Chamber urges support of plant project

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is asking for a united community effort in its attempt to woo a major food corn contractor and processor to Hereford.

The international firm, within the next month, will select a new site for a processing facility that will employ 170 people. Candidates for the plant include other cities in the Texas Panhandle and an Arizona town. The company, which has asked not to be named, is seeking an area capable of producing 30,000 acres (250 million pounds) of food corn annually.

Hereford's bid for the new industry is a joint effort by the chamber's industrial development and agriculture committees. The committees plan an intensive campaign over the next four weeks that will require broad-based community support.

"We've had local people from many sectors involved in this effort so far," said Ken Rogers, chairman of the industrial development committee. "Now we are hoping to expand so that the community, as a whole, will be aware of our goal."

A key player in negotiations with the prospective company has been Jerry Walsh, manager of the Frito-Lay corn plant in Hereford. Walsh, co-chairman of the ag committee with Garry Yosten, said the plant would be a "terrific opportunity for Hereford and the surrounding area. We want to assure the community and convince this new company that this area can support two food corn plants."

Walsh said much of the land now devoted to grain sorghum can be utilized for food corn if the market is there. He also said Hereford's numerous seed companies should be an asset for the plant.

Frito-Lay and Hereford Grain Corporation have already offered use of some of their storage facilities to the firm.

The chamber is compiling a promotional packet to entice the company to Hereford. A key part of the presentation will be personal letters from farmers, who are urged to express their interest in producing contracted

Farmers and others interested are urged to see the full-page ad on Page 10 in today's

"It is is very important that we prove to the company, through these letters, that we have a large force of farmers who are willing and able to grow the necessary acreage," Yosten said.

The chamber will be accepting letters from all farmers in Deaf Smith and neighboring counties. The letters, expressing available acreage for food corn production, will not be a binding commitment by the farmers but are intended to show the area's production capabilities. The letters should be hand-delivered or mailed to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, 701 North Main Street, P.O. Box 192 in Hereford before Sept. 1.

"We are giving this opportunity everything we have," said Rogers. "We are going to work together and if we succeed we are going to celebrate together. If we lose out, I guess we will cry together, too.

Sons had no help entering the Guard

WASHINGTON (AP) - The sons of George Bush and Lloyd Bentsen say no strings were pulled to ensure their entrance into the National Guard during the Vietnam War.

George W. Bush, son of the GOP presidential candidate, and Lloyd M. Bentsen III, the son of the Democratic vice presidential candidate, discussed their military service Tuesday in response to the flap over whether family influence helped Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle join the Guard and avoid being drafted for combat in Vietnam.

The younger Bush and Bentsen were Guardsmen together at Ellington Air Force Base in Houston. Both said they applied to enter the Te as Air National Guard in 1968 when it was inevitable they would be called to serve in the military.

A retired Indiana Guard official acknowledged Tuesday that he told the Guard personnel office to hold open a space for Quayle after receiving a call from a Quayle family employee in 1969.

Both Bush's son and Bentsen's son acknowledged it was inevitable they would have to serve in the military after they graduated from college, so they chose National Guard service.

The younger Bentsen, 43, railed at a claim by New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu that Bentsen's father had rushed to get his son a spot in the National Guard when he learned of

"Shortly after I graduated, I went to a party with some of my friends and one of the people introduced me to Brig. Gen. Walter Staudt, who was the commander of the 147th Fighter Group in the Texas Air Guard." Bentsen said Staudt told him at a later meeting that because of his masters business degree, "he could use someone like me" for an accounting and finance officer.

Bentsen said he went home and discussed the matter with his father. a businessman at the time, and decided to enlist. He became a finance officer "as luck would have it," serving "past my six-year requirement," and achieving the rank of captain, he said.

In the younger Bush's case, the circumstances also involved talking to Staudt.

"It was obvious that somewhere I would have to serve and I was fully prepared to do so," said Bush, whose father was a decorated fighter pilot in World War II. The 42-year-old son said he, too, wanted to be a pilot.

"I heard the National Guard was looking for pilots," he said. He called Staudt, who confirmed the unit did need new pilots. Bush said he could not remember how he learned of the need for pilots or knew to call Staudt, but that ultimately he became the third of six new pilots who were selected in that Texas unit.

