Committee eyes foster group home

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

A steering committee, now called Hereford Childrens Services, for a proposed Deaf Smith County juvenile emergency shelter decided Thursday that a foster group home would offer more flexibility than an emergency shelter.

"The emergency shelter would be a good benefit to all of us," said Fred Seale, regional director for the Texas Department of Human Resources in Lubbock, "but every now and then you get a child who needs more than an emergency shelter."

The shelter, which is co-sponsored by the county and Buckner's Children Home, could only house eight beds for juveniles waiting on adjudication. The shelter also would limit the juveniles' stay to 30 days with an extension up to 60 days.

The foster group home, however, could house up to 13 juveniles permanently, and the home could also serve as an emergency shelter if needed.

Colleen Duffy, Deaf Smith County juvenile probation officer, said the proposed foster group home would not cost more than the juvenile emergency shelter.

In the committee's search for a vacant building suitable to renovate for the home, Duffy, former county judge Glen Nelson, Mayor Wes Fisher, and Joan Long with Buckner's Childrens Home in Lubbock were elected to gather choices for the site.

Buildings already mentioned were the McMorries and Associates building north of town, available for $175,000 and the Fullwood Building downtown, at an estimated cost of $105,000 including needed roof repair.

Buckner's Childrens Home agreed in previous meetings to incur the cost of renovating or constructing the facility.

"The Lubbock emergency shelter ran into some financial problems when they renovated a building because they ended up spending more money on the renovation than if they would have built from the ground up," said Bruce Burnett, a representative with Buckner's Childrens Home.

Burnett also suggested that if the subcommittee did not find a suitable building to renovate, it might consider purchasing land on which to build the facility.

Alva Lee Peeler, director of Big Brothers-Big Sisters, said, "I want the subcommittee to be careful in its selection of a building. We want a facility that's like home which will be good for Hereford. We don't need a piece of junk where we just stick kids."

Fire spreads near Albany

ALBANY, Texas (AP) — A raging brush fire 35 miles long and six miles wide roared across a vast area of West Texas early today, scorching an estimated 135,000 acres, a Shackelford County official says.

There have been no serious injuries and most homes in the path of the roaring fire have been saved by the hundreds of firemen battling the blaze, Lawrence Winkler, information officer of the Shackelford County Emergency Management team, said.

The firefighters suffered only some minor burns although they kept in close contact with the fire during the night, Winkler said.

"It's been a miracle, so far," he said.

Texas National Guardsmen, ordered by Gov. Bill Clements to help local authorities battle the blaze, joined an estimated 14-15 West Texas fire departments. The firefighters used nearly 50 pieces of fire equipment, Winkler said.

Some of the fire equipment was lost to the roaring blaze, mainly because firefighters were working in darkness, Winkler said.

At times during the night, Winkler said, the blaze could be seen as far as 35 miles away.

Best junior spellers

Heather Kleuskens, left, finished first and David Vermillion finished second in the Deaf Smith County junior spelling bee Thursday. Today, students are competing in the senior bee, with that winner to compete in the regional spelling bee at West Texas State University in April.

Kleuskens wins junior bee

Heather Kleuskens, a sixth-grader at Bluebonnet Elementary, captured the junior division of the Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee Thursday afternoon by correctly spelling "asceticism" and "ascrivable."

The county bee championship will be decided this afternoon with six junior high spellers and the top four junior bee winners competing for the title. The county bee begins at 3 p.m. in the basement of Deaf Smith County Library.

David Vermillion, a fifth-grader at West Central, was the runnerup in the 50th round of the junior bee. He missed the word "asceticism", and 12-year-old Heather spelled the word correctly, as well as the next word on the list of champions.

Heather, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Kleuskens of Rt. 1, was presented a $50 savings bond from Hereford State Bank, while David, a 10-year-old received a $25 savings account at Hi-Plains Savings & Loan. David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Vermillion of 132 Oak Karen Manchee, West Central, and Fideha Hernandez, Bluebonnet, were third and fourth, respectively.

In the finals today, the six junior high winners to compete will be Edgar Montoya, Greg Coplen and Carrie McElroy of La Plata, and Gloria Herrera, Mandi Jones and Cecelia Rodriguez of Stanton Junior High. The top four junior winners will also vie for the county championship.

The county bee champ will advance to the Regional Bee at West Texas State University April 16. The region competition is sponsored by The Amarillo Globe News and WTSU. The county bee is sponsored by The Hereford Brand, with O.G. Nieman as bee director.

Bera Boyd is serving as pronouncer for the county bee, while judges are Eloise McDougal and Lavon Nieman.

The bee champion will receive a $50 savings bond from First National Bank today, while the second and third-place spellers will receive $25 savings accounts from Security Federal Saving & Loan and from Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union.

The top 10 contestants at the regional bee will receive prizes, with the top award being a paid trip to the National Bee in Washington, D.C. All of the county winners will be honored at a luncheon at WTSU on April 16 prior to the spelling bee.

DHS needs money, staff

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A spokeswoman for an embattled Department of Human Services office is welcoming a department study that says more workers are needed to staff a child-abuse hotline and wages need to be increased.

"We think that's a step in the right direction," DHS spokeswoman Pat Ayala said Thursday from her office in El Paso. "We've been saying we've been understaffed and not highly paid for a while."

The state Board of Human Services received the report Thursday at its meeting in Abilene. The department-conducted study was prompted by problems in the handling of child-abuse cases in El Paso and other cities.

The state attorney general's office is conducting its own investigation into the El Paso DHS office at the request of County Attorney Joe Lucas. The DHS also has commissioned an independent study due in August.

The report recommends adding eight more people to a 24-hour abuse hotline by June 1 and hiring additional staff for the department that receives child-abuse reports and decides whether to follow up on them. Employees of that department, called the intake department, should receive higher pay and more training to cut down on turnover, the report said.

The study calls for intake personnel to receive specialized training in areas such as sexual abuse and other types of physical abuse.

"I think it's wonderful, the idea of giving specific training to people in intake," Ms. Ayala said.

GOP looks up to Tower

AUSTIN (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. John Tower has been asked by leading Texas Republicans to run for the GOP gubernatorial nomination in 1990, officials say.

"I have talked to the senator about running," Ray Hutchison, former state Republican Party chairman, said Thursday. "Let me just say that he didn't show a disinterest in the idea. He didn't slam the door on me and he didn't kick me out."

Tower was away from his Dallas office Thursday and could not be reached for comment, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

Gov. Bill Clements, whose term expires in January 1991, already has said he will not seek re-election.

Another former state GOP chairman, Peter O'Donnell, was leading the effort to persuade Tower to run, sources told the Dallas newspaper. O'Donnell, a Dallas philanthropist, also could not be reached Thursday.

Hutchison said others also had approached Tower about the 1990 governor's race.

