres.

Hereford upped its lead to 6-0 in the third inning. Page walked, Cotten singled, Torres hit an RBI single, and Ruckman batted in a run on a groundout. Pampa scored twice in the fourth inning, and once in each of the last three innings.

A pair of insurance runs were scored by Hereford in the bottom of the fourth. Brown singled, stole second base, went to third base on a wild pitch, and scored on Collier's double. Page singled to drive home

Jason Scott struck out nine Dumas batters in five innings pitched to lead Hereford to its 12-2 victory on Saturday. Scott allowed just one hit and walked four batters in the game that ended after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Phibbs went three-for-four with two RBIs, and Torres was two-forthree with three RBIs to lead

Hereford in hitting.

Dumas gained a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a double steal, but the rest of the game was Hereford's. Torres doubled with the bases loaded in the second inning to give Hereford a 2-1 lead. All three of the runners on base had walked.

Dumas' only hit of the game, a single, came in the third inning to score one run.

Phibbs singled in the third inning, stole second base, and scored on a fielder's choice. Roger McCracken was credited with an RBI on the

Our Best Friends Are Cutting Us lo Pieces.

Our best friends don't always give us the best treatment. Typically, they invite us into their homes, read us like a book, take what they need from us, and put us aside to use again at their convenience.

It's a tough existence, but we don't mind. In fact, we like it. The news, editorials, and advertising coupons clipped from our pages provide our readers with knowledge, enlightenment, even an occasional 30¢ off on breakfast cereal. We're kind of flattered that people enjoy hanging onto bits and pieces of us - sometimes for years. That's something no other local advertising medium can offer. So, although our friends keep cutting us to pieces, we'll keep showing up at their homes. Our only request: sharp scissors and a steady hand.

Lifesaving Technique Learned

Jacquie Tohn portrays a choking victim while 'rescuer' Jamie Simpson attempts to save her using the Heimlich Maneuver. They and other sixth graders at West Central School learned the technique aimed at disloding an obstruction from a choking victim's airway. Taking pointers from the rescue effort are, from left, Haley Lockmiller, Tammy Hyer, Jill Walser, Kinann Campbell, and Edward Barrientez. Red Cross personnel taught the students and still have a variety classes available through March, which has been designed by President Reagan as American Red Cross Month.

Keepsake dolls dressed in gowns identical to brides'

NORTH BRANCH, Minn. (AP) -Darlene Studer went to London to visit - not the queen, but the Duchess of York.

Studer, who runs Heirlooms for Brides out of her North Branch home, for the past eight years has been dressing dolls in formal attire designed identical to gowns worn by brides who are to receive the special

Several celebrities have Studer's dolls among their wedding keepsakes, including Sarah Ferguson, Duchess of York and wife of England's Prince Andrew.

"The doll involved 100 hours of labor with 8,350 pearls and handsewn beads and sequins and also included a specially designed ring, tiara, jewelry and bouquet," said

Studer. In June, Studer received a letter from Buckingham Palace: "Her Royal Highness would be delighted to receive the doll you have made."

Studer and her husband, Del, immediately made plans for the trip to London in late September.

"I did not get to meet the duchess," she said, "as they were leaving on state business the next morning and were very busy with wardrobe fittings. My husband and I were invited into the palace and he took a photo after I assembled the doll. The lady-in-waiting told me it would be put in a showcase right there in Buckingham Palace."

Studer has been featured in Modern Bride magazine and in the "Life in America" segment of a recent issue of Star magazine. She also has appeared on local and national television shows.

When Studer read about the forthcoming marriage of Maria Shriver and actor Arnold Schwarzenegger, she decided to make a doll for the bride. With attire accurate in every detail, the doll went to Shriver at the CBS Morning News show, where she was then the anchorwoman.

Shriver called to thank Studer and inquired about ordering a doll for a

"I was kind of hoping the friend was Caroline Kennedy, who was planning to marry Edwin Schlossberg a short time later," Studer said. She was right. Shriver ordered a bridal doll for her cousin Caroline.

Could she design the gown from a sketch? She could, and did.

"I had 48 hours to get it done and in the mail in time for Caroline to receive it on her wedding day," Studer said.

Kennedy's gown featured shamrocks appliqued over the dropped-waist torso, sleeves, train and a headpiece.

"Luckily, I happened to have a yard of lace with four-leaf clovers," Studer said. "I had to cut a leaf off each clover and sew them on. Then I ran out of lace and had to run to the Twin Cities, but the store no longer carried that pattern, so I had to take five-leaf clovers and do more snipping."

The train on the doli gown extended 50 inches and was "a tough job," as was duplicating pearl and diamond drop earrings, plus orchids and stephanotis for the bouquet, Studer said.

Of course, most of her dolls are dressed for non-celebrity brides. Studer's work started with the marriage of one of her daughters about eight years ago.

"I had made her wedding gown, so I decided to use the fabric that was left to make a replica to dress a doll. A local bank was sponsoring a doll contest, so I entered it and won the grand prize. I did the same thing when my second daughter was married and won the grand prize again," she said.