He said he passed the pilot training exam, then served 18 months on active duty, six months in Houston and another 12 months of pilot training in Georgia where he flew F102 fighters, then flew on a regular basis until

Some senior pilots from his unit did fly in Vietnam on a voluntary basis, Bentsen's son said he was motivated to join the Guard partly because he had just finished graduate school.

"I felt, as I think all of us did in 1968, that it was inevitable that we would be drafted within six to nine months. I didn't worry about going to Vietnam. In general I supported the war effort. ... My concern was that the military had a history of mismatching a person's experience with the job that they got and I was afraid they were going to make me a clerk typist somewhere."

Bugs losing ground with Japanese kids

TOKYO (AP) - Kids are changing in Japan, appearing to lose interest in some of the world's most timeless creatures - bugs. Purveyors of insects say modern entertainments like computer games have slowed their sales to a crawl.

"This has been a terrible year for sales," said Mitsuo Otsuka, manager of the Insect Corner at Tokyo's Takashimaya department store.

Otsuka said the store used to sell $380 to $480 worth of insects on a good Sunday. "Now we're lucky if we can sell half that much," he said.

In rural Japan, the sight of a child with net out to nab a cicada or dragonfly is common. But in the city, Otsuka and other bug salesmen say hopping insects are no match for modern diversions.

"It's computer games. Kids are more interested in machines these days," Otsuka said.

Even so, he said, Takashimaya expects to sell about $6,000 worth of bugs this year.

The bug-hunting season in Japan hits its peak in early July and lasts through August. To city kids, the hunting ground is often the rooftops of department stores like Takashimaya, where such exotic creatures as the coleopteran, cricket and stag beetle are easy prey - for the right price.

A clerk at the Tokyo department store's pet shop said she had sold a 3-inch male stag beetle for $770 early this month. "But only insect-crazy adults buy those bugs, not kids."

A medium-range item, she said, was a pair of smaller stag beetles. The beetles, which came with a plastic cage, dirt and a few slices of rotting eggplant, were priced at $77

Bosses wary of hiring foreigners

SAN ANTONIO, The fear of employer sanctions contained in the new immigration law has caused employers to discriminate against foreign-looking job-seekers, members of a U.S. House subcommittee have been told.

Immigration attorneys and civil rights representatives told the U.S. House Subcommittee at a hearing at Trinity University Tuesday that fear and confusion surround the new immigration law.

Mike Lehr, Texas field coordinator for the Federation for American Immigration Reform, said Hispanics allegedly have fallen victim to job discrimination because of the fear of employer sanctions.

"One of the principal safeguards

"Despite these state-mandated increases, we have lost $510,980 in state funds over the past three years, but local revenue has only increased $320,000.

"I believe our state funding will continue to drop," Greenawalt said. "Beginning in September we will look at personnel with a strong look at making some changes. That is not something I like to say, but we will have to look at that."

"This is a problem almost every school district in the state is faced with," said board member Dennis Newton. "The decrease is state funding, with all of the increases the state says we have to make, is such that we have to do things we don't like, like raising

Attorney general skeptical of Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) - Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh says he is concerned that a special prosecutor plan aimed at Congress by his predecessor, Edwin Meese III, is a "cure where there is no disease." Thornburgh said in an interview Tuesday that he is taking a "second look" at an order Meese signed on his last day as attorney general that requires special investigations of members of Congress suspected of criminal wrongdoing.

Meese was the subject of a lengthy investigation by Independent Counsel James C. McKay, who declined to seek indictments but said in his final report that Meese "probably" had broken ethics laws.

Meese's final-day order for special prosecutors to investigate members of Congress was widely viewed on Capitol Hill as a parting shot by Meese at his critics there.

Thornburgh, 56, a former head of the Justice Department's criminal division in the Ford administration, said Tuesday that it is "pretty well known that I see a very limited role for special prosecutors-independent counsels in the process of investigating and prosecuting criminal

He said U.S. attorneys and the department's office of public integrity, which investigates corruption of public officials, do a fine job pursuing allegations of criminal conduct, and prosecuting if necessary.

Thornburgh established the public integrity office in the mid-1970s.