"There are many Republicans in this state who are absolutely committed to the Republican Party holding a very, very strong candidate for governor in 1990," Hutchison said. "I think there is an excellent opportunity for the party to retain control of the governor's seat if we have the right candidate."

Republican pollster Lance Tarrance of Houston, a longtime Tower friend, said the former senator would be a formidable opponent for other Republicans in the primary and for the Democratic nominee in the general election.

"Bringing in a John Tower, with his seniority in the party, would be an incredibly brilliant move," he said. "I have to think other Republicans would have to back out, because only so many people can drink from the same cup."

Others who had been considered as potential candidates were Texas Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance, former Congressman Tom Loeffler and Texas Secretary of State Jack Rains.

Attorney General Jim Mattox and Treasurer Ann Richards are expected to square off for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1990.

Tower was elected to the Senate in 1961 and served until 1985, when he decided against seeking re-election. He now operates a consulting firm in Dallas.

Tower has been campaigning on behalf of Vice President George Bush. Many believe he would like to have the top job at the Pentagon if Bush is elected president.

A Tower candidacy may scare some Republicans out of the primary race, but Hutchison said other, equally powerful Republicans may decide to run.

"There is Jim Baker," he said. "And I think there will be more names in the future. For instance, Anne Armstrong would be an excellent candidate and so would her husband Tobin."

Baker is U.S. treasury secretary. Armstrong is a former U.S. ambassador to Great Britain, and her husband was Clements' appointments secretary during the 1978-82 term.

Dole: 'I'm no dropout'

CHICAGO (AP) — Presidential candidates are foraging through delegate-rich Illinois, with Republican Bob Dole saying he is "no dropout" and three out-of-state Democrats trying to win support away from a pair of favorite sons.

Five days before the Illinois primary, Democratic candidates participated in a televised forum Thursday night, but in contrast to many of their joint appearances, not a cross word was exchanged.

"It was 'all sweetness and light,'" said Illinois Sen. Paul Simon after the forum sponsored by WLS-TV and the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies.

A Washington Post-ABC News poll published today but conducted Wednesday, the day after the Super Tuesday primaries and six days before Illinois votes, said Vice President George Bush had the support of 58 percent of Republicans.

On the Democratic side, Simon was backed by 38 percent of the likely voters surveyed and Chicago-based Jesse Jackson had support of 33 percent. The figures for Simon and Jackson were well within the 8 percentage point margin of error.

Gary Hart, who dropped out of the Democratic race last May after disclosure of his relationship with model Donna Rice and then reentered in December, was ready to dropout again.

Hart, who failed to win any delegates in the primaries and caucuses to date, polled no more than 5 percent of the vote in any of the Super Tuesday primaries and lost his eligibility for further federal matching funds.

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York ended his presidential bid on Thursday and said the idea of being the Republican candidate for vice president was "a very flattering and awesome thought."

Kemp declined to endorse any of the surviving candidates — Bush, Dole and Pat Robertson — describing them all as "Reagan conservatives."

Dole scotched rumors that he was about to join Kemp on the campaign sidelines.

Four generation lunch

Carissa Wall, center, is sandwiched by three other generations of her family Thursday as they prepare for lunch at West Central Intermediate School in Hereford. Other family members, from left, include Carissa's mother, Carol Wheat, great-grandmother, Carra Adkins, 97, of Carnegie, Okla., and her grandparents, Carl and Donis Adkins of Amarillo. Over 500 grandparents ate lunch Thursday with Hereford students as part of Texas Public Schools Week.

Ex-wife helps to defeat judge

PASO, Texas (AP) — Ill-fated comments about working men and a negative endorsement of an ex-wife and six children convinced District Judge John McKellips' trouping in the state primary, his opponent

McKellips has some name recognition that is negative, and it's hard for a candidate to overcome negative name recognition," the winner, Mary Anne Bramblett, said. "I kept my campaign on the issues. That's why I won."

Mrs. Bramblett, an assistant county clerk, beat the incumbent McKellips 32,412 to 10,752 on Tuesday. She faces no Republican opposition in the 41st district runoff.

McKellips rescheduled all his court cases for this week and has been unavailable for comment.

Mrs. Bramblett said McKellips' divorce might have started with his publicized divorce in 1985. McKellips accused him of having an affair with his 1984 campaign manager, Margaret Randle. He married Ms. Randle two months after the divorce.

McKellips made headlines last summer when police were summoned to quell a courthouse spat between him and his new wife. Last month, Ms. Bramblett won the endorsement of Lillian McKellips and the couple's six children, who decried McKellips' treatment of them.

Soon after, in a speech at a sheriff's deputies' meeting, McKellips cited motherhood as a reason Ms. Bramblett was not qualified to be judge.

"She had to take some time out for maternity leave to have two small children, so I don't know how much time she's actually spent working as an attorney," he told the deputies.

But McKellips also criticized working mothers by linking them to overcrowded prisons. "What do we do about crowded prisons?" Well, we can start in our homes," he said. "Mothers can stay home and raise their children during the formative years."

The next day, the judge amended his comments, saying "it would have been more correct to have used the term 'parent' rather than 'mother.'"

But the damage was done, Ms. Bramblett said. "Everybody got the clear message that (McKellips believes) I am not qualified to be a judge because I'm a woman and a mother."

Railey says demons lured him

DALLAS (AP) — Former minister Walker Railey wrote a suicide note 10 days after his wife was choked nearly to death saying demons inside him had lured him into doing things he did not want to do.

The note, along with transcripts of two telephone calls Railey made to his home answering machine on the night of the attack were released Thursday by a Dallas prosecutor who said he wanted to fill in the blanks in the puzzling case.

Railey described himself as "the weakest of the weak... the baddest of the bad... and the lowest of the low," in the four-page letter. Portions of the note were published earlier, and Railey said in interviews after the failed suicide attempt that the note expressed his despondency at the time.

Railey told police he returned home April 21 and found his wife, Margaret "Peggy" Railey, lying unconscious on the floor of the garage. Mrs. Railey remains comatose in a Tyler nursing home.

Norman Kinne, assistant district attorney for Dallas County, said Thursday he doesn't have enough evidence to bring Railey to trial, but for the first time described Railey as the prime suspect.

"I feel like this may very well be the last anyone is hearing of this, and I want to fill in the blanks as much as I can.

"I think that if this case doesn't go any further than it is right now, at least everyone is entitled to know what has happened until right now, which includes the suicide note and telephone recordings."

Railey, then senior pastor at First United Methodist Church, said in the suicide note that he was taking his life because "a demon inside my soul... (and) lured me into doing things I do not want to do."

In one of the telephone calls to an answering machine at his Lake Highlands home the night his wife was attacked, Railey said he was making the call around 10:30 p.m. and had a couple more hours of research to do at the library. He urged her to "go ahead and lock the... door" of the garage.