After that, Studer entered a bridesmaid doll and again was judged the top winner. In fact, she took top honors in that contest for eight straight years. Although she frequently works from photographs, Studer prefers to see the gown, since accuracy in NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Star Walk now has country singer Dolly Parton's footprints, handprints and a small rhinestone butterfly - and that's all it's going to get.

"Several people asked me if I was going to leave the prints of something else. I said, 'Heavens no!' I'm afraid some little kid might fall in it and get killed," the buxom entertainer said with a giggle during ceremonies Tuesday attended by about 200 people.

Star Walk, a year-old attraction at a new outdoor shopping complex, honors country artists who have won Grammy awards.

ATLANTA (AP) - A new medication has been discovered by researchers that may eventually prevent the damage done by osteoarthritis, according to Arthritis Today.

It says the medication was found by researchers in Miami, Fla.

The chief characteristics of osteoarthritis, the most common form of arthritis, is the breakdown of cartilage, the elastic material that covers the ends of bone and acts as a shock absorber. In initial laboratory tests, an experimental substance known as arteparon successfully reduced cartilage breakdown in

Although at least several more years of study is needed, the magazine says the drug offers some hope for eventually reducing the effects of osteoarthritis in humans.

Question: I receive SSI payments and plan to move to another State soon. Will I have to apply for SSi all over again?

Answer: No, but be sure to tell Social Security when you move so your checks can be sent to your new address. Also, the amount of your check may change since some States add money to the Fedearl payment. Question: My aunt is 71. Her only income is a small Social Security check-I think it's about $320 a month. Would she be eligible for the supplemental security income pro-

Answer: It's very possible. The SSI program makes payments to people who are 65 or older, blind, or disabled and meet certain income and resource limits. If her only income is 320 a month she would meet the income limit. If she doesn't own a lot of resources, she may be eligible. The best way to find out is call my Social Security office.

Question: I don't have Medicare medical insurance, but I do have Medicare hospital insurance. Will the latter pay my doctor's bill if he treats me while I'm in the hospital?

Answer: No. Hospital insurance does not cover your doctor's services even though you receive them in the hospital. To get your doctor's services covered you will first have to sign up for medical insurance during a general enrollment period. A general enrollment period is held January 1 through March 31 of each vear.

Question: I've never worked in jobs that were covered by Social Security. I heard that even though I don't have any Social Security credits, I can still get Medicare. How do I arrange this?

Answer: You can get Medicare hospital insurance at age 65 by signing up for it and paying the monthly oremium. If you buy Medicare hospital insurance, you also have to Have you a question about Social sign up for Medicare medical insurance and pay its premiums. You should get in touch with any Social Security office at least 3 months before you reach 65 so that your protection will start as soon as you're eligible.

Question: I recently took a bad fall and injured by back. Will Medicare pay for my chiropractor treatment?

Answer: Medicare medical insurance helps pay for only one kind of treatment furnished by a licensed and Medicare-certified chiropractor. The only treatment that can be covered is manual manipulation of the spine to correct a partial or complete dislocation that can be demonstrated by X-ray. Medical insurance does not pay for any other diagnostic or therapeutic services, including X-rays, furnished by a chiropractor.

Question: My Social Security check is deposited directly in my bank account. If my mailing address changes is it necessary to contact

Social Security? If so, why? Answer: Yes. You must notify Social Security of any change of address whether or not you have direct deposit. When necessary Social Security sends you notices and other information by mail. They also may need to contact you to make sure you continue to be eligible for benefits. If you cannot be located, Social Security may stop your benefits until they can find you.

Question: I plan to retire from my full time job but I also plan to take a part-time job. Will this affect my Social Security benefits?. If so, how?

Answer: It all depends on the amount of your earnings. Under the Social Security law you are allowed to earn a certain amount of earnings, which is called an exempt amount. This year it's $6,120 for people under 65 and $8,400 for people 65 through 69. Your benefits will not be affected until your earnings reach the exempt amount. Your benefits will be reduced $1 for each $2 of earnings above this limit. By the way, the exempt amount is adjusted every year to keep pace with average wage levels.

Question: As a worker, what Social Security changes should I be concerned about for 1988?

Answer: This year, the Social Security tax rate is 7.51 percent. The maximum amount of earnings subject to Social Security taxes is $45,000. You will earn 1 quarter of coverage for each $470 of your covered earnings up to maximum of 4 quarters for the year.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

Texas' Achilles heel once again stands exposed as world oil prices slump and some experts warn that another oilprice free fall may be on the way. No one needs anymore to establish the connection between oil prices and Texas' economy. Our dependence on energy is self-When oil prices began to stagnate in the early part of this decade, Texas' economy went from booming to sluggish. When oil prices tumbled to $10 per barrel in 1986, our economy went into a full-fledged recession.

Oil prices recovered in 1987. and our economy turned the corner. Our current condition is far from perfect, but it is showing a few signs of its old vigor. Unemployment no longer is in double digits, sales in some sectors are on the rise and most people generally agree the worst is behind us. Now comes the news that oil is in trouble again. The slippage in prices was barely noticeable first. Oil had been hovering at $18 per barrel on the cash markets; suddenly, it was at $16, and then $15.