"I guess what I am curious about is what is being proposed ... a cure where there is no disease" he said. "I am taking what could be called fairly a second look at that order."

While Meese was attorney general, a number of high-ranking officials resigned, and a number expressed unhappiness with the attention Meese was forced to give to McKay's investigation.

Asked how he planned to restore morale, Thornburgh said: "You lead by example, and I want to make it clear that my view of the department is one that requires an absolute fidelity to high standards of professional conduct and integrity in our operations ... the values and principles of any organization are transmitted from the top."

The popularity of denim clothing is a wonderful example of the old saying that "you can't please all of the people all of the time." For every person who likes faded denim, there seems to be another who is unhappy about creases, streaking or color Denims Always Lose Dye

Changes in most denim fabrics are inevitable because they're indigo piece dyed fabrics. The dye is applied in a heavily concentrated form so the residuals are mostly on the surface of the fabric. Friction with the body, rubbing or mechanical action during laundering will dislodge the dye particles from clothing.

The loss of color will be most apparent on creases, double seam thicknesses and edges, since they

Frankly, I don't like the idea of anyone except me or their father velling at or hitting my kids.

When too many people tell children what to do and what not to do they become resentful and confused. The children are being put in the middle. It really isn't fair to them.

I hope you will print my letter, Ann. I'm sure thousands of other mothers are going through the same thing. Thanks from all of us.-The "Real" Mom on Long Island

DEAR MOM: I sense in your letter a smidgen of hostility toward your former husband's new wife. When the children are with their dad and stepmother, both should be free to discipline them. To deny the woman this privilege would give the kids a license to do as they please. This would be ruinous for everyone concerned. Please rethink your complaint.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several weeks ago a lady wrote to you about the hullabaloo she had had with her dentist. He refused to pull her daughter's teeth unless the fee was paid in advance.

I have a doctor-related story for you with a little different twist. This man was my physician for over 40 years, until he died.

One day, after "Dr. A." had completed examining me and was writing out a prescription, the phone rang. This is how the conversation

"You say you are sick and need to see a doctor, but you don't have a car and there is no one who can bring you here? You say you have no money and no health insurance? There was a slight pause and then the doctor spoke again. "Lady, please listen carefully. Call a taxi and have the driver bring you to my office. Tell the driver to bring you in and I will pay the cab fare. And don't worry about my fee."

Dr. A.S.G. was not only a very fine doctor, but the man had a heart of gold.-Bethlehem, Pa.

DEAR BETH: What a lovely story--especially these days, when few doctors will make a house call and the standard refrain is "Go to the emergency room of the nearest hospital."

Medicine has changed a lot in the last 20 years, but then so has everything else. One refreshing note--the new breed of physicians is going to be a dedicated lot because the lure of big bucks is a thing of the past. The cost of education, the funding of insurance plans and the nightmare of malpractice suits have made this career choice infinitely less appeal-

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My inlaws ask questions that are not their business, such as, "How much did your house cost? How much do you weigh? How much do you have in the bank? What kind of birth control do you use?"

How do we avoid answering without offending them?-Dallas Duo

DEAR DALLAS: Laugh goodnaturedly and say, "Oh, Oh...you're getting too personal!" And keep on smiling. Repeat several times an hour if necessary. It works.

According to Mark Twain: "Always do right. This will gratify some people and astonish the rest.'

People believe if you carry a potato with you, you will be healthy.

Helpful hints offered on canning, freezing produce

About this time of year, many doit-yourselfers are completing canning, freezing, jam-and jelly-making, and pickling chores. Below are answers to five commonly asked questions concerning these methods:

Question: Why do I have to process jams and pickles in a water bath? Processing destroys organisms that cause food to spoil and ensure that the food will keep without loss of color, flavor or texture. Jelly does not need water-bath processing organisms. Question: Why do jars sometimes fail to seal?

because it is cooked to a temperature

high enough to destroy spoilage

The most common cause is not following the directions given by the manufacturer of the lids. Because the sealing compound applied to the lids varies with the manufacturer, the directions vary also. Read and follow the directions for the brand you are using. Other causes: The jar was filled too full; the jar rim was chipped or was not adequately wiped off after filling; or the screw band was bent or rusty and did not hold the lid firmly against the rim of the jar.