But telephone records indicate that Railey actually made the call from his mobile phone just after midnight.

Employees at the library couldn't recall seeing Railey at the time he claimed to have been there, Kinne said.

"What appears to me," Kinne said, "is that Walker Railey hasn't told us where he was the night that all this happened and what he has told us doesn't fit with records of the phone company and witnesses at the library."

Railey spoke to Dallas police for nearly two hours just after the attack, but later refused to cooperate in the investigation and invoked his Fifth Amendment right to remain silent 43 times when subpoenaed to appear before a Dallas County grand jury.

Kinne's said he discovered that Railey had spent more than an hour that night at the University Park residence of a woman who told the grand jury she and Railey had discussed marriage. Two other calls Railey made that night from his mobile phone were made to that woman, psychologist Lucy Papillon.

The 40-year-old Railey was a rising star in the United Methodist Church — a minister who many felt was only a few years away from being promoted to bishop.

Last year, Railey surrendered his minister's credentials and moved to San Francisco, where he has leased an apartment with Ms. Papillon.

For the first time, Kinne conceded that Railey was the only suspect police have in the attack, although he added that police have no evidence against Railey.

"There's a big gap between saying the man is not telling the truth about some things and saying therefore he strangled his wife," Kinne said. "I'm not saying that."

Previously, Railey's attorney, Doug Mulder, had characterized his client as the only suspect in the case.

When asked specifically who is the prime suspect in the case, Kinne replied, "Well, whoever Doug Mulder says."

The telephone at Railey's San Francisco residence is unlisted, and Railey could not be reached Thursday for comment.

Both of the calls Railey made the night his wife was attacked were to a telephone answering machine rather than the private line which the couple always answered.

Railey concluded a call made at 12:29 a.m. by saying, "I'm not calling on the private line because I know you're already asleep, but in case you get up with the kids, I just wanted you to know that I'm on my way home. It's 12:30. I'll be home about 12:45. Love you dear, bye-bye."

Railey called police about 15 minutes later from his home and reported he had just returned home and found his wife lying unconscious in the garage with a cord around her neck.

Mrs. Railey's mother and legal guardian has filed a civil suit against Railey accusing him of the attack on their daughter.

Deaf students win victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elisabeth Ann Zinser resigned today as president of Gallaudet University in a victory for students demanding a hearing-impaired president for the nation's only liberal arts college for the deaf.

The university, which was shut down by protests over Zinser's appointment five days ago, never has had a deaf president in its 124-year history.

"My decision to resign was reached with great difficulty as I came to understand how deeply some see the social stature of deaf persons reflected in the presidency of this university," Zinser, who has normal hearing and doesn't know sign language, said in a statement early today.

Jerry Covell, a leader of the protests, hailed the resignation, but said students still were seeking the removal of Gallaudet Board Chairman Jane Bassett Spilman, who had resisted the push to oust Zinser.

"We are glad that she resigned but we are still waiting for Spilman," Covell said.

Zinser, vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, had stayed away from Gallaudet's campus this week in the hope that the furor would die down, but had insisted she was in charge.

Spilman called the resignation a tragic loss to the university.

"We selected Dr. Zinser as president in recognition of her superior academic, administrative and research skills," she said.

Rep. Steve Gunderson, R-Wis., said one of the university's trustees, said a hearing-impaired person should be at the helm at Gallaudet. Zinser was the only one of the three finalists for the job who was not deaf.

A large majority of the institution's 2,300 students joined in the protests, which began Sunday with a march on Capitol Hill. Students on Thursday threatened to seize the president's campus house and office if Zinser made her way past students blocking entrances to the school, and school officials chained shut the doors to the administration building.

Students from the National Technical Institute for the Deaf in Rochester, N.Y., had planned to travel to Washington by bus today to show their solidarity with the protesters.

Presidential candidates Jesse Jackson and Paul Simon offered words of encouragement to the students, saying their protest reflected the desire of handicapped Americans everywhere to take control of their own destiny.

The National Association of the Deaf, a 20,000-member deaf rights group based in Silver Spring, Md., said it had been receiving calls, letters and pledges of support for the Gallaudet students from around the country and as far away as Great Britain.

A university official who was one of the other two finalists for the president's job, I. King Jordan, on Thursday had withdrawn his support for Zinser.

The resignation followed a warning by Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., another university trustee, that federal aid for the school could be jeopardized if she refused to leave the post.

The House Education and Labor subcommittee on select education, which oversees Gallaudet's budget, scheduled hearings for next week on the dispute.

About 75 percent of the school's $76 million operating budget comes from federal funds. The rest comes from tuition and grants.

More than half the school's 274-member faculty endorsed the protesters' demands for the replacement of Zinser and Spilman.

Abbie Hoffman, the 1960s activist who now lectures to universities on student protests, had called for a campaign to tie up Gallaudet's telephone switchboards.

Fort Worth reports to stop

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — For the past 70 years or so, the Livestock Market News Service has been releasing reports tallying up livestock sales at the historic pens of the Fort Worth Stockyards.

On March 31, the reports will end. Government officials said too few cattle and hogs are sold nowadays in Fort Worth to justify the reports.

The oldest cattle pens in Fort Worth date to 1887. But Rick Wahrmond, statewide director of the Livestock Market News Service, said Wednesday that as urban growth has swallowed the stockyards, cattle raisers have turned to competing auctions in small towns.

Ronnie Steen, who has been reporting stockyard sales since 1976, said that sales averaged about 5,000 a week in the mid-1970s. But for months, the sales have dropped to between 200 and 300 cattle a week, Steen said, and daily auctions long ago were replaced with a weekly cattle auction on Monday.

"We don't have enough cattle to know what the market is," Steen said. Sales volumes of at least 500 were needed to establish clear market trends for farmers, ranchers and others who use the information.

The service — a cooperative state and federal agriculture market reporting agency in Austin managed by the Texas Department of Agriculture — announced Wednesday that the reports were being discontinued.

Wahrmond said budget constraints at the state and federal level contributed to the decision. "This is a continuation of tough times and hard money," Wahrmond said. "We feel it's very regrettable."

He said reporting service officials believe they can give livestock producers better information by spending their time and money reporting on busier markets in the region.

Among other livestock markets being considered for weekly reports are auctions in Bowie, Gainesville, Pilot Point, Eastland and Weatherford, government officials said.

Auctions in those towns average two to 10 times the number of cattle sold weekly in Fort Worth, figures show.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture began issuing daily livestock reports from the Fort Worth Stockyards around 1920, when annual sales regularly topped 6 million cattle, 1 million hogs and 400,000 sheep.

Market reporting became a jointly financed effort between the state and federal government in 1976. Daily reports were halted in 1982.