This doesn't necessarily mean disaster is at hand, you understand. The prices we quote are for West Texas Intermediate Crude, the premium grade of U.S. oil, and they are the cash market prices. Not all oil produced in this state is West Texas Intermediate and very little actually is sold on the cash markets. Most oil is sold on a contract basis, and contract prices generally lag behind the cash

Still, Texans can't help but get a queasy feeling when they read that the oil ministers from OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) may hold a summit meeting to discuss strategy for halting the oil price decline Little good news comes to Texas from such meetings

We presume you're just as tired as we are of worrying every time we read the oil price quotations in the daily newspaper and of being concerned about the strategy foreigners devise for our economy. It's frustrating when matters appear to be out of your own hands. But: this is where the gold news comes in Our economy has reached a point where we can regain contrôl over our own destiny.

First, we can continue the aggressive economic development policy of the past several years. Texas will become invulnerable to the volatile world oil market only after we diminish our dependence on oil as the engine for our econo-

Diversification is the key, and Texas and Panhandle-Plams region have taken some positive steps in that direction. In our part of the state, we fought for and successfully attracted a major De partment of Corrections facility and waged a spirited battle for the superconducting supercollider You can be certain more economic development activity is on the way

Next we must work to shore up those industries that are lagging. especially energy and agriculture. We have pushed hard for federal and state energy policies that utilize existing tools like the tax codes to encourage increased domestic production. And we will continue our efforts to implement reasonable, cost-effective programs to put the agriculture sector back on its feet: Those two things economic diversification and economic enhancement will go a long way toward restoring Texas to its traditional position as a national economic leader: If you have questions about the state of the Texas economy, or other issues please write us at P.O. Box 12068: Austin, Texas. 78711.

Back pain problems can be prevented

Backaches are as ordinary as the and your spine straight. If you sit for common cold. But unlike a cold, back pain is often preventable.

If you suffer from backaches, you have a lot of company. According to the American Medical Association and insurance company data, eight of 10 Americans will experience back problems during the course of their lifetime and some 22 million are affectedby back discomfort during the course of a year.

"Although the statistics are staggering, the problem of back pain is certainly not unbeatable," maintains Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health educator. "Fewer than 20% of back problems are caused by diseases of the bones and joints of the back; the remaining 80% are due to poor daily lifestyle habits."

"What most people don't realize is that it doesn't take some drastic event, like lifting a heavy object, to produce back problems. They often occur after years of sitting, standing, lifting or doing common choes improperly," she adds.

Huessner, who is a specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, offers the following suggestions for avoiding back injury;

-Lifting. Hold the item close to you so it doesn't pitch you spine forward. Bend your knees so your legs do most of the work and hold your back straight as you lift.

-Sitting. Sit to the back of chairs and keep your back well-supported long periods of time, put your feet on a footstool, phone book or some other object to take the pressure off the lower back. Try to change position or redistribute your weight at least every 45 minutes.

-Standing. When you must stand for long periods, put one foot on a small stool or box to release the stress on your spine.

-Lying down. Recline on your side with knees and hips flexed so your body is partially curled. Or sleep on the back with one or two pillows under the knees. Avoid sleeping on your stomach or in any position which twists the spine.

The specialist observes that a lack of fitness also contributes to back problems.

"One of the major causes of back pain is a combination of poor muscle tone, weak muscles and lack of flexibility. Exess weight also shifts the body's center of gravity and puts an added strain on the back, especially if the extra pounds are carried around the midsection," she ex-

Having a healthier back is another good reason to become involved in a general fitness and weight control program.

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent Slow Cooker Safety

Early spring days prompt methods of cookery to free people from the kitchen. Slow cooker is one option chosen.

How safe is food prepared in a slow cooker? If it's done properly, slow cooking is safe. The potential problem in using a cooker is the time it takes the pot to heat to bacteriakilling temperatures, which is generally about two hours.

For tasty-and safe-slow-cooked dishes, remember these precautions:

-Keep perishable foods refrigerated until you're ready to use them. Refrigeration prevents rapidly reproducing bacteria from getting a head start in the two hour danger

-Don't use frozen meat or poultry. It takes longer for frozen foods to reach bacteria-killing temperatures. Using frozen meat or poultry can also result in undercooking since the cooking times given in most recipes are based on thawed ingredients.

-Don't overload the cooker. Portions of meat or vegetables rising above the cooking area won't fully cook. Also, when too much food is stuffed into the pot, it will take longer to cook it thoroughly. Since overloading can delay cooking and make thorough cooking uncertain, it raises the chance of bacterial

-Don't use a cooker for large cuts of meat, like a roast. Even after the pot reaches temperatures hot enough to destroy bacteria on the roast's outside, it'll take longer for these temperatures to penetrate to the center of the roast. As a result, it may be undercooked.

-Don't use a slow cooker to heat leftovers. They need to be reheated at a high temperature to kill bacteria. Reheating leftovers in the cooker spells danger because the pot doesn't heat fast enough.