Question: My jelly looks beautiful, but when I opened a jar it was runny. What did I do wrong?

The proportions of fruit, sugar and pectin in jelly are very important. Inaccurate measuring or over-or under-cooking may result in runny jelly. Never double a jelly or jam

If you have a batch of thin jelly, serve it over waffles or pancakes, as an ice-cream sauce, or use it to

NEW YORK (AP) - The murder capital of the world may be in the heart of South America.

An anthropologist who studied the Yanomamo Indians for 24 years reports he found 44 percent of all males over 25 had participated in at least one killing and 70 percent of all Yanomamo adults over 40 had lost a close relative to violence. Surprisingly, he found that the most frequent murderers were family men.

sweeten fruit compotes. Question: Can I freeze tomatoes and potatoes?

Yes, but don't expect them to have the texture of the fresh vegetables when they're thawed. Peel, core and chop tomatoes. Place them in moisture-and vapor-proof bags, seal and freeze. Or, place peeled and cored tomatoes on baking sheet and freeze until firm. Then transfer to freezer bags, seal and freeze. Add frozen tomatoes to chili, vegetable soup, or casseroles and skillet meals.

Peel, cube and cook potatoes. Freeze and package as for tomatoes. Add frozen potatoes to stews, soups or casseroles.

Question: Why do green beans have to be processed in a pressure canner?

It takes more than boiling-water temperatures to destroy botulismcausing organisms in a low-acid food such as green beans. A pressure canner at 10 pounds pressure reaches 240 degrees Fahrenheit and ensures adequate heat penetration.

Moyer leads Cubs over Astros, 9-3 not exactly gloating about his second straight complete game victory at Wrigley Field.

After losing seven in a row this year at home, Moyer threw his third complete game Tuesday, as the Chicago Cubs buried the Houston Astros, 9-3. "I know the statistics show that my teammates scored only 13 runs in my 12 losses, but I can no longer use that as an excuse," says Moyer, now 7-12. "A lot of the blame has to lie in me, because I couldn't hold the other teams, and I'm sure not going to CHICAGO (AP) - Jamie Moyer is blame the position players for my poor season."

> Moyer's job was made easier by a seven-run, seventh inning, the Cubs' biggest run production of the year.

Mark Grace's single off loser Danny Darwin scored Mitch Webster to break a 2-2 deadlock, and before the inning was over Vance Law had singled home two runs and Damon Berryhill hit a two run homer.

"Moyer could have had a shutout, had it not been for a call by an umpire in the first inning when a player was ruled out after being caught in a rundown between third and home, said Manager Don Zimmer. "Sure, Moyer gave up 12 hits, but he made the big pitches when he had too."

Houston manager Hal Lanier said, "Moyer was very effective with his change of pace and curve ball, but we had so many chances, especially in that first inning when we loaded the bases with nobody out and were fortunate to get two runs."

Berryhill, who hit his homer from the right side of the plate, became the first Cub player since Bump Wills in 1982 to hit homers as both a lefty and from the right.

"I continue to be surprised by Berryhill especially with his hitting," said Zimmer.

Darwin, who failed to retire the first four batters he faced in the seventh, said, "I made a lot of bad pitches and I was behind on the count most of the game."

Asked why he did not bring in a reliever earlier in the inning, Lanier said, "My bullpen is pretty thin, especially Juan Agosto who has been up 13 times in the last 15 games and who has worked six of the last seven. Larry Andersen has been worked a lot lately, so we did the best with what we had available.'

Six Kansas City batters walk in ninth inning

Rangers give away game to Royals gave it away. We walked it away."

But the bullpen fell apart, giving up six walks and allowing four hits as the Royals sent 13 men to the plate to score eight runs off of four relief pitchers in the ninth inning for an 11-7 Tuesday night.

Texas' bullpen, suspect all season, suffered through its worst outing of the year. The eight-run ninth was the Royals' second-biggest inning of the

"I've never seen six walks in an inning with such a comfortable lead." Royals manager John Wathan said. "It's an entirely different mood in the clubhouse tonight. The music's blaring. Everybody's happy."

The only music in the Texas clubhouse came from Rangers singing the blues.