The end of all government reports on stockyards sales doesn't mean those sales will be halted, said Hampton Butler, the contractor who leases the auction arena and the cattle and hog holding pens from their Chicago owners, United Stockyards.

"I hope it doesn't hurt business at all. But people like to know what's going on," Butler said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I very much appreciate the excellent local coverage which is found in The Hereford Brand. Those of us who are no longer living in Hereford are still interested in its progress and the lives of its citizens.

Your fine paper helps me to stay in touch with the issues and events affecting my family and friends. In addition, your coverage of state and national news items fills in the gaps that the International Herald Tribune doesn't cover. Keep up the fine work.

Dear editor:

It is my feeling that this community would feel a great loss if Gerry Hollinger is not retained by this hospital. The times that I have been in the hospital, I have been well treated and I feel that Gerry is responsible. I also feel that there are many people in Hereford that owe their lives to his quick response to an emergency. It would be a shame to let such a talent go to waste or worse yet, move from Hereford altogether. I hope the board will realize his worth and override Mr. Moore's acceptance of his resignation.

Sincerely,
Lee Cave

Grant Hanna speaks to Pioneer Study Club

Texas Day was celebrated at the March meeting of the Pioneer Study Club at Something Special.

Bea Hutson introduced the guest speaker, Grant Hanna, whose subject was "Hereford Prisoner of War Camp—I Was There." Hanna told of his experiences as a mess sergeant at the P.O.W. camp in Hereford during World War II. The camp was located on an 800 acre tract of land southwest of Hereford. There were 90 barracks including the hospital and housing for 1,000 soldiers and approximately 10,000 Italian prisoners of war.

He stated that 1,000 German prisoners were there for 24 hours, but they did not get along with the Italian prisoners and were transferred to another camp to avoid conflict. The speaker related many stories about the time he was stationed there. He said the prisoners were happy and well treated. They were permitted to work for area farmers at 10 cents an hour. Very few attempted to escape and they returned of their own volition. Many became good friends with local residents who treated them kindly and have since returned for visits.

After his service here, Hanna was stationed in the European theater and he contrasted the inhumane treatment of the prisoners of war he saw in German camps with the fair treatment of the P.O.W.s in the local camp.

Six of the prisoners of war died while interned in the Hereford camp and were buried there with a monument marking the graves, which is still there. The bodies were later returned to Italy. A question and answer session followed his address and several members related experience when the prisoners of war had worked for them on their farms. The invocation was given by Leatrus Clark. Fern Ford led the pledge of allegiance to the flag of the United States and Fern Sigle led the salute to the flag of Texas.

"My Turn" was given by Eunice Petersen. She also reported on the daycare centers in Hereford. The club voted to contribute to the roofing fund for the Ruth Warner Memorial Day Care Center.

Mary Panciera presided over the business session during which plans were made to attend the Top of Texas District Convention in Amarillo March 25-26 at the Sheraton Hotel. Fern Sigle and Rosemary Thomas were appointed to serve as delegates from the club.

Club members brought a shower of articles to be sent to M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston for use by outpatients and their families. Additional contributions may be brought to the next meeting, April 12.

The luncheon tables were decorated with a St. Patrick's Day motif. Hostesses were Leatrus Clark and Fannie Rudd. Also attending were Fern Ford, Hazel Ford, Bessie Hill, Bea Hutson, Gladys Miller, Eunice Petersen, Fern Sigle, Rosemary Thomas, Willie Wimberley, Mary Panciera and Hanna.

Participants still needed for Rock 'n Roll Jamboree

Sign-up sheets are available to anyone wishing to participate in the annual Senior Citizens' Rock 'n' Roll Jamboree to begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger.

The sheets are located at the center, Golden Plains Care Center, Westgate Nursing Home, and King's Manor Methodist Retirement Home.

Participants will be accepting pledges for each minute or hour they rock or roll during the jamboree. According to Helen Spinks, jamboree publicity chairman, all donations are tax deductible and will benefit the American Heart Association.

Among those entering the event will be local dignitaries Mayor Wes Fisher, Darwin McGill, Sheriff Joe Brown, Jeff Brown, Johnnie Turrentine, Tom Simons and Chip Formby. Also, planning to rock are relay rocking teams from First National Bank and The Golden-K Kiwanis Club. Members of the Hereford High School Key Club will also be assisting in the effort. They have volunteered to push wheelchair rollers for Westgate and Golden Plains Homes to the jamboree.

Two prizes of $15 in Hereford bucks will be awarded to the rocker with the most hours and to the largest individual monetary contributor. Also, a plaque will be presented by the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Heart Association to the business that makes the most contributions.

For additional information, call Ruth Knox, jamboree chairman, at 364-6686.

Get Cajun flavor without the salt

When you crave intense flavors, but have to watch your sodium intake, Cajun seasoning mixes may be the answer, says an Texas A&M University Extension Service nutritionist.

"The unique thing about Cajun foods is the large number of spices used in cooking," says Dr. Dymple Cooksey. "A dish like blackened redfish will have at least 10 spice, including cayenne, white and black pepper, paprika, garlic, onion, bay leaves, thyme, oregano and ground cloves."

The intense flavor from the spices means salt isn't necessary to intensify the taste, notes the specialist.

Due to the popularity of Cajun cooking in restaurants, she says that commercially prepared Cajun seasoning mixes have become widely available in the supermarkets.

"For the person on a low-sodium diet, homemade or commercially prepared Cajun seasoning mixes are a good alternative," Cooksey says.

But she cautions consumers to check the ingredients labels on store-bought mixes since some manufacturers include salt in their products.

Benefit supper today

The Hereford Pilot Club's annual Mexican Stack supper is planned from 5-8 p.m. today in the Hereford High School cafeteria.

Proceeds will benefit the United Way, Hereford Satellite Work Training Center, Rape Crisis Domestic Violence Center and the Hereford Senior Citizens Center and homes.

A talent auction will also be held in conjunction with the supper. Pilot members will auction-off a special talent ranging from a caddy-for-a-day to a weekend retreat.

Such as UNLV struggling past Fullerton State

League tourneys tough for ranked teams

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Nevada-Las Vegas and Brigham Young were expecting to be challenged in their conference tournaments. They just didn't think it would happen so soon.

The Runnin' Rebels, ranked seventh and top seed in the PCAA, were pushed by Fullerton State before surviving 61-56 in a first-round game. BYU, ranked 17th, had even more trouble — and on its home court, no less, against a last-place team. The Cougars edged Hawaii 6-74.

Two teams earned NCAA bids with conference tournament championships Thursday night. Fairleigh Dickinson beat Monmouth 90-75 for the ECAC Metro crown, while North Texas State took the Southland with an 87-70 victory over Northeast Louisiana.

In the only regular-season contest involving a ranked team, No. 15 Iowa routed Wisconsin 103-70.

Pacific Coast UNLV had just enough to avoid the upset. Clint Rossum had all of his 10 points in the second half and played an especially significant role after Jarvis Basnight fouled out with 3:54 to go.

Richard Morton had 28 points for the Titans, who never trailed by more than six points.

The victory was the 500th for Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian. But, as he watched the game he began to worry that he would be stuck on 499.

"I wasn't even aware of the 500 until some people told me they were planning to give me a party after the game," Tarkanian said. "Then when I looked up at the scoreboard I thought, 'I'm not sure I'm going to make it.'"

Wayne Engelstad had 31 points and a season-high 15 rebounds for Cal-Irvine, which had lost three straight before surprising Long Beach State 74-69.

Dan Conway scored a career-high 28 points as second-seeded Utah State got past San Jose State 80-72.

Brian Shaw and Mike Doyle scored 13 points apiece for Santa Barbara, which led most of the way in a 56-52 victory over New Mexico State.

Western Athletic

Brigham Young nearly wound up on the sidelines in an embarrassing manner. The Cougars, who managed just a two-point victory at Hawaii this season, barely survived on their home court against the 4-25 Rainbows.

A tip-in by Jeff Chatman with 1:43 remaining was the difference in the game, which ended after four shots by Hawaii failed to drop in the final seconds.

Wyoming slipped past San Diego State 83-76 with a strong second half. The Cowboys, 24-5, won their seventh straight game as Reggie Fox scored 19 points and Eric Leckner got 14 of his 16 in the final 20 minutes.

"We'll get better now that we know we're set the next couple of days," Leckner said.

ECAC Metro

Fairleigh Dickinson beat New Jersey rival Monmouth as Jamie Latney scored a career-high 39 points, 30 in the first half. He set a conference tourney points mark as FDU, 23-6, won for the 18th time in its last 20 games.

ECAC North Atlantic

Jeff Timberlake and Drederick Irving scored 22 points apiece, leading Boston University to an 82-73 victory over host Hartford. BU, 22-7, faces Niagara in the championship game Saturday.

Juan Neal made two free throws with 17 seconds left to blunt a New Hampshire come back as Niagara beat the Wildcats 62-59.

Southland

Playing on its home court, North Texas State struggled for a half, then blew out Northeast Louisiana. Tony Worrell, the league's player of the year, scored 33 points, 20 in the first half, and freshman Ronnie Morgan added 19 as NTSU, 17-12, earned its first NCAA bid in the school's 72-year history.

Big Sky

Montana State, losers twice to state rival Montana this season, got four clutch points each from Scott Peiper and Chris Conway and held off the Grizzlies 60-54.

Trans-America

At Daytona Beach, Fla., Mercer beat Hardin-Simmons 57-52, Georgia Southern took Georgia State 71-55, Texas-San Antonio downed host Stetson 78-74 and Arkansas-Little Rock routed Centenary 99-71.

Jeff Sanders scored 25 points and grabbed nine rebounds for top-seeded Georgia Southern.

Southeastern

At Baton Rouge, La., Mississippi beat Alabama 64-59 in overtime and Georgia romped over Mississippi State 64-43.

Ole Miss, which next meets sixth-ranked Kentucky, the conference's regular-season champion, fought back from a 52-43 deficit in the final 2:32 of regulation against Alabama. The Rebels never trailed in overtime.

Big East

At New York, Cliff Robinson scored 24 points and Phil Gamble added 23 as Connecticut beat Providence 75-62.

Pacific-10

At Tucson, Ariz., freshman Ryan Drew scored 25 points, all but two in the first half, and tied his school record with six 3-point shots as California eliminated Southern Cal 75-59.

Eldridge Recasner scored 24 points as Washington handed Arizona State its ninth straight loss, 96-82.

Whiteface junior varsity baseball team loses 13-12

Eight errors in the third and fourth innings by Hereford turned a 10-0 rout into an eventual 13-12 loss to Frenship in a junior varsity baseball game played Thursday at Wolforth.

The loss dropped the Herd junior varsity to 1-1 for the season. Hereford plays at Clovis today at 4 p.m. CST.

Hereford held its 10-0 lead after two and one half innings before the disaster of errors. All of Frenship's runs were unearned off Hereford pitcher Fidel Ceballos.

Ceballos had five strikeouts, allowed six hits, and walked two batters in four innings pitched. The game was called after four and one half innings because of darkness.

Jim Eric Andrews, Shane Kapka and Alonzo Ramirez each singled in the first inning, leading to Hereford's first run. Todd Collier made it 3-0 with a two-run double.

In the second inning, Jared Victor singled and two HHS batters walked to load the bases. Kapka stroked a two-run double to make the Whiteface lead 5-0.

Three of the first four Hereford batters in the third inning walked. An error by a Frenship outfielder allowed two runs to score. An RBI single by Andrews and a two-run double by J.T. Heaton gave Hereford a 10-0 lead.

Frenship scored three runs in the third inning when Hereford committed two errors. Six errors by the Whitefaces in the fourth inning led to 10 runs and a 13-10 lead for the Tigers.

Hereford's Coby Kilpatrick reached third base on an error to begin the fifth inning, and scored on Ceballos' RBI groundout. Heaton also reached base on an error, and later scored on a single by Ramirez.

A walk put HHS runners at first and second. A successful double steal gave Hereford two runners in scoring position with two outs, but a strikeout ended the game.

Ramirez had two hits in three at-bats, and Andrews, Heaton, and Kapka each went two-for-four.

After today's game at Clovis, the HHS junior varsity will not play again until Thursday, March 24, at home against Canyon at 4:30 p.m.

What Does a typical Brand Reader Look Like?

That's difficult to say because you are as different as your substantial number would imply! You are one of the 4,100 households we're invited to every evening. That's quite a few. According to the most recent census, our township has slightly less than 5000 households.

Your vocation is part of a broad spectrum as well — white collar, blue collar, owners, managers, cowboys, teachers, housewives, students and professional.

Yet, with all your individual complexities, your interest in local issues and news gives you and other readers a common bond which is separated only by your level of curiosity.

Seven-foot center 'throws his weight around'

Duckworth leads Portland over Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Portland's Kevin Duckworth is considerably slimmer in his second season, but he still managed to throw his weight around in a key win over the Houston Rockets.

Duckworth, a 7-foot center weighing 275 pounds, worked 43 minutes, contributing 30 points and 13 rebounds along with Clyde Drexler's 33 points to beat the Rockets 112-109 Thursday night.

"My game has picked up a lot by getting more minutes," Duckworth said. "The weight loss has made me feel a lot better."

Connecting on 12 of 21 shots, Duckworth has found confidence in his hook shot that he releases capably with either hand.

"I've gotten the hook down pat after watching (teammate) Steve Johnson," he said. As for his rebounding, Duckworth said, "I was very active and going for the ball."