You've got a four-run lead going into the ninth, you've got to figure the bullpen's going to do the job," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "But we ran into big trouble. We Four straight walks off three different relievers produced the tying and go-ahead runs. Dale Mohorcic and Guy Hoffman threw 12 straight balls at one point, with Kevin Seitzer's bases-loaded walk forcing in the tying run and George Brett's pass producing the go-ahead tally.

Mohorcic (2-6) was tagged with four runs and the loss: Steve Farr (4-2), the fourth Royals hurler, pitched a scoreless eighth and ninth to earn the decision.

"Several of those pitches could have been called strikes," Mohorcic said. "But when a guy's a little wild I think the umpire has a tendency that when you throw a good pitch, he's going to think it's an accident and call it a ball."

Valentine and catcher Jim Sundberg were ejected in the ninth by home plate umpire Tim Tschida for arguing balls and strikes.

Sundberg said he hadn't been that angry during a game since 1977.

"Jim Sundberg's not a rowdy guy," said Sundberg's replacement, Mike Stanley. "For him to get as upset as he did, they had to be good pitches."

Valentine claimed he never spoke directly to Tschida before the ejec-

"I never said anything to him," said Valentine, who'd gone on the field to make a pitching change. "I was asking my catcher (Stanley) where the pitch was on the walk to Seitzer. I was upset, no doubt, but there's nothing in th rules that says you can't be upset.

"He (Stanley) said the pitch was down the middle. I didn't say he (Tschida) was blind or anything. But he thought I was showing him up."

Craig McMurtry's bases-loaded wild pitch allowed the inning's sixth run to cross the plate and Brad Wellman delivered a two-run single to bump the Royals lead to 11-7. Wellman was the third batter in the inning on his first at-bat and from that point, Wathan gave all his hitters the take sign.

Pinch-hitter Danny Tartabull's bases-loaded single produced two runs and Willie Wilson followed with a run-scoring single to narrow the Rangers'lead to 7-6.

Cecil Espy's RBI triple triggered a four-run second and the Rangers seemed poised for their fifth victory in their last six games, taking a 7-3 lead into the ninth.

Valentine lifted starter Jeff Russell, who'd scattered five hits and didn't walk a batter over eight innings, in favor of bullpen ace Mitch Williams. But Williams loaded the bases and Mohorcic was summoned.

Ranger relievers entered the game with a 7-11 record and a 4.35 ERA. Tuesday marked the fifth time this season that Texas lost after taking a lead into the ninth and the second time the Rangers have blown a fourrun lead in the ninth.

Commercial sponsorships important to U.S. athletes

DALLAS (AP) - A published report says American athletes are going for the gold in Olympics competition with the help of multimilliondollar corporate contributions, but such support has a hidden price tag.

The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story Tuesday that corporate sponsorship is the primary fuel behind a growing U.S. sports machine that supports athletes in a style to which they never before had been accustomed.

Commercial sponsorships are "unbelievably important," said Bart Conner, a gold medal winning gymnast. "You just can't compete without them. You just can't."

Corporations gave an estimated $72 million in cash and products to the United States Olympic Committee for the 1985-1988 quadrennium. The four-year take previously was $62.4 million.

"Corporate sponsorships are why the Olympics are surviving today," Debbie Meyer, a triple gold medalist in swimming at the 1968 Games, Miller Brewing Co. pays $1 million per year to sponsor the massive U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. Two large, illuminated signs at either end of the message-scoreboard advertise the beer company as official center sponsor.

Miller officials recognized linking the company to the word "Olympic" was good business. Others include Anheuser-Busch Inc., Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Federal Express Corp., Eastman Kodak Co., McDonald's Corp. and Xerox Corp.

Corporate largesse does not come without a price, however. In the end, companies want results for their advertising dollars.

"We haven't been able to show corporations the demographics they want to see," said Bob Thretheway, executive director of the U.S. Table Tennis Federation.

"We haven't done as good a job marketing our sport as we might have done. Quite frankly, we're still learning how to do it."

Some observers say other federations have bungled their marketing

"The American (speedskating) association didn't take full advantage of what I did," said Eric Heiden, winner of five gold medals at Lake Placid, N.Y. in 1980.