Duckworth had to fend off Houston's Akeem Olajuwon, who had 28 points and 20 rebounds.

"We tried very hard on the offensive boards," Duckworth said. "Olajuwon is very quick and accurate. I got great help tonight on the offensive boards."

Drexler, whose effort Thursday night was a career-high for him against the Rockets, feels that Duckworth has arrived in the NBA after only 27 starts.

"He's been playing like this more consistently," Drexler said. "He's going to be a force in this league and he's gaining confidence."

Houston forward Jim Petersen found the loss to be a bitter experience.

"The game meant a lot for us as far as jockeying for position in the playoffs," Petersen said.

Houston, 35-24, falls three games behind Portland, 38-21, in the Western Conference as they both compete for the third-place playoff spot to avoid an early matchup with the powerful Los Angeles Lakers.

Houston had flen in back of Portland early in the game by double digits and never led the Blazers after the first quarter, but the Rockets did tie the game twice late in the game.

"Our defense in the first half was the game," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said. "We were down by 11 at halftime and that set the tone of the game. The only thing in the second half I was unhappy about was that they got too many second shots and you have to give Duckworth a lot of credit for those."

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 128, Los Angeles Lakers 107, and Golden State 128, New Jersey 112.

Bulls 128, Lakers 107
Can the Los Angeles Lakers win without Magic Johnson?

"Probably not," Lakers Coach Pat Riley says. "But, when you've already lost Michael Cooper (sprained left ankle) and Wes Matthews (corneal abrasion of the right eye) is unavailable, the loss of the NBA's most valuable player does not make for a good evening."

With Johnson playing only 10 minutes Thursday night before re-injuring his groin, Michael Jordan led the Chicago Bulls to a 128-107 victory over the Lakers.

Jordan's 38 points, including 17 in the third quarter, enabled the Bulls to beat the defending world champions for the first time since Dec. 2, 1984.

Johnson is the Lakers' leading scorer and is second in the league in assists.

"There's no doubt about it, Magic is the heart and soul of the Lakers, and without him running their fast break and half-court game they are literally doomed," Jordan said.

Jordan's third-quarter effort along with Charles' Oakley's 20 points allowed the Bulls to defeat Los Angeles for the first time in Chicago since Jan. 8, 1982. The loss also was the first in five games for the Lakers and only the second in their last 16.

Chicago broke open a close game with a 16-6 third quarter run as Jordan scored eight points and Oakley four while the Bulls were hitting all eight shots from the field to open an 81-68 advantage.

"If anyone had said we'd win by 20 points this morning, I'd have laughed in their face," Jordan said.

Johnson, who scored only seven points, explained, "I hurt myself about a week and a half ago. My groin was tight in the beginning, but I thought playing would loosen it up.

"Like Jordan, I came to play, but it wasn't to be. And without Michael Cooper and Wes Matthews, we had to use Milt Wagner, who just doesn't have the experience."

Riley said the schedule also hurt his team.

"The fact we played our fourth game in five nights did us in, and it's obvious we just ran into a good team," Riley said. "We made a run at them, closing the gap to 88-82 in the third quarter, but then we committed a couple of turnovers and before you knew it, they were back in front by double digits."

Warriors 128, Nets 112

Chris Mullin scored 26 points and reserve guard Steve Harris had a career-high 24 as Golden State snapped an eight-game losing streak by handing New Jersey only its second loss in six games since Willis Reed took over as coach.

The Nets were led by Tim McCormick's 26 points and Roy Hinson's 21.

With Ben McDonald scoring 11 points, the Warriors led 32-29 after the first quarter and extended the margin to 63-55 at halftime. Golden State's Rod Higgins, who finished with 22 points, sparked a 17-4 run to break a 45-45 tie midway through the second period by connecting on a trio of 3-point baskets.

In post-season SWC tournament

Will SMU get kiss of death?

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Being seeded number one in the Southwest Conference Post-Season Basketball Classic can be the kiss of death.

Only six top seeds have captured the trophy in 12 previous tournaments, the most recent being Texas Tech in 1985.

Southern Methodist comes into today's quarterfinals of the tournament seeded No. 1 for the first time. The Mustangs have never made it to the championship game, losing in the semifinals twice.

"This tournament, historically, has been tough on favorites and top seeds," said SMU Coach Dave Bliss. "Look what happened last year. The number eight seed (Texas A&M) upset the number one seed (Texas Christian) in the first round. Coaches are scared to death of games against underdog teams."

SMU, which won the SWC regular season title for the first time since 1967, was to play number eight seed TCU at 7 p.m. The Mustangs have defeated TCU twice this year.

"I hope we come out with a lot of intensity because TCU sure will," Bliss said. "I think we will. We've been through a lot this year."

The Baylor Bears, who won their last eight games and posted their best season in 40 years, were the second-seeded team and drawing a lot of pre-tournament raves.

"It doesn't bother me," Bliss said. "That's why you play the tournament. Baylor has been playing awfully well and that's why everyone is picking them."

Baylor (21-9) and second seeded meets seventh seeded Texas Tech (9-18) at 2 p.m. on Friday after thirseeded Arkansas (20-7) and sixth-seeded Texas A&M (16-14) open the tournament at noon.

Top seeded SMU (24-6) and eighth-seeded Texas Christian (9-18) play at 7 p.m., while fourth-seeded Texas (16-12) and fifth-seeded Houston (16-11) meet at 9 p.m.

The semifinal games will be played at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday while the finals are set for 3 p.m. on Sunday.

"Baylor is the team to beat," said Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers. "They're playing better than anybody in the league. In their last three games they've just blown everybody out."

Baylor defeated Tech by 18 and 42 points in their two games during the regular season.

"We're probably playing the toughest team we could draw in Baylor as far as matching up," Myers said.

The Red Raiders do have tradition going for them.

They are 9-0 in tournament openers and 3-0 against Baylor in the post-season event. Tech's record of 22-9 is the best mark in tournament history.

Baylor Coach Gene Iba is wary of all the pre-tournament hype about his Bears who lost in the finals to Texas A&M last year and have never won the championship.

"One of the hardest things to do in college basketball is play a team three times in a year and beat them every time," Iba said. "It's a difficult situation for us."

Baylor's motivation is the automatic NCAA playoff berth that goes with the tournament title.

"I think we will have to win the tournament for sure to go to the NCAA playoffs," said Middleton. "We have to remember that no matter who our opponent is."

Middleton, a senior from Queens, N.Y., who led the SWC in scoring and rebounding, on Thursday was named the SWC Player of the Year.

Arkansas and Texas A&M split their season series with the Aggies winning in College Station when Razorbacks' center Andrew Lang got into early foul trouble.

"I pray at night that Andrew can last more than 14 minutes in this game before fouling out," Richardson said. "I have a lot of respect for (Texas A&M Coach) Shelby Metcalf and 'the playground king' (A&M guard Darryl McDonald). We know it won't be easy."

Metcalf said "We feel like we will be playing against the host team. Arkansas has more people in the stands here than the other seven teams."

"We have to slow the ball down against Arkansas. If we run with them the end result will be a mercy killing."

The Houston-Texas matchup could be the most competitive of the four quarterfinal games. The teams split during the regular season.

"Texas is one of the hottest teams going into the tournament," said Houston Coach Pat Foster. "They are just hitting their stride."

Texas Coach Bob Weltlich said he's hoping guard Courtney Jeans will be available. Jeans suffered a back injury in the 'Horns' final regular season game.

"We are not sure of his status and we're not the same team without him," Weltlich said.

Raycom television has decided to beam the two semifinal games over a regional network and ESPN will televise the finals to half of the nation.

USFL is now officially dead

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Football League, which hasn't played a game since 1985, is now all but officially dead following a federal appeals court rejection of the $3 award the USFL won in its suit against the NFL.

While Harry Usher, still the league's commissioner on paper, said he would wait to study the language of hursday's ruling by the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals, there seems little doubt that the league is dead, particularly with all its top players having fled to the NFL.

"For all practical purposes, none of the clubs exist today," Lee Scarfone, owner of the Tampa Bay Bahdits, said. "I'm sure a lot of football enthusiasts would like to have a competitive team and league which the USFL might have provided. Now that doesn't seem likely to happen."

The 3-0 ruling by the appeals panel used basically the same argument that the NFL had used in defending itself — that the USFL brought upon its own demise by electing to go to a fall schedule in 1986 after starting as a small-scale spring league.

"There was ample evidence," Judge Ralph K. Winter wrote, "that the USFL failed because it did not make the painstaking investment and patient efforts that bring credibility, stability and public recognition to a sports league."

The suit, which originally sought $1.62 billion in damages from the NFL, was filed in 1984 and tried over an 11-week period in the summer of 1986. The six-person jury, however, found the NFL liable on only one of nine counts and awarded the fledgling league a token $1, which under antitrust law was trebled to $3.

The USFL, which played three spring seasons starting in 1983, claimed in its appeal that, among other things, the jurors were confused by Judge Peter K. Leisure's instructions. The league's lawyers argued that was one reason the jury did not award more than the token $1.

But Winter wrote that the activities of the NFL "were hardly of sufficient impact to support a large damages verdict or to justify sweeping injunctive relief."

Church News

WESLEY UNITED METHODIST CHURCH (410 Irving)

Sunday School for all ages is at 10 a.m. Sunday and the call to worship will be at 11 a.m. Sunday with "Casue Me To Come To Thy River." Rev. Derrel Evins will also have a special sermon for the children up to the age of 12. His sermon each Sunday for the congregation pertains to the life of Christ and his risen glory. The musical special Sunday, to be presented by the Wesleyan choir, is "I'd Rather Have Jesus."

Newcomers to Hereford and visitors are welcome to come hear the messages in the Bible and share the love of others.

The Wesley United Methodist Church Women will be meeting on the second and fourth Monday nights. They will meet at 7 p.m. Monday at the church, and on March 28, there will be a salad supper and program.

Choir practice is scheduled at 6 p.m. Sunday and evening worship at 7. The administrative council board meeting will meet at 8 p.m. Sunday.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Dr. James Dunn will be speaking at the 11 a.m. Sunday worship service. He is the executive director of the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs in Washington D.C. He holds what many believe to be Biblical and historic Baptist positions on the issue of prayer in public schools and other controversial issues.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

David and Roxanne Swann will be leading two seminars in Hereford. First Christian, Community Church and the First Church of the Nazarene are joining together to bring you two Sunday evenings of quality teaching on the family. The meetings are free of charge and a nursery will be provided. The first seminar is planned at 6 p.m. Sunday at First Christian Church and the second seminar at 6 p.m. March 20 at the Nazarene Church.

Included topics of the seminar will be the art of discipline, praise, affection and encouragement, how to guarantee your child's success, what to pray for your children, the virtuous mother, and fathers of the mighty.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

"For Now, For Always" is the title of the Reverend Bruce Kochsmeier's sermon for the regular 10:30 AM Sunday worship service. The Scripture is John 3:14-22.

Youth Group: It's Sunday, "No Strings Attached" night as we continue our new series and consider God's unconditional love. You won't want to miss a minute. Jr. high at 5:30, Sr. high at 7:30. Supper for both groups at 7:00. It's all happening for you at 138 Liveoak. Be there!!

Mission Yearbook: War has torn Northern Ireland apart. And yet Presbyterian missionaries, Rev. Doug Baker and his wife Elaine seek to be God's agents of hope. They write, "Feelings of anger, despondency and threat are widespread... We need to see even the most tentative partnerships as signs of hope worth investing in. They are opportunities without which the future is much bleaker, but with which there is hope of discovering the life God intends: None of us can do it alone—it is only together that we can be the body of Christ." Please pray for this ministry as it calls US to be agents of reconciliation.

Scripture for Lunch Bunch—Meets each Wednesday at noon for friendship and fellowship around the Scripture for Sunday. Next week John 12:20-33. Bring your lunch and join us!!

Saturday, March 12th at 7:00 PM, the Adult Fellowship will have an evening of games and fun. Bring your favorite snack and a white elephant gift to the small fellowship hall for an evening packed full of fun!

Easter Lilies: If you would like to give a lily for the Easter Service please come to the office this week to designate in whose honor or memory it will be given. The cost is $7.00.

There will be no Children's Choirs next week due to the many families who will be away for spring break.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We read your column every day and learn from it. Can you solve this mystery?

We raised our two children exactly the same way. My husband and I worked hard to give them the things we didn't have. We helped them both financially until our health gave out. One child has always been thoughtful and considerate. When my husband became very ill, this child came whenever there was a need and helped me through the most traumatic days of my life. The other child was "too busy" to come and never offered to do a thing. My husband died with a broken heart.

We were very good to our parents and set a fine example for our children to follow. It is awfully sad when a family ends up this way, and I cannot for the life of me understand why our two children turned out to be so different. Can you explain it?—Hurting in Wilmington, Del.

DEAR HURTING: No one can explain why children from the same parent are sometimes so different. In fact, the way children turn out is one of the great mysteries of life.

I have read so many letters from parents who knocked themselves out doing everything "right" and their children are thoroughly messed up. They were always in trouble at school and later with the law. By the same token, I've seen kids who were ignored, kicked around and abused. They turned out to be well-adjusted, productive and were never in trouble of any kind.