"They expected people to knock on the door. ... They made a big mistake not selling the sport to corporate sponsors.'

Corporations last year spent more than $3.5 billion to sponsor and promote sporting events and athletes, marketing and advertising trade sources said.

Modern marketing game plans are used by John Krimsky, USOC deputy secretary-general for development since 1986, to pursue corporations and their sponsorship dollars.

"It used to be that we'd put the Olympic rings on the table and say, 'Bid.' But not anymore," he said.

Krimsky and his staff now solicit sponsorships, using demographic data, market-research studies and personal visits from Olympic athletes.

"The Olympic rings are the most salable, exciting commodity in sports," Krimsky, former head of marketing for Pan American World Airways Inc., said. "Nothing detracts from the Olympic Games. Everything else builds on them."

Abundant Life

PRESENT TIME VALUE By Bob Wear

Two common practices which are unfair to the present time are the maintaining of foolish attachment to the past, and anxious interest in the future. Both past and future must have some place in our thoughts, but it is the value of the present time which must dominate our thinking and action.

When we examine our own thoughts, what do we find? How much of our thoughts are occupied. with the past or the future? It has been said, "The present is never our object; the past and the present we use as means; the future only is our end. Thus, we never live, we only hope to live."-Pascal.

What value do we give to the present time? It is the time of which we can be sure; the time for learning, for working, for being happy, for doing good, and for improving ourselves. It is time for living. We must not be always waiting to live, but remember that each day is made for living. Let us be impressed with the Biblical statement about 'present time value'. "This is the day which the Lord has made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." If we will but see it as such, each day is a little life. Tomorrow may be a better day for some things, but this possibility cannot be a justified excuse for considering the present time of no value. In fact, it is generally agreed that making the best of this day is our best hope for a good tomorrow, and perhaps a better tomorrow. Some of the value of the present time is seen in the understanding that what we do or do not do today will have a great effect upon tomorrow.

The value of the present time can be seen in the present opportunities, and present blessings. The opportunities can be used the best we know how, and the blessings appreciated and enjoyed to the best of our capacity. Here is a good suggestion, "Do not spend your time dreaming about impossible things. Mount the ladder of life by discharging the duties at

Our present time value must never be overshadowed by the past, or depreciated by the future.

Hereford, Dawn residents candidates for WTSU degrees

ferred on 276 West Texas State University students Thursday during commencement exercises at 7:30 p.m. in Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium. Six Hereford residents and one Dawn Student will be among the WTSU graduates. Receiving degrees from Hereford will be Susan L. Ford, bachelor of general studies; Angela L. Hund, bachelor of science in mathematics education and earth science education; Sarah J. Lawson, master of education in administration; Ray Leasure, bachelor of applied arts and science; Jim Scott, Jr., bachelor of business administration in business; and Donna G. Stotts, bachelor of science in biology education, middle school science education. Janna C. Steele of Dawn will receive a bachelor of science degree in biology-wildlife science.

Dr. Louis J. Rodriguez, president of Midwestern State University, will deliver the commencement address.

Rodriguez earned his undergraduate degree in economics and history from Rutgers University in 1955, a master's in international trade from Louisiana State in 1957 and a doctorate in economics and finance from Louisiana State in 1963.

Woman's Health

CONTRACEPTION AFTER BABY By Robert C. Park, M.D., President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

For many brand-new mothers, thinking about what kind of contraception to use may seem silly. After all, you do not have a period for a while after having a baby, especially if you breast-feed. But, as many new mothers know, it is possible to become pregnant before having a period, and even women who breastfeed their babies around the clock are not completely protected against pregnancy.

So, what choices are available? For women who are not breastfeeding their babies, who do not smoke and are under age 40, the birth control pill is a very effective contraceptive. If you breast-feed, the pill is not recommended because the hormones affect the amount and quality of breast milk your baby will produce.

IUDs are again among the contraceptive choices for women. Generally, they are recommended for women who have sex with only one person and who no longer intend to have children.

Barrier methods such as the condom, diaphragm, sponge; and spermicides may be good either as a transition contraceptive or a longterm choice. Women who use diaphragms should have themselves checked and, if necessary, refitted after delivery because childbirth can change the size of the diaphragm needed. For women who breast-feed, barrier methods with spermicides provide an additional benefit; breast-feeding tends to decrease the amount of natural lubrication in the vagina, and the spermicides can help the dryness.

If you are sure that you do not want any more children, you may consider sterilization (tubal ligation) following your delivery. Reversing sterilization requires a more complex operation and is not always suc-

Another option is sterilization or a vasectomy for your partner. Vasectomies, like tubal ligations, should be considered only if you are sure you do not want any more children.

Before making up your mind, you may want to ask your doctor what he or she recommends. Then pick the contraceptive or procedure that is best for your health, your lifestyle, and your family, now and in the

Cool, summer salad

This robust pasta and mozzarella salad combination is adapted from the takeout line at the area deli. You can substitute any medium-sized pasta for the corkscrew macaroni to meet your tastes.

Summertime salads keep kitchens cool

As the long, last days of summer arrive, cool salads are popular among the family that hates to heat up the kitchen by using the oven. Salads for all tastes may be made in a few easy steps.

PASTA AND MOZZARELLA SALAD

8 ounces corkscrew macaroni 10 ounces fresh spinach, torn 8 ounces mozzarella cheese, cubed 8 ounces thinly sliced mild pepper ham or fully cooked ham, chopped 4-ounce can diced green chili peppers, drained Parmesan Dressing Grated Parmesan cheese

Aug. 5. Call 915-362-6138 or write Cook macaroni according to package Dianna Fields, 2971 Beachwood, directions. Drain. Toss macaroni with dressing; add spinach, mazzarella, ham and chili peppers. Cover and chill. At serving time, top each serving with 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan. Makes 6 to 8 serv-

Parmesan Dressing: Place 1 egg in blender container. Cover; blend 5 seconds. With blender running, slowly add 1 cup salad oil until thick. Add 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese, 1/4 cup white wine vinegar, 1/2 to 1 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves and 1 to 2 cloves garlic, minced. Blend until smooth.

ORIENTAL TOSSED

SALAD 1/2 of a 6-ounce package frozen pea pods 4 cups torn salad greens

1/2 of an 8-ounce can sliced water chestnuts, drained 1 tablespoon sesame seed

3 tablespoons salad oil 4 teaspoons vinegar 4 teaspoons dry sherry

2 teaspoons soy sauce

2 teaspoons honey

In a colander rinse pea pods under cold water to thaw. In a salad bowl place pea pods, torn greens, water chestnuts and sesame seed. For dressing, in a screw-top jar combine oil, vinegar, sherry, honey and soy sauce. Cover and shake well. Pour over salad; toss to coat. Makes 6 servings.

This supper salad can be ready for the table in less than 30 minutes. SIMPLE SALMON

SALAD

10-ounce package frozen peas 10-ounce package frozen rice 4 ounces Swiss cheese, cubed 14 teaspoond ried dillweed 71/2-ounce can salmon, drained, skin

2 cups spinach leaves 12 cup shredded carrot

1/2 cup creamy cucumber salad dressing

Place peas in a colander under cold running water for 2 minutes to thaw. Place rice pouch under warm running water until mixture can be broken up, about 5 minutes. Toss together rice, peas, cheese and dillweed. Add salmon; toss lightly. Line 4 plates with spinach; place salmon mixture on top. Arrange carrot around edge. Pass dresing. Makes 4 servings.

A GATHERING OF BIPLANES BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) -

Aviation's Concours d'Elegance was held here recently at the 2nd Annual National Biplane Fly-In at Frank Phillips Field. The event attracted 150 biplanes.

The gathering featured some of the world's finest show-class and antique and modern biplanes in a setting that allowed spectators to take a close

AREA
FARMERS:

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is working in an opportunity to increase the profits of area farmers.

You can help us shape Hereford's future by simply writing a personal letter expressing your interest and capabilities to grow food corn for a major contractor. Your letter will be an important part of a promotional packet now being compiled by the Chamber of Commerce.

These letters will not represent any binding commitment on your part, but will hopefully prove this area's ability to support a new corn plant and mill. Your participation is a crucial element in our efforts to attract this particular industry.

For your convenience, a sample letter appears below. We welcome your involvement and will be happy to answer any questions which you may have.