More and more I am coming to believe that genetics has a lot to do with it. Where we go in life can depend a lot on where we came from.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the editor of a small church newsletter. Some time ago, I wrote a poem titled "Forget It." A longtime friend suggested that I send it to you for consideration. Will you print it?—Lucille Obitz, Sandy Lake, Pa.

DEAR LUCILLE: With pleasure. Here it is:

Forget It
If you see a tall fellow ahead of a crowd,
A leader of men, marching fearless and proud,
And you know of a tale whose mere telling aloud
Would cause his proud head in anguish be bowed,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.
If you know of a skeleton hidden away
In a closet, and guarded, and kept from the day

In the dark, and whose showing, whose sudden display,
Would cause grief and sorrow and pain and dismay,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.
If you know of a tale that will darken the joy
Of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy,
That will wipe out a smile or the least bit annoy
A fellow, or cause any gladness to cloy,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

Feeling pressured to go "all the way" because everyone else is doing it? You're not alone. For answers to your questions about sex, and to learn how your peers really feel about it, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "Sex and the Teenager." Send $2.50 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill.

Loud ties just what the doctor ordered

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Dr. Ronald P. Spark is a pathologist, and bodies are his business.
But neckties are his passion. He has about 2,000 in his closet, mostly 4- and 4½-inch-wide ties from the 1940s and 1950s, predominantly originals, some hand-painted.
They're loud, wildly designed, art deco and surrealistic, many one of a kind. No subdued colors or fabrics for him. No narrow ties, such as found around the necks of millions of other men.

Muted shades, cool plaids, quiet patterns or even paisleys? Forget it. The bolder, the better. Like the one with a bowling ball and pins, in green and brown. Or the purple tie with portrait of President Harry Truman and the Capitol.
Or the one a friend gave him, saying he had found this "abomination" in his garage and couldn't bring himself to bury it or throw it out.
Ugly? Not to Spark. He says, "A boring tie to me is an ugly tie, one without any visual interest."

His ties range from designs with fish and peacocks to palm trees and cowboys and four hand-painted Salvador Dalis.
He wears one every day. At that rate, it will take him more than five years to go through every one in his closet.
Most came from second-hand stores, from Vancouver to Miami. "You used to be able to buy them for 50 cents or $1 at most," he says.
Now, he says, a lot of friends bring him ties.
Where in the 1940s there were avid collectors and tie-swapping was popular, he says, there are few today.

says Spark.
He says his favorite neckwear, "an absolutely American creation," didn't really catch on until about 1944. It was a breakaway from narrow, dark ties with small patterns, made possible because Europe, which traditionally dictated fashion, had been preoccupied by war.
"America was able to go to its own fashion-setting," Spark says. "The amazing thing is, I think these ties really reflect what's going on in society. This was the first time there was an accepted informality in American society."
He says the ties also reflected the first mass production of goods since the Depression and technological advances in new materials and photographic transfer onto fabric.
With the end of the war, there was "a tremendous sense of release, postwar boom and a general exuberance," which the neckwear symbolized. But in the early 1950s times changed again, and with the Korean War, recession, the advent of the atomic bomb and the onset of the Joseph McCarthy era, the wide, colorful ties faded away.

What would cause a man to become so caught up in cravats that he would wind up co-authoring a book on them, with fellow collector Rod Dyer ("Fit To Be Tied: Vintage Ties of the Forties and Early Fifties")?
Why would a man wear a jacket made from such ties — and admit to it? Why would his wife have an apron, and dress, made of ties?
Spark says the Army drove him to it. The constraint of wearing a narrow black tie every day "made me very much aware of sense of individuality and personal expression," he says.
And as a white-jacketed medical student, the only form of self-expression easily available was the wild necktie.
"It's wonderful for me because I thrive on recognition and being individualistic and being expressive,"

Spark says he expects to see a comeback of such ties, or similar ones, in the next two years. The change is portended by fish and animal ties, and the advent of Retro Ties, 3- to 3½-inch ties of silk and rayons with the look of the '40s, though by his estimate they never captured more than 15 percent of tie sales originally.
He says he's kept the narrow black Army tie that drove him to his ongoing rebellion. He saved it, he says, "for funerals, but fortunately I haven't worn it more than two or three times."

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My HDL-cholesterol is 27, which places me in a little less than twice the average risk category for heart disease. My total cholesterol blood test was done with the SMAC method and was 217. When correcting for the method as you suggest, that puts it at about 199, which is good for my age. I'll be 63 in two months.
I started jogging in 1970 and have kept it up ever since. I run every other day for 30 minutes with a heart rate between 126 and 132 beats per minute. I haven't smoked for over 30 years. I'm 5 feet 9 and hold my weight to about 145, which fits your charts well. I don't drink alcohol — don't like the taste.
So what do I do to raise my HDL-cholesterol? Maybe 27 is okay for sedentary American males, but it sounds bad to me.
DEAR READER: It's not good. For the benefit of other readers, the HDL-cholesterol is the amount of cholesterol in the small fatty-cholesterol particles. These small particles help to clear the blood of fatty particles and protect against fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. Recent studies suggest that low HDL-cholesterol levels are not good, even if the total cholesterol level is low. It looks like a person should have a level of around 50, and the higher the HDL-cholesterol level, the less your risk of heart disease.

The first thing to do if you have a low HDL-cholesterol level, or even a high total cholesterol level, is to have the test repeated. It is quite true that laboratory error may be the actual cause of a low value. If it continues to be low, then you need to think about what you can do to improve it. That is the sticky point, because very little is known about how to do this. Exercise seems to be the best method, but you already have a satisfactory exercise level.
Alcohol will increase the HDL-cholesterol, but it does not raise the particular type of HDL-cholesterol that is thought to be most beneficial. It will not replace the benefits of exercise. That means you may have to wait until better information is available on how to raise the HDL-cholesterol level in a beneficial manner.
Meanwhile, try to get your total cholesterol as low as possible. I have discussed HDL-cholesterol and LDL-cholesterol in more detail in Special Report 44, Understanding Cholesterol and Triglycerides. Readers who want this special report can send $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope with 39 cents postage to THE HEALTH LETTER 44, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.
DEAR DR. LAMB: Is nicotine an appetite depressant? I think it is, but my sister, who smokes, says it isn't. In fact she won't even discuss it, as she doesn't want to stop smoking. She thinks that because she uses a filter it doesn't hurt her. I disagree.
DEAR READER: It is a mild curb to the appetite, but the large number of overweight people who smoke suggests that it is not very effective in this regard. It may also increase the metabolism some, which is one reason why about a third of the people who smoke gain weight when they quit. (Or they may eat more when they quit.) Another third have no change in weight and about a third lose weight — perhaps because they are making a conscious effort to improve their health.
You do have to be on guard to avoid a weight gain when you quit. A filter may help a little bit, but so little that the major health hazards persist. It will not eliminate the danger of lung damage or the increased risk of heart attacks or strokes.
